Lesson # 1

I've given some consideration as to what to get into by way of Bible study. There are many different things we could go through and, undoubtedly (in the time ahead of us), many things that we will go through. I felt that maybe a good place to start would be to go back to the Bible itself—to take some time as to the proof of the Bible, the origin of the Bible, etc.

Many times we, in the western world, take this Book for granted. The Bible is a book that we have grown up with, whether we grew up in the Church or not. We grew up with a certain familiarity with the Bible. Everybody had a Bible, heard of a Bible or knew about a Bible. We kind of take for granted the fact this is God's Book.

If we were to look around the world, there are many people in many areas of the world—many different societies and cultures—that certainly don't recognize the Bible as being anything in particular. And there are differences that come in, even as far as what constitutes the Bible. The Roman Catholic Church, for instance, regards the books that compose the Bible as being different from the books that we normally use in our Bibles. Why is the Bible that we use in God's Church the same as what is used in the Protestant world, as opposed to the Bible that is used in the Catholic world?

Most of you are undoubtedly familiar with the books in the Catholic Bible that are different. There are several books that are included—the so-called Apocrypha books, as well as certain endings on some other books. There are various things that are included that you don't find in the Bible we customarily use. Why is that? Why the difference and how can you know that the books that you are using as the Bible consist of the books that God wanted preserved? How did it come about? Who decided that this is the Bible? Who had the right to decide that and what gave them the right to decide?

The Roman Catholic Church, of course, claims that they are the ones who have the right to decide what the Bible is. That's why, after the Protestant Reformation had its beginnings with Martin Luther, the Roman Catholic Church, at the Council at Trent, declared certain books to be part of Scripture—the books that constitute the Catholic canon.

The word "canon" is a word that simply means "measure." It comes from a Greek term that had to do with a measuring rod. When you speak of canon in terms of the Bible, you are not talking about something you shoot—a big gun. Canon comes from the Greek term which meant "a measuring rod." In other words, the canon was the books that measured up. That's kind of the sense of the word. That's the meaning. It's sort of a technical term that's used, and that's the origin of it. It refers to those books that measure up or don't measure up. Going back to ancient times, it was the term that was used. We will be talking about the canon, or the canonization, and the books that composed the canon, or the books that are not considered a part of the canon.

The Roman Catholic Church had the council of Trent in the sixteenth century, following the Protestant Reformation. The Protestants said the Bible is supreme. This was their claim. That is not the way it actually worked out in practice, but their claim was that the Bible is supreme. The Catholic Church said, 'You don't even know what the Bible is and the church is supreme. The church is superior to the Bible because the church determines what the Bible is. And to prove that, we will add some books! We will declare, as a part of the canon, books that have been kind of on the borderline. We will declare those as a part of the Bible. We will fix the canon and we will determine—we will decide—what is in the Bible, and what is not. We are the ones that decided it and established the Bible to begin with.' This was their claim. Is this true? The Catholic Church claims to be the one who provided the Bible. Is that really an accurate statement? What about the Old Testament? What about the New Testament? When was it written? Who wrote it? How do you know which books are a part of the Bible?

Jesus Christ said that "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God" (Matthew 4:4). If we are going to live by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of the Father, how do you know that this Book, the Bible, consist of every word of God? How do you know we have the whole thing? Maybe we just have part of it. Can we be sure?

From time to time, we read of certain obscure books. Maybe you've heard of certain books termed "lost books of the Bible." Various books, sometimes, would turn up—the Apocrypha, books that are normally used as a part of the Catholic canon—and there are other books floating around from ancient times that even the Catholic Church does not consider a part of the canon. But you hear of them: the book of Enoch, Jasher and various ones. Sometimes they are even referred to in the Bible. In the Bible itself, you read a mention of the so-called book of Jasher and of certain other books like that. What about these books? Are they supposed to be a part of the Bible? Can you know if we have the whole Bible? Who decided that it was the Bible and how was it preserved? The copy we have in front of us—where did it come from? How do we know that this Book we have right here, in front of us, is God’s Book for us? How do we know that this is all of it? How do we know that there are not other books floating around somewhere that somebody will dig up, that maybe we ought to add in? How do we know that the books we have are all the books that God intended?

There are several things that we might look at. Romans 3:1 is one good place to start. Paul asked, “What advantage then has the Jew, or what profit is there of circumcision?”

In v. 2, he answers it, “Much in every way! [Here is the chief advantage the Jews had.] Chiefly because to them were committed the oracles of God.” “Oracles” means “the Word of God.” So the chief advantage that the Jews had is that, ‘to them were given the Word of God.’

Verse 3, “For what if some did not believe it? Will their unbelief make the faithfulness of God without effect?” The advantage that the Jews had was that to them were given the Word of God! What if they didn’t believe it? What if some of them did not practice it? Many of them today do not practice it. Does their unbelief make the faithfulness of God of none effect?

If God was going to give His Word to someone, does it make sense that God would then break His Word? Does God inspire something to be written, but is helpless to preserve it? Are you going to go out and dig it up somewhere and then not know if you’ve found the right thing or the wrong thing? If God is going to inspire something as His Word, then there needs to be some means of preserving it and of guaranteeing that what we have—what God’s people have had through the centuries—is what God wanted them to have.

Now, if you are going to do that, then there has to be someone to preserve it. That was the job the Jews had. Their chief advantage is that they had committed to them the keeping of God’s Word. If they didn’t believe it, that didn’t affect it. They still had to keep God’s Word. God was going to be faithful. It was God’s responsibility to preserve it. He used them as human instruments. God can use human beings in spite of themselves and has done so many times. So, God utilized the Jews to preserve His Word.

There is an interesting statement that Jesus made in the book of Matthew in what is called the Sermon on the Mount.

Matthew 5:17-18, “Don’t think that I came to destroy the law or the prophets. I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill [to fill to the full]. For truly I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass away, not one jot or tittle shall in any wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled.”

Now what does that mean “not one jot or one tittle”? The term “jot” refers to the smallest letter of the Hebrew alphabet, pronounced in Hebrew as “yad.” It looks like a little apostrophe, and it is the Hebrew letter that is the equivalent of our “y” or “i” sound. It is the smallest, least significant-looking letter. It looks like a little apostrophe. The “tittle” referred to kind of a decoration that was put on certain letters of the alphabet, particularly the ending letters of a word. What Christ is saying in effect is, ‘not the dotting of one “i”, not the crossing of one “t” is going to disappear.’ Everything is going to be preserved to the letter.

That’s a pretty strong statement. He said it would be easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for the dotting of an “i” or the crossing of a “t” to pass away from the Old Testament! It’s interesting because even though the Jews have not obeyed—certainly not obeyed in the spirit of the law—many of the instructions that God gave, they historically have had a regard and a certain reverence for the Bible—the Holy Scriptures.

The Jews don’t use the term “Old Testament.” The obvious reason is that if you have an Old Testament, then you must, therefore, have a New Testament. The Jews do not recognize the authority of the New Testament because, as a nation, they rejected Christ as being the Messiah spoken of in the Scriptures. They have, therefore, rejected the authority of the New Testament. The New Testament was preserved in a different manner. We will address that at a later time. The Jews have preserved the Old Testament, or as they have termed it, “the Holy Scriptures” or “the Sacred Writings.”

It is interesting the way in which the Old Testament has been preserved. There was a group of scribes known as the “Sopherim” that were responsible for the transcribing of the Old Testament. This was a lifetime job. This was a major job. The Sopherim were a very meticulous, technical and detail-minded people. They devised various ways to make sure that nothing got lost.

In the Hebrew language, each letter has numeric significance. Most of us are familiar with Roman numerals. “I” is “1,” “V” is “5,” “X” is “10,” “L” is “50,” “C” is “100,” etc. We are familiar with this type of thing and realize that, in modern times, we now use what is termed “Arabic numerals” (the one through ten designations), our alphabet being distinct. But in ancient times, most nations and their languages utilized the letters of their alphabet as also being numbers. This was commonly used in the Roman Empire in the Latin language. A number of the letters had numeric value, and we use it even today as Roman numerals.

In Hebrew, the “alpha,” which was the first letter, was “1,” the “beta” was “2” and the “gamma” was “3.” That was just the way it was, and they had various combinations of letters that stood for certain numbers. So each letter had a numeric value, which means that any word that you could write out, would also have a numeric value. If each letter has a numeric value, then you can spell it out and pronounce it as a word or you can add it up as a number. That is referred to in Revelation 13:18 when we’re told about the beast—the number of his name will be “666.” This is something that was very understandable to people at that time because they were familiar with languages where the letters had numeric value. Every name had a numeric value because if every letter of the alphabet has a numeric value, and you write out your name, whatever your name is you can go through and add it up. We could do that. You can do it in Roman numerals if your name happens to have a lot of “i’s” and “v’s” and “x’s” in it. Maybe for most of us we wouldn’t come up with very much. There are all kinds of names you can add up if you get the right combinations. Anyway, this was something they were familiar with.

The point I’m making is that was one of the primary ways that the Jewish scribes checked to make sure that nothing got lost in the shuffle. They went through the scriptures and literally counted every word and every letter. They had added up various combinations and they knew, for instance, which letter ought to be the two hundredth letter, counting from the first letter in Genesis as you count forward. They knew what would be the two hundredth letter, or what would be the five hundredth word, counting forward and backwards, from the end of Genesis. They had many number tricks like this, including what would be the numeric value of the first chapter. It was their way of crosschecking their work. When a scribe copied, someone would go back and arbitrarily look at various places. They might take the book of Obadiah, and they would know what should be the ninety-ninth letter. So they would count from the first letter to the ninety-ninth to see if it corresponded. At other times they might count backwards. They would add up certain sections. They would add the numeric value and see if it totaled up. They had all these numerical methods of cross checking to where, if one letter was added or taken out, it would throw the numbering off, and it would be very apparent.

If all you were doing was just going through, reading and comparing, it would be very easy to miss a letter. How many times have you proofread something you’ve typed and found out later there were spelling errors you had missed? I have lots of times. It’s easy to miss something when you are proofreading something this way. But they would have one man do the copying, and someone else would go through and not just proofread it in the sense of reading through what he was copying. They would have these intricate little puzzles that they had devised as a means of crosschecking. If they ever found one that diverged, they would go through letter by letter to see what the divergence was. And the rule was: when Scripture was copied onto vellum parchment (animal skin), there could never be an erasure. If they found an error, they made a note in the margin as to the proper reading, but nothing could be erased. If vellum was used it could not be erased because you wouldn’t know how to distinguish what had been erased by the scribes or erased by someone else. For those occasional errors, they would make a notation in the margin so that anyone reading it would be able to spot what it was and read it properly. But there were not any scratching out, scribbles, erasing and this kind of thing. They were very meticulous, even to the point of a virtual superstitious awe of the Scriptures. Not one jot or tittle was to pass. The Jews were very careful in this regard.

Let’s go on a little further. What books constituted the Old Testament as we know it? It’s very apparent what Jesus Christ considered the Scriptures consisted of.

After the resurrection, Jesus Christ, in His showing Himself to the disciples in Luke 24:44-45, “He said unto them, ‘These are the words I spoke to you while I was still with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning Me.' Then opened He their understanding that they might understand the Scriptures." How did Jesus Christ define the Scriptures? He defined the Scriptures as consisting of the Law, the Prophets and the Psalms (or the Writings). That is the traditional Jewish division of the Scriptures: the Law, the Prophets and the Writings—a three-fold division. Jesus Christ recognized that as being authoritative and refers to it here, specifically, as the LAW, the PROPHETS and the PSALMS (or WRITINGS). He defined it in v. 45 as being "the Scriptures."

The books of the Apocrypha simply do not fit into that. The Jews never have regarded them as a part of the Law, or a part of the Prophets, or a part of the Writings (Psalms) division. They don't fit into that three-part division. The books of the Apocrypha were primarily written in the Greek language during the time between the close of the Old Testament period and the beginning of the New Testament period. They were books that had their origin in the Jewish community. Jews did not regard them then, nor do the Jews regard them now as being scriptural. They are simply thought of, by the Jews, as being books—historical books—books of certain value, just as we have many books in our society today. Books that may contain a certain degree of fact and a certain degree of fable—books that are simply books. Somebody wrote them, and they give that person's opinion. The Jews have never considered the Apocrypha a part of the Scriptures.

Josephus was a Jewish historian who lived in the first century—in the time of Christ and on up through the destruction of the temple in 70 A.D. He was not only a priest, but he was also an individual of the highest echelons of Jewish society. He was a Jewish general in the Jewish revolt against the Romans, and he was an historian. He provides in his books—in his works that have been preserved for us—a certain listing of the Scriptures and makes an interesting statement. He declares that the Holy Scriptures consists of twenty-two books, divided into three sections: the Law, the Prophets and the Psalms (or Writings). Now if you were to go through your Old Testament and were to start counting books, you would very quickly come up with more than twenty-two. What did he mean by that? The Jews today count twenty-four books as being in the Scriptures of the Old Testament in these same three divisions. There is a reason why.

In the traditional reckoning of the books, some of the books that we count as multiple books, they count as simply one. Let's notice an example. In I Samuel, in most of your Bibles, it will probably have, "The First Book of Samuel, otherwise called the First Book of the Kings." Maybe you've never noticed that. Flip over in your Bible a few pages to II Samuel. It reads, "The Second Book of Samuel, otherwise called the Second Book of the Kings." Just flip over a few more pages, and you will come to I Kings and it reads, "The First Book of the Kings, commonly called the Third Book of the Kings." Guess what it says at the beginning of II Kings! You guessed it! "The Second Book of the Kings commonly called the Fourth Book of the Kings." Now, what does all this mean? Well, simply put, the Jews regarded the books that we term I Samuel, II Samuel, I Kings, and II Kings as simply one book—"The book of the Kings." It was written on four different scrolls because of length, but it was considered one book. It had four volumes because the size of the scroll would have been so enormous that they could not have gotten it up and down off the shelf. It is the story of the kingship from its inception to its end. They counted it as only one book, but it was divided into four scrolls.

The books of Joshua and Judges were counted as one book. They were written on two scrolls because, again, of their size and length. They tell the story from after the death of Moses to the beginning of the kingship. The Jews counted it as one book even though it was written on two scrolls. That's why it's divided into two books in most of our translations.

The Minor Prophets are: Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah and all the way through Malachi. These were very short little books, all written on one scroll and was simply called, "The Twelve." Those twelve books, or Prophets, were considered one book and were counted as such.

Today, Ezra and Nehemiah are reckoned as two books in most English translations. Some Bibles that follow the Septuagint and the Catholic translation will refer to them as I and II Ezras, or I and II Ezra. (Ezras is simply the Greek form of the Hebrew Ezra). Ezra and Nehemiah were considered one book—Ezra-Nehemiah. The Book of Chronicles was also divided into two scrolls because of its size and was considered one book—The Book of the Chronicles.

The Jews, by counting them this way, came up with twenty-two books. They had five books of the Law: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. These were the five books that Moses gave. The second division that Christ referred to was the Prophets. The Jews divided the Prophets into two sections: the Former Prophets and the Latter Prophets. The Former Prophets were Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings. Those are books we would not normally consider prophets. We think that they are historical.

Let me ask you a question. What is the difference between history and prophecy? They are simply the same things seen from different directions—you look back on history; you look forward on prophecy. They are the same things. They considered the historical books and the prophetic books as one section—the Prophets. The Prophets have, as their purpose, to tell you what happens when you obey God and what happens when you don't. All prophecy is based on the blessings and the curses given by Moses in Leviticus 26 and Deuteronomy 28. God promises blessings for obedience and curses for disobedience. That's all prophecy is. It's a story of what happens when you keep the Law, and what happens when you don't keep the Law.

We look at the Former Prophets—Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings—as the record already written of what Israel of old did. Then we look at what are called the Latter Prophets, consisting of the major and the minor. The Major Prophets consist of Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel. They are called major because they are longer, lengthier books, not because they are more important. Then there are the Minor Prophets, or “The Twelve.” All these together are considered the Prophetic division consisting of Joshua/Judges, Samuel/Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and The Twelve—six books.

Added up, so far, we have the Law—the first five. Then the next six are the Prophets. Next is the Psalms (or Writings) Division that consists of a little more variety. The book of Psalms was the first of those books. The Division was often called Psalms because that was the biggest and most lengthy book, and it was also the first of that section. Sometimes it was called the Writings because that Division also consisted of poetic books and writings—Psalms, Proverbs and Job were the first three, and this was the order they went in. Psalms, the chief or leading one, set the stage for that section of Scripture. It was written in poetry. Psalms was the logical book to come first, to set the stage for the rest of the section. David was the primary author of Psalms. Solomon, his son, was the primary writer or author of Proverbs. Proverbs logically followed Psalms. Job came later, even though it had been written much earlier than the others. Psalms was the logical book to come first and set the stage for the rest of that section. Job is placed there about as early as it can be put in—right after Psalms and Proverbs.

Then we have the five books that are called the five Festival Scrolls. The Jews traditionally read them at certain festival occasions. First was the Song of Solomon, which was read at the Passover season. Next was the book of Ruth, which was read at Pentecost season. The book of Lamentations was read during the summer in a national holiday that was kind of a 4th of July in reverse—the feast of Ab.

Ab was the fifth month of the calendar year and corresponds, approximately, to our July. It was that particular day that Solomon's Temple was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar. Interestingly enough, it was exactly the same day centuries later that the temple was destroyed by Titus in 70 A.D. The temple was destroyed, both times, on the same day. The Jews set that day aside as a voluntary fast day—a day of national lament—and on that day they read the book of Lamentations, which is a lament. This would be a logical book to read on that occasion.

Then the book of Ecclesiastes was the fourth of that festival section, read during the Feast of Tabernacles. The book of Esther was read on the national day of Purim, which is mentioned in the book of Esther—that's five. Psalms, Proverbs, Job, then, the five Festival Scrolls. Then three more—Daniel, Ezra/Nehemiah and Chronicles. You add that up; you have the five Festival Scrolls and the three at the beginning and the three at the end. This totals eleven. So there are five books of the Law, six books of the Prophets, and eleven books of the Writings—the sum of which is twenty-two.

Let me show you something about the number twenty-two and why the Jews considered that an important number. Psalm 119 is a good place to go to illustrate the point. Notice under Psalm 119. In most of your Bibles you will have a funny little squiggle and a name “Aleph” written out by it. If you come down eight verses, you'll find another funny looking little squiggle and the word “Beth” written out by it. Come on down eight more verses, and “Gimel” is by it. Then “Daleth,” “He,” “Vau,” “Zain,” “Cheth,” “Teth,” “Jod” and “Caph.” Right on down every eight verses, you'll find another little squiggle and a funny looking word written by it, until you finally come down to the last one, "Tau." Now if you will count all the funny little squiggles, you'll find there are exactly twenty-two—the same number in the Hebrew alphabet. Psalm 119 is what is called an "acrostic." If you were reading this in Hebrew, you would find that every eight verses begin with a different letter. We are familiar with acrostics. Little kids learning to read say "a" is for "apple," "b" is for "boy," "c" is for "cat," "d" is for "dog," etc. They go through the story and each page will have a letter with different things that begin with that letter. That's an acrostic. It uses up every letter in alphabetical order. A poem can be written with an acrostic where every line begins with a different letter. This was an important part of Hebrew poetry, and it had significance.

Psalm 119 is a perfect acrostic. In other words, it was an acrostic that used every letter. You had said all you could say on a subject. You had used up the whole alphabet from A to Z, and you had completed it. There was nothing else to be said. This was the sense of it. In Psalm 119, which is in praise of God's perfect law, the entire alphabet was used up. Every eight verses a different letter was used until all the letters were used. The entire alphabet was used up in praise to God's perfect law.

The Holy Scriptures, as the Jew's preserved them, were considered an acrostic. Twenty-two books—twenty-two letters in the Hebrew alphabet. God's revelation in the Hebrew language was complete. It was obvious that He had used up all the letters.

Now, I mentioned that the Jews today count twenty-four books. There is a reason for that. Does anybody know how many books there are in the New Testament? There are twenty-seven. Count them. Does anybody know what twenty-seven and twenty-two added together make? Forty-nine! Seven times seven! The significance of that was not lost on the Jews. In fact, it became such an embarrassment to them (in the first century when the New Testament was completed) to see that the Old Testament added to the New Testament had God's stamp of approval numerically. It caused quite a bit of consternation.

About forty-five years after the canon of the New Testament was complete, they called a conference and added two letters to the alphabet and divided two of the books. They divided Joshua and Judges into two different books at that time. I believe they also divided Ezra and Nehemiah at that time, but it may have been Chronicles. They actually divided the books and renumbered them at that time (a little over one hundred years after the time of Christ) because it was such a problem to them. They were so embarrassed of the idea of the twenty-seven books of the New Testament added to the twenty-two books of the Old Testament totaling a perfect forty-nine (seven times seven), they decided they would just have to change their alphabet. They added two letters. They also divided a couple of books in the Old Testament. They didn't change "a jot or a tittle"; they just changed the way they counted them.

Josephus, a Jewish historian and priest, wrote prior to the completion of the New Testament (in the 70s and 80s A.D.) when this had not yet become an issue. He tells on them. He tells exactly how many books there were and how they did it (Josephus, Antiquities of the Jews, book I, section 8). God used them to preserve His word. Nothing was changed.

Now, when you look at it again, you see that there is no room for the Apocrypha. When you have twenty-two books in the Old Testament and twenty-seven books in the New Testament, you have God's number of completion and perfection—seven times seven. You add anything to it, and you mess it up. You take something out, and you mess it up. There is no room to add or take away. It's perfect! It's complete, just the way it is. The Old Testament—God's revelation in the Hebrew language, of which not one jot or tittle was to pass—has been preserved, and it was very clearly marked that it was what God intended for the Jews to preserve. He gave them one book for every letter of the alphabet. He used up the alphabet and that was the end of the story. Now it was time to go on to something else.

Another interesting thing is that the New Testament is prophesied in the Old. Notice a statement that Moses said in Deuteronomy 18. Deuteronomy 18:15, "The Lord your God will raise up unto you a Prophet from the midst of you of your brethren, like unto me, unto Him you shall hearken." Now what did Moses mean, "The Lord your God will raise up unto you a Prophet...like unto me...?"

Hold your place there and turn back to Deuteronomy 34:10, "And there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face." Moses said God would raise up a Prophet like unto him.

Let me make a comment about that. Who wrote Deuteronomy 34:10? Clearly, Moses himself didn't write it, though he wrote virtually the entire book of Deuteronomy.

Evidently, Chapter 34 was probably written by Joshua because we are told in Deuteronomy 34:5-6, "Moses the servant of the Lord died and he was buried." Moses didn't write the account of his own funeral. Joshua was inspired to write this as the postscript—the addendum—to the story of Moses' life, which was also included in others of the first five books. Joshua, as Moses' successor, wrote that.

But v. 10 could not have been written by Joshua. To have made the statement, "there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses," that is a statement made looking back over a long period of time. You don't write that ten minutes after someone died. 'Look around; hasn't anyone else just like him showed up. He died twenty minutes ago, and we haven't seen anybody like him since.' No, that statement was made as an editorial comment at the conclusion of the Old Testament canon, which was done at the time of Ezra and Nehemiah—the time of the final editing of the Old Testament. We will go into some of that. We don't have time this evening, but we can actually go through and prove (both from the Scriptures and from history) that both Ezra and Nehemiah were responsible for giving us the Old Testament in the form in which the Jews preserved it.

There were many places in the Old Testament where a certain place-name or something was edited, or an editorial comment was stated where it would bring it up to date, so to speak. For instance, in Genesis it would refer to a certain event or a certain location, and then there is an editorial comment that, "this place" or "this may be seen at 'such and such' until this day." That was a statement added at the time Ezra and Nehemiah were putting the Old Testament into final form. These comments were added in—parenthetical statements—to bring it up to date, so to speak.

Deuteronomy needed this statement to bring it up to date because the prophecy was made in Deuteronomy 18:15, 'There would arise in Israel a Prophet like unto Moses.' At the conclusion of the canon of the Old Testament, that Prophet had not yet arisen! So the statement was added in at the end of the book after the end of Moses' life because that was the logical place to add it. The Prophet spoken of by Moses—a Prophet like unto him—had not yet come.

Now, what kind of prophet was Moses? How did Moses differ from any other prophet? How did God deal with Moses?

Deuteronomy 34:10, God knew Moses face to face. And God gave law through Moses. Through no other prophet in the Old Testament did God give law. The other prophets commented on the law, and they rebuked the people for disobeying the law, but none of them claimed to speak for God or to announce the law. No one else in the Old Testament could be called a lawgiver. Moses gave the law, and everything else was a commentary on that.

Moses was the mediator of the Old Covenant—right? Aren't we told that in Hebrews (Hebrews 9:15-19)? He was the one that was the go-between, between God and the people. Has there arisen a Prophet like unto Moses?

In the book of Acts, we are told that there has! Acts 3:20-24, "'and that He may send Jesus Christ, who was preached to you before, whom heaven must receive until the times of restoration of all things, which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, 'The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. Him you shall hear in all things, whatever He says to you.' And it will come to pass that every soul who will not hear that Prophet shall be utterly destroyed from among the people. Yes, and all the prophets from Samuel and those who follow, as many as have spoken, have also foretold of these days.'"

Verse 26, "'To you first, God, having raised up His servant Jesus, sent Him to bless you...'" Peter quotes what Moses wrote and said that Jesus was that Prophet raised up like unto Moses.

It is referred to back in Acts 7:37-38, "'This is that Moses who said to the children of Israel, 'The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. Him you shall hear.' This is he who was in the congregation [church] in the wilderness with the Angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, the one who received the living oracles to give to us.'"

The point is that Jesus Christ was the Prophet like unto Moses. Jesus Christ came as a Lawgiver. Read the Sermon on the Mount that is recorded in the greatest detail by Matthew. What did Jesus say?

Matthew 5:27, "'It has been said unto you of old time, 'You shall not commit adultery.' But I say unto you whosoever shall even look on a woman to lust after her in his heart has committed adultery already.'"

Verses 33-34, “‘It has been said unto you, “do not foreswear,” but I say unto you, swear not at all.’”

Verses 21-22, “‘It has been said unto you of old time, “you shall not commit murder”, but I say unto you whosoever shall hate his brother without cause....’” —You go on through.

Jesus Christ was giving law! He said, ‘Now it has been said, you shall do this, but I’m telling you....’ He was not making a modification. This is the way it was; here is the modification. In effect, He was expanding and magnifying the law. Jesus Christ came as a Lawgiver.

The Sermon on the Mount in Matthew 5, 6 and 7 is comparable to the statutes and judgments in Exodus 21, 22 and 23. The Ten Commandments were the basis of both the Old and the New Covenant. They were called the tablets of the Covenant (Deuteronomy 9:11). They were placed in the ark of the covenant. The Ten Commandments was the basis of the Old Covenant. It is also the basis of the New Covenant. God will write His laws in our hearts and in our minds (Hebrews 8:10; Jeremiah 31:33). The statutes and judgments were the applications of the law.

How do you apply them in practical day-to-day circumstances? Exodus 21, 22 and 23 were the statutes and judgments for a physical, carnal nation. How were they to apply the principles of the law in their circumstances? Jesus Christ came along as a lawgiver and dealt with a converted nation. He said in Matthew 5, 6 and 7, ‘this is the way you apply the spirit of the law.’ Under the New Testament, Jesus Christ came as a lawgiver, as a Prophet like unto Moses. The Jews recognized this scripture in Deuteronomy 18—there would come a Prophet like unto Moses; a Prophet who would give law; a Prophet who would introduce Scripture because Moses established Scripture. Moses established a Canon, a measure of books. He established Law. When the Old Testament concluded, this Prophet had not yet come.

At the conclusion of the Old Testament, everything God had to say in Hebrew had been said. The entire alphabet had been used up. God’s revelation in the Hebrew language was complete, and it was committed unto the Jews who were responsible for preserving it. Not one dot of an “i” or cross of a “t” was going to be lost. God ensured that. But His revelation of His message was not yet finished. That was made evident because that Prophet had not yet arisen. So when One claiming to be that Prophet came and the New Testament books of Scripture were complete, it was too much for the Jewish leadership. They recognized that this was too much to be a coincidence, so they actually changed the way they numbered the books.

It’s an interesting story, and we have only touched on the beginning of it. We will go back through and find out the way in which we came to have the Old Testament. We will find certain definite periods in which the Scriptures were written and certain individuals who were responsible for preserving it. Then we will find, in the story of the New Testament, that the Catholic Church had nothing to do with preserving it. In fact, they did their best to either alter it or destroy it! Their early church councils were not arguing about trying to establish a canon. They were arguing about a canon that already existed, and they were trying to make alterations in it. That also provides some interesting material that we will discuss later.

Moses was responsible for that first period of canonization—for that first set of Scriptures—the books of the Law (the first five books of the Old Testament).

We will notice the principle laid down in Deuteronomy 31:9, “‘So Moses wrote this Law and delivered it to the priests, the sons of Levi, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Eternal and to all the elders of Israel.’” Moses wrote this Law. It is called the Law of Moses (Joshua 8:31-32). Moses wrote this Law and gave it to the priests.

Deuteronomy 31:10-11, “‘And Moses commanded them saying: ‘At the end of every seven years, at the appointed time in the year of release, at the Feast of Tabernacles, when all Israel is come to appear before the Lord your God in the place which He chooses, you shall read this Law before all Israel in their hearing.’” What did Moses do? He wrote this Law, and he gave it to the priests.

Notice what instruction he gave them in vv. 25-26, “‘that Moses commanded the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying: ‘Take this Book of the Law and put it beside of the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God that it may be there for a witness against you.’”

Moses established the first canon of Scripture—the book of the Law—the first section of authoritative writings.

At the end of Moses’ life, he took the five books (the books of the Law—Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy) and laid them up. He gave them to the priesthood, and they were to be kept by the side of the ark—laid up in kind of a pouch or pocket on the side of the ark. They were to be kept there as Holy Scriptures. What makes something holy? God makes it holy! God is holy. God's presence is holy. The word "scripture" simply means "writings." Here were writings that were laid up before God. They were in the Holy of Holies, right next to the ark. This was the official, authoritative Temple copy from which everything else had to be compared.

As time went by other copies were made. When a copy became damaged or illegible, it was destroyed. The reason being that as copies would become tattered and worn, sections would become illegible, and it would be possible for errors to creep in because sections would become difficult to read or would just wear away over time. Little sections of a page may tear or wear away over time, and letters would become difficult to read.

It was the priesthood's responsibility to make a new, official, authoritative copy when an old copy began to show signs of wear. The new copy was then laid up inside the ark, and the original that had become tattered was destroyed so that no error might creep in, and there would not be any divergent copies floating around. They did not want something that was worn out, pages missing, or this sort of thing. They were very conscious of making an exact, one hundred percent, and total continuation of the Scriptures that had been given. This was the beginning of the canon. Moses laid up these five books of the Law.

When we will pick it up next time, we will find out who continued that—the second time an addition was made to the canon of Scripture. We will find out who did it, why they did it, and on whose authority. We can go right on through and find the story of how we came to have the Old Testament and how we came to have the New.

Bible Study # 2

In continuing with what we talked about last Bible study, how do we know we have the whole Bible? The books commonly called the Apocrypha, how do we know that those books are not a part of the Bible? And how do we know that the books we use are the ones God inspired? How can we be sure of that?

The Old Testament has seven logical parts: 1) the Law (Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy), 2) the Former Prophets (Joshua-Judges, Samuel-Kings), 3) the Major Prophets (Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel), 4) the Minor Prophets (The Twelve), 5) the Poetic (or Metre) Books (Psalms, Proverbs, Job), 6) the Megillot or Festival Books (Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther) and 7) the Restoration Books (Daniel, Ezra-Nehemiah, Chronicles). The Old Testament is complete as the Scriptures of God of the Old Testament. But there is something yet to come. It doesn't end with the same finality as the New Testament does in Revelation 21 and 22. How did the Old Testament begin?

Deuteronomy 31:24-26, "So it was, when Moses had completed writing the words of this law in a book, when they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying: 'Take this Book of the Law, and put it beside the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there as a witness against you.'" This was the beginning of the Canon, the Books that were to measure up as Scripture (Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy).

God, prior to this time, had dealt with individuals. He talked with them and He walked with them. But now He began to work with a nation, a group of people He called out.

Exodus 12:3, "'Speak to all the congregation [church] of Israel....'" "Church" means "those who are called out." How much time did Abraham spend studying the Bible? None! Abraham never read the Bible because there wasn't a Bible. Abraham knew God's will because God instructed and taught him. God revealed things to them (Example: Genesis 28:10-22—Jacob's dream). But now God began to deal with a whole group of people, and there needed to be some clear statements given.

There were, evidently, some documents that had been preserved, but it was not the Bible as we know it.

Genesis 5:1, "This is the book of the genealogy of Adam. In the day that God created man, He made him in the likeness of God."

Genesis 10:1, "Now this is the genealogy of the sons of Noah: Shem, Ham and Japheth. And sons were sons born to them after the flood."

God's basic revelation of His will was set down. God revealed the basic law through Moses. It was the basis of the Old Covenant. This Book of the Law was presented to the priests and the Levites—against which everything else was to be compared. It was the beginning of Holy Scripture. It filled the needs of the people. God's basic Law was revealed.

The second period of canonization: The second period was because there was a need for change. This next period was at the time of David and Samuel. David wanted to build a temple. Things had grown and increased. Some of the things Moses had set up could no longer function. One of the things was the service set up by the Levites. As the years went by, and the numbers increased, you couldn't get all the priests around the altar at the same time. You no longer had just Aaron and his sons.

I Chronicles 9:22, "All those chosen as gatekeepers were two hundred and twelve. They were recorded by their genealogy, in their villages. David and Samuel the seer had appointed them to their trusted office." There was a reorganization that began at the time of David.

I Chronicles 24:1, "Now these are the divisions of the sons of Aaron. The sons of Aaron were Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar."

Verses 7-9, "Now the first lot fell to Jehotariab, the second to Jedaiah, the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin."

Verse 18, "the twenty-third to Delaiah, the twenty-fourth to Maaziah." You get down to twenty-four divisions—twenty-four different families of priests. David divided them into twenty-four courses.

Luke 1:5, "There was in the days of Herod the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the division [course] of Abijah. His wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth." Zacharias was a priest of the course of Abijah.

I Chronicles 24:10, "the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to Abijah." You could actually go through to find when the two-week period—or course—of John the Baptist's father was. David, under inspiration, divided them up.

I Chronicles 25:1, "Moreover David and the captains of the army separated to the service some of the sons of Asaph, of Heman, and of Jeduthun, who should prophesy with harps, stringed instruments, and cymbals. And the number of the workmen according to their service was:"

Verse 7, "So the number of them, with their brethren who were instructed in the songs of the LORD, all who were skillful, was two hundred and eighty-eight." They were divided up.

II Chronicles 29:25, "Then he stationed the Levites in the house of the Lord with cymbals, with stringed instruments, and with harps, according to the commandment of David, and of Gad the king's seer, and Nathan the prophet; for thus was the commandment of the Lord by his prophets." David established music. But what were they going to sing? That is where the book of Psalms comes in.

Notice Psalms 72:19-20, "And blessed be his glorious name forever and let the whole earth be filled with His glory, Amen and Amen. The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended." Notice how it ends. What does that mean?

What does it mean in Psalms 72:19, "Amen and Amen"? If you take the number seventy-two and divide it by twenty-four (you had twenty-four courses of singing and there were seventy-two songs selected), they had three songs for each course. Psalms 1—72 are psalms of David. (You will find that there are other psalms that David wrote—101, 108, 109 and 110. We will go into that later.) When you reorganized the service in the temple, there were additional things that needed to be brought in.

With the reorganization of Temple worship and as the nation was growing into a great nation, there was also a need for instruction in wisdom.

Proverbs 1:1-3, "The proverbs of Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel: to know wisdom and instruction, to perceive the words of understanding, to receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, judgment and equity." So you had this set apart.

Ecclesiastes 12:9, "And moreover, because the preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yes, he pondered and sought out and set in order many proverbs." Solomon taught the people. He set in order proverbs—meaning the book of Proverbs.

Proverbs 1:1, "The proverbs of Solomon, the son of David..." Solomon set in order Proverbs. Added at this time were Psalms 1—72 and Proverbs 1—24, 30—31. This was a second period of canonization.

The third period of canonization: Things went on and the nation of Israel split up into two nations. It was a time of crisis, a time when the existence of the entire nation was at stake. During the time of Hezekiah, the king of Assyria surrounded Jerusalem (II Kings 18 and 19). Hezekiah prayed and fasted (19:1). God sent an angel and wiped out the Assyrians (19:35-37). It was a time of crisis. What we will see is that the first two periods of canonization were periods of reorganization—things for a settled nation. The next three periods were times of crisis. Things had drifted and the truth was in danger of being lost. The first revival was at the time of Hezekiah. It was a time of crisis that threatened to literally destroy the entire nation.

II Chronicles 28:1-2, "Ahaz was twenty years old when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem; and he did not do what was right in the sight of the Lord, as his father David had done. For he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and made molten images for the Baals." We pick up the story of the way the nation got "off track."

Verses 21-24, "For Ahaz took part of the treasures from the house of the Lord, from the house of the king, and from the leaders, and he gave it to the king of Assyria; but he did not help him. Now in the time of his distress King Ahaz became increasingly unfaithful to the Lord. This is that king Ahaz. For he sacrificed unto the gods of Damascus which had defeated him, saying, 'Because the gods of the kings of Syria help them, I will sacrifice to them, that they may help me.' But they were the ruin of him and of all Israel. So Ahaz gathered the articles of the house of God, cut in pieces the articles of the house of God, shut up the doors of the house of the Lord, and made for himself altars in every corner of Jerusalem." The nation got off track and Temple worship ceased.

II Chronicles 29:1-7, "Hezekiah became king when he was twenty-five years old, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abijah, the daughter of Zechariah. And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father David had done. In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the doors of the house of the Lord and repaired them. Then he brought in the priests and the Levites, and gathered them in the east square and said to them: 'Hear me, Levites! Now sanctify yourselves, sanctify the house of the Lord God of your fathers, and carry out the rubbish from the holy place. For our fathers have trespassed and done evil in the eyes of the Lord our God; and they have forsaken Him, have turned their faces away from the habitation of the Lord, and turned their backs on Him. They have also shut up the doors of the vestibule, put out the lamps, and have not burned incense or offered burnt offerings in the holy place to the God of Israel.”

He said they needed to get back on track and clean out dirt that had accumulated in the Temple for years. It took days.

Verse 25, “Then he stationed the Levites in the house of the Lord with cymbals, with stringed instruments, and with harps, according to the commandment of David, of Gad the king’s seer, and of Nathan the prophet; for thus was the commandment of the Lord by His prophets.” Hezekiah began to reorganize things and set things back on track the way David had organized them. He told them to sanctify themselves.

Verse 30, “Moreover King Hezekiah and the leaders commanded the Levites to sing praise to the Lord with the words of David and of Asaph the seer. So they sang praises with gladness, and they bowed their heads and worshipped.”

Psalm 72:20, “The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended.”

Notice Psalm 73—“A Psalm of Asaph.” Turn to Psalms 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82 and 83—all “Psalms of Asaph.”

II Chronicles 29:30, “Moreover King Hezekiah and the leaders commanded the Levites to sing praise to the Lord with the words of David and of Asaph the seer. So they sang praises with gladness, and they bowed their heads and worshiped.” They worshiped with the words of David and Asaph.

Now notice Isaiah 38:1, “In those days Hezekiah was sick and near death. And Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz went to him and said to him, ‘Thus says the Lord: “Set your house in order for you shall die and not live.”’”

Verses 5-8, “Go and say to Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the Lord, the God of David your father: I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; and I will add to your days fifteen years. I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria, and I will defend this city. And this is the sign to you from the Lord, that the Lord will do this thing which He has spoken: Behold, I will bring the shadow on the sundial, which is gone down with the sun on the sundial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward.’” So the sun returned ten degrees by which it was gone down.”

The sun literally went backward. It stood still at the time of Joshua (Joshua 10:13). If you think that was something, wait until you find out how it went backward in the time of Hezekiah.

Verse 20, “The Lord was ready to save me; therefore we will sing my songs with stringed instruments all the days of our life, in the house of the Lord.”—The aftermath of that.

Notice Psalms 120—134—“Songs of degrees” (KJV). There are fifteen songs of degrees—one for each of the fifteen years. Hezekiah wrote ten of them; five were written by David. Hezekiah’s songs were to be added to the songs of Scripture. Hezekiah added them to the canon of Scripture.

Notice also Proverbs 25:1, “These also are proverbs of Solomon which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah copied.” Solomon’s Proverbs ended with Proverbs 24. Here was an addition that the men of Hezekiah wrote out.

This was also a period when the nation was facing captivity. Isaiah was written at this time. The books of Joshua, Judges and Kings were also written at this time.

II Chronicles 32:32, “Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his goodness, indeed they are written in the vision of Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, and in the books of the kings of Judah and Israel.” What is the book of the kings of Judah and Israel?—The books of Samuel and Kings. I Kings is otherwise known as the Third Book of the Kings—the actual title in the King James Bible.

II Chronicles 32:33, “So Hezekiah rested with his fathers, and they buried him in the upper tombs of the sons of David; and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem honored him at his death. Then Manasseh his son reigned in his place.”

II Chronicles 26:22, “Now the rest of the acts of Uzziah, from first and last, the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz wrote.” Isaiah wrote the book of Kings. If you compare II Kings and Isaiah, II Kings 18-20 is identical to Isaiah 36-39. They are identical. There were also books added to the Psalms by the Levites during this time. Then things got off track again.

We come to the second great revival and reorganization—the period of the fourth canonization. It was the time prior to Judah going into captivity. Northern Israel was already in captivity (II Kings 18:11); Judah was almost taken into captivity (II Kings 18-19). Then there was a revival by Hezekiah (II Kings 18-20). But then there was another period of crisis—a time when the nation was faced with captivity.

II Chronicles 33:1-3, “Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. But he did evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the abominations of the nations whom the Lord had cast out before the children of Israel. For he rebuilt the high places which Hezekiah his father had broken down; he raised up altars for the Baals, and made wooden images; and he worshipped all the host of heaven and served them.” So, they really got off track. Let’s notice a comparison as to what Josiah did in getting things back on track.

II Kings 23:1-3, “Then the king [Josiah] sent them to gather all the elders of Judah and of Jerusalem to him. And the king went up into the house of the Lord with all the men of Judah and with all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—the priests and the prophets and all the people, both small and great; and he read in their hearing all the words of the Book of the Covenant which had been found in the house of the Lord. Then the king stood by a pillar and made a covenant before the Lord, to follow the Lord and to keep His commandments and His testimonies and His statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant that were written in this book. And all the people took their stand for the covenant.”

II Kings 22:1-2, “Josiah was eight years old when he became king, and he reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Jedidah the daughter of Adaiah of Boscath. And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of his father David; he did not aside to the right hand or to the left.” He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord.

II Kings 23:4, “And the king commanded Hilkiah the high priest, the priests of the second order, and the doorkeepers, to bring out of the temple of the Lord all the articles that were made for Baal, for Asherah, and for all the host of heaven; and he burned them outside Jerusalem in the fields of Kidron, and carried their ashes to Bethel.” This is what King Josiah did to get things back on track. When they went to repair the temple, they found the Book of the Law.

II Kings 22:8, “Then Hilkiah the high priest said to Shaphan the scribe, ‘I have found the Book of the Law in the house of the Lord.’ And Hilkiah gave the Book to Shaphan, and he read it.”

II Kings 23:2-3, “...and he read in their hearing all the words of the Book of the Covenant which had been found in the house of the Lord. Then the king stood by a pillar and made a covenant before the Lord, to follow the Lord and to keep His commandments and His testimonies and His statutes, with all his heart and all his soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this Book. And all the people took their stand for the covenant.” Then he began to order these things.

Verses 7-8, “Then he tore down the ritual booths of the perverted persons that were in the house of the Lord, where the women wove hangings for the wooden image. And he brought all the priests out of the cities of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had burned incense, from Geba to Beersheba; also he broke down the high places of the gates which were in the entrance of the Gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were to the left of the gate of the city.”

Verses 10-12, “And he defiled Topheth, which is in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, that no man might make his son or his daughter pass through the fire to Molch. Then he removed the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun, at the entrance of the house of the Lord... and he burned the chariots of the sun with fire. The altars that were on the roof, the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars which Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of the Lord, the king broke down and pulverized there, and threw their dust into the Brook Kidron.” He pulverized them and threw their dust into the Brook Kidron.

Verses 13-14, “Then the king defiled the high places that were east of Jerusalem, which were on the south of the Mount of Corruption, which Solomon king of Israel had built for Ashtoreth the abomination of the Zidonians, for Chemosh the abomination of the Moabites, and for Milcom the abomination of the people of Ammon. And he broke in pieces the sacred pillars and cut down wooden images, and filled their places with the bones of men.” He broke down the images and the groves.

Verses 21-22, “Then the king commanded all the people, saying, ‘Keep the Passover to the Lord your God, as it is written in this Book of the Covenant.’ Surely such a Passover had never been held since the days of the judges who judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel and the kings of Judah.” Josiah turned to God with all his heart. It was a time of revival.

II Chronicles 34:4, “They broke down the altars of the Baals in his presence, and the incense altars which were above them he cut down; and the wooden images, the carved images, and the molded images he broke in pieces, and made dust of them and scattered it on the graves of those who had sacrificed to them.”

Verse 8, “Now in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purged the land and the temple [house], he sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah and Maaseiah the governor of the city and Joah the son of Joahaz the recorder, to repair the house of the Lord his God.”

Verse 14, “Now when they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the Lord, Hilkiah the priest found the Book of the Law of the Lord given by Moses.” He found the Book of the Law of the Lord. He found the Bible that existed at that time.

Verse 19, “Now it happened, when the king heard the words of the Law, that he tore his cloths.”

Verse 21, “Go, inquire of the Lord for me, and for those who are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the Book that is found; for great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us, because our fathers have not kept the word of the Lord, to do after all that is written in this Book.”

Verses 32-33, “And he made all that were present in Jerusalem and Benjamin take their stand for it. So the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers. Thus Josiah removed all the abominations from all the country that belonged to the children of Israel, and made all that were present in Israel diligently serve the Lord their God. All his days they did not depart from following the Lord God of the fathers.”

II Chronicles 35:1, “Now Josiah kept a Passover to the Lord in Jerusalem, and they slaughtered the Passover lambs on the fourteenth day of the first month.” It was a time of revitalization.

Verses 17-18, “And the children of Israel who were present kept the Passover at that time, and the Feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days. There had been no Passover kept in Israel like that since the days of Samuel the prophet; and none of the kings of Israel had kept such a Passover as Josiah kept, with the priests and the Levites, all Judah and Israel who were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.” There had been nothing on that grand scale since Samuel the prophet. It was a revitalization of worship just prior to the captivity. God said He would postpone judgment on the nation because of Josiah. For the sake of Josiah, God was going to spare things as long as he lived, but when he died, that was going to be the end (II Kings 22:15-20). You talk about everything resting on one man! So you can imagine when Josiah was cut off at an untimely death.

II Chronicles 35:23-25, “And the archers shot at King Josiah; and the king said to his servants, ‘Take me away; for I am severely wounded.’ His servant therefore took him out of that chariot and put him in the second chariot that he had, and they brought him to Jerusalem. So he died, and was buried in one of the tombs of his fathers. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah. Jeremiah also lamented for Josiah. And to this day all the singing men and the singing women speak of Josiah in their lamentations. They made it a custom [KJV, “ordinance”] in Israel; and indeed they are written in the Laments” [KJV, “lamentations”]. —An ordinance for Israel written in the lamentations. Where do you find it? Turn over to the book of Lamentations—“The Lamentations of Jeremiah.” What do we see in v. 25? Lamentations was recorded as a permanent record and made an ordinance and a law.

Verses 26-27, “Now the rest of the acts of Josiah and his goodness, according to what was written in the Law of the Lord, and his deeds from first to last, indeed they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.” Jeremiah was responsible for recording the final things in Samuel and Kings.

Lamentations was written at the time of Josiah’s death. His death was all that stood between captivity and destruction for Judah. Lamentations is a prophecy of the Great Tribulation. The death of Josiah was the reason Lamentations was written when it was. It went along with the book of Jeremiah.

II Chronicles 35:25, “Jeremiah also lamented for Josiah. And to this day all the singing men and the singing women speak of Josiah in their lamentations. They made it a custom [KJV, “ordinance”] in Israel; and indeed they are written in the Laments [KJV, “lamentations”].”

After Josiah’s death, the temple was destroyed and the nation was taken into captivity. Jeremiah was the prophet who bridged the gap—before the captivity, during, through and after. The books of Jeremiah, Lamentations, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Habakkuk and Zephaniah were added to the canon Scripture by Jeremiah. Jeremiah finished the books of I & II Samuels and I & II Kings.

How was Scripture to be preserved? Go back to the book of Daniel.

Daniel 1:4, “young men in whom was no blemish, but good-looking, gifted in all wisdom, possessing knowledge and quick to understand, who had ability to serve in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the language and literature of the Chaldeans." Daniel lived during the captivity (v. 3). He was a prince. He was of the king's seed (v. 4) and very intelligent. He had access to the archives of Babylon. The Bible was preserved in the archives of Babylon (v. 2). Nebuchadnezzar didn't just burn the temple; he transported these things out of the temple, and they were sent back in the royal archives and treasure of Babylon. And who is in a better position to take care of it than Daniel?

Daniel 9:11, "'Yes, all Israel have transgressed Your law, and has departed so as not to obey Your voice; therefore the curse and the oath written in the law of Moses the servant of God have been poured out on us, because we have sinned against Him.'" Daniel had access to the Bible and was able to study it. All the vessels and sacred things of the temple were taken to Babylon. He was primed, taught and made knowledgeable.

Daniel 1:3-4, "Then the king instructed Ashpenaz, the master of his eunuchs, to bring some of the children of Israel and some of the king's descendants and some of the nobles, young men in whom was no blemish, but good-looking, gifted in all wisdom, possessing knowledge and quick to understand, who had ability to serve in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the language and literature of the Chaldeans." He was brought to Babylon to be trained and educated.

In Daniel 9:3-22, we read of Daniel praying. Jeremiah added the prophets. How do we know?

Read Daniel 9:2, "in the first year of his reign I, Daniel, understood by the books the number of the years specified by the word of the Lord, given to Jeremiah the prophet that He would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem." Daniel had been puzzled over this prophecy.

Jeremiah 25:12, "'Then it shall come to pass, when seventy years are accomplished, that I will punish the king of Babylon and that nation, the land of the Chaldeans, for their iniquity,' says the Lord; 'and I will make it perpetual desolations.'" Jeremiah's and Daniel's lives overlapped. At the time Daniel was a teenager, Jeremiah was an old man. God took this young man and put him in a position to preserve the Scriptures. That would have been the time the Bible would have been lost—during the time of the captivity. Daniel was brought here. He studied the Bible. He studied the book of Jeremiah and was trying to understand. Then it finally came to him. He understood it about the time it was supposed to be fulfilled (Daniel 9:1-2). The first Babylonian captivity was 604 B.C. The year of Cyrus' decree to return to Jerusalem was 534 B.C.; the seventy-year prophecy was completed.

The point is Daniel had access to the Scriptures and took care of them during the Babylonian captivity.

Lamentation, Jeremiah, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk and Zephaniah were all written prior to the captivity and were added to the canon of Scripture by Jeremiah.

Then we come to the period that finished the Old Testament—the fifth period of Old Testament canonization—the time of Ezra and Nehemiah. Solomon died in 921 B.C. About two hundred years after Solomon's death, Northern Israel went into captivity. About twenty years later was the time of Hezekiah and a revival. About one hundred years later, we come down to Jeremiah and Josiah and another revival. Then, 604 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar comes in and takes them captive. He comes back a few years later and takes more into captivity. About 587 B.C., he destroys everything, and the whole nation goes into captivity. Daniel was in captivity as a young man on up until he was an old man. (Jeremiah provides about a seventy-year period during this time.) Seventy years later, 534 B.C., Cyrus issued a decree for them to return and repair the temple.

We pick up the story in the book of Ezra. Ezra 1:1-3, "Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, so that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and also put it in writing, saying, 'Thus says Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth the Lord God of heaven has given me. And He has commanded me to build Him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all His people? May his God be with him! Now let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel (He is God), which is in Jerusalem.'" "

Verses 5-7, "Then the heads of the fathers' houses of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites, with all those whose spirits God had moved, arose to go up and build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem. And all those who were around them encouraged them with articles of silver and gold, with goods and livestock, and with precious things, besides all that was willingly offered. King Cyrus also brought out the articles of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem and put in the temple of his gods.” These were the things he brought back.

Ezra 4:1-5, “Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the descendants of the captivity were building the temple unto the Lord God of Israel, they came to Zerubbabel and the heads of the fathers’ houses, and said to them, ‘Let us build with you, for we seek your God as you do; and we have sacrificed to Him since the days of Esarhaddon king of Assyria, who brought us here.’ But Zerubbabel and Joshua and the rest of the heads of the fathers’ houses of Israel said to them, ‘You may do nothing with us to build a house for our God; but we alone will build to the Lord God of Israel, as King Cyrus the king of Persia has commanded us.’ Then the people of the land tried to discourage the people of Judah. They troubled them in building, and hired counselors against them to frustrate their purpose all the days of Cyrus king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius king of Persia.”

They literally hired lawyers and went to court. Zerubbabel and Joshua finished the part of the work God had called them to do.

Ezra 7:1, “Now after these things, in the reign of Artaxerxes king of Persia, Ezra the son of Seraiah, the son of Azariah, the son of Hilkiah.”

Verse 10, “For Ezra had prepared his heart to seek the Law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach statutes and ordinances in Israel.” He is coming to Jerusalem prepared to teach Israel statutes and judgments.

Verse 12, “Artaxerxes, king of kings, to Ezra the priest, a scribe of the law of the God of heaven: perfect peace, and so forth.”

Verse 14, “Whereas you are being sent of the king and his seven counselors to inquire concerning Judah and Jerusalem, with regard to the law of your God which is in your hand.” – According to the law of your God which is in your hand. He was bringing the copy that had been preserved in Babylon. He brought back the Law—the Bible.

Nehemiah 8:1-3, “Now all the people gathered together as one man in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate, and they told Ezra the scribe to bring the Book of the Law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded Israel. So Ezra the priest brought the Law before the congregation, of men and women and all who could hear with understanding, on the first day of the seventh month. Then he read from it in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate from morning until midday, before the men and the women, and those that could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive to the Book of the Law.” The Bible was being read and understood.

Verses 5-8, “And Ezra opened the Book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it, all the people stood up. And Ezra blessed the Lord, the great God. Then all the people answered, ‘Amen, Amen!’ while lifting up their hands. And they bowed their heads and worshiped the Lord with their faces to the ground. Also Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin...and the Levites, helped the people to understand the Law; and the people stood in their place. So they read distinctly from the Book, in the Law of God; and gave the sense, and helped them to understand the reading.” We have this example in the time of Ezra.

Editorial comments added: There were things that had to be added to deal with new things and circumstances.

I Samuel 10:25, “Then Samuel explained to the people the behavior of royalty, and wrote it in a book and laid it up before the Lord. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his house.” Samuel added what is in Deuteronomy 17:14-20. It refers to it here.

Deuteronomy 34:10, “But since then there has not arisen in Israel a prophet like Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face.” Joshua couldn’t have written this. This was an editorial comment made at the conclusion of the Old Testament canon by Ezra and Nehemiah about 400 B.C. Ezra went back and on authority, made an editorial comment. There were times when things simply had to be added. The time of Ezra and Nehemiah was that time—a time of editing. It was also a time of crisis, a great deal of trouble. We are going into that at the next Bible study—the things that were going on and what these things were.

During this fifth period of canonization, Psalms 90—119, 135—150, Ruth, Esther, Song of Solomon, Ecclesiastes, Ezekiel, Ezra, Nehemiah, Daniel, Haggai, Zechariah, Malachi and I & II Chronicles were added to the canon of Scripture. One of the statements that Josephus makes is that nothing had been added since the time of Artaxerxes. Since that time there had not been a succession of prophets. The Jews recognized that the spirit of prophets ceased. From that time on, there was never a succession of prophets, and no one ever took it upon himself or dared to ever make a change. It all goes back to Ezra and Nehemiah. Josephus said that during the reign of Artaxerxes (465-424 B.C.), the canon of Scripture was completed and delivered unto the hand of the Great Synagogue (or Assembly). We will go back and understand why Chronicles had to be written at this time. Malachi was the last book written and added in about 420-400 B.C.

We have a story of how these five periods of the Bible were put together—this setting apart of the authoritative canon of Scripture. We see the five periods of time when the Old Testament came together. Then we will see the two times when the New Testament came together—God putting it together working with His prophets. We will see how it all came together and how God has given us this Book we call the Bible.

Proof of the Bible Series (Part 3)—The Time of Ezra & Nehemiah: The Fifth Period of Canonization of the Old Testament

I want to continue on with the material we had been getting into the last time, when we were going through the last period of the canonization of the Old Testament—the time of Ezra and Nehemiah. I want to go back and go into some things in Ezra and Nehemiah. I think it will help us to understand more clearly the things with which we are dealing. There was a lot involved in that time period.

If you remember the story, Judah had gone into captivity beginning 604 B.C.—the first period of invasion and captivity. Coming down, about ten years later, was a second Babylonian invasion, and then seven to ten years later, a final Babylonian invasion. The city was burned, the temple was destroyed and the people were taken into captivity. We noticed Daniel was taken captive as a young boy. He had access to and preserved the Bible during that interim time.

Then we read in Daniel 5:30-31, the story we are very familiar with—the Medes and the Persians invading and taking Babylon. This was in 539 B.C. (one of the major dates of history), falling on the Feast of Trumpets that year, and the night Belshazzar saw the handwriting on the wall (Daniel 5:1-5). The empire of the Medes and Persians was established. Daniel continued in the immediate future in a high position (about five years) under Darius (Daniel 6:1-3).

After the Medes and Persians came in, we pick up the story in Ezra.

Ezra 1:1-3, “Now in the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia, so that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and also put it in writing, saying, Thus says Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth the Lord God of heaven has given me. And He has commanded me to build Him a house at Jerusalem which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all His people? May his God be with him! Now let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah and build the house of the Lord God of Israel. (He is the God), which is in Jerusalem.”

Verse 7, “King Cyrus also brought out the articles of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem and had put in the temple of his gods;”

We find that they left to go back to Jerusalem. This was done by Zerubbabel, or Sheshbazzar, as he is termed in Ezra 1:8-11.

Ezra 3:1, “And when the seventh month had come and the children of Israel were in the cities, the people gathered themselves together as one man to Jerusalem.” They set this up and kept the Feast of Tabernacles (v. 4). That began the process of reorganization.

Verse 8, “Now in the second month of the second year of their coming to the house of God at Jerusalem, Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Jozadak, and the rest of their brethren the priests and the Levites, and all those who had come out of the captivity to Jerusalem, began work and appointed the Levites from twenty years old and above, to oversee the work of the house of the Lord.”

Verse 11, the foundation was laid.

The prophets at that time were Haggai and Zechariah. They were contemporary with Joshua and Zerubbabel (c. 534-500 B.C.). The major thrust of the work of God at that time was the rebuilding of the temple (Ezra 3:8—6:15). Read II Kings 17. What happened in II Kings 17 is crucial to understanding the later story of what happened in the canonization of the Old Testament and later the New Testament. Approximately 721 B.C. (one hundred twenty years before Nebuchadnezzar’s invasion of Judah), the Assyrians invaded Northern Israel and transported the ten tribes into captivity. Israel had sinned and walked in the statutes of the heathen.

II Kings 17:8, “and had walked in the statutes of the nations whom the Lord had cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made.”

Verse 10, “They set them up for themselves sacred pillars and wooden images on every high hill, and under every green tree.”

Verse 16, “So they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, made for themselves a molded image, two calves, made a wooden image and worshipped all the host of heaven and served Baal.” They did all the things God told them not to do.

Verse 18, “Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from His sight; there was none left but the tribe of Judah alone.” They were taken out. They were not left behind. They were transported.

Verses 22-23, “For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they did not depart from them, until the Lord removed Israel out of His sight, as He had said by all His servants the prophets. So Israel was carried away out of their own land to Assyria, as it is to this day.” —“to this day.” —The time of Ezra and Nehemiah. Israel was still where they had been two hundred years earlier. They had not returned with the Jews. Notice what happened.

Verse 24, “Then the king of Assyria brought people from Babylon, Cuthah, Ava, Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel; and they took possession of Samaria and dwelt in its cities.” Instead of the children of Israel, he brought Babylonians and some of the surrounding suburbs and settled them in Northern Israel. Meanwhile, wild animals had increased (v. 25).

Verse 26, “So they spoke to the king of Assyria, saying, ‘The nations whom you have removed and placed in the cities of Samaria know not the rituals of the God of the land; therefore He has sent lions among them, and indeed, they are killing them because they do not know the rituals of the God of the land.’” They sent a message to the king of Assyria: ‘We have a problem. We want you to send someone to teach us the manner [rituals] of the God of the land.’

Now who was the king of Assyria going to send to teach them about the God of the land? —The priests of Northern Israel! What were they?

I Kings 12:28-31, “Therefore the king took counsel and made two calves of gold, and said to the people, ‘It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem. Here are your gods, O Israel, which brought you up from the land of Egypt!’ And he set up one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan. Now this thing became a sin, for the people went to worship before the one, as far as Dan. He made shrines on the high places, and made priest from every class of people [KJV, “made priests of the lowest of the people”], who were not of the sons of Levi.”

Jeroboam had gotten rid of the priests and made priests of the lowest of the people.

Verse 32, “Jeroboam ordained a feast on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, like the feast that was in Judah, and he offered sacrifices on the altar. So he did at Bethel, sacrificing to the calves that he had made. And at Bethel he installed the priests of the high places which he had made.” The people never departed from the sins of Jeroboam. And it was because of this they went into captivity.

Now, what were the priests going to teach them? What he did was to attach the name of God to their old pagan religion. They retained the name of God; they talked about God, but they didn’t really serve God in sincerity and truth.

Verse 29, “and he set up one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan.” Each nation made gods of its own.

Verses 32-33, “Jeroboam ordained a feast on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, like the Feast that was in Judah...So he made offerings on the altar which he had made at Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, in the month which he had devised of his own heart. And he ordained a feast for the children of Israel, and offered sacrifices on the altar and burned incense.”

I Kings 13:34, “And this thing was sin of the house of Jeroboam, so as to exterminate and destroy it from the face of the earth.”

II Kings 17:29, “However every nation continued to make gods of its own, and put them in the houses of the high places which the Samaritans had made, every nation in the cities where they dwelt.”

Verses 32-33, “So they feared the Lord, and from every class they appointed for themselves priests of the high places [KJV, “made unto themselves of the lowest of them priests of the high places”], who sacrificed for them in the shrines of the high places. They feared the Lord yet served their own gods—according to the rituals of the nations from among whom they were carried away.”

Verse 34, “To this day they continue practicing the former rituals; they do not fear the Lord, nor do they follow their statutes or their ordinances, or the law and commandment which the Lord had commanded the children of Jacob, whom He named Israel.”

Verse 41, “So these nations feared the Lord, yet served their carved images; also their children and their children’s children have continued as their fathers did, even to this day.”

What we have given here in II Kings is the origin of the Samaritans—the Samaritans that we are going to read of in Ezra, Nehemiah and the New Testament—in the book of Acts. This is the origin of the Samaritans. They were not Israelites; they were Babylonians. They resettled them in the land and then brought back the priests. They paid lip-service to the God of Israel, but in reality they continued the same old pagan religion they had all along. Does that sound familiar? What we need to understand is that this was the Babylonian approach to religion, the Babylonian Mystery Religion, but they now attached to it the name of God. They identified themselves as Israel, but in reality, they were Babylonians. This is the group that we are going to meet in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah and the group later in the New Testament. In the time of Ezra and Nehemiah, Sanballat was the chief leader of the Samaritan followers of the Babylonian Mystery Religion.

You look around today and see the successors. They still have their graven images and fear the Eternal to this day; the same people doing the same thing. It was important that the Samaritans be known. They were quick to claim that they were Jews when it was to their advantage. Alexander the Great gave a release to the Jews during the Sabbatical year to not have to pay taxes, and the Samaritans (Babylonians) said they were Jews, too. When the Jews were being tortured and butchered they were quick to say they didn't have anything to do with them.

In Ezra 3, we find that the work of God, at the time of Zerubbabel and Joshua, was reorganization and rebuilding.

Ezra 4:1-2, "Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the descendants of the captivity were building the temple of the Eternal God of Israel, they came to Zerubbabel and the heads of the fathers' houses, and said to them, 'Let us build with you, for we seek your God as you do; and we have sacrificed to Him since the days of Esarhaddon king of Assyria, who brought us here.'"

Ezra called them the adversaries of Judah. One of Satan's tactics is to infiltrate from within. Judah had gone into captivity because of disobedience to God.

Then the work of God was established: rebuilding the temple and temple worship, re-establishing the nation into which Jesus Christ the Messiah would come at a later time and setting the stage. Right after work gets started, the Samaritans come, and they say, 'We're good Christians just like you. We all worship the same God. We want to get in on this. We'll help you.' They used God's name, but didn't really follow the Scriptures.

Verse 3, "But Zerubbabel and Joshua and the rest of the heads of the fathers' houses of Israel said unto them, 'You have nothing to do with us to build a house to our God: but we alone will build to the Lord God of Israel, as King Cyrus the king of Persia has commanded us.'" 'You have nothing to do with us.' God had stirred up Cyrus to bring them back to do the Work.

Verses 4-5, "Then the people of the land tried to discourage the people of Judah. They troubled them in building, and hired counselors against them to frustrate their purpose all the days of Cyrus king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius king of Persia." They went to court. Look up the word "counselors."

Verses 6-8, "And in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem. And in the days of Artaxerxes also, Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel, and the rest of their companions wrote to Artaxerxes king of Persia; and the letter was written in the Aramaic script, and translated into the Aramaic language. Rehum the commander and Shimshai the scribe wrote a letter against Jerusalem to King Artaxerxes in this fashion."

Verses 11-12, "This is the copy of the letter that they sent him—To King Artaxerxes from your servants the men beyond the River, and so forth: Let it be known to the king that the Jews who came up from you have come up to us at Jerusalem, and are building the rebellious and the evil city, and are finishing its walls, and repairing the foundations." —'This bad city, and they are setting up walls.' They took facts; they took the truth and made it sound bad.

Verse 13, "Let it now be known to the king that, if this city is built and the walls completed, they will not pay tax, tribute, or custom, and the king's treasury will be diminished." —They will cut your revenues. They won't pay taxes.

Verses 14-15, "Now because we receive support from the palace, it was not proper for us to see the king's dishonor; therefore we have sent and informed the king, that search may be made in the book of the records of your fathers. And you will find in the book of the records and know that this city is a rebellious city, harmful to kings and provinces, and that they have incited sedition within the city in former times, for which cause was this city destroyed." We are coming to you as loyal citizens to tell you about these things.

Verse 16, "We inform the king that if this city is rebuilt, and its walls are completed, the result will be that you will have no dominion over the region beyond the River."

Verse 21, "Now give the command to make these men cease, that this city may not be built until the command is given by me."

Verses 23-24, "Now when the copy of King Artaxerxes' letter was read before Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and their companions, they went up in haste to Jerusalem against the Jews, and by force of arms made them to cease. Thus the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem ceased, and it was discontinued until the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia.” They first tried to infiltrate and get inside. When that didn’t work, they hired lawyers and then put padlocks and closed it up. Those are old tactics and have been around for a long time.

Ezra 5:1-2, “Then the prophet Haggai and Zechariah the son of Iddo, prophets, prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel, who was over them. So Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel and Joshua the son of Jozadak rose up and began to build the house of God which is at Jerusalem; and the prophets of God were with them, helping them.”

They just began to act—injunction or no injunction. Go back and read Haggai and Zechariah.

Verses 3-5, “At the same time came Tattenai the governor of the region beyond the River and Shethar-Boznai and their companions, came to them and spoke thus to them: ‘Who has commanded you to build this temple and finish the wall?’ Then, accordingly, we told them the names of the men who were constructing this building. But the eye of their God was upon the elders of the Jews, so that they could not make them cease till a report could go to Darius. Then a written answer was returned concerning this matter.” –All the way to the Supreme Court.

Ezra 5:11-17, “And thus they returned us an answered, saying: ‘We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the temple that was build many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and completed. But because our fathers provoked the God of heaven to wrath, He gave them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this temple and carried the people away to Babylon. However, in the first year of Cyrus king of Babylon, King Cyrus issued a decree to build this house of God. Also, the gold and silver articles of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple that was in Jerusalem and carried into the temple of Babylon—those King Cyrus took from the temple of Babylon, and they were given to one named Sheshbazzar, whom he had made governor. And he said to him, “Take these articles; go, carry them to the temple site that is in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt on its former site.” Then the same Sheshbazzar came and laid the foundation of the house of God, which is in Jerusalem; and from that time even until now it has been under construction, and it is not yet finished.’ Now therefore, if it seems good to the king, let a search be made in the king’s treasure house, which is there in Babylon, whether it is so that a decree was issued by King Cyrus to build this house of God at Jerusalem, and let the king send us this pleasure concerning this matter.”

Then the truth finally comes out.

Ezra 6:1, “Then King Darius issued a decree, and search was made in the archives, where the treasures were stored in Babylon.” He makes a decree.

Verse 11, “Also I issue a decree that whosoever alters this edict, let timber be pulled from his house and erected, and let him be hanged on it; and let his house be made a refuse heap because of this.”

Verses 14-16, “So the elders of the Jews built and they prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo. And they built and finished it, according to the commandment of the God of Israel, and according to the commandment of Cyrus, Darius and Artaxerxes king of Persia. Now the temple was finished on the third day of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius. Then the children of Israel, the priests and the Levites and the rest of the descendants of the captivity, celebrated the dedication of this house of God with joy.”

This is in the latter part of the sixth century, around 515 B.C. There is a gap when you pick it up in chapter 7. You will notice that there is a gap of about fifty years—a generation. Zerubbabel, Joshua, Haggai and Zechariah had died. Now their children are on the scene.

Ezra 7:6-11, “this Ezra came up from Babylon; and he was a skillful scribe in the Law of Moses, which the Lord God of Israel had given. The king granted him all his request, according to the hand of the Lord his God upon him. Some of the children of Israel, the priests, the Levites, the singers, the gatekeepers, and the Nethinim came up to Jerusalem in the seventh year of King Artaxerxes. And Ezra came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, which was in the seventh year of the king. On the first day of the first month he began his journey from Babylon, and on the first day of the fifth month he came to Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him. For Ezra had prepared his heart to seek the Law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach statutes and ordinances in Israel. Now this is the copy of the letter that King Artaxerxes gave Ezra the priest, the scribe, expert in the words of the commandments of the Lord, and of His statutes to Israel.”

Verses 13-14, “I issue a decree that all those of the people of Israel and the priests and Levites in my realm, who volunteer to go up to Jerusalem, may go with you. And whereas you are being sent by the king and his seven counselors to inquire concerning Judah and Jerusalem, with regard to the Law of your God which is in your hand.”

Ezra came back bringing the copy of the Scriptures. He came on the scene about fifty years after the curtain has dropped from what we saw at the time of Zerubbabel and Joshua.

Ezra 8:1-20 shows the various ones that came back from Babylon.

Ezra 8:21-23, “Then I proclaimed a fast there at the river of Ahava, that we might humble ourselves before our God, to seek from Him the right way for us and for our little ones and all our possession. For I was ashamed to request of the king an escort of soldiers and horsemen to help us against the enemy on the road, because we had spoken to the king, saying, ‘The hand of our God is upon all those for good who seek Him, but His power and His wrath are against all those who forsake Him.’ So we fasted and entreated our God for this, and He answered our prayer.”

The alternative was to fast. ‘We can’t ask the king to protect us because it would look like we didn’t trust God to protect us.’

Verses 31-32, “Then we departed from the river of Ahava on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem. And the hand of our God was upon us and He delivered us, and He delivered us from the hand of the enemy and from ambush along the road. So we came to Jerusalem, and stayed there three days.”

Ezra 9:1, “When these things were done, the leaders came to me saying, ‘The people of Israel and the priests and the Levites have not separated themselves from the peoples of the lands, with respect to the abominations of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians and the Amorites.’”

Now, what has transpired in these fifty years? The Jews have not kept themselves separate in a physical sense or a spiritual sense. They had mixed and mingled and intermarried with the people of the land. The rulers (leaders) failed to set the example. They didn’t keep themselves pure and separate as they should have. When there are problems, it always gets back to a failure on the part of the leadership to set the right example they should have. Problems usually start at the top and work their way down.

Everyone has to take responsibility for his own actions, but it’s ultimately because the leaders didn’t keep themselves pure and separate in the way they should have.

Ezra heard this, and he was so absolutely overwhelmed. He couldn’t believe it! He came down there, and he saw this mess that had developed. Fifty years earlier the people had returned, and they came to do a work. They built the temple. They had gone through the persecutions and all the problems. Finally, the work was done and the persecutions, seemingly, had stopped. But Satan didn’t retire. He started back on infiltration again.

Understand! We have an adversary—a roaring lion that’s going about seeking whom he may devour. If he can’t overwhelm by frontal attack (discouragement and cause us to fall by the wayside), then he tries to subvert from within. If he gets caught there, he makes a frontal attack and tries to overwhelm from without and tries to discourage. If that doesn’t work, then he comes back. –Different tactics but really the same old tactics.

Verses 4-15, “Then everyone who trembled at the words of the God of Israel assembled to me, because of the transgression of those who had been carried away captive, and I sat astonished until the evening sacrifice. At the evening sacrifice I arose from my fasting; and having torn my garment and my robe, I fell on my knees and spread out my hands to the Lord my God, and said, ‘O my God: I am too ashamed and humiliated to lift up my face to You, my God; for our iniquities have risen higher than our heads, and our guilt has grown up to the heavens. Since the days of our fathers to this day we have been very guilty, and for our iniquities we, our kings, and our priests have been delivered into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, to plunder, and to humiliation, as it is this day. And now for a little while grace has been shown from the Lord our God, to leave us a remnant to escape, and to give us a peg in His holy place, that our God may enlighten our eyes and give us a measure of revival in our bondage. For we were slaves. Yet our God did not forsake us in our bondage; but He extended mercy to us in the sight of the kings of Persia, to revive us, to repair the house of our God, to rebuild its ruins, and to give us a wall in Judah and Jerusalem. And now, O our God, what shall we say after this? For we have forsaken Your commandments, which You have commanded by Your servants the prophets, saying, ‘The land which you are entering to possess is an unclean land, with the uncleanness of the peoples of the lands, with their abominations which have filled it from one end to another with their impurity. Now therefore, do not give you daughters as wives for their sons, nor take their daughters to your sons; and never seek their peace or prosperity, that you may be strong and eat the good of the land, and leave it as an inheritance to your children forever.” And after all that has come upon us for our evil deeds and for our great guilt, since You our God have punished us less than our iniquities deserve, and have given us such deliverance as this, should we again break Your commandments, and join in marriage with the people of these abominations? Would You not be angry with us until You had consumed us, so that there would be no remnant or survivor? O Lord God of Israel, You are righteous, for we are left as a remnant, as it is this day. Here we are before You, in our guilt, though no one can stand before You because of this.”

Ezra 10:1-7, “Now while Ezra was praying, and while he was confessing, weeping, and bowing down before the house of God, a very large congregation of men, women, and children assembled to him from Israel; for the people wept very bitterly. And Shechaniah the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam, spoke up and said to Ezra, ‘We have trespassed against our God, and have taken pagan wives from the peoples of the land; yet now there is hope in Israel in spite of this. Now therefore, let us make a covenant with our God to put away all these wives and those who have been born to them, according to the counsel of my master and of those who tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law. Arise, for this matter is your responsibility. We also will be with you. Be of good courage, and do it.’ Then Ezra arose, and made the leaders of the priests, the Levites, and all Israel swear an oath that they would do according to this word. So they swore an oath. Then Ezra arose up from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Jehohanan the son of Eliashib [high priest; grandson of Joshua]; and when he came there, he ate no bread and drank no water, for he mourned because of the guilt of those from the captivity [Eliashib was high priest (Nehemiah 3:1)]. And they issued a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem to all the descendants of the captivity, that they must gather at Jerusalem.”

Word went out. Ezra could see that the very existence of the congregation of God was in danger. He sent out a decree and commanded that the entire nation be assembled.

Verse 8, “and that whoever would not come within three days, according to the counsel of the leaders and elders, all his property would be confiscated, and he himself would be separated from the congregation of those from the captivity.” If anyone refused, they were to be disfellowshipped, cast out of the congregation and their property was to be forfeited. Ezra ruled with a strong hand. They knew a strong hand from somewhere had arrived. God had raised up Ezra and sent him back from Babylon because the very existence of God’s Church was in jeopardy.

Verse 9, “So all the men of Judah and Benjamin gathered at Jerusalem within three days. It was the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month; and all the people sat in the open square of the house of God, trembling because of this matter and because of heavy rain.”

Verses 10-18, “Then Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, ‘You have transgressed and have taken pagan wives, adding to the guilt of Israel. Now therefore, make confession to the Lord God of your fathers, and do His will; separate yourselves from the peoples of the land and from the pagan wives.’ Then all the congregation answered and said with a loud voice, ‘Yes! As you have said, so we must do. But there are many people; it is the season for heavy rain, and we are not able to stand outside. Nor is this the work of one or two days, for there are many of us who have transgressed in this matter. Please, let the leaders of our entire congregation stand; and let all those in our cities who have taken pagan wives come at appointed time, together with the elders and judges of their cities, until the fierce wrath of our God is turned away from us in this matter.’ Only Jonathan the son of Asahel and Jahaziah the son of Tikvah opposed this, and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite gave them support. Then the descendants of the captivity did so. And Ezra the priest, with certain heads of the fathers’ households, were set apart by the fathers’ households, each of them by name; and they sat down on the first day of the tenth month to examine the matter. By the first day of the first month they finished questioning all the men who had taken pagan wives. And among the sons of the priests who had taken pagan wives the following were found of the sons of Joshua the son of Jozakdak, and his brothers: Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah.”

Verse 44, “All these had taken pagan wives, and some of them had wives by whom they had children.”

A period of about thirteen years goes by, and we pick up the story in Nehemiah. Nehemiah was a servant of the king in the palace of Susa in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes (Nehemiah 1:1). He had a position in the Persian court.

Nehemiah 1:3-4, “And they said to me, ‘The survivors who are left from the captivity in the province are there in great distress and reproach. The wall of Jerusalem is also broken down, and its gates are burned with fire.’ So it was, when I heard these words, that I sat down and wept, and mourned for many days; I was fasting and praying before the God of heaven.”

What he heard was going on in Jerusalem bothered him. Ezra had come down and, through force of personality, “carried the day” for a while. We find that the very family of the high priest had intermarried. The high priest’s grandson, who was in line to be high priest, had married the daughter of Sanballat, the leader of the Samaritans (Nehemiah 13:27-28). Trouble was brewing. Ezra said they would all have to put away these strange wives. Some of the leaders refused to do so (Ezra 10:15). If they refused, the reform among the people would be short-lived. Now, thirteen years later, Nehemiah became aware of the state of things.

Nehemiah 1:3, “And they said to me, ‘the survivors who are left from the captivity in the province are there in great distress and reproach. The wall of Jerusalem is also broken down, and its gates are burned with fire.’” They had never finished repairing the city. Nehemiah was greatly bothered.

In vv. 5-11, he prayed and asked God to give him an opportunity to have a part in straightening it out.

Nehemiah 2:1-5, “And it came to pass in the month of Nisan, in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes when wine was before him, that I took the wine and gave it to the king. Now I had never been sad in his presence before. Therefore the king said to me, ‘Why is your face sad, since you are not sick? This is nothing but sorry of heart.’ Then I became dreadfully afraid, and said to the king, ‘May the king live forever! Why should my face not be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers’ tombs, lay in waste, and its gates are burned with fire?’ Then the king said to me, ‘What do you request?’ So I prayed to the God of heaven. And I said to the king, ‘If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, I ask that you send me to Judah, to the city of my fathers’ tombs, that I may rebuild it.’”

Nehemiah wanted to rebuild the city. The temple had been rebuilt under Zerubbabel, but the work had kind of faded down. What always happens when people begin to mix and mingle with the world around them and become absorbed in the world and its ways? They lose their zeal to finish the work. This is what happened here.

Verses 6-9, “So the king said to me (the queen was also sitting beside him), ‘How long will your journey be? And when will you return?’ So it pleased the king to send me; and I set him a time. Furthermore I said to the king, ‘let letters be given to me for the governors of the region beyond the River, that they must permit me to pass through till I come to Judah., and a letter to Asaph the keeper of the king’s forest, that he must give me timber to make beams for the gates of the citadel which pertains to the temple, for the city wall, and for the house that I will occupy.’ And the king granted them to me according to the good hand of my God upon me. Then I went to the governors in the region beyond the River and gave them the king’s letters. Now the king had sent captains of the army and horsemen with me.”

The king sent him back.

Verse 10, “When Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite official heard of it, they were deeply disturbed that a man had come to seek the well-being of the children of Israel.” It upset them. They were leaders of the Samaritans.

Verses 11-20, “So I came to Jerusalem and was there three days. Then I arose in the night, I and a few men with me; I told no one what my God had put in my heart to do at Jerusalem; nor was there any animal with me, except the one on which I rode. And I went out by night through the Valley Gate to the Serpent Well and the Refuse Gate, and viewed the walls of Jerusalem, which were broken down and its gates, which were burned with fire. Then I went on the Fountain Gate and to the King’s Pool, but there was no room for the animal that was under me to pass. So I went up in the night by the valley and viewed the wall; then I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned. And the officials did not know where I had gone or what I had done; I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, or the others who did the work. Then I said to them, ‘You see the distress that we are in, how Jerusalem lies waste, and its gates are burned with fire. Come and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no longer be a reproach.’ And I told them of the hand of my God which had been good upon me, and also of the king's words that he had spoken to me. So they said, 'Let us rise up and build.' Then they set their hands to do this good work. But when Sanballat the Horonite, Tobiah the Ammonite official, and Geshem the Arab heard of it, they laughed us to scorn and despised us, and said, 'What is this thing that you are doing? Will you rebel against the king?' So I answered them, and said to them, 'The God of heaven Himself will prosper us; therefore we His servants will arise and build, but you have no heritage or right or memorial in Jerusalem.'"

Nehemiah 3:1, "Then Eliashib the high priest rose up with his brethren the priests and built the Sheep Gate; they consecrated it and hung its doors. They built as far as the Tower of the Hundred, and consecrated it, then as far as the Tower of Hananeel." They began to rebuild the wall.

Nehemiah 4:1-2, "But it so happened, when Sanballat heard that we were rebuilding the wall, that he was furious and very indignant, and mocked the Jews. And he spoke before his brethren and the army of Samaria, and said, 'what are these feeble Jews doing? Will they fortify themselves? Will they offer sacrifices? Will they complete it in a day? Will they revive the stones from the heaps of rubbish—stones that are burned?'"

They made fun of the Work of God.

Verses 6-10, "So we built the wall and the entire wall was joined together up to half its height, for the people had a mind to work. Now it happened, when Sanballat, Tobiah, the Arabs, the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites heard that the walls of Jerusalem were being restored and the gaps were beginning to be closed, that they became very angry, and all of them conspired together to come and attack Jerusalem and create confusion. Nevertheless we made our prayer to our God, and because of them we set a watch against them day and night. Then Judah said, 'The strength of the laborers is failing, and there is so much rubbish that we are not able to build the wall.'"

Verses 18-21, "Every one of the builders had his sword girded at his side as he built. And the one who sounded the trumpet was beside me. Then I said to the nobles, the rulers, and the rest of the people, 'The work is great and extensive, and we are separated far from one another on the wall. Therefore, whenever you hear the sound of the trumpet, rally to us there. Our God will fight for us.' So we labored in the work, and half of the men held the spears from daybreak until the stars appeared."

They went through a very strenuous time. There were many problems to be straightened out.

Nehemiah 5:1, "And there was a great outcry of the people and their wives against their Jewish brethren." The book of Malachi was written at the time of Ezra and Nehemiah.

Malachi 3:9, "You are cursed with a curse...." The curse they were cursed with was in Nehemiah 5. They were in such hard times; they had to borrow money to eat and pay taxes (Nehemiah 5:2-5). Put Nehemiah 5 with Malachi 3.

God said in Malachi 3:10, "'Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be food in My house, and prove Me now in this,' says the Lord of hosts, 'if I will not open for you the windows of heaven and pour out for you such a blessing that there will not be room enough to receive it.'"

In Nehemiah 5, Nehemiah was very angry because of the state of things (v. 6). The people weren't helping each other, but taking advantage of each other and charging interest (v. 7). So he called them together and required an oath of them (v. 12). From the time Nehemiah was appointed governor in Judah—in twelve years—he didn't take his salary or exhort taxes from the people (v. 14).

