Grounding students in eternal truths is a concern of Ambassador College. Its aim is to provide students with the kind of education that will loosen the shackles of ignorance, so that they may approach life as confident, free and enlightened individuals. We now celebrate 45 years of ongoing ing commitment to the pursuit of true values in life. Yet Ambassador College remains faithful to an educational tradition that stretches back far beyond 45 years. It holds to the transcendent goals of promoting wisdom and virtue in its students. Ambassador College recognizes that the transmission of knowledge alone does not constitute higher education. Students also ought to receive comprehensive instruction in ethical conduct and develop Godly character. Ambassador College bases its liberal-arts education on the Word of God. Students graduate not only with technical knowledge in their preferred discipline, but also with a commitment to Instruction in Christian values combined with opportunities for experience are what Ambassador College is all about. From classrooms to extra-curricular activities, from job experience to dormitory life, from local service opportunities to international projects, Ambassador students are not only provided values-based instruction, but they are given opportunities for practical application of those values.

Biblically based Christian values do not belong only in theology lecture halls. Such values need to cut across and transform all disciplines, forming the foundation for right living in every corner of life. As the 21st century approaches, the demand for sound moral leadership rooted in solid personal values grows critical. Ambassador's administration, faculty, and staff is dedicated to helping prepare students to meet the emerging challenges of a demanding and complex future.

In today's increasingly self-oriented and impersonal world, a popular belief is that humans should have the personal right to make their own rules, set their own standards and live as they please. The Bible, which Ambassador upholds as the divine revelation of true values, is often viewed as having no serious authority over human attitudes and conduct. In place of the God of the Bible, an increasingly secular society seems to bow down to the narcissistic god Self as the premier authority to decide right from wrong and good from bad.

At Ambassador, however, education is set in the context of the Word of God. Engraved in bronze and set in rock outside Ambassador's library is the maxim, "The Word of God is the Foundation of Knowledge." Ambassador College strives to stand firmly on this sure foundation and is, therefore, dedicated to blending excellence in technical knowledge and skills with excellence in values, character and heart. It is the goal of Ambassador to prepare students to put knowledge to use for the benefit and well-being of fellow humans.

Ambassador College is committed to providing its students a high-quality, broadly based liberal-arts program that promotes the development of balanced, values-based Christian leadership for both the Church and society. Justice, peace, and freedom to live and grow – these cannot long endure without their true foundation: the Word of God. And success without these is no success at all.

The motto of Ambassador College is "Recapture True Values." To the College's students and faculty, this is no mere platitude. It is, rather, an ideology based on the sure Word of God that encompasses every aspect of life. True values are Christian values, and it is from this wellspring of Christian vitality that Ambassador students are given the essential preparation to make the lasting difference so vital in the decades ahead.

What are your plans for building a better world? Human beings all around the globe yearn for a brighter future. In order to create a new world order, man needs to be freed from fear, ignorance, superstition, war, disease and poverty. Most of humanity's wars have been fought in the name of freedom. In an address to the House of Commons in 1828, Lord Brougham proclaimed, "Education makes a people easy to lead but difficult to drive; easy to govern, but impossible to enslave." Yet human kind continues to perpetuate ignorance, fear and superstition at the expense of fellow humans.

Education based on the eternal truths of the Bible is the only road to true and lasting freedom. It is the only hope for building a better world. Jesus said, "you shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:37). The liberal arts provides the framework for the pursuit of truth and true values. Students need to probe the big questions of life. The learner must be encouraged to ask questions and search for answers. "The aim of education should be to teach rather how to think, than what to think," said Scottish poet James Beattie. Ambassador College provides this type of educational structure. The answers or knowledge must then be transformed into action in order for freedom to become reality in a person's life.

A college can be defined as a collection of individuals dedicated to building a lighthouse of learning to illuminate the path of travelers on the road of life. Ambassador is building a lighthouse that shines beyond the East Texas woods. Ambassador College is more than a center of learning where students come, and four years later, go. It is an attitude and an approach to life that burns brightly in the hearts and minds of graduates around the world.

Like light, education can be absorbed or reflected. When absorbed, education improves your own life; when reflected, it improves the lives of those around you. In a world we now call a global village, we are indeed our brother's keeper.

You can graduate from college, but the learning process must never end. Education equips you for participation in the arena of life. Too many people choose to cheer from the sidelines. What about you? Plan to participate in building a better world.

At the start of this year, a member of student government may have been inclined to say, "Wow! The challenge of consolidation is now behind us." But the reality of the 1991-92 school year has involved much more than just building on the foundation of consolidation. An appropriate maxim for the year may have been "from consolidation to accreditation," and Ambassador College has made some critical strides in the transition.

