

Faith and Doctrines of the Early Church

G.M.Bowers

Constantine—the first “Universal
Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church.

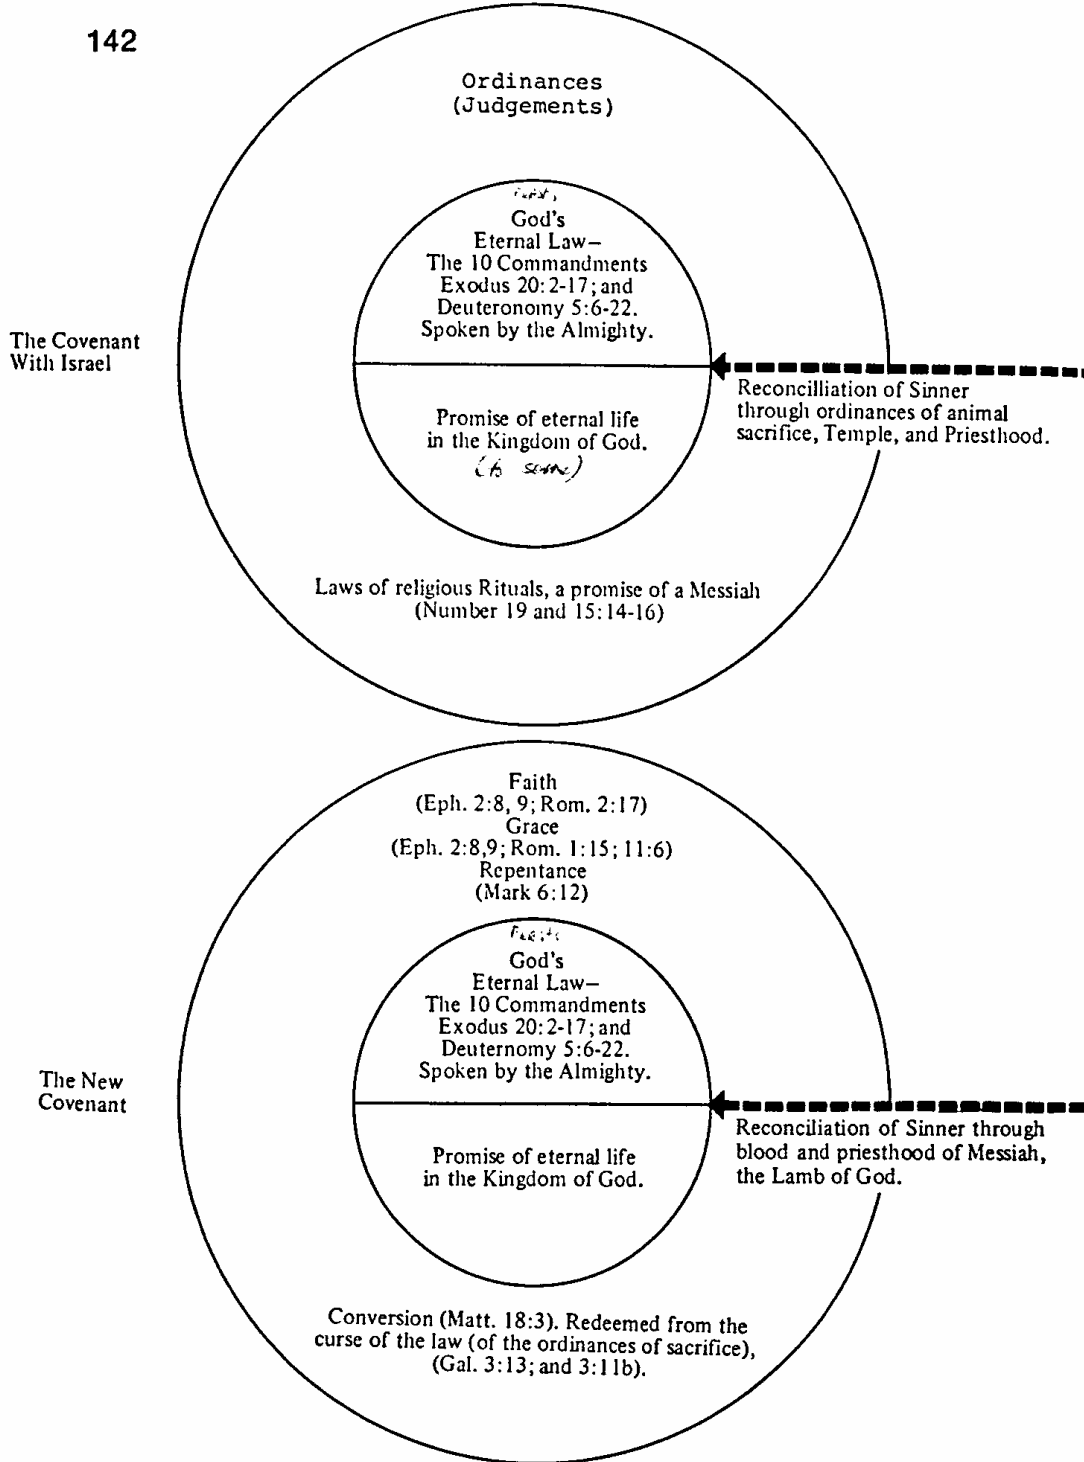

“A wonderful instance of spiritual blindness is given us in a very celebrated work of a late eminent writer, who supposes that the New Jerusalem came down from heaven when Constantine called himself a Christian! I say called himself a Christian, for I dare not affirm that he was one any more than Peter the Great. I cannot but believe that he would have come nearer the mark if he had said that it was the time when a huge cloud of infernal brimstone and smoke came up from the bottomless pit.”—John Wesley, Wesley's Sermons Vol. 2, p. 97.

The Round Table of the Vices

A satirical representation of the dissolute mode of life of the higher clergy, Kings and princes of the time of the Reformation. A German woodcut of about the year 1546.

Faith and Doctrines of the Early Church

G. M. Bowers

The Bible says we should “earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints.” What faith was that? What were the beliefs and doctrines of the apostles and the New Testament Church of God? What happened to those beliefs down through the centuries?

In this fascinating, revealing book, author G. M. Bowers explodes modern religious misconceptions and myths about true Christianity. He shows how step by step a shocking apostasy crept into the Church, and how insidious and nefarious pagan doctrines supplanted the original true doctrines of the early Church. He shows how an ancient pagan conspiracy prevailed and how the true faith of Christ gradually became suppressed. Author G. M. Bowers then shows the true beliefs taught by the apostles of the early Church.