Nehemiah 6:1-5, "Now it happened when Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem the Arab, and the rest of our enemies heard that I had rebuilt the wall, and that there were no breaks left in it (though at that time I had not hung the doors in the gates), that Sanballat and Geshem sent to me, saying 'Come let us meet together in one of the villages in the plain of Ono.' But they thought to do me harm. So I sent messengers to them, saying, 'I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down. Why should the work cease while I leave it and go down to you?' But they sent this message four times, and I answered them in the same manner. Then Sanballat sent his servant to me as before, the fifth time, with an open letter in his hand."

Verses 8-9, "Then I sent to him saying, 'No such thing as you say are being done, but you invent them in your own heart.' For they all were trying to make us afraid, saying, 'Their hands will be weakened in the work, and it will not be done.' Now therefore, O God, strengthen my hands."

Verses 13-14, "For this reason he was hired, that I should be afraid and act that way and sin, so that they might have occasion for an evil report, that they might reproach me. My God remember Tobiah and Sanballat, according to these their works, and the prophetess Noadiah and the rest of the prophets who would have made me afraid.” He continued in the work.

Verse 15, “So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month of Elul, in fifty-two days.” The wall was finished.

Verse 19, “...And Tobiah sent letters to frighten me.” The Samaritans were doing everything they could to subvert what was going on.

Nehemiah 7:4-5, “Now the city was large and spacious, but the people in it were few, and the houses were not rebuilt. Then my God put it into my heart to gather the nobles, the rulers, and the people, that they might be registered by genealogy. And I found a register of the genealogy of those who had come up in the first return [534 B.C.; Ezra 2]....”

Nehemiah 8:1-4, “Now all the people gathered together as one man in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate; and they told Ezra the scribe to bring the Book of the Law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded Israel. So Ezra the priest brought the Law before the congregation, of men and women and all who could hear with understanding, on the first day of the seventh month [Feast of Trumpets, Leviticus 23:24]. Then he read it in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate from morning until midday, before the men and women and those who could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive to the Book of the Law. So Ezra the scribe stood on a platform of wood which they had made for the purpose; and beside him, at his right hand, stood....”

Verses 5-14, “And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it, all the people stood up. And Ezra blessed the Lord, the great God. Then all the people answered, ‘Amen, Amen!’ And they bowed their heads and worshiped the Lord with their faces to the ground...and the Levites helped the people to understand the Law; and the people stood in their places. So they read distinctly from the book, the Law of God; and they gave the sense, and helped them to understand the reading. And Nehemiah, who was the governor, Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people said to all the people, ‘This day is holy to the Lord your God; do not mourn nor weep.’ For all the people wept, when they heard the words of the Law. Then he said, ‘Go your way, eat the fat, drink the sweet, and send portions to those for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy to our Lord. Do not sorrow, for the joy of the Lord is your strength.’ So the Levites quieted all the people, saying, ‘Be still, for the day is holy; do not be grieved.’ And all the people went their way to eat and drink, to send portions and rejoice greatly, because they understood the words that were declared to them. Now on the second day the heads of the fathers’ houses of all the people, with the priests and Levites, were gathered to Ezra the scribe, in order to understand the words of the Law. And they found written in the Law, which the Lord had commanded by Moses, that the children of Israel should dwell in booths during the Feast of the seventh month [Feast of Tabernacles, Leviticus 23:34, 39-42].”

Verses 17-18, “...And there was very great gladness. Also day by day, from the first day until the last day, he read from the Book of the Law of God. And they kept the Feast seven days, and on the eighth day [Last Great Day, Leviticus 23:36, 39, 44] there was a sacred assembly, according to the prescribed manner.”

The Feast of Tabernacles and the Eighth Day—the people were assembled.

Nehemiah 9, in his prayer, Nehemiah gives an historical review.

Nehemiah 9:38, ““And because of all this, we make a sure covenant, and write it; and our leaders and our Levites and our priests seal it.””

Nehemiah 10:1-27, a covenant was made and the ones who signed the covenant are listed.

Nehemiah 10:28-31, “Now the rest of the people (the priests, the Levites, the gatekeepers, the singers, the Nethinim, and all those who had separated themselves from the peoples of the lands to the Law of God, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, everyone who had knowledge and understanding), they joined with their brethren, their nobles, and entered into a curse and an oath to walk in God’s Law, which was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of the Lord our Lord, and His ordinances and His statutes—that we would not give our daughters as wives to the peoples of the land, nor take their daughters for our sons; that if the people of the land bring wares or any grain to sell on the Sabbath day, we would not buy it from them on the Sabbath or on a Holy Day; and that we would forego the seventh year’s produce and the exaction [collection] of every debt.”

Verse 37, “to bring the firstfruits of our dough, our offerings, the fruit from all kinds of trees, the new wine and oil, to the priests, to the storerooms of the house of our God; and to bring the tithes of our land to the Levites for the Levites should receive the tithes in all our farming communities.”

Notice that when the people returned to God with all their heart, they returned in these areas:

- 1) They separated themselves from fellowship with the world (v. 28).
- 2) They became very conscious of properly observing the Sabbath (v. 31).
- 3) They paid their tithes (vv. 35-38).

This is the way in which they turned around.

Verses 38-39, “And the priest, the descendants of Aaron, shall be with the Levites when the Levites receive tithes; and the Levites shall bring up a tenth of the tithes to the house of our God, to the rooms of the storehouse. For the children of Israel and the children of the Levi shall bring the offering of the grain, of the new wine and the oil, to the storerooms where the articles of the sanctuary are, where the priests who minister and the gatekeepers and the singers are; and we will not neglect the house of our God.”

Nehemiah 11:1-2, “Now the leaders of the people dwelt at Jerusalem; the rest of the people cast lots to bring one out of ten to dwell in Jerusalem, the holy city, and nine-tenths were to dwell in other cities. And the people blessed all the men who willingly offered themselves to dwell at Jerusalem.” Problems were not entirely solved.

Nehemiah 13:1-5, “On that day they read from the Book of Moses in the hearing of the people, and it was found written that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever come into the congregation of God, because they had not met the children of Israel with bread and water, but hired Balaam against them to curse them. However, our God turned the curse into a blessing. So it was, when they had heard the Law, that they separated all the mixed multitude from Israel. Now before this, Eliashib the priest, having authority over the storerooms of the house of our God, was allied with Tobiah.”

Eliashib the high priest was allied with Tobiah. Tobiah actually had a chamber right there in the Temple where he would come in and stay. He stayed in the place where they brought in meat offerings and tithes.

Verses 6-12, “But during all this I was not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon I had returned to the king. Then after certain days I obtained leave from the king, and I came to Jerusalem [Nehemiah had been gone for twelve years] and discovered the evil that Eliashib had done for Tobiah, in preparing a room for him in the courts of the house of God. And it grieved me bitterly; therefore I threw all the household goods of Tobiah out of the room. Then I commanded them to cleanse the rooms; and I brought back into them the articles of the house of God, with the grain offering and the frankincense. I also realized that the portions for the Levites had not been given them; for each of the Levites and the singers who did the work had gone back to his field. So I contended with the rulers, and said, ‘Why is the house of God forsaken?’ And I gathered them together and set them in their place. Then all Judah brought the tithe of the grain and the new wine and the oil to the storehouse.”

Verse 25, “So I contended with them and cursed them, struck some of them and pulled out their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, ‘You shall not give your daughters as wives to their sons, nor take their daughters for your sons or yourselves.’”

There kept being a problem because the family of the high priest was allied with the leadership of the opposition. And he never enforced it because his own grandson was married to a pagan woman.

Verses 26-31, “‘Did not Solomon king of Israel sin by these things? Yet among many nations there was no king like him, who was beloved of his God; and God made him king over all Israel. Nevertheless pagan women caused even him to sin. Should we then hear of your doing all this great evil, transgressing against our God by marrying pagan women?’ And one of the sons of Joiada, the son of Eliashib the high priest, was son-in-law of Sanballat the Horonite; therefore I drove him from me. Remember them, O my God, because they have defiled the priesthood and the covenant of the priesthood and the Levites. Thus I cleansed them of everything pagan. I also assigned duties to the priests and the Levites each to his service, and to bringing the wood offering and the firstfruits at appointed time. Remember me, O my God, for good.”

Nehemiah finally cleaned house by chasing the grandson of the high priest out of the country. He disfellowshipped him! It never solved the problem until he started at the top and expelled the grandson of the high priest.

As we pick up the story from history, the father-in-law of this grandson took him in, and the Samaritans built a temple on Mount Gerizim. This grandson of the high priest became the high priest of the Samaritans, where he had intermarried.

When we come to the story in the Gospel accounts, we understand why there is such hostility between the Jews and the Samaritans in the time of Christ. The Jews wouldn’t have anything to do with the Samaritans. Nehemiah made believers out of them!

Understanding what happened in the time of Nehemiah (as a background), when we come to the story in the Gospel account, we understand why there is such hostility between the Jews and the Samaritans.

John 4:4-9, “But He needed to go through Samaria. So He came to a city of Samaria which is called Sychar, near the plot of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph. Now Jacob’s well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied from His journey, sat thus by the well. It was about the sixth hour. A woman of Samaria came to draw water. Jesus said to her, ‘Give Me a drink.’ For His disciples had gone away into the city to buy food. Then the woman of Samaria said to Him, ‘How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman? For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans.’”

Verse 20, “Our fathers worshiped on this mountain [Mt. Gerizim, in Samaria], and you Jews say that in Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship.” This became the controversy. The family of the high priest that was expelled from Jerusalem claimed that the only thing that is the Bible is what Moses gave—the Torah (the first five books)—and they altered that.

This was the situation in which it was necessary for Ezra and Nehemiah to make plain, once and for all, what constituted the Word of God. The book of Chronicles was written by Ezra. Chronicles tells the story from a different viewpoint. It deals almost entirely centering on Jerusalem. The first chapter of Chronicles sets the stage and spends the whole book on King David and making Jerusalem the capital. II Chronicles focuses on Solomon and the building of the temple at Jerusalem. The rest of Chronicles primarily focuses in on Kings Hezekiah and Josiah and the great revivals that took place.

The story of what happened in Northern Israel is only referred to in a very general sense. The story now has to be written to make it plain in a time of confusion. Charges and accusations were being made. Everyone was claiming to represent God. The family of high priests that were expelled from Jerusalem claimed to represent God. Ezra and Nehemiah said they represented God. It was in this context that the official canon of the Scriptures was finally finished. Ezra, during this time, was a ready scribe of the Law who came back to teach the Bible. It was necessary that an authoritative seal be set because the Samaritans were seeking to subvert things from within. It was necessary that things be established.

The Jews, while in Babylon, had adopted a new method of writing—the square script of the Babylonians. The original Hebrew script was different. It looked more like the Arabic you see today. Hebrew is a much squarer script with bolder letters. Arabic is much more flowing, cursive. That is more akin to what the Jews had written with. The letters were the same, but the shapes were different.

The Jews had become familiar with the written Babylonian script while in captivity. Ezra now changed the Hebrew script from the older script that had been used to the Babylonian script they had adopted in Babylon. The reason being was that the Bible was recopied in this Babylonian script. This made a very clear distinction between what the Jews recognized as Scripture and what the Samaritans did because the Samaritans were unwilling to copy the Jews. They hadn’t been there in captivity. They had adopted the Hebrew script hundreds of years earlier, and they weren’t about to change back to copy the Jews. So now it was very apparent, at first glance, if a book was Samaritan or Jewish. The official canon of the Old Testament was set at this time.

The book of Chronicles focuses in on the periods of revivals, how everything was centered in Jerusalem, and that’s where God’s work was centered. It was necessary that this be done. Josephus testifies that from the time of Artaxerxes (Ezra and Nehemiah), no more books were added to the canon. Ezra edited certain things to bring it up to date, such as the expression, “to this day.” This was the closing—the seal—of the official canon of the Old Testament. God, through Ezra and Nehemiah, had set the nation back on the right track, and the official final canon of Old Testament Scripture was completed.

Deuteronomy 34:10, “But since then there had not arisen in Israel a prophet Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face.” —Which we’ll come to next in the New Testament. We’ll see what caused the New Testament to have to be put together in the way that it was and that it very greatly paralleled the events of Ezra and Nehemiah. It was an attempt, again by the Samaritans—by the false church—to subvert, to infiltrate, to circulate all kinds of false and spurious books and to claim that they were equal with Scripture. It became necessary for the people of God to know the difference and for an authoritative difference to be made.

Proof of the Bible Series (Part 4)—How the New Testament Came Together

In this Bible study we will see how the New Testament came together. We have been talking about how we got our Bible, the Bible as we know it, and how the Scriptures came to be. We have been focusing in on the Old Testament, and how it came to be. Last time we went through Ezra and Nehemiah, the conclusion of the Old Testament and what gave us our canon of Scripture. There was a conclusion to the books, as inspired by God and preserved by the Jews. The books that they recognized as sacred had not been added to since the time of Artaxerxes in the times of Ezra and Nehemiah.

Deuteronomy 18:15, "...a Prophet like me..." and One who would give law. This was something none of the other prophets did. They had no authority to add to or take away from the Law of Moses. There was this prophecy, "that One like Moses," and that was Jesus Christ.

Acts 7:37, "This is that Moses who said to the children of Israel, 'The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. Him shall you hear.'"" —Showing that all these prophecies referred to Jesus Christ.

The same statements were referred to back in Acts 3:20-22, "and that He may send Jesus Christ, who was preached to you before, whom heaven must receive until the times of restoration of all things, which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began. For Moses truly said to the fathers, 'The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. Him shall you hear in all things whatever He says to you.'""

—"Like me...Him shall you hear."

Verse 26, "To you first, God, having raised up His Servant Jesus, sent Him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from your iniquities." The emphasis is that all these prophets referred to Jesus Christ—like Moses in a way that no one else ever was. What does it mean to be a prophet like Moses? Moses gave Law. Moses was responsible for the canon of Scripture laid up in the ark. God used Moses to write Scripture and to give Law. Let's notice a prophecy in the book of Isaiah.

Isaiah 8:14, "He will be as a sanctuary, but a stone of stumbling and a rock of offense to both the houses of Israel, as a trap and a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem." Who is this referring to?

Turn briefly back to Romans 9:23, "and that He might make known the riches of His glory on the vessels of mercy, which He had prepared beforehand for glory."

Verses 32-33, "Why? Because they did not seek it by faith, but as it were, by the works of the law. For they stumbled at that stumbling stone. As it is written: 'Behold, I lay in Zion a stumbling stone and rock of offense, and whoever believes on Him shall not be put to shame.'" That stumbling stone refers, of course, to Jesus Christ.

I Peter 2:4-8, "Coming to Him as to a living stone, rejected indeed by men, but chosen by God and precious, you also, as living stones, are being built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. Therefore it is also contained in the Scripture, 'Behold, I lay in Zion a chief cornerstone, elect, precious, and he who believes on Him will by no means be put to shame.' Therefore, to you who believe, He is precious but to those who are disobedient, 'The stone which the builders rejected has become the chief cornerstone,' and 'A stone of stumbling and a rock of offense.' They stumble, being disobedient to the word, to which they also were appointed."

This is quoted from Isaiah 8:14, "He will be as a sanctuary, but a stone of stumbling and a rock of offense to both the houses of Israel, as a trap and a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem."

—Referring to Jesus Christ.

Verses 15-20, "And many among them shall stumble; they shall fall and be broken, be snared and taken.' Bind up the testimony, seal the law among My disciples. And I will wait on the Lord, who hides His face from the house of Jacob; and I will hope in Him. Here am I and the children whom the Lord has given me! We are for signs and wonders in Israel from the Lord of hosts, who dwells in Mount Zion. And when they shall say to you, 'Seek those who are mediums and wizards, who whisper and mutter,' should not a people seek their God? Should they seek the dead on behalf of the living? To the Law and to the testimony! If they do not speak according to this Word, it is because there is no light in them."

To the law and to the testimony—that expression or statement is utilized various times. For instance, in Revelation 12:17, "...the rest of her offsprings, who keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ," and in other places in Revelation it refers to the Law and to the testimony (Revelation 12:11; Revelation 19:10; Revelation 1:2, 9; Revelation 6:9).

Isaiah 8:16, “Bind up the testimony, seal the Law among My disciples.” The testimony would be bound up, and the Law would be sealed among the disciples of Jesus Christ. “Bind up” means “to canonize, to seal, to set it apart.” The testimony and the Law would be set apart. The testimony and the Law would be set apart as authentic and genuine among whom? —The disciples of Jesus Christ! It was not going to be canonized by the Catholic Church. It was to be sealed by the disciples of Jesus Christ.

Isaiah 42:21, “The Lord is well pleased for His righteousness’ sake; He will magnify the Law and make it honorable.” Jesus Christ would magnify the Law.

Notice Matthew 5:17, “Do not think that I came to destroy the Law, or the Prophets. I did not come to destroy, but to fulfill.” —To fill up to the full! He was coming to magnify the Law. He was not coming to destroy it or do away with it.

Verse 18, “For assuredly, I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle will by no means pass from the law till all is fulfilled.” —Not one jot or tittle. Then He begins to magnify the Law.

Verses 21-22, “You have heard that it was said...but I say to you....”

Verses 27-28, “You have heard...but I say to you....”

Verses 31-32, “Furthermore it has been said...But I say to you....”

Verses 33-34, “Again you have heard...But I say to you....”

Verses 38-39, “You have heard...But I tell you....”

Notice as we go on through, and you find again a sixth place where He says in vv. 43-44, “You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.’ But I say to you, love your enemies, bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who spitefully use you and persecute you.”

—Bless them that curse you.

Verse 48, “Therefore you shall be perfect, just as your Father in heaven is perfect.” —Be completely spiritually mature. He goes on focusing on different things. He is magnifying the Law. He says, ‘This is what you have always been told, but I say to you.’ He was making it more binding. It is not enough to keep the letter of the Law. He taught the spirit of the Law. He magnified the Law. He did come, and He did magnify the Law.

In Isaiah 8:16, the Law was bound up by His disciples. In the beginning they did not feel a need to preserve what Jesus said and did because they expected His return soon.

The last question they asked Him, Acts 1:6, “...‘Lord, will You at this time restore the Kingdom to Israel?’”

Verse 7, “And He said to them, ‘It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has put in His own authority.’” They expected Christ to return in their lifetime (including the Apostle Paul), but as time went on and as they got further along, it was apparent—the awareness began to dawn on them—that there were things yet to be done. As a result, certain records began to be set down.

II Peter 1:12-15, “Therefore I will not be negligent to remind you always of these things, though you know them, and are established in the present truth. Yes, I think it is right, as long as I am in this tent to stir you up by reminding you, knowing that shortly I must put off my tent, just as our Lord Jesus Christ has showed me. Moreover I will be careful to ensure that you always have a reminder of these things after my decease.”

The story of who was responsible for giving us the New Testament, as we have it, is not that different than what Ezra and Nehemiah faced. It was because of the Samaritans and their trying to subvert and water down the truth of God. It was their opposition and their antagonism that caused Ezra and Nehemiah to set apart these books.

Was there anything like this in the New Testament? Yes, there was—in Acts 8:9-11, Simon the Sorcerer (the magician) known in history as Simon Magus. The Samaritans looked to him as God’s representative on earth.

Acts 8:12-13, “But when they believed Philip as he preached the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, both men and women were baptized. Then Simon himself also believed; and when he was baptized he continued with Philip, and was amazed, seeing the miracles and signs which were done.”

We are going to see what he believed a little later. He was amazed at the things Philip did.

Verses 17-18, “Then they laid hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. Now when Simon saw that through the laying on of the apostles’ hands the Holy Spirit was given, he offered them money.” He offered them money. He tried to make a deal. He said, ‘I want this office.’ He was trying to buy an apostleship.

Verse 19, “saying, ‘Give me this power also, that anyone on whom I lay hands may receive the Holy Spirit.’” He said, ‘I want the office that you hold; I want to be able to do that.’

Verse 20, “But Peter said to him, ‘Your money perish with you, because you thought that the gift of God could be purchased with money.’” He told him to take his money and where to go with it.

Verse 21, “‘You have neither part nor portion [KJV, “lot”] in this matter, for your heart is not right in the sight of God.’”

“You have neither part nor lot.” What does that expression mean? Notice what the apostles said after Judas had committed suicide.

Acts 1:24-26, “And they prayed and said, ‘You, O Lord, who know the hearts of all, show which of these two You have chosen to take part in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.’ And they cast their lots, and the lot fell on Matthias. And he was numbered with the eleven apostles.”

Acts 8:21, “‘You have neither part nor portion [KJV, “lot”] in this matter....’” It was a reference to the apostleship.

Verse 20, “...‘Your money will perish with you....’”

Verse 21, “‘You have neither part nor portion [KJV, “lot”] in this matter, for your heart is not right in the sight of God.’” You have not been chosen nor designated by God.

Verse 23, “‘For I see that you are poisoned by bitterness and bound by iniquity.’” –The bond of lawlessness. He looked into Simon and saw that he wasn’t in any way repentant. He was bitter against the Government of God. He was caught up in an attitude of contempt toward the Law of God.

Verse 24, “Then Simon answered and said, ‘Pray to the Lord for me, that none of the things which you have spoken may come upon me.’” He said, ‘I hope all those terrible things don’t happen.’ He didn’t repent.

Simon loomed rather large on the horizon in church history. He was the religious leader of the Samaritans. What was their religion? They practiced the Babylonian Mystery Religion. They paid lip-service to the God of Israel but attached that to their old pagan religion. They kept doing the same things but called it by the name of God.

John 4:19-22, “The woman said to Him, ‘Sir, I perceive that You are a prophet. Our fathers worshiped on this mountain [Mount Gerizim, in Samaria], and you Jews say that in Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship.’ Jesus said to her, ‘Woman, believe Me, the hour is coming when you will neither on this mountain, nor in Jerusalem, worship the Father. You worship what you do not know; we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews.’”

Jesus made it very plain that you don’t look among the Samaritans for the truth of God. They used God’s name, but they didn’t even know anything about the name of God. Don’t look to the Samaritans for what they preserved. Don’t look there; look to the Jews. They are the ones who have the responsibility of preserving the text. It is among these Samaritans that we find Simon the Magician. He thought he was the great one. He tried to buy an apostleship.

Later we read where Paul talked about those who were false apostles.

II Corinthians 11:13, “For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into apostles of Christ.”

John also talked about them in I John.

I John 2:19, “They went out from us, but they were not of us, for if they had been of us, they would have continued with us, but they went out that they might be made manifest, that none of them were of us.” That is who he was talking about.

The interesting thing to note, concerning the Samaritans and the Jews, there is another comparison. When the Apostle Paul went out into the Greek-speaking world, primarily he went where the Jews were. It really started out by being preached to those who were familiar with the Law. Three hundred years earlier was the dispersion (Greek, “Diaspora”)—the scattering of the Jews during the time of Alexander the Great. That served as the nucleus around which the Church of God was built.

There was another group of people who were dispersed in the ancient world—the dispersion of the Samaritans. Rome and Alexandria, Egypt were the two major areas where the Samaritans settled.

It is interesting to note that when we come across a church in the second century, as the curtain lifts from the time the New Testament closes, we find a church that calls itself Christian, but it’s not doing the things we find practiced by Jesus and the early apostles. It was a church that used the name of God and Jesus Christ, but was, in reality, following the same old Babylonian Mystery Religion. It was none other than the church that Simon the Sorcerer was responsible for founding. It was the outgrowth of what Simon did among the Samaritan colonies.

There are many warnings in the New Testament. It was a time of confusion. Let's go back to II Peter. He was writing in the latter part of the 60s A.D.

II Peter 2:1-3, "But there were also false prophets among the people, even as there will be false teachers among you, who will bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Lord who bought them, and bring on themselves swift destruction. And many will follow their destructive ways, because of whom the way of truth will be blasphemed. By covetousness they will exploit you with deceptive words; for a long time their judgment has not been idle, and their destruction does not slumber."

Peter was talking about false prophets—those who would mislead. There are these warnings. The Apostle Jude gave a number of these warnings.

Jude 3, "Beloved, while I was very diligent to write to you concerning our common salvation, I found it necessary to write to you exhorting you to contend earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered to the saints."—Again, writing in the late 60s A.D. So even thirty-five years after the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ, Jude was telling the Church to earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered.

Verse 4, "For certain men have crept in unnoticed, who long ago were marked out for this condemnation, ungodly men, who turn the grace of our God into licentiousness and deny the only Lord God and our Lord Jesus Christ." There was a false message being taught, turning the grace of our God into lewdness and denying the only Lord God.

Notice here in vv. 11-12, "Woe to them! For they have gone in the way of Cain, have run greedily in the error of Balaam for profit, and perished in the rebellion of Korah. These are spots in your love feasts, while they feast with you without fear, serving only themselves; they are clouds without water, carried about by the winds; late autumn trees without fruit, twice dead, pulled up by the roots." There are spots in your feasts, twice dead. He speaks here of these individuals who were a source of contention, a source of problems. The Church was told to earnestly contend for the faith once delivered.

Christ said He would bind up the Law among His disciples (Isaiah 8:16).

II Peter 1:12-14, "Therefore I will not be negligent to remind you always of these things, though you know them, and are established in the present truth. Yes, I think it is right, as long as I am in this tent, to stir you up by reminding you, knowing that shortly I must put off my tent, just as our Lord Jesus Christ showed me." "Tent"—he was referring to his mortal body.

Verse 15, "Moreover I will be careful to ensure that you always have a reminder of these things after my decease." He said, 'I am not going to be negligent. I know that I am not going to be alive much longer, but I am going to endeavor that after I die, you will have all of these things in remembrance.' How could Peter do this?—By having these things written down and set apart as canon of Scripture.

I want you to notice something we always read right over.

Verse 16, "For we did not follow cunning devised fables...."

Verse 15, "Moreover I will be careful to ensure that you always have a reminder...." He switched from first person singular to first person plural. He switches from "I" to "we."

In vv. 12-15, Peter used "I"; in vv. 16-18, he used "we." Who is the "we" to whom he is referring?

II Peter 1:17-18, "For He received from God the Father honor and glory when such a voice came to Him from the Excellent Glory: 'This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.' And we heard this voice which came from heaven when we were with Him on the holy mount."

To whom is "we" referring? It is very plain this "we" refers specifically to Peter and John alone, and I can prove that.

Let's go to Matthew 17:1-9. "We" refers to those who were in the mountain and heard, "This is My beloved Son."

Matthew 17:1-2, "Now after six days Jesus took Peter, James, and John his brother, brought them up on a high mountain by themselves, and was transfigured before them. His face shone like the sun, and His clothes became as white as the light." Does that sound like Jesus back in Revelation 1 in His glorified state?

Verse 5, "While He was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them; and suddenly a voice came out of the cloud, saying, 'This is My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. Hear Him!'"

Verses 3-4, "And behold, Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with Him. Then Peter answered and said to Jesus, 'Lord, it is good for us to be here; if You wish, let us make here three tabernacles: one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.'" They saw a vision (v. 9).

Matthew 16:28, "'Assuredly, I say to you, there are some standing here who shall not taste death till they see the Son of Man coming in His kingdom.” They saw Jesus coming in His kingdom.

In Matthew 17:1, Peter, James and John went up into a mountain six days later, and they saw Christ, in glorified form, coming in His Kingdom and saw Moses and Elijah (Church and State) resurrected in a vision (v. 9). They heard that (v. 6). It was a vision, and Jesus told them not to say anything about it.

Matthew 17:9, “...Jesus charged them, saying, ‘Tell the vision to no one, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.’” Who was there? Three men: Peter, James and John. Go back to Acts.

Acts 12:1-2, “Now about that time Herod the king stretched out his hand to harass some from the church. Then he killed James the brother of John with the sword.” A few years into the New Testament period (about thirteen years after the crucifixion) James was killed.

In II Peter 1, there were only two other men still alive.

In II Peter 1:16, when Peter said, “For we did not follow cunningly devised fables when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of His majesty,” this “we” can only refer to Peter and John, the only two people still living who had heard the voice. Notice something about Peter and John.

Verse 19 (KJV), “We have also a more sure word of prophecy....” We have the authoritative word of prophecy.

Verse 20, “knowing this first, that no prophecy of Scripture is of private interpretation.” Peter and John were responsible for the canonization of the New Testament. They were the ones to whom were given the authoritative word of prophecy. Peter was responsible for the first canonization of Scripture, and about thirty years later, John was responsible for the last canonization of Scripture. We are the ones who have the sure word of prophecy (v. 19).

Verse 16, “For we [Peter and John] did not follow cunningly devised fables when we made know to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of His majesty.”

II Peter 2:1, “But there were also false prophets among the people, even as there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies even denying the Lord who bought them, and bring on themselves swift destruction.”

‘There were false prophets, but we [Peter and John] are the ones you listen to. We are the ones that God has given that authority to—to say what is inspired of God and what is not. We are the ones that God has given that authority to.’ Just read church history and all the spurious accounts.

II Peter 2:3, “By covetousness they will exploit you with deceptive words....” Covetousness was the actual motive of those who tried to subvert.

Verses 4-5, “For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved for judgment; and did not spare the ancient world, but saved Noah, one of eight people, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood on the world of the ungodly.”

Verses 9-10, “then the Lord knows how to deliver the godly out of temptations and to reserve the unjust under punishment for the day of judgment, and especially those who walk according to the flesh in the lust of uncleanness and despise authority. They are presumptuous, self-willed; they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities.”

They despise government and church authority. That has been a stumbling block in our day. They didn’t want to be told what to do. They wanted to do what they wanted to do. Peter was very quick to call “a spade a spade.” He had a way of being very blunt and to the point.

Jude 8, “Likewise also these dreamers defile the flesh, reject authority, and speak evil of dignitaries.” –Just as in our time and, as we saw, with the Samaritans. Satan hasn’t changed his tactics.

Verse 10, “But these speak evil of whatever they do not know; and whatever they know naturally, like brute beasts, in those things they corrupt themselves.”

Verse 12, “These are spots in you love feasts, while they feast with you without fear, serving only themselves; they are clouds without water, carried about by the winds; late autumn trees without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots.”—Clouds without water.

II Peter 2:12-13, “But these like natural brute beasts made to be caught and destroyed, speak evil of the things they do not understand, and will utterly perish in their own corruption, and will receive the wages of unrighteousness, as those who count it pleasure to carouse in the daytime. They are spots and blemishes, carousing in their own deceptions while they feast with you.”

People were coming in trying to fellowship with God’s Church and yet using that opportunity for fellowship to try and subvert with their own deceptions.

Verses 14-15, “having eyes full of adultery and that cannot cease from sin, beguiling unstable souls. They have a heart trained in covetous practice, and are accursed children: They have forsaken the right way and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam the son of Beor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness.”

Verses 17-19, “These are wells without water, clouds carried by a tempest, to whom the gloom of darkness is reserved for ever. For when they speak great swelling words of emptiness, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through licentiousness, the ones who have actually escaped from those who live in error. While they promise them liberty, they themselves are slaves of corruption, for by whom a person is overcome, by him also he is brought in bondage.”

They promise them liberty. Peter makes it very plain.

Notice II Peter 3:1-2, “Beloved, I now write this second epistle (in both of which I stir up your pure minds by way of reminder), that you may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Savior.”

This is referring to Scripture—the prophets and the apostles. Jesus Christ is the chief cornerstone, and He is what the Bible is all about. He personified the Bible and lived it totally and completely.

There are several interesting things that come out in this. We noted before that as the Jews count the Old Testament, there are twenty-two books. There are twenty-seven books in the New Testament. When you add the twenty-seven and twenty-two, you come up with forty-nine—seven times seven—God’s number of completion and perfection.

If you take the four Gospels, which tell the story of Jesus Christ’s life, and Acts, which continues that story of what Jesus did through the Church (in those five books), the story of Jesus is the focal point. There are twenty-two books before and twenty-two books after those five books. Christ is the center of the Bible—the focal point. He is the chief cornerstone.

John wrote five books of the New Testament—the last books written—the Gospel of John, I, II, III John and Revelation. He outlived all of the other apostles by thirty years. If you take out John’s Books, how many remain for Peter to have canonized? —Twenty-two! Exactly the same number as already existed in the Old Testament canon. Then, thirty years later, five final books were added by John.

In II Peter 1:15, he says that he is going to be sure, after his decease, to have these things always in remembrance. How? —By setting down an authoritative canon of Scripture. But he made it plain that he was not the only one with that authority. Thirty years later, after the scene had changed, John had five more, which brought the total to twenty-seven. With the twenty-two of the Old Testament, it made God’s perfect number, and it also represented the seventh period of canonization. 1) The time of Moses, 2) Solomon, 3) Isaiah and Hezekiah, 4) Josiah and Jeremiah, 5) Ezra and Nehemiah, 6) the time of Peter and then, 7) the Apostle John put the final books in as the Greeks preserved it. God, over a period of centuries, working seven distinct periods of time, put together a book that consists of seven times seven. There is a logical flow and it finishes out with eternity in Revelation.

II Peter 3:2, “that you may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandments of us the apostles of the Lord and Savior.” He makes it plain the people were to accord the same to these Scriptures as they had with the Old Testament.

Verses 3-9, “knowing this first: that scoffers will come in the last days, walking after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation.’ For this they willingly forget: that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of water and in the water, by which the world that then existed perished, being flooded with water. But the heavens and the earth which now exist are kept in store, reserved for fire until the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men. But, beloved, do not forget this one thing, that with the Lord one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not slack concerning His promise, as some count slackness, but is longsuffering toward us, not willing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance.”

God has a time plan. Peter began to expound that. Peter is writing in the late 60s A.D. Peter could see that Jesus Christ was not coming back in their lifetime. Peter begins to go through and explain. God has a time plan. He is not slack concerning His promises. It is not that God has forgotten about what He said. In that time plan a day is as a thousand years.

Verses 13-15, “Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells. Therefore, beloved, looking forward to these things, be diligent to be found of Him in peace, without spot and blemish; and account that the longsuffering of our Lord is salvation—as also our beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given to him, has written to you.” There is a definite article there.

Verse 16, “as also in all his epistles speaking in them of these things, in which are some things hard to understand, which those who are untaught and unstable twist to their own destruction, as they do also the rest of the Scriptures.” Notice the fact that Paul’s writings were now available. But there were things that weren’t clear. “The rest of the Scriptures”—Peter says Paul’s writings were Scriptures. Peter makes it plain.

Turn back to II Timothy 4 and see a little bit as to how some of these things came about.

II Timothy 4:6-9, “For I am already being poured out as a drink offering, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith: finally, there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give me at that Day, and not to me only but to all who have loved His appearing. Be diligent to come to me quickly.”

Verse 11, “Only Luke is with me. Get Mark, and bring him with you, for he is useful to me for ministry.” He was useful to him for a service. ‘I need him to do something.’

Verse 13, “Bring the cloak that I left with Carpus at Troas when you come...and the books, especially the parchments.” Parchment was a writing material of value. It was what the scrolls were made of. It was not something on which you wrote your everyday letters, but official documents that needed to be preserved a long time. Normally, on what the Scriptures were written. Paul told Timothy, ‘Come and see me because the time of my departure is at hand. I am going to be executed. I need you to come, and bring Mark. I need him to do something and, especially, bring the parchments.’ Timothy was coming there from Ephesus, the area Paul had been and the area where there was a depository of a copy of the letters that Paul had written.

I Peter 5:13 (KJV), “The church that is at Babylon, selected together with you, salutes you; and so does Mark, my son.” Mark was to function as Peter’s assistant in the same way that Timothy was to Paul. ‘I need you to bring some things and bring Mark. He is profitable to me for a service.’

The copy of the letters that Paul had written had been preserved in Ephesus—copies of all the things that he had written. He edited those things in the final period of his life and put them in the final form. Timothy was bringing these to Peter and Mark was coming along.

Remember the prophecy—“seal up the Law among My disciples” (Isaiah 8:16). Peter and John were the ones to whom were given the authoritative, sure word of prophecy. They were responsible for sealing up those things. He sent them, by Mark, to Peter and was responsible for putting the first twenty-two books in the New Testament. They were kept and preserved thirty or so years, and the Apostle John put the New Testament in its final form. It was preserved by the Greeks; it was preserved right where Paul spent his final years.

The emphasis on Ephesus, as the early Church, was significant in more than one way. That is where John lived his final years. That is the area where the book of Revelation was written. That is where the authoritative copies of the New Testament were kept. That is where we find them preserved as we come on down to our time today—the official Greek text, preserved in the Greek-speaking world. The other copies, that were not as completely and clearly preserved, were found elsewhere.

We find the story, a couple of centuries later, when the church at Rome and Alexandria were arguing over a canon that already existed. They were debating over whether to exclude certain books from it—Revelation, II Peter, Jude—books that showed who they were and what they were doing. Revelation 17 talks very plainly of a great city that sits on seven hills, that reigns over the kings of the earth. Rome was noted as being the city of seven hills. Some of the references were so plain that they did their best to get rid of it.

We find here that God ensured the preservation of His Word. He inspired it to be written and raised up individuals to preserve and seal it up as authoritative. And God has preserved it!

The next time we will focus in on the order in which the Jews preserved the Old Testament and the Greeks the New Testament. The order was a little different and there are reasons for that. There are things that are obscured, that you don’t properly see. Even though they couldn’t get rid of the books, they tried to confuse them. God is a God of order. The Book, on which we base our life, is God’s Book and He has put His stamp on it. Our God has placed on this Book His seal and His stamp. You can't take anything out or put anything in because it doesn't make sense. Paul wrote fourteen books. Time after time, you see these sevens that run through. God has done these things in a systematic way. Next Bible study we will see these things more clearly.

Proof of the Bible Series (Part 5)—The Inspired Order of the Books of the Bible

Our focus has been on how we can come to know and have the confidence that we have the complete Bible, and that it is really the Word of God. We have gone through and seen how we have come to have the Old and New Testaments. We have seen God's completion of the Bible.

We mentioned that there were seven periods of how the Bible came together. When you add the twenty-two books to the twenty-seven books, you come up with forty-nine. There is no room for an Apocrypha. The Bible has an internal unity. There are seven divisions of the entire Bible. There are three divisions of the Old Testament Scriptures: 1) the Law, 2) the Prophets and 3) the Writings. There are four divisions of the New Testament Scriptures: 1) the Gospels and Acts, 2) the General Epistles, 3) the Epistles of Paul and 4) Revelation. It is not the order you have in your King James Bible and there is a reason for that.

What we term the "Old Testament," the Jewish Publication Society Edition terms it, simply, the "Holy Scriptures." In their translation, they record in the inspired order. There was a translation made (that took place over a period of years) called the "Septuagint Translation"—in reference to the seventy scholars. It was not translated for the authoritative Scriptures. They were on the edges of the Jewish community. It was the common translation in the Greek language and was the only one for a number of years. (Jews in Palestine looked down on it.) The Law, the Prophets and the Writings did not make sense to them.

They based the order of the Septuagint on what was commonly used by the Catholic Church. When the translation was made, they used the order that was already there by the Catholic Church. It loses something. The Greek manuscripts are preserved in a particular order. Only one translation preserves the proper Greek order—the Ivan Panan translation. When the King James was translated, they utilized the order which was already being used, and that was the order of books that the Catholic Church utilized. They went to the right sources of the translation, but they lost sight that God is a God of order who builds order in a system and has a reason for doing it that way. Let's look and see how the inspired order differs with the order in which we are familiar.

The Old Testament has three sections (Luke 24:44):

1) The Law: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. That part has not been tampered with.

2) The Prophets: There are two sections of Prophets: the Former Prophets: Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings. They are books we would consider as historical. These books tell the story of the entrance of Israel until they go into captivity; they are told in a logical order. Then, the Latter Prophets:—divided into the Major Prophets: Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel; and the Minor Prophets (simply based on the size of the books): Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi. History and prophecy are simply the same thing. You look back on history and forward on prophecy. It is the story of what happens when you obey the Law and what happens when you don't—the blessings and the curses. God's law is the fundamental revelation. Everything builds on that. That is the starting point. The Former Prophets, written earlier, tell the story of what Israel did—what happened when they obeyed and what happened when they disobeyed. The Latter Prophets drew lessons out into the future and showed the ultimate end of things.

3) The Writings (or Psalms) division consists of things that amplify and many things of poetry. They sandwiched it in with the Prophets because they didn't understand it. We are going to come back and see there is a direct logical reason why these Writings are in the order that they are. As we come into the New Testament, we see again the logic. When you read them in the order we have them today, you don't really understand what Ruth is all about. The point is often lost. We come to I, II Samuel, Kings and Chronicles, and it seems like Chronicles is rehashing what you just read. Ezra and Nehemiah are sandwiched in there along with Esther. You come to Job, and it seems to be sticking out, unrelated anywhere. You have Song of Solomon, then Lamentations (after Jeremiah). We add in the book of Daniel, and then, finally, books dealing with the Minor Prophets. That is not the way God had it. The Former Poetic (Meter Books): Psalms, Proverbs and Job are all written in a poetic fashion. Psalms was written primarily as songs to sing. They were written to be memorized.

Psalm 148:1, “Praise the LORD! Praise the LORD from the heavens; praise Him in the heights!” A poetic expression repeated. There is a certain repetition of thought.

You find the same thing in Proverbs 2:2, “So that you incline your ear to wisdom, and apply your heart to understanding.”

And Proverbs 1:20, “Wisdom calls aloud outside; she raises her voice in the open square.” They were written to be meditated on. There was a rhythm to them. It’s far easier to commit poetry to memory than to prose. You are able to call it back to mind. You think on them; you meditate on them. There are a lot of things you have to think about to get them out. Job was written in poetry.

The Megillot (Festival Books): Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes and Esther were Festival Scrolls read through the year to illustrate points. Realize, when you understand when these books were to be read, you get some understanding. They don’t get lost in the shuffle.

Then, we have the books written after the captivity. Latter Restoration Books: Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah and Chronicles—written as a conclusion to the Old Testament. Daniel answers to the book of Revelation in the New Testament—written as a parallel to that. Ezra and Nehemiah pick up the story after the return from captivity and how the Old Testament came to be. They tell you the story of what happened when they came back and make it plain about the Samaritans and Israel. After several hundred years, we know where to look. Simon the Magician claimed that they were the source of truth, and it resulted in a religion that claimed to be of Christ. Chronicles tells the story from the standpoint of Jerusalem. It tells you nothing about Northern Israel or King Saul. I Chronicles tells you about King David, that the temple was built there and that this was where God was working. It is obvious when you go through and read the Old Testament that there needs to be something to come after.

In the inspired order, II Chronicles 36:23 is the end of the Old Testament—the end of the Scriptures. It is a totally different feeling than what you get at the end of Revelation, where it would end. The next thing you would be reading in the inspired order is the book of Matthew. Matthew 1 goes right on through, coming down fourteen generations—all the generations from Abraham to David to Christ. Matthew backs up the story and kind of summarizes it from the standpoint that II Chronicles had just gotten through telling it. We find, as we go into Matthew, it ties in with II Chronicles.

The New Testament has four sections:

1) The Gospels and Acts: Matthew, Mark, Luke, John and Acts correspond to the books of the Law.

Luke 1:1-3, “Inasmuch as many have taken in hand to set in order a narrative of those things which are most surely believed among us, just as those who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and ministers of the word delivered them to us, it seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write to you an orderly account, most excellent Theophilus.” Go on to Acts.

Acts 1:1-2, “The former account I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which He was taken up, after He through the Holy Spirit had given commandments to the apostles whom He had chosen.” Acts is the story of the Living Jesus Christ after He had ascended to heaven and sent the Comforter. He continued to work through His servants. John is inserted between Luke and Acts.

2) The next section is the General Epistles: James, I, II Peter, I, II, III John and Jude.

3) Then follow the Epistles of Paul. They follow through Paul’s letters to seven Churches: Romans, I, II Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians and I, II Thessalonians. Then comes Hebrews (General Epistle) followed by Timothy, Titus and Philemon (Pastoral Epistles).

4) Revelation.

Let’s go back and understand a little more why this order has some relevance.

There are seven divisions of the Bible:

I. The Law: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. Logically, Genesis is the place to begin. Why is Genesis a part of the Law? God didn’t open up with the Ten Commandments. That is not where the Bible starts. It starts in the most logical place—“In the beginning.” It starts out by introducing to us who and what God is. We are introduced to God. God created and fashioned the earth. He is the Creator of the earth and of man upon it. He is the Author of that. He introduces Himself as the Creator and the Life-giver. Then He introduces Himself as the Lawgiver. We find God promises land to Abraham. We understand that the God, who promised land to Abraham, created it, and He owns it. It is His to give. We are introduced to Him in that context. We are introduced to Abraham.

Notice the focus. God starts out with the universe and then the family of man. In a matter of twelve chapters, He goes all the way from the universe to one man, Abraham and then the family of Abraham, zeroing in on the family God was to work with in the future.

We then go to the story in Exodus. God didn't do it the way it would seem logical to people. They never really anticipated that God would allow their descendants to sink down as slaves. God wanted them to get the point that He was the One who gave the blessings. Man seems to think, 'Look what I have done; look what I can do.' As God brings them out of slavery, He then begins to speak. He reveals that Law and goes through the statutes and judgments and the experiences Israel went through wandering in the wilderness for forty years. There is logic and order.

II. The Prophets: As we go through the Former Prophets, it is continued in story form. It is an amplification of the promises that God made (the blessings and the curses) and what happened when they obey and what happened when they disobeyed.

III. The Writings: Then we come back with the Writings—written in poetic and philosophical fashion, focusing in on many ways you can derive lessons. The Megillot (Festival Books): Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes and Esther. The Jews traditionally read the Song of Solomon during the Days of Unleavened Bread.

The Song of Solomon is a love story in poetic form, the story of a young lady and her intended. It is the story of an attempt by the king to take her into his harem, and the story of two people who saved themselves for each other. It is a beautiful love story that we will be going through during a Bible study. I don't know of any sin more difficult to really see the need of putting away than sin dealing with the area of sex. This book read during this time was to focus in on the positive blessings and benefits that two young people were to have if they put away sin and saved themselves for one another. It is a beautiful and a graphic story. God is not prudish. The Song of Solomon is very graphic. It contains many things of instructions, in terms of sexual matters. It is important for young people to understand.

The book of Ruth was read on the Day of Pentecost. Again, it is a love story; it is more of a symbolic story. It ultimately focuses in on the marriage of Christ and the Church. It looked back to the marriage of Christ and Old Testament Israel. The marriage of the Lamb has not yet taken place. Ruth embraced the ways of God and then her marriage to Boaz. It was a story that parallels the story of Pentecost.

Lamentations was read during their national holiday—the Feast of Ab (not one commanded in Scripture)—an anniversary of the destruction of the temple by Nebuchadnezzar. Titus did it on the same day in 70 A.D. So the Jews had a greater reason to fast. It was kind of a 4th of July in reverse. It's a prophecy of the Great Tribulation of which the destruction of Jerusalem was a type.

Ecclesiastes was read during the Feast of Tabernacles. That may strike some as unusual. But when you understand the message of Ecclesiastes, it was the story of a man who lived the Feast of Tabernacles three hundred sixty-five days during the year. His name was Solomon. He had everything. He lived it up. It was a time of prosperity, a time of abundance.

Micah referred to the World Tomorrow.

Micah 4:4, "But everyone shall sit under his vine and under his fig tree..." This term was used during the reign of Solomon (I Kings 4:25). This was to be characteristic of the World Tomorrow. Solomon, however, had to learn some lessons, and those lessons are set out in the book of Ecclesiastes. If physical things are all that you have, then there is an empty spot. The book of Ecclesiastes was read during that occasion. You see, there is a story contained in these Festival Scrolls.

Latter restoration books: Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah and Chronicles. The book of Daniel is prophecy from a completely different standpoint. It was written by one outside the land of Palestine, written primarily dealing with Gentile areas. It was written after the captivity. Ezra, Nehemiah and Chronicles complete the story from that standpoint.

Then when you come to the New Testament, it is interesting that the Church is described as being built on the foundation of the prophets and the apostles (Ephesians 2:20). The Old Testament was written by prophets; the New Testament, by apostles and Jesus Christ being the Chief Cornerstone.

IV. The four Gospels and Acts: Why are there four gospel accounts? They tell the story from four different standpoints. They follow a similar outline, but they tell the story in a different way.

Matthew was written to a Jewish audience. It focuses in on things from a Jewish standpoint. Those who were reading it were coming from a background of strict, orthodox Judaism. It covers Christ's confrontation with the Pharisees and the Olivet Prophecy. It gives things not given in any other account. It was written to people very familiar with the Law. The confrontations were written in detail.

Mark (written by Mark)—the one who accompanied Peter. The thrust was to the area Peter ministered to. It is a book that focused in on the things that Christ did. It is a fast-moving story. It uses the word "straightway" (KJV), "immediately" (NKJV). It focuses in more on what Christ did rather than what He said. It doesn't give the details that Matthew gives.

Luke was written primarily to the Gentile area. Luke was a companion to Paul. There are two genealogies of Christ—Matthew and Luke. Matthew establishes that Jesus is the Messiah—the heir of David and Abraham. Those were the ones that were important as far as the Jews were concerned. God made the promises to Abraham and reiterated it to David. Matthew emphasizes that Jesus was the King. Luke traces it back to Adam, showing a common bond to all humanity. This was the Gospel that was circulated where Paul preached. It was written from a little different standpoint.

So, here were three Gospel accounts that circulated in three different areas: Matthew's in the area of Judea and Jerusalem, Luke's and Paul's in the Gentile area and Mark's in the area where Peter and Mark worked.

John simply omits some of the things that Matthew, Mark and Luke talk about. John wrote at a much later time. He doesn't give the Sermon on the Mount. You will find that it gives what Christ said and did on seven occasions: three Passovers, Pentecost, Feast of Trumpets, Feast of Tabernacles and The Last Great Day. John focuses in on these Festival occasions. John simply added in material that was important for the Church to know. It was a time when the validity of the Holy Days and the Sabbath was being questioned.

Acts picks up the story from Luke, carries it through, and ends abruptly in Paul's imprisonment. It tells how Christ established His Church and worked through it. That set the stage. That is a logical place to begin the New Testament.

V. The General Epistles: James, Peter, John and Jude. Remember last Bible study, the warning from Peter about Paul's writings—"things difficult to be understood"—some things people tend to misapply and misuse. You read Jesus' example of the days He observed and kept. Then the book of Acts and the good news of the Kingdom they preached. We have two sections that were to set the stage.

James explains faith; Peter, hope; and John, love. Faith without works is dead (James 2:20). He emphasizes faith. The faith it takes to be healed in James 5. The kind of faith Abraham had (2:23). The kind of faith it takes. When you get through reading the book of James, you realize that it is necessary to do something (2:20).

Peter focuses on hope.

John goes through and explains about love.

I John 5:3, "This is the love of God that we keep His commandments."

II John 6, "This is love, that we walk according to His commandments." He goes on explaining about the things we are to love. We are not to love the world (I John 2:15). It focuses in on what real love really is.

Then Jude warns you that you must earnestly contend for the faith once delivered. After having that as a background, you are prepared to read what Paul wrote. The Catholics didn't like the book of James; it was too Jewish. They like the book of Romans. They put all the general epistles to the back, hoping you wouldn't make it all the way there.

VI. The Epistles of Paul: The order of Paul's Epistles is interesting. He wrote to seven Churches: Romans, I Corinthians, II Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, I Thessalonians, II Thessalonians and a General Epistle: Hebrews. He wrote four Pastoral Epistles: I Timothy, II Timothy, Titus and Philemon.

Some modern critics want to say that Paul didn't write Hebrews. When you include Hebrews, you have fourteen that he wrote. There are seven General Epistles: James, I Peter, II Peter, I John, II John, III John, and Jude. There are fourteen letters from Paul. That is logical. God does things in a logical way. There is order. Many of the scholars can't understand why the epistles are in the order they are, but there is logic.

The order of Paul's epistles is based on the outline of God's plan based on the Holy Days. The book of Romans explains the Passover and Days of Unleavened Bread.

Romans 5:8, "...Christ died for us." Isn't that the message of the Passover? It continues right on into Romans 6—the Days of Unleavened Bread and the necessity of coming out of sin.

Romans 5:8, "...while we were sinners Christ died for us." But we can't live in sin; we have to come out of it.

Then you go on to the book of Corinthians—the instruction about Passover (I Corinthians 11) and the little leaven that leavens the whole lump (I Corinthians 5:6). The Holy Days picture God’s plan of salvation.

Then you go on to Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians and Colossians. Those four focus in on the meaning of Pentecost and the giving and working of God’s Holy Spirit. Galatians 5:22-23—the fruits of the Spirit. Ephesians is an entire sermon on Pentecost. Ephesians in the New Testament and Ruth in the Old Testament explain being called out of the world and the marriage covenant. Let’s notice one little thing here.

Ephesians 2:11-12, “Therefore remember that you, once Gentiles in the flesh—who are called Uncircumcision by what is called the Circumcision made in the flesh by hands—that at that time you were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world.”

That’s what Ruth was—a Moabite. She turned her back from the world. What did she tell Naomi?

Ruth 1:16, “...‘Your people will be my people and your God my God.’ It has to do with us being called out of the world. ‘Husbands, love your wives; wives obey your husband.’ He goes through this in Ephesians 5, and people think he is talking about the husbands and wives. Then he comes down and says it is a mystery about Christ and the Church (v. 32).

Philippians focuses in on God’s Spirit and how to overcome. Colossians continues on with the very same things—things that zeroes in, in a special way, with the meaning of Pentecost. What does I Thessalonians talk about? What comes next? Trumpets!

Chapter 4:16, Christ will descend from heaven.

I Thessalonians 5:1-2, “...the times and seasons ...the day of the Lord comes as a thief in the night.”

II Thessalonians 2:1-2, “Now, brethren, concerning the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our gathering together to Him, we ask you, not to be soon shaken in mind or troubled, either by spirit or by word or by letter, as if from us, as though the day of Christ had come.” Paul goes through and explains things—setting the stage of the Feast of Trumpets.

Then, Hebrews focuses in on the things that deal with Atonement and Tabernacles. We always go back to Hebrews on Atonement because it explains the symbolism of Leviticus 16.

In Hebrews 8 and 9, Paul explains, “but now Christ has entered into the Holy Place” (9:12). Hebrews 11, focuses in on the time when they will receive the promises (vv. 13-16)—the Feast of Tabernacles—a time yet to come. There is a thread that runs through, focusing in on the return of Christ and on into the World Tomorrow.

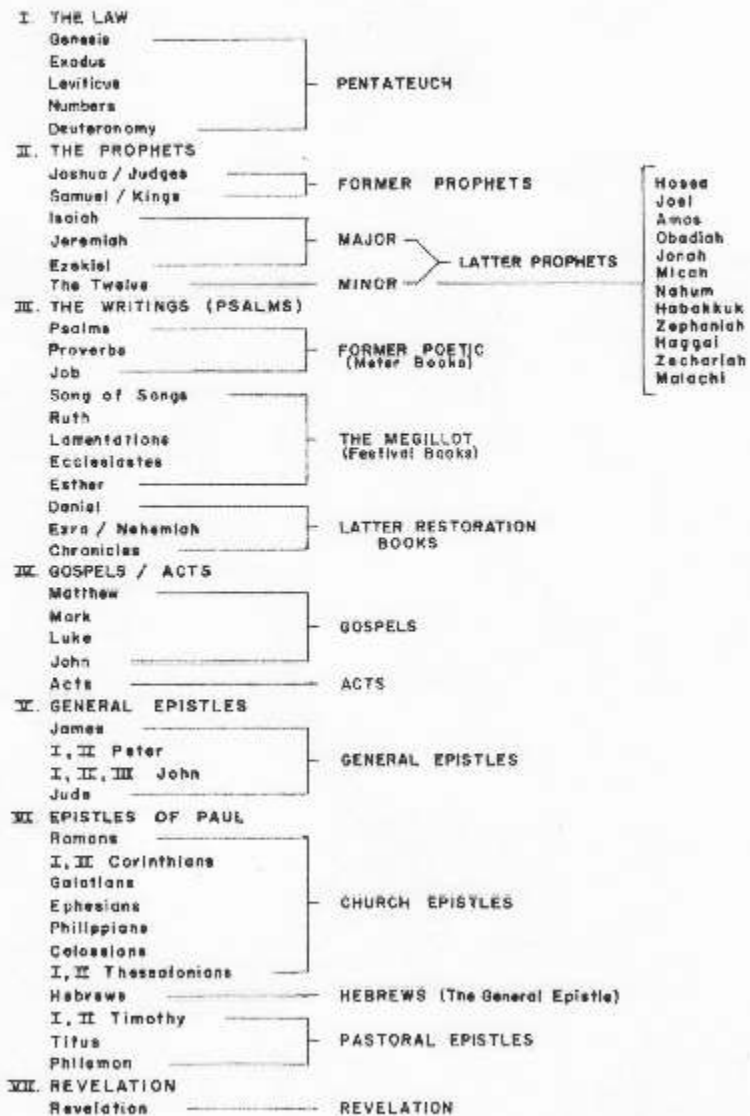

You have a logical flow through Paul’s epistles, then his letters of instructions to the ministry: Timothy, an Evangelist, Titus (of less responsibility) and Philemon, an elder in the Church. There is logic as you go through it.

VII. Revelation: The logical place to end is Revelation—on out into eternity. Genesis opened up in the beginning; Revelation ends on the brink of eternity—forever stretching out beyond. They both boggle your mind. You can’t understand “forever” in the past and in the future. Genesis starts with the Tree of Life in the midst of Paradise. Revelation ends with the Tree of Life and God building His family. We find the twelve sons of Jacob have now become twelve tribes designated by twelve gates. All mankind ultimately becomes the spiritual seed of Abraham. Jacob had twelve sons because God had an organizational structure that is ultimately going to relate to all those twelve tribes. Everyone who comes in has to go through one of those twelve tribes.

The Bible: things written over a period of a millennium and a half—one thousand five hundred years. Yet there is logic. There are seven divisions in the Bible: three in the Old Testament and four in the New Testament. This Book that God gave to mankind starts at the beginning and ends on the brink of eternity.

Next Bible study we will focus in on different aspects of the Bible. Many aspects will be of value to us in coming to understand more deeply this Book—every word by which we are to live. That is what we are going to focus in on—this Book that is to be the basis of how we live our lives.

TRUE ORDER AND DIVISIONS OF THE BIBLE

Introductory Material to the Survey Approach of Studying the Bible

We have been going through a series of the proof of the Bible. Where did we get the Bible? How did it come to be? Where did it derive its authority? The canonization of the Bible, how it came to be set apart?

Tonight we are going to begin another series. Have you ever wished that you could take part in an Ambassador College Bible class? Some of you have had that privilege. The approach we are going to take in the months immediately ahead is that we are going to go through the entire Bible in several different series: a Historical Survey of the Old Testament, a series on the Gospels, Acts, the Major Prophets, the Minor Prophets, the Writings (the poetic books), the General Epistles, the Epistles of Paul and Revelation. We will go through the Bible in a set of different ways.

There are different ways to study the Bible. One way is to study the Bible in terms of subject matter. Many of our booklets and the Bible Study Course utilize that. It takes all the scriptures that pertain to a subject and is presented that way. We are going to take another approach in this series. We are going to take it from a standpoint of surveying the book and the subjects that book covers. We are going to take a survey approach.

I am going to go through some material this evening that is introductory. We are going to start with the Books of the Law, then Joshua, Judges, then a harmony of the events contained in Samuel, Kings and Chronicles, ending with the material covered in Ezra and Nehemiah. Then we will cover the transition period and then the Gospels. Later we will come back with material such as the Major Prophets, etc.

Every Bible study you will be told what we are going to cover. You will have two weeks to study these chapters. You will have a standing assignment, and you can read that material. I will hand out questions, and I will go through the answers with you with each of those. You will have questions that will take you through every single book of the Bible. You will have two weeks to cover the material and get the answers. You may come up with questions yourself.

The material of this section of the Bible—the first five books of the Old Testament—are called “the Law” or “the Torah.” “Torah” is a Hebrew word that means “Law.” They are sometimes called “the Books of Moses” or “the Law of Moses.” The Law didn’t originate with Moses, but he was the one God used to deliver the Law. God used Noah as the physical instrument to build the ark, and God used Moses as the physical instrument to deliver the Law—the first authoritative revelation set apart. Just prior to Moses’ death, he delivered the authoritative copy of the Law to the Levites.

Deuteronomy 31:24-26, “So it was, when Moses had completed writing the words of this law in a book, when they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying: ‘Take this Book of the Law, and put it beside the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there as a witness against you.’”

That comprised the very first canonization of Scripture. It also served as a basis for the rest of the Bible because everything else goes back to and derives from those first five books. That is God’s most basic revelation. You can’t understand anything that comes after unless you first understand the beginning.

The other two divisions of the Old Testament, the Prophets and the Writings, are simply expansions of and commentary on the Law. The Prophets tell you what happens when you obey the Law and when you don’t obey—an amplification of the blessings and the curses. Hosea, Joel and other prophets are simply an expansion of the curses in Leviticus 26 and Deuteronomy 28 and the blessings that God’s people are ultimately going to have. Why are those good things going to happen? Why is the whole world going to enjoy a Feast of fat things (Isaiah 25:6)? —Because the whole world will be obeying the law. The Prophets tell you the effect; the Law tells you the cause. The Former Prophets (Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings) show the extent to which the nation obeyed the Law. The Latter Prophets (Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel) projected it on out into the future. Then we have the poetic amplification of the Law—the Psalms or Writings.

Christ came to fulfill the Law—to fill it to the full.

Matthew 5:17, “Do not think that I have come to destroy the Law or the Prophets. I did not come to destroy but to fulfill.” He amplified and expanded the Law in the spiritual. The Gospels, the Acts and the Epistles continue to build upon the Law.

Moses wrote the first five books—the Pentateuch.

Exodus 17:14, “Then the Lord said to Moses, ‘Write this for a memorial in the book and recount it in the hearing of Joshua....’”

Exodus 24:4, “And Moses wrote all the Words of the Lord....” Moses wrote these things because God told him to.

Numbers 33:1-2, “These are the journeys of the children of Israel, who went out of the land of Egypt by their armies under the hand of Moses and Aaron. Now Moses wrote down the starting points of their journeys at the command of the Lord....” Again, we are told that Moses wrote this account and by God’s instruction.

Deuteronomy 31:9, “So Moses wrote this Law and delivered it unto the priests, the sons of Levi, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and to all the elders of Israel.”

The books of the Law themselves testify to Moses’ writings. Other Old Testament writers claim that Moses wrote it. Joshua testifies that Moses wrote it.

Joshua 1:7, “Only be strong and very courageous, that you may observe to do according to all the law, which Moses My servant commanded you....”

The testimony of later writings: King David testifies that Moses wrote it.

I Kings 2:3, “‘And keep the charge of the Lord your God: to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, His commandments, His judgments, and His testimonies, as it is written in the Law of Moses....’”

In the latter part of Kings, it testifies that Moses wrote it.

II Kings 21:8, “‘and I will not make the feet of Israel wander anymore from the land which I gave their fathers—only if they are careful to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law that My servant Moses commanded them.’”

Malachi 4:4, “‘Remember the law of Moses, My servant, which I commanded him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments.’” In the Old Testament, all testify to Moses. The Pentateuch, or Torah, testifies that Moses wrote it and so do other Old Testament writings.

In the New Testament, Jesus Christ Himself claimed that Moses wrote of Him.

Matthew 19:8, “And He said to them, ‘Moses because of the hardness of your hearts permitted you to divorce your wives, but from the beginning it was not so.’” He is quoting from Deuteronomy 24:1.

John 5:45-46, “‘Do not think that I shall accuse you to the Father; there is one who accuses you—Moses, in whom you trust. For if you believed Moses, you would believe Me, for he wrote of Me.’” Jesus said that if you didn’t believe what Moses wrote, then they were not going to believe Him either because what Moses wrote was the basis of the background that led to Him.

John 7:19, “‘Did Moses not give you the law, and yet none of you keep the law?’”

Luke 16:29, “‘Abraham said to him, ‘They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.’”

Verse 31, “‘But he said to him, ‘If they do not hear Moses and the prophets [referring to the Old Testament Scriptures], neither will they be persuaded though one rise from the dead.’”

Luke 24:44, “Then He said to them, ‘These are the words which I spoke to you while I was still with you, that all things must be fulfilled which are written in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning Me.’” Jesus testified of the Law, the Prophets and the Psalms (or Writings).

There is also the external evidence of the books themselves. Some of the very things that the critics used (back in the early part of this century), trying to prove that Moses couldn’t have written the Law, trying to prove that someone wrote it centuries later, has served to enforce that Moses wrote the book of the Law. It has turned out that the more archaeology has uncovered, the more it has shown certain things that were customs and things that were practiced at an earlier time and since forgotten about. Things serve to authenticate the books of the Law and serve to show they were written at the time—not someone writing centuries later. There are details that were not uncovered until recent years about cities that have ceased to exist. No one who wrote later than Moses could have known because they would not have existed. There are details of migrations—details that could not have been invented by an imposter. These things have served to enforce that Moses is the one that wrote the book of the Law.

The book of Genesis is the book of beginnings. It gives the origin of the human family. It gives the origin of the family with whom God made His Covenant and with whom He chose to work.

Genesis 1:1, “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.” God introduces Himself. He did not start the Bible with the Ten Commandments. He started the Bible in the only logical place—in the beginning. He first introduces Himself. What right does He have to tell us what is right and wrong? He is the One who made everything. The God we read of is the Creator. He is the One who brought those things into existence. He created the universe, this planet and human life on this planet. And He created that human life in His own image—setting apart that human life from animal life. Biologically, chemically and physically there is not that much difference between human life and animal life. He made human beings after His likeness. It gives the origin of the different nationalities that comprise the human race and then focuses in on one human family (Abraham) with whom He made a special agreement—a Covenant. Then, He brings his descendants all the way into the land of Egypt. Genesis is the introduction to the whole Bible.

The laws of God were known and understood. We are introduced to the Sabbath right in the beginning.

Genesis 2:2-3, “And on the seventh day God ended His work which He had done, and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had done. Then God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because in it He rested from all His work which God had created and made.”

Joseph knew that it was wrong to commit adultery.

Genesis 39:9, “...‘How then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?’”

Romans 4:15, “...for where there is no Law, there is no transgression.”

It was a sin for Cain to murder Abel.

Genesis 4:7, “If you do well, will you not be accepted? And if you do not do well, sin lies at the door....” You go on through and see that, time after time, the Laws of God were known and understood.

Then we follow with the book of Exodus. It begins with Israel, as the Covenant people, having entered Egypt with great prominence because of Joseph, but moved from this position of prominence to being slaves. Then we have God’s intervention in calling them out of Egypt, giving to them the first codification of God’s Law and establishing His Church—the Congregation of Israel. We have the story of God intervening to bring the people out of the enslavement of this world’s system. That journey was made possible through God’s intervention. God’s Law—the Law—is codified in the book of Exodus (Exodus 20).

Leviticus has as its emphasis to be holy. It was written to the priesthood. They were to teach the people the difference between the holy and the unholy. We are to become perfect, as our Father in heaven is perfect. We are told to become holy, as our God is holy. If we are to become like God, we must be characterized as being holy. God will not dwell in uncleanness. God entered into a covenant relationship with Abraham and then with Israel; they must be a holy people because God is a holy God. The emphasis in the book of Leviticus is to be holy in order that God’s presence might remain among them and that they might remain holy. We will see, as we go through the book of Leviticus, that there are basically seven sections on what it means to be holy.

The ceremonial things were lessons—a schoolmaster—to educate us about Jesus Christ (Galatians 2:24) and to recognize that, in order to come into the presence of God, they had to have sin paid for. Our sins must be paid for in order for us to come into the presence of God. The sacrificial offerings were a type. It showed their need for a Savior, their need for One whose life could pay the penalty. There are many principles in Leviticus all dealing with how to be holy. God will not dwell in the midst of uncleanness. If God would not dwell in the midst of physical uncleanness, how much less would He dwell in spiritual uncleanness? We cannot conduct our lives in such a manner and expect that God would dwell in us and be our God.

Numbers is the account of the wanderings in the wilderness. Let’s notice what the Apostle Paul said.

I Corinthians 10:1-2, “Moreover, brethren, I do not want you to be unaware that all our fathers were under the cloud [under water; water vapors], all passed through the sea, all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea.” They came through the water. In other words, they were surrounded by water. They had it all around them, both sides and on top. They were, in a figurative sense, baptized. They were immersed in water.

Verses 6-7, “Now these things were our examples to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted. And do not become idolaters as were some of them. As it is written, ‘The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.’”

Verses 10-12, “Nor murmur, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer. Now all things happened to them as examples, and they are written for our admonition, on whom the ends of the ages are come. Therefore let him who thinks he stands take heed lest he fall.” These things happened to them for examples. These things are primarily contained in the book of Numbers.

We are right now, in our position of coming out of Egypt, going into the Promised Land. We are going through, figuratively, our forty years in the wilderness. We are the heirs of the world to come. This is not our age, our world. We are in a transition period. Living in this world, we are coming through a wilderness. We have turned our back on Egypt and are going toward the Promised Land. We are not there yet.

Numbers is a very important book. It tells us the things that entangled and trapped the people to whom He had made great promises. Seeing these things, we are able to bypass these pitfalls.

Hebrews 3:7-12, “Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says: ‘Today, if you will hear His voice, do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion, in the day of trial in the wilderness, where your fathers tested Me, proved Me, and saw My works forty years. Therefore I was angry with that generation, and said, “they always go astray in their heart, and they have not known My ways.” So I swore in My wrath, “they shall not enter My rest.”’ Beware, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God.”

Verses 17-19, “Now with whom was He angry forty years? Was it not with those who sinned, whose corpses fell in the wilderness? And to whom did He swear that they would not enter His rest, but to those who did not obey? So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.” We see that they could not enter in because of unbelief. The book of Numbers is the story of that.

To the extent that we can learn the lesson, these lessons set down for our benefit, we don’t have to repeat the same mistakes. The book of Numbers is a very profitable book that enables us to be a holy people unto our God and enables us to become like Him. It shows the pitfalls that we encounter along the way.

“Deuteronomy”—the name means “the second law.” It lays great emphasis on the responsibility of the individual to follow through with His covenant obligation. It serves as a completion of the Law by showing us the ultimate results of obedience and disobedience. Deuteronomy 27 and 28 are an outline of blessings and curses.

Deuteronomy 28:6, “Blessed shall you be when you come in and blessed shall you be when you go out.”

Verses 8-13, “The Lord will command the blessing on you in your storehouses and in all to which you set your hand, and He will bless you in the land which the Lord your God is giving you. The Lord will establish you as a holy people to Himself, just as He has sworn to you, if you keep the commandments of the Lord your God and walk in His ways. Then all peoples of the earth shall see that you are called by the name of the Lord, and they shall be afraid of you. And the Lord will grant you plenty of goods, in the fruit of your body, in the increase of your livestock, and in the produce of your ground, in the land of which the Lord swore to your fathers to give you. The Lord will open to you His good treasure, the heavens, to give the rain to your land in its season, and to bless all the work of your hand. You shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow, and the Lord will make you the head and not the tail; you shall be above only, and not be beneath, if you heed the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you today, and are careful to observe them.”

‘You shall be the head and not the tail. You will set the example, and others will come to you to learn.’

Verses 14-15, “So you shall not turn aside from any of the words which I command you this day, to the right hand or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them. But it shall come to pass, if you do not obey the voice of the Lord your God, to observe carefully all His commandments and His statutes which I command you today, that all these curses will come upon you and overtake you.”

Verses 21-22, “The Lord will make the plague cling to you until He has consumed you from the land which you are going to possess. The Lord will strike you with consumption, with fever, with inflammation, with severe burning fever, with the sword, with scorching, and with mildew; they shall pursue you until you perish.” —All kinds of diseases.

Verse 37, “And you shall become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword among all nations where the Lord will drive you.”

Verse 41, “You shall beget sons and daughters. But they shall not be yours; for they shall go into captivity.”

Verse 43, “The aliens among you shall rise higher and higher above you, and you shall come down lower and lower.” Israel would suffer curses and come to a point that, in the midst of their inheritance, they would be at the bottom and others at the top.

Verse 47, “Because you did not serve the Lord your God with joy and gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things.”

We have the basis for all of prophecy in the conclusion of Deuteronomy. Deuteronomy serves as a re-statement, a reminder, as it serves to put the Law into perspective. It is a book of reminders, just prior to inheritance, by stating that things are a matter of cause and effect.

We have, throughout these first five books, a tremendous amount of material. These things are examples. They serve to introduce to us the true God, to understand God's law, to have it codified for us, to have principles and to have a special relationship with God. They warn of the pitfalls that we are encountering in the Christian life and the basic things we need to understand as we prepare to enter in.

There is so much contained in these first five books. It sets the stage for everything else that comes after—especially Genesis, which is the book of origins. You can't understand science unless you understand the book of Genesis. It is the foundation for knowledge. You can't understand history.

God made of one blood all the nations on the face of the earth (Acts 17:26). All are simply a branch of the human family from one man and his wife; all human beings are derived from that. We are one family. God was ultimately looking forward to a Family that He was going to put together for all eternity.

God is a God of organization and harmony. God's Family, on out into eternity, is not going to be a mass of people getting into each other's way. God's Family will have a work to accomplish, expanding God's government and family on out into the universe. But it has to be done in a systematic way. That is why God programmed diversity into the family. Any organization has departments responsible for different aspects.

We are given the basic material of origins. The Bible is a foundation of knowledge. It contains a foundation on which all knowledge is to be built. Man has the ability to search out and discover, but if we do that apart from God's revelation, then we get off the track. God reveals the basic information.

We are going to spend a little more time in the book of Genesis. God summarizes such vast information in Genesis—one thousand six hundred fifty-six years of human history in simply a matter of a few chapters. The first five or six chapters tell you one thousand six hundred fifty-six years of human history. Then, in some places, God paints in with a broader brush.

For the next Bible study, I want you to read and study the first three chapters of Genesis. I will hand out questions, and I will go through the answers with you on our study of Genesis 1—3.

If you will utilize it, it will be something that will help you deepen your own knowledge of the Word of God and have some deeper insight into this Book by which we are to live as the people of God.

Old Testament Series—Genesis 1—3

We are going to be getting into our study on the book of Genesis, getting, specifically, into the first three chapters of Genesis. We will go through some of the material in the first three chapters. We will also go over and review the Bible study questions that we passed out for this evening, and then I have more to pass out that will be for the next Bible study. One of the things that sometimes comes out is: where did Moses get all the information that is in the book of Genesis? Ever wonder about that? Where did Moses come up with all the information? How did he know some of these things? Did God just supernaturally tell him every word of it or did he get some of it from some other source?

The reality is that there are at least eleven documents, or books, that are included in the book of Genesis that had been preserved from different periods of time. There is at least one that traces all the way back to Adam, himself. It was compiled during his lifetime and was, evidently, preserved on board the ark. Then it came down through the family of Shem and Abraham—right down to being preserved by the family in Egypt. It was a book that Moses would have had access to. We might notice, as we go through, references to that.

To begin with, you might notice in Genesis 5:1, “This is the book of the genealogy of Adam...” Now this is, actually, a document that is referred to—“This is the book...”—and it goes through and gives a detailed account.

You might notice back here in Genesis 2.

Genesis 2:4, “These are the history [Lit. “generations”] of the heavens and the earth when they were created in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens.” A little later we come to the book of the generations of Noah (Genesis 6:9). We find references in Genesis 10.

Genesis 10:1, “Now this is the genealogy of the sons of Noah: Shem, Ham and Japheth...” It goes through and is a document that preserves names and genealogies.

In Genesis 11:27, “This is the genealogy of Terah...” Terah was the ancestor of Abraham. If we were to go through the book of Genesis, we would find, at a later stage, the genealogy of Ishmael in Genesis 25:12. We would find the genealogy of Isaac in Genesis 25:19. Also, in Genesis 11:10, Genesis 25:19, Genesis 36:1 and Genesis 37:2, we find various genealogies.

What it amounts to is that Moses would have had access to a number of records, or books, that in some cases, were simply family genealogical records where certain things were compiled, preserved and maintained in the family that came down. Moses would have had access to it, and it served as a basis for his compilation of much of the early material in the book of Genesis. There were a number of written accounts.

We are not going to get into it this time, but next Bible study we will go into some things about the very origin of writing. You might be surprised to note the man who invented writing. He invented writing with a stylus, a pen, and his name is mentioned in the Bible. We can basically pinpoint approximately the time that the human family began to use writing, and it was, certainly, within the lifetime of Adam. You might be surprised that man is mentioned. I won't tell you where his name is mentioned or who he is, but we will go into that next Bible study. If you're curious, then you might want to be here.

There were a number of written documents—a number of things that were preserved.

We note in Genesis 1:1, “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.” The word for “heaven” is plural. “In the beginning”—there is a lot involved here that is sometimes overlooked and not understood.

Verses 1-3. “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. The earth was without form, and void; and darkness was on the face of the deep. And the spirit of God was hovering over the face of the waters.” This is the way that it reads in the New King James Bible. This period, “In the beginning God”—this beginning that you read of in Genesis 1:1—involves the origin of the very universe, the bringing into existence of physical matter. There was a time when only God existed—the One that we know as God the Father and as Jesus Christ. There was a time when only God existed and God formulated a certain plan. God brought into existence the angelic order (that we read of) prior to the beginning of the physical universe.

Isaiah 57:15, we are told, “...God who inhabits eternity...” That is a dimension that you and I cannot really comprehend because we inhabit time. We have a finite universe that is bounded by distance and time.

Do you realize that prior to the beginning of the physical creation, there was no such thing as time? Time did not exist prior to the bringing into existence the universe. That is kind of a mind-boggling concept, but what is time? Time is measured by the relationship of the heavenly bodies toward one another. Time is defined by the length of time it takes the earth to rotate on its axis. That's a day; twenty-four hours. A year is defined by the length of time it takes the earth to revolve around the sun. Time is based upon the relationship of the physical objects of the universe. When there was no physical universe, there was no time. There was no physical relationship there to define time. There was no such thing as time. After all, God does not inhabit time; God inhabits eternity. Time didn't exist until God brought the physical universe into being. When God brought the physical into being, time began.

God had existed prior to that, and there was a spiritual creation—the angelic order. We know that the angels existed prior to this because we are told in Job 38:7 that when God brought the physical universe into being, the angels sang for joy. The angels couldn't sing for joy unless they were already there; they already existed. There was a creation on that level.

God inhabits eternity, and time had no existence or meaning until God brought forth the physical universe. God took the Spirit essence that flows out from Him—the Spirit that emanates out from God and from God's mind—and brought matter into existence. God is spirit, and His Spirit emanates out from Him. The purest form of energy that originates with God emanates out from the very mind of God.

God performed a miracle. God changed, or transformed, pure spirit energy into matter. God brought matter into existence. We are told, in Hebrew 11:3, that He made the things that we see of things that do not appear—things that are invisible. He made it of His spirit. That is the basic building block.

Man keeps breaking down the atom and keeps trying to divide and sub-divide. What is matter composed of? It is composed of atoms. Then we divide down, and what is the atom composed of? We look at electrons and neutrons and protons. We keep dividing and sub-dividing and see certain things, and they divide things down a little further. If you have ever read some of these things, it's very intriguing things, and they keep dividing it down. Well, what is smaller than that? What comes beyond that? What is the fundamental building block? They will never get to the bottom of it because the bottom of it is spirit.

God transformed pure spirit energy into matter. Which came first, matter or energy? Energy did. It originated from God. Pure spirit energy transformed into matter; the physical universe was brought into being.

Scientists speculate on the idea (and there are various reasons to speculate on that) that it was a period of time, approximately five billion years ago—give or take a billion—that the physical universe was brought into being. They throw around billions as though it was the U.S. government spending dollar or something. Time, when you are talking in terms of billions of years, hasn't any relevance to human beings or human life. It's not a conception of time that human beings can comprehend. That is time only angels can comprehend. God brought into being the physical universe, and it talks about the angels singing for joy. Prior to that, it is pointless to speculate as to how long prior because prior to the beginning of the universe, there was no time. There was no basis of measuring time. Time did not exist because God inhabits eternity. He inhabits a dimension where time didn't exist.

Some of these concepts are a little bit mind-boggling, and we have trouble grasping. We understand things based on what we know and see. Can you imagine trying to explain a television to somebody who had never seen or heard of such a thing? Maybe your father or great-grandfather died prior to the turn of the century or what if someone who died two hundred years ago was suddenly resurrected. How would you explain the television? Would it make any sense to them at all? Is there any way you could explain it, that they could really comprehend the idea, that you have this box; you turn it on and see what's happening on the other side of the world. They're not really people in there, but you're actually seeing this great big ceremony that's going on over in China (which is halfway around the world), and you're seeing it while it's happening. You see all these things, and you see it close up. You see the groups or scenes. You can switch to another channel, and all of a sudden, you're watching somebody in London or someone commenting on what is going on in China while you're sitting there in your living room. That's kind of mind-boggling. We take it for granted because we are familiar with it.

I remember something that very deeply impressed me. I remember exactly where I was at the time—the time when the first men walked on the moon. One of the things that I specifically remember about that evening as a group of us were watching the moon landing on television, we saw the lunar module set down and Neil Armstrong step out and take the step. As we were watching these events live coverage, I stepped outside on the balcony. I looked up and could see the moon. It was a beautiful full moon. Standing there on the balcony of the men's dorm in Pasadena, California, I could look up in the sky and look at the moon suspended, hanging up there. I could look in through the doors, and on the television set, I could see a close-up of men walking around on the moon. That's kind of mind-boggling—looking up there and then looking across the room and seeing a close-up picture of what's actually happening right there. Realize—it's very difficult for us to conceive certain things because they are outside of our realm of experience, in terms of understanding what it means to inhabit eternity. We will understand it when we inhabit eternity because at the resurrection, we will put on immortality. We will step out of this dimension that is bound by time—that dimension of time—and we will step out into eternity. We will put on immortality, and then we will grasp what it means to inhabit eternity in a way that we simply cannot fully fathom right now.

God has created the spirit realm. He has created the angelic beings. There had been training of these angelic beings—instruction, plans—things that were thought out when God brought the physical universe into existence. All of the physical laws that regulate the universe had to be conceived, planned out and defined. The relationship of matter, energy and all of these things had to be thought out and defined, and it was brought into existence.

God took Lucifer and the angels and placed them on this planet earth. God introduced on this planet certain life forms. Instructions were given to Lucifer and the angels under him, in terms of the implementation of God's government. It was an opportunity for them to learn and to practice the exercise of God's government and to bring this earth to a state of preparation for the next phase in God's plan. It was apparent, early-on, that Lucifer began to diverge from God's intent—from the proper exercise of God's government.

We are told in Acts 3:19 (referring to the time after Christ's return), "...so that times of refreshing [KJV, "restitution?"] may come from the presence of the Lord." —A time of restoring. What is it going to be like during the reign of the Messiah?

We are told in Isaiah 11:9, "'They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain....'" This is characteristic of the World Tomorrow. It is characteristic of the way the earth will be administered through the government of God when Jesus Christ is directly administering it.

It is apparent from the geologic record that is not the way Lucifer administered the earth because there is the geologic evidences that very clearly show, at that time, there was violence. You look at certain creatures, and there are the literal remains of violence that they did to one another.

John 8:44, Jesus refers to Satan the devil and he told the Pharisees, "'You are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father you want to do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaks a lie, he speaks from his own resources, for he is a liar and the father of it.'"

He was a liar, and he abode not in the truth—two aspects. He didn't say he was an adulterer from the beginning or that he was a thief from the beginning. It says he was a murderer from the beginning—the spirit of violence. Evidently, from a very early point, Lucifer decided that the way to excellence lay through competition, strife and the "survival-of-the-fittest approach." It was the way of competition, the way of strife, the way that only the survivors would remain. He was convinced that competition was the way to excellence—not cooperation.

God, over a period of time, had the universe come into being—that probably was in the nature of perhaps billions of years. There is nothing in the Bible to at all contradict that. If science wants to say, based on the evidence that can be discerned, that the physical universe came into existence four or five billion years ago, there is nothing in Scripture to contradict that. There is no reason for saying that was not the case. But there was a point when God introduced certain life forms.

Lucifer was given responsibility and he approached his responsibility from his own way. God allowed things to progress to certain points. There were certain points at which God simply eliminated certain forms of life and introduced, suddenly, different forms of life—more complex and more sophisticated forms of life—forms of life that were capable of more things. It was an opportunity for Lucifer and his angels to gain experience—practical experience in government. It was an opportunity for God to see what they would do. God worked with them over a period of time—that probably was in the nature of perhaps billions of years—to instruct them in His ways. God saw that it was not the way that was going to lead to where He wanted to go. Things proceeded to a certain point and God simply stopped the experiment. He eliminated certain forms of life.

Science looks at the geologic record, and they can't understand why certain forms of life, such as the dinosaurs, simply ceased. There was just a point where they ceased. They didn't turn into something else. They didn't evolve into some other form; they simply ceased. And, all of a sudden, there are other forms of life that are extant.