Indeed, this year has been a challenge. One might describe it as the bridge between consolidation and accreditation. Not only has the physical building process continued, but the curriculum has been in a state of flux as the College pursues accreditation.

Within this context student leaders have encouraged those within their sphere of influence to deal effectively with any changes necessary to enhance Ambassador College. It was necessary for the entire college community to capture the vision of what Ambassador is becoming.

Kevin Epps
Student Body President

One memorable occasion was a meeting of student government with a representative of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS). The SACS representative said that the students', faculty's, and administration's love for the College is Ambassador's most distinguishable attribute.

In this regard, the most important role the student government played was that of maintaining the same goals, values and integrity which Ambassador College has had since its inception in 1947. Locations, buildings, roads, landscapes and curriculums may be altered, but the foundation and substance of Ambassador College remains ever constant. Therefore, it is an honor to be a part of any stage of its history. If we internalize all that Ambassador College stands for, we will never fail.

Student Council

f s o facu

Employers of the '90s are looking for graduates with a wide range of knowledge and skills. For this reason, Ambassador offers majors and minors in a variety of areas including Business Administration, Management Information Systems and Home Economics. In addition, two new majors in English and Liberal Studies are now offered. Ambassador also offers minors in Computer Information Systems, Mass Communications, French, German, Spanish, English and Theology.

But the key to making Ambassador's curriculum work effectively lies with the College's faculty. Their expertise coupled with a deep commitment to the institution provide students the educational edge so needed for the future.

From speech clubs for promoting communication skills, to dances for developing social graces, activities are a highlight of the year.

Students gain insight from weekly forums and assemblies, and build lasting friendships at class get-togethers. Vocal and instrumental ensembles add a musical dimension, and through Outreach many students are able to serve the local community.

Ambassador activities are not limited to East Texas either. Some students volunteer a year of service to projects in Jordan, Sri Lanka and Thailand. Closer to home, others can enjoy world class recreation on the ski slopes of Vail, Colorado.

Near or far, Ambassador's activities complement the College's academics in developing the whole person.

One highlight of orientation week was the annual Freshmen Reception which was held on the mall in front of the Hall of Administration. In between sampling refreshments, new students were able to become acquainted with faculty members and meet some of the students they would be sharing their lives with over the next few years.

Community members joined with faculty and the media to celebrate the College's 45th anniversary. Big Sandy mayor Johnnie Baird proclaimed Aug. 19 "Ambassador College Day" to honor the event.

Sounds of bulldozers and cement mixers filled the air as work on the hard-scapes around the women's residences continued. Since August, over 3,200 feet of sidewalk, and 2,200 feet of curbs and gutter were laid.

During this busy month, the Music Department participated in several activities including a department assembly and a performance by the Young Ambassadors at the Fall Fest in Gladewater. Tenor Roger Bryant, director of the Ambassador Chorale, exhibited his vocal expertise at a faculty recital on October 27.

This year the students were privileged to hear from several guest speakers. In October, Martin Paled-Flax, Israel's Vice-Consul to Houston, spoke on the tenuous relationship between Israel and it's Arab neighbors.

The visit by administrators representing the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) was a major step on the road toward accreditation for Ambassador College. During their four day visit, the committee observed and evaluated Ambassador based on SACS criteria.

During October students scattered around the globe for the annual Feast of Tabernacles. More than 100 Worldwide Church of God festival sites (such as St. Petersburg, Fla., above) allowed time with family and friends.

Sport

SPORT

From basketball to volleyball, to soccer and golf, sports at Ambassador are carefully designed to develop both the individual and the team.

For many years the College has offered a strong and varied program of intramural sports. Building on that basis, Ambassador is into its second year of intercollegiate athletics.

Regardless to whether they're playing against classmates or students from other schools, Ambassador athletes are taught winning attitudes as well as winning moves. From setting up a shot at the basket, to charging down the field for a goal, players learn to put forth their best efforts individually and as a team.

With this focus, players do more than meet the challenges of the game – they prepare to meet the challenges of life.

For 45 years Ambassador College has not only been an academic institution, but a home as well.

Each year students come from all over the world to start a new life in the Piney Woods of East Texas. They laugh together, cry together, play together and work together. More importantly, they build friendships that will last forever.

In this section you will see the faces of men and women dedicated to the goal of recapturing true values. Their faces reflect time spent changing, growing and meeting challenges.

These students are working toward more than just a diploma – they are working toward a broader sense of themselves and the world from where they have come.