Things proceeded on for a period of time, and during this time, Lucifer became ever increasingly embittered. He began to nurture a spirit of bitterness—a root of bitterness—because God didn't see things his way. He proceeded from a spirit of murder to a spirit of lying and began to lie and slander to the angels under him.

From the state of things, from what was happening and from the forms of life that God had placed on the earth, it became apparent to God that the very next step would be the introduction of creatures made in the very image of God that would be capable of being transformed from matter into spirit as a part of the very Family of God to rule over him. The thought of something such as that was beyond Lucifer. It became apparent to Lucifer that God was not going to allow him to continue doing the things he was doing. And there came a point where Lucifer simply rebelled. You read of it in Ezekiel 28 and Isaiah 14.

In Isaiah 14:13, he said, "...“I will exalt my throne above the stars of God [above the angels]....””

Verse 14, ““I will ascend above the heights of the clouds [this shows that he was below the heights of the clouds]; I will be like the Most High.”” He was thrust back down to this earth (Revelation 12:9).

The result when that occurred, we read of in Genesis 1:2, when it says, “The earth was without form and void....”

The word “was” here in Genesis 1:2 is exactly the same word “became” that is used in Genesis 19:26, where we read of Lot and his wife leaving Sodom and Gomorrah. His wife looked back and she became a pillar of salt. Was Lot's wife always a pillar of salt? No, she became a pillar of salt. The word that is translated “became” is exactly the same word, in the Hebrew, that was translated “was” in Genesis 1:2. “The earth was without form and void.”

The earth was not always without form. God did not create it without form. It became without form, just as Lot's wife became a pillar of salt. “In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. The earth became without form and void.” It became void, which means “empty.” The Hebrew words that are translated “without form” and “void” are “tahu” and “bohu.” The earth became “tohu” and “bohu.” It became without form. It became chaotic, empty and desolate. ‘It became chaotic and desolate’ is another way it can be translated. God did not create the earth in a chaotic, desolate state.

That is made plain in Isaiah 45.

Isaiah 45:18, “For thus says the Lord who created the heavens, who is God, who formed the earth and made it, who has established it, who did not create it in vain, who formed it to be inhabited....”

The word translated “in vain” in Isaiah 45:1 is the Hebrew word “tobu.” It says here God Himself formed the earth. He made and established it. He did not create it “tohu.” Yet when you read in Genesis 1:2, we find that the earth had become “tobu.” But Isaiah 45:18 says God did not create it “tohu”; so, what are we told? ‘In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth but the earth became chaotic.’ God did not create it chaotic. It became “tohu”; God did not create it “tohu.”

I Corinthians 14:33, “For God is not the author of confusion....” He did not create the earth chaotic and desolate. The earth became chaotic and desolate as a result of Satan's rebellion.

The stage was being set, over a period of time, which is simply incomprehensible to us as human beings. It was a period through which God worked with Lucifer and the angels under him and allowed certain things to transpire. God allowed certain influences to be exerted as Lucifer was adamant that his way of competition and survival-of-the-fittest approach was the way to excellence. He was convinced that it was the way that would produce something that would have good results. God allowed certain things to take place to demonstrate that this kind of survival-of-the-fittest mentality did not lead to excellence in the true sense. It led to strife. It led to a planet being filled with violence.

When you hear the term “survival of the fittest” used in an evolutionary context, realize that the survival of the fittest does not, at all, explain the arrival of the fittest. The fittest may have survived, but from whence did they arrive?

Where did they come from? The fact that they survived is irrelevant. The point is: where did they come from? Where did they originate? Their survival does not explain their origin. Certainly, the most fit survived, but that doesn't tell you where they came from in the beginning. God created the heavens and the earth, but the earth became without form. It became void, chaotic and desolate and it became dark.

Notice the description in v. 2, "...darkness was on the face of the deep..." What was the result of Satan's rebellion? —Absolute pitch-black darkness. There was chaos, desolation, destruction, darkness and there was death. Those were the results of Satan's way.

In the aftermath of Satan's rebellion (his being thrown back down to the earth and the destruction that took place), light, as we know it, simply ceased on the planet. Everything was flooded and overwhelmed with water. There was absolute pitch-black darkness. Undoubtedly, there would have been gigantic volcanic eruptions and all kinds of debris, poisoned gasses, fumes that spewed into the atmosphere, and there was a thick poisonous pall that hung over the planet. Everything was flooded and covered with water. Instead of an atmosphere, there was nothing but pitch-black darkness. If you were standing on the face of the earth, you couldn't see your hand in front of your face. There was a thick black pall, noxious, poisonous gasses and debris that had been thrown into the atmosphere until all light had been blocked out.

When God stepped in, God, through the power of His Spirit, began a process of refashioning and molding the face of the earth through the period of one week. The first day was the starting point.

Verse 3, "Then God said, 'Let there be light'; and there was light." —The first thing that has to occur. There are spiritual lessons we learn. There is a reason why God progressed in the way that He did.

Realize! That's where Satan's way always led. It's where it led physically. It led to destruction, it led to darkness. Satan's way is characterized by darkness. Even from a physical and human realm, there are things that people like to do under cover of darkness that they would simply not think of doing in the bright light of day. It's not an accident that certain places are not noted for being well lit. You don't expect to go into a bar and expect to have the bright light of day or a bright, shining atmosphere.

John 3:19, "...men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil." They like the lights turned down really dim and low because they may be up to something that they wouldn't be doing out in the middle of the noonday sun—trying to pull some of those "shenanigans." It would be a little uncomfortable to be out—standing on the street corner in the bright light of noonday sun—trying to pull some of the shenanigans that they would try to get by with under cover of darkness in some very dim, secluded spot. Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil.

God started with, "let there be light." The very first thing that occurred was some of the debris and things that were extant in the atmosphere were cleared out to where light could penetrate to the surface. It was still as though it was a heavy overcast, cloudy day, or a foggy day would be a better comparison. It would have been as though it were a very foggy day. The poison and the debris were cleared out of the atmosphere, and it was simply a thick water vapor—thick fog—that remained.

You can travel on a foggy day (sometimes you cross the Atchafalaya, the swamp, between Lafayette and Baton Rouge), and the fog can be so thick, but you can tell whether it is daylight or dark because light penetrates. You can tell that it is daytime, but that's about all that you can say about it. You can be in a fog so thick that you can just barely see past the end of your car.

God said, "Let there be light" That was the first thing. God made that distinction. He cleared the atmosphere to where light was apparent and it now made possible the distinction between day and night. If it is dark all the time, you can't tell when the day starts and the night stops or vice versa. This was the first day.

The second day God said, v. 6: "...Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters..." "Firmament" is an old English word that we don't commonly use; it simply means "an expanse." It could be used to refer to anything. You can beat metal and make an expanse of metal, or you could stretch a tent and make an expanse of canvas. "Firmament" simply means "a big something that is spread out," and in this context—the sky. If you look it up in a dictionary (even a Webster's plain unabridged dictionary) the word "firmament" is simply an old English word that refers to the sky—the area of the earth's atmosphere. The Hebrew word that is translated firmament is simply a word that means "expanse." It means "something spread out." God made an expanse in the midst of the waters, and He divided waters from the waters (v. 6). In other words, the thick fog was lifted.

Now there was a thick fog cover and water, but there was an expanse in-between. There was atmosphere now—an expanse in-between. It was not just a continuous pea-soup fog that existed. God cleared that out of the way and made an expanse in between.

Then on the third day, God brought forth dry land. God brought forth the continents. When He brought forth the continents, it caused the waters to recede from the continents (vv. 8-9).

Verse 11, “Then God said, ‘Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb that yields seed, and the fruit tree that yields fruit according to its kind.’” Notice that when life was introduced, it was to reproduce after its own kind. It didn’t evolve from one thing into something else. It reproduced after its kind. Now, obviously, there is variety within a kind. We look around in this room, and we look at human beings. We are all human beings and ultimately the same family.

Acts 17:26, “...‘made from one blood every nation of men to dwell on the face of the earth...’” But, look around at all the different sizes, colors and shapes—all the variety. Yet we are all human beings. Eve’s very name means “living” because she was the mother of all living. All human beings come from Adam and Eve, but God built in to where there could be variety.

Look at various plants. Some of you have been involved in agriculture and realize there are different breeds, maybe different breeds of cattle. Strains maybe developed of certain plants, but it’s still what it was. You can have a wide variety of dogs, but they are still dogs. They don’t turn into cats or something else; they stay dogs. You can even breed a wide variety of cattle. You can have shorthorns, longhorns and polled varieties. You can have a wide variety, but they are still cows. None of them turn into horses, camels, zebras or something else.

Life reproduces after its own kind. There’s room for variety, and there can be specialization, whether you are talking about roses or different varieties of sugarcane. There is room for variety, but it still reproduces after its kind. There are bounds beyond which it simply doesn’t go. It doesn’t change from one kind into another. You simply cannot believe the Genesis record and believe in evolution because evolution implies that you have a progression of life with one kind developing from another kind. It says here that it brings forth after his kind. God brought forth the dry land and plant life into existence on the third day.

Then on the fourth day, Genesis 1:14-16, “Then God said, ‘Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs and seasons, and for days and years; and let them be for lights in the firmament of the heavens to give light on the earth’; and it was so. Then God made two great lights: the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night. He made the stars also.”

The word that is translated “made” in Genesis 1:16 is a totally different word than is used in Genesis 1:1 when it says God “created.” The term that is used here that is translated “made” simply means “God set two great lights.” He appointed two great lights. This is not an account of the creation of the sun and the moon. God created the sun and the moon when He created the heavens and the earth. That’s a part of the heavens. If God was just making the sun, the moon and the stars—well, what were the heavens that He created way back in the beginning?

We started off with total darkness and all kinds of debris and noxious, poisonous gasses that just absolutely covered everything. It was thick pea soup that contained so many contaminants and foreign particles that there was simply no light that could penetrate the surface of the earth. The first thing God did was remove the debris, and then it was just like you were in a thick fog. The next thing He did was to remove the fog; now you had a thick cloud cover and water, but you had an expanse of open air in-between. Then He brought forth the continents. He caused the water to recede to where the continents appeared and plant life appeared on the land. Then the next thing He did was to clear away this thick cloud cover to where, now, not only was light visible from the surface of the earth, but you could clearly distinguish the sun and the moon and stars. Also, evidently, at this time there was something else that occurred.

What is it that gives us the seasons? What are the seasonal variations? That is based on the earth’s revolution around the sun. If you look at a globe you will find that globes, set on a stand, are always set at a tilt. It is always set at exactly the same tilt. That is known as the earth’s axis, which just simply means an imaginary line. If you somehow could step out into space, you would find that the earth is aligned and hangs out there in a particular way. The tilting of the earth gives us seasons. God had in mind a certain seasonal configuration that was to take place involving the southern and northern hemisphere.

He had in mind a plan from the very beginning. God's Holy Days outline God's plan. God had His plan involved before He ever brought this into being. He didn't sanctify the seventh day because He worked really hard, and it took Him six days to finish, and it just so happened that the seventh day He rested. If it had taken Him a little longer, He would have rested on the eight or ninth day. If He had been a little faster, maybe He could have gotten things done earlier and rested on the fifth day. It's not just an accident. It didn't just happen that He rested on the seventh day because it just kind of came up that way.

God ordered what He did during creation week. He built to a climax on the sixth day so that He would rest on the seventh because He had in mind a seven-thousand year plan and illustrated it here with the seven-day week. He inaugurated a seven-day week to give to man the outline of His plan. Before He ever started, He had in mind a plan that we find outlined in the Holy Days.

In Revelation 13:8, for instance, it talks about Christ, "...the Lamb of God slain from the foundation of the world." What does that mean? It means that in God's plan there was a Passover. God had a plan outlined. He knew what was going to happen. It was important that seasons be as they are.

One of the things that science can demonstrate is that the earth's axis has not always been as it is now. They know it has been different because the areas where the earth's axis penetrates—the areas that are the Polar Regions today—are frigid. There is no way those regions can be anything but frigid because those are the areas with the least amount of direct sunlight. It's just a matter of the way the planet is tilted. But it's apparent from things that have been discovered in Antarctica and other places, the earth's axis has not always been the way it is. There are areas in the Polar Region that at one time were fairly tropical that are now frozen wastes.

God had in mind a plan. He knew where His plan was going to center, in terms of geography—the Middle East in the northern hemisphere. All of these things were thought out. God already knew where the tribes of Israel were going to be. Do you think God was surprised to find out that all the oil wound up over in the Middle East? You think that was an accident? God designed that would be the Middle East. That's where He wanted attention directed at the end time. God had it all thought through. He knew where He was going to end up before He ever started.

In Isaiah 46:9-10, God declared the end from the beginning.

Some of you have been in construction. If you set out to build a very involved building, you wouldn't have somebody just dump some lumber and blocks. You get out there and somebody says, 'What are you going to build?' And you say, 'Well, I don't know. I will just kind of start hammering some things together and see what evolves.' I'd hate to see the building that would develop. You don't just kind of dump all the materials out and randomly start hammering things together and hope that something kind of evolves. The more sophisticated and complex a building is, the more time it takes. In some cases, architects spend years designing all these things, making models, etc. The more elaborate and involved it is—before they do the first thing—the more it has to be designed and every detail figured out. How you are going to do this; what are you going to do there, and all the various things have to be designed and thought through. God knew where He was going to be in the end before He ever started in the beginning.

Here, in Genesis 1:14, it says, "...let them be for signs and seasons, and for days and years.'" The earth's orbit was ordered to be exactly the way that it is. The tilt of the axis was changed. God wanted the northern hemisphere and the southern hemisphere to have their present configuration, with the Middle East having the configuration in terms of climate. God wanted a progression of seasons with the spring, summer, fall and winter that would illustrate His plan. There is a progression of the seasons. The northern hemisphere was to illustrate the plan and purpose God was going to work out because that was the area where He was working. It would be centered—starting originally with Israel—there in the Middle East, which is in the northern hemisphere.

You don't get the same picture in the southern hemisphere where they have the Feast of Tabernacles in the spring and Passover in the fall. Their seasons are reversed. You simply don't get, from nature around you, the same idea. Spring is a time of new growth, new beginnings. The first month of spring, "Abib" means "green ears" or "new growth." God has set and ordered this to where the proper seasonal variations were designed and set at this time. It was appointed and set at this time—not created.

There were modifications that were made in terms of the length of time for the rotation of the earth on its axis, a revolution of the earth around the sun, the orbit—any adjustment that needed to be made because of things that had occurred during Satan's rebellion. The sun, stars and moon were all readily visible now from the face of the earth.

On the fifth day, God brought forth all of the sea life—the moving creatures that have life. Look at v. 20 (KJV), "...the moving creatures that have life...."

—The moving creatures. The word "creature" is "nephesh." The word "moving" is "sherets." In Hebrew it means "wiggling" or "moving"—the "sherets nephesh"—the wiggling souls. "Nephesh" is the Hebrew word for "soul." God breathed into Adam the breath of life, and Adam became a living soul (2:7). "Soul" is exactly the same word (nephesh) that is used in v. 20. If a soul (nephesh) is immortal, then fish have one, too. And not only fish, but all kinds of little wiggling creatures. God brought forth the sea life and the flying creatures (vv. 20-21). He blessed them and told them to reproduce to replenish the earth (v. 22).

Then on the sixth day, God began introducing all the land animals—all of the creatures on earth—and all of these were to bring forth after its kind (vv. 24-25). It is emphasized that life begat like life. They brought forth after their own kind.

Verse 26, "Then God said, 'Let us make man in Our image, according to Our likeness....'" Not after the animal kind (the monkey or cow or cat or dog kind) or any other kind but after Our kind, after Our image, after Our likeness. Man was made in the outward shape and similitude of God, and man was made with the potential to have God's very nature and character. Man was given dominion (v. 26). He was given rulership. Man was given characteristics of God, and not only that, he was made to become God. He was given responsibility and rulership.

Verse 27, "So God created man in His own image; in the image of God He created him; male and female created He them." The term "man" here is the generic term. It means "mankind" or "human beings"—male and female.

Verse 28, "...God said to them, 'Be fruitful and multiply; fill the earth and subdue it; have dominion over....'" They were to exercise responsibility.

Then instruction is given about diet, concerning the things that they were to eat (vv. 29-30). This concluded the sixth day.

Genesis 2:2, "And on the seventh day God ended His work which He had done, and He rested on the seventh day...." He created the Sabbath on the seventh day.

Verse 3, "Then God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it...."

There is a progression through seven days. God worked six days and rested the seventh. He set it apart. He sanctified it. He blessed it. He hallowed it. He instructed man, 'You can work six days, but you rest on the seventh because that's Mine. That belongs to Me.' That was to typify God's whole plan of allowing mankind six, one-thousand year days, but reserving that seventh one-thousand year day for Himself.

We have a summary in chapter 1.

One thing I might mention.

We noted in v. 26, "Let Us make man...." The word for God in Genesis 1:1 is the Hebrew word "ELOHIM." The "IM" ending in Hebrew is a plural ending. Just as we use "s" in English, the "IM" ending is a plural ending. God (ELOHIM) consisted of more than one being.

John 1:1-3, "In the beginning was the Word, the Word was with God, the Word was God. He was in the beginning with God. All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made."

Verse 14, "The Word became flesh and dwelt among us...." —The Word, Jesus Christ. He was in the beginning with God the Father, and He also was God.

Genesis 1:1, "In the beginning God [ELOHIM]...."

Verse 26, "Then God [ELOHIM] said, 'Let Us make man in Our image....'"

I will give you something interesting on that. You are familiar with the statement that Jesus made in Matthew 27 when He was hanging there being crucified. Remember what He said as He hung there? —Some of His very last words.

Matthew 27:46, "...Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani,' that is, 'My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?'" Remember that? It quotes it in the original Aramaic (the language that He spoke) and then gave the translation into Greek. We have it translated into English, but even in the New King James Bible, it preserves the exact quotation that He said in Aramaic. Aramaic is akin to Hebrew.

One of the things that is very interesting to note is that the term that is translated God—"My God, My God"—"Eli, Eli" is the singular form. Throughout the Old Testament you don't find the singular form used. It's always Elohim, the plural. When Jesus addressed the Father, He didn't say "Elohim, Elohim, lama sabachthani," because it wasn't plural. Since one of the two that comprised God was on earth speaking to the other who was in heaven, He used the singular, “Eli.” It’s an interesting term and one of the things that can demonstrate that the plural form is used in Genesis 1. And that doesn’t have to be limited to two. We can compare it in the New Testament, when Christ addressed the Father. He never used the plural. He used the singular, which shows that there were only two. If you have plural and you take out one, that leaves you singular. Then, it’s one and one is two. That’s kind of simple to figure.

Genesis 2 is a detailed account of God’s creation of man.

Genesis 2:4 (a document), “This is the history [Lit. “generations”] of the heavens and the earth when they were created...” It gives a detailed account.

Verses 7-9, “And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living being. The Lord God planted a Garden eastward in Eden, and there He put the man whom He had formed. And out of the ground the Lord God made every tree grow that is pleasant to the sight and good for food. The tree of life was also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.”

There were two trees in the midst of this garden: the tree of life and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. We read of the tree of life in other places such as Ezekiel and Revelation. At the end of the book of Revelation, you read of the tree of life that is going to be there.

Revelation 22:1-3, “And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the middle of the street, and on either side of the river, was the tree of life, which bore twelve fruits, each tree yielding its fruit every month. And the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse...” Notice in Revelation 22, you have what answers to Genesis 2 and 3. We read of man being cut off from God in Genesis 3:23-24; in Revelation 22, we read of man completely reconciled to God. In Genesis 3:24, we read of man being denied access to the tree of life; in Revelation 22, we read of man being restored to access to the tree of life.

Revelation 22:14, “...that they may have the right to the tree of life...” God placed these literal trees to symbolize certain things.

Genesis 2:9, “...and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.” The word “knowledge” carries with it the connotation of experience. When man partook of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, by the very act of reaching out and taking what God told him not to take, he had experienced evil. He had experienced something that he wasn’t supposed to do or experience.

The word “knowledge” is kind of an interesting term. It’s the same word that is used when it says that Adam knew his wife and she conceived. It has to do with more than simply an academic thing. He didn’t look her up in the encyclopedia and say, ‘Yeah, that’s the woman alright.’ That’s not what that means. The connotation of the word in Hebrew has to do with experience. It goes beyond just simply an academic knowledge. Man experienced good and evil. He became involved with good and evil by partaking of this, by doing what God told him not to do.

God made the woman (Eve) and presented her to Adam.

Before we go too much further, I’d like to go back and comment on the questions. Some of them we have commented upon.

Questions

1. Give the Hebrew name for “God” in Genesis 1:1 and explain its significance.

The Hebrew name for God is Elohim, and the significance is that it shows that God consists of more than one individual because it is the plural form.

2. What would be a better translation in the first part of v. 2?

It is the fact that the earth became without form. It became void. It had not always been that way. God did not create it that way. It became that way.

3. Cite at least one other scripture elsewhere in the Bible that proves whether or not the earth was created formless and void.

Isaiah 45:18, “...God created the earth not in vain...” –Not “tohu.” You could quote I Corinthians 14:33 that, “God is not the author of confusion.”

4. What is the meaning of the term “firmament”? It literally means “an expanse.” The Hebrew word that is translated “firmament” means “an expanse.” Firmament refers basically to the sky—to an open area or an expanse.

5. Explain the meaning of Genesis 1:7.

God made the firmament and divided the waters. In other words, He separated the clouds (fog) from the waters that were covering the earth. The pea-soup fog disappeared—it lifted—and now you had clouds and water and an expanse of sky in-between.

6. Does Genesis 1:14-19 mean that the sun and the moon were not created until the fourth day of creation week? Explain the significance of these verses.

Genesis 1:14-19 doesn't mean that the sun and moon were created the fourth day. That was created in the beginning, probably billions of years before. What you read in Genesis 1:14-19 is referring to (we went into detail)—it is plain—that they were appointed or set in their present orbits, and things were arranged to produce the seasonal variations in the way that we have them today, as well as the cloud (fog) cover being cleared to make the sun, moon and the stars very easily visible from the face of the earth.

7. What is the Hebrew word for “soul” and what is its significance?

The Hebrew word for “soul” is “nephesh,” and its significance is the fact that it does not have any connotation of immortality. The word “soul” in the Hebrew is “nephesh,” and “nephesh” does not refer to immortality. In Genesis 1:20, it's used to refer to fish. They have a soul, too? If Adam became a living soul, well God said, “Let the waters bring forth the sheret nephesh (the wiggling souls) that have life.” All these little wiggling souls came forth. Somebody might get all “buggy” if they go back to Ezekiel and read about all the fish being resurrected. Remember a couple of Sabbaths ago, we went through what's going to happen when the pure water goes out, and how all these fish are going to be resurrected. That doesn't mean they are going to have immortal souls and go to heaven when they die—when you eat them or something like that. “Nephesh” just refers to a creature.

8. What does the term “an help meet for him” mean?

God said in Genesis 2:18, “It is not good that man should be alone. I will make him a help meet for him.” In other words, a “helper” that is exactly compatible to him. One rendering of the Hebrew is to surround him exactly—in other words, someone who is exactly compatible. ‘I am going to make him a helper that exactly fits.’ God did not make men and women to be exactly alike. He made them to fit together mentally, emotionally and physically. They mutually complement one another. That's the implication here.

Satan wants and desires people to be frustrated. He hates humanity. He wants people frustrated. One of the great lies that has permeated our western world is the fact that, ‘Women, you have to be just like a man. You have to get out and act like a man, dress and act like a man, walk and talk like a man, function as a man in a man's world, compete like a man.’ God didn't make men and women to be exactly alike. He made them to complement one another—to fit together. He made “a help” suitable for, and exactly compatible with, Adam. God made somebody that just exactly fit with Adam as a partner, as a helper. God didn't make somebody that was exactly like Adam; God made somebody that exactly fit with Adam—and there is a difference.

The only way that any of us are truly happy is when we are fulfilling the role for which God designed us. When we try to fulfill the role that Satan tries to hoist off on us as a substitute for what God designed, all we're going to have is frustration. That's one of the reasons the whole western world is so bogged down in frustration, tension and stress because male and female is at the basis of the family relationship. When you destroy a concept of male and female—in proper relationships of male and female—you destroy any basis of understanding of what a family is and how it ought to function. When you destroy the family and the basis by which it ought to function, you deprive man of that which is unique on the human level and a picture of what's on the God level.

Animals don't have families. They reproduce, but they don't have families. They don't establish a family. A while back (a year or two ago), my cat had kittens, and I gave one of the kittens to my brother. If we go there and our cat is with us, our cat and his cat aren't glad to see each other. It's not “old homecoming” where they have to sit down, and it's a son and Mom and ‘It's good to see you again.’ They don't want anything to do with each other. There's no family relationship. Animals have a certain nurturing instinct when the young are small. They nurture and protect them, but they get grown up and go their way. There's not some family relationship that's established, and they come back and say, ‘Glad to see you Mom and Dad.’ There's no concept of that. That's unique to human beings, and Satan desires, desperately, to destroy that.

9. Who spoke the words recorded in Genesis 2:24? Prove.

God did, or to be more literally correct, Jesus Christ was the member of the God Family that spoke this. “Therefore shall a man leave father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall be one flesh.”

You can prove that by going to Matthew 19:4-5, “And He answered and said to them, ‘Have you not read that He who made them at the beginning “made them male and female,” and said, “For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife and the two shall become one flesh?”’”

If you just read it in Genesis 2, you might think that Adam said these words. But you can clearly show from what Jesus said in Matthew 19 that this is what God Himself said. This is the record of the first wedding ceremony. God presented Eve to Adam, and He instructed them. That’s why we follow a basic format from Scripture at the time of the wedding. God explained what marriage was to Adam, and we ought to understand something about marriage just from reading this. If somebody wants to know how many wives God thought a man should have, how many did He make for Adam? He didn’t present Adam with a harem. He didn’t make half a dozen—take your choice; rotate around. He didn’t create one woman and a bunch of men. He created one man and one woman. God clearly defined as to what He intended in terms of marriage and He instructed Adam about it. He gave them an explanation.

10. What does this tell us about God’s will concerning marriage?

It tells us that God intends one man and one woman to love each other, to establish a home, to live together and to become one—until death do them part. Anything else is going to involve sin somewhere along the line. It clearly shows in Matthew 19 where Jesus quoted this scripture when the Pharisees wanted to argue and “wrangle” about divorce. They wanted to “tangle Him up,” arguing about a particular verse in Deuteronomy.

Matthew 19:4-5, “And He answered and said to them, ‘Have you not read that He who made them at the beginning made them male and female,’ and said, ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh.’”

We are told in Genesis 2:25, “And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and they were not ashamed.” From what source did they learn a sense of shame and guilt about sex and about their own bodies? Did they get it from God? No.

God explained to them, and He told them to multiply and replenish the earth. I think He went into a little more detail than that because I think a certain amount of explanation would have been called for. The explanation God gave when He presented Eve to Adam—He explained about marriage. He told them that they were to cleave together. They were to become one flesh. In other words, God gave them instruction about sex. He explained to them what it was all about. He explained to Adam why he was having all these sensations and feelings that he didn’t quite understand, and the same with Eve. He explained to them what was going on.

11. What was the first recorded lie? What is its significance?

Genesis 3:4, “And the serpent said to the woman, ‘You shall not surely die.’” —The first recorded lie.

The devil said, Genesis 3:1, “...And he said to the woman, ‘Has God indeed said, “You shall not eat of every tree of the garden?”’” The serpent said, ‘God said you can’t have any of the trees.’

Verses 2-3, “And the woman said to the serpent, ‘We may eat the fruit of the trees of the garden; but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God has said, “You shall not eat it, nor shall you touch it, lest you die.”’” Eve said, ‘Sure we can. We can have them all, except this one. God said, “don’t eat of this one, don’t touch it and don’t do anything with it, lest you die.”’

Verse 4, “And the serpent [devil] said to the woman, ‘You shall not surely die.’” That was a lie.

Eve was deceived (II Corinthians 11:3). She decided that the way to find out whether the devil was telling the truth or not was to try what he suggested and see if it worked. That’s the reverse. Instead of trying what the devil suggests to see if it works, why not try what God suggests. God doesn’t say concerning tithing, ‘Don’t tithe and see if you are cursed.’

He says, Malachi 3:10, “‘Bring all the tithes into the storehouse...and prove me now in this,’ says the Lord of hosts, ‘If I will not open for you the windows of heaven and pour out for you such blessing that there will not be room enough to receive it.’” You prove God by doing what God says. That’s the way you set out to do it. That’s what Eve should have done, but she took the devil’s word. She performed an experiment.

12. From what source did Adam and Eve learn a sense of shame and guilt about sex and about their bodies?

There was nothing God told them that made them embarrassed or ashamed. There was no sense of shame that they got from God's instructions, very likely, late on a Friday afternoon or evening. The instruction they got from God just at the conclusion of creation or just at the beginning of the Sabbath marked the beginning of their marriage—of their union as husband and wife. There was nothing that gave them a sense of shame from what God said.

But a little later, we find a sense of shame that entered in—a sense that something was dirty, something was bad. They were trying to hide—hide from one another and hide from God. Where did they get it? The only other one that is introduced on the scene between Genesis 2:25 and Genesis 3:9-11 (the point where we find them hiding) is the devil. So it's a pretty good conclusion. Where did they get the sense of shame? They got it from the devil. He was a liar and the father of a lie. He took a very subtle form. He came along, and he was "peddling his wares."

I will refer you to the section in Mr. Armstrong's book, The Missing Dimension in Sex. There is a chapter, "Where did this sense of shame arise?" He goes through this account in Genesis 3 very clearly. He goes in great details and explains about the relationship, of the sense of shame and guilt connected with sex. He ties it in with the pagan concept of the immortality of the soul and goes back to Genesis 3. I would simply refer you to that section of the Missing Dimension as a very detailed commentary of this account that explains what happened.

13. Explain Genesis 3:15.

"And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her Seed; He shall bruise your head, you shall bruise His heel." The "Seed of woman," in the ultimate sense, refers to Jesus Christ. It's interesting. It's referred to as the Seed of woman because He was born of a female parent but not of a human male parent. The enmity was to be put between Satan and his followers and Jesus Christ.

Jesus said to certain ones in John 8:44, "You are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father you will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaks a lie, he speaks from his own resources, for he is a liar and the father of it."

What are we shown here? We are shown that those who are of the seed of the serpent—those who are of their father the devil, those who were the adherents of Satan's way—ultimately sought to destroy Jesus the Messiah. They very temporarily seemed to triumph over Him. They put Him to death, but He triumphed over death. He is going to destroy death and sin and completely triumph over and put away Satan. You destroy a serpent by crushing its head. The sense of it is, 'I am going to put enmity there.' The ultimate sense of it is there are two ways of life. Culminating in Jesus the Messiah, the Seed of woman will triumph over Satan and his followers. Even though He may be wounded by them, He will crush them. They wound Him, but He crushes them. 'You will bruise His heel, but He will crush your head.'

14. Cite a verse that proves that all human beings who have ever lived trace their ancestry back to Adam and Eve.

Genesis 3:20, "Adam called his wife's name Eve [Hebrew, "chavvah"] because she was the mother of all living." "Chavvah" means "life."

Acts 17:26, "And He made from one blood every nation of men to dwell on the face of the earth...." All human beings trace their ancestry back to Adam and Eve.

15. What did the tree of the knowledge of good and evil signify?

It signified man's way—the way that man has pursued, the way of human experience, the way of experimentation, of trying—for man had a choice. There were two trees. God expelled Adam and Eve because they were not going to be given access to the tree of life. The tree of life certainly symbolized something. It evidently was a literal tree, and that tree is going to be readily available.

This is a very crucial area. We are going to spend a little time on this part because beginnings are crucial. This has to do with the foundation this world's society is based on. There is a great deal of information packed in here. Genesis 4-6 summarizes one thousand six hundred fifty years in a matter of three chapters. Approximately one-quarter of human history occurred prior to the flood. Genesis 7-9 gives details surrounding the flood.

As we focus in on this section, here in Genesis, there are a number of things helpful for us to realize. In addition to the Biblical account, we have certain traditions and history. Josephus was a contemporary to the Apostle Paul. He lived during that time. One of the reasons his account is so important is that there were records preserved in the temple—historical documentation preserved through the priestly family—that were burned up during the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. The only account we have of this is through Josephus. What we gain from him is the understanding that the priests had of these accounts.

We have tradition, the stories preserved by other nations. All nations have in common the fact that they all derive from the family of Noah. All nations, all over the world, have a certain tradition of the flood.

During this period of time we are covering this evening, civilization was based primarily in Egypt. The history of the pre-flood world centers in Egypt. One of the things that we are going to find is that the world's civilization is primarily derived from Cain, and that shouldn't be a surprise. Who is the god of this world?

In Genesis 3:1-8, Adam and Eve had listened to Satan. They had performed an experiment. They checked it out and found out for themselves. While Adam knew better, he didn't do better. This society is good and evil. Man's civilization is a mixture. It is a poisonous mixture. It is a mixture of truth and error, and it is a fatal mixture. If everything about it were evil, then people could, perhaps, see through that more clearly. They chose to follow the best that man could come up with.

Adam and Eve were expelled from the Garden, and God cut off access to the Garden. The Garden was destroyed in the flood. The Cherubim were there for about one-quarter of human history.

Genesis 4:1, "Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain, and said, 'I have gotten a man from the Lord.'" Commentators don't understand it. Eve had been told a short time earlier (3:15) that there would be the promised Seed of woman who would come forth as the Savior; the Redeemer. She thought her first-born son was that seed. Cain grew up with this attitude. This was how Cain viewed himself. The word "Cain" means "get"; that was his way. The way of Cain was the way of get.

Verses 2-5, "Then she bore again, this time his brother Abel [may indicate that they were twins]. Now Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground. And in the process of time it came to pass that Cain brought an offering of the fruit of the ground to the Lord. [Notice what happened] Abel also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of their fat. And the Lord respected Abel and his offering, but He did not respect Cain and his offering. And Cain was very angry and his countenance fell."

Verse 3, "In the process of time..." or "At the end of the days..."—The time of the harvest. At this time, Cain brought of the fruit of the ground—not the firstfruits. Abel brought of the firstlings of the flock. It shows a fundamental difference in attitude.

In Genesis 3:21, God took an animal and made garments from those animal skins. Undoubtedly, God explained certain things to them about that. How did they know about sacrifices? When He slaughtered those animals that would have been the occasion to explain that "without the shedding of blood there was no remission of sins" (Hebrews 9:22)?

That looked forward to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. God introduced that concept to mankind. Abel brought a sin offering. He recognized that he was a sinner and had a right attitude. God was pleased with Abel's offering. Cain simply brought "something," and he didn't bring it in the right attitude.

Genesis 4:2, "...Cain was a tiller of the ground." Cain used improper farming methods. He forced the ground—probably the slash-and-burn method—with short-term gain and didn't worry about the long-term results. Cain didn't bring the best and didn't bring a sin offering. God was pleased with Abel's offering, but He was not pleased with Cain's.

Verses 6-7, "So the Lord said to Cain, 'Why are you angry? And why has your countenance fallen? If you do well, will you not be accepted? And if you do not do well, sin lies at the door. And its desire is for you, but you should rule over it.'"

He said, 'Why are you in a bad attitude? If you do well, don't you think that I would accept you? And if you don't do well, sin lies at the door. Cain, you have got to overcome. If you do what you are supposed to do, I will accept you the same as I accepted Abel. You have to recognize that sin lies at the door. If you don't overcome you are going to fall into something that will be very destructive to you.' Cain didn't take the instructions.

Verse 8, "Now Cain talked with Abel his brother and it came to pass when they were in the field that Cain rose against Abel his brother and killed him." He probably told him, 'You got me in trouble. You made me look bad.' We see our problems as what someone else did. 'I wouldn't have looked so bad if you hadn't looked so good.' He must not have been corrected very much. Spoiled! One who could do no wrong—Cain viewed himself this way. He wanted his own way and, undoubtedly, had gotten his way far too much. He murdered Abel.

Verse 9, "Then the Lord said to Cain, 'Where is Abel your brother?' And he said, 'I do not know. Am I my brother's keeper?'" God simply asked to see what Cain would say. He wants to know how we will respond. Ever call your kids in? You already know, but you want to hear their response. Cain was going to try and bluff his way through.

Verse 10, "And He said, 'What have you done? The voice of your brother's blood cries out to Me from the ground.'"

Verses 11-13, "'So now you are cursed from the earth which has opened its mouth to receive your brother's blood from your hand. When you till the ground, it shall no longer yield its strength to you [I am going to put you out of the farming business]. A fugitive and a vagabond you shall be on the earth.' And Cain said to the Lord, 'My punishment is greater than I can bear!'"

'Woe is me!' Cain, when confronted, denied knowing anything about it. Then he immediately began to feel sorry for himself. 'Poor me! You are picking on me. My punishment is greater than I can bear.' Notice, his whole approach was of concern for self. 'You are being too hard on me.' No sorrow for what he had done.

Verse 14, "'Surely you have driven me out this day from the face of the ground; I shall be hidden from your face; I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond on the earth and it will happen that everyone who finds me will kill me.'"

—"...everyone who finds me will kill me." It would only take one.

Verse 15, "And the Eternal said to him, 'Therefore, whoever kills Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him sevenfold.' And the Lord set a mark on Cain, lest anyone finding him should kill him." —A marker.

The origin of the races has nothing to do with the mark of Cain. God is the author of different races. God originated the races. Some have been cursed or blessed for their actions. They have gotten results, whether blessings or curses, for their actions. The whole human race fell in line with the way of Cain, and as a result, violence filled the earth.

Deuteronomy 32:7-9, "'Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations. Ask your father, and he will show you; your elders, and they will tell you: when the Most High divided their inheritance to the nations, when He separated the sons of Adam, He set the boundaries of the peoples according to the number of the children of Israel. For the Lord's portion is His people, Jacob is the place of His inheritance.'"

—"...when He separated the sons of Adam..."

The races go all the way back to Adam. Your particular ethnic origin is the result of what your parents were. What about Adam and Eve? They didn't have parents or grandparents. Each egg in the girl contains the blueprint of her character; every man, in the sperm. In Eve, God made every egg cell that she was going to have—the blueprints. Every one of the races was what God wanted—all the various branches of the human family. Adam and Eve's children were different races. Their children did not have the same heredity. God purposed those races.

Verse 8, "...He set the boundaries of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.'"

There will be twelve gates in New Jerusalem (Revelation 21:12), one for each of the tribes of Israel. Jacob had twelve sons because God had purposed an organizational structure that was to be in the New Jerusalem. God knew where He was going before He started. That is why He will be satisfied when He gets there. God had a plan and a purpose. God is going to have a family, and that family will consist of literally billions of sons. It will be highly structured. The various racers were designed into that. You talk about genetic engineering! God designed and invented genetics. He designed certain characteristics and things that were to be there. We find races derived from Adam and Eve.

Let us come back to the mark of Cain (Genesis 4: 15). It does not have to do with the origin of the races. It was a boundary mark between the land of human habitation and the land of Nod or the land of wandering (v. 16).

Here was a boundary line that was set up. It is very likely that a replica of this boundary marker came to be worn by Cain and his descendants as a good-luck charm. The cross dates back to all kinds of pagan antiquity. It did not originate with Christianity. We find this came to be established as the mark that would save his life. The church of Cain has the mark, worn every-which-way.

God could have executed Cain and chose not to do so for a specific reason. God wanted the lesson of experience written. God wanted man to learn what the results of that way produced. What was the result of Cain being left alive? He reproduced and had kids who reflected his own values—people ready to resort to violence.

Abel was righteous, and then others of Adam and Eve's children fell in between. Which one expanded? Did the way of Seth and Abel encompass the earth? No, the way of Cain did.

I Corinthians 5:6, "... 'a little leaven leavens the whole lump?'" Sin spreads; sin contaminates. If you allow certain things that we should not in a society, it will spread until it contaminates everybody. You cannot tolerate sin because sin spreads and contaminates. Contamination tends to spread in a way that righteousness does not. Sin has to be purged out.

God wanted a record to be written. He wanted man to realize that when sin is allowed to exist, it will contaminate. God said, 'You have chosen to know good and evil, and I am going to let you see, that when you mix good and evil, the evil drowns out the good.' You have to purge out the evil or it will ultimately destroy the good.

God exiled Cain. Josephus mentions several things about Cain. Cain invented a system of weights and measures. Cain was the first to set boundaries about land. Ability and character are two totally different things. His problem was not a lack of ability but lack of character. He was self-centered to the point that he was willing to do anything to get his way. He established a city and was the author of civilization in that way.

It is interesting when we go to Egyptian history (what is termed as the Old Kingdom of Egypt was pre-flood)—if you were to look at a listing of the gods they worshipped and what they said about each one. They started out with two: Osiris and Isis. Osiris was the god of the earth, and Isis was his wife. The Egyptians derived from these first two parents. The firstborn son was Osiris, the founder of the Egyptian kingdom. He was the author of agriculture and the inventor of civilization. What does the Scripture tell us? Cain was the first one to contrive to plow the ground and was the inventor of sets and measures. They venerated him as a god. They worshiped Osiris as the inventor of agriculture and the giver of civilization. They attributed to Osiris what the Bible attributes to Cain.

The Old Kingdom of Egypt is the history of the conflict between what is termed as the Osiris kings and the Set kings, and there was conflict between them. Osiris's brother was Set. The conflict of the Old Kingdom of Egypt was between the adherents of Set and the adherents of Osiris. "Saturn" is the name Cain called himself.

Genesis 4:14 (KJV), "... 'shall I be hid...'" is "Saturn" (in the Hebrew) who is viewed as the giver of agriculture and the inventor of civilization. From Saturn derived Jupiter. Ultimately, Cain's family grew.

Genesis 4:17, "And Cain knew his wife and she conceived and bore Enoch. And he built a city, and called the name of the city after the name of his son—Enoch." We see that Cain had Enoch and built this city. "Enoch" means "initiate." City life was initiated.

As the family of Cain progressed, we find Lamech, a very significant figure.

Verses 18-24 focus on Lamech. God clearly intended man to have one wife. That went along for a period of time. Then we come to one who took him two wives.

Verse 19, "Then Lamech took for himself two wives: the name of one was Adah, and the name of the second was Zillah." The names of "Adah" and "Zillah" mean "dawn" and "dusk"—light and dark. He was the one who, evidently, took Cain's place.

Verses 20-22, "And Adah bore Jabal. He was the father of those who dwell in tents and have livestock. His brother's name was Jubal. He was the father of all those who play the harp and flute. And as for Zillah, she also bore Tubal-Cain, an instructor of every craftsman in bronze and iron. And the sister of Tubal-Cain was Naamah."

Let's focus on Tubal-Cain. In mythology, Vulcan gave his name to volcanoes. Vulcan is pictured as being black. Tubal-Cain was a worker of metal—making metal weapons of warfare.

Verses 23-24, “Then Lamech said to his wives: ‘Adah and Zillah, hear my voice; O wives of Lamech, listen to my speech! For I have killed a man for wounding me, even a young man for hurting me. If Cain shall be avenged sevenfold, then Lamech seventy-seven fold.’”

What did he mean by ‘I have slain a man...a young man who hurt me?’ Perhaps he is referring to two different individuals. According to tradition, Lamech was responsible for killing Cain. Isn’t that the logical outgrowth of a family that thrives on violence? One who would come along and view Cain as being the only thing that stood in his way. The other may refer to Enoch. (Genesis 5:24). If Enoch was preaching righteousness, you can bet Lamech didn’t want to hear it. Everyone outlived Enoch by hundreds of years.

We see that from the family of Cain derived things that had to do with civilization. Mankind’s civilization became decadent from the beginning. Man headed off in the wrong direction. Metals and metalworking were invented. This is the kind of civilization that began to derive—civilization based on “get.” Civilization in the pre-flood world derived from Cain, and his way permeated this world’s civilization.

Genesis 4:25-26, “And Adam knew his wife again, and she bore a son and named him Seth, ‘For God has appointed another seed for me instead of Abel, whom Cain killed.’ And as for Seth, to him also a son was born; and he named him Enosh. Then men began to call on the name of the Lord.” From Seth derived the family of Noah.

Genesis 5:4, “After he begot Seth, the days of Adam were eight hundred years and he begot sons and daughters.” Adam and Eve had many children.

Genesis 3:20, all human beings derive from Mother Eve. Abraham married his half sister (20:12); but by the time of Moses, there was prohibition against it. What happens when livestock interbreeds too closely? Close inter-marriage would result in rapid degeneration. There was no degeneracy at the beginning, no problems to inherit. But as generations progressed for a while, things would come along that would lead to degeneration of the human race. At the beginning, there was no one else to marry.

Let us note in Genesis 4:26, “And as for Seth, to him also a son was born; and he named him Enosh...”

In Isaiah 8:1, “Moreover the Lord said to me, ‘Take a large scroll and write on it with a man’s pen concerning...’” Have you ever wondered where writing came from? The normal word for “man” is “ish.”

Isaiah 8:1, “...‘a man’s [enosh] pen...’” The word in Hebrew is “enosh”—the same name as the word for the son of Seth. Around three hundred years after creation, possibly, writing was introduced through the family of Enosh. It is considered that the sacred calendar that we recognize was developed and came to be understood at this time.

Genesis 6:2, “that the sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were beautiful and they took wives for themselves of all whom they chose.”

Verse 1, “Now it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born to them.” —A group of wicked men who called themselves the sons of God and provoked God’s wrath by their actions that resulted in the destruction of the flood. Civilization, as we began to know it, was developed. As Cain developed his city, he developed false religion to go along with it.

The “sons of God” can refer to angels. Job 38:7 refers to angels as the sons of God.

Genesis 4:26, “...Then men began to call on the name of the Lord.” or “Then began men to call themselves the sons of God.”

This may tie in with Genesis 6:2, “...the sons of God...”

Questions

1. What is the proper translation of Genesis 4:1? Eve thought that he was the promised Seed. “I have gotten a man, the Eternal.”

2. What is the meaning of the name “Cain”? What is its significance? “Cain” means “get” and that was his way, the way of get. The way of Cain encompassed the earth.

3. Prove that meat was eaten prior to the flood. Genesis 4:2, “Then she bore again, this time his brother Abel. Now Abel was a keeper of sheep but Cain was a tiller of the ground.” What did he keep them for? He didn’t start out as a pig farmer.

4. Give a paraphrase of Genesis 4:7 that conveys the proper sense of the verse.

“If you do well, will you not be accepted? And if you do not do well, sin lies at the door. And its desire is for you, but you should rule over it.”

‘Why are you in a bad attitude? If you do well, don’t you think that I would accept you? And if you don’t do well, sin lies at the door. Cain, you have to overcome. If you do what you are supposed to do, I will accept you the same as I accepted Abel. You have to recognize that sin lies at the door. If you don’t overcome, you are going to fall into something that will be very destructive to you. Sin’s desire will be to pull you down. You have to master it.’ He was being told that he had to overcome.

5. What was the curse that God put on Cain?

It was a marker. It was the boundary mark between the land of human habitation and the land of Nod or the land of wandering. Here was a boundary line that was set up. It is very likely that a replica of this boundary marker came to be worn by Cain and his descendants as a good-luck charm. He was forced to become a wanderer. He was put out in exile.

6. Explain the real meaning of Genesis 4:21.

His brother’s name was Jubal. He was the father of all those who play the harp and flute. He was the first to profane the harp; he perverted music.

7. Give a couple of alternate translations of Genesis 4:26.

“And as for Seth, to him also a son was born and he named him Enosh. Then men began to call on the name of the Lord.” “Then began men to call themselves the name of the Eternal.” “And then began men to preach in the name of the Eternal.”

8. Did Enoch die?

Yes. If Enoch had never died, that would put him one up on Jesus Christ.

Hebrews 11:5, “By faith Enoch was translated so that he did not see death, and was not found because God had translated him, for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God.”

Verse 13, “These all died in faith, not having received the promises....” These all died. None of them received the promises. They all died in faith. God simply physically removed the body of Enoch. Our allegiance and our loyalty are transferred from the god of this earth to the God of heaven. We are ambassadors for Christ. He transferred his loyalty and his allegiance. The significance was simply that he died.

Deuteronomy 34:6, God buried Moses. It is a parallel.

This is the second part on Genesis 4-9 on the way this world’s civilization came to be, and recognizing that the origin of how it came to be goes back to Cain—realizing he was the originator of most of this world’s civilization. Cain is identified in pagan mythology as Osiris, the giver of their civilization. The Romans and Greeks identified him with Saturn. The Greek name was Kronos. He was the teacher of agriculture and the giver of civilization. He is generally pictured as holding a scythe in his right hand. Old Man Time—holding a scythe and a serpent that bites its own tail. It is a part of the season we are in right now (winter/December).

In Genesis 4:14, “shall I be hid [Saturn]” was actually the name which Cain called himself.

We have the inauguration of city life and many things that are characteristic of this world’s civilization.

Verse 26, “And as for Seth, to him also a son was born; and he named him Enosh....”

In Isaiah 8:1, the pen or stylus is referred to as “...‘man’s [enosh] pen’...” or “enosh pen.” The sacred calendar traces its origin back to this time of Enosh.

Genesis 6:2-3, “...the sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were beautiful and they took wives for themselves of all whom they chose. And the Lord said, ‘My Spirit shall not strive with man forever....’” Some people think this was intermarrying with angels. Angels don’t marry. Certainly the term “sons of God” sometimes refers to angels (Job 38:7). The whole context is not angels, but men.

Notice the whole context in vv. 5-7, “Then the Lord saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every intent of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And the Lord was sorry that He had made man on the earth, and He was grieved in His heart. So the Lord said, ‘I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth, both man and beast, creeping thing and birds of the air, for I am sorry that I have made them.” It is the sin of man, the sin of human beings. Whoever these sons of God were, they were human beings. It is clear that angels are not being referred to here.

I John 3:2 (KJV), “...now are we the sons of God.”

Is it converted people it’s referring to in Genesis 6:2? No. God said, ‘I am not going to always put up with this.’ God was sorry that He had ever started things with human beings. These were self-willed people, doing what they wanted to do. Individuals who were sinners, their motivation in life was to do what they wanted to do, as long as they could get by with it.

You can tie in Genesis 4:26, “...then began men to call upon the name of the Lord” or “to call themselves by the name of the Lord” with “...the sons of God...” in Genesis 6:2.

Cain was called a god. His followers looked upon him as god in the flesh and his followers took the title, the “sons of god.” He began city life by gathering and forcing his descendants together at this fortress named Enoch (Genesis 4:17). He utilized false religion. He was Saturn or Osiris in mythology, the one who was the originator of man’s civilization. This is in much of Greek and Roman mythology. We find that the line of Cain took wives of whomsoever they chose—making a contrast of the line of Seth and the line of Cain.

Race is in no way a curse. Race had nothing to do with the mark of Cain. God designed and authored that and put different branches of the human family. God knew where He was going before He started His plan. He was to wind up with the highly structured family that He would use to administer the whole universe. Before God ever began His plan, He knew where He was going to wind up.

Revelation 21:1, “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth...” We know God is going to wind up with a new heaven and a new earth.

Verse 12, the New Jerusalem is going to have twelve gates. As I mentioned before, God didn’t look down and become impressed with Jacob’s family. It is not an accident that Jacob had twelve sons. It was God’s purpose to begin with (Deuteronomy 32:8). He programmed that Eve’s children would be different races. God built that diversity. They were to spread out; but inspired by Satan, they were going to do away with that.

Revelation 21:2, “Then I, John, saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.” In the New Jerusalem will dwell the firstfruits. The bride will be right there with the Bridegroom. The bride and Bridegroom will increase the family. They will be inside; the others will dwell outside. They will come in and go out through those twelve gates.

Verse 24, “And the nations [Greek, “ethnos”] of those that are saved shall walk in light...” We don’t have to understand every detail. It is sufficient to understand what is given. When we get there, we will clearly understand.

Satan has resented every facet of God’s plan. Genesis 6:4, “There were giants on the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God came in to the daughters of men and they bore children to them. Those were the mighty men who were of old, men of renown.”

In Deuteronomy 2:11, “Giants” is a totally different word, “They were also regarded as giants, like the Anakim, but the Moabites call them Emim.”

The term used in Genesis 6:4 is a word that does not necessarily mean giant in stature. It could refer to individuals who bullied and oppressed others—men of great power. It is not the real translation.

Genesis 6:11-13, “The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. So God looked upon the earth, and indeed it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted their way on the earth. And God said to Noah, ‘The end of all flesh has come before Me, for the earth is filled with violence through them; and behold, I will destroy them with the earth.’”

God looked at the state of things. That which He had built in and designed was in the process of being lost, and violence was everywhere. God took note and said He would not let it get to this point.

Verse 18, “‘But I will establish My covenant with you; and you shall go into the ark—you, your sons, your wife, and your sons’ wives with you.’” He would send His judgment and start it over again through Noah.

Verse 9, “...Noah was a just man, perfect in his generations. Noah walked with God.” Noah was a righteous man, one who obeyed God and perfect in his generations. This word “perfect” is the word used throughout Leviticus and Deuteronomy to describe sacrifices—a term applied to animals. The first thing God noticed: Noah was righteous and just; he was “perfect in his generations.” His lineage had been preserved without mixture. God purposed to use these families and re-launched the human family after the flood.

If we go through Genesis 10, the European stock primarily comes from Shem, the African stock comes from Ham and certain European stock comes from Japheth. Japheth undoubtedly was an Oriental. Ham's wife was Naamah, a descendant of Cain.

The thing to also understand is that the sins or character of an individual is not something that heredity plays a primary part in. It isn't that one line is righteous and the other wasn't. The family through which God worked came through the family of Shem. God has worked with others. But the bulk of Shem's descendants would not follow the true God. On the ark everyone agreed to what the truth was. But in time (after the flood), again the tendency of human beings was to follow self-will.

In Genesis 5:1-4, we read of the generations of Adam. The sons of Adam got their wives from their sisters.

Genesis 5:21-24, "Enoch lived sixty-five years and begot Methuselah. After he begot Methuselah, Enoch walked with God three hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. So all the days of Enoch were three hundred and sixty-five years. And Enoch walked with God; and he was not, for God took him."

Some have the idea that Enoch did not die. That is not true. That would contradict what the Bible says. Enoch did die, and it is very clearly stated in the scripture that he did die. To begin with, if Enoch did not die, that puts him one-up on Jesus Christ, one step ahead of Jesus Christ because Jesus Christ died.

In I Corinthians 15:20, we are told, "But now Christ is risen from the dead, and has become the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep."

John 3:13, "No one has ascended to heaven but He who came down from heaven, that is, the Son of Man who is in heaven."

Genesis 5:23, "So all the days of Enoch were three hundred and sixty-five years."

Hebrews 11:5, "By faith Enoch was translated so that he did not see death, 'and was not found because God had translated him'; for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God."

Verse 4, "By faith Abel...."

Verse 5, "By faith Enoch...."

Verse 7, "By faith Noah...."

Verse 8, "By faith Abraham...."

Verse 11, "By faith Sarah...."

Verse 13, "These all died in faith, not having received the promises...." Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham and Sarah—these all died in faith. What does it mean that he did not see death?

Hebrews 9:27, "And as it is appointed for man to die once...."

I Corinthians 15:22, "As in Adam all die...." — Every human being; all die! Enoch was an individual who walked with God and served God. It was a time when God took him, as Elijah was physically removed, to a different place. When Moses died, God buried him where no one knew (Deuteronomy 34:5-6). Enoch was removed.

In Genesis 5:21-27, we come to Methuselah. The meaning of his name is "when he dies it will be sent forth." Methuselah died the year of the flood. His whole long life was a prophecy, and when he died, the flood was sent forth.

Genesis 5:29, "And he called his name Noah, saying, 'This one will comfort us concerning our work and the toil of our hands, because of the ground which the Lord has cursed.'" Noah was to comfort them concerning the work.

II Peter 2:5, "...Noah, one of the eight people, was a preacher of righteousness...." Noah was the eighth. Enoch was the seventh (Jude 14). We have a line of preachers of righteousness that God worked with. Noah was the eighth; his great-grandfather, Enoch, was the seventh. By this time the whole line of Seth was pretty well turning away from the things that Seth himself had stood for. From what is described in Genesis 6, there was a loss of identity.

Satan has always tried to counterfeit God's plan: one world. Satan's world is Babylon—many sorts of paganism blended together and one world religion. God is going to have unity—one King, one government and one religion.

The human family is allocated separate inheritances. In the time of Joshua, He allocated the land to the different tribes (Joshua 13-17). It was divided out into the families. The whole purpose of the Jubilee was to return the land back to those it was given. When Christ returns and programs a Jubilee, the land will be allocated out. God works through families. That is why Satan hurts the family so much. He tries to attack, pervert and destroy it because it is the way God is going to structure the family throughout eternity. Satan tried to cause people to lose their family identity. Satan would like to wipe out family altogether. And that is what he is very successfully trying to do in our modern age today.

Genesis 6:11, "The earth also was corrupt before God and the earth was filled with violence." Every aspect of human society deteriorated. Everything became so totally corrupt, God looked at it and said, "There is no way this can last another four thousand four hundred years. If I wait and let it run its course, there will be such an unrecognizable mess it will never be sorted out.’ The flood set things back a ways, but they would have wiped themselves off the earth millenniums ago.

God described to Noah how to build the ark (Genesis 6:14-22). The capacity of the ark was eight freight trains of sixty-five cars each. The number of animals that were on board the ark, if you count every specific animal, not varieties—God did not create every single breed of cattle, some originated in recent years; on the ark, God did not have one hundred varieties of dogs—you come out with about thirty-five thousand species. That would have filled two and one-half freight trains. God could have transported all of those animals in two and one-half freight trains. You still would have five and one-half freight trains of sixty-five cars each that would have been empty. We are looking at a lot of space that people don’t realize. Food was transported as well so there was space for food storage (v. 21).

Some people think the flood occurred in just a local area. There is no way that you can believe that. One is simple logic. The ark landed in Mount Ararat. Water seeks its own level and spreads out. Everything that is not taller than that mountain is going to be covered. Plus, God clearly says to build an ark. If we are looking at a local flood, why build the ark? Just climb the mountain and get on the other side. It makes no sense, logically.

Notice in vv. 17-21, “‘And behold, I Myself am bringing the flood of waters on the earth, to destroy from under heaven all flesh in which is the breath of life; and everything that is on the earth shall die. But I will establish My covenant with you; and you shall go into the ark—you, your sons, your wife, and your sons’ wives with you. And of every living thing of all flesh you shall bring two, of every sort into the ark, to keep them alive with you; they shall be male and female. Of the birds after their kind, of animals after their kind, and of every creeping thing of the earth after its kind, two of every kind will come to you to keep them alive. And you shall take for yourself of all food that is eaten, and you shall gather it to yourself; and it shall be food for you and for them.’”

Genesis 7:1-3, “Then the Lord said to Noah, ‘Come into the ark, you and all your household, because I have seen that you are righteous before Me in this generation. You shall take with you seven each of every clean animal, a male and his female; two each of animals that are unclean, a male and his female; also seven each of birds of the air, male and female, to keep the species alive on the face of all the earth.’” The knowledge of clean and unclean was known before the flood. God designed certain animals to be eaten and others to have other functions.

Verse 7, “So Noah, with his sons, his wife, and his sons’ wives, went into the ark because of the waters of the flood.” When Noah entered the ark, it wasn’t raining. Noah went in the ark in faith. He probably went in on the Sabbath; then seven days later, God would start it. Noah spent a week on the ark before the rain came (vv. 1, 4, 10).

He preached during this one hundred twenty-year period of time. The work of God was accomplished on faith. People did not believe the warning.

Verse 11, “...on that day all the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened.” The fountains of the deep broke up and great geysers of water erupted. There would probably have been a lot of “takers” then. This is a lesson for us!

Isaiah 55:6, “Seek the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near.” About the time the Tribulation starts, there will be many who would wish they had listened to “Tomorrow’s World,” but it will be too late, physically, then.

Hebrew 11:6, “Without faith it is impossible to please God...” God requires that. At some point, we must step out in faith. When the time came, God closed the door. ‘Alright, now is the time.’

Genesis 7:17, “Now the flood was on the earth forty days. The waters increased and lifted up the ark, and it rose high above the earth.”

Verse 19, “And the waters prevailed exceedingly on the earth, and all the high hills under the whole heaven were covered.” —A universal flood.

Genesis 8:1-3, “Then God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the animals that were with him in the ark. And God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters subsided. The fountains of the deep and the windows of heaven were also stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained. And the waters receded continually from the earth. At the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters decreased.” The water was there for a time. Then it began to abate, and then another two and one-half months.

Verses 4-5, “Then the ark rested in the seventh month, the seventeenth day of the month, on the mountain of Ararat. And the waters decreased continually until the tenth month. In the tenth month, on the first day of the month, the tops of the mountains were seen.”

Verses 7-11, “Then he sent out a raven, which kept going to and fro until the waters had dried up from the earth. He also sent out from himself a dove, to see if the waters had abated from the face of the ground. But the dove found no resting place for the sole of her foot, and she returned into the ark to him, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth. So he put out his hand and took her, and drew her into the ark to himself. And he waited yet another seven days, and again he sent the dove out from the ark. Then the dove came to him in the evening, and behold, a freshly plucked olive leaf was in her mouth; and Noah knew that the waters had abated from the earth.”

It was abated enough that some of the shoots were beginning to come forth. From this, Noah knew that the waters had abated. He was up on a mountain. He could not see, so he sent these birds out.

Verse 14, “And in the second month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, the earth was dry.” The flood was a total of one year and ten days. The flood started on the seventeenth day of the second month (7:11). Noah left the ark on the second month and the twenty-seventh day of the month (8:14) —one year and ten days. But they had been on the ark seven days before (7:1, 4, 10). So the time on the ark altogether was one year and seventeen days.

Genesis 9:1-2, “So God blessed Noah and his sons, and said to them: ‘Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth. And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be on every beast of the earth, on every bird of the air, on all that move on the earth, and on all the fish of the sea. They are given into your hand.’” The animals were to have a distinctive fear of man.

Verse 3, “‘Every moving thing that lives shall be food for you. I have given you all things, even as the green herbs.’” They had been eating grains, but they could begin eating flesh again.

Verse 6, “‘Whoever sheds man’s blood, by man his blood shall be shed; for in the image of God He made man.’” The intrinsic value of human life: man is made in the image of God. God did not execute Cain before the flood. It was to teach a lesson.

I Corinthians 5:6, “...a little leaven leavens the whole lump...” Sin spreads, and its corrupting influence will cover everything. What happens when you don’t have a lesson? God allowed that, and it only took a short period of time until things were in an abysmal mess. Then He said, ‘Things must not be allowed to get to that point. Violent crime must be dealt with.’

Genesis 6:11-13, “The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. So God looked upon the earth, and indeed it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted their way on the earth. And God said to Noah, ‘The end of all flesh has come before Me, for the earth is filled with violence through them; and behold, I will destroy them with the earth.’”

Genesis 9:9-17, “‘And as for Me, behold, I establish My covenant with you and with your descendants after you, and with every living creature that is with you: the birds, the cattle, and every beast of the earth with you, of all that go out of the ark, every beast of the earth. Thus I establish My covenant with you: Never again shall all flesh be cut off by the waters of the flood; never again shall there be a flood to destroy the earth.’ And God said: ‘This is the sign of the covenant which I make between Me and you, and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations: I set My rainbow in the cloud, and it shall be for the sign of the covenant between Me and the earth. It shall be, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the rainbow shall be seen in the cloud; and I will remember My covenant which is between Me and you and every living creature of all flesh; the waters shall never again become a flood to destroy all flesh. The rainbow shall be in the cloud, and I will look on it to remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is on the earth.’ And God said to Noah, ‘This is the sign of the covenant which I have established between Me and all flesh that is on the earth.’”

God pointed out the rainbow and said that this would be something that would represent that the rain would stop. It would be a reminder of God’s promise that He would not destroy the earth again by water.

Verses 18-25, “Now the sons of Noah who went out of the ark were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham was the father of Canaan. These three were the sons of Noah, and from these the whole earth was populated. And Noah began to be a farmer, and he planted a vineyard. Then he drank of the wine and was drunk and became uncovered in his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brothers outside. But Shem and Japheth took a garment, laid it on both their shoulders, and went backward and covered the nakedness of their father. Their faces were turned away, and they did not see their father’s nakedness. So Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done to him. Then he said:

‘Cursed be the Canaan; a servant of servants he shall be to his brethren.’”

Let us understand what this is talking about. Some have thought this was unfair because Canaan was being cursed because of Ham. It says “his younger son.” Does it refer to Ham? The answer is “no.” Ham was the middle son, not the younger son.

Genesis 10:1 says the birth order was Shem, Ham and Japheth.

Genesis 10:6, “The sons of Ham...” How does Canaan figure in all this?

Verse 6, “The sons of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put and Canaan.” Canaan was the younger son of Ham. He talks about Ham, the father of Canaan.

Genesis 9:24, “...he knew what his [Ham’s] younger son had done to him.” What had happened was an act of perversion committed by Canaan. And a curse was made. Curses come from disobedience; blessings, from obedience.

God knew that He would be able to work with the family of Abraham. God knew that Abraham would bring forth certain results that would have an impact on his children and grandchildren. The very basis of stability in a society and people is the family, the basic building block of society. It was very apparent that the family of Canaan was going to suffer because of the family deterioration and morality of Canaan himself. Don’t you think that children suffer from some of the environment they grow up in?

The major thing emphasized here is the deterioration of the family structure. When morality is not what it ought to be the family deteriorates and the society deteriorates. The result of Canaan’s sin was the consequences that he brought on his descendants. The problems were the result of the weakness of the family.

Verse 25, “...‘Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants he shall be to his brethren.’” He was to be a servant of servants. God said we must all become servants. Those whom Canaan ultimately came to serve must also learn to be servants. Canaan will ultimately learn to serve the Lord God that Shem was serving at that time.

Verse 27, “‘May God enlarge Japheth, and may he dwell....’” —The majority of the people on earth have sprung from Japheth—the vast multitudes of the Orient and others. God was going to preserve the knowledge of the truth through Shem.

9. Explain the significance of Methuselah’s name.

It means “it will go forth.” He died in the year of the flood.

10. Explain Genesis 6:2. Who were the “sons of God”?

They deified their ancestors. Cain was deified by his followers. He was called a god. These “sons of God” were self-willed people, doing what they wanted to do.

11. What was the approximate size of the ark?

The approximate size is three hundred cubits by fifty cubits by thirty cubits, about four hundred fifty feet by seventy-five feet by forty-five feet. It would have been the minimum of eight freight trains of sixty-five cars each.

12. Was the flood of Noah a universal deluge?

Genesis 6:17, “‘And behold I Myself am bringing the flood of waters on the earth, to destroy from under heaven all flesh in which is the breath of life, and everything that is on the earth shall die.’”

Genesis 7:19, “The waters prevailed fifteen cubits upward and the mountains were covered. It prevailed above all the mountains.”

13. Prove that God’s law of clean and unclean meat was known prior to Moses.

Clean and unclean was known prior to the flood. Genesis 7:2, “‘You shall take with you seven each of every clean animal, a male and his female, two each of animals that are unclean, a male and his female....’”

14. How long were Noah and his family in the ark?

One year and seventeen days.

15. Explain Genesis 9:3.

This is not doing away with the laws of clean and unclean. We are to eat them in the same way we eat the vegetables or herbs, but avoid the bad ones.

16. Explain Genesis 9:24-25.

“So Noah awoke from his wine and knew what his younger son had done to him.”

Verse 25, “Then he said: ‘Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants he shall be to his brethren.’” He knew what Ham’s younger son had done to him. What had happened was an act of perversion committed by Canaan, and a curse was made.

In the earlier part of Genesis, we saw the focus on the very beginning and then the civilization of man that developed. In Genesis 4-7, we saw what happened.

God allowed a certain record be made, which deals with man's experiment in government. One of the reasons why Cain wasn't executed was because God wanted the record written of what happens if the lesson is not learned and people come up with their own ideas. God wanted us to see what happens.

What happened? It came to the point where violence filled the earth. In a matter of one thousand six hundred fifty-six years from the time of creation, things were in such a mess—such violence and decadence—God stepped in and destroyed man through the flood. After preserving Noah, we see where He gave certain instructions to Noah. We spent a lot of time on the pre-flood civilization.

This section deals with the formation of this present age, this present civilization of man.

Genesis 10-11 is an important area of Scripture because it focuses in on the beginning of post-flood civilization. It contains the origin of mankind's society. Babylon is the beginning of our civilization. In our society, everything has its origin in Babylon.

Genesis 10:1, "Now this is the genealogy of the sons of Noah: Shem, Ham, and Japheth...."

Japheth: v. 2, "The sons of Japheth were Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras." Japheth's wife was of oriental extraction. They divided into a Western and an Eastern branch. Some took more after Japheth; some, more with his wife. Japheth settled in Asia or Eastern Europe depending on whether they took after the oriental side or Japheth's side.

Ham: v. 6, "The sons of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan." Jewish tradition says Ham's wife was none other than Naamah, who was the daughter of Cain (Genesis 4:22). His grandson was Nimrod.

Genesis 10:8, "Cush begot Nimrod...." Cush settled in the Western part of Ethiopia. "Ethiopia" is the Hebrew word for "Cush"; "Mizraim" is Hebrew for "Egypt."

The nations today are known by modern names. When nations are referred to in Bible prophecy, they are not referred to in the names they have today; they are referred to in the name of their ancestors. The more some of these people had contact with Israel, the more they were able to be traced down.

God divided the languages. The division of the language was God's way of making the families go the way He wanted them to go to overspread the earth and to have the population increase. God desired that and desired these national groupings.

Shem: v. 22, "The sons of Shem were Elam, Asshur, Arphaxad, Lud, and Aram."

Genesis 11:10-26, "This is the genealogy of Shem...." —All the way to Abraham. Abraham is a descendant of Shem. The European stock primarily comes from Shem

We are given an overview of the families and are able to identify them in a sense.

Questions

1. Explain the significance of Genesis 10:8.

Let us pick it up in vv. 6-8, "The sons of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put and Canaan. The sons of Cush were Seva, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabtechahl and the sons of Raamah were Sheba and Dedan. Cush begot Nimrod; he began to be a mighty one on the earth."

That word "mighty one" is "gibbor" in Hebrew. It means "a tyrant, champion, chief, giant man, mighty, strong." —A mighty man, but a despot, a tyrant.

After the flood, animals reproduced rapidly. Genesis 9:2, "And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be on every beast of the earth, on every bird of the air, on all that move on the earth and on all the fish of the sea. They are given unto your hand." All these animals began to reproduce, and there was a rapid increase in animals like wolves, etc.

Genesis 10:9, Nimrod began to be a mighty hunter, as a protector. He is known in mythology as the hunter of wolves. He made himself the despot. He established his government on mankind.

2. Who is the instigator of Babel?

Genesis 10:8, "Cush begot Nimrod: he began to be a mighty one on the earth."

Verse 10, "And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel...."

Genesis 11:1-4, "Now the whole earth had one language and one speech. And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar, and they dwelt there.

Then they said to one another, 'Come, let us make bricks and bake them thoroughly.' They had brick for stone, and they had asphalt for mortar. And they said, 'Come, let us build ourselves a city, and a tower whose top is in the heavens; let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered abroad over the face of the whole earth.'"

Here was a great city. He began to bring everything into his rule. God wanted people to spread out. But Nimrod said, 'If you spread out you will be killed,' and that they should all get together and build this giant tower. They had heard about the flood. This tower would dwarf anything around them. Satan stirred Nimrod to do this. We begin to see the introduction of a false civilization. Religion was brought in. Nimrod made himself a god-king. Cain did that before the flood; Nimrod did after the flood. We just came through the season that celebrates Nimrod's birthday.

It is interesting, by the way, some of the customs and traditions that come down. A Nimrod tree—tradition is to put them up on a building when the building is finished being built. They put it on the top. That goes all the way back to the tower of Babel. We can trace many of the customs back to Egypt and to Babel.

He was "put out of business" in Babel when God confused the languages. They fled to Egypt.

Genesis 10:10, Nimrod was the instigator of Babel.

3. Where was the original center of human habitation in the post-flood world?

Genesis 11:1-2, "And the whole earth was of one language and of one speech. And it came to pass as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar and they dwelt there."

—The land of Shinar. All the earth was of one language. They got the idea of building the city. Nimrod was the instigator.

4. In what way were the people rebelling against God in their plans at Babel? What had God told them?

Genesis 9:1, "And God blessed Noah and his sons and said unto them, 'Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth.'" It was God's desire for the human race to spread out. The basic racial stocks had been preserved through the flood. God did not want them to stay there and intermarry. The separate identifiable strains would have been lost. We would have had a blend. If that was what God wanted, He would not have put in the varieties in Eve. This was a part of His overall plan from the beginning. They had organized themselves under the government of man, under Nimrod. It doesn't take long to deteriorate.

5. How did God force the various tribal groupings to migrate to different areas of the world?

Genesis 11:6-7, "And the Lord said, 'Indeed the people are one and they all have one language and this is what they begin to do; now nothing that they propose to do will be withheld from them. Come let Us go down and there confuse their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.'"

God forced the various tribal groupings to migrate to different areas of the world by confusing their languages to such an extent that they had to divide. God proposed that different areas of the earth would be for different peoples. God knew that apart from His Spirit and under man's government and man trying to get together, the results were not going to be good. In the twentieth century, we have been able to bridge the things which have divided us; man's technology has taken off. Without God's Spirit and not guided by the government of God, man will create something to blow themselves up (Matthew 24:22). With that ability and without God's Spirit, we would blow ourselves off the planet.

God says there is no limit to what man can do if every branch of the family can put his input into it. God has built special talents in each branch of the family. Just look around the world. The cultures of the nations express the personality of the people. When everything is pooled together, there is no limit. Man should ask 'Should we?' not 'Could we?' It is like opening Pandora's Box. Man can create things that he is incapable of handling. They would have reached the twentieth century many centuries ago. "Babel" means "confusion" in Hebrew and "the gate of god" in Chaldean.

6. About how long after the flood did the division of language occur? Prove from Scripture.

Genesis 10:10-32 gives us a chronological framework.

Genesis 10:16, "Eber lived thirty-four years, and begot Peleg."

Go through and add up the years for the time span. The division of the language occurred about one hundred one years after the flood.

Genesis 10:25, “To Eber were born two sons: the name of one was Peleg [Division], for in his days the earth was divided.”

Peleg was born about the time of the division of the languages. “Peleg” means “division.” In his days, the earth was divided. He was named in honor of that occasion.

For further study, read two books: The Two Babylons and Babylon Mystery Religion.

7. How many years transpired between the flood and the time of the death of Abraham’s father, Terah?

According to Acts 7:4, that event marked the beginning of the call of Abraham.

Acts 7:4, “Then he [Abraham] came out of the land of the Chaldeans and dwelt in Haran. And from there, when his father was dead, He moved him to this land in which you now dwell.” The death of Terah marked the beginning of Abraham’s call according to Acts 7:4. When you go through from the time Arphaxad was born (Genesis 11:10), add up and come all the way down to the time that Terah died (compare Genesis 11:32 with Acts 7—it will show you why that ties in), it will show that it was four hundred twenty-seven years. Abraham left Haran when his father died. Genesis 12:4 tells us he was seventy-five years old when he left Haran.

8. Could Abraham have heard a first-hand account of the flood? How?

Yes, he could have heard the account from Shem who lived five hundred two years after the flood.

Genesis 11:10-11, “...Shem was one hundred years old, and begot Arphaxad two years after the flood. After he begot Arphaxad. Shem lived five hundred years....” –A total of five hundred two years. Abraham was called four hundred twenty-seven years after the flood at age seventy-five. Their lives overlapped about one hundred fifty years. Abraham probably carried certain things (documents) that were on the ark. How could Moses have quoted, “the generations of Adam” (Genesis 5:1)?

9. What relationship were Lot and Abraham?

Genesis 11:26, “Terah...begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

Verse 31, “...Lot, the son of Haran...” Lot was Abraham’s nephew, the son of Haran.

10. What does “Babel” mean?

“Babel” means “confusion” in Hebrew.

Old Testament Series—Genesis 12—36

This is a very important area of Scripture. Genesis 12 begins to narrow its focus on one man, Abraham. The rest of the book of Genesis deals with Abraham and his family up until they went into Egypt. Throughout the rest of the book, we focus on the family through which God was going to work in the future—the literal descendants of Abraham—his son, grandson and great grandchildren. Then we pick up the story several generations later, in Exodus, to see what has transpired.

It is important for us to understand this section. You cannot understand prophecy unless you understand about Abraham and his descendants. Why would God single out Abraham? Everyone who inherits anything will ultimately inherit through Abraham. He is the father of the faithful (Romans 4:11). The ultimate fulfillment of God's blessings upon Abraham include the promise that he and his spiritual offspring would inherit the earth (Romans 4:13). There are two aspects of that promise: the spiritual inheritance and the physical promises made to Abraham. (For further study read: What's Ahead for America and Britain? booklet)

Genesis 12:1-3, "Now the Lord had said to Abram: 'Get out of your country, from your kindred and from your father's house, to a land that I will show you. I will make you a great nation; I will bless you and make your name great; and you shall be a blessing. I will bless those who bless you, and I will curse him who curses you: and in you all the families of the earth shall be blessed.'"

What was offered to Abraham, originally, was the birthright blessings. It was a great but rather vague promise. It was an unspecified land and a promise that his descendants would be a great nation. A lot of details were not given.

Verse 4, "So Abram departed as the Lord had spoken to him, and Lot went with him. And Abram was seventy-five years old when he departed from Haran."

Verse 7, "Then the Lord appeared to Abram and said, 'to your descendants I will give this land....'"

We are going to see that Abraham was called "the father of the faithful." He acted on faith. Verse 6, he found the Canaanites were there.

Verse 10, he shows up just in time. There was a famine in the land and Abraham has to go on down to Egypt to find something to eat.

Verses 11-12, "And it came to pass, when he was close to entering Egypt, that he said to Sarai his wife, 'Indeed I know that you are a woman of beautiful countenance. Therefore it will happen, when the Egyptians see you that they will say, "This is his wife"; and they will kill me, but they will let you live.'" Abraham began to get scared that Pharaoh was going to kill him in order to take his wife.

Verse 13, "'Please say you are my sister, that it may be well with me for your sake, and that I may live because of you.'" Abraham used human reasoning. She was his half-sister (Genesis 20:12), but the intent was to mislead.

Verses 17-20, "But the Lord plagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai, Abram's wife. And Pharaoh called Abram and said, 'What is this you have done to me? Why did you not tell me that she was your wife? Why did you say, "She is my sister?" I might have taken her as my wife. Now therefore, here is your wife take her and go your way.' So Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him; and they sent him away, with his wife and all that he had."

Abraham told Pharaoh Sarai was his sister. As a result of his human reasoning, he got himself in a mess. Abraham had to grow in faith. He had the same doubts we have. Ever notice how your faith goes up and down. It seems like one situation has passed, another one comes, and you cave in. Then you wonder, 'How did I ever do that?' Abraham became the person that most exemplified faith. God had to work with Abraham for years to teach him. Patience builds faith.

Genesis 13:5-8, "Lot also who went with Abram had flocks and herds and tents. Now the land was not able to support them that they might dwell together, for their possessions were so great that they could not dwell together. And there was strife between the herdsmen of Abram's livestock and the herdsmen of Lot's livestock... So Abram said to Lot, 'Please let there be no strife between you and me, and between my herdsmen and your herdsmen; for we are brethren.'"

Abraham told Lot, 'I don't want there to be trouble with us.'

Verse 9, "'Is not the whole land before you? Please separate from me. If you take the left, then I will go to the right; or, if you go to the right, then I will go to the left.'" Abraham said,

‘You take the part you want and I will take the rest of it.’ Abraham didn’t have to give him first choice, but he exemplified a Godly attitude.

Verse 10, “And Lot lifted his eyes and saw all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere...like the garden of the Lord...” Lot picked the best. So Abraham said, ‘Fine, go to it.’

Let’s notice the series of mistakes that Lot made. He was greedy. He chose the best part, not just the ordinary “run-of-the-mill-greedy,” but over and above.

Verse 12, “...Lot dwelt in the cities of the plain and pitched his tent even as far as Sodom.” Lot got as close to Sodom as he could. He liked the “bright-lights” atmosphere. Lot didn’t do all the things they did, but he was not careful of his associates.

Genesis 14:1-12, there was an invasion and Sodom and Gomorrah were captured.

Verse 14, Lot and his family were taken captive. By this time he was dwelling in Sodom. Lot was taken a prisoner of war for being in Sodom.

Verse 13, someone told Abraham what had happened.

Genesis 14:14-16, “Now when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his three hundred and eighteen trained servants...he and his servants attacked them and pursued them...So he brought back all the goods, and also brought back his brother Lot and his goods, as well as the women and the people.”

Verses 18-20, “Then Melchizedek King of Salem brought out bread and wine; He was the priest of God Most High. And He blessed him and said: ‘Blessed be Abram of God Most High, possessor of heaven and earth; and blessed be God Most High, who has delivered your enemies into your hand.’ And he gave him a tithe of all.” Abraham tithed to Melchizedek.

In Hebrews 7:7, Paul explains this, showing that Melchizedek was superior to Abraham.

Hebrews 7:1-3, “For this Melchizedek, King of Salem, Priest of the Most High God...first being translated ‘king of righteousness,’ and then also king of Salem, meaning ‘king of peace’, without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like the Son of God, remains a priest continually.” Melchizedek was King of Righteousness and King of Peace—those are divine titles.

Verse 17 shows that Christ is a High Priest after the order of Melchizedek.

Hebrew 6:20, “Where the forerunner has entered for us, even Jesus, having become High Priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.”

Melchizedek was the manifestation of the One that we know in the New Testament as Jesus Christ. “Melchizedek” means “King of Righteousness.” That is a title that would be blasphemous to use for any human being. Abraham tithed to Melchizedek and was blessed by Him.

Genesis 15:1-2, God told Abraham, “...‘I am your shield, your exceedingly great reward.’ But Abram said, ‘Lord God what will You give me, seeing I go childless, and the heir of my house is Eliezer of Damascus?’” He said, ‘Look, You have given me no offspring. I am childless. To whom will I pass on these blessings?’

Verses 4-6, “And behold, the word of the Lord came to him saying, ‘This one shall not be your heir, but one who will come from you own body shall be your heir.’ Then he brought him outside and said, ‘Look now toward heaven, and count the stars if you are able to number them.’ And He said to him, ‘So shall your descendants be.’ And he believed in the Lord, and He accounted it to him for righteousness.”

God said, ‘I am going to give you descendants that you will not even be able to number,’ and Abraham believed Him. God said, ‘I am going to bless you,’ and he believed it.

Verses 13-16, “Then He said to Abram: ‘Know certainly that your descendants will be strangers in a land that is not theirs, and will serve them, and they will afflict them four hundred years. And also the nation whom they serve I will judge; afterward they shall come out with great possessions. Now as for you, you shall go to your fathers in peace; you shall be buried at a good old age. But in the fourth generation they shall return here, for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet complete.’”

They will come here again the fourth generation. God said, ‘I can look and see what is going to happen, but I am not going to deal with this people right now because their iniquity is not yet full. But I can see the way it is headed, and I know what is going to happen.’

Verses 18-21, “On the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying: ‘To your descendants I have given this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the River Euphrates—the Kenites, the Kenezites, and the Kadmonites; the Hittites, the Perizzites, and the Rephaim; the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.’” God expands the promise.

Genesis 16:1-3, “Now Sarai, Abram’s wife, had borne him no children. And she had an Egyptian maidservant whose name was Hagar. So Sarai said to Abram, 'See now, the Lord has restrained me from bearing children. Please, go in to my maid; perhaps I shall obtain children by her.' And Abram heeded the voice of Sarai. Then Sarai, Abram's wife, took Hagar her maid, the Egyptian, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife, after Abram had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan."

Now Sarai comes up with an idea. She used a little human reasoning. 'God has not answered on our time schedule, so maybe we better solve it our own way.' These are lessons of faith God is teaching them. God doesn't operate according to our time schedule. By this time, he had dwelt in the land ten years and he was eighty-five years old. He told him at the age of seventy-five to get up and go to another land.

Verse 4, "So he went in to Hagar, and she conceived. And when she saw that she had conceived her mistress became despised in her eyes." From the time this started there was trouble. It was apparent that this was not going to work. Sarai was jealous of Hagar. Sarai came to greatly regret taking matters into her own hands.

Verses 6-9, Hagar fled; God told her to go back.

Verses 11-12, "And the Angel of the Lord said to her: 'Behold, you are with child, and you shall bear a son. You shall call his name Ishmael...He shall be a wild man; his hand shall be against every man, and every man's hand against him. And he shall live in the presence of his brethren.'"

New English Bible, "... 'He shall be a man like the wild ass...his hand is against every man and every man's hand is against him. He lives at odds with all of his kinsman.'" This is a description of the Arab world. Ishmael is the ancestor of the Arab people. It is understood throughout the Arab world. Here is a description of the Arab world. They are continually fighting among themselves. Ever wonder why two hundred million Arabs can't get rid of a few million Jews? They are too busy fighting among themselves. They are a very independent-minded people. The Arab world has continually been a scene of turmoil.

Genesis 17:1-5, "When Abram was ninety-nine years old, the Lord appeared to Abram and said to him. 'I am Almighty God; walk before Me and be blameless. And I will make My covenant between Me and you, and will multiply you exceedingly.' Then Abram fell on his face, and God talked with him, saying: 'As for Me, behold, My covenant is with you, and you shall be a father of many nations. No longer shall your

Verses 6-8, "I will make you exceedingly fruitful; and I will make nations of you, and kings shall come from you. And I will establish My covenant between Me and you and your descendants after you in their generations, for an everlasting covenant, to be God to you and your descendants after you. Also I give to you and your descendants after you the land in which you are a stranger, all the land of Canaan, as an everlasting possession; and I will be their God.'" Years later when Abraham was ninety-nine, his name was changed to Abraham; now it is many nations and a royal line, a kingship. The promise is being expanded.

Verses 10-17, "This is My covenant which you shall keep, between Me and you and your descendants after you: Every male child among you shall be circumcised; ...it shall be a sign of the covenant between Me and you. He who is eight days old among you shall be circumcised, every male child in your generations, he who is born in your house or bought with money from any stranger who is not your descendant...and the uncircumcised male child, who is not circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin, that person shall be cut off from his people; he has broken My covenant.' Then God said to Abraham, 'As for Sarai your wife, you shall not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall be her name. And I will bless her and also give you a son by her, then I will bless her, and she shall be a mother of nations; kings of peoples shall be from her.' Then Abraham fell on his face and laughed, and said in his heart, 'Shall a child be born to a man who is one hundred years old? And shall Sarah, who is ninety years old, bear a child?'"

Abraham fell on his face and laughed. Put yourself in Abraham's place. Abraham told God, 'Please don't make fun of me; don't kid me that way.'

Verse 19, "Then God said: 'No, Sarah your wife shall bear you a son and you shall call his name Isaac; I will establish My covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his descendants after him.'" "Isaac" means "laughing."

Verse 25, "And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old when he was circumcised..." The Arabs circumcise today when they are thirteen. They just didn't get the point.

Genesis 18:1-8, Abraham entertains three men (18:2). Two were angels (19:1) and one was the Lord (18:13, 33).

Genesis 18:9-15, “Then they said to him, ‘Where is Sarah your wife?’ And he said, ‘Here in the tent.’ And He said, ‘I will certainly return to you according to the time of life, and behold, Sarah your wife shall have a son.’ And Sarah was listening in the tent door, which was behind him. Now Abraham and Sarah were old, well advanced in age; and Sarah had passed the age of childbearing. Therefore Sarah laughed within herself, saying, ‘After I have grown old, shall I have pleasure, my lord being old also?’ And the Lord said to Abraham, ‘Why did Sarah laugh, saying, “Shall I surely bear a child, since I am old?” Is anything too hard for the Lord? At the appointed time I will return to you, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son.’ But Sarah denied it, saying, ‘I did not laugh,’ for she was afraid. And He said, ‘No, but you did laugh!’” “Yes, you were laughing. I heard you.’ Verse 17, “The Lord [the One who became Jesus Christ] said....”

Verse 19, ““For I have known him, in order that he may command his children and his household after him, that they keep the way of the Lord, to do righteousness and justice that the Lord may bring to Abraham what He has spoken to him.”” God knew He could depend on Abraham to teach his family. Twenty-five years had gone by since God had called him. God let twenty-five years go by before Abraham had the son God promised. God wasn’t in a hurry. He wanted to make sure that Abraham knew that this was a miracle from God, and that it was God’s promise.

Genesis 18:20-21, “And the Lord said, ‘Because the outcry against Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous, I will go down now and see whether they have done altogether according to the outcry against it that has come to Me; and if not, I will know.’” Abraham got scared because Lot was there.

Verse 23-31, Abraham began to bargain with God. He got down to forty, thirty and then twenty.

Verse 31, “...and He said, ‘I will not destroy it for the sake of twenty.’”

Verse 32, “...‘I will not destroy it for the sake of ten.’”

Genesis 19:1, “Now the two angels came down to Sodom....” The two angels were two of the three that had appeared to Abraham (18:2).

Verse 12, “Then the men said to Lot, ‘Have you anyone else here? Son-in-law, your sons, your daughters, and whomever you have in the city—take them out of this place!’” “Take them out!’

Verse 14, “So Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law...and said, ‘Get up, get out of this place; for the Lord will destroy this city!’ But to his sons-in-law he seemed to be joking.” They laughed at him.

Verse 15, when the morning came the angels said, ‘Get out of here!’

Verse 16, “And while he lingered, the men took hold of his hand, his wife’s hand, and the hands of his daughters, the Lord being merciful to him, and they brought him out and set him outside the city.” He was lingering because he was going to have to leave his grown children and grandchildren behind. The angels said, ‘We can’t destroy it with you here. You have to get out.’

Verse 17, “So it came to pass, when they had brought them outside, that he said, ‘Escape for your life! Do not look behind you nor stay anywhere in the plain. Escape to the mountains, lest you be destroyed.’” They said, ‘Flee to the mountains.’

Verses 18-19, “Then Lot said to them, ‘Please, no, my lords! Indeed now, your servant has found favor in your sight, and you have increased your mercy which you have shown me by saving my life; but I cannot escape to the mountains, lest some evil overtake me and I die.’”

Verse 20, ““See now, this city is near enough to flee to, and it is a little one; please let me escape there [is it not a little one?] and my soul shall live.”” He said, ‘Let me go to that little city over there.’ Lot was an individual who kept getting as close to the world as he could get. He kind of compromised around the edges.

Verse 22, ““Hurry, escape there. For I cannot do anything until you arrive there.’ Therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.”

“Zoar” means “little.” They said, ‘Okay, but get out of here!’ Lot had just not quite gotten the point. He wanted to go to the city.

Verse 24, “Then the Lord rained brimstone and fire on Sodom and Gomorrah, from the Lord out of the heavens.” All of a sudden the mountains didn’t look so bad.

Verses 25-26, “So He overthrew those cities, all the plain, all the inhabitants of the cities, and what grew on the ground. But his wife looked back behind him and she became a pillar of salt.” Lot’s wife looked back longingly. She couldn’t turn loose of what was back there.

Verses 27-30, “And Abraham went early in the morning to the place where he had stood before the Lord. Then he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and he saw, and behold, the smoke of the land which went up like the smoke of a furnace. And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when He overthrew the cities in which Lot had dwelt. Then Lot went up out of Zoar and dwelt in the mountains and his two daughters were with him; for he was afraid to dwell in Zoar. And he and his two daughters dwelt in a cave.”

The difference is: look at how Lot raised his children and how Abraham raised his. Look at where Abraham had pitched his tent. He was not part of society. Lot kept getting as close to it as he could; finally he just went and moved in. Lot compromised and let things happen. What happened was his children mixed and dated with the people of Sodom. His daughters had intermarried there. The result was that when it was time to go, they were not going to go with him. They laughed at him.

Abraham didn't allow Isaac that kind of involvement with the people around. When it came time for Isaac to get married, he sent his servant back to Ur of the Chaldean. Not much of anything, in a positive way, came of Lot's family, even though he himself was saved by the “skin of his teeth.” A lot that was important went “down the drain.” Peter says he was “just Lot,” but he was just barely “just Lot.” We could have an entire sermon on the contrast of how Lot raised his children and how Abraham did. He allowed his children too much freedom.

Lot's daughters thought the whole world had burnt up.

Verses 31-38, “Now the firstborn said to the younger, ‘Our father is old, and there is no man on the earth to come in to us as is the custom of all the earth. Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we may preserve the lineage of our father.’ So they made their father drink wine that night. And the firstborn went in and lay with her father, and he did not know...It happened on the next day that the firstborn said to the younger...let us make him drink wine tonight also, and you go in and lie with him, that we may preserve the lineage of our father...Thus both the daughters of Lot were with child by their father. The firstborn bore a son and called his name Moah; he is the father of the Moabites to this day. And the younger, she also bore a son and called his name Ben-Ammi; he is the father of the people of Ammon to this day.”

They thought everybody had been burned up and decided to solve it their own way. They decided to get Lot drunk and have children by him. Ammon is the capitol of Jordan to this day. We see all the feuding and the problems that are so apparent.

Genesis 20:1-3, “And Abraham journeyed from there to the South and dwelt between Kadesh and Shur, and sojourned in Gerar. Now Abraham said of Sarah his wife, ‘She is my sister.’ And Abimelech king of Gerar sent and took Sarah. But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night, and said to him, ‘Indeed you are a dead man because of the woman whom you have taken, for she is a man's wife.’”

We find Abraham again messing up. Again God had to teach Abraham a lesson about trusting Him—not getting fearful and trying to solve it his own way.

Genesis 21:1-5, “And the Lord visited Sarah as He had said, and the Lord did for Sarah as He had spoken. For Sarah conceived and bore Abraham a son in his old age; at the set time of which God had spoken to him. And Abraham called the name of his son who was born to him—whom Sarah bore to him—Isaac. Then Abraham circumcised his son Isaac when he was eight days old, as God had commanded him. Now Abraham was one hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him.” Abraham was one hundred when Isaac was born.

Abraham had his ups and downs; at times he sought to obey God, and at times he caved in. Now God was going to put him to the test. God gave Abraham the supreme test.

Genesis 22:1-2, “Now it came to pass after these things that God tested Abraham, and said to him, ‘Abraham!’ And he said, ‘Here I am.’ And He said, ‘Take now your son, your only son Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains of which I shall tell you.’”

Some say the land of Moriah is the Temple Mount. It may have been on Mount Moriah. Another possibility is that it was just across the valley from Mount Moriah. Abraham called the name of the place, “The-Lord-Will-Provide.”

Verses 5-12, “And Abraham said to his young men, ‘stay here with the donkey; the lad and I will go yonder and worship and we will come back to you.’ So Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering and laid it on Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife, and the two of them went together. But Isaac spoke to Abraham his father and said, ‘My father!’ And he said, ‘Here I am, my son.’ And he said, ‘Look, the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?’ Then they came to the place of which God had told him. And Abraham built an altar there and placed the wood in order, and he bound Isaac his son and laid him on the altar, upon the wood. And Abraham stretched out his hand and took the knife to slay his son. But the Angel of the Lord called to him from heaven and said, ‘Abraham, Abraham!’ And he said, ‘Here I am.’ And He said, ‘Do not lay your hand on the lad, or do anything to him; for now I know that you fear God, since you have not withheld your son, your only son, from Me.’”

Verse 14, “And Abraham called the name of the place, The-Lord-Will-Provide; as it is said to this day, ‘In the Mount of the Lord it shall be provided.’” God did provide a sacrifice—His Son.

Verses 16-17, “and said, ‘By Myself I have sworn, says the Lord, because you have done this thing, and have not withheld you son, your only son, in blessing I will bless you, in multiplying I will multiply your descendants as the stars of the heaven and as the sand which is on the seashore; and your descendants shall possess the gate of their enemies.’” Another blessing was added to the promise—his seed would possess the gate of his enemies.

Verse 18, “In your seed all the nations of the earth shall be blessed, because you have obeyed My voice.”

Genesis 23:1-2, we have the death of Sarah at the age of one hundred twenty-seven.

Genesis 24:1-4, “Now Abraham was old, well advanced in age; and the Lord had blessed Abraham in all things. So Abraham said to the oldest servant of his house... ‘I will make you swear by the Lord, the God of heaven and the God of the earth, that you will not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell; but you shall go to my country and to my kindred, and take a wife for my son Isaac.’”

Abraham told him he was sending him back to the area where he came from, and he was to find a wife there for Isaac.

Verse 6, “But Abraham said to him, ‘Beware that you do not take my son back there.’” Isaac was not to return back to Babylon.

In vv. 12-14, he prayed and asked God to lead him to the one.

Verse 15, “And it happened, before he had finished speaking, that behold, Rebekah, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham’s brother, came out with her pitcher on her shoulder.” It turned out she was of the same family.

Verse 53, “Then the servant brought out jewelry of silver, jewelry of gold, and clothing, and gave them to Rebekah. He also gave precious things to her brother and her mother.” He demonstrates to the family that Abraham’s family can take care of her.

Verses 57-58, “So they said, ‘we will call the young woman and ask her personally.’ Then they called Rebekah and said to her, ‘Will you go with this man?’ And she said, ‘I will go.’” Rebekah had a choice in the matter. She also acted on faith.

Verse 63, “And Isaac went out to meditate in the field in the evening...” Isaac was close to God. He trusted God to pick out the right wife. He was an example of a son who exemplified obedience. Did Abraham do a good job in bringing up Isaac? Through this family, God could accomplish His work. He allowed twenty-five years, and it came to the point where He knew Abraham would do what He wanted him to do. Sometimes we look back and think about doing things differently with our children, but God allowed Abraham to learn the lessons he needed to learn.

Genesis 25:1, Abraham remarried.

Genesis 25:7, “This is the sum of the years of Abraham’s life which he lived: one hundred and seventy-five years.” Abraham lived one hundred seventy-five years and he died.

Verse 11, “And it came to pass, after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac...” God blessed Isaac.

Verse 12, “Now this is the genealogy of Ishmael, Abraham’s son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah’s maidservant, bore to Abraham.” —The genealogy of Ishmael.

Verse 19, “This is the genealogy of Isaac, Abraham’s son...”

Verses 21-23, “Now Isaac pleaded with the Lord for his wife, because she was barren; and the Lord granted his plea, and Rebekah his wife conceived. But the children struggled together within her; and she said, ‘If all is well, why am I this way?’ So she went to inquire of the Lord. And the Lord said to her: ‘Two nations are in your womb, two peoples shall be separated from your body; one people shall be stronger than the other, and the older shall serve the younger.’”

Verses 24-26, “So when her days were fulfilled for her to give birth, indeed there were twins in her womb. And the first came out red. He was like a hairy garment all over; so they called his name Esau. Afterwards his brother came out, and his hand took hold of Esau's heel; so his name was called Jacob...." They were not identical twins.

Verses 27-34, "So the boys grew. And Esau was a skillful hunter, a man of the field; but Jacob was a mild man, dwelling in tents. And Isaac loved Esau because he ate of his game, but Rebekah loved Jacob. Now Jacob cooked a stew; and Esau came in from the field, and he was weary. And Esau said to Jacob, 'Please feed me with that same red stew, for I am weary.' Therefore his name was called Edom. But Jacob said, 'Sell me your birthright as of this day.' And Esau said, 'Look, I am about to die; so what profit shall this birthright be to me?' Then Jacob said, 'Swear to me as of this day.' So he swore to him, and sold his birthright to Jacob. And Jacob gave Esau bread and stew of lentils; then he ate and drank, arose, and went his way. Thus Esau despised his birthright."

We see something about Esau's character. He treated his birthright cheaply. He didn't regard it. He had no vision or forethought. He wanted things for the moment. Esau was self-willed.

Genesis 26:34-35, "When Esau was forty years old, he took wives Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Basemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite. And they were a grief of mind to Isaac and Rebekah." Rebekah and Isaac were upset that he had married someone of the land.

In Genesis 27:6-29, Jacob is instructed by Rebekah and obtains the blessing. Jacob was a very crafty fellow; always trying to finagle around to get his way. He was going to have to learn some hard lessons.

In vv. 41-44, he created such a problem that he was going to have to get out.

Genesis 27:46, "And Rebekah said to Isaac, 'I am weary of my life because of the daughters of Heth; if Jacob takes a wife of the daughter of Heth, like these who are the daughters of the land, what good will my life be to me?'"

Genesis 28:1-2, "Then Isaac called Jacob and blessed him, and charged him, and said to him: 'you shall not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan. Arise, go to Padan Aram, to the house of Bethuel your mother's father; and take yourself a wife from there of the daughters of Laban your mother's brother.'" Jacob has a dream.

Verses 11-15, "So he came to a certain place and stayed there all night, because the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of that place and put it at his head, and he lay down in that place to sleep. Then he dreamed, and behold, a ladder was set up on the earth, and its top reached to heaven; and there the angels of God were ascending and descending on it. And behold, the Lord stood above it and said; 'I am the Lord God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac; the land on which you lie I will give to you and your descendants. Also your descendants shall be as the dust of the earth; you shall spread abroad to the west and the east, to the north and the south; and in you and in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed. Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land; for I will not leave you until I have done what I have spoken to you.'" He had this very vivid dream.

Verses 20-21, "Then Jacob made a vow, saying, 'If God will be with me, and keep me in this way that I am going, and give me bread to eat and clothing to put on, so that I come back to my father's house in peace, then the Lord shall be my God.'" Jacob said, 'God, if You will take care of me, then I will worship you.' Ever try to make a bargain with God? "...so that I come back to my father's house in peace..." -He was afraid Esau was going to kill him.

He was in for a lesson. Genesis 29, he found his uncle.

Genesis 29:18, "Now Jacob loved Rachel; and he said, 'I will serve you seven years for Rachel your younger daughter.'"

Verse 20, "So Jacob served seven years for Rachel..." Seven years passed and he got married, but it wasn't Rachael. It was Leah (vv. 23-25).

Verse 25, "...'why then have you deceived me?'" He said, 'You tricked me.' Wonder if he remembered anyone he had tricked?

Verse 30, He served another seven years for Rachael.

Genesis 30:31-32, "So he said, 'What shall I give you?' And Jacob said, 'You shall not give me anything. If you will do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep your flocks: Let me pass through all your flock today, removing from there all the speckled and spotted sheep, and all the brown ones among the lambs, and the spotted and speckled among the goats; and these shall be my wages.'"

In Genesis 31:7, over the course of the next few years, Laban changed his wages ten times. When you deal with people in this kind of way, it is not very pleasant to be on the receiving end of it. He wound up twenty years on the receiving end of Laban. God was teaching him a lesson. He was a shyster from the word "go." It took Jacob twenty years to extricate himself from this mess (Genesis 31:41).

There were two major differences between Esau and Jacob. Esau had a major character flaw. He was a “quitter.” When the going got tough, he quit. Esau was willing to trade the long term for the immediate, the right now. He had no vision. Jacob also had a character flaw. He was a crooked dealer. He was always “wheeling and dealing.” The lesson God wanted Jacob to learn: when you deal with people in this kind of way, it isn’t pleasant to be on the receiving end. And God dealt with him. He learned the lessons the hard way and he came to repentance. God tested him. God wanted to test Jacob to see if he was a “quitter.”

Genesis 32:24-28, “Then Jacob was left alone; and a Man wrestled with him until the breaking of day. Now when He saw that He did not prevail against him, He touched the socket of his hip; and the socket of Jacob’s hip was out of joint as He wrestled with him. And He said, ‘Let Me go, for the day breaks.’ But he said, ‘I will not let You go unless You bless me!’ So He said to him, ‘What is your name?’ And he said, ‘Jacob’. And He said, ‘Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel; for you have struggled with God and with men, and have prevailed.’” Jacob prevailed with God.

Genesis 34:1-4, “Now Dinah the daughter of Leah, whom she had borne to Jacob, went out to see the daughters of the land. And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, he took her and lay with her, and violated her. His soul was strongly attracted to Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he loved the young woman and spoke kindly to the young woman. So Shechem spoke to his father Hamor, saying, ‘Get me this young woman as a wife.’”

Jacob allowed too much freedom to his daughter. They committed fornication then wanted to marry.

Verse 7, “And the sons of Jacob came in from the field when they heard it; and the men were grieved and very angry, because he had done a disgraceful thing in Israel by lying with Jacob’s daughter, a thing which ought not to be done.”

Verse 22, ““Only on this condition will the men consent to dwell with us, to be one people: if every male among us is circumcised as they are circumcised.””

Verse 25, “Now it came to pass on the third day, when they were in pain, that two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah’s brothers, each took his sword and came boldly upon the city and killed all the males.” The brothers wiped out the whole place.

Genesis 35:1, “Then God said to Jacob, ‘Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there....’”

Verses 16-18, this is where Rachael dies giving birth to Benjamin.

Genesis 36 gives the generations of Esau.

Questions

1. What was originally offered to Abraham as the beginning of the birthright blessings?

What was originally offered to Abraham, as the birthright blessings, was a vague promise—an unspecified land, a promise that his descendants would be a great nation. A lot of details were not given.

2. What did Abraham tell Pharaoh about Sarah and why?

He told Pharaoh she was his sister (she was his half-sister, but the intent was to mislead) because he was afraid that Pharaoh was going to kill him in order to take Sarah as his wife.

3. Show a series of mistakes that Lot made that almost resulted in the destruction of him and his family.

He was greedy. He chose the best part of the land. He got as close to Sodom as he could; he liked the bright-lights atmosphere. He was not careful of his associates. He finally just went and moved into Sodom.

4. Contrast Abraham’s example and actions with those of Lot.

Lot was an individual who kept getting as close to the world as he could get. He got as close to that society as he could. Abraham, on the other hand, kept his distance.

5. What are the two examples of tithing given in the book of Genesis?

Genesis 14:20; Genesis 28:22.

6. What was the age difference between Isaac and Ishmael?

The age difference was fourteen years. Genesis 16:3, Abraham had dwelt in the land ten years. Genesis 12:4, he was seventy-five when he departed from Haran, so that means he was eighty-five when Ishmael was conceived. Genesis 21:5, he was one hundred years old when Isaac was born.

7. What is the prophecy that God made about Ishmael and his descendants (check the New English Bible)?

Like a wild ass living at odds with all, of his kinsman (Genesis 16:11-12, NEB). He had twelve sons—twelve tribes (Genesis 17:20).

8. What was the physical sign of the covenant that God made with Abraham?

Circumcision (Genesis 17:10-12).

9. What did God know that Abraham would do that would allow God to bring all the blessings He has promised upon him?

Genesis 18:19, ““For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment, that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which He has spoken to him.”” He would properly rear his family and teach them God’s way.

10. What is the origin of the Moabites and Ammonites?

They were children of Lot through his daughters (Genesis 19:36-38).

11. What was the supreme test that God put Abraham to? After that, was the receiving of the birthright blessings by Abraham’s descendants conditional upon anything?

The supreme test was the sacrifice of Isaac. The receiving of the birthright blessings became unconditional. The conditions had been met. ‘Now I will do this because you have met the conditions.’

Genesis 22:16-18, “and said, ‘By Myself have I sworn, says the Lord, for because you have done this thing, and have not withheld your son, your only son, that in blessing I will bless you and in multiplying I will multiply your seed as the stars of the heaven and as the sand which is upon the sea shore, and your seed shall possess the gate of his enemies. And in your seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed because you have obeyed My voice.’”

12. What was the only part of the Promised Land that Abraham actually owned during his lifetime?

The only part was a cave near Hebron, as a burial place for his wife, Sarah (Genesis 23:4-6).

13. Was the marriage of Isaac and Rebecca forced?

No. Genesis 24:57-58, “So they said, ‘we will call the young woman and ask her personally.’ Then they called Rebekah and said to her, ‘Will you go with this man?’ And she said, ‘I will go.’”

14. What bad character trait did Jacob have that he had to learn the evils of the hard way?

He was devious and cunning to get his own way. He met up with Laban to learn the hard way.

15. How long did Jacob serve Laban?

Twenty years. Fourteen years for his wives and six years for wages.

Genesis 31:41, ““Thus have I been twenty years in your house. I served fourteen years for your two daughters and six years for your cattle and you have changed my wages ten times.””

16. Why was Jacob very upset when he heard that Esau was coming out to meet him on his return home?

When he left, Esau was ready to kill him (Genesis 27:41-42).

17. What serious mistake did Jacob make in regard to his daughter Dinah and what was the consequence of it?

He allowed her too much freedom. She “palled around” with the Canaanite girls and dated the prince. Simeon and Levi wiped out the whole city (Genesis 34). The attitude and streak of Simeon and Levi was that they were not going to take anything from anybody.

18. How did Reuben disqualify himself for the birthright?

Genesis 35:22, “And it came to pass when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father’s concubine; and Israel heard about it.”

I Corinthians 5:1, ““It is reported commonly that there is fornication among you and such fornication as is not so much as named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father’s wife.”” He committed adultery with his father’s concubine and disqualified himself—a lack of stability in regard to morality. This was not going to be the birthright tribe. They were not going to be the birthright tribe because of this lack of morality.

19. Where was Rachael buried?

Genesis 35:19, “And Rachel died and was buried on the way to Ephrath (that is, Bethlehem). Bethlehem was regarded as her city.”

Matthew 2:18, ““Rachel weeping for her children was an illusion to the slaughter of Bethlehem.””

Old Testament Series—Genesis 37—50

This section of material is the final portion of the book of Genesis—the book of beginnings. Genesis 37-50 is the story of Joseph and the entrance into Egypt. This final section of Genesis explains to us why we find the things that we do at the beginning of Exodus. The Bible does not start at Mount Sinai when God gave the Ten Commandments. Genesis has shown that God is the Creator, and it shows the family through which God is working: Abraham, a man of faith, coming on through Isaac and Jacob. Now we come to the spreading out. We see twelve men, the ancestors of the children of Israel, particularly, focusing in on Joseph. It was through Joseph the birthright was to come. We see how the promises were expanded out, becoming more and more specific.

We pick up the story: Joseph came into Egypt as a slave in 1704 B.C., and in 1691 B.C., he was made second in the kingdom because of the interpretation of Pharaoh's dream. In 1682 B.C., the second year of the famine, his family joined Joseph in Egypt. He rose to prominence in the time of the Hyksos Dynasty. This was a dynasty that had its origin outside of Egypt. They controlled only around the Nile area.

One of the things about Egypt, when we think Upper and Lower Egypt: if you were to hear about Upper Egypt, you would be looking at the area further south, and Lower Egypt is the part that is up at the top of the map. Why do they have it backwards in Egypt? It is very simple. They base that terminology on the way the Nile River flows. The Nile River is an unusual river in that it flows from the south to the north. It flows downhill and comes out at sea level in the Delta area at the mouth of the Nile, where it flows into the Mediterranean. It makes a little shape almost like a little triangle where it comes out. That little triangle is the Greek shape of the letter "delta." It looks like a triangle. It spreads out at its mouth, and because it looked like that letter in the Greek alphabet, it came to be applied to any river that flowed out that rich soil. Lower Egypt is that part of the river; Upper Egypt is up the Nile. When Joseph came in, it was called Lower Egypt.

During the time of the famine and immediately thereafter, the fifteenth Dynasty (the Hyksos), expanded their control over the entire nation.

The seven years of famine set the stage for a total change of rulership of Egypt. God was preparing a place for the nation of Israel to be safely nurtured and grow—to grow from a family into a nation. As a result of the famine, Egypt was the only one that had anything. During the time of plenty they saved up and, in the aftermath, were able to use that as leverage. They expanded out their control into much of the surrounding area.

The Israelites were given the land of Goshen as an inheritance. Joseph came into Egypt in 1704 B.C. In 1691 B.C., he was made second in the kingdom. The second year of the famine was 1682 B.C., and in 1611 B.C., Joseph died. There had been a period of time of over seventy years, and in that period of time, the family had greatly multiplied. We see this mushrooming out into a nation that began to take place in a period of a little over seventy years.

The most significant single chapter is Genesis 49. It is prophetic. It deals with every tribe of Israel in the last days. This shows that they were to remain separate, identifiable nations even into the end time—right on down to the specific promise that Ephraim would become a great company of nations and Manasseh a great nation.

Genesis 37:1-4, "Now Jacob dwelt in the land where his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan. This is the genealogy of Jacob. Joseph being seventeen years old was feeding the flock with his brothers. And the lad was with the sons of Bilhah and the sons of Zilpah, his father's wives; and Joseph brought a bad report of them to his fathers. Now Israel loved Joseph more than all of his children because he was the son of his old age. He made him a coat of many colors."

We notice, right here, a mistake of Jacob's that led to resentment from his brethren—the open favoritism. This was a carry over of him being from Rachel, the wife that he loved. Here was a situation where the children in the family were not all full brothers; they were half brothers. Unfortunately, sometimes when children don't have the same parents, some are singled out for favoritism. What is the result? The result is that it creates resentment among others in the family—resentments that lead to problems that last generations.

Verses 5-8, "Now Joseph dreamed a dream, and told it to his brothers; and they hated him even more. So he said to them, 'Please hear this dream, which I have dreamed: There we were binding sheaves in the field. Then behold my sheaf arose and also stood upright; and indeed your sheaves stood all around and bowed down to my sheaf.' And his brothers said to him, 'Shall you indeed reign over us? Or shall you indeed have dominion over us?' So they hated him even more for his dreams and for his words." Joseph didn't help matters any.

Verses 9-11, "Then he dreamed still another dream and told it to his brothers, and said, 'Look, I have dreamed another dream. And this time the sun, the moon and the eleven stars bowed to me.' So he told it to his father and his brothers; and his father rebuked him and said to him, 'What is this dream? Shall your mother and I and your brothers indeed come to bow down to the earth before you?' And his brothers envied him, but his father kept the matter in mind."

Joseph was always the favorite and he was rubbing it in.

The result, vv. 12-14, "Then his brothers went to feed their father's flock in Shechem. And Israel said to Joseph, 'Are not your brothers feeding the flock in Shechem? Come, I will send you to them.' So he said to him, 'Here I am.' Then he said to him, 'Please go and see if it is well with your brothers and well with the flocks, and bring back word to me.' So he sent him out of the Valley of Hebron, and he went to Shechem." Jacob sent him down to check on them. Jacob had a lot of confidence in him. Joseph had obviously shown that he could be trusted. He did not have the same degree of confidence in the others.

Verse 18, "Now when they saw him afar off, even before he came near them, they conspired against him to kill him."

Verses 19-20, "Then they said to one another, 'Look, this dreamer is coming! Come therefore, let us now kill him and cast him into some pit; and we shall say, "some wild beast has devoured him." We shall see what will become of his dreams!'" They had really gotten bitter over the situation.

Verse 21, "But Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands, and said, 'Let us not kill him.'" Reuben heard what they said.

Verse 22, "And Reuben said to them, 'Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit which is in the wilderness, and do not lay a hand on him'—that he might deliver him out of their hands, and bring him back to his father." He delivered him out of their hands. He was the oldest and felt a certain responsibility. Reuben had the idea of releasing him himself. He lacked the confidence he needed to speak up and set his brothers straight. He knew they shouldn't do what they were going to do.

Verses 26-27, "So Judah said to his brothers, 'what profit is there if we kill our brother and conceal his blood? Come and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him, for he is our brother and our flesh.' And his brothers listened." Judah is the father of the Jews. 'What profit are we going to make? Let us turn a buck on this deal.' He is the father of the Jews. Sometimes you see characteristics that tend to run in families. Some of his descendants had the same tendency. "...let us sell him..." So the brothers were content; they listened.

Verse 28, "Then Midianite traders passed by; so the brothers pulled Joseph up and lifted him out of the pit, and sold him to the Ishmaelites for twenty shekels of silver. And they took Joseph to Egypt." They took Joseph out of the pit and sold him. They brought him to Egypt.

Verse 29, "Then Reuben returned to the pit, and indeed Joseph was not in the pit; and he tore his clothes."

Verses 31-33, "So they took Joseph's tunic, killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the tunic in the blood. Then they sent the tunic of many colors, and they brought it to their father and said, 'We have found this. Do you know whether it is your son's tunic or not?' And he recognized it and said, 'It is my son's tunic. A wild beast has devoured him. Without doubt Joseph is torn to pieces.'" They said, 'This is what we found. We don't know what happened to your son.'

Verse 34, "Then Jacob tore his clothes, put sackcloth on his waist, and mourned for his son many days." Jacob leaped to the conclusion that Joseph had been killed. He was very grieved and upset.

Verse 36, "Now the Midianites had sold him in Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh and captain of the guard."

Genesis 38, skip Joseph for a moment and go to Judah. Judah had two sons.

Genesis 38:6, "Then Judah took a wife for Er his firstborn, and her name was Tamar."

Verse 7, "But Er... was wicked in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord killed him." After God killed him, Onan had the responsibility of raising up seed to his brother. Onan was not willing to fulfill his obligation because the inheritance of his brother would have passed to his brother's children, and he wanted it for himself.

So Onan himself died (vv. 8-10). God got rid of both of them. They were individuals of such character and nature that God didn't want to use them to develop the tribe of Judah. In the process of time, Judah's wife died (v. 12) and he had not fulfilled what he had promised Tamar. She dressed herself as a harlot (v. 14).

Verses 15-18, "When Judah saw her, he thought she was a harlot, because she had covered her face. Then he turned to her by the way, and said, 'Please let me come in to you'; for he did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. So she said, 'What will you give me, that you may come in to me?' And he said, 'I will send you a young goat from the flock.' And she said, 'Will you give me a pledge till you send it?' Then he said, 'What pledge shall I give you?' So she said, 'Your signet and cord, and your staff that is in your hand.' Then he gave them to her, and went in to her, and she conceived by him."

She asked what he would give her. She asked for a pledge. He gave her certain things. After all of this had taken place, Judah sought to send the kid goat back to her. Word came to him that Tamar had played the harlot. She was pregnant and not married. Judah said, 'Let her be burned' (v. 24). Judah had a double standard.

Verse 25, "When she was brought out, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, 'By the man to whom these belong, I am with child.' And she said, 'Please determine whose these are—the signet and cord, and staff.'" She said, 'Don't you think you should do something to the man? It was the man who these things belonged to.'

Tamar brought forth twins (v. 27). One of these twins put forth his hand and the midwife put a scarlet thread on it (v. 28). It was to have been born first. This was important because the firstborn would receive the scepter promise. It took its hand back in, and the other was born first. This was a breach. His name was called Pherez (v. 29), and the other was named Zerah (v. 30). There was a breach, but eventually they were united. One of Zedekiah's daughters (a Pherez) would marry the son of the High King of Ireland (a Zerah), and that healed the breach. This breach had to be healed. (For more information read, What's Ahead for America and Britain?)

In Genesis 39, Joseph was brought into Egypt. The Lord was with Joseph (vv. 1-2). He worked hard. He was dependable. He had great favor. He left all that he had in Joseph's hand (vv. 3-6).

Genesis 39:7-9, "Now it came to pass after these things that his master's wife cast longing eyes on Joseph, and she said, 'Lie with me.' But he refused and said to his master's wife, 'Look, my master does not know what is with me in the house, and he has committed all that he has to my hand. There is no one greater in this house than I, nor has he kept back anything from me but you, because you are his wife. How then can I do this great wickedness and sin against God?"

Potiphar's wife began to cast eyes on Joseph. Joseph refused. It was known and understood what sin was before God spoke on Mount Sinai.

Romans 4:15, "...where there is no law there is no sin."

Romans 5:13, "...sin is not imputed when there is no law." You cannot have sin if there is no law against it. Something is not wrong unless there is a law against—by God or man. Joseph knew that adultery was a sin; the law of adultery was known and understood. Potiphar's wife took advantage of every opportunity, and Joseph ignored it (v. 10).

Genesis 39:12, "that she caught him by his garment, saying, 'Lie with me.' But he left his garment in her hand, and fled and ran outside." One day she grabbed him. He took off, and she ripped off his outward garment.

Verses 13-20, "And so it was, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand and fled outside, that she called to the men of her house and spoke to them, saying, 'See, he has brought in to us a Hebrew to mock us. He came in to me to lie with me, and I cried out with a loud voice. And it happened, when he heard that I lifted my voice and cried out, that he left his garment with me, and fled and went outside.' So she kept his garment with her until his master came home. Then she spoke to him with words like these, saying, 'The Hebrew servant whom you brought to us came in to me to mock me; so it happened, as I lifted my voice and cried out, that he left his garment with me and fled outside.' So it was, when his master heard the words, which his wife spoke to him, saying, 'Your servant did to me after this manner,' that his anger was aroused. Then Joseph's master took him and put him into the prison, a place where the king's prisoners were confined. And he was there in the prison."

She said, 'See what he tried to do. He tried to rape me.' So Joseph was arrested and Potiphar put him in jail. Potiphar must have had some doubt because he didn't have him killed. He just put him in jail. He was soon the head trustee.

Verses 21-23, "But the Lord was with Joseph and showed him mercy, and He gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison. And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners who were in the prison; whatever they did there, it was his doing. The keeper of the prison did not look into anything that was under Joseph's hand, because the Lord was with him; and whatever he did, the Lord made it prosper.”

Genesis 40:1-3, “It came to pass after these things that the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt offended their lord, the king of Egypt. And Pharaoh was angry with his two officers, the chief butler and the chief baker. So he put them in custody in the house of the captain of the guard, in the prison, the place where Joseph was confined.”

The baker and the butler had dreams and Joseph explained what they meant.

Verse 5, “Then the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, who were confined in the prison, dreamed a dream, both of them, each man’s dream in one night and each man’s dream with its own interpretation.”

Verses 8-15, “And they said to him, ‘We each have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it.’ And Joseph said to them, ‘Do not interpretations belong to God? Tell them to me, please.’ Then the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, ‘Behold, in my dream a vine was before me, and in the vine were three branches; it was as though it budded, its blossoms shot forth, and its clusters brought forth ripe grapes. Then Pharaoh’s cup was in my hand; and I took the grapes and pressed them into Pharaoh’s cup, and placed the cup in Pharaoh’s hand.’ And Joseph said to him, ‘This is the interpretation of it: The three branches are three days. Now within three days Pharaoh will lift up your head and restore you to your place, and you will put Pharaoh’s cup in his hand according to the former manner, when you were his butler. But remember me when it is well with you, and please show kindness to me; make mention of me to Pharaoh, and get me out of this house. For indeed I was stolen away from the land of the Hebrews; and also I have done nothing here that they should put me into the dungeon.’”

Verses 16-19, “When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said to Joseph, ‘I also was in my dream, and there I had three white baskets on my head. In the uppermost basket there were all kinds of baked goods for Pharaoh, and the birds ate them out of the basket on my head.’ So Joseph answered and said, ‘This is the interpretation of it: The three baskets are three days. Within three days Pharaoh will lift off your head from you and hang you on a tree; and the birds will eat your flesh from you.’”

The baker was going to be executed; the butler was going to be set loose.

Verses 20-22, “Now it came to pass on the third day, which was Pharaoh’s birthday that he made a feast for all his servants; and he lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants. Then he restored the chief butler to his butlership again, and he placed the cup in Pharaoh’s hand. But he hanged the chief baker, as Joseph had interpreted to them.”

The only two accounts of anyone celebrating birthdays: Herod and Pharaoh, two wicked kings. We note this by way of passing by example.

He had told them, ‘When you get out, remember me, and tell him about me’ (v. 14).

Verse 23, “Yet the chief butler did not remember Joseph, but forgot him.” He was so happy to be out he forgot about Joseph.

Genesis 41:1-4, “Then it came to pass, at the end of two full years, Pharaoh had a dream; and behold, he stood by the river. Suddenly there came up out of the river seven cows, fine looking and fat; and they fed in the meadow. Then behold, seven other cows came up after them out of the river, ugly and gaunt, and stood by the other cows on the bank of the river. And the ugly and gaunt cows ate up the seven fine looking and fat cow. So Pharaoh awoke.” The seven lean cows ate the seven fat cows.

Verses 5-7, “He slept and dreamed a second time; and suddenly seven heads of grain came up on one stalk, plump and good. Then behold, seven thin heads, blighted by the east wind, sprang up after them. And the seven thin heads devoured the seven plump and full heads. So Pharaoh awoke, and indeed, it was a dream.” The lean grain ate the fat grain

Verses 8-9, “Now it came to pass in the morning that his spirit was troubled and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt and all its wise men. And Pharaoh told them his dreams, but there was no one who could interpret them for Pharaoh. Then the chief butler spoke to Pharaoh, saying: ‘I remember my faults this day.’”

Verse 12, “Now there was a young Hebrew man with us there, a servant of the captain of the guard. And we told him, and he interpreted our dreams for us; to each man he interpreted according to his own dream.” He said, ‘I remember a guy. We had these dreams, and there was this guy who was able to tell us about our dreams.’

Verse 14, “Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they brought him hastily out of the dungeon; and he shaved, changed his clothing, and came to Pharaoh.” Joseph was concerned about showing proper respect. He cleaned up and shaved to show proper respect to the office of Pharaoh.

Verse 16, “So Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, ‘It is not in me; God will give Pharaoh an answer of peace.’”

Pharaoh told Joseph his dream (vv. 17-24). Joseph told Pharaoh what it meant.

Verses 25-30, “Then Joseph said to Pharaoh, ‘The dreams of Pharaoh are one; God has shown Pharaoh what He is about to do: The seven good cows are seven years, and the seven good heads are seven years; the dreams are one. And the seven thin and ugly cows, which came up after them are seven years, and the seven empty heads blighted by the east wind are seven years of famine. This is the thing which I have spoken to Pharaoh. God has shown Pharaoh what He is about to do. Indeed seven years of great plenty will come throughout all the land of Egypt; but after them seven years of famine will arise, and all the plenty will be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine will deplete the land.’”

There would be seven good years followed by seven years of famine. Then he went on to explain what Pharaoh needed to do.

Verses 33-36, “‘Now therefore, let Pharaoh select a discerning and wise man, and set him over the land of Egypt. Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint officers over the land, to collect one-fifth of the produce of the land of Egypt in the seven plentiful years. And let them gather all the food of those good years that are coming and store up grain under the authority of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities. Then that food shall be as a reserve for the land for the seven years of famine which shall be in the land of Egypt that the land may not perish during the famine.’”

He said, ‘Choose a man who can be trusted and set him over Egypt. Let him get organized and store twenty percent of the produce year by year. Then during the years of famine, there would be all this extra that was stored.’

Verses 39-41, “Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, ‘Inasmuch as God has shown you all this, there is no one as discerning and wise as you. You shall be over my house and all my people shall be ruled according to your word; only in regard to the throne will I be greater than you.’ And Pharaoh said to Joseph, ‘See, I have set you over all the land of Egypt.’” Joseph was over all of his affairs. He was given a wife (v. 45).

Joseph was in the area of the Dynasty of the Hyksos, people kindred to the Hebrews. After the expulsion of the Hyksos, then arose a dynasty that was against the Israelites.

Verses 50-57, “And to Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine...Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasseh [forgetting]: ‘For God has made me forget all my toil and all my father’s house.’ And the name of the second he called Ephraim [fruitfulness]: ‘For God has caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.’ Then the seven years of plenty which were in the land of Egypt ended, and the seven years of famine began to come, as Joseph had said. The famine was in all lands, but in all the land of Egypt there was bread. So when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread. Then Pharaoh said to all the Egyptians, ‘Go to Joseph; whatever he says to you, do.’ The famine was over all the face of the earth, and Joseph opened all the storehouses and sold to the Egyptians. And the famine became severe in the land of Egypt. So all countries came to Joseph in Egypt to buy grain, because the famine was severe in all lands.”

The famine was all over the land. It is through Joseph that Egypt became the breadbasket of the world. It is interesting as you come down to our time. Who has been responsible for feeding the world? The grain-exporting nations of the world are Joseph’s: the United States, England and Australia. There are many parallels in prophecy. The famine was also in the land of Canaan.

Genesis 42:1-3, “When Jacob saw that there was grain in Egypt, Jacob said to his sons, ‘Why do you look at one another?’ And he said, ‘Indeed I have heard that there is grain in Egypt; go down to that place and buy for us there, that we may live and not die.’ So Joseph’s ten brothers went down to buy grain in Egypt.” Jacob sent his sons to buy food in Egypt.

Verse 7, “Joseph saw his brothers and recognized them, but he acted as a stranger to them and spoke roughly to them. Then he said to them, ‘Where do you come from?’ And they said, ‘From the land of Canaan to buy food.’” He saw his brothers and knew them. He began to quiz them; where did they come from?

Verse 9, “Then Joseph remembered the dreams which he had dreamed about them, and said to them, ‘You are spies! You have come to see the nakedness of the land!’” He remembered the dreams that he had. Here they were bowing down to a ruler of Egypt.

Verses 10-14, “And they said to him, ‘No, my lord, but your servants have come to buy food. We are all one man’s sons; we are honest men; your servants are not spies.’ But he said to them, ‘No, but you have come to see the nakedness of the land.’ And they said, ‘Your servants are twelve brothers, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and in fact, the youngest is with our father today, and one is no more.’ But Joseph said to them, ‘It is as I spoke to you, saying, “You are spies!”’ He said, ‘I don’t believe that you are brothers.’

Verse 15, “In this manner you shall be tested: By the life of Pharaoh, you shall not leave this place unless your youngest brother comes here.” He said, ‘I believe that you are spies. If you don’t bring back your younger brother, you won’t leave this place.’

Verse 17, “So he put them all together in prison three days.” For general principle, he put them in jail for three days.

Verses 19-20, “If you are honest men, let one of your brothers be confined to your prison house; but you go and carry grain for the famine of your house. And bring your youngest brother to me; so your words will be verified, and you shall not die.’ And they did so.” He said, ‘Bring your youngest brother to me.’

Verse 22, “And Reuben answered them, saying, ‘Did I not speak to you, saying, “Do not sin against the boy”; and you would not listen? Therefore behold his blood is now required of us.’” See what Reuben told them, ‘I knew we would get into trouble.’

Verse 24, “...Then he returned to them again, and talked with them. And he took Simeon from them and bound him before their eyes.” Simeon was the one Joseph put in jail. Simeon was probably the one out to really kill Joseph, the most “hotheaded” one.

The Simeonites were scattered. They were not allowed to have a separate country. They might have ganged up and conquered the world. Their descendants are in Scotland, the highlands of Scotland. We see all the wars that took place among the clans. When the British took Ireland, they took some of the highland Scots and settled them in the Ulster plantation. The others settled in the United States in the Appalachians area: West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, down into the Ozarks of Arkansas—all those mountain people.

Remember the feuds between the Hatfield’s and the McCoy’s? —A group of people that have tended to have that proclivity today. Today in Ireland, they are still at it. A great deal of the controversy was that these Scots settled in Northern Ireland to keep Ireland loyal to the Crown. When Britain wanted to get rid of Ireland, they couldn’t because of these Ulster men—Scotch-Irish. You read the story of Simeon and that tendency to violence, not wanting to back down.

Verse 24, Simeon was the one Joseph left to stay in jail so he could assess some of the things he had done in life.

Verse 25, “Then Joseph gave a command to fill their sacks with grain, to restore every man’s money to his sack, and to give them provisions for the journey. Thus he did for them.” He put their money back.

Verse 28, “So he said to his brothers, ‘My money has been restored, and there it is, in my sack!’ Then their hearts failed them and they were afraid, saying to one another, ‘What is this that God has done to us?’” They said, ‘Now we are really going to be in trouble.’

Verse 34, “And bring your youngest brother to me; so I shall know that you are not spies, but that you are honest men. And I will deliver your brother to you, and you may trade in the land.”

Genesis 43:1, “Now the famine was severe in the land. And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the grain which they had brought from Egypt, that their father said to them, ‘Go back, buy us a little food.’” They had to go back or starve.

Verse 3, “But Judah spoke to him, saying, ‘The man solemnly warned us, saying, “You shall not see my face unless your brother is with you.”’” He’s going to throw us in jail again.

Verse 8, “Then Judah said to Israel his father, ‘Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go, that we may live and not die, both we and you and also our children.’” He said, ‘Let him go with me. I will be responsible for him.’ So finally he let him go back.

Verses 12-14, “Take double money in your hand, and take back in your hand the money that was returned in the mouth of your sacks; perhaps it was an oversight. Take your brother also, and arise, go back to the man. And may God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may release your other brother and Benjamin. If I am bereaved, I am bereaved.” They took double money and they came down.

Verse 16, Joseph saw Benjamin with them.

Verse 30, “Now his heart yearned for his brother; so Joseph made haste and sought somewhere to weep...”

Joseph feeds his brothers.

Verse 33, “And they sat before him, the firstborn according to his birthright and the youngest according to his youth; and the men looked in astonishment at one another.” He had them seated from the firstborn to the youngest. They marveled that he knew the order they were born.

Genesis 44:1-2, “...‘Fill the men’s sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put each man’s money in the mouth of his sack. Also put my cup, the silver cup, in the mouth of the sack of the youngest, and his grain money....” He said, ‘Put my cup in the sack of the youngest.’ They found it in Benjamin’s sack. Joseph was testing them.

To what extent had they changed their character? There was no doubt that Benjamin was the favorite. He had the cup planted in Benjamin’s sack. He wanted to see their attitude and how they would respond. He wanted to see if they would treat Benjamin the way they had treated him.

Verses 30-34, “Now therefore, when I come to your servant my father, and the lad is not with us, since his life is bound up in the lad’s life, it will happen, when he sees that the lad is not with us, that he will die. So your servants will bring down the gray hair of your servant our father with sorrow to the grave. For your servant became surety for the lad to my father, saying, ‘If I do not bring him back to you, then I shall bear the blame before my father forever.’” Now therefore, please let your servant remain instead of the lad as a slave to my lord, and let the lad go up with his brothers. For how shall I go up to my father if the lad is not with me, lest perhaps I see the evil that would come upon my father?”

Judah said, ‘I will take responsibility. I said that I would do it. Our father just won’t be able to take it. I will stay here instead of the lad. If you want to punish somebody, I will be the slave in his stead.’ You think maybe Judah had learned over the years? There was a change. He had put them to the test.

Genesis 45:1-4, “Then Joseph could not restrain himself before all those who stood by him, and he cried out, ‘Make everyone go out from me!’ So no one stood with him while Joseph made himself known to his brothers. And he wept aloud, and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard it. Then Joseph said to his brothers, ‘I am Joseph; does my father still live?’ But his brothers could not answer him, for they were dismayed in his presence. And Joseph said to his brothers, ‘Please come near to me.’ And they came near. And he said, ‘I am Joseph your brother whom you sold into Egypt.’”

Joseph could no longer restrain himself as he saw the attitude displayed. He told them he was Joseph whom they sold into Egypt.

Verses 5-8, “But now, do not therefore be grieved or angry with yourselves because you sold me here; for God sent me before you to preserve life. For these two years the famine has been in the land and there are still five years in which there will be neither plowing nor harvesting. And God sent me before you to preserve a posterity for you in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance. So now it was not you who sent me here, but God; and He has made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.” He said, ‘God has blessed me.’

Verse 9, “Hasten and go up to my father, and say to him, ‘Thus says your son Joseph: God has made me lord of all Egypt; come down to me, do not tarry.’” ‘Go to my father and tell him God has made him lord of Egypt and come down. Tell my father what you see.’

Verse 11, “There I will provide for you....”

Verse 13, “So you shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that you have seen; and you shall hasten and bring my father down here.”

Verses 16-19, Pharaoh was happy because Joseph’s brothers were there.

They went back to tell Jacob.

Verse 26, “And they told him saying, ‘Joseph is still alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt.’ And Jacob’s heart stood still because he did not believe them.”

Verses 27-28, “But when they told him all the words Joseph had said to them, and when he saw the carts which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived. Then Israel said, ‘It is enough; Joseph my son is still alive. I will go and see him before I die.’”

Genesis 46:2, “Then God spoke to Israel in the visions of the night and said, ‘Jacob, Jacob!’ And he said, ‘Here I am.’” God spoke to Jacob that night.

Verses 3-4, “And He said, ‘I am God, the God of your father; do not fear to go down to Egypt, for I will make of you a great nation there. I will go down with you into Egypt, and I will also surely bring you up again; and Joseph will put his hand on your eyes.’”

Verses 5-25 list all the children and the grandchildren who went to Egypt.

Verse 26, “All the persons who went with Jacob to Egypt, who came from his body, besides Jacob’s sons’ wives, were sixty-six persons in all.” Sixty-six descendants of Jacob came into Egypt.

Verse 27, “And the sons of Joseph who were born to him in Egypt were two persons. All the persons of the house of Jacob who went to Egypt were seventy.” Sixty-six plus Jacob, Joseph and two sons made seventy.

Acts 7:14, “Then Joseph sent and called his father Jacob and all his relatives to him, seventy-five people.” Some have thought this was a contradiction.

Let me call it to your attention.

Acts 7:14, “...Jacob and all his relatives to him, seventy-five people.” Yet in Genesis 46:26, all the souls were sixty-six. What is the difference? The seventy-five persons mentioned in Acts 7:14 include the sixty-six in Genesis 46:26, plus nine wives of Jacob’s eleven sons who were coming into Egypt. Commentaries agree that the wives of Judah and Simeon died prior to this. So, only nine of the remaining sons—excluding Joseph, who was already in Egypt—had their wives. The difference is it says in Acts 7:14, “...all his relatives...” which would include the daughters-in-law. In Genesis 46:26, they “...came from his body...”—sons, grandsons and great grandsons. The Bible does not contradict itself. Sometimes the story is told from a different standpoint. The details all fit together. It is just a matter of getting the story together.

Genesis 46:32-34, ““And the men are shepherds, for their occupation has been to feed livestock”...So it shall be, when Pharaoh calls you and says, “What is your occupation?” that you shall say, “Your servants’ occupation has been with livestock from our youth even till now, both we and also our fathers,” that you may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is an abomination to the Egyptians.”” Joseph told Jacob when he came before Pharaoh to tell him they were shepherds. The Hyksos were shepherd kings. The Egyptians despised shepherds. They disdained that as an occupation.

Genesis 47:6, ““The land of Egypt is before you. Have your father and brothers dwell in the best of the land; let them dwell in the land of Goshen. And if you know any competent men among them, then make them chief herdsmen over my livestock.”” Pharaoh gave them an area away from the Egyptian proper—a bountiful place for their crops, the best of the land, but away from the people.

Verse 9, Jacob was one hundred-thirty years old at this time, the second year of the famine (Genesis 45:6). We are able to date it from this.

Verse 28, “And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years. So the length of Jacob’s life was one hundred forty seven years.”

In Genesis 48:1, toward the end of Jacob’s life, Joseph took Ephraim and Manasseh and brought them before Jacob.

Genesis 48:5, ““And now your two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, who were born to you in the land of Egypt before I came to you in Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.”” ‘I want them to be my sons. They are going to inherit right along with the others.’ Joseph was given the birthright and a double portion.

I Chronicles 5:1, “...Reuben the firstborn of Israel—he was indeed the first born, but because he defiled his father’s bed, his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel, so that the genealogy is not listed according to the birthright.” Each of the two sons was to inherit as a full tribe.

Verses 10-14, “Now the eyes of Israel were dim with age, so that he could not see. Then Joseph brought them near him, and he kissed them and embraced them. And Israel said to Joseph, ‘I had not thought to see your face; but in fact, God has also shown me your offspring!’” So Joseph brought them from beside his knees, and he bowed down with his face to the earth. And Joseph took them both, Ephraim with his right hand toward Israel’s left hand, and Manasseh with his left hand toward Israel’s right hand, and brought them near him. Then Israel stretched out his right hand and laid it on Ephraim’s head, who was the younger, and his left hand on Manasseh’s head, guiding his hands knowingly, for Manasseh was the firstborn.” —“...guiding his hands knowingly.” His father crossed his hands. He knew what he was doing.

Verses 17-18, “Now when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand on the head of Ephraim, it displeased him; so he took hold of his father’s hand to remove it from Ephraim’s head to Manasseh’s head. And Joseph said to his father, ‘Not so, my father, for this one is the firstborn: put your right hand on his head.’” He said, ‘Dad, you have it the wrong way. You have your hands on the wrong one.’

Verse 19, “But his father refused and said, ‘I know my son, I know, [He refused and said, ‘I know it. I am doing so knowingly.’] He [Manasseh] also shall become a people, and he also shall be great, but truly his younger brother [Ephraim] shall be greater than he, and his descendants shall become a multitude of nations.’” The younger brother was going to be greater of the two. His seed shall become a multitude of nations.

Verses 15-16, “And he blessed Joseph, and said: ‘God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac walked, the God who has fed me all my life long to this day, the Angel who has redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; let my name be named upon them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.” The name Israel refers in a very special way in prophecy. Verse 19 says Manasseh was to be a great nation, and Ephraim “...shall be greater than he, and his descendants shall become a multitude of nations.”

Genesis 49:1, “And Jacob called his sons and said, ‘Gather together, that I may tell you what shall befall you in the last days.’” Notice the setting of these words. Not what is going to happen in a few years but in the last days. It is very clear that the prophecy in Genesis 49 is for our time, not something that related back at that time.

As I said at the beginning, Genesis 49 is the most significant single chapter. It is prophetic. It deals with every tribe of Israel in the last days. This shows that they were to remain separate, identifiable nations even into the end time and right on down to the specific promise that Ephraim would become a great company of nations and Manasseh a great nation. The tribes of Israel were going to exist as separate, identical units all the way to the end; a different fate was to befall every one of the tribes. They were clearly not going to be all the same people, in a sense of what happened to the Jews.

Questions

1. What mistake on Jacob’s part led to some of the resentment that Joseph’s brothers showed toward him?

Open favoritism.

2. What did Joseph himself do that aggravated the problem?

He dreamed dreams, and he told it to his brothers that they would bow down to him.

3. Was Judah a believer in the double standard? Prove.

Yes. Genesis 38:15-18, “When Judah saw her, he thought she was a harlot because she had covered her face. Then he turned to her by the way and said, ‘Please let me come in to you’; for he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law. So she said, ‘What will you give me, that you may come in to me?’ And he said, ‘I will send you a young goat from the flock.’ And she said, ‘Will you give me a pledge, till you send it?’ Then he said, ‘What pledge shall I give you?’ So she said ‘Your signet and cord and your staff that is in your hand.’ Then he gave it to her and came in to her and she conceived by him.”

Verses 24-26, “And it came to pass, about three months later, that Judah was told, saying, ‘Tamar your daughter-in-law has played the harlot; furthermore she is with child by harlotry.’ So Judah said, ‘Bring her out and let her be burned!’ When she was brought out, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, ‘By the man to whom these belong, I am with child.’ And she said, ‘Please determine whose these are—the signet and cord, and staff.’ So Judah acknowledged them and said, ‘She has been more righteous than I, because I did not give her to Shelah my son.’ And he never knew her again.”

4. What was the significance of the “scarlet thread”?

This was important because the firstborn would receive the scepter promise.

5. What happened to Joseph in the twenty years that elapsed between his sale into Egypt and the next time that they saw him?

After being sold into Egypt, he was sold to Potiphar and ended up in jail. He interpreted dreams and was given great position and rulership.

6. What was the significance of Pharaoh’s dream?

It showed there was to be seven years of plenty and seven years of drought to immediately follow. He had two dreams to emphasize.

7. What did Joseph recommend doing in preparation for the famine?

He recommended storing up twenty percent of the harvest for seven years and selling it during the years of famine.

8. How did Joseph get his brothers to bring Benjamin back to Egypt?

He told them he suspected them of being spies and would not sell them grain until they brought back his younger brother.

9. In what way did Joseph test his brothers to see how they had changed over the years since they had callously sold him into slavery?

He told them he suspected them after they were ready to leave. He told his steward to put his personal cup in Benjamin’s sack. He wanted to see if they were willing to sacrifice for Benjamin and to see if they had learned their lesson. There was a change. He had put them to the test.

10. How old was Jacob when he came into Egypt?

Jacob was one hundred thirty years old (Genesis 47:9).

11. What land was given Jacob and his family when they entered Egypt?

It was the land of Goshen (Genesis 47:6), the area in which the Suez Canal was constructed by the birthright nations. France had a first opportunity, but it belonged to the British.

12. What was the significance of Jacob crossing his hands on the heads of Ephraim and Manasseh when he blessed them?

His right hand, with the greater blessing, was given to Ephraim. Manasseh, the firstborn, became a great single and powerful nation. But Ephraim became the greatest empire the world has ever seen. In a period of, basically, over a century, one-fourth of the land's surface and one-fourth of the people were British subjects. They controlled all the strategic sea gates except Panama, and we (U.S.) controlled that. Now it is a chaotic mess. Israel, as a whole, does not appreciate what God gave them. Israel was intended to be used as a blessing to other nations.

13. Who, according to Scripture, would the name of Israel primarily apply to in prophecy?

Ephraim and Manasseh (Genesis 48:16).

14. To what time period do the prophecies of Genesis 49 apply?

It applies to the end time (Genesis 49:1).

Reuben: Genesis 49:3-4, “Reuben, you are my firstborn, my might and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity and the excellency of power. Unstable as water, you shall not excel, because you went up to your father's bed; then you defiled it—he went up to my couch.” ‘Reuben, you are the beginning; you are the starter.’ France has been known for culture, protocol and etiquette. No one can hold up to the reputation that France has had in terms of culture, dignity and protocol—a pride in excellence and in power.

One of the unstable things is the government of France. It is called the fifth republic. At a time when we are celebrating the first constitution, France has had about ten: the first and second republic, Napoleon the third, the fourth and DeGaulle the fifth republic—basically ten constitutions in all. They are unstable. There is a certain instability that has been there that has tended to be characteristic. They were the starting point.

There is a certain rivalry between Reuben and Judah—between France and Britain. The French were in Panama first. Somehow, it just went through their hands. There has been that quality of going first class, but a certain instability that has been reflected is there. There are problems that have reflected themselves, in terms of morality of the family. They have under-minded what they could have had. Reuben is to be one of the great outstanding nations of Tomorrow's World. They have this greatness; they have all the makings of greatness. They couldn't quite get it together. They did not receive the birthright blessings. It has gone through their hands.

Simeon and Levi: vv. 5-7, “Simeon and Levi are brothers; instruments of cruelty are in their habitation. Let not my soul enter their council; let not my honor be united to their assembly; for in their anger they slew a man, and in their self-will they hamstrung an ox. Cursed be their anger, for it is fierce; and their wrath, for it is cruel! I will divide them in Jacob and scatter them in Israel.” They were instruments of cruelty. They were scattered through the inheritance. They were not to be given a separate nation.

Judah: vv. 8-12, “Judah, you are he whom your brothers shall praise; your hand shall be on the neck of your enemies; your father's children shall bow down before you. Judah is a lion's whelp; from the prey, my son, you have gone up. He bows down; he lies down as a lion; and as a lion, who shall rouse him? The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh comes; and to Him shall be the obedience of the people. Binding his donkey to the vine, and his donkey's colt to the choice vine, he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes. His eyes are darker than wine, and his teeth whiter than milk.”

He was to receive the scepter promise. The royal line in Europe is the descendant of Judah. The major promise given to Judah was the scepter promise. Judah has received the scepter.

Zebulun: v. 13, “Zebulun shall dwell by the haven of the sea; he shall become a haven for ships, and his border shall adjoin Sidon.” As you look in northwest Europe, where the tribes settle the area of the Netherlands (the very word “nether” refers to “that brought back from the sea”), you see Rotterdam and Amsterdam, the greatest seaports in the world—a haven for ships.

Issachar: vv. 14-15, “Issachar is a strong donkey, lying down between two burdens; he saw that rest was good, and that the land was pleasant; he bowed his shoulder to bear a burden, and became a band of slaves [KJV, “tribute”].” This describes Finland, crouching between Russia and the West—Russia breathing down their necks and the West putting pressure. They have been willing to pay tribute rather than fight, which are certain family characteristics. You would never imagine the Irish doing that.

Dan: vv. 16-18: “Dan shall judge his people as one of the tribes of Israel. Dan shall be a serpent by the way, a viper by the path that bites the horse’s heels so that its rider shall fall backward. I have waited for your salvation, O Lord!” “I wait for Your salvation, O Lord!” He was excluded from the one hundred forty-four thousand (Revelation 17), so he waits. Dan is like a serpent by the way. A serpent, when it goes, leaves its mark, a writhing, wiggling pattern. When they migrated, they named places after their ancestor Dan, all the way from up in the area of the Black Sea to, ultimately, Ireland. They went through Dan’s mark (Denmark), the Danube River and all the way up into Ireland. They have had certain proclivities in judging the people. They have been politicians and policemen, especially along the East Coast. When you think of the Irishmen, you think law and politics. “A serpent by the way”—that’s the way they have been toward Britain. The IRA and the situation come right down to today.

Gad: v. 19, “Gad, a troop shall tramp upon him, but he shall triumph at last.” Deuteronomy gives us more prophecies about the tribes.

Deuteronomy 33:21, “He provided the first part for himself, because a lawgiver’s portion was reserved there. He came with the heads of the people; he administered the justice of the Lord, and his judgments with Israel.” He executed justice and judgment. Switzerland is the nation of the troop. It has been said that it is a nation that does not have an army; it is an army. “Gad” means “troop.” On a per capita basis, it is the most heavily armed nation in the world and not entangling themselves with others.

Asher: v. 20, “Bread from Asher shall be rich, and he shall yield royal dainties.” –The area of Belgium. It describes everything from Belgium lace, chocolate and porcelains. It is also known for diamonds (Antwerp became the diamond capital) and trade. Deuteronomy 33 gives some parallels.

Deuteronomy 33:24, “And of Asher he said: ‘Let Asher be blessed of sons; let him be favored by his brothers, and let him dip his foot in oil. Your sandals shall be iron and bronze; as your days so shall your strength be.’”

Naphtali: v. 21, “Naphtali is a deer let loose; he gives goodly words.” Naphtali is a female deer with promiscuous behavior. What is Sweden noted for? Goodly words—the Nobel Prize.

Joseph: vv. 22-26, “Joseph is a fruitful bough, a fruitful bough by a well; his branches run over the wall. The archers have bitterly grieved him, shot at him and hated him. But his bow remained in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the Mighty God of Jacob (From there is the Shepherd, the Stone of Israel), by the God of your father who will help you, and by the Almighty who will bless you with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lies beneath, blessings of the breasts and of the womb. The blessings of your father have excelled the blessings of my ancestors, up to the utmost bound of the everlasting hills. They shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him who was separate from his brothers.” –Growing up and spreading out, a colonizing people. It describes what is going to occur with Joseph. It was to be a colonizing nation.

Benjamin: v. 27, “Benjamin is a ravenous wolf; in the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil.” The Vikings sailed under the wolf insignia—Norway and Denmark.

15. What major promise was given to Judah? The scepter promise was given to Judah.

16. What is the significance of Genesis 49:22? They would be growing and spreading out—a colonizing people.

Genesis 49:33, Jacob died.

Genesis 50:5-9, ““My father made me swear, saying, ‘Behold, I am dying; in my grave which I dug for myself in the land of Canaan, there you shall bury me.’ Now therefore, please let me go up and bury my father and I will come back.” And Pharaoh said, ‘Go up and bury your father, as he made you swear.’ So Joseph went up to bury his father, and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt, as well as all the house of Joseph, his brothers and his father’s house. Only their little ones, their flocks, and their herds they left in the land of Goshen. And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen, and it was a very great gathering.”

Verses 13-14, “For his sons carried him to the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre, which Abraham bought with the field from Ephron the Hittite as property for a burial place. And after they buried his father, Joseph returned to Egypt, he and his brothers and all who went up with him to bury his father.”

Verse 15, “When Joseph’s brothers saw that their father was dead, they said, ‘Perhaps Joseph will hate us, and may actually repay us for all the evil which we did to him.’” They figured Joseph was going to get even with them now that their father was dead.

Verses 19-21, “Joseph said to them, ‘Do not be afraid, for am I in the place of God? But as for you, you meant evil against me; but God meant it for good, in order to bring it about, as it is this day, to save many people alive. Now therefore, do not be afraid; I will provide for you and your little ones.’ And he comforted them and spoke kindly to them.” Joseph said, ‘I will take care of you.’

Verse 22, “So Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he and his father’s household. And Joseph lived one hundred and ten years.”

Verses 24-26, “And Joseph said to his brethren, ‘I am dying; but God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land, to the land of which He swore to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.’ Then Joseph took an oath from the children of Israel, saying, ‘God will surely visit you, and you shall carry up my bones from here.’ So Joseph died, being one hundred and ten years old; and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.” Joseph died in faith and said, ‘I want to go into the Promised Land when you go.’ In Exodus they brought Joseph’s remains when the children of Israel left Egypt (Exodus 13:19).

We have gone through a major section as a survey. I would refer you back to some material. Go through the study questions and the Bible Story Book, a running commentary on the material, and the booklet, What’s Ahead for America and Britain?

We have had, in the book of Genesis, some things that lay a foundation in understanding prophecy, and all of the things that come after. Without a foundation—the book of Genesis—you can’t understand prophecy. We also have, in the context of this kind of material, things they did, the good things and the bad. And from that we also might learn lessons and recognize that there are child-rearing principles and examples that were inspired to be written down.

In this Bible study, we will be covering the first eighteen chapters which deals with the Exodus per se. Joseph had come to power under the Hyksos rulers of Egypt. Joseph died in 1611 B.C. Within a period of time of about fifty years after Joseph's death, the Hyksos were overthrown and expelled from Egypt. The Dynasty of Thebes XVIII, of Ethiopian origin, came into power in 1567 B.C. (see chart). Some of the common names you will notice are "Moses," "Amose," "Tutmose," etc., being found in the dynasty, the dynasty logical to find Moses—and this is where we find him.

Dynasty XVIII was the dynasty of the oppression. They began systematically oppressing the children of Israel for about forty years, to the time that brings us to the birth of Moses. Hatshepsowe was the Pharaoh's daughter who adopted Moses. She died during the same year that Moses was forced to flee Egypt. Once she was dead, Moses was unsafe in Egypt. The idea of a prince of Egypt being indicted on a murder charge was unusual. Thutmose III was Hatshepsowe's stepson. She had been the regent on the throne until he became an adult. He became kind of a co-ruler. After Hatshepsowe's death, Moses' stepbrother was in full charge, and there was a great deal of rivalry. From 1483-1443 B.C., Moses stayed away. Amenhotep II (1450-1425 B.C.) was the Pharaoh of the Exodus.

Exodus 1 picks up the story, as Genesis left off, with the names of the children of Israel.

Exodus 1:1-6, "Now these are the names of the children of Israel who came to Egypt; each man and his household came with Jacob: Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, Benjamin; Dan, Naphtali, Gad and Asher. All those who were descendants of Jacob were seventy persons (for Joseph was in Egypt already). And Joseph died, all his brothers, and all that generation." Joseph died and all his brethren. The family had been there for seventy-one years. (Israel came into Egypt in 1682 B.C.; Joseph died in 1611 B.C.) You had in excess of three generations that would have been born during that time.

Verse 7, "But the children of Israel were fruitful and increased abundantly, multiplied and grew exceedingly mighty; and the land was filled with them." The family increased tremendously. They began to literally multiply out.

After the death of Joseph there was a period of about fifty more years during which some of his brothers outlived him and the Hyksos were expelled. Then for fifty more years they multiplied. By the time the Hyksos were expelled, they were a large and sizeable community.

Verses 8-14, "Now there arose a new king over Egypt, who did not know Joseph. And he said to his people, 'Look the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we; come, let us deal wisely with them, lest they multiply, and it happen, in the event of war, that they also join our enemies and fight against us, and so go out of the land.' Therefore they set taskmasters over them to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh supply cities, Pithom and Raamses. But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were in dread of the children of Israel. So the Egyptians made the children of Israel serve with rigor. And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage—in mortar, in bricks, and in all manner of service in the field. All their service in which they made them serve was with rigor."

The Egyptians systematically made the situation worse. Work gangs and various restrictive laws were passed over a period of about forty-five years; they even attempted wiping out the nation by destroying the male children (vv. 15-22).

Verses 8-22 are a consolidation and summary of a fifty-year period. A lot can happen in fifty years.

Exodus 2:1-6, "And a man of the house of Levi went and took as wife a daughter of Levi. So the woman conceived and bore a son. And when she saw that he was a beautiful child, she hid him three months. But when she could no longer hide him, she took an ark of bulrushes for him, daubed it with asphalt and pitch, put the child in it, and laid it in the reeds in the river's bank. And his sister [Miriam] stood afar off, to know what would be done to him. Then the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river. And her maidens walked along the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the reeds, she sent her maid to get it. And when she had opened it, she saw the child, and behold, the baby wept. So she had compassion on him, and said, 'this is one of the Hebrews' children.'"

Hatshepsowe came down to bathe, saw him and adopted him. God had planned for Moses' training. Miriam was nearby watching.

Verse 7, “Then his sister said to Pharaoh’s daughter, ‘Shall I go and call a nurse for you from the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for you?’” She went back and got her mother (v. 8).

Here, Moses’ mother was able to raise Moses under the protection of Pharaoh’s daughter. You see how God worked things out to make sure that Moses was brought up with a knowledge and understanding of God’s truth. He grew up being taught by his mother and yet being reared in Pharaoh’s court with the best education that was available and offered to a prince of Egypt.

Hebrews 11:24-27, “By faith Moses, when he became of age, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh’s daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the passing pleasures of sin, esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt; for he looked to the reward. By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king, for he endured as seeing Him who is invisible.”

He cast his lot with the children of Israel. He had to make a decision. With whom was he going to identify—with Egypt or with God, what He was doing and the people of God.

Exodus 2:11-12, “Now it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out to his brethren and looked at their burdens. And he saw an Egyptian beating a Hebrew, one of his brethren. So he looked this way and that way, and when he saw no one, he killed the Egyptian and hid him in the sand.”

Verse 13, word spread very quickly.

Verse 14, “Then he said, ‘Who made you a prince and a judge over us? Do you intend to kill me as you killed the Egyptian?’ So Moses feared and said, ‘Surely this thing is known!’” Moses knew that this thing was known; he knew that his step-mother was dead and would not be able to protect him. He also knew Thutmose III looked at him as a rival. He got out of Egypt.

Verse 15, “When Pharaoh heard of this matter, he sought to kill Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian....”

The Midianites were the descendants of Abraham. After Sarah’s death he married Keturah (Genesis 25:1). The Midianites were descendants of Abraham and Keturah. They were the same stock of people as the Israelites. That is why we find this priest of Midian with the knowledge of the true God. Moses married one of the daughters (v. 21).

Exodus 2:23-24, “Now it happened in the process of time that the king of Egypt died. Then the children groaned because of the bondage, and they cried out; and their cry came up to God because of the bondage. So God heard their groaning and God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.” The situation was continuing to deteriorate.

Exodus 3:1, “Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, the priest of Midian....” “Jethro” was a title that meant “excellency,” a title of respect.

The story of the burning bush is told.

Verse 2, “And the Angel of the Lord appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush. So he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, but the bush was not consumed.” God began to speak to him out of the bush.

Verses 5-9, “Then He said, ‘Do not draw near this place. Take your sandals off your feet, for the place where you stand is holy ground.’ Moreover He said, ‘I am the God of your father—the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.’ And Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to look upon God. And the Lord said: ‘I have surely seen the oppression of My people who are in Egypt, and have heard their cry because of their taskmasters, for I know their sorrows. So I have come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up from that land to a good and large land, to a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites. Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel has come to Me, and I have also seen the oppression with which the Egyptians oppress them.’”

Verses 10-11, “Come now, therefore, and I will send you to Pharaoh that you may bring My people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt. But Moses said to God, ‘Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh [Excuse: I am not important enough.], and that I should bring the children of Israel out of Egypt.’”

Verses 12-14, “So He said, ‘I will certainly be with you [yes, you can; I will be with you.]. And this shall be a sign to you that I have sent you: When you have brought the people out of Egypt, you shall serve God on this mountain.’ Then Moses said to God, ‘Indeed, when I come to the children of Israel and say to them, “The God of your fathers has sent me to you,” and they say to me, “What is His name?” What shall I tell them?’ [Excuse: I don’t know what to call Him.] And God said to Moses, ‘I AM WHO I AM.’ And He said, ‘Thus you shall say to the children, ‘I AM has sent me to you.’” ‘The I AM, THE EVERLASTING ONE has sent you.’

Exodus 4:1-4, “Then Moses answered and said, ‘But suppose they will not believe me or listen to my voice; suppose they say, “The Lord has not appeared to you.”’ [Excuse: They won’t believe me.] So the Lord said to him, ‘What is that in your hand?’ And he said, ‘A rod.’ And He said, ‘Cast it on the ground.’ So he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent. Then the Lord said to Moses, ‘Reach out your hand and take it by the tail’ (and he reached out his hand and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand).” Just a stick! A real test! I imagine he had to think about that one.

Verses 6-7, “...‘Now put your hand in your bosom.’ And he put his hand in his bosom, and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous, like snow. And He said, ‘put your hand in your bosom again.’ So he put his hand in his bosom again, and drew it out of his bosom, and behold, it was restored like his other flesh.”

Verse 9, “And it shall be, if they do not believe even these two signs, or listen to your voice, that you shall take water from the river and pour it on the dry land. And the water which you take from the river will become blood on the dry land.”

These were three miracles to strengthen Moses.

Verse 10, “Then Moses said to the Lord, ‘O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither before nor since You have spoken to Your servant; but I am slow of speech and slow of tongue’” [Excuse: I am not a good speaker.]. God was not well pleased with Moses’ excuses. When God has a job for you, and you start making excuses, God doesn’t like that.

Verses 11-13, “So the Lord said to him, ‘Who has made man’s mouth? Or who makes the mute, the deaf, the seeing, or the blind? Have not I, the Lord? Now therefore, go, and I will be with your mouth and teach you what you shall say.’ But he said, ‘O my Lord, please send by the hand of whomever else You may send’” [Excuse: I can’t do it and don’t want to; can’t You send someone else?].

Verses 14-20, “So the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses, and He said: ‘Is not Aaron the Levite your brother? I know that he can speak well. [God is getting pretty fed up with this. Moses was probably saying, ‘I don’t remember how to speak Egyptian.’] And look, he is also coming out to meet you. [Now go! You get there and meet him.] When he sees you, he will be glad in his heart. Now you shall speak to him and put the words in his mouth. And I will be with your mouth and with his mouth, and I will teach you what you shall do. So he shall be your spokesman to the people. And he himself shall be as a mouth for you, and you shall be to him as God. And you shall take this rod in your hand, with which you shall do the signs.’ So Moses went and returned to Jethro his father-in-law, and said to him, ‘Please let me go and return to my brethren who are in Egypt, and see whether they are still alive.’ And Jethro said to Moses, ‘Go in peace.’ And the Lord said to Moses in Midian, ‘Go, return to Egypt, for all the men are dead who sought your life.’ Then Moses took his wife and his sons and set them on a donkey, and he returned to the land of Egypt...”

Verse 24, “And it came to pass on the way, at the encampment, that the Lord met him and sought to kill him.” The point is God waited to see how long this thing would go. Moses was the meekest man in all the earth. Mrs. Moses wasn’t the meekest woman in all the earth. She had not wanted the children circumcised; Moses had given in for her to have her way.

God has standards He expects. Here was someone going back claiming to represent God and telling Israelites what to do, and he had not even exercised it in his own family. He was ready to cross the border never having circumcised his son. God struck him down sick to where he became deathly ill. It was apparent, ‘You are going to do it, or you are going to die. Do what I called you to do. The reason you draw breath on this earth is for the job I called you to do.’

Verse 25, “Then Zipporah took a sharp stone and cut off the foreskin of her son and cast it at Moses’ feet, and said, ‘Surely you are a husband of blood to me!’” Interestingly enough, God allowed Moses to be so sick that Zipporah had to do it herself.

Verse 26, “So He let him go. Then she said, ‘You are a husband of blood!’—because of the circumcision.” She was probably in a “wonderful” attitude about this.

Exodus 5:1-2, “Afterward Moses and Aaron went in and told Pharaoh, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Let My people go, that they may hold a feast to Me in the wilderness.”’” And Pharaoh said, ‘Who is the Lord, that I should obey His voice to let Israel go? I do not know the Lord, nor will I let Israel go.’”

He said, ‘Who is the Eternal that I should obey His voice? I don’t know anything about this YHWH.’ These were famous last words. God made Himself very well known to Pharaoh, to where he did not have any doubt as to whom God was. God introduced Himself here. The ultimate plan and purpose was to lead Israel out, but that was not the first thing Moses told him.

Verse 3, “So they said, ‘The God of the Hebrews has met with us. Please, let us go three days’ journey into the desert and sacrifice to the Lord our God...’” —To journey into the wilderness to serve God.

There are several lessons we can learn here. One of the things that you notice as you go through, this fellow wanted them to compromise.

Pharaoh gave three compromises to Exodus 5.

Exodus 5:1, “Let us go into the wilderness...”

(1) Exodus 8:25, “Then Pharaoh called Moses and Aaron, and said, ‘Go, sacrifice to your God in the land.’” ‘Why don’t you serve Him here?’

(2) Exodus 10:11, “... ‘Go now, you who are men, and serve the Lord, for that is what you desired.’” ‘You go and serve Him and let the kids stay behind.’

(3) Exodus 10:24, “Then Pharaoh called to Moses and said, ‘Go, serve the Lord; only let your flocks and your herds be kept back. Let your little ones also go with you.’” ‘You go and take the kids but let the animals stay behind. I’ll keep your resources.’

When you get ready to serve God, the devil wants you to do it on his terms. He wants you to stay here in Egypt. You cannot remain a part of this world, spiritual Egypt, and serve God. You have to come out. ‘Well, at least let me keep your kids.’ He doesn’t want you to do it; but if you do it, do it in a compromising way. ‘Give me your kids and go yourself.’ ‘I would like to keep your resources; you will have so many ties, you will come back.’ It is a parallel to the Christian life of coming out of Egypt.

Pharaoh’s original response was:

Exodus 5:17-18, “But he said, ‘You are idle! You are idle! Therefore you say, “Let us go and sacrifice to the Lord.” Therefore go now and work...’” ‘You obviously have too much time on your hands.’

Verse 21, “And they said to them, ‘Let the Lord look on you and judge, because you have made us abhorrent in the sight of Pharaoh and in the sight of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to kill us.’” They said, ‘You have us in enough trouble. We want God to solve our problems, but we want Him to do it our way.’ In the process of the delivery, the temperature began to get turned up. They were continually complaining.

Exodus 6:1, “Then the Lord said to Moses, ‘Now you shall see what I will do to Pharaoh...’” As we go through the account, God told Moses, ‘You are going to see what I am going to do to Pharaoh.’

Exodus 7:5, ““And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch My hand on Egypt and bring out the children of Israel from among them.”” ‘They are going to know who I am.’

How did God harden Pharaoh’s heart? Pharaoh asked that they take the problem away, and when God removed the problem, then he said to himself, ‘that is probably the worse He can do.’ Every time the pressure was off, he hardened his heart.

Then we go through the ten plagues God sent Egypt:

(1) He turned the Nile to blood (Exodus 7:20-21). They worshipped it as a god. They viewed it as a life-giver; God was the giver of life. The first thing He did was to turn their god into the river of death.

(2) Frogs came upon the land (Exodus 8:5-6). They worshipped the frog as the god of wisdom. You will have frogs everywhere. It wasn’t long before they were killing their gods. God was showing them that the things they looked to and worshipped were no god.

(3) Lice came on man and beast (Exodus 8:16-17). They prided themselves on cleanliness.

(4) Flies swarmed (Exodus 8:24).

(5) Livestock died (Exodus 9:6). They worshipped the cows. There is a lot of correlation between the Hindu religion of India and the religion of Egypt. The Eastern branch of the Cushites was in India, and the Western branch was in Upper Egypt in Ethiopia.

(6) Boils broke out in sores (Exodus 9:10). They really prided themselves on their great medical skills.

(7) Hail came throughout the land (Exodus 9:22).

(8) Locusts covered the earth (Exodus 10:13).

(9) Darkness blotted out the sun (Exodus 10:21). The god of Egypt was the sun god; He blotted out their god. God was getting their attention. Moses was continuing to go to Pharaoh. Pharaoh kept backing down. Then the final plague:

(10) Death of the firstborns (Exodus 12:29).

At what point did He make a clear-cut division between the Israelites and the Egyptians?

Exodus 8:22-23, ““And in that day, I will set apart the land of Goshen, in which My people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there, in order that you may know that I am the Lord in the midst of the land. I will make a difference between My people and your people. Tomorrow this sign shall be.” The difference was between the third and the fourth plagues. One of the things to note is that God did not isolate His people from all the problems. They suffered from the plagues. As our society goes “down the drain,” we will be affected to, but there will come a time when there will be a clear distinction. In terms of land, Israel was apart.

Exodus 11:1, “And the Lord said to Moses, ‘I will bring yet one more plague on Pharaoh and on Egypt. Afterwards he will let you go from here....’”

Verses 4-5, “Then Moses said, ‘Thus says the Lord: About midnight I will go out into the midst of Egypt; And all the firstborn in the land of Egypt shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sits on the throne, even to the firstborn of the maidservant who is behind the hand-mill, and all the firstborn of the beasts.’”

The origin of the term “Passover” is in Exodus 12.

Exodus 12:13, “Now the blood shall be a sign for you on the houses where you are. And when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be on you to destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt.”

God gave Israel instructions. On this final plague, He was going to send the death angel to pass through the land of Egypt, and all the firstborn would die (11:4-5). If you didn’t want to die, you would have to kill a lamb and put the blood on the doorposts. All those underneath the blood of the lamb, the death angel would pass over (12:13). The only way they could be exempted from death was to be dwelling underneath the blood of the lamb. If you were, He would pass over you and not smite the firstborn.

Verse 2, “‘This month shall be your beginning of months; it shall be the first month of the year in you.’” —The month “Abib” means “green ears of grain” or “new beginnings.”

Verses 3-8, “Speak to the congregation of Israel, saying; ‘On the tenth day of this month every man shall take for himself a lamb, according to the house of his father, a lamb for a household. And if the household is too small for the lamb, let him and his neighbor next to his house take it according to the number of the persons; according to each man’s need you shall make your count for the lamb. Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year. You may take it from the sheep or from the goats. Now you shall keep it until the fourteenth day of the same month. Then the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it at twilight.

And they shall take some of the blood and put it on the two doorposts and on the lintel of the houses where they eat it. Then they shall eat the flesh on that night; roasted in fire, with unleavened bread and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.” They were to kill it at twilight, between sunset and total darkness.

Verse 9, “‘Do not eat it raw, nor boiled at all with water, but roasted in fire—its head with its legs and its entrails.’” It was not to be eaten raw, but roasted with fire; the entire animal is to be saved.

Verses 10-11, “‘You shall let none of it remain until morning, and what remains of it until morning you shall burn with fire. And thus you shall eat it: with a belt on your waist, your sandals on your feet, and your staff in your hand. So you shall eat it in haste. It is the Lord’s Passover.’” It is to be eaten in haste.

Verse 12, “‘For I will pass through the land of Egypt on that night, and will strike all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the Lord.’” —“Against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment.” The plagues destroyed the things that the Egyptians worshipped. In the book of Revelation, God is going to execute vengeance against all the gods of modern Egypt. They will be shown to be no gods.

Verse 14, “‘So this day shall be to you a memorial; and you shall keep it as a feast to the Lord throughout your generations. You shall keep it as a feast by an everlasting ordinance.’” —An ordinance forever.

Verse 15 goes through this particular Festival, the Days of Unleavened Bread. Why did Israel roast the lamb with the head, the legs and the entrails? It was bled and the entrails were cleaned out. They were kept in the fire; it was a part of the sacrifice. It was kept whole; there was not a bone broken. It was a whole sacrifice. It was a symbolism of Christ. It was roasted over a hot bed of coals.

We come down to vv. 28-31, “Then the children of Israel went away and did so; just as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron, so they did. And it came to pass at midnight that the Lord struck all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh, who sat on his throne, to the firstborn of the captive who was in the dungeon, and all the firstborn of livestock. So Pharaoh rose in the night, he, all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt, for there was not a house where there was not one dead. Then he called for Moses and Aaron by night [the wee hours of the morning], and said, ‘Rise and go out from among my people, both you and the children of Israel. And go, serve the Lord as you have said.’”

Moses was in an area across the Nile; Pharaoh was in Memphis. So Moses had to cross over to where Pharaoh was. What transpired here was a period of several hours from the death of the firstborn to the time of sending for Moses.

In vv. 35-36, Moses told the Israelites to gather the things that they had. They collected back wages for the things that they had done. This took place during the daylight. They were forming up.

Verse 37, “...about six hundred thousand men on foot, besides children.” You are looking at six hundred thousand families. They spent all day getting loaded up and organized. They had to be notified, and their animals gathered up. They formed up there at Ramses and journeyed to Succoth.

Verse 42, “It is a night of solemn observance to the Lord for bringing them out of the land of Egypt. This is that night of the Lord, a solemn observance for all the children of Israel throughout their generations.” This is the night after the Passover; the night God brought them out.

Verse 40, “Now the sojourn of the children of Israel who lived in Egypt was four hundred and thirty years.” If you just read Exodus, it would be difficult to understand.

Compare Exodus 12:40 with Galatians 3:16-17, “Now to Abraham and his Seed were the promises made. He does not say, ‘And to seeds,’ as of many, but as of one. ‘And to your Seed,’ who is Christ. And this I say, that the law, which was four hundred and thirty years later, cannot annul the covenant that was confirmed before by God, in Christ, that it should make the promise of no effect.” —Confirmed four hundred thirty years later. Confirmed from what? It refers to “the law”; the covenant of Sinai was four hundred thirty years after the covenant with Abraham. The covenant of Sinai was made about six weeks after the Exodus. So from the time God made the covenant with Abraham, until He began to deliver Israel from Egypt, was four hundred thirty years.

Exodus 12:22, “...‘And none of you shall go out of the door of his house until morning.’” They were told to stay inside all night, not to go out till morning.

Verse 28, “Then the children of Israel...did so; just as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron, so they did.” They actually did it! They did what they were told—one of the few times they did what they were told.

You might also compare Numbers 33:3, “...on the day after the Passover, the children of Israel went out with boldness in the sight of all the Egyptians.” They came out the day after the Passover.

We are told in Exodus 12:42 that they came out at night—a night to be much observed, the day after the Passover. It should be pretty apparent, when you put all the scriptures together, that they came out the night after the Passover. Some of the Jews of the New Testament period—the Pharisees and Sadducees—observed the Passover a day later than Jesus and His disciples observed it. The Jews follow their custom; we follow Christ’s custom. You have Christ’s example, which really settles it.

Exodus 13:3-7, “And Moses said to the people: ‘Remember this day in which you went out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage; for by strength of hand the Lord brought you out of this place. No leavened bread shall be eaten. On this day you are going out, in the month Abib. And it shall be, when the Lord brings you into the land of the Canaanites...which He swore to your fathers to give you, a land flowing with milk and honey, that you shall keep this service in this month. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be a feast to the Lord. Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days. And no leavened bread shall be seen among you, nor shall leaven be seen among you in all your quarters.’” —No leavening in all your quarters.

Verses 20-21, “So they took their journey from Succoth...and the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of cloud to lead the way, and by night in a pillar of fire to give them light, so as to go by day and night.”

Verse 18, “So God led the people around by way of the wilderness of the Red Sea. And the children of Israel went up in orderly ranks out of the land of Egypt.” The term “in orderly ranks” (KJV, “harnessed”) means “by five and around.” They lined up and marched, the only efficient way to move that many people. They were lined up by tribe, clan and family. They followed where God led.

Verse 19, “And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him...”

Exodus 14:2, “Speak to the children of Israel, that they turn and camp before Pi Hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, opposite Baal Zephon; you shall camp before it by the sea.” God really led them into a box canyon. South and west there were mountains; east was the Red Sea; and north was the way they came in. It looked impossible. They were led into a bottleneck. There is a point here: God doesn't like "back seat drivers." God will do it His own way. Sometimes we don't see what God is doing. God did it His way.

Exodus 15:26 gives the origin of God's healing covenant, "...If you diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord your God and will do that which is right in His sight, and will give ear to His commandments and keep all His statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon you, which I have brought upon the Egyptians for I am the LORD that heals you." To the extent that Israel would totally yield to Him, He would solve their problems for them and would protect them.

Verse 22, "So Moses brought Israel from the Red Sea; then they went out into the Wilderness of Shur. And they went three days in the wilderness and found no water."

Verse 24, "And the people murmured against Moses, saying, 'What shall we drink?'" Every time problems arose, every time things didn't go the way to suit them, they murmured.

Verse 25, "So he cried out to the Lord and the Lord showed him a tree; and when he cast it into the waters, the waters were made sweet. There He made a statute and an ordinance for them. And there He tested them." God healed the waters and used this as a point to test them.

Exodus 16:1-3, "And they journeyed from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came to the Wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after they departed from the land of Egypt. Then the whole congregation murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness. And the children of Israel said to them, 'Oh, that we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the pots of meat and when we ate bread to the full! For you have brought us out into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger.'" They griped, murmured and complained, 'Why didn't you just leave us there? Now we are going to die of hunger.'

Verse 1, "And they journeyed from Elim and all the congregation of the children of Israel came to the Wilderness of Sin...on the fifteenth day of the second month after they departed from the land of Egypt."

A month after the Exodus, God began to give them manna. God conclusively demonstrated to the Israelites which day was the Sabbath.

Verse 4, "Then the Lord said to Moses, 'Behold, I will rain bread from heaven for you. And the people shall go out and gather a certain quota every day, that I may test them, whether they will walk in My law or not.'" God began to give them manna.

Verses 5, 22, "And it shall be on the sixth day that they shall prepare what they bring in, and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily'...And so it was, on the sixth day, that they gathered twice as much bread..." Why was this?

Verse 23, "Then he said to them, 'This is what the Lord has said: "Tomorrow is a Sabbath rest, a holy Sabbath to the Lord. Bake what you will bake today, and boil what you will boil; and lay up for yourselves all that remains, to be kept until morning.'" —Because it was the Sabbath. You could do anything with manna. But if you gathered extra, it would rot, except on the Sabbath.

Verse 24, "So they laid it up till morning, as Moses commanded; and it did not stink, nor were there any worms in it."

Verse 26, "Six days you shall gather it, but on the seventh day, which is the Sabbath, there will be none." Every Sabbath none came. You had to gather a double portion on the sixth day. The Sabbath was in effect from the very beginning (Genesis 2:2-3). He is making it very plain by a miracle which day the Sabbath is.

Verses 27-28, "Now it happened that some of the people went out on the seventh day to gather, but they found none. And the Lord said to Moses, 'How long do you refuse to keep My commandments and My laws?'" God's Commandments and His laws were already in existence before Mount Sinai. The law did not come into existence at Sinai. The question here was, 'how long would they continue to refuse to keep my Commandments?'

Manna was like a round small seed and tasted like honey wafers (v. 31).

Exodus 17:3, "And the people thirsted there for water, and the people murmured against Moses, and said, 'Why is it you have brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our livestock with thirst?'" Every time something happened, the people were ready to blame Moses. Moses must have longed for the good old days as a shepherd.

Verse 7, "So he called the name of the place Massah and Meribah, because of the contention of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord, saying, 'Is the Lord among us or not?'" They tempted God.

Exodus 18:5, “and Jethro, Moses’ father-in-law, came with his sons and his wife to Moses in the wilderness, where he was encamped at the mountain of God.” Moses’ father-in-law was coming out to meet him.

Verse 9, “Then Jethro rejoiced for all the good, which the Lord had done for Israel, whom He had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.” Jethro gave advice to Moses for the successful delegation of authority.

Verse 14, “So when Moses’ father-in-law saw all that he did for the people, he said, ‘What is this thing that you are doing for the people? Why do you alone sit, and all the people stand before you from morning until evening?’”

Moses said, ‘I am explaining God’s laws’ (vv. 15-16). God’s laws were already in existence. God’s statutes, laws and Commandments all were in existence before Mount Sinai. They didn’t come on the scene at Sinai and leave at some other point.

Verses 17-18, Jethro said, ‘This tremendous line of people will wear you out.’

Verses 21-22, “Moreover you shall select from all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them to be rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties and rulers of tens, and let them judge the people at all times. Then it will be that every great matter they shall bring to you, but every small matter they themselves shall judge. So it will be easier for you, for they will bear the burden with you.”

‘Appoint captains of ten, fifty, one hundred and one thousand; the people will come to the captains with problems for them to solve. Then if necessary, they will be brought up to you.’

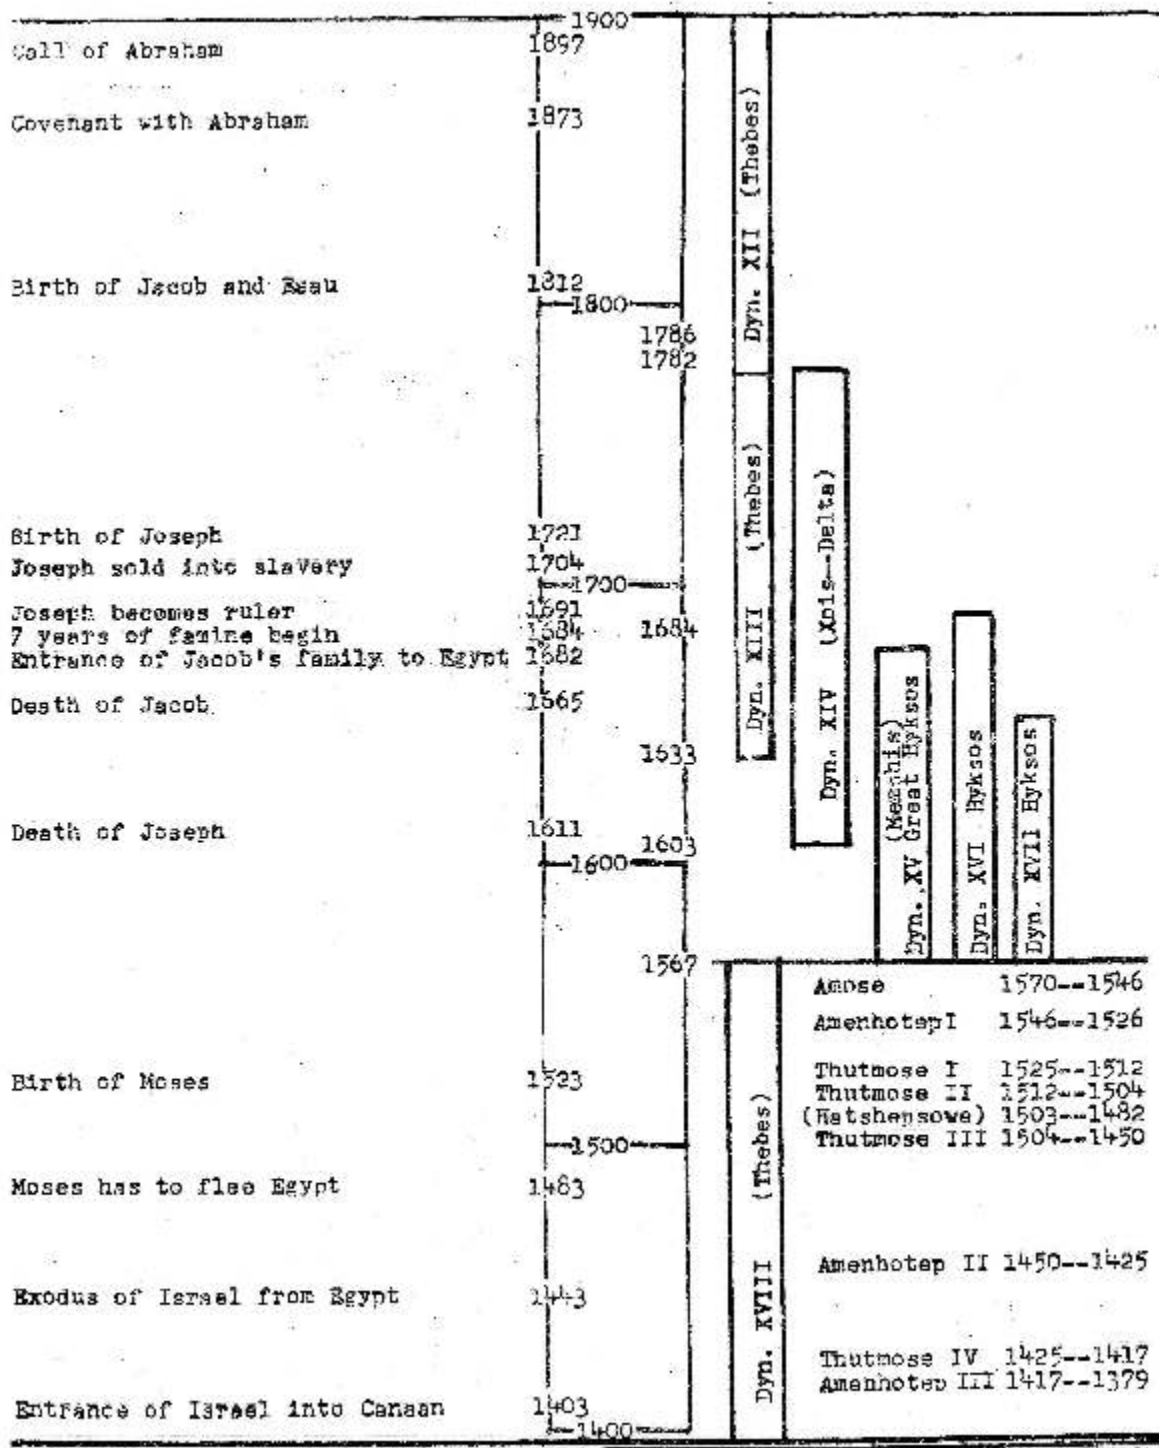

Verse 24, “So Moses heeded the voice of his father-in-law...”

This was used in the Big Sandy campgrounds; Mr. Herbert Armstrong did what Moses did here. They established that system, and we utilized the system in Big Sandy for the Feast of Tabernacles.

So we see here, the setting of the stage for the covenant that God was going to make with ancient Israel, which we are going to go into next time.

One of the things that becomes apparent is this is a survey course, and in order for you to get the benefit out of it, you are going to have to read and study this material ahead of time. That way

I can hit the highlights; we can try to focus in on the key points. In this way over the course of time, we will literally cover every book in the Bible. If we go through it systematically, it can be a tool in helping you to understand God’s word.

While the first eighteen chapters of Exodus deal more specifically with the Exodus per se, the latter half, Exodus 19-40, deals with the Israelites' acceptance of the Covenant and all that it entails. It sets the stage for the book of Leviticus. We find things that relate very directly to us today.

In Exodus 19, the Covenant is introduced. Moses went up the Mount to receive instructions (v. 3). Exodus 19:8, then God proposed the covenant and the people said, "All that the Lord has said, we will do."

In Exodus 20, God speaks the words of the Ten Commandments, which is the basis of the covenant God made with Israel.

Following the giving of the Ten Commandments, we have the statutes and judgments in Exodus 21, 22 and 23. They might be compared to the statements which Christ made in Matthew 5, 6 and 7, which also are judgments. Statutes and judgments are applications of the Commandments to specific times and circumstances.

In Exodus 21, 22 and 23, you will find the word "If" over and over again. The whole basis of the judgments was the application. What do you do with a physical nation that has the Ten Commandments? They have accepted God's Laws, but they are a physical, carnal nation, unlike the converted who have a heart that will obey (Deuteronomy 5:29). What do you do when someone does something they shouldn't? How does the nation respond? That is why you have the judgments. They were civil judgments; they contained principles that would be applicable to us. When you have that many people, you would have anarchy and chaos without this. There has to be a way of applying these things. If they had a heart of obedience, these judgments would never have come up.

When Christ gave the judgments in Matthew 5, 6 and 7, He was dealing with a people who had a heart of submission and obedience to God. It was the application of the Law to a converted people. Exodus 25:8 tells us God would dwell among them. It is said of us that God will dwell in us. That was the difference between Exodus 21-23 and Matthew 5-7. God was among Old Testament Israel; He dwells in us through the power of the Holy Spirit (Romans 8:9, 11) The Holy Spirit was not promised in the Old Testament. God promised them blessings here and now.

In Exodus 24, they formally accepted the Covenant.

Exodus 24:3, "So Moses came and told the people all the words of the Lord and all the judgments. and all the people answered with one voice and said, 'All the words which the Lord has said we will do.'"

Exodus 25-31, Moses went up into the mountain and received further instructions.

In Exodus 32, he came down. By this time, they have broken the Covenant and built the golden calf. They didn't last six weeks.

Exodus 33:7-11 and 34:27 explain Moses was the mediator of the Old Covenant; then he went back up into the mountain for a second forty-day period (34:28).

Exodus 35, the final instructions for the tabernacle were given.

Exodus 36-40, the building of the tabernacle occurs. The tabernacle was very important because of the symbolism involved. The tabernacle was a figure, an illustration for the time present.

There was a courtyard one hundred fifty feet long by seventy-five feet wide. The walls were seven and one-half feet tall. There were posts and curtains to make the walls, and then the tabernacle itself was at one end. It was a small room, fifteen feet wide and forty-five feet long. Inside the tabernacle, the front two-thirds was fifteen feet by thirty feet. In the Holy Place, the back one-third was the Holy of Holies fifteen feet square, and the ceiling was fifteen feet high—a cube. The front part of the tabernacle was fifteen feet by thirty feet and fifteen feet high. About halfway in the courtyard of the tabernacle, the first thing you would see was the altar of sacrifice. It was a giant barbeque pit; it was where they cooked the meat. You couldn't come to the tabernacle without passing the altar of sacrifice. Then you came to the oblong brazen laver. The priests immersed themselves in that before they went in and put on clean clothes. It was only after they washed that they could walk into the tabernacle.

All this had spiritual significance. You have to accept the sacrifice of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins. You are washed by baptism, and you put on righteousness. The primary garment the priests wore was white linen.

Revelation 19:8 (KJV), "...fine linen is the righteousness of the saints."

Once in the tabernacle, you had on one side the seven-branched candlestick. It was like little cups holding olive oil; there were seven little cups on a lamp stand. That was the source of light. On the opposite wall, there was a table that had twelve loaves of unleavened bread. It was called “showbread” because it was shown in the presence of God. Incense was burned on the altar.

Revelation 5:8, “...golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints.” It represents the prayers of the saints.

Into the Holy of Holies the high priest came once a year (Hebrews 9:7). That symbolized the very presence of God. Inside the Holy of Holies were the ark of the covenant and the mercy seat, symbolizing the very Throne of God. In the ark were tables of the Ten Commandments, the golden pot of manna, Aaron’s rod that budded and the scrolls of the Law (Hebrews 9:4)—what existed at that time.

When the priests came in for the morning and evening sacrifice, they built up a fire, took some of the coals of the altar and put it in the golden censor. Some of the sacrifice was burned and some roasted. Then they took some of the live coals and put them in this golden pan and put incense on them. It would loft back to the Holy of Holies. God gave instructions to Moses as to how this was to be done. Symbolism is involved here.

Hebrews 9:1-5, “Then indeed, even the first covenant had ordinances of divine service and the earthly sanctuary. For a tabernacle was prepared: the first part, in which was the lamp-stand, the table, and the showbread, which is called the sanctuary; and behind the second veil, the part of the tabernacle which is called the Holiest of All, which had the golden altar of incense and the ark of the covenant overlaid on all sides with gold, in which were the golden pot that had the manna, Aaron’s rod that budded, and the tablets of the covenant.”

Verses 9-10, “It was symbolic for the present time in which both gifts and sacrifices are offered which cannot make him who performed the service perfect in regard to the conscience—concerned only with foods and drinks, various washings, and fleshly ordinances imposed until the time of reformation.” What laws were done away? How do you know what applies or doesn’t? Right here it tells you the only things that were temporarily imposed: the physical ceremony, the meat offerings, the oblations and the drink offerings. The physical ceremonies were imposed upon them until the “time of reformation,” which was to make them aware of the fact that by the shedding of the blood, we are cleansed.

Hebrews 9:22, “...without shedding of blood there is no remission.”

The blood of bulls and goats was not able to take away sin (Hebrews 10:4), but they pointed to the fact that, without the shedding of blood, there was no remission of sin. It pointed to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ.

God set these symbolisms of cleanness to impress on us that we must be clean to be the people of God. If God would not dwell in the midst of physical uncleanness, how much more would He not dwell in the midst of spiritual uncleanness? It looked forward to the fact that, if you were going to be in the presence of God, you had to be clean.

Three basic things are fundamental:

(1) You need a Savior. You have sinned. Every time the blood of that bull or goat was poured out, you were reminded of your need to be clean.

(2) You have to be clean. That was what the ritualistic washings were all about. You could not be polluted. God will not put up with uncleanness.

(3) God wanted things done a specific way through the rituals. You serve God the way God wants to be served.

These things were added until the time of reformation (9:10), until the time of Jesus Christ. These things were added because they broke the covenant (Jeremiah 7:22-24; Galatians 3:19). Israel was separated out by God—they were to be distinct from the world around them. There was a separateness that set them apart.

The altar of the burnt offerings pointed to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. God set these symbolisms about cleanness to impress on us that we must be clean to be the people of God.

The candlestick was used in Revelation to represent the different eras of the Church (Revelation 1:20) and to be a light to the world.

The incense represented the prayers of the saints.

The veil of the temple was rent in two (Matthew 27:51). Prior to at the death of Jesus Christ there wasn’t access to God the Father. It was the death of Jesus Christ that made it possible to have direct access to God the Father.

The Holy of Holies signified the very throne of God.

Sometimes we get bogged down in details and fail to see the significance of some of these things. God wanted it done a specific way. God uses certain physical things to teach spiritual lessons. That is why we are to avoid certain physical things. If you don't practice doing it right, you get the wrong things embedded in you. They can convey the right or the wrong lessons.

Questions

1. What did God have in mind for Israel to become?

Exodus 19:5-6, “Now therefore, if you will indeed obey My voice and keep My covenant, then you shall be a special treasure to Me above all the people; for all the earth is Mine. And you shall be to Me a kingdom of priest and a holy nation....” They were to be a light to the world, and to set an example to the world.

I Peter 2:9, “But you are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, His own special people, that you may proclaim the praises of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light.” Peter was paraphrasing that section in Exodus 19:5-6. What God had in mind for Israel in a physical sense, we have stressed to the Church in a spiritual sense. We are peculiar, special and different. The way we conduct ourselves ought to be different than the world around us. The world around us reflects a certain value system. The last thing anyone is interested in is godly values. It is whatever will sell. We are not trying to be like the world. We are to reflect God's values, and if you are, you will not be like the world around you.

2. Upon what was that promise conditional?

Exodus 19:5, “Now therefore, if you will indeed obey My voice and keep My covenant, then you shall be a special treasure to Me above all people....” IF you obey, I am going to use you in this way. God had made a promise to Abraham that was unconditional. Since Israel did not follow through with the Covenant, the blessings were to be withheld. They were going to be punished.

God began to talk.

Exodus 20:1-17, “And God spoke all these words, saying: ‘I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. You shall have no other gods before Me. You shall not make for yourself any carved image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I the Lord your God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments. You shall not take the name of the Lord your God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain. Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God. In it you shall do no work: you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your manservant, nor your maidservant, nor your cattle, nor your stranger who is within your gates. For in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day. Therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it. Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long upon the land which the Lord your God is giving you. You shall not murder. You shall not commit adultery. You shall not steal. You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor. You shall not covet your neighbor's house; you shall not covet your neighbor's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his donkey, nor anything that is your neighbor's.”

3. What was the people's reaction after they heard God speak the Commandments?

Genesis 20:18-19, “Now all the people witnessed the thundering, the lightning flashes, the sound of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking; and when the people saw it, they trembled and stood afar off. Then they said to Moses, ‘You speak with us, and we will hear; but let not God speak with us, lest we die.’” It scared the daylights out of them.

Then God instructed them as to what they were to do and the type of altar that was to be made.

Verses 23-25, “You shall not make anything to be with Me—gods of silver or gods of gold you shall not make for yourselves. An altar of earth you shall make for Me, and you shall sacrifice on it your burnt offerings and your peace offerings, your sheep and your oxen. In every place where I record My name I will come to you, and I will bless you. And if you make Me an altar of stone, you shall not build it of hewn stone, for if you use your tool on it, you have profaned it.”

In Exodus 21, 22, 23 we have the statutes or judgments that God gave.

Chapter 21:2, “If”; v. 4, “If”; v. 7, “if”; v. 8, “If”; v. 9, “if”; v. 11, “if”; v. 13, “if.” “If” is in almost every verse. The point is these are judgments. What do you do if someone does this or that? It doesn't say you are to do all these things. But if you do this, then this is to be done. That is the key word to understand the judgments. Since you are dealing with people who are going to be doing things they shouldn't do, these principles were given.

4. What was the maximum length of time that an Israelite servant would normally belong to his master?

Exodus 21:2, "If you buy a Hebrew servant, he shall serve six years, and in the seventh he shall go out free and pay nothing." –Six years. Understand that slavery, as it is spoken of in the scripture, was a matter regulated by law. There were certain things you couldn't do. When a person got himself in debt and couldn't pay, then it was a matter that he had to work it out. It was not an indefinite thing. The seventh year he went out free. We are looking primarily at an agricultural society. If he couldn't manage his own affairs, then he ended up working for somebody else. Or he may have committed a crime—he worked it out. In crimes against property, restitution was made. It taught responsibility. And there came a time when you would be given a fresh start.

Crimes against persons were different.

Verse 12, "He who strikes a man so that he dies shall surely be put to death."

Verse 13, "But if he did not lie in wait, but God delivered him into his hand, then I will appoint for you a place where he may flee." If it's not premeditated, appoint him a place where he can flee.

Verse 14, "But if a man acts with premeditation against his neighbor, to kill him with guile, you shall take him from My altar, that he may die."

5. What was the civil penalty for kidnapping?

Exodus 21:16, "He who kidnaps a man and sells him, or if he is found in his hand, shall surely be put to death." It was the death penalty. It was simply a matter that there are types of crimes that as a person does them, there is no place for them in society.

Verses 28-29, an ox goring; the ox is put to death. If it was known in the past that this animal would do that, then the owner was also put to death. He knew he had a violent animal and didn't keep it pinned up. He had been warned. It was a matter of liability. If you didn't know, then it was considered an accident.

Verse 30, "If there is imposed on him a sum of money, then he shall pay to redeem his life, whatsoever is imposed on him."

In crimes against property, restitution was made. It taught responsibility.

Verse 35, if a couple of animals got in a fight, they have to share the loss. There were principles of liability.

Exodus 22 gets into theft.

Exodus 22:1, "If a man steals an ox or a sheep, and slaughters it or sells it, he shall restore five oxen for an ox and four sheep for a sheep."

Verse 5, "If a man causes a field or vineyard to be grazed and lets loose his animal and it feeds in another man's field, he shall make restitution from the best of his own field and the best of his own vineyard."

Verse 6, "If fire breaks out and catches in thorns, so that stacked grain, standing grain, or the field is consumed, he who kindled the fire shall surely make restitution."

Verse 7, "If a man delivers to his neighbor money or articles to keep, and it is stolen out of the man's house, if the thief is found, he shall pay double."

Verse 21, "You shall neither mistreat a stranger nor oppress him, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." If someone was of another ethnic background than Israel, you don't take advantage of them—you are not to mistreat a stranger or oppress him.

Verse 22, "You shall not afflict any widow or fatherless child." You don't afflict any widow or fatherless child, someone who can't take care of themselves.

Verse 25, "If you lend money to any of My people who are poor among you, you shall not be like a moneylender to him; you shall not charge him interest." You don't make money off of a poor person—loaning them something and charging them interest.

6. What does the law say concerning borrowed property?

Exodus 22:14-15, "And if a man borrows anything from his neighbor, and it becomes injured or dies, the owner of it not being with it, he shall surely make it good. But if its owner was with it, he shall not make it good; if it was hired, it came for its hire." This deals with the subject of borrowing. The principle is that, in the case where you borrow something and you break it, you are responsible for replacing it. It was also a matter of liability.

7. What scripture applies to the subject of "reverse discrimination"?

We saw earlier that you were not to mistreat a stranger or oppress him.

Exodus 23:2, "You shall not follow a crowd to do evil; nor shall you testify in a dispute so as to turn aside after many to pervert justice.” You don’t follow the majority opinion of what is right or wrong. You stand for what is right. The Jews rendered it by hearing the youngest and then the eldest. They felt everyone should give his honest opinion and not just go along.

Exodus 23:3, “You shall not show partiality to a poor man in his dispute.” You are not to oppress the fatherless, the widow and the poor, but you don’t stand for a person and favor them because they are poor.

Verse 6, “You shall not pervert the judgment of your poor in his dispute.” You don’t countenance him or take advantage. What is right is right.

8. How did God propose to rid the land of the Canaanites?

Exodus 23:27-30, “I will send My fear before you, I will cause confusion among all the people to whom you come, and will make all your enemies turn their backs to you. And I will send hornets before you, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite from before you. I will not drive them out from before you in one year, lest the land become desolate and the beast of the field become too numerous for you. Little by little I will drive them out from before you, until you have increased, and you inherit the land.” God would drive them out with hornets a little at a time. They went to war because they refused to trust God. They would never have had to go to war if they had trusted Him.

Verse 32, “You shall make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.” God knew that the intermixing of the cultures would not be good. No good thing would come out of it. We will see later in Judges that no good would come out of it.

9. What experience did the leaders of Israel have immediately after the making of the covenant?

Exodus 24:9-11, “Then Moses went up, also Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel, and they saw the God of Israel. And there was under His feet as it were a paved work of sapphire stone, and it was like the very heavens in its clarity. But on the nobles of the children of Israel He did not lay His hand. So they saw God and they ate and drank.” A special occasion, a literal banquet took place. What they saw was very similar to the vision that Ezekiel saw. God manifested Himself here. Go back to Ezekiel 1 to see how this took place.

10. What subjects was Moses primarily instructed in while he was in the mount?

Exodus 25, 26, 27:

Exodus 25:8-9, “And let them make Me a sanctuary that I may dwell among them. According to all that I show you, that is, the pattern of the tabernacle and the pattern of all its furnishings, just so you shall make it.” It was important that they follow the pattern. They made the table of showbread (vv. 23-30), the lamps (vv. 37-40), the curtains (26:1-13) and the beautiful colors (v. 31). The colors in the Ambassador auditorium are the same colors mentioned here in chapter 26. Mr. Armstrong saw this and said these must be the colors that God likes. God is a God of beauty.

Exodus 28:2, “And you shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother, for glory and for beauty.” The priestly garments were called “holy garments” because they came into the presence of God.

11. What point did God stress as being the reason for all of the instructions that He had given Moses?

The reason for all the instructions God gave Moses was to impress coming into His presence and to signify the way He wanted things done.

Exodus 29:42-46, “This shall be a continual burnt offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of meeting before the Lord, where I will meet you to speak with you. And there I will meet with the children of Israel, and the tabernacle shall be sanctified by My glory. So I will sanctify the tabernacle of meeting and the altar. I will also sanctify both Aaron and his sons to minister to Me as priests. I will dwell among the children of Israel and will be their God and they shall know that I am the Lord their God, who brought them up out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them. I am the Lord their God.”

There is a point that God stressed as to why He gave all of these instructions. The people had to be holy because God was going to dwell among them—a people of whom it was said, ‘God dwelt among them.’ They had to be sanctified and set apart. They have to be holy. The point of all these things was to impress that lesson of holiness.

Exodus 30:18-21, “...a laver of brass...between the tabernacle and the altar...for Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet in water from it. When they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they shall wash with water, that they die not: or when they come near the altar to minister, to burn offering made by fire unto the Lord. So they shall wash their hands and their feet, that they die not. And it shall be a statute forever to them, even to him and to his seed throughout their generation.”

Exodus 30:25, 30, “...and you shall make these an holy anointing oil...it shall be a holy anointing oil. And you shall anoint Aaron and his sons and consecrate them, that they may minister unto Me in the priest’s office.”

12. What special covenant did God inform Moses of in the Mount?

Exodus 31:13-17, “Speak also to the children of Israel, saying: “Surely My Sabbaths you shall keep, for it is a sign between Me and you throughout your generations, that you may know that I am the Lord who sanctifies you. You shall keep the Sabbath, therefore, for it is holy to you. Everyone who profanes it shall surely be put to death; for whoever does any work on it, that person shall be cut off from among his people. Work shall be done for six days, but the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath Day, he shall surely be put to death. Therefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations as a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between Me and the children of Israel forever; for in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, and on the seventh day He rested and was refreshed.””

This is not the origin of the Sabbath. Israel knew about the Sabbath before Mount Sinai (Genesis 2:2-3). It is a sign between God and His people.

13. Explain Exodus 32:14.

Exodus 32:1, “Now when the people saw that Moses delayed coming down from the mountain, the people gathered together to Aaron, and said to him, ‘Come let us make gods that shall go before us; for this Moses...we do not know what has become of him.’”

Verse 4, “And he received the gold from their hand, and he fashioned it with an engraving tool, and made a molded calf. Then they said, ‘This is your god, O Israel, that brought you out of the land of Egypt.’”

Verses 7-11, “And the Lord said to Moses, ‘Go, get down! For your people whom you brought out of the land of Egypt have corrupted themselves. They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them. They have made themselves a molded calf, and worshiped it and sacrificed to it, and said, “This is your god, O Israel, that brought you out of the land of Egypt!”’ And the Lord said to Moses, ‘I have seen this people, and indeed it is a stiff-necked people! Now therefore, let Me alone, that My wrath may burn hot against them and I may consume them. And I will make of you a great nation.’ Then Moses pleaded with the Lord his God, and said: ‘Lord, why does Your wrath burn hot against Your people whom You have brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and with a mighty hand?’”

Exodus 32:14, “And the Lord relented [KJV, “repented”] of the evil which He thought to do unto His people.” What does that mean? “Repent” means “to turn away from.” God had mercy on them, and in His mercy, He did not visit on them the punishment that He had considered doing. They deserved to be wiped out.

Moses saw what was going on and he threw the tablets down (v. 19).

Verse 26, “then Moses stood in the entrance of the camp, and said, ‘Whoever is on the Lord’s side, let him come to me.’ And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together to him.” The Levites were not mentioned prior to this. He sent the Levites out to wipe them out (vv. 27-28). Remember what I told you about the Levites. God made a covenant with Israel (Exodus 19). There is nothing in the Covenant about sacrifices. It was a matter of obedience, but the people did not obey, so there were things added because of disobedience (Jeremiah 7:22-24; Galatians 3:19). Leviticus opens up with instructions on the sacrifices.

Who is on God’s side? The Levites said, ‘We are.’ So they were told to go and take care of the matter. One of their responsibilities was to keep things in line.

Moses was instructed to come back up the mount (Exodus 34:1-2).

14. How did God normally deal with Moses?

Exodus 33:11, “So the Lord spoke to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his friend...” –Face to face. Moses had a very special relationship with God. God dealt with Moses in a very unique manner.

Exodus 34:18-22, God reviewed certain things with him—the festivals. It goes through various types of things.

Exodus 34:27-28, “Then the Lord said to Moses, ‘Write these words, for according to the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with you and with Israel.’ So he was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights; he neither ate bread nor drank water. He wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the Ten Commandments.”

After having come back again:

Exodus 34:29, “Now it was so, when Moses came down from Mount Sinai (and the two tablets of the testimony were in Moses’ hand when he came down from the mountain) that Moses did not know that the skin of his face shone while he talked with Him.”

15. In what context was Exodus 35:2-3 stated?

Exodus 35:2-3, “Work shall be done for six days, but the seventh day shall be a holy day for you, a Sabbath of rest to the Lord. Whoever does any work on it shall be put to death. You shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations on the Sabbath day.” This has to be set in context. This instruction is the preface to the general instructions of building the tabernacle. They were to get started on the tabernacle. There were going to be a lot of things to be done—smelting metal and that sort. It didn’t take precedence of the Sabbath. Kindling a fire was a smelting fire. It was not a day that they were to be involved in work.

16. How long after the Exodus, was it before the tabernacle was completed?

Exodus 36—39 describe the building of the tabernacle.

Exodus 40:1-2, “Then the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: ‘On the first day of the first month you shall set up the tabernacle of the tent of meeting.’”

Numbers 33:3, “They departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day after the Passover the children of Israel went out with boldness in the sight of the Egyptians.” Moses finished the work just short of two weeks prior to a full year since the Exodus. The bulk of the book (Exodus 12-40) covers a year.

We have here the basis of God making a nation, a special nation, a holy nation, a nation that was to be different in the way that they conducted themselves. They were to be a holy nation, and God gave them all of these instructions. Perhaps we have a little bit more overview of this section of Scripture and the relationship that Israel had. As we look at it, we will understand civil law that will, once again, be applied in Tomorrow’s World. We are not now administering civil law. Some have been applied in this nation. We will notice the distinction between civil laws and ceremonial laws, which were to instruct in spiritual principles and in the basic principles of the Law—the Ten Commandments—that apply to people of all time. It will be helpful in focusing in on this just prior to the Passover.

Old Testament Series—Leviticus (Part 1)

The book we are going to get into this evening often gets overlooked, except for one or two chapters. We are going to look at the overall theme of holiness and an overall outline of Leviticus. It is a book that has a tremendous amount of significance for us today. You might wonder, why this significance? What does “Leviticus” mean? It means “to the Levites.” What was the function of the Levites? They were set aside as the priesthood.

The first time we see the Levites set aside was in Exodus 32:26-28 after the golden calf incident. Moses said, ‘Who’s on the Lord’s side,’ and the Levites said, ‘We are.’ They came forth and took a stand. In the aftermath of that, we find the next book is written to the Levites. They were set aside as the priestly tribe.

That has a lot of significance to us because we are ultimately called to be priests. When we read that we are to be kings and priests in Tomorrow’s World, this is very hard for us to relate to. What does it mean to be a priest? Most of us have some concept of what it is to be a king.

Taking a statement from Ezekiel 44, speaking of the priesthood, it explains the function of the priesthood:

Ezekiel 44:23-24, ““And they shall teach My people the difference between the holy and the unholy, and cause them to discern between the unclean and the clean. In controversy they shall stand as judges, and judge it according to My judgments. They shall keep My laws and My statutes in all My appointed meetings, and they shall hallow My Sabbaths.””

The function of the priesthood is to teach the people to make distinctions as God makes them. Our distinctions are based on the ideas of the concepts around. The people were to be taught to make distinctions on the same basis that God makes distinctions. They had the responsibility to teach, and they had the responsibility of teaching God’s law. When a controversy came up, they were to make judgments according to God’s law. Church and state are very much intertwined.

Throughout the book of Leviticus, the emphasis is holiness. Israel, as a covenant people, must be holy if God is to dwell among them. To impress upon them the need for holiness, there are seven sections we go through. Seven is a number God uses as a very significant factor to denote completion. It is used over and over throughout the book of Leviticus.

The book is divided into seven sections; each of these seven sections focuses on an aspect of holiness and defines how to be completely holy. God is holy, and where God places His presence is holy. We have in the tabernacle what was the Holy Place, and we have the Holy of Holies.

What makes something holy? God makes something holy by His presence. God dwelt in the tabernacle. The Sabbath is a holy day because God sanctified and set it apart and put His presence in it in a special way. Therefore, it is holy because God’s presence is in this time in a very special way. We find also the priests had holy garments. Why were they called holy? Because they were only used when they went into the Holy Place, only worn in the presence of God.

God wanted to impress upon ancient Israel that the people of God must be holy and that God will not dwell in the midst of uncleanness. He impressed that upon them by various physical ceremonies. They had to bathe and change clothes.

In Exodus 3:5, God told Moses, “take your shoes off, the ground you stand on is holy.” Because God was there, it was holy.

In Exodus 19:23-24, at Mount Sinai there was a fence. You can go there now, and it is not holy. That which comes into contact with God must be suitable to where God will impart holiness.

As we start out, I would like first to note the outline of the book of Leviticus:

Section I: Chapters 1—10 deal with the subject of offerings, the sacrificial system. This is the basis of our approach to God, the start for our journey to holiness. We don’t offer burnt offerings today.

Hebrews 9:10, “concerning only with foods and drinks, various washings, and fleshly ordinances imposed until the time of reformation.” There were only four things that were temporary added “until the time of reformation,” until the time of Christ.

Hebrews 10:1-6, “For the [sacrificial] law, having a shadow of the good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with these same sacrifices, which they offer continually year by year, make those who approach perfect. For then would they not have ceased to be offered? For the worshippers, once purged, would have had no more consciousness of sins. But in those sacrifices there is a reminder of sins every year. For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and goats could take away sins. Therefore, when He came into the world, He said: ‘Sacrifice and offering You did not desire, but a body You have prepared for Me. In burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin You have no pleasure.’”

Verses 10-18, “By that will we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. And every priest stands ministering daily and offering repeatedly the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins. But this Man, after He had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down at the right hand of God, from that time waiting till His enemies are made His foot stool. For by one offering He has perfected forever those who are being sanctified. And the Holy Spirit also witnesses to us; for after He had said before, ‘This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, says the Lord: I will put My laws into their hearts and in their minds I will write them,’ then He adds, ‘Their sins and their lawless deeds I will remember no more.’ Now where there is remission of these, there is no longer an offering for sin.”

The price of our sins have been paid. This is the point; the price, the penalty for our sins has been paid. The sacrificial system pointed to Jesus Christ. He came as the Lamb of God (John 1:29) to pay the penalty for our sins.

Hebrews 9:11, “But Christ came as High Priest of the good things to come, with the greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is, not of this creation.” The sacrificial system in Leviticus was a type, a physical representation that pointed toward Jesus Christ and what He did. He came as the Lamb of God (John 1:29) to pay the penalty for our sins.

Galatians 3:24, “Therefore the [sacrificial] law was our tutor [KJV, “schoolmaster”] to bring us to Christ, that we might be justified by faith.” The sacrificial system was a physical illustration to help teach lessons and to point out what the Messiah would do. It was a physical illustration for a people who did not have the Spirit of God, a people to whom God gave His basic Law and to whom He gave an outward physical symbolism to orient them toward something that was to come.

Hebrews 9:12-14, “Not with the blood of goats and calves, but with His own blood He entered the Most Holy Place, once for all, having obtained eternal redemption. For if the blood of bulls and goat and the ashes of a heifer, sprinkling the unclean, sanctifies for the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?”

Verses 22-28, “And according to the law almost all things are purged with blood, and without shedding of blood there is no remission. Therefore it was necessary that the copies of the things in the heavens should be purified with these, but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these. For Christ has not entered the holy places made with hands, which are copies of the true, but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us; not that He should offer Himself often, as the high priest enters the Most Holy Place every year with blood of another—He then would have had to suffer often since the foundation of the world; but now, once at the end of the ages, He has appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. And as it is appointed for men to die once, but after this the judgment, so Christ was offered once to bear the sins of many. To those who eagerly wait for Him He will appear a second time, apart from sin, for salvation.”

The tabernacle was a physical pattern of things that actually existed in the heavenly realm.

Hebrews 10:3-4, 12, “But in those sacrifices there is a reminder of sins every year. For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and goats could take away sins...But this Man, after He had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down at the right hand of God.” It is not possible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sin but the sacrifice of Jesus Christ.

The first ten chapters focus in on the sacrificial system, the offerings. This is the starting point of holiness. We cannot make ourselves holy. Only God can impart holiness. What is it that makes you holy? It is the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. God places His presence within you, then that makes you holy, just as He made that place holy where the burning bush was. “A holy people unto God” means “saint.” All converted Christians are saints. The saints will inherit the Kingdom of the Most High. He will give the Kingdom to the saints (Daniel 7:18). Those are the only ones who are going to be there. Being a saint is not a matter of human will. The first ten chapters tell us the basis of being a holy people. It is a matter that deals with our approach to God. It pointed to the final sacrifice of Jesus Christ. We are able to approach unto our God. We have access to God. Sin cuts us off from God (Isaiah 59:2). God is holy; God is perfect holiness. God refuses in any way to be tainted with sin. If we are going to come into the presence of the Father, the price of sin has to be paid. Jesus Christ paid that.

Leviticus 1 starts out dealing with a burnt offering.

Leviticus 2, a meal, or grain offering.

Leviticus 3, the peace offering.

Leviticus 4, the way to deal with a sin offering.

Leviticus 5, a trespass offering.

Leviticus 6, trespass offerings.

Leviticus 7, the way in which offerings are to be made.

Leviticus 8, consecration of Aaron as a high priest.

Leviticus 9, gives more detail.

Leviticus 10 continues the same subject and here provides the illustration of individuals (Nadab and Abihu) who came into the presence of God improperly, and their lives were blotted out. You don't casually approach God. You don't treat the Creator of the Universe in a casual manner. You don't lightly esteem the things of God.

The first ten chapters deal with our approach to God. All of us are sinners. How do we gain access to a Holy God? The first ten chapters tell us. We need a High Priest to make intercession for us and to go between us and God. There must be a sacrifice; there must be the shedding of blood. That ties in very directly with the message of the Passover. Jesus Christ offered Himself as a sacrifice for sin forever.

John 1:29, "...Behold! The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world!"

Our first step in our journey to holiness is our access to God.

Section II: Our next step in becoming a holy people is the second section of Leviticus, which are chapters 11-15. They deal with laws of clean and unclean, laws of cleanliness. It is not enough that the price for sin has been paid. We must continue and be cleaned up. Jesus Christ died in our stead, but what do we have to do? We have to repent.

Acts 2:37-38, "...Men and brethren, what shall we do?' Then Peter said to them, 'Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.'" We have to be cleaned up. Jesus Christ did not die to save us in our sins. He died to save us from our sins. "From" means "away, out of." We have to come out of sinning. He did not deliver Israel to stay in Egypt. Whatever we serve, that is whose slave we are (Romans 6:16). If we are the servant of sin, that is who our master is. God impressed upon Israel that without the shedding of blood, there is no remission of sins (Hebrews 9:22). You can't leave out the first ten chapters.

Leviticus 11, clean and unclean meats and contact with unclean animals.

Leviticus 12, laws regulating motherhood.

Leviticus 13, contagious diseases.

Leviticus 14, individuals who have had contagious diseases.

Leviticus 15, various washings and uncleanness.

These were outward, physical manifestations of uncleanness. What is taken and illustrated here is a physical basis, but the requirements in chapters 11-15 go beyond simply the things that would have been needed for a purely physical matter of health and hygiene. Notice the reason for the laws of clean and unclean.

Leviticus 11:43-45, "'You shall not make yourselves abominable with any creeping thing that creeps; nor shall you make yourselves unclean with them, lest you be defiled by them. For, I am the Lord your God. You shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and you shall be holy; for I am holy. Neither shall you defile yourselves with any creeping thing that creeps on the earth. For I am the Lord who brings you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God, You shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.'"

Now that is not just the teaching of the Old Testament. What did Jesus say in the Sermon on the Mount?

Matthew 5:48, "'Therefore you shall become perfect, just as your Father in heaven is perfect.'"

We are to become like God because we are ultimately to become God. We are to be born into the Family of God and be His children. We are to bear the name God.

I John 3:1-3, "Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called the children of God! ...Beloved, now we are children of God; and it has not yet been revealed what we shall be, but we know that when He is revealed, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. And everyone who had this hope in Him purifies himself, just as He is pure." We have to become like God.

The second step in that journey toward holiness, after the sacrifice has been made for sin, is we have to be made clean. We have to avoid those things that have tainted and polluted us. That which in the past has already tainted and polluted them had to be washed away, and they were to avoid further contact with anything that was unclean—being physically unhygienic. He emphasized these things.

What is stressed here, we may have trouble getting the point of because we view it from a twentieth century standpoint. Why make such a big deal of washing? We are accustomed to taking a shower every day. It hasn't been that many years ago that people had a lot more trouble getting clean. If you had to clean your clothes by going to the creek or in an old pot, you wouldn't be washing every day.

Here were the Israelites; they didn't have running water and all these things (washing machines, etc.). It is in this context that God made a great issue with cleanliness. (The greatest cause of battlefield casualties during the Civil War was the doctor going from patient to patient, never washing his hands.) There was obviously a physical basis of the law given.

There were animals that were not meant to be eaten. All the way back to Noah, the clean and unclean animals were known. Every creature of God is good (I Timothy 4:4) but for different reasons. God made animals for different purposes. As you go through, the emphasis here is an emphasis that goes beyond simply physical necessities because God utilized what the people could see—things that were physically repugnant. God utilized those things on a physical level to illustrate a principle: sin is repugnant. Here was the camp of Israel, and the emphasis was if you want to come into the presence of God, you must be clean. It impressed the necessity to be washed.

The different meat and drink offerings and the various washings were added to illustrate another aspect that the sacrifices illustrated. First, Christ died and paid the penalty, but secondarily, we must be washed. The Holy Spirit is compared to rivers of living water (John 7:37-39). We are to be washed in the washing of water by the word (Ephesians 5:26). We are to be spiritually clean, we must avoid those things that would spiritually defile us, and we must clean up those things we have already been polluted with. Our values and the things we do—God's Spirit helps us to get rid of unclean thoughts and actions. Unclean actions are the result of unclean thoughts. God will not dwell in the midst of uncleanness. First, the sacrifices; then we must get rid of sin.

Section III: Now we come to the third section; chapter 16 deals with the Day of Atonement, the symbolism of the Day of Atonement and the putting away of Azazel. It's unfortunate that words change. The term "scapegoat," as it was utilized in 1611 A.D., was simply a way of saying "the goat that escaped"—the one that got away. The term "scapegoat" has come over the centuries to be used as "someone who was unfairly blamed," someone who unfairly got the blame for what happened. That is what the term "scapegoat" has come to mean in English, which is entirely contrary to what is in Leviticus 16.

Satan the devil is being represented in Leviticus 16, and he certainly is not unfairly getting the blame. We have the symbolism of the Day of Atonement here. That is the next step for holiness. We have to have the penalty for our sins paid; we must be cleansed from our sins and begin that journey toward holiness and being one with God. Then that influence of Satan the devil must be purged away. It stands in the way of our being at one with God. So in Leviticus 16, we have the third section which emphasizes the fact that the devil must be removed, as symbolized on the Day of Atonement.

Section IV: The fourth section is Leviticus 17. This deals with another aspect of our approach to God; this is the fact that our access to God must be through God's government. We are on a journey to holiness. First comes the sacrifice of Christ, then our repentance, our being cleansed from sin through the washing and the water of the word. We must recognize the devil's part and that he must be removed. In the fourth section in our journey, notice what it says here:

Leviticus 17:2-9, "'Speak to Aaron, to his sons, and to all the children of Israel, and say to them, 'This is the thing which the Lord has commanded, saying: 'Whatever man of the house of Israel, kills an ox or lamb or goat in the camp, or who kills it outside the camp and does not bring it to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, to offer an offering to the Lord before the tabernacle of the Lord, bloodguilt shall be imputed to that man. He has shed blood; and that man shall be cut off from among his people, to the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices which they offer in the open field, that they may bring them to the Lord at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, to the priest, and offer them as peace offerings to the Lord. And the priest shall sprinkle the blood on the altar of the Lord at the door of the tabernacle of meeting, and turn the fat for a sweet aroma to the Lord. They shall no more offer their sacrifices to demons, after whom they have played the harlot. This shall be a statute forever for them throughout their generations.'" And you shall say to them: “What ever man of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who sojourn among you, who offers a burnt offering or sacrifice, and does not bring it to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, to offer it to the Lord, that man shall be cut off from among his people.””””

Now notice—you can’t go off and have an independent approach toward God. You cannot approach God your own way; you can’t just go out and do things the way you choose to do them. They didn’t go out in an open field and do it. They were indicted for the high places. Their approach was: ‘why do we have to go to the tabernacle and the priesthood; why can’t we go out and do those things ourselves, independently?’ You can’t be an “independent Christian.” To learn to be holy, you have to do it the way God wants it done. It is an important area emphasized here, the way that things had to be done. We are not to take a casual approach in offering offerings. We are to do what we do in the context of God’s government, with respect to where God is working. So this emphasis on God’s government and emphasis on this whole principle is brought out in chapter 17.

Section V: The fifth section is Leviticus 18-22. This deals with our personal relationship—our relationship with other people. We have seen our relationship with God made possible by Christ’s sacrifice, our being cleaned up, the devil’s responsibility in it and working through God’s government. Now we continue realizing that, if we are to be the people of God, our relationship with others must be appropriate. We must be clean and holy in our relationships with other people.

I John 4:20, “If someone says, ‘I love God,’ and hates his brother, he is a liar....” In this section, we see personal conduct regulated.

Leviticus 18:3-5, ““According to the doings of the land of Egypt, where you dwelt, you shall not do; and according to the doings of the land of Canaan, where I am bringing you, you shall not do; nor shall you walk in their ordinances. You shall observe My judgments and keep My ordinances, to walk in them: I am the Lord your God. You shall therefore keep My statutes and My judgments, which if a man does, he shall live by them: I am the Lord.”””

You don’t get your standards of what’s right and wrong from the world around you. You don’t look to see what the commonly accepted morality is in this society. Society’s standards have changed drastically in the last two or three decades, but that has no bearing on anything.

Evil men grow worse and worse (II Timothy 3:13). God’s standards don’t change; you do it the way God says to do it.

Verse 27, “““(for all these abominations have the men of the land done, which were before you, and the land is defiled),””” It makes the land dirty.

When we start teaching in Tomorrow’s World, we will have to deal with morality. A society cannot be stronger than its family unit. The family is the basis of society. Morality is the basis of the family. When you destroy morality, you destroy the basis of the integrity of the family unit, and you have destroyed society. Then you have the equivalent of a pack of dogs running down the street; unfortunately, we have people who act like that. The dog is doing something that comes naturally. Human beings were made with the capacity to overcome. Leviticus 18 deals with various aspects of sexual immorality, various perversions. It goes into quite a bit of details.

Leviticus 19:1-3, “And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, ‘Speak to all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say to them; “You shall be holy, for I the Lord your God am holy. Every one of you shall revere his mother and his father, and keep My Sabbaths: I am the Lord your God.””” We are to be a holy people unto our God; be holy for God is holy.

The remainder of chapter 19 deals with being generous when you harvest (vv. 9-10); being responsible for our brethren and keeping the Sabbaths (v. 30); and honoring the elderly (v. 32). It deals with all kinds of physical principles of conduct, the way we treat our neighbor and interact with other people.

Leviticus 20 explains a number of things that relate to people and personal actions. Israel was a nation as well as a Church. There has to be certain physical punishments meted out. The nation is doomed to anarchy if it is not cleaned out.

Ecclesiastes 8:11, “Because the sentence against an evil work in not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set to do evil.” There will be a swift punishment meted out.

Leviticus 20:7-8, ““Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be holy, for I am the Lord your God. And you shall keep My statutes, and perform them: I am the Lord who sanctifies you.”””

Verses 22-23, ““You shall therefore keep all My statutes and all My judgments, and perform them, that the land where I am bringing you to dwell may not vomit you out. And you shall not walk in the statutes of the nation which I am casting out before you; for they commit all these things, and therefore I abhor them.””” You don’t look to the world around you as a standard. Just because the world doesn’t see any big deal about it, it doesn’t mean that we should take that approach. You get back to what are the principles of God. God’s way is good, positive, uplifting, harmonious, excellence and beauty—things that are good and positive. The world’s way is opposite—things that are degenerate, that smack of rebellion, things that are unharmonious. Whether it is music, or whatever, recognize that there are values that we can see from the world around us that are false values. We can’t afford to follow the ways of this world.

Leviticus 21 and 22 outline special laws for the priests in their personal relationships because they were to set an example for the people. The high priest had even more stringent requirements on him because he was a type of Jesus Christ. It reflected even in his marriage. The high priest was required to marry a virgin (21:13). He could not marry a widow or someone divorced or someone tainted with immorality. None of the priests were to marry anyone who was divorced. The priests were to exemplify God’s way. A people never rise higher than the standard set by their leader. The high priest in his marriage was a type of Jesus Christ marrying the Church, the virgin bride of Christ (II Corinthians 11:2; Revelation 19:6-9). His office specifically typified Jesus Christ. That is the reason for the symbolism there. He was to be a physical type of Jesus Christ.

It gives the Holy Days, which provide the outline of God’s plan. It reveals God’s holy plan to God’s holy people. It gives the way God is going to go about making the people His own, making them a part of His Family. It gives the outline of the Holy Days, the seven Festivals. These days are assigned to God’s people in that journey toward a special relationship with God, personal relationships and the plan by which God is making us His people.

Section VII: Leviticus 24-27 deal with the laws of the nation. It deals with miscellaneous instructions that relate very directly to the nation remaining as God’s holy people. Much of this section of Scripture even deals with matters of economics. It deals with the laws of the Sabbatical year, the Jubilee.

We came through the approach toward God:

- (1) The sacrifice which illustrated the need for Christ’s sacrifice.
- (2) The laws of cleanliness—that we must be cleaned up.
- (3) Satan’s role—ultimately bearing the responsibility of sin.
- (4) The need for God’s government and our function in that government.
- (5) Personal relationships—chapters 18-22 give laws that relate to the people (individuals).
- (6) Chapter 23 addresses the Church.
- (7) Chapters 24—27 address the nation—how to be a holy nation.

Leviticus 24:22, “““You shall have the same law for the stranger and for one from your own country, for I am the Lord your God.”””

Leviticus 25 continues with laws for the nation in terms of holiness: the Sabbatical Year (vv. 1-7) and the seventh Sabbatical Year ending with the Jubilee Year (vv. 8-16), which was the basis of the economic system and matters of usury (vv. 35-38).

Leviticus 26 tells what would happen to the nation in terms of blessings and curses.

Leviticus 27 is a wrap-up that deals with economic aspects, with tithing (vv. 30-32) and further instructions in detail of the Jubilee (vv. 17-25). So we have instructions to individuals, to the Church and to the nation.

As we begin to look at Leviticus, we have only gotten into an overview of it. Hopefully as a result of this evening, you have more of an overview of the book of Leviticus, and that it has a lot that applies to us. There are many, many lessons that we can learn. Even though many of the ritualistic aspects were added, they were to teach a lesson. Hopefully, we will learn that lesson and understand what is involved in holiness and what it means to be a holy people unto our God.

Old Testament Series—Leviticus (Part 2)

Last Bible study we focused on the overall theme of the book of Leviticus, the overall theme of holiness. We saw the emphasis that the people of God must be holy. The way we become holy is first and foremost access to God because God is the source of holiness. We went through an overall outline of the book and now we want to summarize more specifically on the sacrificial system.

In the first section of Leviticus, chapters 1-9 are on the various sacrificial offerings. There are five basic sacrificial offerings. Let us understand them, what their purpose and function was: (1) the burnt offerings, (2) the grain (or meal) offerings, (3) the peace offerings, (4) the sin offerings and (5) the trespass offerings.

The Burnt Offerings: Leviticus 1:1-10, 14, “Now the Lord called to Moses and spoke to him from the tabernacle of meeting, saying, ‘Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: “When any one of you brings an offering to the Lord, you shall bring your offering of the livestock—of the herd and of the flock. If his offering is a burnt sacrifice of the herd, let him offer a male without blemish; he shall offer it of his own free will at the door of the tabernacle of meeting before the Lord. Then he shall put his hand on the head of the burnt offering, and it will be accepted on his behalf to make atonement for him. He shall kill the bull before the Lord; and the priests, Aaron’s sons, shall bring the blood and sprinkle the blood all around on the altar that is by the door of the tabernacle of meeting. And he shall skin the burnt offering and cut it into its pieces. The sons of Aaron the priest shall put fire on the altar, and lay the wood in order on the fire. Then the priests, Aaron’s sons, shall lay the parts, the head, and the fat in order on the wood that is on the fire upon the altar; but he shall wash its entrails and its legs with water. And the priest shall burn all on the altar as a burnt sacrifice, an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the Lord. And if his offering is of the flocks—of the sheep or of the goats—as a burnt sacrifice, he shall bring a male without blemish...and if the burnt sacrifice of his offering to the Lord is of birds, then he shall bring his offering of turtledoves or young pigeons.””

Verse 3, ““...he shall offer it of his own free will...”” Jewish translation renders it, “that he may be accepted before the Lord”—an offering to guarantee acceptance. That he may be accepted. An introductory offering, it was killed and flayed and washed by the individual and presented. The whole thing was burned. This typified Jesus Christ, that we might have access to God. This was a total sacrifice. This sacrifice looked forward to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. It was an offering made to provide access to God. It had to be a male without blemish—the perfect physical offering. It was a type of the spiritual perfection of Jesus Christ. He was the perfect offering. Jesus Christ presented Himself as our Savior that we might be accepted before God. The whole thing was burned. They had to go through a lot of effort.

The Grain Offering: (KJV, “meat” offering, ironic because it was the only one that didn’t consist of meat. Grain was used. It is rendered as “meal” in the Jewish translation and “grain” in the NKJV.)

Leviticus 2:1-4, 9, ““When anyone offers a grain offering to the Lord, his offering shall be of fine flour. And he shall pour oil on it, and put frankincense on it. He shall bring it to Aaron’s sons, the priests, one of whom shall take from it his handful of fine flour and oil with all the frankincense. And the priest shall burn it as a memorial on the altar, an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the Lord. The rest of the grain offering shall be Aaron’s and his sons’. It is a most holy offering of the offerings to the Lord made by fire. And if you bring as an offering a grain offering baked in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mixed with oil, or unleavened wafers anointed with oil...It is an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the Lord.””

Here was an offering that was made from grain, made from fine flour. Christ was a living sacrifice. The other sacrifices were dead. Here was in a sense a living sacrifice. It was food, grain and bread, the staff of life characterized by it being made with fine flour. It could not have coarseness. Christ was a living sacrifice in whom there was no roughness or unevenness, very finely ground up. Christ’s life had a consistency to it. It was to have oil added to the flour. This olive oil was a type of God’s Holy Spirit. He was totally permeated. His whole life was a sweet aroma to God. This is what the frankincense was. We are told several other things about it. It is to be unleavened cakes (vv. 4-11), no leaven; Jesus Christ is again typified. No honey—honey would speed the fermentation process. There was no corruption in Christ. This offering was to be offered with salt (v. 13).

Salt had significance for people at that time that we don't normally have. We think of it as a flavor enhancer; salt has a preserving effect and is a purifying agent. That was the connotation it had back then. Salt is a purifying agent; it will cleanse. That was the connotation it had for them. Again, the grain offering typified Christ. It was an offering eaten by the priest. Here was Jesus Christ presented as a living sacrifice in whom there was no roughness or unevenness, totally permeated with God's Holy Spirit—the olive oil. There was no leaven, no honey or fermentation. It looked forward to the sacrifice of Jesus Christ.

The Peace Offering: Leviticus 3:1-3, 5-6, 16, ““When his offering is a sacrifice of peace offering, if he offers it of the herd, whether male or female, he shall offer it without blemish before the Lord. And he shall lay his hand on the head of his offering and kill it at the door of the tabernacle of meeting; and Aaron's sons, the priests, shall sprinkle the blood all around on the altar. Then he shall offer from the sacrifice of the peace offering an offering made by fire to the Lord. The fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails...and Aaron's sons shall burn it on the altar upon the burnt sacrifice, which is on the wood that is on the fire, as an offering made by fire, a sweet aroma to the Lord. If his offering as a sacrifice of peace offering to the Lord is of the flock, whether male or female, he shall offer it without blemish...and the priest shall burn them on the altar as food, an offering made by fire for a sweet aroma; all the fat is the Lord's.””

It was to be a male or female. A peace or freewill offering was offered voluntarily because of unexpected blessings. It was an offering made in which the one offering partook of part of it as a meal. It was entering into a communion with God. It was called a peace offering. It was a sign of peace, communion, fellowship; there's something particularly bonding about that. This represented entering into fellowship with God. Part of it was burned on the altar. The priest took a part and you took a part. It was typical of the fellowship of the communion with God that is made possible for us through Jesus Christ. Through Jesus Christ's sacrifice, we have the opportunity of entering into intimate contact and fellowship with God. We find that typified here in chapter 3.

The first three offerings were voluntary. There was not a prescribed time. You brought the burnt offering because you wished to be accepted before God. You presented the grain and peace offerings voluntarily. The last two were required, and without the shedding of blood, there was no remission of sin (Hebrews 9:22).

The Sin Offering: Leviticus 4:1-5, 12, 22-23, 27-28, 35, “Now the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, ‘Speak to the children of Israel, saying: “If a person sins unintentionally against any of the commandments of the Lord in anything which ought not to be done, and does any of them, if the anointed priest sins, bringing guilt on the people, then let him offer to the Lord for his sin, which he has sinned a young bull without blemish as a sin offering. He shall bring the bull to the door of the tabernacle of meeting before the Lord, lay his hand on the bull's head, and kill the bull before the Lord. Then the anointed priest shall take some of the bull's blood and bring it to the tabernacle of meeting...the whole bull he shall carry outside the camp to a clean place, where the ashes are poured out, and burn it on wood with fire; where the ashes are poured out it shall be burned...When a ruler has sinned, and done something unintentionally against any of the commandments of the Lord his God in anything which should not be done, and is guilty, ...he shall bring as his offering a kid of the goats, a male without blemish...If anyone of the common people sins unintentionally by doing something against any of the commandments of the Lord in anything which ought not to be done, and is guilty, ...he shall bring as his offering a kid of the goats, a female without blemish...He shall remove all its fat...Then the priest shall burn it on the altar, according to the offerings made by fire to the Lord. So the priest shall made atonement for his sin that he has committed, and it shall be forgiven him.””

The sin offering was for specific sins for which no restitution was possible. The priest offered a bullock; a ruler offered a he-goat; and the common people offered a she-goat. Jesus Christ was sacrificed outside the city walls of Jerusalem. He was symbolic of the sin offering taken outside the camp. Sacrifices were costly. It was to teach a lesson that sin didn't pay. If you had to offer a bull or goat, it didn't take long to run out if you didn't “keep a lid” on things. The priest had to offer a bull. For the priest who made a mistake, a direct infraction of the letter of the law, God wanted the most serious penalty on the priest. The ruler, people who are in charge, used a he-goat—a Billy goat. I know of nothing more symbolic than the stubbornness of the Billy goat. For the common people it was the least expensive of the three offerings. God was holding the priest to the highest standard, then the ruler and then the common people. So this was the offering that was required for specific sins for which no restitution was possible.

The Trespass Offering: Leviticus 5:1, ““If a person sins in hearing the utterance of an oath, and is a witness, whether he has seen or known of the matter—if he does not tell it, he bears guilt.”” The voice of adjuration—they were adjured to come forward if they had knowledge of something that was going on, and you were called forward to come forth. God holds you responsible.

Verses 2-6, ““Or if a person touches any unclean thing, whether it is the carcass of an unclean beast...or if he touches human uncleanness...or if a person swears, speaking thoughtlessly with his lips to do evil or to do good, whatever it is that a man may pronounce an oath, and it is hidden from him—when he realizes it, then he shall be guilty in any of these matters. And it shall be, when he is guilty in any of these matters, that he shall confess that he has sinned in that thing; and he shall bring his trespass offering to the Lord for his sin which he has sinned...so the priest shall make atonement for him concerning his sin.”” It had to do with specifics.

Verses 15-16, ““If a person commits a trespass, and sins unintentionally in regard to the holy things of the Lord, then he shall bring to the Lord as his trespass offering a ram without blemish from the flocks, with your valuation in shekels of silver according to the shekel of the sanctuary, as a trespass offering. And he shall make restitution for the harm that he has done in regard to the holy thing, and shall add one-fifth to it and give it to the priest. So the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering, and it shall be forgiven him.””

Leviticus 6:2, ““If a person sins and commits a trespass against the Lord by lying to his neighbor about what was delivered to him for safekeeping, or about a pledge or about a robbery, or if he has extorted from his neighbor,””

Verses 4-5, ““then it shall be, because he has sinned and is guilty, that he shall restore what he has stolen or the thing which he has deceitfully

obtained, or what was delivered to him for safekeeping, or the lost thing which he found, or all that about which he has sworn falsely. He shall restore its full value, add one-fifth more to it, and give it to whomever it belongs, on the day of this trespass offering.”” It has to do with making restitution for transgressions where restitution was possible—six-fifths of the value, the value plus one-fifth. That is the difference between the sin offering and the trespass offering. In the day you made your trespass offering and were reconciled to God, you also had to get reconciled to your neighbor; you added a fifth part to it.

Christ used this in the New Testament in the Sermon on the Mount in Matthew 5.

Matthew 5:23-24, ““Therefore if you bring your gift to the altar, and there remember that your brother has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar, and go your way. First be reconciled to your brother and then come and offer your gift.”” Christ was referring back to Leviticus. That was the law. That was what Leviticus 6 said, and Christ applied it in principle and spirit. In order to be reconciled to God, we must be reconciled to our brother. If I have done hurt or damage to someone, I must seek to make restitution. It is not just to go to God and say you are sorry, but you must go to the person, admit you are wrong and say you are sorry. Real repentance has to do with willingness to take responsibility.

Remember the wicked tax collector? He was in the tree.

Luke 19:8, ““Then Zacchaeus stood and said to the Lord, ‘Look, Lord, I give half of my goods to the poor; and if I have taken anything from anyone by false accusation, I restore fourfold.’”” ‘The people I have cheated; I am going to give them back the money plus.’ He extended the attitude of repentance. He said in effect, ‘I have cheated and stolen all my life; money has been my god. I have cheated people all my life; I don’t want to be that way anymore. I am going to restore money to them.’ Christ was impressed with that attitude. It was what was required in the trespass offering in Leviticus 6.

It had to do with a matter of taking responsibility—certain types of things where restitution can be made. You can’t go back and undo everything you have ever done; that is true. Many times there is no way you can undo it. That was the sin offering, and when you made restitution, there was the trespass offering. There is a principle there: first be reconciled to your brother, and then go to the altar and offer your gift. An important aspect is the willingness to make amends where possible.

Leviticus 1-5 deal with offerings.

Leviticus 6-7 deal with some of these offerings.

Leviticus 8 deal with the consecrations of priests.

Leviticus 9 describes the consecration, to be set apart.

In Leviticus 10, Nadab and Abihu evidently had gone into the Holy Place to offer the incense. They had not done what they were supposed to do. They had not been paying attention and serving God the way they were supposed to do. They offered strange fire. They had this giant fire and couldn't get the coal out. So they went out to get other coal, and God burned them up. Their charred remains were on the floor of the tabernacle. They were instructed not to mourn for them (v. 6).

It was a judgment from God. They were in a public capacity. The priests were not to give indication to the people that God had acted unfairly. Instructions about drinking were given right after this (v. 9). They had been drinking and as a result had become careless. So the emphasis was given that when you are performing your duties before God or for God, you make sure you are clearheaded.

Leviticus 11-15 deals with the need to be clean, to be physically holy.

Leviticus 11:2-3, 9, 13, ““Speak to the children of Israel, saying, “These are the animals which you may eat among all the beast that are on the earth: among the beast, whatever divides the hoof, having cloven hooves and chewing the cud—that you may eat...These you may eat of all that are in the water: whatever in the water has fins and scales whether in the seas or in the rivers—that you may eat...and these you shall regard as an abomination among the birds; they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, the vulture, the buzzard.””” We have the outline of clean and unclean animals, fish and birds. That is why we don't eat what our neighbors eat.

Verses 44-45 deal with holiness, ““For I am the Lord your God. You shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and you shall be holy, for I am holy. Neither shall you defile yourselves with any creeping thing that creeps on the earth. For I am the Lord who brings you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God. You shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.”””

Leviticus 12 deals with the matter of motherhood, physical cleanliness and purification.

Leviticus 13 deals with laws for contagious diseases, leprosy. The priests had the responsibility of making the diagnosis (v. 3).

In vv. 38-42, the priest pronounced him with leprosy, a skin eruption.

Verse 46 shows they were to keep away from other people. They dealt with contagion with quarantine laws.

God gave ancient Israel diet, sanitation, hygiene and quarantine instructions after having come out of Egypt. There are all kinds of things that have come out of Egypt that are not so far different than some of the things done today—practices that paraded under the name of medical in Egypt.

In vv. 47-52, certain garments were to be burned because they could not be cleaned.

Leviticus 15:2-7 explains that if someone has some kind of disease with open sores, if you touch it, you were unclean.

We take that for granted, but it has only been in the last one hundred years that medical science has discovered it. You would never have had what went on during the Civil War. Ancient Israel did not have that problem. They had to wash.

A very detailed breakdown is given. The people for whom it was written at that time had no practical knowledge of common-sense hygiene. These people weren't familiar with it, so it was very specifically detailed instruction. It continues with a woman with her menstrual cycle. This whole section deals with clean and unclean.

Leviticus 16:2 details how the high priest entered once a year into the Holy of Holies.

Verse 8 introduces the scapegoat; the word in Hebrew is “Azazel.” Scapegoat gives the connotation in modern English of someone who bears the wrong for someone else. But it is the goat for Azazel, the name referring to Satan.

Revelation 20:1-3, “And then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key to the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. He laid hold of the dragon, that serpent of old who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years; and he cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal on him, so that he should deceive the nations no more till the thousand years were finished. But after these things he must be released for a little while.”

He will be permanently put away. The angel comes down and binds him and puts him away.

Leviticus 17:3-4, ““Whatever man of the house of Israel, kills an ox or lamb or goat in the camp, or who kills it outside the camp, and does not bring it to the door of the tabernacle of meeting, to offer an offering to the Lord before the tabernacle of the Lord, bloodguilt shall be imputed to that man. He has shed blood; and that man shall be cut off from among his people.””” This emphasizes that God wants things done a certain way. We have to work it the way God wants it. God wants to be worshipped in sincerity and truth. He wants to be worshipped the way He prescribes worship. If you are going to offer a sacrifice, you bring it to the door of the temple. You don’t offer it where you want to offer it.

Verse 11, “For the life of the flesh is in the blood....”

In Leviticus 19, God inspired Moses to exhort the people that they were to be holy, for God is holy (v. 2). The Creator wants us to share His outlook and to possess His character.

Verses 9-18 contain a series of injunctions that are summed up by the statement, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself” (v. 18). How do we apply this in a practical way?

In vv. 9-10, the first point mentioned is generosity to those in need.

When farmers harvested their crops, they were told not to reap the corners of the field or to return to pick up what was dropped. Neither were they to go back afterward to gather the last of the fruit. This was to be left for the poor and the strangers. From the very beginning, God’s people were taught the very opposite of a self-centered approach focused on getting for self.

The next point stressed in vv. 11-13 is the importance of honesty in all of our dealings. Agreements are to be kept and our word is to be our bond. Specifically, the strong are not to take advantage of the weak.

Leviticus 19:13, “““You shall not defraud your neighbor, nor rob him. The wages of him who is hired shall not remain with you all night until morning.””” –Holiness in terms of how we deal with our neighbor. Don’t rob him. When you hire someone, you pay him. You don’t even keep it at night. Wages are to be paid in full and when promised. To do otherwise is to defraud our neighbor and only establishes grievances.

James 5:4, “Indeed the wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out; and the cries of the reapers have reached the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth.” Don’t defraud; you are to pay it. You are not to try and beat them out of it.

Leviticus 19:14 shows that we are to extend respect to all, whether they are aware of it or not. A deaf person may not know when someone is cursing him. But such an act of disrespect shows contempt for another human being. To put a stumbling block before the blind is to do harm when you think there is no chance of being discovered by the one harmed. However, the end of the verse gives us the key.

Leviticus 19:14, “...but [you] shall fear your God: I am the Lord.” We are to live our life in deep awareness of God’s presence. It is not a question of whether or not people will know how we have treated others. It is not even a matter of whether those to whom we showed contempt are aware of it. Life is to be lived before God, not simply before man.

Verse 15 instructs us to be fair to all. We are not to have a double standard of justice, showing favoritism either to the rich or to the poor. Regardless of social position or wealth, the person with whom we are dealing is our neighbor and is to be treated in an evenhanded way. To tilt the scale—either because we feel sorry for someone’s lowly station or because we are awed by someone’s high station—leads to a society that is unjust and inequitable. While this happens frequently in today’s world, it will not be allowed in a society governed by God’s law.

Verses 16-18 reveal how those who truly love their neighbor as themselves will respond to the sins of others. We also see that God’s law forbids the most common approaches that people today take toward conflict and disagreement. The law reminds us that we are not to be talebearers. We are not to go about as purveyors of scandal, nor are we to talk to all who will listen to get them to agree with us in cases of conflict. Trying to gather allies or simply putting others down is not the way of peace. Talebearing ensures that old sins will not be forgotten and that old conflicts will not truly be resolved. It is often motivated by a desire to gain approval at the expense of another.

Actually, we are not to harbor grudges or seek revenge. Nursing resentments ensures that nothing from the past is ever put to rest. Some people actively display their resentment and hostility toward other people, while others simply hold hate in their heart. Whether it involves telling “our side” to others to get them to agree with us or trying to “get even” with someone who wronged us in the past, these approaches are all equally forbidden by the law of God.

Verse 27, “““You shall not shave around the sides of your head, nor shall you disfigure the edges of your beard.””” This is not talking about shaving or haircuts per se. It was dealing with the way of cutting the hair for the monastic order; the solar disc (haircut) went back to ancient Babylon. The priests of the sun god in Babylon did that, and it came down through the Middle Ages. They had ways of cutting that was characteristic of a pagan priesthood. God told them not to do this, not to round the corners of their head the way the Egyptian priesthood did. It had certain pagan significance in Egypt. The Israelites were to cut their hair where it resembled the shape of the head. God did not want his priesthood copying the pagan priesthood.

Leviticus 20:13, ““If a man lies with a male as he lies with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination. They shall surely be put to death. Their blood shall be upon them.”” Homosexuality—you are looking at something that literally destroys the family. They were to be put to death.

Leviticus 23:32, ““It shall be to you a Sabbath of solemn rest, and you shall afflict your souls; on the ninth day of the month at evening, from evening to evening, you shall celebrate your Sabbath.”” From sunset to sunset you shall celebrate your Sabbath.

Leviticus 24:22, ““You shall have the same law for the stranger and for one from your own country; for I am the Lord your God.”” There is one standard of law; right is right. You are to deal with people in a fair way, whether or not they speak another tongue.

Leviticus 25:2-7, ““Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them: “When you come into the land which I give you, then the land shall keep a Sabbath to the Lord. Six years you shall sow your field, and six years you shall prune your vineyard, and gather in its fruit; but in the seventh year there shall be a Sabbath of solemn rest for the land, a Sabbath to the Lord. You shall neither sow your field nor prune your vineyard. What grows of its own accord of your harvest you shall not reap, nor gather the grapes of your untended vine, for it is a year of rest for the land. And the Sabbath produce of the land shall be food for you: for you and your servant, for your maidservant and your hired servant, for the stranger who sojourns with you, for your livestock and the animals that are in your land—all its produce shall be for food.””

It was a Sabbath of rest unto the land. The land was to lie fallow. They were not to force the land, not to push it to get everything out of it. Every seventh year it was to lie fallow.

Verses 8-10, ““And you shall count seven Sabbaths of years for yourself, seven times seven years; and the time of the seven Sabbaths of years shall be to you forty-nine years. Then you shall cause the trumpet of the Jubilee to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month; on the Day of Atonement you shall make the trumpet to sound throughout the land. And you shall consecrate the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land to all its inhabitants. It shall be a Jubilee for you; and each of you shall return to his family.””

The fiftieth year was the Jubilee—characterized by all the same things as the Sabbatical Year, and all the slaves went free. In Israel, farmland could actually only be leased and not sold. It could be leased out, but at the Jubilee, it reverted back. It was an economic principal preventing the disparity of the rich and the poor. Everyone had a chance for a fresh start.

Deuteronomy 15:1, ““At the end of every seven years you shall grant a release of debts.””

The overall theme of the book of Leviticus is holiness so that God could continue to dwell among them. There are many important principles of this book that are very directly related to us today. It should become apparent, as we go through some of these things, there is a great deal in all of these books that pertain to us today, even in the ceremonial aspects. There are different principles that relate to us and enable us to understand many of the principles of the way that God thinks and the way God intended ancient Israel to function. We have departed from it, and we are reaping physical penalties as well as spiritual penalties. As people living together in communities, we have rejected God’s laws, and we have a society that is at the point of civil collapse. We in the Church today are not a civil nation. We are putting those laws into practice in our lives and preparing for the time to share with the whole world what God has imparted.

Old Testament Series—Numbers

This evening we are covering the book of Numbers. The book of Numbers, as with Leviticus, has a great deal of significance to us as Christians. I think it is important for us to understand how the book of Numbers applies to us today. We want to go beyond simply the historical record. We want to focus on the historical and to understand the specifics that did occur, but we also want to understand the lessons that God would have us derive from this book.

In I Corinthians 10:1-2, the Apostle Paul writes, “Moreover, brethren, I do not want you to be unaware that all our fathers were under the cloud, all passed through the sea, all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea.” Paul is drawing an analogy of ancient Israel who came out of Egypt, and he says that figuratively they were baptized. Now what does that mean? They were immersed in water—water all around them—they just didn’t get wet. This is the only case of baptism without being wet; they had water of the Red Sea on each side of them, taller than they were, and the cloud that was water vapor was over the top. So they were totally surrounded by water, totally enveloped in water, yet they were dry. That was a remarkable situation, and Paul draws it as an analogy that symbolically they were baptized.

Verses 3-4, “all ate the same spiritual food, and all drank the same spiritual drink. For they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ.” The physical rock that was in the wilderness out of which came rivers of living water that they drank was symbolic of the spiritual Rock which is Jesus Christ, the source of living waters (John 7:38-39).

Verse 5, “But with most of them God was not well pleased, for their bodies were scattered in the wilderness.” He says God was not well pleased with most of them.

Notice here, the analogy that Paul is drawing is Israel coming through the wilderness, the story that is contained in the book of Numbers. The book of Numbers covers a thirty-nine-year period. Exodus covers the first year of the wandering, and that takes you up to the dedication of the tabernacle (Exodus 40), basically a year after the Exodus. Leviticus is the detailed instruction that the Levites received around the time that the tabernacle was dedicated. They had to know all this information in Leviticus in order to dedicate the tabernacle that you read of in the end of Exodus. Numbers picks up the story about a year after the Exodus and takes you all the way forward through the period of wandering in the wilderness. It takes you all the way forward until just prior to the entrance into the Promised Land. Deuteronomy deals with the final instructions just before they crossed over the Jordan. So the book of Numbers covers the period between the time Israel came out of Egypt and the time they entered into the Promised Land. It covers the time of wandering in the wilderness.

Brethren, where do we find ourselves today? We have left spiritual Egypt and have turned our backs on this society, but we have not yet reached the Promised Land, have we? We are on a journey through the wilderness, through a spiritual wilderness. We are in a process of traveling from Egypt to the Promised Land. We are in circumstances that Israel of old was. We are in the spiritual circumstances that compares with their physical circumstances because they were on a journey from Egypt to the Promised Land. We are on a journey from spiritual Egypt to the Promised Land.

God records the details of what Israel went through.

Paul says in I Corinthians 10:5-6, “But with most of them God was not well pleased, for their bodies were scattered in the wilderness. Now these things were our example, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted.”

Verses 7-11, “And do not become idolaters as were some of them. As it is written, ‘The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.’ Nor let us commit sexual immorality [KJV, “fornication”], as some of them did, and in one day twenty-three thousand fell; nor let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were destroyed by serpents; nor murmur, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed by the destroyer. Now all these things happened to them as examples, and they were written for our admonition, on whom the ends of the ages have come.”

Paul enumerates several things that we are going to read about in the book of Numbers. He says, ‘This is what messed up the people.’ These are the pitfalls in the Christian life. These are the things that can keep you from entering into the Promised Land. Why didn’t they?

Well, some of them began to lust after evil things. They began to lust and covet that which they didn't have, which of course, led them into idolatry and the kind of attitude it describes. They sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play. It is not talking about drinking a glass of milk and having a hamburger and going out to play volleyball. That really was not the problem. It is talking about a lifestyle of just a drunken debauch—a worldly lifestyle, that involved the drinking to excess, that involved the kind of things that you often see around.

So, here were the things that got to them. 'Nor let us commit fornication'; immorality was a problem. 'Nor let us tempt Christ...Nor murmur, gripe,'—complain, fault find. These things that happened to them were for examples or for types. They are to represent certain things and to make us aware of the type of things that can befall us and interfere with our successful completion of our spiritual journey.

So I think it is important that we study the book of Numbers from that standpoint. We will notice as we go through, that there are certain types of problems, certain things that tripped them up. Things that we today can interfere with us, things that have tripped up many of God's people in this age.

Certainly, one of the basic themes of the book of Numbers is that God's people can only move forward so long as they trust in God's promises and lean upon His strength. The older generation of Israel did not enter into the Promised Land (Numbers 14:22-23). Why? Israel quit following where God led. They got sidetracked with other things. Their own fears came in the way; they were afraid to go where God led. God was leading them into the Promised Land; they focused on how big the giants were and were scared to go in (Numbers 13:25-33).

Romans 1:17, "...The just shall live by faith."

Numbers is the record of Israel's lack of faith. Because of unbelief, they were unable to enter the Promised Land. Hebrews 3 and 4 also provide an analogy between the lesson of Numbers and the Christian life.

The book of Numbers takes its meaning from the prominence of two censuses. One was taken at the beginning of the wandering; the other was taken at the end of the wandering. So there are numbers that are recorded in this particular book. Yet interestingly enough, the Jews sometimes referred to it as the Book of Murmurings because that is what it was—the story of Israel's murmurings in the wilderness.

We start out in Numbers 1 with the census that is taken. At the beginning when the census was first taken, we note that Judah was the largest tribe, almost seventy-five thousand men from twenty years old and upward—seventy-four thousand six hundred of the tribe of Judah. That stood out as quite large. You go through the census, but we won't take time to go through each one.

We note that there is organization. We note that, for instance, beginning in vv. 4-5, there was a leader, a prince (leader) for each tribe.

Numbers 1:7 we note of Judah, "...Nahshon, the son of Amminadab" was the prince. Now if you were to go back to the book of Ruth, you would find that Nahshon, the son of Amminadab was the grandfather of Boaz. Remember Boaz married Ruth. Nahshon that is mentioned here in v. 7 is the prince of the tribe of Judah and the grandfather of Boaz. Now Boaz himself was the great grandfather of King David. You remember that Boaz and Ruth had a son Obed who was the father of Jesse, who was the father of King David (Ruth 4:17-22). It gives you a little "tie-in" in terms of generations and shows that it was a prominent family, a leading family in Judah. Numbers goes through the tribes, and we find that there were just over six hundred thousand men in Israel. This is not counting the Levites (v. 46).

Numbers 2 has the detailed instructions of the way the camp was organized. We note there is organization.

Notice Numbers 2:2, "Everyone of the children of Israel shall camp by his own standard [ensign, banner, flag], beside the emblems of his father's house...." One of the things that we note is organization. God is very organized, and the camp of Israel was very organized. You did not have a mob of two or three million people out here in the desert just kind of wandering around, one giant mob scene. They were organized by tribes; when they pitched their camp, you had the tabernacle in the midst.

Verses 3-7, on the east side toward the rising of the sun there were three tribes: Judah, Issachar and Zebulun. They had the ensign (banner, standard, flag) of the camp of Judah.

Verses 10-14 tell us Reuben, Simeon and Gad were on the south side.

Verses 18-22, on the west side, were Ephraim, Manasseh and Benjamin.

Verses 25-29, on the north side, were Dan, Asher and Naphtali.

Verse 17, "...everyone in his place, by their standard."

There were four flags. There is not a particular description of the flags in the Bible, but there are references in the book of Deuteronomy to the things that were described as having relevance to each of these tribes. In Jewish tradition, there has been preserved the pictures of the ensigns of Israel. One of the interesting things to note is that most of the materials, most of the things that made up the ensigns, have been preserved in the royal coat of arms of Great Britain and portions of it also in that of the United States, France and some of the other nations of Israel.

The statement in Deuteronomy 33:17 describes Joseph, “His glory is like a firstborn bull, and his horns are like the horns of a wild ox [KJV, “unicorns”]; together with them he shall push the peoples to the ends of the earth; they are the ten thousands of Ephraim and they are the thousands of Manasseh.”

It is interesting that if you were to look on the royal coat of arms of Great Britain, you would see pictured on it the unicorn and the bullock. In terms of Judah, it is described in Genesis 49:9 as a lion’s whelp. The lion was the symbol of Judah. Christ was called the Lion of the tribe of Judah. The lion, of course, was symbolic of Judah and is descriptive because from Judah was to come the kingly line. That’s why the lion is also there in the royal coat of arms of Great Britain—Queen Elizabeth is a direct descendant of King David and occupies the throne of David. You have united there in the royal coat of arms the insignias that represent Ephraim and Judah because the royal family that is in Britain is the descendant of the kingly line of Judah, ruling over the tribe of Ephraim, the chief of the tribes of Israel. You would actually find pictured much of the insignias and the things that are identified with the British Isles. If you looked at these insignias, much of the material of the coats of arms actually dates back to the particular time that is described here and the flags that are described.

There were flags held up that they could see, and there was a captain over each tribe. We saw earlier that God had given Moses instruction through his father-in-law that he should appoint captains of ten, captains of fifty, captains of one hundred and captains of one thousand (Exodus 18). We find these are tribal captains that are above the captains of a thousand. There were captains over each tribe, twelve princes—one for each tribe. There was organizational structure.

If you have ever been to Big Sandy, Texas for the Feast of Tabernacles, you have a glimmer on a very small scale of how it works. We take it for granted, but people in the world are amazed that you can come up at the Feast of Tabernacles with a city of four or five thousand people overnight with no paid or permanent staff. You have people that are coming in from all over, and in a day’s time you have an organized city of four or five thousand people. You have sanitation and hygiene, police and fire, and everything you would have in any city of four or five thousand people. It functions and it functions smoothly. With that, we get a flavor, if you have ever been there, of what it was like.

I look back and appreciate the opportunity that I had for quite a number of years to be involved there with the camp in Big Sandy and to have a part in organizing it because this was our model. This was what we looked to. Why did we organize it the way that we did? Because this was the way God had Moses do it. If it was good enough for God and Moses, I don’t think there was any point in our trying to improve upon it. So we never tried to improve upon it. We didn’t experiment with captains of twelve or captains of five or captains of fifteen. We just stuck to ten, fifty, one hundred and one thousand, just like God told Moses to do it, and it worked.

In Numbers 2, you had this organization: three tribes on the east (vv. 3-7), Judah, Issachar and Zebulun; on the south (vv. 10-14), Reuben, Simeon and Gad; on the west (vv. 18-22), Ephraim, Manasseh and Benjamin; and on the north (vv. 25-29), Dan, Asher and Naphtali. The Levites were camped on the inside, right around the tabernacle. There was order; there was organization to it.

You had the flags on every side, and each tribe was outlined. First were the tribes; then the tribes were subdivided into the basic clans in the tribe, family groupings in the clans, the extended family groupings and finally the families themselves. There was an organized structure going from groups of ten families, groups of fifty families, groups of one hundred families and groups of one thousand families. We get a little bit of the flavor of this type of thing.

One of the things that you might note, it does not go into detail here, but elsewhere we are told of the seventy elders who were basically, in structure, between the captains of one thousand and the princes over the tribes. If you would look, for instance, at Judah where there were seventy-four thousand families, you would wind up with seventy-four captains of one thousand. Let’s say ten captains of one thousand reported to each elder; then you would wind up with seven or eight elders from Judah. If you were to take that number and go through, you would see that it would come out to about seventy in terms of the overall number that they would have. That would mean about seven or eight elders then reported to each prince. So you had that structure where everybody had a manageable number that reported to him, coming up to the twelve princes that reported to Moses. You had a highly structured, organized situation through which you could handle all of this.

The other thing to note in comparison is that when you go back to the New Jerusalem at the end of the book of Revelation, you know what you find? You find a city that is laid out in square with three gates on each side of the city. And guess what—each gate is meant for one of the tribes. Here, you find the organization that God is later going to use on out into eternity with the New Jerusalem.

It is headquarters of the universe. This structure is going to get back to the twelve tribes. Everybody who comes into the New Jerusalem relates to one of the tribes of Israel, and that ties in with the one hundred forty-four thousand where you have twelve thousand of the firstfruits assigned for each tribe (Revelation 7:4). The word “of” in this verse is Greek and can just as easily be translated “for” as well as “of.” In that sense, it is not that each one of the twelve thousand will necessarily be physical descendants of that tribe, but for that tribe—they are appointed for that tribe, at least spiritually in the context of the New Jerusalem.

Then you have the physical descendants who report in, who come in through those gates, as well as the various Gentile nations that flow in because all must ultimately become spiritually the children of Abraham. You know, if you are Christ’s, you are Abraham’s seed, heirs according to the promise.

We are told in the book of Isaiah (46:10) that God declares the end from the beginning. God had an organized structure in mind. He started out in the beginning with a pattern that He is going to follow out into eternity. Sometimes I think we don’t realize some of those things, but you know what? You are going to have God right in the center in the New Jerusalem; then from there flows out that organization of each tribe, three tribes on every side.

Numbers 3:12, “Now behold, I Myself have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel instead of every firstborn who opens the womb among the children of Israel. Therefore the Levites shall be Mine.” God says He has taken the Levites. We find they did a census and it turned out the number of the sons of Levi (Levites) were twenty-two thousand: Gershon, seven thousand five hundred (v. 22); Kohath, eight thousand six hundred (v. 28); and Merari, six thousand two hundred (v. 34).

Verse 39, “All who were numbered of the Levites...all the males from a month old and above, were twenty-two thousand.” Now if you actually add up the numbers, you come out to twenty-two thousand three hundred. There was a difference of three hundred. Of the twenty-two thousand three hundred, three hundred were themselves firstborns, and they couldn’t redeem themselves. That is where there is one apparent discrepancy that is really not.

If you take the numbers given here in Numbers 3, the seven thousand five hundred of Gershon, eight thousand six hundred of Kohath and the six thousand two hundred of Merari, and you add them all together, you will find that the numbers come out to be twenty-two thousand three hundred. Yet in v. 39, it refers to the number as being twenty-two thousand. The difference is that there were three hundred of these that were themselves firstborn; they could not be counted toward the redemption of the other firstborn because they could only redeem themselves, they could only take their own place.

Verse 43, “And all the firstborn males, according to the number of names from a month old and above, of those who were numbered of them, were twenty-two thousand two hundred and seventy-three.” From a month old and upward there were twenty-two thousand two hundred seventy-three firstborn sons in Israel. God said all the firstborn belong to Me, but I am going to take the Levites instead.

God took all of the Levites; it left two hundred seventy-three extra. They were redeemed with a monetary value.

Verse 47, “You shall take five shekels for each one individually; you shall take them in the currency of the shekel of the sanctuary, the shekel of twenty gerahs.” They took up five shekels apiece.

Verse 50, “From the firstborn of the children of Israel took he the money, one thousand three hundred and sixty-five shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary.” If two hundred seventy-three firstborns were redeemed, then one thousand three hundred sixty-five shekels (divided by five, v. 47) was taken.

A shekel was equivalent to about a four-day average wage for a laborer. Five shekels was about twenty days or approximately a three-week wage of the average laboring man. That is what this would work out to in terms of equivalence.

The point that God wanted to make was that when He came through Egypt and spared the firstborn, He said they belonged to Him because He struck all the firstborn of Egypt dead and spared yours. God said, ‘All the firstborn belong to Me. In exchange for them, I am going to take one tribe, but everybody has to be accounted for. Numbers 4 details the Levites entering into full responsibility.

Numbers 4:3, “‘from thirty years old and above, even to fifty years old, all who enter the service to do the work in the tabernacle of meeting.’” They worked in the tabernacle in full responsibility from age thirty to age fifty. We note elsewhere that they performed certain jobs in the temple from age twenty-five. Up to age twenty-five was basically set aside for their education; from ages twenty-five to thirty was more of an apprentice. From ages thirty to fifty, they were in full responsibility. From ages fifty and older, they were in the category of elders—elders in the sense of those who were older. It was basically from the age of fifty and up that the Levites were no longer performing the physical rituals in the temple, but they are of whom you read that sat as judges in the gates in the various cities of Israel.

You read of what they did in the temple, and there was a lot of hard strenuous physical work. When you start slaughtering a bunch of bulls and goats, you begin to realize you are talking about some work, and that is what they spent a lot of time doing. There were many physical rituals in the physical ceremonies, and those from ages fifty and up were simply not burdened with that type of responsibility.

It describes the specific coverings; the materials of the articles of the tabernacle had to be transported through the wilderness, so there were special coverings for them. They were given instructions as to how to carry them (vv. 4-14).

Verse 15, “‘And when Aaron and his sons have finished covering the sanctuary and all the furnishings of the sanctuary, when the camp is set to go, then the sons of Kohath shall come to carry them; but they shall not touch any holy thing, lest they die. These are the things in the tabernacle of meeting which the sons of Kohath are to carry.’” They were not to touch any of the holy things lest they die.

It goes through and describes the specifics of the numbers that were involved in each of these. We find there were eight thousand five hundred eighty Levites between the age of thirty and the age of fifty (vv. 47-48).

Numbers 5:2, “‘Command the children of Israel that they put out of the camp every leper, everyone who has a discharge, and whoever becomes defiled by a dead body.’” It defines those who were put out of the camp because of uncleanness. The symbolism was that God dwells in the tabernacle in the midst of the camp, and anyone who became defiled had to go outside the camp and become clean in order to come back into the presence of God. Obviously, there were physical aspects of quarantine that were involved, but more importantly was the spiritual symbolism—that we have to be clean to be in the presence of God. This past Sabbath we noticed one of the scriptures that Jesus said in Matthew 5.

Matthew 5:8, “‘Blessed [and happy] are the pure in heart for they shall see God.’” To be pure in heart is to be spiritually clean, to be sincere. If we want to be in the presence of God, we have to be spiritually clean. How do we become spiritually clean? We are washed by the water and the word (Ephesians 5:26). They went through a physical washing; we go through a spiritual washing.

There were symbolisms that were to be impressed upon the people; God does not dwell in the midst of uncleanness. If God would not dwell in the midst of physical uncleanness, how much less is God going to dwell in the midst of spiritual uncleanness?

We are told in II Corinthians 6:16, “‘...For you are the temple of the living God. As God has said: ‘I will dwell in them and walk among them. I will be their God, and they shall be My people.’” God dwells in us through His Spirit.

I Corinthians 3:16, “‘Do you not know that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?’”

I Corinthians 6:19-20, “‘Or do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which you have from God, and you are not your own? For you were bought at a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God’s.’” We belong to God. The emphasis is there that if they became physically or ceremonially defiled, they had to go outside the camp—even though there were certain physical reasons in terms of quarantine and in certain matters of contagious disease. But it went beyond that because it was to impress upon them the point that God will not dwell in the midst of uncleanness.

Numbers 6:2-6, "...When either a man or a woman consecrates an offering to take the vow of a Nazarite to separate himself to the Lord, he shall separate himself from wine and similar drink; he shall drink neither vinegar made from wine nor vinegar made from similar drink; neither shall he drink any grape juice, nor eat fresh grapes or raisins. All the days of his separation he shall eat nothing that is produced by the grapevine, from seed to skin. All the days of his vow of his separation no razor shall come upon his head; until the days are fulfilled...he shall not go near a dead body." The Nazarite vow is recorded.

There were three conditions of the Nazarite vow: (1) He was not to eat fruit of the vine or the grape, nor to touch any derivative of it such as wine, strong drink and vinegar. He was not to eat liquor of grapes or moist or dry grapes. Nor could he eat anything that comes from the vine.

Realize that other than at the grape harvest time in the fall, the only products you would have from the vine would be wine or vinegar or raisins because what happens within a week or two after it has been harvested? If you don't have refrigeration or are unable to pasteurize the grape juice, what do you think would happen if you took fresh grape juice and squeezed it out in the fall and stored it? Do you think you would come back in the spring or summer and find grape juice? It wouldn't happen! There are natural yeast spores. That's what that white is. If you ever see a concord grape and see all the white, that's natural yeast spores out of the air.

People ask the question, 'How do you know that Christ and the disciples didn't drink grape juice, rather than wine?' It's very simple; there was no such thing as grape juice in the spring. It would have been impossible. It was not a question of what they drank. The grapes are harvested in the fall. That's the only time that grapes are harvested. Within a couple of weeks, there wasn't any more grape juice. It was either on its way to wine or vinegar, but it wasn't grape juice. I don't think Christ sat there and drank vinegar, so that didn't leave a whole lot of alternatives. It was just simply a matter of that's what you had.

Grape juice, as we know, it did not exist until the advent of pasteurization, other than at harvest time. At harvest time, you would press it out and have fresh grape juice, but you couldn't preserve it that way unless you could freeze or pasteurize, bottle and store it. Those are recent innovations.

Same thing with the grapes, you had to make raisins out of them. You ate what you could fresh at the time you harvested; the rest of it you made raisins or wine out of it or it went bad. This is just to make a point.

The Nazarites were to separate themselves. They didn't partake of wine or strong drink, or for that matter, anything else that came from the vine—though that was primarily what came from the vine most of the year.

(2) They were not to shave or cut their hair.

(3) They were not to touch a dead body.

This was the case throughout the time of their Nazarite vow, which was for a limited duration. It was something that set them aside. It was a vow of humility; it set them aside for special service to God and marked them out from the congregation. One apparent thing is that people normally shaved and cut their hair. If they didn't, the Nazarites wouldn't have stood out from anybody else. They stood out and looked pretty different. They were not allowed to shave or cut their hair for the period of the vow, which generally would run for a period of a few months. Just from that statement alone, you can derive that normally the Israelites did cut their hair and didn't just go some other way.

In Numbers 8, we find the Levites set aside and consecrated. They were in the training period.

We see in vv. 24-25 a kind of five-year on-the-job training from ages twenty-five to thirty; then from age fifty, they were to cease waiting on the service. They were to serve with their brethren in the tabernacle, but they were not to actually perform the service in terms of slaughtering the animals and that sort of thing.

Numbers 9 explains what is termed as the second Passover. The situation came up when there were individuals who were defiled and unable to keep the first Passover. They were not in a state of purity or cleanness and were unable to keep the Passover. What was to happen?

In Numbers 9:10, the statement was made that, "...if anyone of you or your posterity is unclean because of a dead body, or is far away on a journey, he may still keep the Lord's Passover. On the fourteenth day of the second month, at twilight, they may keep it..." He is to observe the Passover.

There are times that individuals are unable to be present at the Passover—primarily in this age, it would be because of sickness, shut-ins, etc. So in their case, they would observe the second Passover as it is prescribed here, which is on the fourteenth day of the second month. If you, for a valid reason, are unable to attend the first Passover, then there is a second that is prescribed. That emphasizes the importance of observing the Passover. God made provision, recognizing that there could be circumstances that would arise that would be beyond the control of an individual that would keep him from being present at the Passover. And if that were the case, there was a second chance. This is not for an individual because of an attitude of unwillingness to obey God, but rather circumstances beyond that individual's control.

In Numbers 10, we note instruction that they were to make two trumpets of silver. They had a coded system that made communication easy among all these people. God is not the author of confusion. If you have all of these people out there, hundreds and hundreds of thousands of people, how do you communicate? If you go out and holler, you are not going to go very far. Well, they had these trumpets made up, and the blast of these trumpets could be heard in a wide area. Through these loud blasts, they were able to blow an alarm. It was coded as to what the people in different sections of the camp were to do when they heard it because, again, God is not the author of confusion.

Numbers 11:1, "Now when the people complained, it displeased the Lord; for Lord heard it and His anger was aroused. So the fire of the Lord burned among them, and consumed some in the outskirts [KJV, "uttermost parts"] of the camp." There are various times you read of where God consumed those who were in the uttermost part of the camp. Those were the "fringers."

There's always a certain element that wants to hang around the uttermost fringe of the camp. On the one hand, they identify with it, but they didn't want to be right there in the center of things. In the center was where God was. They wanted to be as far away from God as they could be and yet still kind of be identified with the people of God. Unfortunately, there are a few of those that kind of tag along on our journey through the wilderness; they are the "spiritual fringers."

We used to see in Big Sandy, at the camp, there was a certain element of people that liked to show up a day late for the Feast and wanted to go down and pitch a camp on a corner down there on 32nd Street. Now why in the world would anyone want to do anything like that? – Because they wanted to be on the uttermost fringe of the camp. We always knew when we organized the camp in Big Sandy it was crucial to protect the fringers. You were very careful as to whom you camped on the farthest back street because they had to secure the back of the camp. You knew if you had trouble, it was going to be down on the uttermost fringe of the camp. It never failed. I saw it from 1974 to 1986, and I don't know of any exception. If you had trouble, it was down on the uttermost fringe of the camp. That's where you could always depend on there being problems because it was hard to get to. If people are going to get in trouble, they kind of gravitate toward the edges, kind of get off where there's nobody looking, and, sure enough, there is trouble. When there was trouble and God got ready to "zap" somebody, He generally zapped somebody on the uttermost fringes of the camp because that way you would catch most of the ones that needed zapping.

Then we find the people began to gripe and complain.

Verse 5, "We remember the fish which we ate freely in Egypt, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic." 'Woe is me; all we have is this manna.' They began to gripe and complain; they didn't like what God had given to them. This attitude of griping and complaining—God wasn't doing things the way they wanted Him to do it.

Earlier they were complaining they didn't have anything to eat; so God sent them manna. They were glad to get the manna, but after a little while they said, 'Why isn't God raining down watermelons? Why isn't He raining down some fish and some really good seasoning?' Evidently manna didn't have spicy seasonings or something on it. They began to complain because it was too bland.

Earlier they had complained because they didn't have anything to eat, and they were glad to get the manna, bland or not—they were hungry. But notice when their need began to be filled, there were their wants! God says He will provide our needs, but sometimes we confuse our needs with our wants. Instead of being appreciative to God for what He was giving, they began to gripe and complain and murmur and fault-find. They said, 'Things were not so bad back in Egypt.'

Of course, that can happen to all of us; we have memories of coming out of the world while beginning our journey. We begin to look back and remember, and say, 'God's way of life is really kind of bland. There's not all of the spice and excitement. Boy, I remember some of the things that we use to do. I don't know; it just seems like it is kind of dull. I'd kind of like to just kind of spice things up. Why can't we do some of the things we use to do?' We begin to get in that kind of attitude. Do you want to know what God thinks of that kind of attitude? Read chapter 11. There were those who did not come out too well on that deal. The people were smitten because of their lust. This is made plain in Numbers 11.

In Numbers 12, we find another problem. Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman he had married. He had married—past tense—an Ethiopian woman. If you read the account, when did he marry the Ethiopian woman? Well, Josephus makes it plain that he married a princess of Ethiopia back when he was a prince of Egypt over forty years earlier. Acts 7:22 mentions that Moses was a man mighty in words and deeds among the Egyptians. Josephus records the account of some of Moses' exploits as an Egyptian general—how he besieged and laid siege to the Ethiopian city of Maro, and the city surrendered. They made a deal that he would marry the princess and the city would surrender. We don't read of the woman during the period of time Moses left Egypt. We don't know exactly the situation. We know that he later married a Midianite woman that we read about in Exodus 2.

But notice the point here. Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses. They began to criticize and put Moses down in the midst of the congregation because of this marriage, which they recognized as not being proper. It was something that they knew, in effect, created disrespect for Moses. They wanted to criticize or condemn Moses because of a marriage he had entered into that was not really in accordance with the way that things should be. Notice their attitude.

Numbers 12:2, "And they said, 'Has the Lord indeed spoken only through Moses? Has He not spoken through us also?' And the Lord heard it." 'Who does Moses think he is? He's not perfect; look at this situation with the Ethiopian wife.' They brought this up because this served to be an emotional issue that kind of stirred up people, and they were going to use that to just kind of criticize Moses and put him down.

Verse 3, "(Now the man Moses was very humble, more than all men who were on the face of the earth.)" Moses did not flare up and take matters into his own hands. They began to criticize and put down Moses, began to stir things up and to use this as something to criticize Moses. They were jealous of Moses. What happened? Moses didn't fight his own battle here; God did.

Numbers 12:4-10, "Suddenly the Lord said to Moses, Aaron and Miriam, 'Come out, you three, to the tabernacle of meeting!' So the three came out. Then the Lord came down in the pillar of cloud and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam. And they both went forward. Then he said, 'Hear now My words: If there is a prophet among you, I, the Lord, make Myself known to him in a vision, and I speak to him in a dream. Not so with My servant Moses; he is faithful in all My house. I speak with him face to face, even plainly, and not in dark sayings; and he sees the form of the Lord. Why then were you not afraid to speak against My servant Moses?' So the anger of the Lord was aroused against them, and He departed. And when the cloud departed from above the tabernacle, suddenly Miriam became leprous, as white as snow...."

What was the point? They began to criticize and condemn Moses. There were individuals years ago that evidently had not read Numbers 12; if they had read it, they hadn't gotten the point.

I remember a time when Mr. Herbert Armstrong made a marriage and that there were those who were not afraid to speak evil, condemn, criticize and seek to incite people. They obviously had not gotten the point of Numbers 12.

God said, 'Look, Moses is My servant. You have nothing to say about him to the people to put him down. If anybody tells Moses anything, I will tell Moses what he needs to know. I will deal with Moses. You are putting yourself up in a way that you do not belong.' However, Moses beseeched God to heal Miriam (v. 13) and He did. God wanted to make a point.

One of the things you find throughout the book of Numbers is rebellion. People found fault with Moses. They found fault with the leadership.

Paul said in I Corinthians 10:6, 11, 'Look, these things happened to them as examples for us so that we can read an account and know what happens to people who try to follow God and know the kind of adversities, the kind of temptations that effect them.'

If you are going to try and follow God, leave Egypt behind and head for the Promised Land. There are different types of difficulties that you will encounter. How should you conduct yourself when you meet these difficulties? Here's the Book; it tells you the kind of problems God's people encountered. Paul tells us these things were written down as examples for us, so that when we read the account, we might know how we ought to conduct ourselves if we ever find ourselves in a similar circumstance. That's one of the ways to read the Bible. Read it has from the standpoint of what happened to God's people in the past. What difficulties, what adversities, what temptations beset them? How did they handle it? What was the right way, the wrong way? Learn from it so that when we encounter something similar, we don't have to make the same mistake.

Here was a problem that came from people at the top. You see they were familiar, he was their brother—'Who does he think he is?' And they began to find fault and cut him down in the eyes of the people because they wanted to put themselves up. And God intervened in that. The problem was not a matter of God approving Moses' marriage one way or the other. The greatest sin involved was in speaking against Moses, an attitude of rebellion. They were trying to exalt themselves and to demean Moses in the eyes of the people.

Numbers 13 gives the instructions to send out spies into the Promised Land, a land that flowed with milk and honey. They sent them out, and when they came back to report, they told them that, Numbers 13:33, "There we saw giants (the descendants of Anak came from the giants); and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their sight."

Verse 30, now Caleb and Joshua told the people, "Then Caleb quieted the people before Moses, and said, 'Let us go up at once and take possession, for we are well able to overcome it.'"

Numbers 14 shows that they complained and murmured and griped and bellyached and wept and wailed and lamented because of all of this. God, of course, was not pleased with their attitude. It was a total lack of faith. They were unwilling to follow God. So God said, 'You are going to wander.'

Numbers 14:34, "According to the number of the days in which you spied out the land, forty days, for each day you shall bear your guilt one year, namely forty years, and you shall know My rejection." Each day for a year; we find that a principle in prophecy. They bore that for forty years. All of that generation, except Joshua and Caleb, died. God brought the children over.

Numbers 15:30, "But the person who does anything presumptuously, whether he is native-born or a stranger, that one brings reproach on the Lord, and he shall be cut off from his people."

Verse 32, "Now while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath day."

Verse 30 presents a presumptuous sin.

In v. 32, an individual was going about his work on the Sabbath. He was out chopping firewood and gathering that up. He was put to death (v.

35). It comes right after the statement in v. 30 about the presumptuous sin.

A presumptuous sin is when you know better and do it anyway. We are looking at an attitude, an attitude of rebellion—rebelliousness. This is not a case of where a man made a mistake or didn't understand or didn't realize. We are not looking at the need of someone to be instructed. We are looking at the need of someone to be corrected. It served as an example for the people that you don't just have this kind of self-rule attitude. Here God is governing the nation directly, and He tells you what to do. The man says, 'I don't care, I am going to go out and do what I want to do.' God says, 'No, you are not; I am not going to tolerate that.' God was governing in a very direct way and making plain how He viewed things that we might read it and understand God's perspective and how seriously God takes these matters.

Numbers 16:1-3, "Now Korah the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, with Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab, and On the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took men; and they rose up before Moses with some of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty leaders of the congregation, representatives of the congregation, men of renown. They gathered together against Moses and Aaron, and said to them, 'You take too much upon yourselves, for all the congregation is holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them. Why then do you exalt yourselves above the congregation of the Lord?'"

Here is Korah; he is a cousin of Moses, one of the Levites. In a sense, he is one of the leading ministers, but he is not the priesthood. He got together with some who were the sons of Reuben (v. 1). They were leading ministers in the congregation, men of renown. They said, 'You take too much upon yourself. Since all the congregation is holy, everyone, we are all God's people, every one of us.'

Verse 3, 'Who do you think you are; why are you lifting yourself above the congregation of the Lord?'

Verse 10, "...are you seeking the priesthood also?'"

Verses 11-14 show an attitude of rebellion, murmuring and complaining because God isn't doing things the way they want. So they begin to take things into their own hands. People who begin to focus in on the difficulties and adversities become so overwhelmed and discouraged, they give up and quit and won't be going forward. You saw what happened. God gave the instructions. ‘You think you are so great? We are going to find out who is God’s servant.’

Verses 31-32, “Then it came to pass, as he finished speaking all these words, that the ground split apart under them, and the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up, with their households and all the men with Korah, with all their goods.” God opened up the earth and swallowed up Korah, Dathan and Abriam and everything that pertained to them. He sent fire out and consumed the two hundred fifty men who offered incense (v. 35).

Verse 41, “On the next day all the congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron, saying, ‘you have killed the people of the Lord.’” You know what, the next day everybody was complaining about Moses and Aaron. ‘You have killed God’s people.’ The people were all mad and upset with what God had done. So God struck them with a plague, and fourteen thousand seven hundred of them died (v. 49).

In Numbers 17:1-9, they were all told to bring in their staff and plant it in the sand. They came out the next day, and Aaron’s rod had budded. It was made out of almond wood; it had grown leaves and had almonds on it. That’s not normally what is going to happen when you stick your walking stick in the sand overnight. You are not going to come out and find all of a sudden you have oak leaves growing out the thing and little acorns hanging off of it, almonds or whatever. That’s not what is going to happen. It didn’t happen to any of theirs, but it happened to Aaron’s. God was going to get the point across—‘this is the one through whom I am working.’ God selects those through whom He works. God may not be working through perfect human instruments, but God knows that. The basis of God’s government is faith that God will do what He says He will do. We look to God in faith.

Verse 10 indicates Aaron’s rod was kept for a token. They kept it in the tabernacle.

In Numbers 18, we find God’s instruction about tithing. The tithes belong to God. All the way back to the beginning, Abraham understood that. That is something that has always been done. You find, way back at the beginning, righteous Abel brought the firstlings of his flock (Genesis 4:4). He was tithing. You find Abraham tithe to Melchizedek (Genesis 14:20). You find that Jacob understood that tithing was something converted people did (Genesis 28:22). Now he was still unconverted and tried to cut a deal. You remember he told God, ‘Let’s make a deal—if you will take care of me and bring me back safely, then I’ll worship You and start tithing’ (Genesis 28:20-22). Jacob hadn’t entirely gotten the point, but he did understand—from the example of his father and grandfather—that one of the things converted people did was that they tithed. Jacob wasn’t quite ready, he was still kind of “wheeling and dealing,” trying to cut a deal with God—‘You take care of me and I’ll come back and make it up to you. I’ll pay up.’ But God also had ways of dealing with Jacob and getting the point across to him.

Numbers 18:20-21, “Then the Lord said to Aaron: ‘You shall have no inheritance in their land, nor shall you have any portion among them; I am your portion and your inheritance among the children of Israel. Behold, I have given the children of Levi all the tithes in Israel as an inheritance in return for the work which they perform, the work of the tabernacle of meeting.’”

God instructs Israel what they’re to do. He says, ‘I am paying the Levites. They are working for Me; they’re My employees. They’re going to do the service of the tabernacle; they’re going to take care of My work. So I am going to pay them. I am giving them all the tenth in Israel.’ Then the Levites were told that they were to present a tithe to the priest (v. 26). The people tithed to the Levites; the Levites in turn tithed to the priests.

It is interesting if you think about it. God ensured that the Levites would be well paid; they had a crucial job, the most important job. And they would have been amply rewarded for it. They didn’t have an inheritance. They did not have a tribal inheritance. What they had was the tithe that came in. They had a tenth of everything that came in from the other twelve tribes.

Now if the wealth of the land were divided up, you would figure that if it evened out, every tribe would have the equivalent of about a twelfth because there were twelve tribes when they divided the land. Each of the twelve tribes tithed; so the Levites in that sense would have had the highest standard of living in all of Israel.

They had the most crucial job; they were responsible for the health and well being of the nation—spiritually, physically and in every way. But understand this, God ensured that if the Levites didn’t do their job, they would be the most destitute people in the nation—they didn’t have farmland given to them; they didn’t have a tribal inheritance.

What would happen if the Levites didn’t do their job, really be faithful to God and teach the people God's way? Well, the people would begin to fall away from the truth. What do you think was the first thing the people would stop doing when they began to fall away from the truth? The same thing people stop doing today when they fall away from the truth. They'll quit tithing. Guess who was going to be in trouble when the people quit tithing? The Levites were because they didn't have any other source of income. They didn't have an area that they could go back to. So what God said, in effect was, 'If you are faithful to Me and you really do the job I have given you, you will be greatly blessed. But if you don't, you are going to be greatly cursed. You're going to starve to death because you're not even going to have a farm you can go and work. You're going to be "up a creek" without a paddle if you don't do the job I am giving you to do. You do it, and you will be well and amply rewarded because God says the servant is worthy of his hire' (Luke 10:7). That was appropriate.

The Levites were the judges and the teachers; they had that responsibility. If the Levites did their job, the whole nation was going to be blessed because they were all going to be obeying God. And if they all were obeying God, the Levites were going to be blessed. In other words, the principle is: when you obey God, everybody all up and down the line is blessed. But when you're not, the nation is going to bring trouble upon itself, and the Levites are going to have trouble, too. They're going to be "out of things."

It's interesting when you go through and read in the book of Kings the various times of revival. One of the things that you find is the Levites were destitute and scattered; then they gathered together and started tithing again and keeping the Sabbath. It's an interesting principle how God built that in. I guess you could say in that sense the Levites were on commission instead of salary. You could kind of look at it that way. They were literally rewarded according to their work. If they didn't work very much, then they didn't get very much reward, at least after a while because things have a tendency to fall apart.

When we come to Numbers 20, there is basically a forty-year period or the best part of a forty-year period. Let's say a thirty-seven-year period elapses because when you come to chapter 20, you come towards the end of the forty years and Miriam dies. We find that Aaron dies (v. 28) and God also tells Moses that he was not going to enter into the Promised Land (v. 12).

Numbers 21:5, "And the people spoke against God and against Moses: 'Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? For there is no food and no water, and our soul loathes this worthless bread.'" We find, again, the people spoke against God and Moses. And again, they were dealt with. God sent fiery serpents this time among them (v. 6).

In Numbers 22, we come to an interesting individual—and that is Balaam. As the children of Israel were coming into the plains of Moab, the king of Moab was afraid; he saw what happened to everybody else—that no one could stand in Israel's way. He sent a messenger to Balaam.

Numbers 22:5, "Then he sent the messengers to Balaam, the son of Beor at Pethor, which is near the River in the land of the sons of his people, to call him, saying, 'Look, a people has come from Egypt. See, they cover the face of the earth, and are settling next to me!'" This is an area that is near the area of the Chaldeans. It was a long, long, long way away.

Balaam was, in reality, the chief religious leader. He was literally the Pontifex Maximus of the ancient world. There is an interesting progression to that title because there is a man today that has that title "Pontifex Maximus" and that is, of course, one of the titles of the Pope.

It is interesting where the Pope got that title. He has a claim to it, a legal claim to the title. The first pope to have the title "Pontifex Maximus" was Pope Damasus in 378 A.D. It was a title that had been the title of the Roman Emperors. They had possessed it.

It was the title that gave authority over the calendar, among other things. Julius Caesar established the Julian calendar. He did so in his role as Pontifex Maximus. Pope Gregory established the Gregorian calendar, which we use today. He did so in his role as Pontifex Maximus.

The Roman Emperors had the title going back through the Pontifex Maximus of Rome. They received that title in 133 B.C. The Romans got it from Atalys, III, who was the king of Pergamum. When he died, he willed his kingdom and the title "Pontifex Maximus", which he possessed, to the Roman rulers, and it came down through the Roman rulers until in 378 A.D. Emperor Gratian (full name Flavius Gratianus) bestowed the title on the Pope and they use it today.

The kings of Pergamum had received the title from the Babylonians through Alexander the Great. The Babylonian priesthood had it, and it goes all the way back to Balaam and all the way back to Nimrod. It can literally be traced down through the pagan hierarchy of the Chaldean Mystery Religion, down through Balaam, down through Pergamum, down through Rome and down to today. Interestingly, they use the same old titles.

This was a big deal and they sent hundreds of miles back to find the chief leader of the religious world. Balaam was the king back there. They said, 'We have a job for you. We want you to come and curse this people' (v. 6).

Verse 7, "So the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the diviner's fee in their hand, and they came to Balaam and spoke to him the words of Balak." They came to Balaam and they told Balaam what they had in mind. They came to pay Balaam. Notice that you see Balaam charged for what he did.

One of the differences between God's work and the work of Satan is that God's work says, Matthew 10:8, "freely you have received, freely you give." Ever see someone go up and pay Jesus? They wanted Balaam to heal them. So they came up, and they had to pay him. Ever find where Jesus told them they had to pay Him for Him to pray for them?

There are people that claim they have the power to pray someone out of purgatory, but they only do it for a price. You have to "pay up." Inflation sets in. Maybe it used to be $5, but now, maybe it is $10 or $20. Different places, different priests charge different amounts—kind of whatever the market will bear. In some of the poorer parishes around, it's fairly cheap; they can pray you out for a discount. You go into some of the prosperous parishes, and you find that inflation has set in. They charge a little more. Maybe their prayers are worth more somehow.

Well, Balaam was charging. They had a big job for Balaam. Instead of wanting him to pray somebody out of purgatory, they wanted him to pray somebody in. So they came back with a pretty good reward.

When they explained the situation to Balaam, he said in Numbers 22:18, "...though Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go beyond the word of the Lord my God, to do less or more." 'I cannot go beyond the word of the Eternal. I cannot do more than God will allow me to do.' He wanted them to stay (v. 19). Balaam kept trying to deal with them; Balaam really wanted to do what they wanted and kept trying to figure a way to do it.

Verse 20, "And God said to Balaam at night and said to him, 'If the men come to call you, rise and go with them; but only the word which I speak to you—that you shall do.'" God said, 'Okay, if you want to go, you can go.'

Verse 21, "So Balaam rose in the morning, saddled his donkey, and went with the princes of Moab." Balaam was anxious.

Verse 23, "Then God's anger was aroused because he went, and the angel of the Lord took his stand in the way as an adversary against him. And he was riding on his donkey, and his two servants were with him. Now the donkey saw the angel of the Lord standing in the way with his drawn sword in his hand, and the donkey turned aside out of the way, and went into the field. So Balaam struck the donkey to turn her back onto the road."

This angel manifested himself where Balaam's donkey saw it. Now this donkey had enough sense to know that you don't go that way; here is a big angel. So the donkey just turned aside and went out into the field. Balaam was all upset. You can just see Balaam beating on that donkey. If you have ever ridden a donkey, you understand that they can be stubborn animals; you can beat on them quite a bit before you get things done.

So Balaam got the donkey turned back and the angel of the Lord stood in the path of the vineyard. A wall was on his side, and when the donkey saw the angel of the Lord, she thrust herself against the wall and crushed Balaam's foot. He smote her again (vv. 24-25). He was mad by that time. You can just see him there.

Verses 26-28, "Then the angel of the Lord went further, and stood in a narrow place where there was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left. And when the donkey saw the angel of the Lord, she lay down under Balaam; so Balaam's anger was aroused, and he struck the donkey with his staff. Then the Lord opened the mouth of the donkey, and she said to Balaam, 'What have I done to you, that you have stuck me these three times?'"

Now you know this must have been quite an event. All of a sudden this donkey turned around and said, 'What are you hitting me for?' Balaam was so frustrated by this time, he said, 'Because you are making fun of me. Three times you kept running out of the way.' Balaam was talking to the donkey. He said, 'I'd do more than hit you, you stupid donkey. If I had a sword in my hand I would kill you' (v. 29).

Verse 30, "So the donkey said to Balaam, 'Am I not your donkey on which you have ridden, ever since I became yours, to this day? Was I ever disposed to do this to you?' And he said, 'No.'" Balaam said, 'No, you never have.'

Verse 31, “Then the Lord opened Balaam’s eyes and he saw the angel standing in the way with his drawn sword in his hand; and he bowed his head and fell flat on his face.” It scared him to death.

Verse 32, “And the angel said to Balaam, ‘why have you hit your donkey three times? Behold, I have come out to stand against you, because your way is perverse before Me.’”

‘Look, the donkey is smarter than you are Balaam. I stood in the donkey’s way and the donkey had enough sense to stop. I stood in your way and you were just bound and determined to find a way around. This donkey is smarter than you are because the donkey at least had enough sense to stop when he saw that God was blocking the way.’ Balaam didn’t have enough sense to stop when he saw God was blocking the way. He just tried to figure a way to get around.

God was basically making a point. God could have made it in some other way; you know God has a sense of humor and sometimes chooses to make a point in a humorous way. In effect, God says, ‘When you try to get around doing what God wants you to do, you don’t have as much sense as a jackass.’ That’s basically the point. Even a stupid jackass can figure out that when God says stop, you ought to stop. And you ought to be at least as smart as a donkey. This was the point made to Balaam, and it is recorded for us that, hopefully, we can learn and all be as smart as donkeys.

We come down and obviously Balaam had not gotten the point because he continued to go on trying to curse Israel. You go through all of these shenanigans where they kept trying to get to Balaam and he kept trying to do it.

Numbers 24:13, “‘Though Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go beyond the commandment of the Lord to do either good or bad or of my own will; but what the Lord says, that I must speak.’” In other words, it’s not a matter of ‘I wouldn’t,’ but ‘I can’t. I can’t work my magic; I can’t do my sorcery. I can’t do these things. I can’t go beyond what God will allow. It’s not a matter of you paying me more. I’m not just trying to hold out for a higher price; I simply can’t do it. I can’t go beyond that.’

Go back to the book of Job. Remember God set boundaries to Satan, and He wouldn’t let him go beyond a certain point. Satan went as far as God would let him, but he couldn’t go beyond that.

Job 1:12, the first thing God said, ‘I will let you destroy anything he has, but you can’t touch him.’ Job had hardly turned around before there was a guy riding in saying all your camel, donkeys, cattle and sheep were taken and all your kids were killed (vv. 13-19). Wham—he turned around from one and another would ride in. You get the idea; when Satan gets to do something bad, he gets really excited about it and is in a big hurry to do it all. But he couldn’t go beyond what God allowed. Then God said, ‘I’ll let you do anything you want to do to him, but you can’t kill him.’ So Satan went as far as God would allow. Well, here was Balaam. We find what eventually happened.

Numbers 25:1-2, “Then Israel remained in Acacia Grove, and the people began to commit harlotry with the women of Moab. They invited the people to the sacrifices of their gods, and the people ate and bowed down to their gods.” Let’s notice the message to one of the Churches in the book of Revelation.

Revelation 2:14, “‘But I have a few things against you, because you have those there who hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed to idols and to commit sexual immorality.’” Here the doctrine of Balaam is defined. Who taught Balak to cast a stumbling block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed unto idols and to commit fornication?

What you find in Numbers 25 is Israel began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab and began to go to the sacrifices of their gods. To see what Balaam eventually came up with, you have to put what it says in Numbers together with Revelation.

Balaam eventually came up with a plan. God wouldn’t let Balaam curse Israel, but there was a way that could get them to curse themselves—get them involved in immorality, get them involved in fornication and idolatry. God would get so disgusted with them, He would wipe them out. So Balaam is the one who taught Balak to cast a stumbling block. Balaam is the one who came up with a plan. He eventually devised a way that he thought would bring a curse upon Israel. All this was going on, and things went from bad to worse.

Numbers 25:3, “So Israel was joined to Baal of Peor, and the anger of the Lord was aroused against Israel.” They got involved in immorality and idolatry.

Notice the kinds of things that have gotten in Israel’s way: lust, a craving for the things they left behind, murmuring, griping and complaining about leadership. We notice Israel going after a worldly approach to immorality and idolatry, going into the world. We notice the kind of things that interfered. They just really got off the track, and the anger of the Eternal was kindled against Israel.

Verses 5-6, “So Moses said to the judges of Israel, ‘Every one of you kill his men who were joined to Baal of Peor.’ And indeed, one of the children of Israel came and presented to his brethren a Midianite woman in the sight of Moses and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, who were weeping at the door of the tabernacle of meeting.” It was just so open and blatant in sin, challenging Moses.

Verses 7-8, “Now when Phinehas the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose from among the congregation and took a javelin in his hand; and he went after the man of Israel into the tent and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel and the woman through her body. So the plague was stopped among the children of Israel.” Phinehas was a Levite of quick temper, and boy, when he saw this, he had had it. He went in there and put a stop to it. And the plague stopped. There were twenty-four thousand people that died in the plague (v. 9).

Verses 10-13, “Then the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, ‘Phinehas the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, has turned back My wrath from the children of Israel, because he was zealous with My zeal among them, so that I did not consume the children of Israel in My zeal. Therefore say, “Behold, I give to him My covenant of peace; and it shall be to him and his descendants after him a covenant of everlasting priesthood, because he was zealous for his God and made atonement for the children of Israel.”’” God made a covenant with Phinehas that the line of the high priesthood would come down through him.

In Numbers 26, again the census was taken.

Numbers 27:18, “And the Lord said to Moses, ‘Take Joshua the son of Nun with you, a man in whom is the Spirit, and lay your hand on him.’” The laying on of hands—Moses was ordaining Joshua.

Numbers 29 reviews some of the festivals.

Numbers 30 deals with vows. Vows are not to be made lightly by men or women. But if a woman is single and living at home, then her father has the right to annul the vow. If she is married, then the husband has the same right because there are those to whom she is responsible. This is the principle that if a minor runs off and get married, the parents can have the marriage, the vow, annulled. That is where the law is derived from, from right here. There is a point: you can make a vow, but there are those who have the right to disallow that vow because you are not considered in the position to do that.

Numbers 31:8 records the end of Balaam. Balaam was slain with a sword.

Numbers 31:16, “Look, these women caused the children of Israel, through the counsel of Balaam, to trespass against the Lord in the incident of Peor, and there was a plague among the congregation of the Lord.” It is apparent when you read this verse with Revelation that Balaam is the one who actually came up with the idea that resulted in this plague coming upon Israel.

Numbers 32:23, “But if you do not do so, then take note, you have sinned against the Lord; and be sure your sin will find you out.” This is a very important scripture that I think ought to be a memory verse, one that I made a point to try and teach my children. One thing to realize: if you are God’s people, you are not going to get by with it. Your sin will find you out; it will catch up with you. That’s really because God loves you. God doesn’t want you to do something that is bad for you, and so your sin will find you out. You are going to find, and I think it’s important and good for our kids to realize, they are not going to get by with things that kids in the world get by with. There are going to be things that the world does and seemingly gets by with and don’t get caught because God is not chastening them right now. They are not His. But God chastens every son whom He loves, and be sure your sin will find you out. You do it and you are going to get caught. God will make sure of it. It just works that way. After you are converted you will appreciate it.

Numbers 33:1-3, “These are the journeys of the children of Israel, who went out of the land of Egypt by their armies under the hand of Moses and Aaron. Now Moses wrote down the starting point of the journeys at the command of the Lord. And these are their journeys according to their starting points: They departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day after the Passover the children of Israel went out with boldness in the sight of all the Egyptians.” So they departed on the fifteenth day of the month on the day after the Passover.

In Numbers 34, you will notice Manasseh, the tribe that couldn’t get along with itself, is the only tribe that had two halves. Half the tribe of Manasseh stayed on one side of the Jordan and half of them stayed on the other side. The dichotomy between North and South goes back a long way. It really does.

You find that Manasseh had two wives (Deuteronomy 3:13-15), or rather, he had a wife and a concubine. The descendants of the concubine dwelt in Gilead (v. 15, "Machir"); they were more the agricultural branch with cattle and sheep. The others from his wife (v. 14, "Jair") traveled over the Jordan. Manasseh didn't get along with itself.

You go back to the very earliest part of the history of this country and you find two centers—one in Virginia and one in Massachusetts. Historically, the migration in this country has been from east to west. North/south migration was extremely limited until the aftermath of World War II. It's interesting that you can actually track it back, and they are the two half-tribes of Manasseh. They couldn't get along with each other then, and they've had their difficulties all the way down—one people, but with certain difficulties.

Numbers 35:2-7, "Command the children of Israel that they give the Levites cities to dwell in from the inheritance of their possession, and you shall also give the Levites common-land around the cities. They shall have the cities to dwell in; and their common land shall be for their cattle, for their herds, and for all their animals. The common land of the cities, which you shall give the Levites, shall extend from the wall of the city outward a thousand cubits all around. And you shall measure outside the city on the east side two thousand cubits, on the south side two thousand cubits, on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits. The city shall be in the middle. This shall belong to them as common land for the cities. Now among the cities, which you will give to the Levites, you shall appoint six cities of refuge, to which a manslayer may flee. And to these you shall add forty-two cities. So all the cities you will give to the Levites shall be forty-eight; these you shall give with their common land."

We find the Levites were given cities. They were ultimately given forty-eight cities along with the suburbs for their habitations. These cities were the administrative centers of Israel. They were to serve as cities of refuge for people who were guilty of manslaughter or accidental homicide. It was where people came to be judged. There were forty-eight cities, forty-eight administrative districts. Interestingly, this country was divided into forty-eight states for many years in terms of actually the continental United States. Alaska and Hawaii are kind of tagged on, but they are not really part of the continental overspread that God gave us. Ancient Israel was divided into those forty-eight districts, and the Levites were there and had responsibility.

Numbers 1:1, "Now the Lord spoke to Moses in the Wilderness of Sinai, in the tabernacle of meeting, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt...."

Deuteronomy 1:3, "Now it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spoke to the children of Israel according to all that the Lord had given him as commandments to them."

If you compare Numbers 1:1 and Deuteronomy 1:3, it is apparent that thirty-nine years are covered in the book of Numbers. I think from this we have somewhat of an overview of the book. A lot of material we could not, of course, cover in detail, but hopefully we hit the high points.

HISTORICAL SURVEY OF THE OLD TESTAMENT SERIES

Numbers

1. At the time of the first census, which tribe was the largest?
2. What did God take in exchange for all of the firstborn sons of the Israelites?
3. At what age were the Levites to enter into full responsibilities?
4. What were the conditions of a Nazarite vow?
5. What does God say individuals who were unable to keep Passover are to do?
6. Why did God send the plague recorded in Numbers 11?
7. What sin did Aaron and Miriam commit in Numbers 12?
8. Does this chapter prove that God approves of interracial marriage?
9. What punishment did God send on the Israelites because of the report of the spies?
10. Only two men who left Egypt were still alive at the entrance into Palestine. Who were they?
11. What was the sin of Korah?
12. What instructions does God give in Numbers concerning tithing?
13. What was the sin of Balaam?
14. What plan did Balaam come up with in order to get the Israelites destroyed?
15. What instructions does God give about vows?
16. What distinction does Numbers show between the night of the Passover and the night the Israelites left Egypt?
17. What geographic areas were the Levites given for an inheritance and what special importance did they serve?
18. What time span is covered by the book of Numbers?

Old Testament Series—Deuteronomy

With the study this evening, we are wrapping up the five books of the Law. The first five books, the books of Moses, serve as a basis for understanding what comes after. We have spent quite a bit of time on Genesis because that is the basis; that is the beginning. “Deuteronomy” means “the second law.” It is derived from the Latin name of the book that in turn was derived from the Greek translation. It is called a second giving of the law. It was not entirely a second giving of the law; it was not some different law—it was a reiteration.

What you have to understand, the book of Deuteronomy focuses on Moses’ final instructions to the people as they were there in the plains of Jordan. This was just prior to Moses’ death, in the closing weeks, perhaps the last few months of Moses’ life. We have recorded several addresses Moses made to the people, particularly two or three lengthy sermons and several shorter admonitions. They were put together and recorded here.

We are looking at a generation that had been children at the coming out of Egypt. You might stop and think—if all of the older generation, the generation that came out of Egypt died, if all the adults died (except Joshua and Caleb—remember they were the only two), you know what that means? That means there wasn’t anybody in this crowd, other than Joshua and Caleb, who were sixty years of age or older. The adults were counted from twenty years of age and up. Everyone who was age twenty and up when they came out of Egypt, which had been forty years earlier, had died in the wilderness, except Joshua and Caleb.

The only ones that are there are those who were either teenagers or younger at the time of the Exodus. They simply did not have a clear recollection of many of the most momentous events. Many of them had not even been born. Anybody who was the age of forty or younger had not even been born at the time of the Exodus. You’re looking at only that group between ages fifty and sixty who would even have any memory or very much detailed memory of the most memorable events. Unless a child was up in age, close to ten years of age, their real understanding of the events going on would have been somewhat hazy. Obviously, if things were dramatic enough, it would have made an impression upon them, but it would not be a generation with clear understanding and a really clear-cut memory of events. Understand that now we have a generation that is preparing to enter the Promised Land, but it is not primarily the generation that came out of Egypt. It is the children, the grandchildren and, in some cases, the great grandchildren of those who came out of Egypt. God has told Moses that he’s going to die.

The book of Numbers makes a couple of things plain as we focused on last Bible study. The book of Numbers has to do with the journeying through the wilderness, and it contains information that God’s people need to know because it parallels our journey in the Christian life.

One of the things it focuses on is respect for God’s government. That’s an important lesson that we have to learn. We must learn to trust God, to look to Him and to respect His government. God’s government in this age through human beings is imperfectly administered. If we can learn to respect God’s government, when it is imperfectly administered, we certainly won’t have any problem on out into eternity, when it is being perfectly administered. God could ensure that everything was done perfectly right, here and right now, if that was His primary aim, but God has chosen to work through human beings, human instruments.

We have to learn to see beyond the human instrument to see God. Those who dropped out in the wilderness didn’t see beyond Moses to see God. All they saw was one old man, and they said, ‘Who does he think he is?’ They began to nitpick and find fault with him. They didn’t like the way he said things or they didn’t like this or that.

Someone else comes along promising them a new deal, and you know how politicians are—they all promise a new deal. Generally, it turns out to be the same old deal, but people don’t pick up on that. They keep going back. Every so many years, they are going to elect a new reformed candidate, and he’s going to reform everything. Of course, if the reforms lasted, why do we have to keep going back and get a new reformer every few years? We will notice some admonitions to secular rulers a little bit later, and we will notice that God foresaw what the problems were going to be.

We saw in Numbers that there was an emphasis on government. While, on the one hand, God would not tolerate the people rebelling against those He had set in charge, such as Moses, God also made plain another point—the fact that He would deal with those whom He had set in charge. If they made mistakes, God would correct them. God would deal with them.

Moses made a mistake. Moses handled something in a way that God felt it was necessary to make a point to Moses and to the people—no one is above the law. God is merciful; God loves and forgives. But Moses had to learn a lesson. Moses was not allowed to enter the Promised Land because he got carried away and made the mistake. He focused the people's attention on himself and not on God. 'Must we give you water to drink again?' —Whack—he struck the rock when God had told him to speak to the rock. Moses got upset, and even though he was the meekest man in all the earth, he lost his temper one time. As a result God said, 'You're not going to enter the Promised Land.' Moses accepted God's will in the subject. God deals with and corrects His servants. It's not that God's servants never make mistakes, but God will correct. That is also an important lesson in the book of Numbers.

I mention these things, brethren, because you know what we are going to see when we get to the book of Joshua? We are going to see that Israel served God all the days of Joshua and the elders that outlived him, but then they didn't serve God because the lesson of history is: people never learn the lesson of history, and they keep going back and making the same mistakes over and over.

It's important that we understand. I'm here to tell you, if we don't learn the lessons—the lessons that are recorded here, the lessons that some brethren who used to be among us didn't grasp and understand from the Bible—they wound up rewriting the same story. We are going to soon be approaching the time when a generation will have come that, at that time, simply never went through and experienced the things that we went through and experienced in the Church. And if you don't learn the lesson, brethren, the next generation will turn around and do the same things. People, every generation, keep thinking they can come up with a new idea. They have a new way of doing it. Brethren, the devil's way has been around for a long time, and he keeps selling people on the idea that there's something new under the sun. There's nothing new under the sun, not when it comes to human nature and the approaches that people have. So it's important, and I want to keep focusing on that because it's important that we understand how relevant some of these things are to us.

What we have in Deuteronomy is Moses now reminding the generation that is getting ready to enter the Promised Land. He goes back and rehearses the story. In effect, he asked them the question, 'Why are we here?' Some of you who have been around for a while will remember how Mr. Herbert Armstrong used to always start out with and go back to 'Why are we here?' He would start at the beginning and come all the way back down. That's what Moses does right here. If you read the first few chapters, Moses goes back and rehearses the events of how it was they came to be where they were because he knew it was important. Here was a group who was getting ready to cross the Jordan. He knew it was important that they understand why they were there and how they got there—that they didn't somehow get there on their own. He rehearses certain of these events. It's kind of a review.

Most of Deuteronomy chapters 1-4 are a historical review. Then we have a second discourse that Moses gives beginning in the latter part of chapter 4 and continuing through chapter 26 that focuses on laws by which Israel was to live. It is a summation of many of the points that had been covered. It is summarized from a layman's standpoint, not in the technical way that certain of the instructions in Exodus and Leviticus were given, which was written primarily for the priests.

There are portions of Exodus and Leviticus that were written primarily for the priests, which gave a lot of technical detail because those were things the priests needed to understand. Why are all these technical things on the rituals set down? Well, there were priests that were supposed to perform those things, and if the details of it were not written down, right down to the last "jot" and "tittle," how would they know what they were supposed to do? Those things were more technical in nature and were written primarily focusing from a priestly standpoint.

But Deuteronomy is to summarize principles for the people, and this was something that was to be read and re-read by the people to summarize things for their information. It brings material up to date; it addresses some things that simply had not been issues in the forty years in the wilderness. But now they were getting ready to embark on another way of life. They had been wandering in the wilderness for forty years, and now they would have a settled lifestyle. There was a great job before them—the conquest of the land. The stage needed to be set, and the heart of the book is a reiteration of many of these laws.

Deuteronomy chapters 27—30 are more in the line of warnings and predictions. As Moses begins to look down the road, he tells them what's going to happen when they do what they ought to do and when they don't do what they ought to do. He can already look down the road and knows that their human nature is not any different than that of their forebears who had not learned the lessons that they should have learned. Moses kind of sets the stage of warning them about what lies ahead.

Deuteronomy 32 contains a song, the song of Moses. It is interesting. Because when you read in Revelation 15, you find that we are going to learn the song of Moses. It talks about the fact of the firstfruits singing the song of Moses. We will note some things as we go through it—what it focuses on. There are a couple songs of Moses that are recorded here: one in Exodus right after the Exodus (Exodus 15) and then the song of Moses here in Deuteronomy 32.

Then in the latter part of chapter 32 and through chapter 33, we have Moses' final charge to the people and the leaders in his farewell.

Deuteronomy 34 is simply a summation of Moses' death—in effect, his obituary. It's kind of a postscript. Obviously, Moses didn't write this; it's the account of his death. This was added in by his successor Joshua who wrote a statement of the events surrounding Moses' death. The end of Deuteronomy was the logical place to conclude the story; then we go to the book of Joshua. It is important that we understand this.

Deuteronomy provides a summary of God's law and an overview of what Israel's relationship with God was to be. One of the things that some of the commentators have noted is the fact that Deuteronomy, in terms of its format, follows the style of the Covenant treaties that were extant back at this time in history, the second millennium B.C. There was a particular legal style just as we have a certain legal form that is used in documents today.

There was a particular legal form that was common in this Middle Eastern area during the second century B.C. It was a particular legal style that followed a treaty made by a great king or ruler with his vassal subjects. It was a particular style of writing where there was a preamble, basically a historical review of the relationship, the terms of the relationship and the warnings of what was going to happen if the relationship was not faithfully followed. This was a particular document style.

Many commentators have noticed that Deuteronomy follows that style and, in that sense, it is marked as a legal document, a restatement of the Covenant for the generation that was going to enter the Promised Land. That generation had not really been of age when the Covenant had been made. The Covenant was being rehearsed for the benefit of the next generation.

Deuteronomy 1:1-2, “These are the words which Moses spoke to all Israel on this side of the Jordan in the wilderness, in the plain opposite Suph, between Paran, Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Dizahab. It is eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of Mount Seir unto Kadesh-Barnea.” Kadesh-Barnea is the area of Petra; there is a lot of historical detail that we can go into to prove it. The term “Kadesh-Barnea” literally means “the holy place of the children of wandering.” It is holy because God placed His presence there, and that's literally what “Kadesh-Barnea” means. “Kadesh” has to do with “holy”; “bar” means “son of”; “nea” comes from a term that means “to wander, wanderers.”

Verse 3, “Now it came to pass in the fortieth year, the eleventh month on the first day of the month that Moses spoke to the children of Israel according to all that the Lord had given him as commandments to them” Here we have the final days before Israel crossed the Jordan because we will note that they crossed the Jordan just prior to the Passover. It is made plain that they crossed the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month (Joshua 4:19), so here we are on the first day of the eleventh month. It was just a matter of two months and ten days before they crossed the Jordan, right within sight of entering the Promised Land.

Verse 3 (latter part), “...Moses spoke unto the children of Israel according to all that the Lord had given him as commandments to them.” Moses begins to rehearse.

Verse 5, “On this side of the Jordan in the land of Moab, Moses began to explain this law, saying.”

The first five verses are a kind of preamble that sets the stage; then the historical review begins.

Verses 6-9, “The Lord our God spoke to us in Horeb saying, “You have dwelt long enough at this mountain. Turn and take your journey, and go to the mountains of the Amorites, to all the neighboring places in the plain, in the mountains and in the lowland, in the South and on the seacoast, to the land of the Canaanites and to Lebanon, as far as the great river, the River Euphrates. See, I have set the land before you; go in and possess the land which the Lord swore to your fathers—to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—to give to them and their descendants after them.” And I spoke to you at that time, saying, “I alone am not able to bear you.””

Here Moses begins to go back and rehearse the events at Mount Sinai giving the Law and explaining the fact that God told them to go in—it was now time to go in.

In vv. 12-18, he is rehearsing with them the background as to how the governmental structure came into existence, and how he wasn't able to handle it all by himself. God had given instructions as to how it was to be done. There was to be organization and structure set. There were to be captains, the captain system.

His charge to the judges at that time had been to, vv. 16-17, “...Hear the cases between your brethren, and judge righteously between a man and his brother or the stranger who is with him. You shall not show partiality in judgment; you shall hear the small as well as the great...” There was to be one standard, and it certainly created disrespect when more than one standard was applied. So this is reiterated.

Verse 19, “So we departed from Horeb, and went through all that great and terrible wilderness which you saw on the way to the mountains of the Amorites, as the Lord our God had commanded us. Then we came to Kadesh-Barnea.”

Verses 22-29 rehearse the fact they sent the twelve spies in and how the people decided that they couldn't go up. He is rehearsing the story of how they came to wander in the wilderness. He is going back and telling the story.

Verse 30, notice what God had told the Israelites about fighting the inhabitants, “The Lord your God who goes before you, He will fight for you, according to all that He did for you in Egypt, before your eyes.” This is a point to understand: if Israel had been faithful to God, God would have fought their battles.

Verse 32, “Yet, for all that, you did not believe the Lord your God.” Because Israel didn't trust God, they wound up having to do many things that they would not otherwise have had to do. It would have been unnecessary for people to have fought and gone to war if Israel as a nation had trusted God. They did not trust God; they didn't really rely on God in faith. God then used them as His physical instrument to do those things. We will see later on what God had really proposed to do. He would have sent hornets in and things like that, and simply driven the people out. But many times Israel did things the hard way. He reiterates that Joshua and Caleb were the only two who were faithful (vv. 35-38).

They stayed there in Kadesh-Barnea, the area of Petra, and they then turned and took their journey into the wilderness by way of the Red Sea (v. 40). It goes through and describes this wandering.

Deuteronomy 2:1-13 describes their encounters with the Edomites and the Amorites in the land of Bashan and Gilead.

Deuteronomy 2:14, “And the time we took to come from Kadesh-Barnea until we crossed over the Valley of the Zered was thirty-eight years...”

Deuteronomy 3:12-15, “And this land, which we possessed at that time, from Aroer, which is by the River Arnon, and half the mountains of Gilead and its cities, I have to the Reubenites and the Gadites. The rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half tribe of Manasseh. (All the region of Argob, with all Bashan, was called the land of the giants. Jair the son of Manasseh took all the region of Argob, as far as the border of Geshurites and the Maachathites, and called Bashan after his own name, Havoth Jair, to this day.) And I gave Gilead to Machir.”

Machir was one of the sons of Manasseh. Manasseh had sons by a wife and by a concubine. His son by the concubine was Machir. There was a certain friction between the half tribes of Manasseh that has preserved itself down time. Manasseh was the tribe that didn't get along with itself. The ones that descended from Machir, those who came from the concubine, didn't want to cross the river with the other half. They stayed on the east side of the Jordan. They inherited the area of Gilead.

The tribes of Reuben and Gad shared the inheritance of the Trans-Jordan area. If you look on a map, you'll see it is actually the area of the modern day kingdom of Jordan. They are fighting with the Jews to give up the West Bank. What they don't realize, not only are the Jews not intending on giving up the West Bank, they figure the East Bank belongs to them, too. So there are problems in the Middle East. Now they agreed that these tribes were going to inherit the area on the east side of the Jordan, but instructions were that the men would cross over and they had to be in the forefront of the armies (v. 18) until God had given rest to all their brethren. They were not going to take the easy way out.

Verse 20, “until the Lord has given rest unto your brethren...” Notice that Israel's inheritance of the Promised Land was called “entering into rest.” That was a physical type of our spiritual entrance into rest of the Kingdom of God.

Deuteronomy 4:1-2, “Now, O Israel, listen to the statutes and the judgments, which I teach you to observe, that you may live, and go in and possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers is giving you. You shall not add to the word which I command you, nor take anything from it, that you may keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you.” It reiterates that they were not to add to the words that God had commanded.

Verse 3, “Your eyes have seen what the Lord did at Baal Peor: for the Lord your God has destroyed from among you all the men who followed Baal of Peor” He reminds them of the events concerning Baal Peor—that was the events with Balaam.

Notice what would have been the impact on other nations if Israel had obeyed God’s law. Verses 6-8, “Therefore be careful to observe them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the peoples who will hear all these statutes, and say, “Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people. For what great nation is there that has God so near to it, as the Lord our God is to us, for whatever reason we may call upon Him? And what great nation is there that has such statutes and righteous judgments as are in all this law, which I set before you this day?””

God said, ‘Look, if you obey My law, you are going to stand out. People are going to be impressed with your wisdom and your understanding, which is really not yours, but it derives from obedience to My law.’ Notice that the nations around would notice. Israel would have been a light to the nations.

That is what is going to happen in the Millennium. We read in Isaiah 2 how the nations will send emissaries.

Isaiah 2:3, people will say, “Come... let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways...” When Jesus Christ comes back and regathers the lost tribes to the land of Israel and begins to establish Israel as the firstfruits of the nations, the surrounding nations are going to notice. Israel is going to be a light and an example. It is not going to be long before they will begin sending emissaries saying, ‘Would you please send somebody to teach us; we see the results, and we want those results.’ They are going to have a teachable attitude because they are going to see those results. With some it may take a while to get the point, but God will deal with them as well. Israel’s example would have gone a long way of being a light to the nation if they would have followed God’s law.

What point regarding obedience to His law does God continually emphasize in the book of Deuteronomy? It is emphasized over and over, almost every chapter: the crucial importance of Israel obeying the law would result in blessings for them. The point is doing exactly as God said, not adding to it or taking away from it (Deuteronomy 4:2), that is stressed over and over.

You can see it in Deuteronomy 5:32, “...you shall not turn aside, to the right or to the left.” The point that is emphasized is that we are to serve God the way God said. The tendency of human beings is to think they have come up with a better idea. They get bored with doing it the same old way and begin to look around and see what the nations around them are doing. ‘Well, isn’t that a nice custom; look, they put trees up every winter and decorate them. That’s kind of cute, why don’t we do that?’ God said that He didn’t want us looking around seeing if we could improve on His way. He wants us to learn to be faithful to Him. As soon as we start copying the customs of the nations—the customs of the pagans—and trying to adapt them to the worship of the true God, we are headed for trouble. God reiterates over and over the importance of serving Him the way He chooses to be served.

As we come through Deuteronomy 5:2-3, Moses reminds them of the Covenant that God had made in Horeb or Sinai; then the Ten Commandments are restated (vv. 6-21).

Deuteronomy 5:22, “These words the Lord spoke to all your assembly, in the mountain from the midst of the fire, the cloud, and the thick darkness, with a loud voice; and He added no more. And He wrote them in two tablets of stone and gave them to me.” Moses said, ‘Look, don’t come up with an amendment to the Ten Commandments.’ These are the words of God; He spoke them with His own mouth, He wrote them with His own finger, and He gave them to Moses. He didn’t add anything else to it. If somebody comes along and has an eleventh or a twelfth Commandment, or they have revised or amended the “majority of opinion”—the idea of give them what they want—the scripture says, Proverbs 14:12, “there is a way that seems right to a man, but the ends thereof are the ways of death.” It’s a very crucial lesson.

Notice in v. 29 (after the Ten Commandments) what Moses looks forward to, “‘Oh, that they had such an heart in them, that they would fear Me, and always keep all My commandments, that it might be well with them and with their children forever!’” This is actually a prophecy of the time when God would give His Holy Spirit and would give them a heart to obey. You find this scripture quoted or referred to in Jeremiah 32:38-39 and also in Ezekiel 11:19-20, which are prophecies that look forward.

You can go then to Hebrews 8 and read these statements of how this is the New Covenant, that God would give them a new heart. God would “put His laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts”—a new heart. Even here, at the making of the Old Covenant, there was a looking forward to a New Covenant, which would change the heart of the people. God was making the point that it takes more than human beings on their own. Even given everything the way it ought to be, they simply didn’t keep it. We need something beyond that; we need conversion. But if there had never been the opportunity for the nation to prove that even with all of the advantages, there would have been the thought that God never gave anybody a chance. Well, He picked a nation, the descendants of Abraham, and He gave them that opportunity to illustrate that there had to be something on beyond.

Why did God tell us to obey His Law? Deuteronomy 6:24, “‘And the Lord commanded us to observe all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that He might preserve us alive, as it is at this day.’”

Notice, God’s law is for our good. The world misses that point. The world’s concept of sin is that sin is all the things that are fun—a totally pagan concept. You see it every year, the concept that comes in at Mardi Gras. The idea is if you are going to have to be good for a while, you really get in one last fling and make it one that you will be able to remember for at least the forty-Lent days. It’s a matter that equates obedience to God with something that is not fun, something that’s not good for you. It is as though God arbitrarily looks at all the things that people like to do and makes a rule against it. The idea is, ‘We really would have a lot more fun if we could do what we wanted to do, but God is going to burn you if you do. He likes to throw you down and watch you hop around on hot coals, worse than a cat on a hot tin roof’—a totally pagan concept.

God’s law is for our good. And it shouldn’t be as though we are really giving up something by having to obey God. What we are really giving up is a lot of pain and a lot of problems. We are giving up the headaches and the hangovers when we start obeying God. It’s not that we are giving up all the fun and the good times, and ‘Oh, woe is us, things are going to be so dull.’ God has things out in front of us that go way beyond anything that we could imagine.

Deuteronomy 6:4-5, “‘Hear O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one! You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, all your soul and with all your might.’” Do those words sound familiar? They ought to; that’s what Jesus answered when He was asked in the New Testament, what is the first and great Commandment of the law (Matthew 22:36-39). He quoted Deuteronomy 6:4 and then He also quoted a scripture from Leviticus which says “‘you shall love your neighbor as yourself.’”

Some people say the Old Testament is done away and now it’s just the New Testament. Do you realize the book of Deuteronomy alone is quoted eighty times in the New Testament? This kind of thing is stated very clearly.

Matthew 22:39, “‘And the second is like unto it, you shall love your neighbor as yourself.’” That is quoted from Leviticus 19:18. Christ quoted from the Old Testament. He quoted out of Deuteronomy and Leviticus. Most professing Christians, if they think anything is done away, they think Deuteronomy and Leviticus are done away.

In Matthew 22:40, Christ said, “‘On these two hang all the Law and the Prophets.’” –When they asked Him what everything was about. To love God with your whole heart and love your neighbor as yourself is not simply New Testament theology; it’s Old Testament theology, too, because this is where it comes from. Christ did not come to do away with the law. He expanded and amplified the law (Matthew 5, 6, 7).

Deuteronomy 6:7-8, “‘you shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, when you walk by the way, when you lie down, and when you rise up. You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes.’”

Some of you are old enough to remember back when people plowed with mules and horses; you remember they used to put blinders on the animal because they didn’t want the old mule to get kind of sidetracked, look off to the side and kind of wander off this way or that way. What did they want him to do? They wanted him to plow a straight furrow. They didn't want that old mule veering off to the right hand or to the left. They had frontlets there, something that blocked its side vision.

God told Israel that His law was to be like frontlets. He doesn't want us to depart to the right hand or to the left. That's what He told them; they were not to veer off to the right hand or to the left. That is what He told them in Deuteronomy 5:32. The law is there as blinders; you don't look off because the law directs your attention right down a straight narrow path. If you keep your eyes fixed straight ahead, you will be able to plow a straight furrow, and it won't look like you kind of wandered or meandered all over the field, which of course is the way a lot of people live their life. This is what God's law was to be; it was to be frontlets.

You are to have the law there. It's always to be in front of your attention to control what you think and what you do. You teach this diligently to your children and talk about it. Take advantage of circumstances. It doesn't mean you just stand your kid up every day and preach at him for a while. It means you take advantage of every circumstance. When you are going about normal day-to-day activities, take advantage of circumstances to teach God's law because from the time they are tiny children, there are incidents that come up that you can direct them to what God says. You begin to use that to take advantage of circumstances to point out things that happen. You are helping your children to draw cause-and-effect relationships.

The immature mind does not normally make the connection between cause and effect. That's why a little kid will wander out in the street to play. He doesn't think in terms of cause and effect: if you get out in the street, a car comes by and you're smashed. He doesn't make that cause-and-effect connection. He just saw his ball roll out there; he's not thinking ahead. That is characteristic of the immature mind. That is why you see people talking about learning from experience because if you have experienced enough causes and effects, even with the densest of people, a few things will gradually begin to sink in. Experience is a teacher, but it is a very, very painful teacher.

God preserves a lot of causes and effects here, and we need to help our children draw the connection. When our children see someone having certain problems, when they see the problems and difficulties "so-and-so" is in, help them see cause and effect. Whether it has to do with matters of morality, people or things of that nature that they become aware of, help them to see how it started. Point out how it happened. Point out that they didn't start off to get in that kind of shape, but this is where they made the wrong turn. Use day-to-day circumstances; this is the point God is making. God commands these things for our own good (6:24).

In Deuteronomy 7, God told Israel what to do when they came into the land of the Canaanites.

Verse 2, God wanted the Canaanites completely destroyed.

In v. 3, he did not want Israel to intermarry. Israel was to protect and preserve their identity, physically and spiritually. The two go hand in hand together.

The whole point of ethnic identity goes back to God's purpose and plan. Even at the tower of Babel He confused the languages to prevent the assimilation of those differences. By giving the different families different languages, they were forced to go out away from one another. God did not want Israel to lose its identity. If it lost its identity physically, it would lose its identity culturally and spiritually; so God forbade them to do that.

In v. 5, he told them that they were to destroy the altars. They were not to preserve all those quaint little artifacts and kind of set them around. They were not to do what another religion did when it came into Mexico with the Spaniards. They looked at all of the interesting things that the Aztecs were doing. They took the shrines and paraphernalia that the Aztecs had, and they simply changed the name—it became a shrine to some saint.

Deuteronomy 7:2, Israel was not to enter into alliances or treaties with the Canaanites.

Verse 16, they were not to allow them to remain in the land or to try to learn any of their pagan customs.

Deuteronomy 7:20, "Moreover the Lord your God will send the hornet among them, until those who are left, who hide themselves from you, are destroyed." God was going to drive them out.

Verse 25, God told them the idols were to be burned.

Verse 26, "Nor shall you bring an abomination into your house, lest you be doomed to destruction like it; but you shall utterly detest it and utterly abhor it; for it is an accursed thing."

All those little artifacts, the pagan insignias, the crucifixes—all those things—are just to be gone. You take a trip over to the Far East; you go to China or Japan. Don't bring back all these little Buddhas and think, 'Aren't they cute, I'll set them up in there.’ God says don’t bring an abomination into your house. God does not like them. Don’t decorate your house with all kinds of paganism that you found that the Canaanites had and think, ‘Oh, isn’t this cute?’ Don’t do that. God says that His people are to be special, and these things have a completely wrong connotation. They are religious artifacts. They were instruments of religious worship; they were means by which those people worshipped false gods—and we’re not to have them around.

Verse 22, God told them He would drive the Canaanites out with hornets a little at a time, and the land would not become overpopulated and overrun with wild animals. God purposed to drive the Canaanites out, and Israel was not to entangle themselves with them. There is a lesson for us, a point that we need to learn spiritually. We are not to get entangled with the world, with a lot of worldly alliances and entanglements, or things that enmesh us into the religious and political affairs of this world.

We live in the world and conduct business in order to be good citizens on a business basis, but we are not to entangle ourselves and enmesh ourselves with a lot of religious, social and political entanglements. You have to keep your distance in those ways. We do business. We are in the world, but we are not to be of the world—part and parcel of this society—because it will start you out on a road of compromise that begins to blur the distinctions of God’s law.

We will notice a lot of that as we get into the book of Joshua next time. God told them that He would bless them and set them apart if they would do this. Was this because Israel was so good? Did God give the land to them because of their righteousness? Absolutely not!

It’s plain in Deuteronomy 9:5, “‘It is not because of your righteousness or the uprightness of your heart that you go in to possess their land, but because of the wickedness of these nations that the Lord your God drives them out from before you, and that He may fulfill the word which the Lord swore to your fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.’”

God says there were two reasons for going in. ‘It’s not because you were so good, so get that out of your mind. It’s because (1) you were so bad, and (2) I made a promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.’ At the time of Abraham, God told him, ‘I am going to give you this, but because the sins of the Canaanites are not yet full, things have not gotten to the point where I am prepared to visit this kind of punishment on them yet.’ They were bad, but they’re not that bad;

however, there came a point when they were better off simply wiped out. Things continued to degenerate and deteriorate in terms of morality and in the state of things, the state of just the way that people dealt with one another. It got to the point that God said, ‘It’s time.’

Notice Deuteronomy 8:2, “‘And you shall remember that the Lord your God led you all the way these forty years in the wilderness, to humble you and to test you, to know what was in your heart, whether you would keep My commandments or not.’” You know why God led them through the wilderness forty years? Two reasons: to humble them and to test (prove) them, to know what was in their heart whether they would keep the Commandments or not. He humbled them by putting them in a situation where they were unable to provide their own physical needs. He didn’t want them to trust in themselves, and He wanted to prove them.

Do you realize, brethren, this is why we go through what we go through. Do you realize why we go through the period in the wilderness? Do you know why you go through some of the trials you go through? The same reason Israel wandered forty years, to humble and to prove you.

God allows us all, at one time or another, to find ourselves in a situation that we are powerless to deliver ourselves out of. Israel was in a situation where they couldn’t even feed themselves or provide the most basic necessities of life, food, clothing and shelter. God allows us all, at one time or another, to find ourselves in a circumstance from which we are powerless to deliver ourselves. We have to come to a point where we recognize our powerlessness, in order to be properly humbled and to realize our relationship with God. As long as we are able to take care of ourselves, we don’t give thought to how much we need God. God allows us, by circumstances, to be humbled, to come into a situation of recognizing our powerlessness. And He also allows certain things to hang on sometimes, to prove us, to test us, what’s really inside. Are you going to obey Him come what may? It is interesting to read Deuteronomy 8 from that perspective and to realize that God is working with us just as He was working with them.

As we come down we note, God told them, Deuteronomy 9:6-7, “‘Therefore understand that the Lord your God is not giving this good land to possess because of your righteousness; for you are a stiff necked people. Remember and do not forget how you provoked the Lord your God to wrath in the wilderness; from the day that you departed from the land of Egypt until you came to this place, you have been rebellious against the Lord.”

Verse 24, “You have been rebellious against the Lord from the day that I knew you.” That seems to be characteristic of the nations of Israel. They have not been a docile people and easily led. Frankly, some of the Gentile nations are more easily led. They have not invented democracy. That is something that is a peculiarly Israelite approach to life because they don’t like somebody telling them what to do; they wanted to put things to a vote, all the way through the book of Numbers. Every time something came up, they were ready to put it to a vote.

We notice, therefore, the problem God focuses on in Deuteronomy 10.

Deuteronomy 10:16, “Therefore circumcise the foreskin of your heart, and be stiff necked no longer.” God looked toward to conversion. Look forward in the New Testament where this scripture is actually quoted in Romans 2:28-29 and in Acts 15, where the apostles came to understand that the circumcision required under the New Covenant, of those who become converted, is a spiritual circumcision—not to be hardheaded any more.

Verses 12-13, “And now, Israel, what does the Lord your God require of you, but to fear the Lord your God, to walk in all His ways and to love Him, to serve the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul, and to keep the commandments of the Lord and His statutes which I command you today for your good?” We are to love God with all our heart and to keep His Commandments always.

Deuteronomy 11:16, “Take heed to yourselves, lest your heart be deceived, and you turn aside and serve other gods and worship them.”

Verse 19, “You shall teach them [v. 18, “My word”] to your children, speaking of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, when you lie down and when you rise up.”

Verses 26-28, “Behold, I set before you today a blessing and a curse; the blessing, if you obey the Commandments of the Lord your God which I command you today; and the curse, if you do not obey the Commandments of the Lord your God.”

He gave them the boundaries:

Verse 24, “Every place on which the soles of your foot shall tread shall be yours: from the wilderness and Lebanon, from the river, the River Euphrates, even to the Western Sea shall be your territory.” The Jews read this and they invade. It is one of the reasons that many of the Jews over there don’t have compunctions about going into Lebanon because they say that, ‘God gave that to us anyway.’ They simply view it that way. In this country, religion does not play that big a role in terms of making public decisions. We don’t understand the extent to which many of the Jews, particularly to that forty percent or so that are religious, are observant Jews—they read these things and take it literally—they say, ‘It is ours.’ So you see the reason why things are set in the Middle East in the way they are.

Deuteronomy 12 focuses on the place that God would designate. It is simply the fact that God has a central place, a place where He chooses to place His name, and that’s where things are to be focused.

Deuteronomy 12:5, “But you shall seek the place where the Lord your God chooses, out of all your tribes, to put His name for His habitation; and there you shall go.”

Verses 10-11, “But when you cross over the Jordan and dwell in the land which the Lord your God is giving you to inherit, and when He gives you rest from all your enemies round about, so that you dwell in safety, then there shall be a place which the Lord your God shall choose to cause His name to dwell there....”

Verses 13-14, “Take heed to yourself that you do not offer your burnt offerings in every place that you see, but in the place which the Lord chooses....”

Verses 17-18, “You may not eat [second tithe] within your gates...But you must eat them before the Lord your God in the place which the Lord your God shall choose....” The place that God chooses is emphasized.

Then we note that Israel is not to be ensnared by inquiring after the gods of other nations. Deuteronomy 12:30-33, “take heed to yourself that you be not ensnared to follow them, after they are destroyed from before you, and that you do not inquire after their gods, saying, ‘How did these nations serve their gods? I also will do likewise.’ You shall not worship the Lord your God in that way; for every abomination to the Lord which He hates they have done to their gods; for they burn even their sons and daughters in the fire to their gods. Whatever I command you, be careful to observe it; you shall not add to it nor take away from it.”

Deuteronomy 13:1-5, “If there arises among you a prophet or a dreamer of dreams, and he gives you a sign or a wonder, and the sign or the wonder comes to pass, of which he spoke to you, saying, ‘Let us go after other gods which you have not known, and let us serve them,” you shall not listen to the words of that prophet or that dreamer of dreams, for the Lord your God is testing you to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul. You shall walk after the Lord your God and fear Him, and keep His commandments and obey His voice, and you shall serve Him and hold fast to Him. But that prophet or that dreamer of dreams shall be put to death, because he has spoken in order to turn you away from the Lord you God....”

If there arises among you a prophet or dreamer, and it comes to pass, does that prove he represents God? No, not if he doesn't preach the truth. What really proves whether or not somebody is God's servant is whether he teaches God's message, regardless of what happens. This shows that if somebody is not teaching obedience to God's law, he's not God's servant.

Deuteronomy 14:2, “For you are a holy people to the Lord your God, and the Lord has chosen you to be a people for Himself, a special treasure above all the peoples who are on the face of the earth.” This focuses on being a holy people.

Next He reiterates the laws of clean and unclean (vv. 3-21). These needed to be reiterated; they had been living on manna for forty years. They needed to be reminded of what they could eat, and what they couldn't eat.

Verse 22, “You shall truly tithe all the increase of your grain, that the field produces year by year.” The tithe to Levites is emphasized.

Verse 23, “And you shall eat before the Lord your God, in the place where He shall choose to make His name abide, the tithe of your grain and your new wine and your oil, of the firstlings of your herds and your flocks, that you may learn to fear the Lord your God always.”

This focuses on a different tithe, a second tithe, to be eaten individually. In the book of Numbers we saw that God had given the Levites the tithe for their inheritance, but here in Deuteronomy 14:23 there is a tithe that is to be eaten, that an individual is to consume before God. This is not the tithe that goes to the Levite. Therefore, it is called a second tithe because it is the second one mentioned. It is to be consumed in the place where God chooses that we might learn to fear God. You don't have to take the goods; you can turn it into money (v. 24). You buy what you want and you rejoice there, you and your household. This is to be utilized at the Festivals where God has set His name. The excess Festival tithe that the individual has is to be shared with the Levites, the widows and the needy (v. 29).

Then in v. 28, there is yet another tithe, a third tithe, but this is different than the other two because it is not one that the Israelites saved annually. At the end of three years they were to bring forth all the tithe of their increase of that particular year, and it was to be kept there within their gates—the Levite and the stranger and the fatherless and the widow were to eat. It was to be used for the needy.

Deuteronomy 15 goes into the seventh year of release; so technically, Israel kept this third tithe on the third and sixth year of every seven-year cycle. It was an agricultural cycle. If you just kept it every third year, then within a period of time, you would come out with a third-tithe year that would coincide with a seventh year of release—and there wouldn't be anything to tithe; the widow and fatherless would go hungry in the seventh year. So everything was on this seven-year cycle. The third and the sixth year of that cycle they set aside an extra tithe, one that was reserved for use by the needy (v. 28).

There are three distinct tithes mentioned:

(1) One we read of in Numbers 18:20-21 where God said He gave the Levites the tithe in Israel for an inheritance. The tithe was for wages because they were doing God's work. That was what God reserved to Himself, and He paid it to the Levites.

(2) God told Israel to save a second tithe and consume it themselves in the place where He chose (Deuteronomy 14:22-23). They were to utilize that tithe in celebrating God's Festivals and rejoicing before God. It was used by the individual himself and his family in observing God's festivals; the excess that he had over and above his needs was to be shared with those that had need (v. 27).

(3) Then on the third and sixth year of every seven-year cycle, an additional tithe was set aside for the use of the needy (v. 28).

In Deuteronomy 15, we have the matter of the Sabbatical year, the year of release. If debtors couldn't pay, the debt was forgiven. Few lenders would be willing to extend credit if they thought they would not get their money back before the seventh year of release. Society would quickly adopt a “cash-as-you-go” policy.

Deuteronomy 16 reiterates basic information on the Holy Days and emphasizes that three times (seasons) during the year we are to appear before God.

Deuteronomy 17 focuses on the establishment of a king, and that is what Israel would ultimately do—ask for a king. It contained instructions to kings.

Deuteronomy 17:14-20, “When you come to the land which the Lord your God is giving you, and possess it and dwell in it, and say, ‘I will set a king over me like all the nations that are around me,’ you shall surely set a king over you whom the Lord your God chooses; one from among your brethren you shall set as king over you; you may not set a foreigner over you, who is not your brother. But he shall not multiply horses for himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt to multiply horses, for the Lord has said to you, ‘You shall not return that way again.’ Neither shall he multiply wives for himself, lest his heart turn away; nor shall he greatly multiply silver and gold for himself. Also it shall be, when he sits on the throne of his kingdom, that he shall make for himself a copy of the law in a book, from the one before the priests, the Levites. And it shall be with him, and he shall read it all the days of his life, that he may learn to fear the Lord his God and be careful to observe all these words of this law and these statutes, that his heart may not be lifted above his brethren, that he may not turn aside from the commandment to the right hand or to the left, and that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he and his children in the midst of Israel.”

There were three things a king was not to do: (1) to multiply horses, (2) to multiply wives and (3) to multiply for himself silver and gold.

God did not want the kings to become self-indulgent, to take advantage of their office, to do things that others couldn't do. But notice another aspect of it. He didn't want huge standing armies or great wealth in the hands of a central government because of the temptations and mischief that would result. The bigger government grows, the more problems there are going to be. He told the kings that they were not to concentrate wealth and power and great standing armies because it would be a temptation. What happens when kings get a lot of money and a big army? Well, they decide after awhile they had better go and make war with somebody. It's just too much of a temptation. That's what happens to nations today. They build up and get a little bit prosperous, and they decide they better go take something away from somebody or they get into a “scrap” with someone.

God had a job to keep the king busy. He wanted him to write out his own hand-written copy of the book of this law. ‘Look, just copy out the Bible by hand; that will keep you busy. You won't have time to do these other things.’ How much better off would we be if our leaders spent their time copying the Bible. By the time they got through making their own copy, they wouldn't have had time to get into some of the trouble they got themselves into. What was it Will Rogers said about Congress? Comparing himself to Congress, ‘I am just an amateur. When I make a joke, people can laugh or not laugh depending on whether or not people think it is funny. But when they make a joke, it is a law, and when they make a law it is a joke.’ That was his opinion and, unfortunately, it has proven to be the case too many times.

Deuteronomy 18:15, “The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your midst, from your brethren. Him you shall hear.” That, of course, is a prophecy of Jesus Christ; you find it quoted in Acts 3:22 and Acts 7:37.

Deuteronomy 19—23 deal with civil matters and criminal justice Israel would have to deal with in the Promised Land. What happens in terms of crime and violence, exemptions from military service, etc.?

Deuteronomy 21:15 refers to the fact that if someone has been married twice, there can't be a preference to the second wife and children. It's a matter of inheritance; you can't disinherit the children of the previous wife.

Deuteronomy 22 has various laws dealing with relationships with individuals. Notice several of the things.

Verses 1-4, if your neighbor's animals were lost, you needed to return them to your neighbor. If you see something that is lost, you're to restore it to your neighbor.

God did not approve of the unisex look. Deuteronomy 22:5, “A woman shall not wear anything that pertains to a man, nor shall a man put on a woman's garment, for all who do so are abomination to the Lord your God.” God wants women to look feminine and men to look masculine. There are even laws relating to ecology, not to destroy wild life (vv. 6-7).

Notice the instructions just in terms of public safety regulations:

Verse 8, “When you build a new house, then you shall make a parapet [guard or rail] for the roof, that you may not bring bloodguiltiness on your house if anyone falls from it.” Houses normally had flat roofs, and people would go up there. God gives instructions. It was the original OSHA requirements. You have to build a rail about it. You don't build a house with a flat roof on it and not have a railing up around it. Someone, maybe a child, may get up there on the edge and fall off. It was a matter of law, certain safety requirements and various things like that are mentioned.

Deuteronomy 23:18, ““You shall not bring the hire of a harlot or the price of a dog, to the house of the Lord your God for any vowed offering, for both these are an abomination to the Lord your God.”” Does that mean you shouldn’t tithe on the sale of a dog?

A few years ago a fellow who raised dogs for a living read this and got worried if maybe he was doing something bad and shouldn’t tithe on the sale of his dogs. It’s a matter of understanding what the term “dog” means. It was a slang term in the Hebrew that referred to “a male prostitute, a whore or a prostitute.” In English, there is a slang term that takes the name of a female dog and applies it to certain immoral women. Well in ancient Israel, the masculine form was used to refer to a homosexual, to a male prostitute. These were the kinds of things that were, frankly, common in many of the pagan religions. God said nothing of that was to be associated with worship of Him.

Deuteronomy 24 deals with the subject of divorce. This is what the Pharisees quizzed Jesus about and He expounded it in the New Testament (Matthew 19:3-9).

Deuteronomy 24:19 discusses gleaning of the fields.

Deuteronomy 25 deals with controversies and the way that the judges deal with it, the matters of justice (vv. 1-3).

In Deuteronomy 27—28, we have the blessings and curses. To impress upon the people the necessity of obeying God’s law, Moses told them to set up two huge stones, to plaster them and to inscribe the book of the law on them as a memorial marker (27:2-4). They were to also be divided up, half the people—six of the tribes—on Mount Ebal and six of them on Mount Gerizim. They were to read the blessings and the curses back and forth. They went through all of this to impress upon them the keeping of God’s laws as they were preparing to enter into the land.

Deuteronomy 28:43-44, ““The stranger [alien] who is among you shall rise higher and higher above you, and you shall come down lower and lower. He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head and you shall be the tail.”” The upsurge of foreign investment in the U.S. and increasing foreign control of the U.S. economy is predicted. The U.S. has gone from the greatest lender nation to the greatest debtor nation. We are finding more and more of the wealth and resources of this nation are owned by foreigners, the strangers. What the Arabs don’t own, the Japanese are buying. We are going to find that we have not looked to God and we will find ourselves very, very vulnerable. We’ve gone from a position of being the head of the nations, being chief of the nations because God set us so—but we didn’t give God the credit. We are going to find ourselves being the tail. It describes what was going to happen to Israel, that Israel would find itself in its own nation on the bottom of the heap. That was a part of the curse that God would bring because they didn’t appreciate the blessings that God had given. It describes here all of these various things and the various curses.

We might notice another matter as Moses reiterates these things.

Deuteronomy 31:9-11, ““So Moses wrote this law and delivered it to the priests, the sons of Levi, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and to all the elders of Israel. And Moses commanded them, saying: ‘At the end of every seven years, at the appointed time in the year of release, at the Feast of Tabernacles, when all Israel comes to appear before the Lord your God in the place which He chooses, you shall read this law before all Israel in their hearing.’” The law was to be read every seven years—to be reiterated at the Feast of Tabernacles.

Deuteronomy 31:24-26, ““So it was, when Moses had completed writing the words of this law in a book, when they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying: ‘Take this Book of the Law, and put it beside the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there as a witness against you.’” This was written and given by Moses to the Levites. Moses told them to take the book and put it in the side of the ark as a witness.

Deuteronomy 32:7-9, ““Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations. Ask your father, and he will show you; your elders, and they will tell you: when the Most High divided their inheritance to the nations, when He separated the sons of Adam, He set the boundaries of the peoples according to the number of the children of Israel. For the Lord’s portion is His people; Jacob is the place of His inheritance.””

The geographical division of racial groupings and national groupings are not purely time and chance or a matter of accident. It was a matter of divine purpose and plan. This shows racial grouping goes all the way back to Adam. God had an organizational structure in mind from the very beginning predicated on the twelve tribes. The twelve gates of the New Jerusalem (Revelation 21) are an organizational structure God had in mind from the very beginning. It's part of the reason that He even built that diversity into the human race to produce different ethnic groupings. God built that. He designed the diversity and preserved it by giving different languages at the Tower of Babel to ensure this preservation. God divided the world; various bodies of water and natural boundaries of mountains and deserts and oceans served to divide the different branches of the human family. It is not simply that people evolved. God has set and established things. It's not just time and chance and coincidence. God emphasizes that He's the One that brought Israel into the Promised Land. He emphasizes that.

Deuteronomy 31:27, “For I know your rebellion and your stiff neck. If today, while I am yet alive with you, you have been rebellious against the Lord, then how much more after My death?”

Deuteronomy 33 is a reiteration of Moses' final words to each tribe, Moses' final blessing.

In Deuteronomy 34, Joshua writes of Moses' death. We see, of course, that the whole book of Deuteronomy was written down and placed by the side of the ark. Then in chapter 34, Moses died at one hundred twenty years of age. Joshua was the successor.

We have an overview. There is an awful lot of material in the book of Deuteronomy, an awful lot that we would do well to focus on.

Old Testament Series—Joshua

We are focusing in on the book of Joshua this evening. It has an important theme. We noticed as we went through the account of the Exodus the parallels there are to the Christian life. There are continuing parallels in the book of Joshua. It shows the irresistible power of God's strength to overcome the world, providing they maintained trust in God's strength, and as long as the people are faithful to God and go forward. God told Joshua to be strong and of good courage, and as long as the people trusted and obeyed God, there was nothing or no one that could stand in their way. When they let things come in, there definitely were problems.

Joshua picks up the story in the conclusion of the wandering and the death of Moses and carries through for about twenty-five years. It covers the conquest and division of the land. Israel crossed the Jordan River right above the Dead Sea. They had been on the east side, which is now modern-day Jordan. The east side was the area the Reubenites and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh were to inherit.

Moses died on the east side of the Jordan. He looked across, but was not allowed to cross over. They remained there for thirty days; then it was time to move on. They crossed the river and observed the Passover in the Promised Land. It was in the midst of that they conquered the city of Jericho, the major city of the Canaanites. We pick up the story here in the book of Joshua.

Joshua 1:1-5, "After the death of Moses the servant of the Lord, it came to pass that the Lord spoke to Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' assistant, saying: 'Moses My servant is dead. Now therefore, arise, go over this Jordan, you and all this people, to the land which I am giving to them—the children of Israel. Everyplace that the sole of your foot will tread upon I have given you, as I said to Moses. From the wilderness and this Lebanon as far as the great river, the River Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and to the Great Sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your territory. No man shall be able to stand before you all the days of your life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with you. I will not leave you nor forsake you.'"

Joshua was Moses' assistant and had been ordained by Moses to take his place (Deuteronomy 31:14). God had a job for Joshua to do. He was to pick up where Moses left off and they were to go forward. It was time for the Israelites to enter into God's rest, in a physical sense. There was a six-year period of subduing the land and on the seventh year they rested. That was the first sabbatical year.

Verses 6-9, "Be strong and of good courage, for to this people you shall divide as an inheritance the land which I swore to their fathers to give them. Only be strong and very courageous, that you may observe to do according to all the law which Moses My servant commanded you; do not turn from it to the right hand or to the left, that you may prosper wherever you go. This Book of the Law shall not depart from your mouth, but you shall meditate in it day and night, that you may observe to do according to all that is written in it. For then you will make your way prosperous, and then you will have good success. Have I not commanded you? Be strong and of good courage; do not be afraid, nor be dismayed, for the Lord your God is with you wherever you go.'"

God stressed to Joshua to be strong and of good courage. He was to be a conqueror. The word "conquer" is also translated "overcome."

Revelation 2 and 3 have different messages to seven Churches, but one thing that all have in common is that each message ends up with the statement, "to him that overcomes I will give power." Joshua stands out as an example of a conqueror. Where did that sense of courage and strength come from? I want you to note just a little bit later where that courage came from.

We will notice in Joshua 5:13-15, "And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted his eyes and looked, and behold, a Man stood opposite him with His sword drawn in His hand. And Joshua went to Him and said to Him, 'Are You for us or for our adversaries?' So He said, 'No, but as Commander of the army of the Lord I have now come.' And Joshua fell on his face to the earth and worshiped, and said to Him, 'What does my Lord say to His servant?' Then the Commander of the Lord's army said to Joshua, 'Take your sandal off your foot, for the place where you stand is holy.' And Joshua did so." This is right before the conquest started, before they conquered Jericho.

It is very apparent to whom Joshua was talking. Was he talking to an angel? It is apparent that he was not. That can be shown in various ways. The simplest place to go to demonstrate that it was not an angel would be Daniel 8:16-18 and Revelation 22:8-9. When a vision was shown and an angel appeared, they fell down before the angel, and what you find was the angel always told them to get up, 'I am a servant of God like you are.' This Being said, 'You better take your shoes off, you are standing on holy ground—you are standing in the very presence of God, the One we know as Jesus Christ.' Joshua was checking out the area and knew he was to conquer the land. Here was this Man standing in full battle array, and he said, 'Are You for us or against us?' And the Being said, 'I am in charge. You thought you were the one in charge, and I wanted you to know who really was.' Needless to say, he was completely overwhelmed. 'What do You want me to do?' 'Take off your shoes for the place where you stand is holy' (v. 14).

What was the source of his courage? Joshua knew that God was fighting the battle. That is the key to our overcoming. We are not the one who is out leading the battle. Jesus Christ is the Captain of our salvation. All we have to do is "fall in" and follow. He will conquer.

John 16:33, "...be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." This was the strength and encouragement that Joshua had. It was a pretty intimidating thing.

Moses' shoes were pretty big things to fill; God had used Moses in a way that He had not with anyone else. He had used Moses to establish His covenant and lead Israel for forty years. There was never a time when the adults who came into the land couldn't remember when Moses was not on the scene—the same as us with Mr. Herbert Armstrong. Now Joshua is in the role of taking over. God encourages him here in the beginning.

Joshua 1:12-15, "And to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh Joshua spoke, saying, 'Remember the word which Moses the servant of the Lord commanded you, saying, "The Lord your God is giving you rest and is giving you this land. Your wives, your little ones, and your livestock shall remain in the land that Moses gave you on this side of the Jordan. But you shall pass before your brethren armed, all your mighty men of valor, and help them, until the Lord has given your brethren rest, as He has given you, and they also have taken possession of the land which the Lord your God is giving them. Then you shall return to the land of your possession and enjoy it, which Moses the Lord's servant gave you on this side of the Jordan toward the sunrise.'""

God said, 'You go forward and do what I said.' He gave special instructions to the half tribe of Manasseh and the tribes of Gad and Reuben. What were their men supposed to do? This was the agreement they had made with Moses. They were to help the Israelites conquer the west side of Jordan. The entrance into the land is called entering into rest. That is important to understand because it is a spiritual analogy that Paul draws back in Hebrews 3 and 4.

Hebrews 3:11, "So I swore in My wrath, "they shall not enter My rest.'""

Hebrews 4:1, 3, 5, "Therefore, since a promise remains of entering His rest, let us fear lest any of you seem to have come short of it... For we who have believed do enter that rest, as He has said: 'So I swore in My wrath, they shall not enter My rest'...and again in this place: 'They shall not enter My rest.'"

Joshua 2:1, "Now Joshua the son of Nun sent out two men from Acacia Grove to spy secretly, saying, 'Go, view the land, especially Jericho.' So they went, and came to the house of a harlot named Rahab, and lodged there." Joshua gives them instructions to spy out the land. They came to the house of Rahab the harlot. The term translated as "harlot" can also refer to "an innkeeper." This was a logical place to come. God had led them there.

Verses 2-3, "And it was told the king of Jericho, saying, 'Behold, men have come here tonight from the children of Israel to search out the country.' So the king of Jericho sent to Rahab, saying, 'Bring out the men who have come to you, who have entered your house, for they have come to search out all the country.'" The king of Jericho already knew that they were there.

Verse 4, "Then the woman took the two men and hid them; and she said, 'Yes, the men came to me, but I did not know where they were from.'" This was not true, but that was the least of her problems.

Verse 6, "(But she had brought them up to the roof and hidden them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order on the roof.)"

Verse 9, "and said to the men: 'I know that the Lord has given you the land, that the terror of you has fallen on us, and that all the inhabitants of the land are faint-hearted because of you.'"

What Rahab had learned was that she believed God.

Verses 10-11, "For we have heard how the Lord dried up the water of the Red Sea for you when you came out of Egypt, and what you did to the two kings of the Amorites who were on the other side of the Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom you utterly destroyed. And as soon as we heard these things, our hearts melted; neither did there remain any more courage in anyone because of you, for the Lord your God, He is God in heaven above and on earth beneath.'"

What she heard was that He must be the true God. This is what she had learned from what she had heard, 'I don't know much about Him, but from what He has done for His people, He must be the true God.' She had faith and had an attitude that God took note of. The others had heard the same thing, but they had not come to believe that this was the God of heaven above.

Verses 12-13, "Now therefore, I beg you, swear to me by the Lord, since I have shown you kindness, that you also will show kindness to my father's house, and give me a true token, and spare my father, my mother, my brothers, my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death." She asked that she and her family be extended mercy.

Verse 14, "So the men answered her, 'Our lives for yours, if none of you tell this business of ours. And it shall be, when the Lord has given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with you.'" Our life is in your hands now, and if you don't betray us and are faithful with us, we are certainly going to keep faith with you.

Verse 15, "Then she let them down by a rope through the window, for her house was on the city wall; she dwelt on the wall. And she said to them, 'Get to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you. Hide there three days, until the pursuers have returned. Afterward you may go your way.'" She led them down and gave them instructions as to how to get away.

Verse 23: "So the two men returned, descended from the mountain, and crossed over; and they came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all that had befallen them." The spies told Joshua what had occurred.

Joshua 3:5, "And Joshua said to the people, 'Sanctify yourselves, for tomorrow the Lord will do wonders among you.'" He told the people to get prepared.

Verse 7, "And the Lord said to Joshua, 'This day I will begin to magnify you in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with you.'" God purposed to work a miracle through Joshua similar to what He did with Moses. God wanted to show that He was still in charge and to demonstrate to the people that He was working through Joshua as He had with Moses.

Verses 14-17, "So it was, when the people set out from their camp to cross over the Jordan, with the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people, and as those who bore the ark came to the Jordan, and the feet of the priests who bore the ark dipped in the edge of the water (for the Jordan overflows all its banks during the whole time of harvest), that the waters which came down from upstream stood still, and rose in a heap very far away at Adam, the city that is beside Zaretan. So the waters that went down into the Sea of the Arabah, the Salt Sea, failed, and were cut off; and the people crossed over opposite Jericho. Then the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of the Jordan; and all Israel crossed over on dry ground, until all the people had crossed completely over the Jordan." The people walked across dry sod.

Joshua 4:19-20, "Now the people came up from the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and they camped in Gilgal on the east border of Jericho. And those twelve stones which they took out of the Jordan, Joshua set up in Gilgal." They set up twelve stones as a monument.

Verses 21-24, "Then he spoke to the children of Israel, saying: 'When your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, "What are these stones?" Then you shall let your children know, saying, "Israel crossed over this Jordan on dry land; for the Lord your God dried up the waters of the Jordan before you until you had crossed over, as the Lord your God did to the Red Sea, which He dried up before us until we had crossed over, that all the peoples of the earth may know the hand of the Lord, that it is mighty, that you may fear the Lord your God forever.'"

By taking these stones out of the river, it stood as a reminder that the only place you could get these stones was from the river and a reminder that it had parted. This was where God parted the Jordan River, and the proof of that are these stones that came out of the river. Notice the results also.

Joshua 5:1-5, "So it was, when all the kings of the Amorites who were on the west side of the Jordan, and all the kings of the Canaanites who were by the sea, heard that the Lord had dried up the waters of the Jordan from before the children of Israel until we had crossed over, that their heart melted; and there was no spirit in them any longer because of the children of Israel. At that time the Lord said to Joshua, 'Make flint knives for yourself, and circumcise the sons of Israel again the second time.' So Joshua made flint knives for himself, and circumcised the sons of Israel at the hill of the foreskins. And this is the reason why Joshua circumcised them: All the people who came out of Egypt who were males, all the men of war, had died in the wilderness on the way, after they had come out of Egypt. For all the people who came out had been circumcised, but all the people who were born in the wilderness on the way as they came out of Egypt had not been circumcised.”

Verses 8-9, “So it was, when they had finished circumcising all the people, that they stayed in their places in the camp till they were healed. Then the Lord said to Joshua, ‘This day I have rolled away the reproach of Egypt from you.’ Therefore the name of the place is called Gilgal to this day.” All those born in the wilderness were circumcised.

Verses 10-12, “So the children of Israel camped in Gilgal, and kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the month at twilight on the plains of Jericho. And they ate of the produce of the land on the day after the Passover, unleavened bread and parched grain, on the very same day. Now the manna ceased on the day after they had eaten the produce of the land; and the children of Israel no longer had manna, but they ate the food of the land of Canaan that year.” They were eating of the produce of the land on the morrow after the Passover.

Notice here that they could not eat of the new harvest until the wave sheaf was offered. This is a key verse to understand one technical point. The wave sheaf was always offered on Sunday, the day after the Sabbath (Leviticus 23:11). In this case, the Sabbath did not occur during the Days of Unleavened Bread. The Passover day was a Sabbath; the First Day of Unleavened Bread was on a Sunday; and the Last Day of Unleavened Bread was on a Sabbath. Normally it wasn’t a problem, but here the days started on a Sunday and ended on a Sabbath.

How do you count for Pentecost? Do you start from the Sunday, the first day during the Days of Unleavened Bread or the Last Day of Unleavened Bread? This verse settles it. They ate the new produce on the day after the Passover. The Passover had to have been a Sabbath, and they could not eat the new produce until the wave sheaf. So it is apparent that the wave-sheaf Sunday, in this case, coincides with the first Holy Day of Unleavened Bread. We begin the Pentecost count from the first Holy Day which would be the wave-sheaf Sunday. This is really the only place you can go to prove which way you count. The manna ceased on the second day of Unleavened Bread. They ate of the fruit of the land of Canaan.

Verses 13-15, “And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted his eyes and looked, and behold, a Man stood opposite him with His sword drawn in His hand. And Joshua went to Him and said to Him, ‘Are You for us or for our adversaries?’ So He said, ‘No, but as Commander of the army of the Lord I have now come.’ And Joshua fell on his face to the earth and worshiped, and said to Him, ‘What does my Lord say to His servant?’ Then the Commander of the Lord’s army said to Joshua, ‘Take your sandal off your foot, for the place where you stand is holy.’ And Joshua did so.” This was when the Captain of the Lord’s host introduced Himself.

Joshua 6:1-5, “Now Jericho was securely shut up because of the children of Israel; none went out, and none came in. And the Lord said to Joshua: ‘See! I have given Jericho into your hand, its king, and the mighty men of valor. You shall march around the city, all you men of war; you shall go all around the city once. This you shall do six days. And seven priests shall bear seven trumpets of rams’ horns before the ark. But the seventh day you shall march around the city seven times, and the priests shall blow the trumpets. Then it shall come to pass, when they make a long blast with the ram’s horn, and when you hear the sound of the trumpet, that all the people shall shout with a great shout; then the wall of the city will fall down flat. And the people shall go up every man straight before him.’”

During the seven Days of Unleavened Bread, the children of Israel were marching around Jericho. They were told to compass the city once every day for six days. On the seventh day, they were to go around it seven times. The priests were to blow the trumpet and the people were to shout. God wanted them to know that He was the One providing for them when He brought them through the land. When you get ready for an invasion, you don’t circumcise the whole army. Levi and Simeon had used this as a trick to wipe out a whole city (Genesis 34). Now they were told to walk around Jericho. God wanted them to know that He was giving them the land, and He wanted the Canaanites to know also.

Verse 20, “So the people shouted when the priests blew the trumpets. And it happened when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat. Then the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city.”

Verse 25, “And Joshua spared Rahab the harlot, her father’s household, and all that she had...” Finally on the seventh day, the trumpets blew, and the people shouted, and all the walls came tumbling down—except the section where Rahab was.

It is interesting. In Matthew 1:4-5, Rahab became the wife of Salmon, the son of Nasson and the mother of Boaz, Jesse's grandfather. Jesse's was the father of David. Rahab became the mother of the line from which sprang David and eventually Jesus Christ. Salmon (her husband) may have been one of the spies whose life she saved. She was the mother of Boaz who married Ruth (Ruth 4:18-22).

She is mentioned in Hebrews 11:31, "By faith the harlot Rahab did not perish with those who did not believe, when she had received the spies with peace." There was a complete repentance and turning around in her life. She turned towards God's way. Now notice what they were told when they came to Jericho.

Joshua 6:17, "'Now the city shall be doomed by the Lord to destruction, it and all who are in it. Only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all who are with her in the house, because she hid the messengers that we sent.'" Only Rahab shall live.

Verses 18-24, "'And you by all means keep yourselves from the accursed things, lest you become accursed when you take of the accursed things, and make the camp of Israel a curse, and trouble it. But all the silver and gold, and vessels of bronze and iron, are consecrated to the Lord; they shall come into the treasury of the Lord.'" So the people shouted when the priests blew the trumpets. And it happened when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat. Then the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, ox and sheep and donkey, with the edge of the sword. But Joshua had said to the two men who had spied out the country, 'Go into the harlot's house, and from there bring out the woman and all that she has, as you swore to her.' And the young men who had been spies went in and brought out Rahab, her father, her mother, her brothers, and all that she had. So they brought out all her relatives and left them outside the camp of Israel. But they burned the city and all that was in it with fire. Only the silver and gold, and the vessels of bronze and iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the Lord."

Joshua 7:1, "But the children of Israel committed a trespass regarding the accursed things, for Achan the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed things; so the anger of the Lord burned against the children of Israel." Here was a problem. They were to come in and wipe out the whole city and not take the wealth of that city. But there was one guy, Achan, who simply couldn't resist. He thought nobody was going to know, so he took some and thought, 'What difference does that make?'

Verses 2-3, "...So the men went up and spied out Ai. And they returned to Joshua and said to him, 'Do not let all the people go up, but let about two or three thousand men go up and attack Ai. Do not weary all the people there, for the people of Ai are few.'" There was a small city, Ai; you might compare Jericho and Ai with Lafayette (medium size) and Broussard (smaller). They were thinking, 'Look what we did; we wiped out Jericho.'

Verses 4-5, "So about three thousand men went up there from the people, but they fled before the man of Ai. And the men of Ai struck down about thirty-six men, for they chased them from before the gate as far as Shebarim, and struck them down on the descent; therefore the hearts of the people melted and became like water." They went over to Ai. The men of Ai came out and smote Israel, and Israel ran. Nobody could understand what had happened.

Verses 10-11, "So the Lord said to Joshua: 'Get up! Why do you lie thus on your face? Israel has sinned, and they have also transgressed My covenant which I commanded them. For they have even taken some of the accursed things, and have both stolen and deceived; and they have also put it among their own stuff.'" God told Joshua Israel had sinned.

Verses 12-13, "'Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they have become doomed to destruction. Neither will I be with you anymore, unless you destroy the accursed from among you. Get up sanctify the people, and say, 'Sanctify yourselves for tomorrow, because thus says the Lord god of Israel: 'There is an accursed thing in your midst, O Israel; you cannot stand before your enemies until you take away the accursed thing from among you.''"

Verses 16-20, "So Joshua rose early in the morning and brought Israel by their tribes, and the tribe of Judah was taken; and he brought the family of Zarahites; and he brought the family of the Zarahites man by man, and Zabdi was taken. Then he brought his household man by man, and Achan the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken. So Joshua said to Achan; 'My son, I beg you, give glory to the Lord God of Israel, and make confession to Him, and tell me now what you have done; do not hide it from me.’ And Achan answered Joshua and said, ‘Indeed, I have sinned against the Lord God of Israel, and this is what I have done.’”

Brethren, do you think it is an accident that the Church quit growing in the 70s; even in some cases, it went backwards. You are reading the story right here of what happened. Until the problems were purged out, He wasn’t going to bless it and go forward. There was a serious problem contaminating God’s people. God said it has to be purged out. God says, ‘If you want My blessings you are going to have to be clean as a people.’

Verses 25-26, “And Joshua said, ‘Why have you troubled us? The Lord will trouble you this day.’ So all Israel stoned him with stones; and they burned them with fire after they had stoned them with stones. Then they raised over him, a great heap of stones, still there to this day. So the Lord turned from the fierceness of His anger. Therefore the name of that place has been called the Valley of Achor to this day.” It was apparent that God would not allow sin in the midst. It was a very serious matter.

Joshua 8:26-29, “For Joshua did not draw back his hand, with which he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai. Only the livestock and the spoil of that city Israel took as booty for themselves, according to the word of the Lord which He had commanded Joshua. So Joshua burned Ai and made it a heap forever, a desolation to this day. And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until evening....”

Verses 30-33, “Now Joshua built an altar to the Lord God of Israel in Mount Ebal, as Moses the servant of the Lord had commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the Book of the Law of Moses: ‘an altar of whole stones over which no man has wielded any iron tool.’ And they offered on it burnt offerings to the Lord, and sacrificed peace offerings. And there, in the presence of the children of Israel, he wrote on the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he had written. Then all Israel, with their elders and officers and judges, stood on either side of the ark before the priests, the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, the stranger as well as he who was born among them. Half of them were in front of Mount Gerizim and half of them in front of Mount Ebal, as Moses the servant of the Lord had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.”

Verses 34-35, “And afterward he read all the words of the law, the blessings and the cursings, according to all that is written in the Book of the Law. There was not a word of all that Moses had commanded which Joshua did not read before all the congregation of Israel, with the women, the little ones, and the strangers who were living among them.” That has to be the longest sermon on record. He read all the words of the Law. He read the whole thing. They all stood there. He told them, ‘You guys had better get the point. God has made it plain; the only way you will go forward and receive what God has for you is that you have to do so in obedience to God, wholehearted in your commitment, not adding or taking away from it.’ God is not going to bless something when there is sin and corruption tainting the whole thing.

Joshua 9:1-6, “And it came to pass when all the kings who were on this side of the Jordan, in the hills and in the lowland and in all the coasts of the Great Sea toward Lebanon—the Hittite, the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jevusite—heard of it, that they gathered together to fight with Joshua and Israel with one accord. But when the inhabitants of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done to Jericho and Ai, they worked craftily, and went and pretended to be ambassadors. And they took old sacks on their donkeys, old wineskins torn and mended, old and patched sandals on their feet, and old garments on themselves; and all the bread of their provision was dry and moldy. And they went to Joshua, to the camp at Gilgal, and said to him and to the men of Israel, ‘We have come from a far country, now therefore, make a covenant with us.’”

They didn’t want to be wiped out. ‘We have come from a long, long way. We want to make a treaty with you.’

Verse 14, “Then the men of Israel took some of their provisions; but they did not ask counsel of the Lord.” Joshua made a mistake here. He didn’t ask council of God.

Verses 15-16, “So Joshua made peace with them, and made a covenant with them to let them live; and the rulers of the congregation swore to them. And it happened at the end of three days, after they had made a covenant with them, that they heard that they were their neighbors who dwelt near them.” They were their neighbors.

Verse 18, “But the children of Israel did not attack them, because the rulers of the congregation had sworn to them by the Lord God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the rulers.” Everybody was upset.

Verse 19, “Then all the rulers said to all the congregation, ‘We have sworn to them by the Lord God of Israel; now therefore, we may not touch them.’” They had made an agreement.

Verses 20-21, “‘This we will do to them: We will let them live, lest wrath be upon us because of the oath which we swore to them.’ And the rulers said to them, ‘Let them live, but let them be woodcutters and water carriers for all the congregation, as the rulers had promised them.’”

A decision was made as to what was going to happen. The decision that occurred was because the Gibeonites had practiced deception; they would become bondsmen. They were to become the servants and slaves to the Levites.

It is interesting that in recent years, there was a great bit of publicity that accompanied a migration of Falasha people from Ethiopia to Israel. They were commonly known as the Black Jews. Various questions were raised as to where they came from. They were the descendants of the Gibeonites. They were in Judah until the destruction of the temple. When Judah was taken into captivity, they fled into the area of Egypt. They settled in Ethiopia and have remained there until this day. The Levites had made such good Jews out of them that they practiced the religion of the Old Testament up until our day. Josephus and other historians bring that out.

Joshua 10:1-4, “Now it came to pass when Adoni-Zedek king of Jerusalem heard how Joshua had taken Ai and had utterly destroyed it—as he had done to Jericho and its king, so he had done to Ai and its king—and how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel and were among them, that they feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, like one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai and all its men were mighty. Therefore Adoni-Zedek king of Jerusalem sent to Hoham king of Hebron, Piram king of Jarmuth, Japhia king of Lachish, and Debir king of Eglon, saying, ‘Come up to me and help me, that we may attack Gibeon, for it has made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel.’”

Take note here. In Genesis 14, Melchizedek (the One we know as Jesus Christ), the King of Salem was at the site of what is Jerusalem today. “Adoni-Zedek” means “lord of righteousness.” He came along and established his headquarters in Jerusalem and usurped to himself the title and prerogative of God. They were upset that the Gibeonites had made peace with them. They were going to make an example out of Gibeon.

Verse 6, “And the men of Gibeon sent to Joshua at the camp at Gilgal, saying, ‘Do not forsake your servants; come up to us quickly, save us and help us, for all the kings of the Amorites who dwell in the mountains have gathered together against us.’” The Gibeonites came to Joshua and he told them not to worry.

Verses 7-11, “So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valor. And the Lord said to Joshua, ‘Do not fear them, for I have delivered them into your hand; not a man of them shall stand before you.’ Joshua therefore came upon them suddenly, having marched all night from Gilgal. So the Lord routed them before Israel, killed them with a great slaughter at Gibeon chased them along the road that goes to Beth Horon, and struck them down as far as Azekah and Makkedah. And it happened, as they fled before Israel and were on the descent of Beth Horon, that the Lord cast down large hailstones from heaven on them as far as Azekah, and they died. There were more who died from the hailstones than those whom the children of Israel killed with the sword.”

We find that Joshua led the Israelites up to Gilgal and fought against the Canaanites.

Verse 12, “Then Joshua spoke to the Lord in the day when the Lord delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel: ‘Sun, stand still over Gibeon; and Moon, in the Valley of Aijalon.’” A tremendous miracle occurred; he told the sun to stand still.

Verses 13-14, “So the sun stood still, and the moon stopped, till the people had revenge upon their enemies. Is this not written in the Book of Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and did not hasten to go down for about a whole day. And there has been no day like that; before it or after it, that the Lord heeded the voice of a man; for the Lord fought for Israel.”

Here was one of the greatest miracles that ever occurred. Just a matter of days earlier, Israel was smitten, they ran, and here they were facing the entire confederation of the Canaanites. The day was lengthened by twelve hours. There is no limit to what God can do for his people if they are faithful to Him, but if sin and corruption are tolerated in their midst, God will allow all kinds of problems. God would fight their battles when they were faithful to him. When there were serious sins in the midst, God’s blessing was removed. According to Jewish tradition, this day occurred on a Friday.

Verse 25, “Then Joshua said to them, ‘Do not be afraid, nor be dismayed; be strong and of good courage, for thus the Lord will do to all your enemies against whom you fight.’”

Verses 40-43, “So Joshua conquered all the land: the mountain country and the South and the lowland and the wilderness slopes, and all their kings; he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the Lord God of Israel had commanded. And Joshua conquered them from Kadesh Barnea as far as Gaza, and all the country of Goshen, even as far as Gibeon. All these kings and their land Joshua took at one time, because the Lord God of Israel fought for Israel. Then Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to the camp at Gilgal.” We saw the miracles that God worked with the sun and moon standing still.

Joshua 11:19, “There was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, except the Hivites, the inhabitants of Gibeon. All the others they took in battle.”

Verse 23, “So Joshua took the whole land, according to all that the Lord had said to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel according to their divisions by their tribes. Then the land rested from war.” The land rested from war. They entered into rest.

Joshua 12:1-24 lists all the thirty-one cities the Israelites took.

Joshua 14:6-9, “Then the children of Judah came to Joshua in Gilgal. And Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite said to him: ‘You know the word which the Lord said to Moses the man of God concerning you and me in Kadesh Barnea. I was forty years old when Moses the servant of the Lord sent me from Kadesh Barnea to spy out the land, and I brought back word to him as it was in my heart. Nevertheless my brethren who went up with me made the heart of the people melt, but I wholly followed the Lord my God. So Moses swore on that day, saying, ‘Surely the land where your foot has trodden shall be your inheritance and your children’s forever, because you have wholly followed the Lord my God.’” Caleb came to Joshua and said, ‘I want the inheritance that I am to have.’

Verses 10-11, “And now, behold, the Lord has kept me alive, as He said, these forty years, ever since the Lord spoke this word to Moses while Israel wandered in the wilderness; and now, here I am this day, eighty-five years old. As yet I am as strong this day as I was on the day that Moses sent me; just as my strength was then, so now is my strength for war, both for going out and for coming in.”

‘I am as strong as I was when Moses sent me out.’ Caleb was forty when he went to spy out the land (v. 7), one year after the Exodus. He was thirty-nine at the time of the Exodus, and now forty-five years from the time he spied on the land, he is eighty-five, forty-six years after the Exodus. He was eighty-five when the land received the rest.

Verses 12-15, “Now therefore, give me this mountain of which the Lord spoke in that day; for you heard in that day how the Anakim were there, and that the cities were great and fortified. It may be that the Lord will be with me, and I shall be able to drive them out as the Lord said.’ And Joshua blessed him, and gave Hebron to Caleb the son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he wholly followed the Lord God of Israel. And the name of Hebron formerly was Kirjath Arba, for Arba was the greatest man among the Anakim. Then the land had rest from war.”

Caleb was eighty-five when the land received rest. Israel was in the wilderness for forty years, now six more years subduing the land. From the time they crossed the Jordan and had their rest was six years. The seventh year was to be a sabbatical year. What better year for them to enter into rest; so that is what happened. There are a lot of spiritual analogies drawn here.

Joshua 13:1-33 describes the boundaries. It enables us to draw a map of the Promised Land because it mentions everyone of the towns. We know where every tribe was.

Joshua 15 lists which cities were included.

Joshua 16 gives the various lots.

Joshua 18:1, “Then the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together at Shiloh, and set up the tabernacle of meeting there, and the land was subdued before them.” God established a headquarters and placed the tabernacle here at Shiloh. This was in the territory of Ephraim.

Verses 2-3, “But there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes which had not yet received their inheritance. Then Joshua said to the children of Israel: ‘How long will you neglect to go and possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers has given you?’” So he took the area, divided up the rest of it and gave them detailed instruction down through chapters 18 and 19.

Joshua 20:9, “These were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel and for the stranger who sojourned among them, that whoever killed any person accidentally might flee there, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood until he stood before the congregation.” They designated cities of refuge.

Joshua 21:41, “All the cities of the Levites within the possession of the children of Israel were forty-eight cities with their common-lands.” There were forty-eight cities with their suburbs. Israel was divided into forty-eight Levitical administrative districts. The United States started with thirteen states, as Israel had thirteen tribes—ironies that God built in that showed that.

Joshua 21:44-45, “The Lord gave them rest all around, according to all that He had sworn to their fathers. And not a man of all their enemies stood against them; the Lord delivered all their enemies into their hand. Not a word failed of any good thing which the Lord had spoken to the house of Israel. All came to pass.”

Joshua 22:4, ““And now the Lord your God has given rest to your brethren, as He promised them; now therefore, return and go to your tents and to the land of your possession, which Moses the servant of the Lord gave you on the other side of the Jordan.””

Hebrews 3:10-11, ““Therefore I was angry with that generation, and said, “they always go astray in their heart, and they have not known My ways.” So I swore in My wrath, “they shall not enter My rest.”””

Verses 18-19, “And to whom did He swear that they would not enter His rest, but to those who did not obey? So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.”

Hebrews 4:1-3, “Therefore, since a promise remains of entering His rest, let us fear lest any of you seem to have come short of it. For indeed the gospel was preached to us as well as to them; but the word did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in those who heard it. For we who have believed do enter that rest, as He has said: ‘So I swore in My wrath, they shall not enter My rest,’....” If the rest Joshua gave them was all that there was, David would not have spoken of a rest in a future tense.

Psalms 95:11, “So I swore in My wrath, ‘they shall not enter My rest.’” David wrote about a future rest four hundred years after Joshua led them into the Promised Land.

Isaiah 14:7, “The whole earth is at rest and quiet....”

Isaiah 11:10, “And in that day there shall be a Root of Jesse, who shall stand as a banner to the people; for the Gentiles shall seek Him, and His resting place shall be glorious.”

Joshua was not the ultimate rest, but a physical type of a spiritual rest. You can’t understand Hebrews 3 and 4 if you don’t understand that. Paul showed that it is not the ultimate rest. We look forward to the time of Tomorrow’s World when we enter into God’s rest.

Joshua 22:11-12, “Now the children of Israel heard someone say, ‘Behold, the children of Reuben, the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh have built an altar on the frontier of the land of Canaan, in the region of the Jordan, on the side occupied by the children of Israel.’ And when the children of Israel heard of it, the whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered together at Shiloh to go to war against them.” A rumor got out. They were ready to go to war.

Verses 13-16, “Then the children of Israel sent Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest to the children of Reuben, to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, and with him ten rulers...and they spoke to them saying, ‘Thus says the whole congregation of the Lord: “What treachery is this that you have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day from following the Lord, in that you have built for yourselves an altar, that you might rebel this day against the Lord?”””

They had jumped to the conclusion that they were building idols. A good example of what can happen when gossip occurs.

Verses 18-19, “...“And it shall be, if you rebel today against the Lord, that tomorrow He will be angry with the whole congregation of Israel. Nevertheless, if the land of your possession is unclean, then cross over to the land of the possession of the Lord, where the Lord’s tabernacle stands, and take possession among us; but do not rebel against the Lord, nor rebel against us; by building yourselves an altar besides the altar of the Lord our God.”””

Verses 21-24, “Then the children of Reuben, the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh answered and said to the heads of the divisions of Israel: ‘The Lord God of gods, the Lord God of gods, He knows and let Israel itself know—if it is in rebellion, or it in treachery against the Lord, do not save us this day. If we have built ourselves an altar to turn from following the Lord, or if to offer on it burnt offerings or grain offerings, or if to offer peace offerings on it, let the Lord Himself require an account. But in fact we have done it for fear, for a reason, saying, “In time to come your descendants may speak to our descendants saying ‘What have you to do with the Lord God of Israel?’””” We have not built an altar in rebellion but for fear.

Verses 26-29, “Therefore we said, ‘Let us now prepare to build ourselves an altar, not for burnt offerings nor for sacrifice, but that it may be a witness between you and us and our generations after us, that we may perform the service of the Lord before Him with our burnt offerings, with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings; that your descendants may not say to our descendants in time to come, ‘you have no part in the Lord.’” Therefore we said that it will be, when they say this to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say, “Here is the replica of the altar of the Lord which our fathers made, though not for burnt offerings nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between you and us.” For be it from us that we should rebel against the Lord, and turn from following the Lord this day, to build an altar for burnt offerings, for grain offerings, or for sacrifices, besides the altar of the Lord our God which is before His tabernacle.”

They said, ‘This altar is not for sacrifice, but for a witness.’ It turned out that there was really nothing out of the way about it. There was almost a war because they had jumped to conclusions. Thankfully, somebody went and asked, ‘why did you do that?’ It was a witness, ‘that we are all part of the same nation. We know better than to build an altar to worship on.’

Ever notice how people can go off “half-cocked.” They jump to conclusions. When you start examining motives as to why they did it, then you are stepping on territories that you know nothing about. You don’t know why they did it. You can’t read their heart. They immediately assume they know, instead of going and saying, ‘I saw you building this thing, why are you building it?’ They thought they knew why they were building it. There is a very important lesson.

Joshua 23:1-2, “Now it came to pass, a long time after the Lord had given rest to Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua was old, advanced in age. And Joshua called for all Israel, for their elders, for their heads, for their judges, and for their officers, and said to them: ‘I am old, advanced in age.’” Almost twenty-two years had gone by.

Verse 3, “‘You have seen all that the Lord your God has done to all these nations because of you, for the Lord your God is He who has fought for you.’” You see what God has done, and you have seen all of these things.

Verses 6-8, “‘Therefore be very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the Law of Moses, lest you turn aside from it to the right hand or to the left, and lest you go among these nations, these who remain among you. You shall not make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause anyone to swear by them; you shall not serve them nor bow down to them, but you shall hold fast to the Lord your God, as you have done to this day.’” Be very courageous.

Joshua 24:1-2, “Then Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem and called for the elders of Israel, for their heads, for their judges, and for their officers; and they presented themselves before God. And Joshua said to all the people, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “Your fathers, including Terah, the father of Abraham and the father of Nahor, dwelt on the other side of the River in old times; and they served other gods.”’” Joshua gathered them all together and began to speak to them. He recounts the history, going all the way back to Abraham, and coming to Jericho.

Verses 14-15, “‘Now therefore, fear the Lord, serve Him in sincerity and in truth, and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the River and in Egypt. Serve the Lord! And if it seems evil to you to serve the Lord, choose for yourselves this day whom you will serve, whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the River, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land you dwell. But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.’”

Joshua says, ‘I know some of you are worshipping idols. It is time to make a choice. Moses is dead and I am getting ready to die. You need to make a choice of what is going to happen to you. Are you going to go back into idolatry or serve God? I know what I am going to do; I am going to serve God in sincerity and in truth.’

We can prove that Joshua wrote Scripture.

Verse 26, “Then Joshua wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God. And he took a large stone, and set it up there under the oak that was by the sanctuary of the Lord.” He wrote the book of Joshua.

Verse 27, “And Joshua said to all the people, ‘Behold, this stone shall be a witness to us, for it has heard all the words of the Lord which He spoke to us. It shall therefore be a witness to you, lest you deny your God.’”

It is interesting because this was evidently Jacob’s pillar stone. It was the symbol of the Covenant that God had made with Jacob and taken into the wilderness through the forty years. It was a witness when God had spoken forty years before. They had taken it with them through the wilderness. It was kept near the tabernacle and in that sense a witness, a reminder. It had been there during all the times God has spoken to them. Jacob's pillar stone—the kings of Israel were crowned on it. Jeremiah took it from Jerusalem to Ireland, and it is still the stone on which the kings of the House of David are crowned.

Verses 28-29, "So Joshua let the people depart, each to his own inheritance. Now it came to pass after these things that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the Lord, died, being one hundred and ten years old."

Verse 31, "Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua, who had known all the works of the Lord which He had done for Israel." Basically, they obeyed God during the time of Joshua and the contemporaries of Joshua, the elders that had been there. They didn't last very long. We are going to note that when we get into the book of Judges in the next Bible study.

There is an important lesson to learn, and we see it over and over. The people as a whole, when the leadership is strong, tend to reflect the leader and fall into line; when it is not strong, they go the path of least resistance. That is the tendency of human nature. A second generation comes along, takes things for granted, and begins to let it slip. I think we do well to consider the warnings mentioned in Joshua in the context of the end of this age and the Laodicean era. There is a certain parallel we need to meditate on and consider. There is the tendency to develop familiarity and as new generations come along, to not take it too seriously. After Joshua's death and the death of that group of elders, things began to slide. I think we can find parallels in what was happening in ancient Israel that can make the book of Joshua come alive.

Old Testament Series—Judges

I have a chronology of the book of Judges that lists all of the judges. I think this will be helpful to you as we start going through the judges that we are talking about. Judges is an interesting and very important book because of the lessons that it contains. Many times it is a book that people have had difficulty with because it seemed to them to be continual strife, fighting, all types of atrocities and terrible things that seemingly occurred. Many have had difficulty with that in trying to understand.

Samuel evidently wrote the book of Judges, though later editorial comments were added in, perhaps by Ezra, at the time the Old Testament was edited prior to the conclusion of the Canon. The book of Judges certainly underlines the inability and unwillingness of Israel to keep the terms of the Covenant. Everyone was only interested in doing his own thing.

To get the picture of what was going on in the book of Judges, I think we need to understand the analogy of our own nation's history. During the time of the book of Judges, following the death of Joshua, Israel was not really united under one central government with a centralized administration. Rather, there were twelve independent tribes loosely confederated together. This was comparable, frankly, in many ways to the U. S. under the articles of confederation after the Revolutionary War.

If you want to understand the book of Judges, you have to kind of put yourself in the picture of the settling of the frontier—the settling of the Old West with all the Indian Wars and the strife that was going on because that's really what you had. You had a "rough-and-ready" frontier type of circumstance where a new land was being settled. Some of these judges were kind of like some of the circuit judges of the "Old Judge Roy Bean" variety or the "law west of the Pecos" type of a thing.

That's really the comparable situation to Israel under the Judges. It was the kind of strife and circumstances that characterized the settling of the Old West. Remember the circumstances? There really was not a lot of organized law and order. There was a lot of strife, things going on here and there, the constant threat of some of the Indian wars, and things of that nature.

Sometimes it was difficult to separate the good guys from the bad guys. That's the kind of situation you find in the book of Judges, a period of the frontier. You had twelve independent tribes loosely confederated together, a lot of things going on that could be compared to the circumstances of the Old West.

As you note here on the chronology—let's pick it up here. We had another chronology that started with Abraham and brought it down to Moses, but this chronology basically picks it up from there—from Moses coming down to the entrance into the Promised Land under Joshua in 1403 B.C., and then six years later in 1397 B.C., Israel entered into rest. Joshua himself died about sixteen years later in 1381 B.C. There was a period of several years of the elders that outlived Joshua that brings us down to 1374 B.C. We begin a period of oppression by Mesopotamia and then the first of the judges, Othniel.

He was a younger brother of Caleb. We note him here in a lengthy period. He established a certain degree of centralized authority. What you have to realize is that, even when you had a judge ruling, it was not an organized central government in the sense that Israel had later under the kings or that we would think of in our nation today. It was still comparable to the U. S. during the period prior to the Constitution when you had the semi-independent states that were loosely confederated together. If they could agree on something, they did it; and if they couldn't agree, they didn't.

This was the circumstance, and there was not strong leadership most of the time. The judges were the ones who administered God's law, but it was more of a "circuit-rider-type" judge. People would come to him for matters to be judged. He would lead them during times of warfare. What it came down to was Israel showed unwillingness on their own, as individuals, to really submit to God and obey the laws of the Covenant. In the aftermath of every judge's death, we see what happened—Israel would begin to go after other gods.

We see this forty-year period of Othniel's judgeship ending up with Israel being oppressed by the Moabites. Then God raised up Ehud to deliver them. That went on for a period of time until the Israelites were oppressed by the Canaanites in 1228-1208 B.C. We note here, right around that time period, the birth of Eli. Now God raised up Barak and Deborah to drive out the Canaanites in 1208 B.C. Then we had the period of oppression by the Midianites, and in the aftermath of this oppression by the Midianites, God raised up Gideon. Gideon was the last judge that exercised authority over all of the tribes until you come down to Samuel. The death of Gideon marked the collapse of centralized administration.

Eli began his high priesthood about twenty years after Gideon's judgeship began, about halfway through Gideon's judgeship. You will note on the right side of the sheet there is the part showing the judges and explanatory information; on the left hand side shows the other events going on.

At Gideon's death the nation fractured. One of Gideon's sons sought to establish himself as king. This son was half Canaanite. It didn't work. It only lasted for about three years. In the east, the Ammonites began to take over. In the north, Abimelech tried to take over. He was part Canaanite. In the south and west, the Philistines tried to take over. So you find the nation fracturing into three sections. During this time Eli was high priest.

We find during this time, in the north, Tola and later Jair fighting in the area where the Canaanites (Abimelech) had been. Then Jephthah and later Ibzan, Elon and Abdon were fighting in the east against the Ammonites. Samson was fighting in the west and in the south against the Philistines. Then it was Samuel who basically took over in the aftermath of all of that. The Philistine power collapsed when Samson pulled the temple down and destroyed the entire leadership of the Philistines. That marked the beginning of Samuel's judgeship, and there was a consolidation where Samuel basically became, after a few years, judge over all of Israel. From the time when Samuel first began his judgeship after the collapse of the Philistine power, there was a period of about forty years that brings us down to the beginning of the monarchy with the coronation of King Saul and later King David's reign.

With the death of Gideon, all pretense of a centralized government collapsed. The Canaanites, Ammonites and most of the Philistines dominated Israel for most of a generation. Samuel, the final judge, restored limited centralization. His judgeship gave way to the monarchy of Saul.

Judges 3—16 form, for the most part, a continuous narrative of the history of Israel under the judges.

Judges 11:26 is essential for establishing the chronology of the book. You may have wondered how we came up with dates.

The key to the chronology of judges is Judges 11.

Judges 11:26, “While Israel dwelt in Hishbon and its villages, in Aroer and its villages, and in all the cities along the banks of the Arnon, for three hundred years, why did you not recover them within that time?” From the time that Israel entered into the land until this time when Jephthah overthrew the Ammonites was a period of three hundred years. Note here that we dated from the entrance into the land under Joshua, 1403 B.C. Three hundred years later brings us down to 1103 B.C., the time that Jephthah overthrew the Ammonites. It provides a basis for dating the material. By dating Jephthah's government, we can date the others from that. We can go forward and backward and date everyone from Jephthah because with him we have a date that dates us back to the time of the entrance into the land. That ties in with the Exodus.

Judges 1—2 and 17—21 are basically inset chapters. They serve to give a flavor of life in those days. You had a situation that sometimes bordered on anarchy. That's made plain at the end of the book of Judges.

Judges 21:25, “In those days there was no king in Israel and every man did that which was right in his own eyes.” That was the problem. Everyone was simply doing his own thing.

Judges 3:1, “Now these are the nations which the Lord left, that He might test Israel by them, that is, all who had not known any of the wars in Canaan.” This explains much of the problems for Israel. The more Israel mixed and mingled with the world, the more like the world they became, even to the point that God withdrew His protection. Instead of Israel overcoming the world, they were overcome by their own carnal desires to be like the world. There is an important lesson to learn from the book of Judges.

Verse 4, “And they were left, that He might test Israel by them, to know whether they would obey the commandments of the Lord which He had commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.” Why did God allow some of the Canaanite tribes to remain behind? They were to prove Israel by them. But notice the problem.

Verses 5-7, “So the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites. And they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons: and they served their gods. So the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord. They forgot the Lord their God and served Baals and Asherahs.” God made sure that they had an alternative if they chose to use it. When God calls us and begins to work with us, He does not remove all the temptations and all of the problems. We remain living in the world around us. One of the reasons we go through some of these things is to demonstrate what are our priorities, are we going to obey the Commandments of the Lord or not? What happened here? What did Israel do? They began to compromise.

I think it is important to understand the tactics of Satan the devil as he seeks to subvert the people of God. There are various tactics that we have noted throughout. One of the tactics that he is most adept to using is that of compromise. We are surrounded by the world, and we begin to compromise, a little thing over here, a little thing over there, and something else. We begin to mix and mingle and become part and parcel with the world until our values become watered down.

Now here we see intermarriage being a problem. We look at two aspects of it. One, the spiritual aspect and what happened when Israel began to marry other nations. You begin to involve yourself in unions that are not based and oriented in serving God. The principle here is why God tells converted Christians that they are not to become unequally yoked (II Corinthians 6:14). That’s the principle as to why it’s wrong to date outside the Church. It simply leads to compromise and leads to involving yourself in situations that are going to pull you down and pull your values away. So part of the problem is religious, it led them into a spirit of compromise.

Another part is not only did Israel lose their spiritual identity, but they would eventually lose their physical identity. This is a matter of concern to God because God established the separate human families. God established the identities of the various branches of the human family, and Israel began to lose their identity—physically, culturally, spiritually and in every way. If this circumstance had continued on, without God’s intervention, they would have lost their identity as a people and would have dropped from the pages of history. Well, God in His mercy allowed them to find themselves in a “jam.”

Verse 8, “Therefore the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel, and He sold them into the hand of Cushan-Rishathaim king of Mesopotamia; and the children of Israel served Cushan-Rishathaim eight years.” Isn’t it interesting how when hard times come, people begin to think about God? Sin is for the good times when living is easy. When the going gets rough, that’s when people begin to say, ‘Oh, God, please deliver me.’

What was the old joke they had back in World War II? —There weren’t any atheists in foxholes. About the time somebody was floating around on a life raft in the Pacific, there really weren’t any atheists out there. All of these philosophical ideas someone might have had kind of disappeared. People were making promises right and left, ‘I’ll do anything, just please get me out of here.’

We note in Judges 1:1, “Now after the death of Joshua it came to pass...” This is the setting. After the death of Joshua and the elders that outlived him died, Israel went further and further afield. They didn’t last. They lasted until the water got hot again. Remember the last thing Joshua told them. He warned them what they were going to do, and sure enough, they did it.

Verses 27-28, “However, Manasseh did not drive out the inhabitants of Beth Shean and its villages, or Taanach and its villages, or the inhabitants of Dor and its villages, or the inhabitants of Ibleam and its villages or the inhabitants of Megiddo and its villages; for the Canaanites were determined to dwell in that land. And it came to pass, when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites under tribute, but did not completely drive them out.”

You see, they thought they had come up with a better idea. Instead of driving them out, ‘why don’t we keep them here and make slaves of them.’ That was not what God told them to do, and it became a never-ending source of problems. It led them into various problems and compromises.

Judges 2:7, “So the people served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders who outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the Lord which He had done for Israel.”

Verse 10, “When all that generation had been gathered to their fathers, another generation arose after them who did not know the Lord nor the work which He had done for Israel.” That was the generation that had known the wandering.

Verses 12-15, “And they forsook the Lord God of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt; and they followed other gods from among the gods of the people who were all around them, and they bowed down to them; and they provoked the Lord to anger. They forsook the Lord and served Baal and the Ashtoreths. And the anger of the Lord was hot against Israel. So He delivered them into the hands of plunderers who despoiled them; and He sold them into the hands of their enemies all around, so that they could no longer stand before their enemies. Wherever they went out, the hand of the Lord was against them for calamity, as the Lord had said, and as the Lord had sworn to them. And they were greatly distressed.”

Verses 16-18, “Then the Lord raised up judges who delivered them out of the hand of those who plundered them. Yet they would not listen to their judges, but they played the harlot with other gods, and bowed down to them. They turned quickly from the way in which their fathers walked, in obeying the commandments of the Lord; they did not do so. And when the Lord raised up judges for them; the Lord was with the judge and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge; for the Lord was moved with pity by their groaning because of those who oppressed them and harassed them.” He delivered them out of the hand of the enemies because He felt sorry for them.

Verse 19, “And it came to pass, when the judge was dead, that they reverted and behaved more corruptly than their fathers, by following other gods, to serve them and bow down to them. They did not cease from their own doings nor from their stubborn way.” This is the story over and over in the book of Judges—Israel went astray. When Joshua and the elders died, Israel went astray. They were oppressed; God allowed them to be punished and then had mercy on them and raised a judge. But they never really got the point; as soon as the judge was not around to enforce it, then away they went, over and over, the ups and downs of history. How short a time lessons are retained! Lessons don’t last very long. We see it in history and we see it here in the book of Judges.

I think, brethren, we had better do well to take heed to ourselves. Understand! God inspired these examples for a reason. God has allowed us to learn certain lessons in this age, today in His Church. We kid ourselves if we think that lessons are permanently implanted. The tendency of human nature is to forget the lesson. And if we forget the lesson, we repeat the mistakes. It is important that we continue to take heed to ourselves, to go back and to learn from the lessons that God has allowed us to experience.

We note here as we did in Judges 1:28 what Israel did in regard to the Canaanites in the land. They made tributaries of them. They didn’t totally drive them out, and they were a source of trouble ever after. What did God say the results of Israel’s treatment of the Canaanites would be?

Judges 2:2, ““And you shall make no covenant with the inhabitants of this land; you shall tear down their altars. But you have not obeyed My voice. Why have you done this?””

Verse 3, ““Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they shall be thorns in your side, and their gods shall be a snare to you.’”” God said, ‘Look, you didn’t listen to what I said, and therefore I am not going to entirely drive them out. They are going to be here as thorns in your side.’ The result was going to be strife, and the idolatry of the Canaanites would serve as a snare.

Verses 16-19, “Then the Lord raised up judges who delivered them out of the hand of those who plundered them. Yet they would not listen to their judges, but they played the harlot with other gods, and bowed down to them. They turned quickly from the way in which their fathers walked, in obeying the commandments of the Lord; they did not do so. And when the Lord raised up judges for them, the Lord was with the judge and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge; for the Lord was moved to pity by their groaning because of those who oppressed them and harassed them. And it came to pass, when the judge was dead, that they reverted and behaved more corruptly than their fathers, by following other gods, to serve them and bow down to them. They did not cease from their own doings nor from their stubborn way.”

These four verses summarize the history of the rest of the book of Judges. When you read vv. 16-19 of Judges 2, you have the summary of the whole story. God would raise a judge and deliver them out of the hand of those that spoiled them. They wouldn’t listen to the judge, and they would soon enough go into idolatry again. When the judge was dead, they went all the way and corrupted themselves. This cycle is repeated over and over and over. Now we find that God allowed the Mesopotamians to come in and oppress them for eight years—and then God raised up the first judge.

We read in Judges 3: 9-11, “When the children of Israel cried out to the Lord, the Lord raised up a deliverer for the children of Israel, who delivered them: Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb’s younger brother. The Spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he judged Israel. He went out to war, and the Lord delivered Cushan-Rishathaim king of Mesopotamia into his hand; and his hand prevailed over Cushan-Rishathaim. So the land had rest for forty years. Then Othniel the son of Kenaz died.” Again notice what happened. They learned the lesson for how long? –For about a generation. Othniel, the first judge, was the nephew of Caleb; he was the son of Kenaz who was Caleb’s younger brother. He judged Israel for this period. Israel had rest, we are told, for forty years.

We emphasize, going through the book of Judges, this point of entering into God’s rest. Obedience leads to rest. Entering into God’s rest, God gave them rest from the inhabitants around. This term “rest” is important because the Apostle Paul, back in Hebrews, uses it. It applies to the Sabbath and to the Millennium, of which the Sabbath is a type. It is all tied in together. Realize that what God gave Israel was a physical type of what we have in store for us.

As we come through the story, we find that the children of Israel did evil.

Judges 3:12-14, “And the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord. So the Lord strengthened Eglon king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the Lord. Then he gathered to himself the people of Amon and Amalek, went and defeated Israel, and took possession of the city of palms. So the children of Israel served Eglon king of Moab eighteen years.” He gathered together allies; he smote Israel and oppressed them for a period of eighteen years.

Verses 15-24, “And when the children of Israel cried out to the Lord, the Lord raised up a deliverer for them: Ehud the son of Gera, the Benjamite, a left-handed man. By him the children of Israel sent tribute to Eglon king of Moab. Now Ehud made himself a dagger (it was double-edged and a cubit in length) and fastened it under his clothes on his right thigh. So he brought the tribute to Eglon king of Moab. (Now, Eglon was a very fat man.) And when he had finished presenting the tribute, he sent away the people who had carried the tribute. But he himself turned back from the stone images that were at Gilgal, and said, ‘I have a secret message for you, O king.’ He said, ‘Keep silence!’ And all who attended him went out from him. And Ehud came to him (now he was sitting upstairs in his cool private chamber). Then Ehud said, ‘I have a message from God for you.’ So he arose from his seat. Then Ehud reached with his left hand, took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly. Even the hilt went in after the blade, and the fat closed over the blade, for he did not draw the dagger out of his belly; and his entrails came out. Then Ehud went out through the porch and shut the doors of the upper room behind him and locked them. When he had gone out, Eglon’s servants came to look, and to their surprise, the doors of the upper room were locked. So they said, ‘He is probably attending to his needs [KJV, “covers his feet”] in the cool chamber.’”

Ehud managed to get right in there where he was. He told Eglon he had a message for him and stabbed him. We are told that Eglon was fat and couldn’t get the dagger out. Eglon was a pretty good-sized fellow. Ehud left him in there and escaped. Since he closed the door, they were figuring he was going to the bathroom. That’s what the term “cover his feet” means. That is a King James euphemism for “going to the toilet.” So they figured that was what must be going on.

Verse 25, “So they waited till they were embarrassed, and still he had not opened the doors of the upper room. Therefore they took the key and opened them. And there was their master, fallen dead on the floor.” Finally they got worried about him and decided to go in, and when they came in, he was dead.

You read these stories. That’s why I said at the beginning, to understand it you have to put yourself in the circumstance of the Wild West, the shootouts and all of the kinds of things that were going on back and forth. You had an absence of strong law and order enforced. You had champions; you had heroes who kind of rose up, came in, stepped out and took action. God would utilize that individual to restore a certain amount of independence or law and order, but it never really solved the problem.

I think it is interesting that recently there was a circumstance where the modern nation of Israel launched an attack against one of the leaders of the PLO over in North Africa. They marched right in, assassinated him and left. You have to understand that from their standpoint, they literally read the book of Judges for strategy. They didn’t read it for spiritual lessons; they read it for strategy. They considered themselves in the same circumstances, and they read it for strategy. See what they did, they went in and did the same thing. They read it strictly from a carnal standpoint. What works? Obviously it does work from that standpoint because it suits God’s purpose. We find the same things over and over and over. The book of Judges is the bloodiest book of the whole Bible.

The bottom line of the book of Judges is the end of the book, the last verse. This is the bottom line. This is why the book of Judges reads the way it does.

Judges 21:25, “In those days there was no king in Israel; every man did that which was right in his own eyes.” That’s the key to understanding the whole book. Everybody did his own thing. God saved Israel in spite of themselves. God had a job, a purpose and a promise He had made to Abraham. He utilized individuals who did all kinds of things.

Verse 30, “So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest for eighty years.”

Judges 4:1-3, “When Ehud was dead, the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord. So the Lord sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan, who reigned in Hazor. The commander of his army was Sisera, who dwelt in Harosheth Hagoyim. And the children of Israel cried out to the Lord; for Jabin had nine hundred chariots of iron, and for twenty years he harshly oppressed the children of Israel.”

Verses 4-5, “Now Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, was judging Israel at that time. And she would sit under the palm tree of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel in the mountain of Ephraim. And the children of Israel came up to her for judgment.” She was a prophetess. God gave revelation through her.

Verses 6-8, “Then she sent and called for Barak the son of Abinoam from Kedesh in Naphtali, and said to him, ‘Has not the Lord God of Israel commanded, saying, “Go and deploy troops at Mount Tabor; take with you ten thousand men of the sons of Naphtali and of the sons of Zebulun; and against you I will deploy Sisera, the commander of Jabin’s army, with his chariots and his multitude at the River Kishon; and I will deliver him into your hand”?’ And Barak said to her, ‘If you will go with me, then I will go; but if you will not go with me, I will not go.’”

Let’s understand. “Barak,” whose name meant “lightning,” was the son of “Abinoam,” whose name meant “the son of sweetness.”

Notice Judges 5:7, “...until I, Deborah, arose, arose a mother in Israel.” Deborah arose as a mother in Israel. Notice the state of things. Israel had sunk to the place that God said, ‘You are like a bunch of little kids.’ It was in a sense to shame the men of the nation who had so abdicated their responsibility that God said, ‘I am going to raise a woman as a mother in Israel, to take you by the hand and lead you because you are acting like a bunch of little kids, a bunch of little Momma’s boys. You need Momma to come and take you by the hand because you are not acting like men.’

Here was Barak who was raised up to do a job and Barak said, ‘Oh, I don’t know; I’m not going to go up unless you are going to go up with me. If you’ll go up and hold my hand, I guess I’ll go.’ Deborah was so disgusted.

Judges 4:9, “So she said, ‘I will surely go with you; nevertheless there will be no glory for you in the journey you are taking, for the Lord will sell Sisera into the hand of a woman.’ Then Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kedesh.”

‘If you are that much of a weakling,’ she said, ‘you’re not going to get any honor out of it. You’re not going to kill the enemy general; he’s going to die at the hands of a woman.’

This is a picture of the state of things in Israel. The nation had sunk to a point where there was no proper masculine leadership, and it is to the shame of the nation that they were in that state. This is what happens when you get away from God. There wasn’t the kind of courage, boldness and proper kinds of masculine leadership that should have been there.

God said, ‘All right, I’ll show you. I’ll raise a righteous woman who is the everlasting shame of the men involved. A woman who will exemplify more courage and trust in Me than any of you men. I will use her like a mother to take you by the hand and lead you up there.’ It was to evidence the state of things. It shows God used Deborah like a mother to Israel.

As we go through the story, Jael (a woman) was the one who actually killed the general Sisera (vv. 17-21).

Judges 5 is the song of Deborah.

Judges 5:31, “‘Thus let all Your enemies perish, O Lord! But let those who love Him, be like the sun when it comes out in full strength. So the land had rest for forty years.’” Undoubtedly there were lessons learned in some of this.

We find Barak listed in Hebrews 11:32 as one of the men of faith. He didn’t start off as a man of faith. That’s one of the things to understand.

Many of those you find listed in Hebrews 11 as men and women of faith didn’t start off as men and women of faith. They started off fearful, cowardly and timid, with all kinds of apprehension, all kinds of things. God worked with them and brought them to a point where they came to trust Him and to walk with Him.

Again there is a lesson there. Sometimes we read the story of these individuals and think they were just born walking tall, born heroes. The heroes of Hebrews 11 were not born heroes. They were made heroes through the working of God in their lives.

God worked with Barak. Obviously, there was a lot of change that took place in Barak from the time that he was so timid that he said, 'Not me, no way, unless you hold me by the hand and take me up there.' Can you imagine a successful general saying that? Think of generals that have led the armies of this nation; can you imagine them telling their mother or some woman, 'If you take me by the hand and lead me up there, if you will stand there next to me, I guess I'll go and fight the enemy.' That's ridiculous. Can you imagine General Patton doing something like that or General MacArthur or various ones.

This is the state of things. God took people who didn't have what it takes naturally, and He supplied their needs. Hebrews 11 tells us many of these individuals, out of weakness, were made strong. God didn't take them because they were the strongest, most bold and courageous people around. Sometimes He took them because they were the weakest, and He showed what He could do.

Things lasted and the land had rest for forty years.

Judges 6:1, "And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord. [Kind of like a broken record, put it on and play it back every chapter.] So the Lord delivered them into the hand of Midian for seven years." The Midianites would wait until the Israelites had sown a crop and the crop was about ready to harvest, then they would come up with the Amalekites and the children of the East. They just came up and harvested the crop (vv. 2-5).

These were terrorist raids. Again, go back to the situation and think of some of the Indian raids in the Old West. The settlers would come in and have their little community, and the Indians would come down on the warpath to terrorize the place, burn it down and send everybody scurrying for cover. This is basically what was going on, and frankly, some of these people they were fighting against were very much akin to some of the Indians. In fact, some of the North American Indians are actually descended from the Hittites. So you find a number of similarities. You find the same people in the same situation doing the same kinds of things.

We find that Israel was greatly impoverished because of the Midianites, and they cried out to the Eternal (v. 6).

Verses 7-10, "And it came to pass, when the children of Israel cried out to the Lord because of the Midianites, that the Lord sent a prophet to the children of Israel, who said to them, 'Thus says the Lord God of Israel: "I brought you up from Egypt and brought you out of the house of bondage; and I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians and out of the hand of all who oppressed you, and drove them out before you and gave you their land. Also I said to you, 'I am the Lord your God; do not fear the gods of the Amorites, in whose land you dwell. But you have not obeyed My voice.'""

Verse 11, "Now the angel of the Lord came and sat under the terebinth tree which was in Ophrah, which belonged to Joash the Abiezrite, while his son Gideon threshed wheat in the winepress, in order to hide it from the Midianites." So Gideon is back here hiding behind the winepress with a little dab of wheat, kind of beating it out, looking around, afraid the Midianites would come down and discover what he was doing.

Verse 12, "And the Angel of the Lord appeared to him, and said to him, 'The Lord is with you, you mighty man of valor!'" And Gideon said, 'WHO, ME?'

Verse 13, "And Gideon said to him, 'O, my Lord, if the Lord is with us, why then has all this happened to us? And where are all His miracles, which our fathers told us about, saying, "Did not the Lord bring us up from Egypt?" But now the Lord has forsaken us and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites.'"

'If the Lord is with us, why has all of this befallen us, and where are all the miracles we heard about?'

Verses 14-15, "Then the Lord turned to him and said, 'Go in this might of yours, and you shall save Israel from the hand of the Midianites. Have I not sent you?' So he said to him, 'O my Lord, how can I save Israel? Indeed my clan is the weakest in Manasseh and I am the least in my father's house.'"

He said, 'My family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house. Not me, you got me mixed up with somebody else. I can't do it.'

Verse 16, "And the Lord said to him, 'Surely I will be with you, and you shall defeat the Midianites as one man.'" God said, 'Look, I am going to be with you.'

Verse 17, "Then he said to Him, 'If now I have found favor in Your sight, then show me a sign that it is You who talk with me.'"

So Gideon offered a sacrifice and brought out the sacrifice and the fire came out of the rock and consumed the flesh (vv. 18-21).

Verse 22, "Now Gideon perceived that He was the Angel of the Lord. So Gideon said, 'Alas, O

Lord God! For I have seen the Angel of the Lord face to face.” Just about that time it dawned on him that not everybody reached out his staff and fire came up out of the rock. About this time it was kind of impressive. So he got scared again. ‘Oh, no, I have seen an angel of the Lord face to face.’

Verse 23, “Then the Lord said to him, ‘Peace be with you; do not fear, you shall not die.’” He was told he wasn’t going to die.

Verses 24-25, “So Gideon built an altar there to the Lord, and called it The-Lord-Shalom. To this day it is still in Ophrah of the Abiezrites. Now it came to pass the same night that the Lord said to him, ‘Take your father’s young bull, the second bull of seven years old, and tear down the altar of Baal that your father has, and cut down the wooden image that is beside it.’” God told him to take his father’s young bullock and use it to pull down that altar of Baal and cut down the grove.

Verses 26-30, “and build an altar to the Lord your God on top of this rock in the proper arrangement, and take the second bull and offer a burnt sacrifice with the wood of the image which you shall cut down.’ So Gideon took ten men from among his servants and did as the Lord had said to him. But because he feared his father’s household and the men of the city too much to do it by day, he did it by night. And when the men of the city arose early in the morning, there was the altar of Baal, torn down; and the wooden image that was beside it was cut down, and the second bull was being offered on the altar which had been built. So they said to one another, ‘Who has done this thing?’ And when they had inquired and asked, they said, ‘Gideon the son of Joash has done this thing.’ Then the men of the city said to Joash, ‘Bring out your son, that he may die, because he has torn down the altar of Baal, and because he has cut down the wooden image that was beside it.’” They said, ‘Bring out your son because we want to kill him.’

Verse 31, “And Joash said to all who stood against him, ‘Would you plead for Baal? Would you save him? Let the one who would plead for him be put to death by morning! If he is a god, let him plead for himself, because his altar has been torn down!’”

Joash said, ‘Why would you plead for Baal? Let him take care of himself. If he’s a god, let him plead for himself. Somebody threw his altar down; let him take care of it himself.’

Verse 32, “Therefore on that day he called him Jerubbaal, saying, ‘Let Baal plead against him, because he has torn down his altar.’” Gideon was nicknamed “Jerubbaal,” which meant “let Baal plead.”

Verses 33-34, “Then all the Midianites and Amalekites, the people of the East, gathered together; and they crossed over and encamped in the Valley of Jezreel. But the Spirit of the Lord came upon Gideon; then he blew the trumpet, and the Abiezrites gathered behind him.” He said, ‘Now what have I gotten myself into?’

Verse 36, “Then Gideon said to God, ‘If You will save Israel by my hand as You have said....’” ‘Give me a sign.’

Verses 37-38, “look, I shall put a fleece of wool on the threshing floor; if there is dew on the fleece only, and it is dry on all the ground, then I shall know that You will save Israel by my hand, as You have said.’ And it was so. When he rose early the next morning and squeezed the fleece together, he wrung the dew out of the fleece, a bowl full of water.”

He put out a fleece and there was going to be dew just on the fleece and everything else was going to be dry. Well, God worked that miracle to encourage him, and then Gideon looked at it and thought, ‘Maybe that was an accident. Let’s try it again.’

Verses 39-40, “Then Gideon said to God, ‘Do not be angry with me, and let me speak just once more: Let me test, I pray, just once more with the fleece; let it now be dry only on the fleece, but on all the ground let there be dew.’ And God did so that night. It was dry on the fleece only, but there was dew on all the ground.” He said, ‘This time let’s let the fleece be dry and everything around it be wet.’ It happened.

Judges 7:1-2, “Then Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) and all the people who were with him rose early and encamped beside the well of Harod, so that the camp of the Midianites was on the north side of them by the hill of Moreh in the valley. And the Lord said to Gideon, ‘The people who are with you are too many for Me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel claim glory for itself against Me, saying, “My own hand has saved me.”’”

God told Gideon to get the people together. Gideon got them together and God told him the people were too many. ‘You have too many, too big an army.’ Now Gideon didn’t think he had one big enough, but God said, ‘I think your army is a little big.’

Verse 3, “Now therefore, proclaim in the hearing of the people, saying, “Whoever is fearful and afraid, let him turn and depart at once from Mount Gilead.” And twenty-two thousand of the people returned, and ten thousand remained.” God told him to get them all together and tell anybody who is scared to go home, so twenty-two thousand left and ten thousand remained. The ten thousand that stayed were the ones that were too scared to admit they were scared. Two-thirds of his army left. Now he thought the army was a little on the small side; but when two-thirds of them got up and left, it’s kind of like when Travis drew the line at the Alamo and nobody stepped over. You kind of get the state of things. When Gideon drew the line, two-thirds of them left. This would tend to make you a little nervous.

Verses 4-6, “And the Lord said to Gideon, ‘The people are still too many; bring them down to the water, and I will test them for you there. Then it will be, that of whom I say to you, “This one shall go with you,” the same shall go with you; “This one shall not go with you,” the same shall not go.’ So he brought the people down to the water. And the Lord said to Gideon, ‘Everyone who laps from the water with his tongue, as a dog laps, you shall set apart by himself; likewise everyone who gets down on his knees to drink.’ And the number of those who lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, was three hundred men; but all the rest of the people got down on their knees to drink water.”

God told Gideon he thought he still had too many. So he brought them down to the water. When they got down there to drink, God told him to separate them. All of those that got down and lapped water like a dog put them on one side and put the others on the other side. So when they put them together, they had nine thousand seven hundred that drank water like people and three hundred that lapped water like a dog.

Verse 7, “Then the Lord said to Gideon, ‘By the tree hundred men who lapped I will save you, and deliver the Midianites into your hand. Let all the other people go, every man to his place.’” God told him, ‘By the three hundred that have lapped will I save you. Take the three hundred that lapped water like a dog and stick them over here. That’s your army. Send the others home.’ So they left. Gideon, needless to say, was a little on the nervous side.

Verses 10-11, “‘But if you are afraid to go down, go down to the camp with Purah your servant, and you shall hear what they say; and afterward, you hands shall be strengthened to go down against the camp.’ Then he went down with Purah his servant to the outpost of the armed men who were there.”

Verses 13-14, “And when Gideon had come, there was a man telling a dream to his companion. He said, ‘I have just had a dream: To my surprise, a loaf of barley bread tumbled into the camp of Midian; it came to a tent and struck it so that it fell and overturned, and the tent collapsed.’ Then his companion answered and said, ‘This is nothing else but the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel; for into his hand God has delivered Midian and the whole camp.’”

God had him go down to the valley where the Midianites were to eavesdrop. When he eavesdropped on the Midianites, he was shocked because he found they were more scared of him than he was of them because they had been having dreams.

Verse 12, “Now the Midianites and Amalekites, all of the people of the East, were lying in the valley as numerous as locusts; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the seashore in multitude.” Gideon saw these guys, and it looked like a bunch of grasshoppers covering the hillside. He thought, ‘Oh, no, I have three hundred that lap water like a dog. God sent the other thirty-one thousand seven hundred home, and He left me with three hundred that lap water like a dog. And I have this bunch out here that I am supposed to take care of.’

Verse 15, “And so it was, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream and its interpretation, that he worshiped. He returned to the camp of Israel, and said, ‘Arise, for the Lord has delivered the camp of Midian into your hand.’” Gideon was encouraged; God was really going to take care of this.

Verse 16, “Then he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put a trumpet into every man’s hand, with empty pitchers, and torches inside the pitchers.” God had him divide the three hundred into three companies.

Verses 18-19, “‘When I blow the trumpet, I and all who are with me, then you also blow the trumpets on every side of the whole camp, and say, “The sword of the Lord and of Gideon.”’ So Gideon and the hundred men who were with him came to the outpost of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch, just as they had posted the watch; and they blew the trumpets and broke the pitchers that were in their hands.”

When Gideon blew the trumpet, they broke the pitchers, and all these lamps looked like a campfire. It looked like the Midianites were surrounded by three hundred companies of men, but it was just three hundred men—not three hundred companies of men, just three hundred scattered around. All of a sudden just out of nowhere, when they broke the pitcher, the Midianites saw lights and it was like, ‘Oh no, we are being attacked.’

Verse 20, “Then the three companies blew the trumpets and broke the pitchers—they held the torches in their left hands and the trumpets in their right hands for blowing—and they cried, ‘The sword of the Lord and of Gideon.’”

Verses 21-22, “And every man stood in his place all around the camp; and the whole army ran and cried out and fled. When the three hundred blew the trumpets, the Lord set every man’s sword against his companion throughout the whole camp; and the army fled to...” God sent a spirit of confusion in the ranks. The Midianites and Amalekites fell on top of each other and began to butcher away until they wound up virtually wiping themselves out. God gave Gideon three hundred men to defeat the whole Midianite empire. It shows what God can do. God wanted Israel to realize He was delivering them.

As we come down, we find the elders of Succoth whose attitude had been rotten to Israel.

Judges 8:4-6, “When Gideon came to the Jordan, he and the three hundred men who were with him crossed over, exhausted but still in pursuit. Then he said to the men of Succoth, ‘Please give loaves of bread to the people who follow me, for they are exhausted, and I am pursuing Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.’ And the leaders of Succoth said, ‘Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in your hand, that we should give bread to your army?’”

Verse 16, “And he took the elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness and briers, and with the he taught [disciplined] the men of Succoth.” When Gideon came back, he gave them a little “frontier justice.” He gave them a whipping with thorn switches. They got the point when it was all over.

Verses 22-23, “Then the men of Israel said to Gideon, ‘Rule over us, both you and your son, and your grandson also; for you have delivered us from the hand of Midian.’ But Gideon said to them, ‘I will not rule over you, nor shall my son rule over you; the Lord God shall rule over you.’” He said, ‘I am not going to do it.’

Verse 28, “Thus Midian was subdued before the children of Israel, so that they lifted their heads no more. And the country was quiet for forty years in the days of Gideon.”

Judges 9:1-2, “And Abimelech the son of Jerubbaal went to Shechem, to his mother’s brothers, and spoke with them and with all the family of the house of his mother’s father, saying, ‘Please speak in the hearing of all the men of Shechem: “Which is better for you, that all seventy of the sons of Jerubbaal reign over you, or that one reign over you?’” Remember that I am your own flesh and bone.”

After Gideon’s death, his son Abimelech tried to take over. He wanted to be king. It was at the death of Gideon that marked the collapse of centralized administration. Abimelech tried to take over in the area where the Canaanites were. This lasted for a few years until they were overthrown.

Verses 56-57, “Thus God repaid the wickedness of Abimelech, which he had done to his father by killing his seventy brothers. And all the evil of the men of Shechem God returned on their own heads, and on them came the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.”

Judges 10:1-3, “After Abimelech there arose to save Israel Tola the son of Puah ...He judged Israel twenty-three years; and he died and was buried in Shamir. After him arose Jair, a Gileadite; and he judged Israel twenty-two years.” Following Abimelech’s overthrow, you had Tola and Jair.

Judges 11:1-3, “Now Jephthah the Gileadite was a mighty man of valor, but he was the son of a harlot; and Gilead begot Jephthah. Gilead’s wife bore sons; and when his wife’s sons grew up, they drove Jephthah out, and said to him, ‘You shall have no inheritance in our father’s house, for you are the son of another woman.’ Then Jephthah fled from his brothers and dwelt in the land of Tob: and worthless men banded together with Jephthah and went out raiding with him.”

We read of Jephthah. He was an individual who had a rough life. He was an illegitimate son and was not accepted by the others in the family. He fled from his brethren. It was kind of a bandit crowd—Jesse James and his band of men—that’s what you had. You have to really get the picture of the book of Judges. That is what you had. You had a breakdown of law and order and centralized administration of authority. You had shootouts and gangs and Indian wars. That’s what you had all the way through the book of Judges.

Verses 4-8, “Now it came to pass after a time that the people of Ammon made war against Israel. And so it was, when the people of Ammon, made war against Israel, that the elders of Gilead went to get Jephthah from the land of Tob. Then they said to Jephthah, ‘Come and be our commander, that we may fight against the people of Ammon.’ So Jephthah said to the elders of Gilead, ‘Did you not hate me, and expel me from my father’s house? Why have you come to me now when you are in distress?’ And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, ‘That is why we have turned again to you now, that you may go with us and fight against the people of Ammon, and be our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.’”

Jephthah put things together. He was going to fight against the Ammonites who were oppressing Israel. This would be the area on the east side of the Jordan River. Then we read of his foolish vow.

Verses 30-32, “And Jephthah made a vow to the Lord, and said, ‘If You will indeed deliver the people of Ammon into my hands, then it will be that whatever comes out of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the people of Ammon, shall surely be the Lord’s, and I will offer it up as a burnt offering.’ So Jephthah advanced toward the people of Ammon to fight against them, and the Lord delivered them into his hands.”

He smote them throughout this whole area and subdued them (v. 33).

Verse 34, “When Jephthah came to his house at Mizpah, there was his daughter, coming out to meet him with timbrels and dancing, and she was his only child. Besides her he had neither son nor daughter.” About this time he realized what a stupid thing he had vowed.

The statement is made, as we read down, of exactly what happened.

Verse 39, “And it was so at the end of two months that she returned to her father, and he carried out his vow with her which he had vowed. She knew no man...” On the basis of Jewish tradition is the fact that she actually never married. She was basically shut up after this period of time.

Verses 39-40, “...And it became a custom in Israel that the daughters of Israel went four days each year to lament the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite.”

Verse 37, “Then she said to her father, ‘Let this thing be done for me: let me alone for two months, that I may go and wander on the mountains and bewail my virginity, my friends and I.’” The indication was that she was not literally put to death, but in the figurative sense, she never married. This is at least the traditional Jewish understanding of it. Whether that is exactly what happened or not, it simply leaves it as an unclear statement. But I think it demonstrates the state of things in some of the individuals. You read about Jephthah and the problems that existed.

Judges 12:4, “Now Jephthah gathered together all the men of Gilead and fought against Ephraim...” They even had civil war.

Verse 7, “And Jephthah judged Israel six years. Then Jephthah the Gileadite died and was buried in one of the cities of Gilead.”

In the aftermath of this, Ibzan, Elon and Abdon judged for a short period of time (vv. 8-15). On the one hand, Israel was fighting the Canaanites, and on the other hand, they were fighting the Ammonites.

Judges 13:1, “Again the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord delivered them into the hand of the Philistines for forty years.” The Philistines were in the south and the west. Israel fell under Philistine power for forty years, which would be from the death of Gideon until the death of Samson.

Verses 2-5, “Now there was a certain man from Zorah, of the family of the Danites, whose name was Manoah; and his wife was barren and had no children. And the Angel of the Lord appeared to the woman and said to her, ‘Indeed now, you are barren and have borne no children, but you shall conceive and bear a son. Now therefore, please be careful not to drink wine or similar drink, and not to eat any unclean thing. For behold, you shall conceive and bear a son. And no razor shall come upon his head, for the child shall be a Nazarite to God from the womb; and he shall begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines.’”

We pick up the story of Samson. Samson’s story contains quite a bit up to chapter 16. Samson was a Nazarite from his mother’s womb and was given the power of supernatural strength as a result of that. This was the basis; Samson was to be under a Nazarite vow, and God gave him a gift of supernatural strength. Samson may have been the strongest man.

Samson liked riddles. I could give you a riddle: who was both the strongest and the weakest of the men that you read of? It would have to be Samson. He, on the one hand, was very strong, and in other ways, he was very, very weak. He was very weak in character. His great weakness, of course, was his affinity and lust for Gentile women.

Judges 14:1-3, “Now Samson went down to Timnah, and saw a woman in Timnah of the daughters of the Philistines. So he went up and told his father and mother, saying, ‘I have seen a woman in Timnah of the daughters of the Philistines; now therefore, get her for me as a wife.’ Then his father and mother said to him, ‘Is there no woman among the daughters of your brethren, or among all my people, that you must go and get a wife from the uncircumcised Philistines?’ And Samson said to his father, ‘Get her for me, for she pleases me well.’”

“She pleases me well.” The Hebrew is, “She is right in my own eyes.” Remember, that’s the whole story of Judges, “every man did that, which was right in his own eyes.”

His father said, ‘Look, can’t you find someone of your own people?’ And Samson told him, ‘No, she’s the one that’s right in my own eyes. She’s the one that I want.’ With this kind of attitude, Samson was an individual whom God had to deal with to bring him to a certain point. Samson was a big brawling Irishman, a Danite. Samson had a problem; the problem was this affinity that he had for these women.

You find that, up until the end of his life, the only time Samson fought against the Philistines was when he avenged himself. One of the lessons that we need to learn is that God can sometimes use people in spite of themselves. God sometimes uses carnal individuals to accomplish His work. They do it for the wrong reasons and motives, but God has a result that he wants to come out. God was going to deliver Israel. He utilized Samson and worked to teach Samson a lesson in the meantime. Samson ultimately learned that lesson. Samson trusted his strength. Yet, in reality, in the things that were really important, Samson was very, very weak. He kept going back to this weakness time after time.

Samson got mad because he wanted this woman. She was obviously not the kind of person he should have married, but Samson wanted her. He saw her and he liked her. Samson proposed a riddle. He put a contest with these Philistine men. They wanted to win; so they put pressure on his wife to tell them what the riddle was.

Judges 14:16, “Then Samson’s wife wept on him, and said, ‘You only hate me! You do not love me! You have posed a riddle to the sons of my people, but you have not explained it to me.’ And he said to her, ‘Look, I have not explained it to my father or my mother; so should I explain it to you?’”

She wept before him and said, ‘You don’t love me.’ She nagged away until he told her (v. 17). She explained the riddle to the Philistine men, and they won the bet.

Verse 18, “... And he said to them: ‘If you had not plowed with my heifer, you would not have solved my riddle!’” He knew what his wife had been up to.

Verses 19-20, “Then the Spirit of the Lord came upon him mightily, and he went down to Ashkelon and killed thirty of their men, took their apparel, and gave the changes of clothing to those who had explained the riddle. So his anger was aroused, and he went back up to his father’s house. And Samson’s wife was given to his companion, who had been his best man.” He was mad and didn’t go back; so they gave his wife to someone else.

Judges 15:1-2, “And after a while, in the time of wheat harvest, it happened that Samson visited his wife with a young goat. And he said, ‘Let me go in to my wife, into her room.’ But her father would not permit him to go in. Her father said, ‘I really thought that you thoroughly hated her, therefore I gave her to your companion....’”

A little while later, Samson decided he was going to go and make up, and he found out that his wife was now living with somebody else. A really fine situation he’d gotten himself involved with. So now he’s mad again. When he got mad, he was ready to take vengeance. So he caught three hundred foxes, took firebrands and tied these foxes’ tails together. He put a firebrand in the midst of the two tails and turned them loose (vv. 4-5). They burned up all the corn of the Philistines, and the Philistines were mad. So you have this kind of strife going back and forth.

Verse 15, “He found a fresh jawbone of a donkey, reached out his hand and took it, and killed a thousand men with it.”

Verse 20, “And he judged Israel twenty years in the days of the Philistines.”

Judges 16:1, “Then Samson went to Gaza and saw a harlot there, and went in to her.” This was the way he was.

Verses 2-3, “When the Gazites were told, ‘Samson has come here!’ they surrounded the place and lay in wait for him all night at the gate of the city. They were quiet all night, saying, ‘In the morning, when it is daylight, we will kill him.’ And Samson lay low till midnight; then he arose at midnight, took hold of the doors of the gate of the city and the two gateposts, pulled them up, bar and all, put them on his shoulders, and carried them to the top of the hill that faces Hebron.” So he tears the gates off when they try to lock him in. You know the story.

Then he meets up with delightful Delilah, and again the same old thing. She, of course, betrays him and he’s taken prisoner. His hair is cut, and now God allows him to learn a lesson.

Judges 16:21, “Then the Philistines took him and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza. They bound him with bronze fetters, and he became a grinder in the prison.” They took Samson and put out his eyes. For a period of time, they tied him up to a gristmill like an ox to push this thing around and grind the grain. While he was in that state, undoubtedly, he had a lot of time to think. He couldn't even look at anything. He was blind and was tied up. All he could do was walk in a circle all day long, pushing this big heavy stone around and around.

If you've ever seen these old gristmills, they had a grinding stone, one on top of another. They would have a post attached to it and would usually have an ox that would simply walk around and around. Well, they had Samson tied to it, and all he could do was walk around and around in a circle, grinding grain, blind—day in and day out, month in and month out. He had a lot of time to think.

Finally they brought him in and were going to make sport of him (v. 25). All the leadership of the Philistines was there in this temple (v. 27).

Verse 28, "Then Samson called to the Eternal, saying, 'O Lord God, remember me, I pray! Strengthen me, I pray, just this once, O God, that I may with one blow take vengeance on the Philistines for my two eyes.'" Samson had come to a point of repentance. God gave him the strength, and he collapsed the temple. He pushed the two center supports out, and when they collapsed, the whole roof fell in and everybody there was slaughtered (vv. 29-30). This put a stop, temporarily, to the power of the Philistines.

That really runs the story, in terms of chronology, through Samson who was contemporary with Samuel. We will pick up that story in Samuel.

Joshua chapters 17—21 give us some insets.

Joshua 17 talks about a man from Mount Ephraim whose name was Micah. He decided he was going to hire a priest. He met up with this fellow (v. 9).

Joshua 17:10, "Micah said to him, 'Dwell with me, and be a father and a priest to me, and I will give you ten shekels of silver per year, a suit of clothes, and your sustenance.' So the Levite went in." He was going to hire a preacher for himself. It shows you the situation. 'Boy, I am going to be in good shape now; I am going to have a Levite being my priest.'

Verse 5, "The man Micah had a shrine, and made an ephod and household idols; and he consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest." He had made some little idols. He had his sons doing the job, but when he saw a real live Levite come along, he thought, 'Well, I'll hire one of those.'

Joshua 18:1, "In those days there was no king in Israel..." So they came along and met up with this priest and said, 'Hey, come with us.'

Verses 19-20, "And they said to him, 'Be quiet, put your hand over your mouth, and come with us; be a father and a priest to us. Is it better for you to be a priest to the household of one man, or that you be a priest to a tribe and a family in Israel?' And the priest's heart was glad..." He said, 'Boy, I have a better job.' He got a calling to a little better church.

Kind of reminds you, if you have ever associated with some of the Protestant churches, you can always tell when the preachers knew that God was calling them. That was when they got a bigger church with a better salary offered to them. They could always hear the Lord's voice then. They knew He was calling when the salary went up and the church was a little bit bigger. They knew He must be in it. That was the situation here.

The tribe of Dan went into idolatry right at the very beginning. This was the situation.

Verses 30-31, "Then the children of Dan set up for themselves the carved image; and Jonathan the son of Gershom, the son of Manasseh, and his sons were priest to the tribe of Dan until the day of the captivity of the land. So they set up for themselves Micah's carved image which he made, all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh." This was the situation.

The term "Manasseh" in v. 30, if you look it up in any of the commentaries, is not Manasseh in the original. It is Moses. Gershom was Moses' son. This is Moses' grandson. The Jews were so embarrassed about that, they added a little "n" up at the top, not as a part of the word, but just as like an addendum. So when they read it in the synagogue, they would read Manasseh instead of Moses. They preserved in the text Moshe, but they inserted the letter up above the word. When they read it, they read it as Manasseh because they felt like it was an embarrassment to Moses to have his grandson be the first one to go into idolatry. So they decided to amend it. But if you go back and check the genealogy, Gershom was Moses' son, and any of the commentaries will bring that out.

Judges 19:1, "And it came to pass in those days, when there was no king in Israel..." You find this situation. It describes the religious state of things. The Levites weren't doing their job. That is made plain in chapters 17—19.

In Judges 20, you had serious problems of homosexuality that had become apparent, and almost the whole tribe of Benjamin was wiped out because of that.

You find, in Judges 21, a kind of conclusion to the story; the survivors of the Benjamite raid were allowed to go down and take wives. There was just the confusion, the strife and anarchy, all of the problems that existed in the nation.

The summary of the whole thing was Judges 21:25, “In those days there was no king in Israel; every man did that which was right in his own eyes.” People were simply doing their own thing. They did what pleased them. They were not out to please God; they were out to please themselves. That kind of state of things describes the confusion and strife of the book of Judges over and over.

There are lessons that we have to learn, lessons of government. What happens, what are the results, when there isn’t strong leadership? There is anarchy and things tend to fall apart. There are lessons of human nature, history, many, many lessons that are to be derived from the book of Judges.

To really get the picture, you have to put yourself back in the concept of the Wild West, the frontier, because that’s what it was. It was the settling of a nation, the time of the pioneers. It was the time of the carving out of a nation. It was analogous to the time early in the history of this country when the settlers were coming in, fighting the Indian wars and all of the strife and turmoil that went on among and between them. That’s the story of the book of Judges. They were people who had not learned the lesson that God had for them, and God allowed certain things to become apparent.

With this we have now completed the five books of the law and the books of Joshua and Judges. We will now go through Samuel, Kings and Chronicles in kind of a harmonized version. Samuel and Kings are chronological; the story starts in I Samuel and continues through the end of II Kings. Chronicles parallels Samuel and Kings and tells the story from a different vantage point. As we go through, we are going to go through by sections. The first portion will deal with the first nine chapters of Chronicles and the first fifteen chapters of I Samuel which is basically the history of Israel between the end of the book of Judges and, let’s say, the time of Eli and Samuel, and on up to just prior to David’s kingship. So it will give us—as we begin to go through that section and over the course of the next few Bible studies that we will complete—an overview of the historical survey of the Old Testament.

Old Testament Series—I Samuel 1—15 and I

I & II Samuel and I & II Kings are a story flow. They are known as the four books of the kingdom—the First Book of Samuel, otherwise called the First Book of the Kings; the Second Book of Samuel, otherwise called the Second Book of the Kings; the First Book of the Kings, commonly called the Third Book of the Kings; the Second Book of the Kings, commonly called the Fourth Book of the Kings. They were one book that consisted of four volumes. Samuel and Kings were written to continue the historical information after Joshua and Judges.

Chronicles is different. It covers the same material, but covers it in a different way. Chronicles serves as a supplement to Samuel and Kings, not a replacement. To give you a story flow, we are harmonizing Samuel, Chronicles and Kings.

The thing you note about Chronicles is that it was written at a much later time than Samuel and Kings. Samuel and Kings had already been completed. Chronicles was prepared in the time of Ezra and Nehemiah, at the close of the Old Testament period to summarize the history of the Old Testament. It was written from a priestly standpoint centered at Jerusalem.

I & II Samuel deal with material concerning Saul and David. Chronicles zeroes in on a handful of kings. Chronicles tells us very little about the northern kingdom—Israel is only mentioned in passing. The history of the reign of King David is focused on.

Then we focus in on Solomon, Jehosaphat and Josiah. It focuses on specific periods in history to emphasize parts of the story that had not been deemed that important two hundred years earlier when Samuel and Kings had been written.

In Chronicles the historical events are presented from a religious angle, a priestly standpoint. To remind the Jews of their patriarchal origins, it gives a summary of genealogies. It summarizes information that was necessary from a historical standpoint, information that would have been otherwise lost. It served to remind the Jews of their patriarchal beginnings by tracing the genealogies all the way back to Adam.

One of the things important in the time of Ezra and Nehemiah was to establish lineage. It was important that this documentation be presented in a right way. The line from which the Messiah would come had to be documented.

Chronicles is devoted to the reign of King David. It centers in on Jerusalem as God's chosen city and the dynasty of David as God's chosen line of kings. Chronicles focused in on the Covenant God made with David. It served to point out to the Jews the falseness of the Samaritan's claim which said the worship of God did not have to be centered in Jerusalem. Remember the question the woman at the well asked Christ?

John 4:20-23, "Our fathers worshiped on this mountain, and you Jews say that in Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship. Jesus said to her, 'Woman, believe Me, the hour is coming when you will neither on this mountain, nor in Jerusalem, worship the Father. You worship what you do not know; we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews. But the hour is coming, and now is, when true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and truth; for the Father is seeking such to worship Him.'" This argument was still going on at the time of Christ.

Romans 3:1-2, "What advantage then has the Jew, or what is the profit of circumcision? Much in every way! Chiefly because to them were committed the oracles of God." The Jews were the ones responsible for preserving the Hebrew (Masoretic) text. This is where you look for the authoritative information, not the Samaritan text.

Chronicles was written to emphasize to the people at the time between the testaments (the fifth century B.C. to the time of Christ, a four hundred to five hundred year period), whom they needed to look to. It was written during a time of competing claims of who represented God. It was written to explain to the Jews from generation to generation why it was they needed to look to Jerusalem and the authority there as representative of God, and not the authority somewhere else that may claim they represented God.

Samuel wrote the early part of I Samuel, basically that part on up until his death. It was continued by others in prophetic office. Isaiah is credited among the Jews as writing part of it. Jeremiah evidently put the finishing touches on it.

Samuel and Kings along with Joshua and Judges constitute that part known as the Former Prophets. They give us a narrative of the history of Israel and Judah. All history has been prophecy, and all prophecy will be history. It's just a matter of your time frame.

Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and the twelve Minor Prophets are the Latter Prophets.

Chronicles gives a summation of the whole Old Testament. Ezra wrote it at the time of the restoration. The book of Ezra picks up the story where Chronicles leaves off.

I Chronicles 2, 3, and 4 give a lot of detailed information on genealogy. The Jews were coming back from Babylonian captivity. They needed to know where their roots were—the connection they had with the past. From the time Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah (the first captivity) until the time when the Jews began to return was basically seventy years. (It has been seventy years since World War I, and people don't have a clear memory). The Jews were dislocated and taken to Babylon. The younger generation was coming back, the younger people who were born in Babylon. It was their grandparents who had come from Judah. The younger generation was coming back to Judah. This was an arduous trip.

Some portions of the Bible have had more importance for certain periods of time. We wonder why all these genealogies are stuck in there. It is perhaps more important for us to understand Matthew 24 than to understand the intricacies of I Chronicles 23 and 24. But for the Jews, it was very important. All portions of the Bible are important—they all have importance, but sometimes some parts had greater importance at certain periods of time. Matthew 24 would not have been important to them; it was not even written.

The Jews that returned needed a sense of continuity; how were they related to the generations that came before. It provides us a framework of understanding. It gives us some details that do have significance in prophecy and details how the Bible fits together.

I Chronicles 5:1-2 is important, "Now the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel—he was indeed the firstborn, but because he defiled his father's bed, his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel, so that the genealogy is not listed according to the birthright; yet Judah prevailed over his brothers, and from him came a ruler, although the birthright was Joseph's—"

There was a distinction between the birthright and the scepter. This is spelled out. It was information that would have been taken for granted, but now it needed to be spelled out. That needed to be clarified or people simply would not have understood.

I Chronicles 6 provides information concerning the Levites, the genealogy of the Levites.

I Chronicles 7-8 list various tribes, the genealogy of Saul (8:33).

I Chronicles 9:1, "So all Israel was recorded by genealogies, and indeed, they were inscribed in the book of the kings of Israel...."

Verses 2-34 go back and give us the story of things they reconstituted in the temple. These things had been established for many years, but there had been a break for many years. These things were actually established all the way back to King David and Samuel. By the time of Ezra and Nehemiah, you are well over a hundred years after the final destruction of Jerusalem. People came on the scene and simply didn't understand. (We don't understand the way things were functioning during the time of the War Between the States.)

I Samuel 1:1 (KJV), "Now there was a certain man of Ramathaim-Zophim, of mount Ephraim, and his name was Elkanah the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of Zuph, and Ephrathite." He is called an Ephrathite.

In I Chronicles 6:27, his genealogy is given. He was a Levite, not an Ephraimite. It means "Ephrah," the ancient name for Bethlehem. I call it to your attention because in some cases it is translated "Ephraimite" (NKJV, "Ephraimite").

Verses 3-5, "This man went up from his city yearly to worship and sacrifice to the Lord of hosts in Shiloh...And whenever the time came for Elkanah to make an offering, he would give portions to Peninnah his wife and to all her sons and daughter. But to Hannah he would give a double portion, for he loved Hannah, although the Lord had closed her womb."

Verses 10-12, "And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed to the Lord and wept in anguish. Then she made a vow and said, 'O Lord of hosts, if You will indeed look on the affliction of your maidservant and remember me, and not forget your maidservant, but will give your maidservant a male child, then I will give him to the Lord all the days of his life, and no razor shall come upon his head.' And it happened, as she continued praying before the Lord, that Eli watched her mouth." Hannah vowed a vow. He would be a Nazarite from his mother's womb.

Verse 17, "Then Eli answered and said, 'Go in peace, and the God of Israel grant your petition which you have asked of Him.'"

Verse 20, "So it came to pass in the process of time that Hannah conceived and bore a son, and called his name Samuel, saying, 'Because I have asked for him from the Lord.'"

Verse 24, "Now when she had weaned him, she took him up with her, with three bulls, one ephah of flour, and a skin of wine, and brought him to the house of the Lord in Shiloh, And the child was young." He was probably four years old before he was completely weaned. He was brought to the temple in Shiloh, Verses 25-28, "Then they slaughtered a bull, and brought the child to Eli. And she said, 'O my lord! As your soul lives, my lord, I am the woman who stood by you here, praying to the Lord. For this child I prayed, and the Lord has granted me my petition, which I asked of Him. Therefore I also have lent him to the Lord.' So they worshiped the Lord there." He grew up there and was a servant to Eli.

I Samuel 2:18, "But Samuel ministered before the Lord, even as a child, wearing a linen ephod." He served there in the tabernacle from boyhood up.

At this time we come across a real problem, the situation with Eli.

I Samuel 2:12, "Now the sons of Eli were corrupt [KJV, "sons of Belial"—sons of the devil]; they did not know the Lord."

Verses 13-17, "And the priests' custom with the people was that when any man offered a sacrifice, the priest's servant would come with a three-pronged flesh-hook in his hand while the meat was boiling. Then he would thrust it into the pan, or kettle, or caldron, or pot; and the priest would take for himself all that the flesh-hook brought up. So they did in Shiloh to all the Israelites who came there. Also, before they burned the fat, the priest's servant would come and say to the man who sacrificed, 'Give meat for roasting to the priest, for he will not take boiled meat from you but raw.' And if the man said to him, 'They should really burn the fat first; then you may take as much as your heart desires,' he would then answer him, 'No, but you must give it me now; and if not, I will take it by force.' Therefore the sin of the young men was very great before the Lord, for men abhorred the offering of the Lord."

The Scriptures say they were the sons of the devil, reprobates. They were not following the instruction that God had given the Levites. They were misappropriating what belonged to God. They came in and took what they wanted, generally the best part and before they burned the fat. They weren't interested in serving God. They were interested in what they could get.

What kind of respect do you think people had for the priesthood and the tabernacle? People abhorred it. It gave people a bad attitude. Were the people in authority setting the right example? No. What would you have done if you had lived at the time of Eli? Go out and worship Dagon? These things are here for our admonition.

There were people in the 1970s that used the excuse about what some people in high places were doing to just go off and do something else. The point is God will take care of the problem. You don't follow the lousy example. As Christ said, respect the Pharisee's authority, but do not after their works (Matthew 23:2-3). They are not practicing what they preached. If somebody is a hypocrite, that is human nature. What if what the hypocrite said was right? Do what he said that was right, but don't do what he did, Christ said.

Verses 22-24, "Now Eli was very old; and he heard everything his sons did to all Israel, and how they lay with the women who assembled at the door of the tabernacle of meeting. So he said to them, 'Why do you do such things? For I hear of your evil dealings from all the people. No, my sons! For it is not a good report that I hear, you make the Lord's people transgress.'" He said, 'Now you boys know better than that; you are setting a bad example.' But he didn't do anything about it. You know what God had to say about that?

Verse 29, "'Why do you kick at My sacrifice and My offering which I have commanded in My habitation, and honor your sons more than Me, to make yourself fat with the best of all the offerings of Israel My people?'" God said, 'You honor your sons above Me. You have placed them above Me. They should have been taken out and stoned. You have allowed this situation to continue on and on and on.' Eli was not doing these things himself, but he tolerated it. He made excuses for them.

God allowed it to go on for years before he did something about it. God prepared someone—Samuel. They were slain by the Philistines (4:11). When Eli heard the news, he fell backwards and died from a heart attack (4:18).

I Samuel 3:19-20, "So Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him and let none of his words fall to the ground. And all Israel from Dan to Beersheba knew that Samuel had been established as a prophet of the Lord." God placed Samuel there. God will deal with things, but He will do so in His time.

What would you have done if you had been there? Yes, keep your eyes on your daughters; take your offering. If the priests steal, God will take care of it. God is capable of taking care of Himself. That priesthood was blotted out forever. God can take care of things. These events parallel the time of Judges.

Eli and Samson were contemporaries. Even if you don't have anyone to look up to and respect, even in that kind of situation, here was Samuel. It's possible to do what you ought to do even in the context of others who are not. Samuel did not use the excuse to go and do what Eli's sons were doing. He grew up in that circumstance, and he believed what was taught at the temple, not what was practiced.

When Samuel was a little boy about age ten or twelve, God ceased talking to Eli who was the high priest. This was a terrible insult to the high priest.

1 Samuel 3:1-6, "Then the boy Samuel ministered to the Lord before Eli. And the word of the Lord was rare in those days [KJV, "the words of the Lord were very precious"]; there was no widespread revelation. And it came to pass at that time, while Eli was lying down in his place, and when his eyes had begun to grow so dim that he could not see, and before the lamp of God went out in the tabernacle of the Lord where the ark of God was, and while Samuel was lying down to sleep, that the Lord called Samuel. And he answered, 'Here I am!' So he ran to Eli and said, 'Here I am, for you called me.' And he said, 'I did not call; lie down again;' and he went and lay down. And the Lord called yet again, 'Samuel!' So Samuel arose and went to Eli, and said, 'Here I am, for you called me.' And he answered, 'I did not call, my son; lie down again.'" Samuel thought it was Eli talking.

Verses 7-8, "(Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, nor was the word of the Lord yet revealed to him.) And the Lord called Samuel again the third time. Then he arose and went to Eli, and said, 'Here I am, for you did call me.' Then Eli perceived that the Lord had called the boy." It dawned on Eli that God was talking to Samuel.

Verses 11-14, "Then the Lord said to Samuel; 'Behold, I will do something in Israel at which both ears of everyone who hears it will tingle. In that day I will perform against Eli all that I have spoken concerning his house, from beginning to end. For I have told him that I will judge his house forever for the iniquity which he knows, because his sons made themselves vile, and he did not restrain them. And therefore I have sworn to the house of Eli that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be atoned for by sacrifice or offering forever.'" Finally, God told Samuel what He wanted him to tell Eli.

Verse 18, "Then Samuel told him everything, and hid nothing from him. And he said, 'It is the Lord. Let Him do what seems good to Him.'"

Verses 19-21, "So Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him and let none of his words fall to the ground. And all Israel from Dan to Beersheba knew that Samuel had been established as a prophet of the Lord. Then the Lord appeared again in Shiloh. For the Lord revealed Himself to Samuel in Shiloh by the word of the Lord."

Samuel had a reputation as he grew up. He was different than the others. He had the respect of the people because he did what he was supposed to do. In the midst of corruption, he quietly did what he had to do. It is an important message for all people at all times. God puts these things here and shows us how we ought to conduct ourselves if we ever find ourselves in these circumstances.

1 Samuel 4:3, "And when the people had come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, 'Why has the Lord defeated us today before the Philistines? Let us bring the ark of the covenant of the Lord from Shiloh to us, that when it comes among us it may save us from the hand of our enemies.'" They regarded it as a good-luck charm.

Verse 7, "So the Philistines were afraid, for they said, 'God has come into the camp!' And they said, 'Woe to us! For such a thing has never happened before.'" They were superstitious about the ark. They remembered the Egyptians (v. 8).

Verses 10-11, "So the Philistines fought, and Israel was defeated, and every man fled to his tent. There was a very great slaughter, and there fell of Israel thirty thousand foot soldiers. Also the ark of God was captured; and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, died."

Verses 15-18, "Eli was ninety-eight years old, and his eyes were so dim that he could not see. Then the man said to Eli, 'I am he who came from the battle. And I fled today from the battle line.' And he said, 'What happened, my son?' So the messenger answered and said, 'Israel has fled before the Philistines, and there has been a great slaughter among the people. Also your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead; and the ark of God has been captured.' Then it happened, when he made mention of the ark of God, that Eli fell off the seat backward by the side of the gate; and his neck was broken and he died, for the man was old and heavy. And he had judged Israel forty years."

1 Samuel 5:1-4, "Then the Philistines took the ark of God and brought it from Ebenezer to Ashdod. When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of Dagon and set it by Dagon. And when the people of Ashdod arose early in the morning, there was Dagon, fallen on its face to the earth before the ark of the Lord. So they took Dagon and set it in its place again. And when they arose early the next morning, there was Dagon, fallen on its face to the ground before the ark of the Lord. The head of Dagon and both the palms of its hands were broken off on the threshold; only the torso of Dagon was left of it.”

Dagon had fallen off his throne. It had bowed down to worship and fell over. Only the stump was left.

Verse 5, “Therefore neither the priests of Dagon nor any who come into Dagon’s house tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod to this day.” Ever heard of it being bad luck to step on a threshold? This is where that came from; it became a pagan custom.

Verses 6-7, “But the hand of the Lord was heavy on the people of Ashdod, and He ravaged them and struck them with tumors, both Ashdod and its territory. And when the men of Ashdod saw how it was, they said, ‘The ark of the God of Israel must not remain with us, for His hand is harsh toward us and Dagon our god.’” They decided they didn’t want the ark to stay there.

Verses 8-12, “Therefore they sent and gathered to themselves all the lords of the Philistines, and said, ‘What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel?’ And they answered, ‘Let the ark be carried away to Gath.’ So they carried the ark of the God of Israel away. And so it was, after they had carried it away, that the hand of the Lord was against the city with a very great destruction, and He struck the men of the city, both small and great, and tumors [KJV, “emerods”] broke out on them. Therefore they sent the ark of God to Ekron. So it was, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, ‘They have brought the ark of the God of Israel to us, to kill us and our people.’ So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, ‘Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go back to its own place, so that it does not kill us and our people.’ For there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city; the hand of God was very heavy there. And the men who did not die were stricken with the tumors, and the cry of the city went up to heaven.”

They decided they didn’t want the ark to stay there.

I Samuel 6:1, “Now the ark of the Lord was in the country of the Philistines seven months.” It was there seven months. How do we get rid of it? They could understand a little bit. They said, ‘We’d better send it back with a trespass offering along with it.’

Verses 4-7, “Then they said, ‘What is the trespass offering which we shall return to Him?’ They answered, ‘Five golden tumors and five golden rats, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines. For the same plague was on all of you and on your lords. Therefore you shall make images of your tumors and images of your rats that ravage the land, and you shall give glory to the God of Israel; perhaps He will lighten His hand from you from your gods and from your land. Why then do you harden your hearts as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? When He did mighty things among them, did they not let the people go, that they might depart? Now therefore, make a new cart, take two milk cows which have never been yoked, and hitch the cows to the cart; and take their calves home, away from them. Then take the ark of the Lord and set it on the cart; Then send it away, and let it go. And watch: if it goes up the road to its own territory, to Beth Shemesh, then He has done us this great evil. But if not, then we shall know that it is not His hand that struck us; it was by chance that it happened to us.’ Then the men did so, they took two milk cows and hitched them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. And they set the ark of the Lord on the cart, and the chest with the gold rats and the images of their tumors. Then the cows headed straight for the road to Beth Shemesh, and went along the highway, lowing as they went, and did not turn aside to the right hand or the left...”

They didn’t know where their calves were. Can you imagine a cow not turning to the left or right? Sometimes God uses things in a humorous way to illustrate a point. These two old cows had enough sense to follow God’s instructions, just as God used the donkey to talk to Baalam.

Verses 15, “The Levites took down the ark of the Lord and the chest that was with it, in which were the articles of gold, and put them on the large stone. Then the men of Beth Shemesh offered burnt offerings and made sacrifices the same day to the Lord.”

Verses 18-21, “even as far as the large stone of Abel on which they set the ark of the Lord, which stone remains this day in the field of Joshua of Beth Shemesh. Then He struck the men of Beth Shemesh, because they had looked into the ark of the Lord. He struck fifty thousand and seventy men of the people, and the people lamented because the Lord had struck the people with a great slaughter. And the men of Beth Shemesh said, ‘Who is able to stand before this holy Lord God? And to whom shall it go up from us?' So they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kirjath Jearim, saying, 'The Philistines have brought back the ark of the Lord; come down and take it up with you.'"

They treated the ark with a lack of reverence. Not even the Philistines had treated the ark with reverence. The Israelites should have known better. The Levites surely realized that God had warned the Israelites that death would come to any who looked into it or touched it except by its carrying poles on the shoulder. There was a lack of reverence. The ark represented God's throne. Such disrespect was bound to bring on an awful penalty.

I Samuel 7:1-13, "Then the men of Kirjath Jearim came and took the ark of the Lord, and brought it into the house of Abinadab on the hill, and consecrated Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the Lord. So it was that the ark remained in Kirjath Jearim a long time; it was there twenty years. And all the house of Israel lamented after the Lord. Then Samuel spoke to all the house of Israel, saying, 'If you return to the Lord with all your hearts, then put away the foreign gods and the Ashtoreths from among you, and prepare your hearts for the Lord, and serve Him only; and He will deliver you from the hand of the Philistines.' So the children of Israel put away the Baals and the Ashtoreths, and served the Lord only. And Samuel said, 'Gather all Israel to Mizpah, and I will pray to the Lord for you.' So they gathered together at Mizpah, drew water, and poured it out before the Lord. And they fasted that day, and said there, 'We have sinned against the Lord.' And Samuel judged the children of Israel at Mizpah. Now when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel had gathered together at Mizpah, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard of it, they were afraid of the Philistines. So the children of Israel said to Samuel, 'Do not cease to cry out to the Lord our God for us, that He may save us from the hand of the Philistines.' And Samuel took a suckling lamb and offered it as a whole burnt offering to the Lord. Then Samuel cried out to the Lord for Israel, and the Lord answered him. Now as Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel. But the Lord thundered with a loud thunder upon the Philistines that day, and so confused them that they were overcome before Israel. And the men of Israel went out to Mizpah and pursued the Philistines, and drove them back as far as below Beth Car. Then Samuel took a stone and set it up between Mizpah and Shen, and called its name Ebenezer, saying, 'Thus far the Lord has helped us.' So the Philistines were subdued, and they did not come anymore into the territory of Israel. And the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel."

Verse 15, "So Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life." I would call your attention to something here. When Samson collapsed the walls of the Philistine temple, it marked the collapse of the Philistine power and the beginning of Samuel's judgeship. Samson and Samuel were contemporaries.

I Samuel 8:1-7, "Now it came to pass when Samuel was old that he made his sons judges over Israel. The name of his firstborn was Joel, and the name of his second, Abijah; they were judges in Beer-sheba. But his sons did not walk in his ways; they turned aside after dishonest gain, took bribes and perverted justice. Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, 'Look, you are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make for us a king to judge us like all the nations.' But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, 'Give a king to us.' So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, 'Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have not rejected you, but they have rejected Me, that I should not reign over them.'" Samuel's sons were not following his example.

Notice the logic. The reason they wanted a king was to be like everyone else. God took it personally. God said, "They have rejected Me." Notice what Samuel told them.

Verses 11-18, "And he said, 'This will be the behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take your sons and appoint them for his own chariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots...He will take your daughters to be perfumers, cooks, and bakers. And he will take the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive groves and give them to his servants. He will take a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give it to his officers and servants. And he will take your men-servants and your maidservants and your finest young men and your donkeys, and put them to his work. He will take a tenth of your sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, and the Lord will not hear you in that day.'"

"You are going to have the draft, a big government bureaucracy, a big income tax and you will gripe about those things throughout the rest of your history.’ Ever hear of the fourth tithe (vv. 15, 17)? This is what the king started. This is where the income tax started. By the time of Solomon, it was so oppressive that the people were ready to revolt. The people are still complaining about all these things.

Verse 18, “...the Lord will not hear you....” ‘You wanted it; you got it. You want to be like the nations, you will get all the problems the nations get.’

I Samuel 9:1-2, “There was a man of Benjamin whose name was Kish...And he had a son whose name was Saul, a choice and handsome young man. There was not a more handsome person than he among the children of Israel. From his shoulders upward he was taller than any of the people.” From Saul’s shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people, probably about seven feet tall. He was taller than anyone else in the country.

Verse 21 shows how Saul first met Samuel, “And Saul answered and said, ‘Am I not a Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel, and my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? Why then do you speak like this to me?’”

I Samuel 10:1, “Then Samuel took a flask of oil and poured it on his head and kissed him and said: ‘Is it not because the Lord has anointed you commander over His inheritance?’” Saul was anointed.

Verses 21-22, “When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was chosen. And Saul the son of Kish was chosen. But when they sought him, he could not be found. Therefore they inquired of the Lord further, ‘Has the man come here yet?’ And the Lord answered, ‘There he is, hidden among the equipment.’”

He went and hid in the closet. He didn’t want to get in front of anyone. He had somewhat of an inferiority complex. Instead of learning to place confidence in God, Saul dealt with his problems the wrong way. Moses had a low opinion of himself and his abilities, but Moses learned to get out of the way and let God work. Saul had a low opinion, but he got in the way and tried to cover his feelings of inferiority by bluffing. He wound up in a horrible state with demon problems, and he died of his own hand. A person who has this kind of problem can go two ways. Moses handled it properly. Saul was an example of an individual who did not do so.

Verse 24, “And Samuel said to all the people, ‘Do you see him whom the Lord has chosen, that there is no one like him among all the people?’

So all the people shouted and said, ‘Long live the king!’” We have Saul’s coronation. The people were sent away (vv. 25-26).

I Samuel 11 tells the story of Saul getting stirred up to action and going out and winning the battle.

I Samuel 11:14-15, “Then Samuel said to the people, ‘Come, let us go to Gilgal and renew the kingdom there.’ So all the people went to Gilgal, and there they made Saul king before the Lord in Gilgal. There they made sacrifices of peace offerings before the Lord, and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced greatly.” Saul was confirmed king; all tribes were united under Saul’s leadership. They rejoiced greatly.

In I Samuel 12, Samuel begins to recount the history and to remind them of the ups and downs.

Verses 12-13, “‘And when you saw that Nahash king of the Ammonites came against you, you said to me, “No, but a king shall reign over us,” when the Lord your God was your King. Now therefore, here is the king whom you have chosen and whom you have desired. And take note, the Lord has set a king over you.’” God gave them an impressive-looking king. He looked like a king should look. God gave them what they asked for. Later God chose a man after His own heart (I Samuel 13:14; Acts 13:22). David was not impressive on the outside but on the inside.

Verses 19-25, “And all the people said to Samuel, ‘Pray for your servants to the Lord your God, that we may not die; for we have added to all our sins the evil of asking a king for ourselves.’ Then Samuel said to the people, ‘Do not fear. You have done all this wickedness; yet do not turn aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart. And do not turn aside, for then you would go after empty things, which cannot profit or deliver, for they are nothing. For the Lord will not forsake His people, for His great name’s sake, because it has pleased the Lord to make you His people. Moreover, as for me, far be it from me that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you; but I will teach you the good and the right way. Only fear the Lord, and serve Him in truth with all your heart; for consider what great things He has done for you. But if you still do wickedly, you shall be swept away, both you and your king.’”

The first half of Saul’s reign was active; the second half was inactive. I Samuel 13 was the twenty-year period of his active reign.

The second twenty-year period was an inactive reign.

I Samuel 13:2-3, “Saul chose for himself three thousand men of Israel. Two thousand were with Saul in Michmash and in the mountains of Bethel, and a thousand were with Jonathan in Gibeah of Benjamin. The rest of the people he sent away, every man to his tent. And Jonathan attacked the garrison of the Philistines that was in Geba, and the Philistines heard of it. Then Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, ‘Let the Hebrews hear!’”

Verse 5, “Then the Philistines gathered together to fight with Israel...”

Verses 6-9, “When the men of Israel saw that they were in danger (for the people were distressed), then the people hid in caves, in thickets, in rocks, in holes, and in pits. And some of the Hebrews crossed over the Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul, he was still in Gilgal, and all the people followed him trembling. Then he waited seven days, according to the time set by Samuel. But Samuel did not come to Gilgal; and the people were scattered from him. So Saul said, ‘Bring a burnt offering and peace offerings here to me.’ And he offered the burnt offering.”

We come to the first great sin that Saul committed as king. Samuel was late. The point was Saul should have waited, even if everybody left and there was nobody but Saul and God. He offered the burnt offering himself, which was contrary to the Law.

Verses 10-12, “Now it happened, as soon as he had finished offering the burnt offering, that Samuel came; and Saul went out to meet him, that he might greet him. And Samuel said, ‘What have you done?’ And Saul said, ‘When I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that you did not come within the days appointed, and that the Philistines gathered together at Michmash, then I said, “the Philistines will now come down on me at Gilgal, and I have not made supplication to the Lord.” Therefore I felt compelled, and offered a burnt offering.’”

Just about the time he was finished, Samuel showed up. ‘You were late; so I thought I would take over.’

Verses 13-14, “And Samuel said to Saul, ‘You have done foolishly. You have not kept the commandment of the Lord your God, which He commanded you. For now the Lord would have established your kingdom over Israel forever. But now your kingdom shall not continue. The Lord has sought for Himself a man after His own heart, and the Lord has commanded him to be commander over His people, because you have not kept what the Lord commanded you.’” His kingdom was not to continue.

I Samuel 14:24, “And the men of Israel were distressed that day, for Saul had placed the people under oath, saying, ‘Cursed is the man who eats any food until evening, before I have taken vengeance on my enemies.’ So none of the people tasted food.”

Verse 27, “But Jonathan had not heard his father charge the people with the oath; therefore he stretched out the end of the rod that was in his hand and dipped it in a honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his countenance brightened.” Jonathan ate some honey. You begin to see the erratic way Saul begins to function. This is a situation that shows some of the things of his character and leadership.

Verses 29-30, “But Jonathan said, ‘My father has troubled the land. Look now, how my countenance has brightened because I tasted a little of this honey. How much better if the people had eaten freely today of the spoil of their enemies, which they found! For now there would not have been a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?’”

Verses 43-45, “Then Saul said to Jonathan, ‘Tell me what you have done.’ And Jonathan told him, and said, ‘I only tasted a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand. So now I must die!’ And Saul answered, ‘God do so and more also; for you shall surely die, Jonathan.’ But the people said to Saul, ‘Shall Jonathan die, who has accomplished this great salvation in Israel? Certainly not! As the Lord lives, not one hair of his head shall fall to the ground, for he has worked with God this day.’ So the people rescued Jonathan, and he did not die.”

Verses 47-48, “So Saul established his sovereignty over Israel, and fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, against the people of Ammon, against Edom, against the kings of Zobah, and against the Philistines. Wherever he turned, he harassed them. And he gathered an army and attacked the Amalekites, and delivered Israel from the hands of those who plundered them.”

Verse 52, “Now there was fierce war with the Philistines all the days of Saul. And when Saul saw any strong man or any valiant man, he took him for himself.”

I Samuel 15:1-3, “Samuel also said to Saul, ‘The Lord sent me to anoint you king over His people, over Israel. Now therefore, heed the voice of the words of the Lord. Thus says the Lord of hosts: “I will punish what Amalek did to Israel, how he laid wait for him on the way when he came up from Egypt. Now go and attack Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and do not spare them. But kill both man and woman, infant and nursing child, ox and sheep, camel and donkey.”” The Lord said, ‘Smite the Amalekites; don’t spare anything.’ What happened?

Verse 9, “But Saul and the people spared Agag and the best of the sheep, the oxen, the fatlings, the lambs, and all that was good, and were unwilling to utterly destroy them. But everything despised and worthless, that they utterly destroyed.” He took Agag the king alive. He destroyed what he didn’t want.

Verses 10-11, “Now the word of the Lord came to Samuel, saying, ‘I greatly regret that I have set up Saul as king, for he has turned back from following Me, and has not performed My commandments.’ And it grieved Samuel, and he cried out to the Lord all night.” The Lord said, ‘It makes Me sorry I ever made him king.’

Verses 13-15, “Then Samuel went to Saul, and Saul said to him, ‘Blessed are you of the Lord! I have performed the commandment of the Lord.’ But Samuel said, ‘What then is this bleating of the sheep in my ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?’ And Saul said, ‘They have brought them from the Amalekites; for the people spared the best of the sheep and the oxen, to sacrifice to the Lord your God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.”” Saul said, ‘We are going to sacrifice them to God.’

Verse 17, “So Samuel said, ‘When you were little in your own eyes, were you not head of the tribes of Israel? And did not the Lord anoint you king over Israel?’”

Verses 20-21, “And Saul said to Samuel, ‘But I have obeyed the voice of the Lord, and gone on the mission on which the Lord sent me, and brought back Agag king of Amalek; I have utterly destroyed the Amalekites. But the people took of the plunder, sheep and oxen, the best of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice to the Lord your God in Gilgal.”” He said, ‘I have obeyed, but maybe not in every detail. The people took of the spoil.’

Verses 22-23, “Then Samuel said: ‘Has the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to heed than the fat of rams. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because you have rejected the word of the Lord, He also has rejected you from being king.”” To obey is better than sacrifice.

Verse 24, “Then Saul said to Samuel, ‘I have sinned, for I have transgressed the commandment of the Lord and your words, because I feared the people and obeyed their voices.”” Saul was not a leader but a follower.

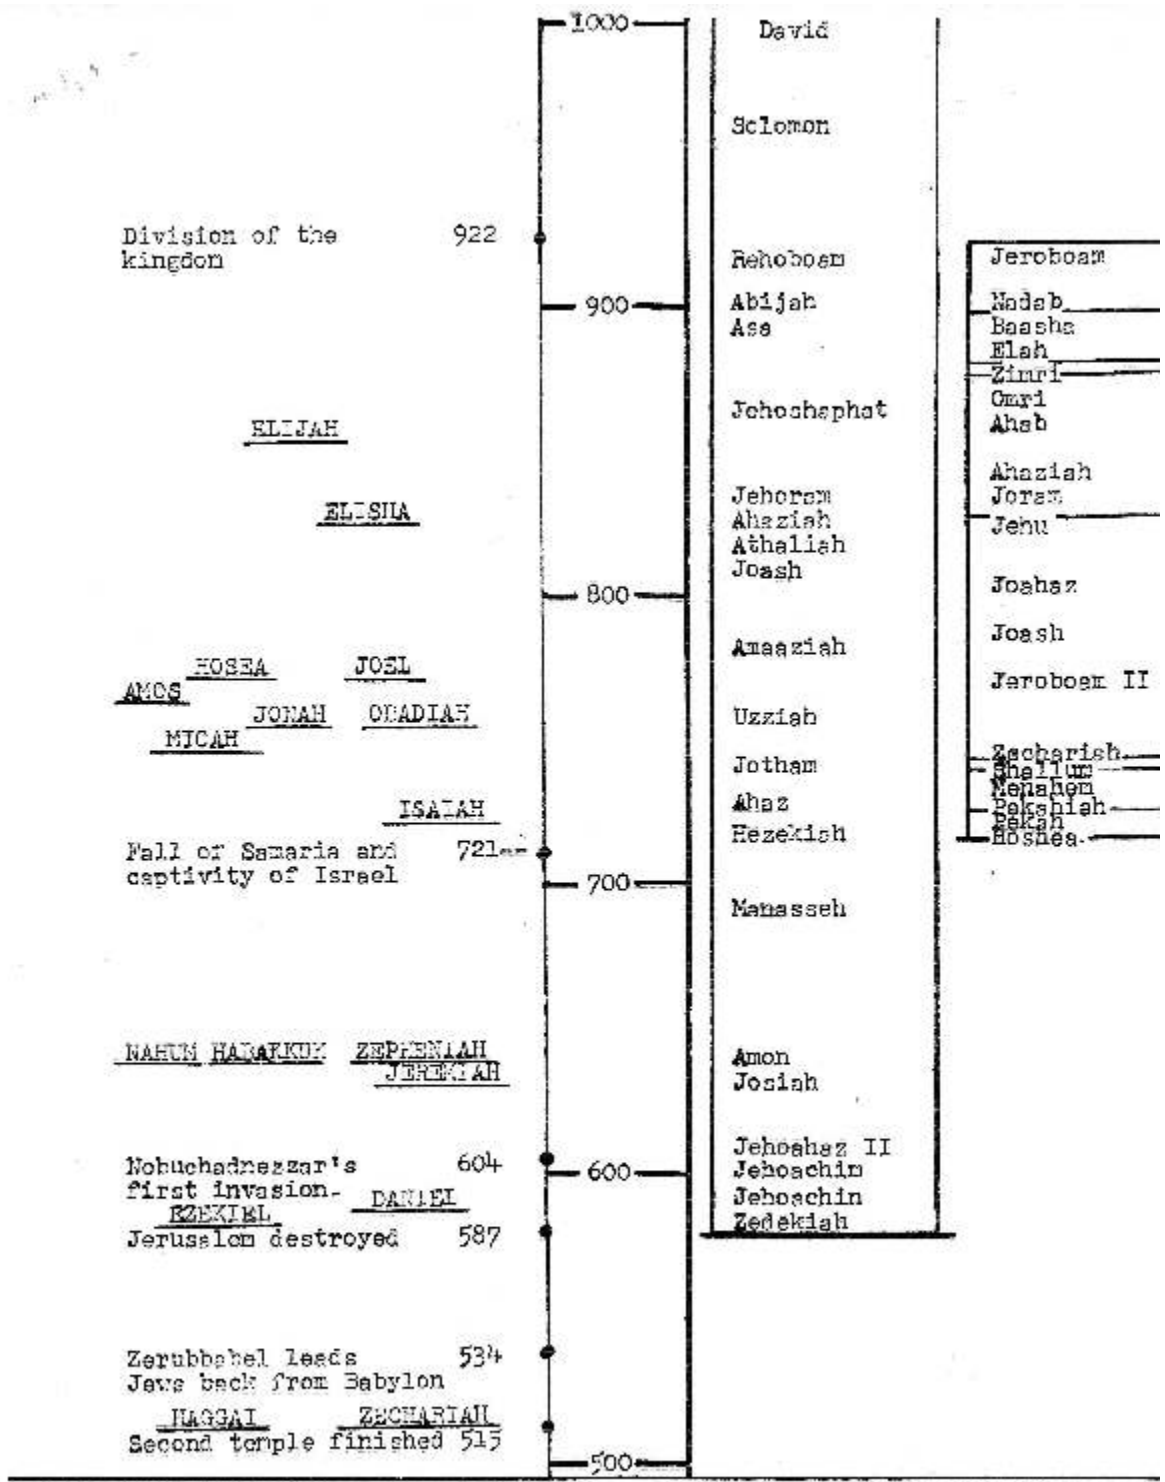

Verses 32-33, “Then Samuel said, ‘Bring Agag king of the Amalekites here to me.’ So Agag came to him cautiously. And Agag said, ‘Surely the bitterness of death is past.’ But Samuel said, ‘As your sword has made women childless, so shall your mother be childless among women.’ And Samuel hacked Agag in pieces before the Lord in Gilgal.”

Samuel executed Agag himself. Saul had not only let him live, but he had let some of his family get away because later on in the book of Esther (3:1), you read of “Haman the Agagite.” There would never have been that problem if he had done what he was told.

Verse 35, “And Samuel went no more to see Saul until the day of his death. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, and the Lord regretted that He had made Saul king over Israel.” Saul didn’t follow instructions. That was the real key, the real problem. He didn’t do what God told him to do. He had his own ideas, his own approach.

Perhaps we can get an overview of this, as people sought to take things into their own hands to solve the problems. Realize human nature remains much the same generation to generation to the extent that we learn the lessons that are recorded here. What Samuel did, what Saul did and how we might respond to certain things that happen in our lives. This is an overview of God working with Israel.

I Samuel will be completed next Bible study, and then we will begin to get into II Samuel.

Old Testament Series—I Samuel 16—31 and I Chronicles 10

We are covering the remainder of I Samuel. The chapters this evening introduce one of the most central characters in the entire Bible, and that is David. More space is devoted to David than to any other man, with the exception of Jesus Christ. The latter half of I Samuel deals with his being chosen as king and to the death of Saul. David's life can be divided into four component parts: David the shepherd boy, David the hero, David the outcast and David the king. We will, this evening, focus in on David the shepherd boy, David the hero and David the outcast.

We are introduced to David the shepherd boy as he is caring for his father's sheep and as a skillful musician playing for the king. Later as a teenager about eighteen years of age, David is the slayer of Goliath the great warrior, then the son-in-law of Saul. He went very quickly from David the hero to David the outcast, going to Ahimelech and later collecting a following. After his encounter with Saul, David dwelt among the Philistines, the point at which Saul is killed. The final thirty years of David we will cover next Bible study.

Now why did God spend so much time on the life of one individual? Undoubtedly, there are characteristics that God wants us to focus upon, that He wants us to understand and appreciate. He greatly valued David. God said David was a man after His own heart. I think that would be quite a compliment. And to say that of me or you, that is quite a compliment, a wonderful thing to have said. Why was David such an outstanding man after God's own heart? I think his most outstanding characteristic is his absolute faith in God to properly govern and to vindicate him.

We learn in I Samuel the lesson that is expressed in Psalm 34:19, "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivers him out of them all." That was a lesson that David learned. That is a lesson that we may learn through example in this portion of I Samuel. The lesson of this section is the importance of patient faith, to trust God to solve problems His way. —Patient faith.

I was reminded of the context of when I first went through this portion of material. It was a time about thirteen years ago in Corpus Christi, 1975-1976. For those of you who were around in that time, you would recognize how appropriate and important the topic of patient faith was. We were going in a direction that was ungodly. What do you do? You patiently trust God to solve problems His own way, as David did.

How important is the topic of patient faith? When everything around you is ungodly, what do you do? It was interesting what David's approach was when he was on the run from Saul. It is interesting what David did in that context. Saul wanted to "nail David's hide" to the wall, literally. He ducked; he stayed out of Saul's way. He did not provide Saul a target to shoot at. What do you do when those in authority are after you? Seek to avoid a confrontation.

The second thing was what he didn't do. He didn't take it into his own hands to overthrow Saul. He didn't try to resolve the problem by using human reasoning. He committed it into the hands of Him who judges righteously. Sometimes we find ourselves "under the gun" by someone wicked in authority. You don't provide a target and you don't try to overthrow them.

I Samuel 16:1, "Then the Lord said to Samuel, 'How long will you mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? Fill your horn with oil, and go; I am sending you to Jesse the Bethlehemite. For I have provided Myself a king among his sons.'" Samuel mourned for Saul. God said, 'How long are you going to mourn for Saul; I want you to go to Jesse's house.'

Verse 2, "And Samuel said, 'How can I go? If Saul hears it, he will kill me.' And the Lord said, 'Take a heifer with you, and say, 'I have come to sacrifice to the Lord.''" Samuel said, 'If Saul hears of that he will kill me.' It shows how far Saul had gotten from God. He would have killed God's prophet. He wouldn't have had any hesitation. God said to just go and tell him you are there to sacrifice for Me which he was.

Verses 3, "Then invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will show you what you shall do; you shall anoint for Me the one I name to you."

Verse 5, "And he said, 'Peaceably; I have come to sacrifice to the Lord. Sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice.'" Then he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and invited them to the sacrifice." Jesse and his sons were called to the sacrifice.

Verse 6, "So it was, when they came, that he looked at Eliab and said, 'Surely the Lord's anointed is before Him.'" When Samuel saw Eliab, the oldest, he said, 'That is he; he has to be the one. You can look at him, a striking fellow.'

Verse 7, “But the Lord said to Samuel, ‘Do not look at his appearance or at the height of his stature, because I have refused him. For the Lord does not see as man sees; for man looks at the outward appearance, but the Lord looks at the heart.’” God said, ‘Didn’t you learn that lesson the first time around when we anointed Saul? Just because he looks like a king, doesn’t mean he is a king. Don’t be impressed by outward appearance. The Lord sees what man doesn’t see. The Lord looks on the heart.’

Verse 10, “Thus Jesse made seven of his sons pass before Samuel. And Samuel said to Jesse, ‘The Lord has not chosen these.’” Seven sons came before Samuel; he said, ‘Not this one’ every time.

Verse 11, “And Samuel said to Jesse, ‘Are all the young men here?’ Then he said, ‘There remains yet the youngest, and there he is, keeping the sheep.’ And Samuel said to Jesse, ‘Send and bring him. For we will not sit down till he comes here.’”

‘Well, there is the youngest, the baby in the family.’ They didn’t even think to call him in. ‘He is tending sheep.’ Samuel told Jesse, ‘You go get him; we will not eat until he gets here.’

Verse 12, “So he sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, with bright eyes, and good-looking. And the Lord said, ‘Arise anoint him; for this is the one!’” “Ruddy” means “red hair and freckled face,” not what is thought of as typically Jewish like the royal family. That strain in Judah came through the family of David. He was not the one they would have noticed and that Samuel would have picked out.

Verse 13, “Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brothers; and the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel arose and went to Ramah.”

Verses 14-15, “But the Spirit of the Lord departed from Saul, and a distressing spirit from the Lord troubled him. And Saul’s servant said to him, ‘Surely, a distressing spirit from God is troubling you.’” An evil spirit with God’s permission troubled him, not that God afflicted him. There comes a point at which, if we open ourselves up to that influence through various moods and things, we become receptive to Satan’s influence. Saul didn’t handle his problems in a proper way and he became receptive to Satan’s influence. Because of the moods and attitudes that he allowed himself to dwell on, he became less and less receptive to God’s influence and more and more receptive to Satan’s influence. How do you become more receptive to Satan’s influence? –When you begin to reflect the moods and attitudes of Satan.

The basis is that God looked on the heart. Saul may have looked like a king; David didn’t. During this time Saul was having these problems. He was subject, increasingly, to demon influence taking advantage of these attitudes. So it was decided that they would seek out a skillful musician.

Verse 16, “Let our master now command your servants, who are before you, to seek out a man who is a skillful player on the harp; and it shall be that he will play it with his hand when the distressing spirit from God is upon you, and you shall be well.” It was decided that they would seek out a skillful musician.

Verses 17-19, “So Saul said to his servants, ‘Provide me now a man who can play well, and bring him to me.’ Then one of the servants answered and said, ‘Look, I have seen a son of Jesse the Bethlehemite, who is skillful in playing, a mighty man of valor, a man of war, prudent in speech, and a handsome person; and the Lord is with him.’ Therefore Saul sent messengers to Jesse, and said, ‘Send me your son David, who is with the sheep.’”

Verse 21, “So David came to Saul and stood before him. And he loved him greatly, and he became his armor bearer.” They brought David before Saul.

Verses 22-23, “Then Saul sent to Jesse, saying, ‘Please let David stand before me, for he has found favor in my sight.’ And so it was, whenever the spirit from God was upon Saul, that David would take a harp and play it with his hand. Then Saul would become refreshed and well, and the distressing spirit would depart from him.”

Do you know why the distressing would depart from him? Why did David, playing on a harp, make a difference? This is a very important scripture to understand as to why some music should not be listened to. Music sets a mood. I can create any mood I want to by the music I play. I can make you happy, sad, excited or discouraged. I can soothe you and relax you, stir you up, motivate you—any mood I want with the right music. There is music to create a frenzied feeling; music to make you march to go to war. It not only affects the mind, but it also affects the nervous system. You can see blood pressure changes and heart rate changes. It sets a mood and atmosphere. It affects the emotions.

What happened? Saul would sit and nurse grudges, feel sorry for himself and go into rages. He was getting more and more off balance.

Before he got so bad, someone who was a beautifully skilled musician played, and it changed his mood. It was soothing. It put him in a different frame of mind. It put him in a better mood and created a positive atmosphere, a beneficial effect.

As time went by and Saul didn't deal with the root of his problem, these things that were beneficial finally came to a point where it was no longer enough. You have to ultimately deal with the root of the problem. If you don't deal with the root of the problem, then eventually these things lose their value. The music no longer did the "trick."

Realize that the same things apply today. We allow ourselves, our families and children to be continually tuned into the wrong kind of influences, the wrong kind of spirit influences. Parents don't realize the extent that many rock groups are into demonism and the occult. If you look at some of them and they look like a bunch of demons, they obviously are not going to tune you into the right thing.

Philippians 4:8, "Finally brethren, whatever things are true, whatever things are noble, whatever things are pure, whatever things are lovely, whatever things are of good report, if there is any virtue and if there is anything praiseworthy—meditate on these things."

It is important for us to realize that the mood and the atmosphere that is created by music are very important. It is not only the words. The words are important, but it is also the music and the beat itself. Music has an emotional impact. There is a range and different music for different occasions, festive and somber occasions. There is nothing wrong with that variety. The result should be positive, uplifting and focusing in on what is right and good and harmonious, as opposed to that which is depressing.

Perhaps a matter of months or a year or two goes by.

I Samuel 17:1-4, "Now the Philistines gathered their armies together to battle, and were gathered together at Sochoh, which belongs to Judah; they encamped between Sochoh and Azekah, in Ephes Dammim. And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered together, and they encamped in the Valley of Elah, and drew up in battle array against the Philistines. The Philistines stood on a mountain on one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side, with a valley between them. And a champion went out from the camp of the Philistines, named Goliath, from Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span." The Philistines gathered their armies together and came out to challenge the Israelites. They had a champion; his height was six cubits and a span. He was a minimum of nine feet six inches. He may have been eleven or twelve feet. He weighed hundreds of pounds, maybe five hundred pounds.

Verses 5-7, "He had a bronze helmet on his head, and he was armed with a coat of mail, and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of bronze. And he had bronze greaves on his legs and a bronze javelin between his shoulders. Now the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and his iron spearhead weighed six hundred shekels; and a shield-bearer went before him." He had armor alone that weighed in the neighborhood of two hundred pounds and a spear that weighed about twenty pounds.

This went on for a period of about forty days (v. 16).

Verses 12-14, "Now David was the son of that Ephrathite of Bethlehem Judah, whose name was Jesse, and who had eight sons. And the man was old, advanced in years, in the days of Saul. The three oldest sons of Jesse had gone to follow Saul to the battle...David was the youngest. And the three oldest followed Saul. But David occasionally went and returned from Saul to feed his father's sheep at Bethlehem." David was too young to go into the military.

Verse 17, "Then Jesse said to his son David, 'Take now for your brothers an ephah of this dried grain and these ten loaves and run to your brothers at the camp.'" Jesse sent David to bring provisions for his sons.

Verse 23, "Then as he talked with them, there was the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, coming up from the armies of the Philistines; and he spoke according to the same words. So David heard them." David got there just in time to hear Goliath. David's response was totally different than anyone else.

Verse 26, "Then David spoke to the men who stood by him, saying, 'What shall be done for the man who kills this Philistine and takes away the reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God?'" David said, 'Who is this uncircumcised Philistine to challenge the armies of the Living God? Who does this guy think he is?'

Verses 28-29, "Now Eliab his oldest brother heard when he spoke to the men; and Eliab's anger was aroused against David, and he said, 'Why did you come down here? And with whom have you left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know your pride and the insolence of your heart, for you have come down to see the battle.’ And David said, ‘What have I done now? Is there not a cause?’” They told him, ‘Hush; he might hear you and eat you for a breakfast snack.’

Verses 30-32, “Then he turned from him toward another and said the same thing; and these people answered him as the first ones did. And when the words, which David spoke, were heard, they reported them to Saul; and he sent for him. Then David said to Saul, ‘Let no man’s heart fail because of him; your servant will go and fight with this Philistine.’” David was not intimidated.

Verses 33-35, “And Saul said to David, ‘You are not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him; for you are not but a youth, and he a man of war from his youth.’ But David said to Saul, ‘Your servant used to keep his father’s sheep, and when a lion or a bear came and took a lamb out of the flock, I went out after it and struck it, and delivered the lamb from its mouth; and when it arose against me, I caught it by its beard, and stuck and killed it.’” David was not afraid of anything. He said he killed a lion and a bear to get back his lambs. ‘I have never run from anything in my life. When I was a teenager I went after a bear and got my lamb back.’

Verse 36, “‘Your servant has killed both lion and bear; and this uncircumcised Philistine will be like one of them, seeing he had defied the armies of the living God.’” He said, ‘This uncircumcised Philistine is going to be like one of them.’

Verse 37, “Moreover David said, ‘The Lord, who delivered me from the paw of the lion and from the paw of the bear, He will deliver me from the hand of this Philistine.’ And Saul said to David, ‘Go, and the Lord be with you!’” David had confidence; His confidence was in God. He walked with God even as a young boy, as a teenager. He had a confidence and a boldness that God appreciated.

Do you realize how much it went against the grain for David to have to wait all those years for God to do it? He was impetuous to go out and do something. God wanted to “season” him before he became king. God said, ‘you trusted Me when I acted instantly, can you trust Me if I wait twelve years? When you were facing a lion or a bear and you prayed to Me, I backed you up. You trusted Me when I acted immediately, but can you trust Me if you don’t know when I am going to act?’ For some people taking action is very difficult. David was the opposite; he tended to act quickly. When he was faced with a problem, he was ready to go charging off and doing something. How does God go about making us into God? He knocks off everything that doesn’t look like God. God doesn’t always work with us in the same way.

Verse 42, “And when the Philistine looked about and saw David, he disdained him; for he was but a youth, ruddy and good-looking.” So David, a little red-haired freckled-face boy, went out there to meet the Philistine.

Verse 43, “So the Philistine said to David, ‘Am I a dog, that you come to me with sticks?’ And the Philistine cursed David by his gods.” He cursed David by his gods.

Verses 45-46, “Then David said to the Philistine, ‘You come to me, and I will give your flesh to the birds of the air and the beasts of the field!’ Then David said to the Philistine, ‘You come to me with a sword, with a spear, and with a javelin. But I come to you in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied. This day the Lord will deliver you into my hand, and I will strike you and take your head from you. And this day I will give the carcasses of the camp of the Philistines to the birds of the air and the wild beasts of the earth, that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel.’” They are going to know the determination of the battle is not who has the most swords. David stepped out with faith and confidence.

Verses 48-49, “And it was so, when the Philistine arose and came and drew near to meet David, that David hastened and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine. Then David put his hand in his bag and took out a stone; and he slung it and struck the Philistine in his forehead, so that the stone sank into his forehead, and he fell on his face to the earth.” The rock had knocked him out.

Verse 51, “Therefore David ran and stood over the Philistine, took his sword and drew it out of its sheath and killed him, and cut off his head with it. And when the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they fled.” He cut off his head. It scared the Philistines to death.

Verse 52, “Now the men of Israel and Judah arose and shouted, and pursued the Philistines as far as the entrance of the valley and to the gates of Ekron. And the wounded of the Philistines fell along the road to Shaaraim, even as far as Gath and Ekron.” Then they chased the Philistines.

Verses 55-58, “Now when Saul saw David going out against the Philistine, he said to Abner, the commander of the army. ‘Abner, whose son is this youth?’ And Abner said, ‘As your soul lives, O king, I do not know.’ And the king said, ‘Inquire whose son this young man is.’ Then, as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand. And Saul said to him, ‘Whose son are you, young man?’ And David answered, ‘I am the son of your servant Jesse the Bethlehemite.’”

Some have wondered why Saul didn’t recognize him. Perhaps a year had passed since Saul had last seen him, but how much attention does someone in Saul’s position pay to someone in David’s position, playing music?

I Samuel 18:1-4, “And it was so, when he had finished speaking to Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit to the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul. Saul took him that day, and would not let him go home to his father’s house anymore. Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul. And Jonathan took off the robe that was on him and gave it to David, with his armor, even to his sword and his bow and his belt.” David and Jonathan really took to each other, a very close friendship; they became very close friends.

Verses 5-9, “So David went out wherever Saul sent him, and behaved wisely. And Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people and also in the sight of Saul’s servants. Now it had happened as they were coming home, when David was returning from the slaughter of the Philistine, that the women had come out of all the cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet King Saul, with tambourines, with joy, and with musical instruments. So the women sang as they danced, and said: ‘Saul has slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands.’ Then Saul was very angry, and the saying displeased him; and he said, ‘They have ascribed to David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands. Now what more can he have but the kingdom?’ So Saul eyed David from that day forward.”

Who was out to get whom? He suspected David of what he was out to do. So often those who are accusing are guilty of those things. He had an accusing attitude. He figured David had the same attitude he had.

Verse 10, “And it happened on the next day that the distressing spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied [announced or proclaimed] inside the house. So David played music with his hand, as at other times; but there was a spear in Saul’s hand.” Saul brooded about problems. He let it “eat away” at him and fester. He allowed a root of bitterness that ate him away.

Verse 11, “And Saul cast the spear, for he said, ‘I will pin David to the wall with it.’ But David escaped his presence twice.” He tried to kill David. Soothing music was no longer sufficient to solve the problem.

Verses 12-16, “Now Saul was afraid of David, because the Lord was with him, but had departed from Saul. Therefore Saul removed him from his presence, and made him his captain over a thousand; and he went out and came in before the people. And David behaved wisely in all his ways, and the Lord was with him. Therefore, when Saul saw that he behaved very wisely, he was afraid of him. But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.” Saul was afraid of David. He could see that God was with him. David did what he was supposed to do, and the more he did, the more Saul became afraid.

Verse 17, “Then Saul said to David, ‘Here is my older daughter Merab; I will give her to you as a wife. Only be valiant for me, and fight the Lord’s battles.’ For Saul thought, ‘Let my hand not be against him, but let the hand of the Philistines be against him.’”

Verse 19, “But it happened at the time when Merab, Saul’s daughter, should have been given to David, that she was given to Adriel the Meholathite as a wife.” Saul promised him the older daughter and then gave her to someone else.

Verses 20-21, “Now Michal, Saul’s daughter, loved David. And they told Saul, and the thing pleased him. So Saul said, ‘I will give her to him, that she may be a snare to him, and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him.’ Therefore Saul said to David a second time, ‘You shall be my son-in-law.’”

Verse 25, “Then Saul said, ‘Thus you shall say to David: “The king does not desire any dowry but one hundred foreskins of the Philistines, to take vengeance on the king’s enemies.”’ But Saul thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines.”

He wanted David to kill some Philistines. Saul thought David would get killed. Saul was becoming more and more jealous. He was not a man of his word. He put stipulations on the marriage of David and Michal that would have caused David’s death. He kept changing even though he had promised. Saul feared David because he was loved by the people (I Samuel 18:16).

I Samuel 19:4-5, “Now Jonathan spoke well of David to Saul his father, and said to him, ‘Let not the king sin against his servant, against David, because he has not sinned against you, and because his works have been very good toward you. For he took his life in his hands and killed the Philistine, and the Lord brought about a great salvation for all Israel. You saw it and rejoiced. Why then will you sin against innocent blood, to kill David without a cause?’” Jonathan tried to speak good things about David to his father.

Verse 6, “So Saul heeded the voice of Jonathan, and Saul swore, ‘As the Lord lives, he shall not be killed.’” He would vacillate back and forth. He would say he was going to do better and then would go back.

Verses 9-10, “Now the distressing spirit from the Lord came upon Saul as he sat in his house with his spear in his hand. And David was playing music with his hand. Then Saul sought to pin David to the wall with the spear, but he slipped away from Saul’s presence; and he drove the spear into the wall. So David fled and escaped that night.” Then, again, he tried to kill him. David escaped (v. 12).

Verse 18, “So David fled and escaped, and went to Samuel at Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and stayed in Naioth.” Samuel had a school of the prophets there; “Naioth” means “schoolhouse” in Hebrew.

Verse 20, “Then Saul sent messengers to take David. And when they saw the group of prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as leader over them, the Spirit of God came upon the messengers of Saul, and they also prophesied.”

Verse 24, “And he [Saul] also stripped off his clothes and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and lay down naked all that day and all that night. Therefore they say, ‘Is Saul also among the prophets?’” Saul began to rant and rave, carry on and lay down naked. The word “naked” means “unclothed,” in the sense of being without his royal armor. He was just really carrying on, and that lead people to deride him more.

I Samuel 20:1, “Then David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and went and said to Jonathan, ‘What have I done? What is my iniquity, and what is my sin before your father, that he seeks my life?’”

Verse 5, “And David said to Jonathan, ‘Indeed tomorrow is the New Moon, and I should not fail to sit with the king to eat. But let me go, that I may hide in the field until the third day at evening.’” This was a family occasion similar to Thanksgiving.

Verse 6, “If your father misses me at all, then say, ‘David earnestly asked permission of me that he might run over to Bethlehem, his city, for there is a yearly sacrifice there for all the family.’” David’s absence from the household was going to be noticed because he was the son-in-law.

Verses 12-14, “Then Jonathan said to David: ‘The Lord God of Israel is witness! When I have sounded out my father sometime tomorrow, or the third day, and indeed there is good toward David, and I do not send to you and tell you, may the Lord do so and much more to Jonathan. But if it pleases my father to do you evil, then I will report it to you and send you away, that you may go in safety. And the Lord be with you as He has been with my father. And you shall not only show me the kindness of the Lord while I still live, that I may not die.’” David and Jonathan put this thing together. He knew what Saul’s attitude was going to be.

Verse 15, “But you shall not cut off your kindness from my house forever, no, not when the Lord has cut off every one of the enemies of David from the face of the earth.” Jonathan was not jealous. That is a real friend when someone else is going to get something that they would have gotten. He said, ‘Remember our friendship when you become king.’

Verses 18-23, “Then Jonathan said to David, ‘Tomorrow is the New Moon, and you will be missed, because your seat will be empty. And when you have stayed three days, go down quickly and come to the place where you hid on the day of the deed; and remain by the stone Ezel. Then I will shoot three arrows to the side of it, as though I shot at a target; and there I will send a lad, saying, ‘Go, find the arrows.’ If I expressly say to the lad, ‘Look the arrows are on this side of you; get them and come’—then, as the Lord lives, there is safety for you and no harm. But if I say thus to the young man, ‘Look, the arrows are beyond you’—go your way, for the Lord has sent you away. And as for the matter which you and I have spoken of, indeed the Lord be between you and me forever.’” David planned to escape when it became apparent that Saul was not going to relent.

I Samuel 21:1, “Now David came to Nob, to Ahimelech the priest. And Ahimelech was afraid when he met David, and said to him, ‘Why are you alone, and no one is with you?’” Then David fled for the fear of Saul to Achish the king of Gath (v. 10).

Verses 12-15, “Now David took these words to heart, and was very much afraid of Achish the king of Gath. So he changed his behavior before them, feigned madness in their hands, scratched on the doors of the gate and let his saliva fall down on his beard. Then Achish said to his servants, ‘Look, you see the man is insane. Why have you brought him to me? Have I need of madmen, that you have brought this fellow to play the madman in my presence? Shall this fellow come into my house?’” They chased him off.

I Samuel 22:1-2, “David therefore departed from there and escaped to the cave of Adullam. And when his brothers and all his father’s house heard it, they went down there to him. And everyone who was in distress, everyone who was in debt, and everyone who was discontented gathered to him. So he became captain over them. And there were about four hundred men with him.”

David escaped to Adullam. The group that David gathered at the cave is the same bunch that gathered at the Alamo and various places. For instance, at the Alamo, there were people that came and didn’t want to miss the fight. David collected a band of malcontents trying to get out of debt, a rough bunch. They had a tremendous amount of respect for David and looked to him. That was kind of the core that became his mighty men.

Verse 9, “Then answered Doeg the Edomite, who was set over the servants of Saul, and said, ‘I saw the son of Jesse going to Nob, to Ahimelech the son of Ahitub.’” This Edomite went back and told, and Saul sent soldiers back down there.

Verse 11, “Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father’s house, the priests who were in Nob. And they all came to the king.”

Verse 13, “Then Saul said to him, ‘Why have you conspired against me, you and the son of Jesse, in that you have given him bread and a sword, and have inquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as it is this day?’”

Verses 16-17, “And the king said, ‘You shall surely die, Ahimelech, you and all your father’s house!’ Then the king said to the guards who stood about him, ‘Turn and kill the priests of the Lord, because their hand also is with David, and because they knew when he fled and did not tell it to me.’ But the servants of the king would not lift their hands to strike the priests of the Lord.” Saul sent word and the soldiers came in.

The Israelite soldiers were reluctant to kill the priests.

Verse 18, “And the king said to Doeg, ‘You turn and kill the priests!’ So Doeg, the Edomite turned and struck the priests, and killed on that day eighty-five men who wore a linen ephod.” Doeg slew eighty-five people.

Verse 19, “Also Nob, the city of the priests, he struck with the edge of the sword, both men and women, children and nursing infants, oxen and donkeys and sheep—with the edge of the sword.”

Verses 20-21, “Now one of the sons of Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped and fled after David. And Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the Lord’s priests.” It shows, again, how far Saul had gone. Once he had gone that far, then nothing could stop him.

I Samuel 23:16-18, “Then Jonathan, Saul’s son, arose and went to David in the woods and strengthened his hand in God. And he said to him, ‘Do not fear, for the hand of Saul my father shall not find you. You shall be king over Israel, and I shall be next to you. Even my father Saul knows that.’ So the two of them made a covenant before the Lord. And David stayed in the woods, and Jonathan went to his own house.” This shows David’s and Jonathan’s friendship.

I Samuel 24:2-4, “Then Saul took three thousand chosen men from all Israel, and went to seek David and his men on the Rocks of the Wild Goats. So he came to the sheepfolds by the road, where there was a cave; and Saul went in to attend to his needs. (David and his men were staying in the recesses of the cave.) Then the men of David said to him, ‘This is the day of which the Lord said to you, “Behold, I will deliver your enemy into your hand, that you may do to him as it seems good to you.”’ And David arose and secretly cut off a corner of Saul’s robe.”

The men were saying to David, ‘Look, God has delivered him in your hands.’ David wanted to make a point; so he cut off the skirt of Saul’s robe. He cut the bottom part of it off.

Verses 5-6, “Now it happened afterward that David’s heart trouble him because he had cut Saul’s robe. And he said to his men, ‘The Lord forbid that I should do this thing to my master, the Lord’s anointed, to stretch out my hand against him, seeing he is the anointed of the Lord.’” David’s attitude changed after it happened; he admitted that he was wrong to do something to embarrass Saul. He was the Lord’s anointed.

Verses 7-9, “So David restrained his servants with these words, and did not allow them to rise against Saul. And Saul got up from the cave and went on his way. David also arose afterward, went out of the cave, and called out to Saul, saying, ‘My lord the king!’ And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed down. And David said to Saul: ‘Why do you listen to the words of men who say, “Indeed David seeks your harm?”’ He told Saul he was sorry. Do you want to know why he is a man after God’s own heart? He was willing to admit error. He said, ‘You think I am trying to get you; I could have killed you.’

Verse 10, ““Look, this day your eyes have seen that the Lord delivered you today into my hand in the cave, and someone urged me to kill you. But my eye spared you, and I said, “I will not stretch out my hand against my lord, for he is the Lord’s anointed.”” I will not lift up my hand against you.

Verse 12, ““Let the Lord judge between you and me, and let the Lord avenge me on you. But my hand shall not be against you.” He said, ‘God’s going to take care of you, but I am not.’

Verses 16-17, “So it was, when David had finished speaking these words to Saul, that Saul said, ‘Is this your voice, my son David?’ And Saul lifted up his voice and wept. Then he said to David: ‘You are more righteous than I; for you have rewarded me with good, whereas I have rewarded you with evil.’” Saul was sorry and was going to do better.

Verse 22, “So David swore to Saul. And Saul went home, but David and his men went up to the stronghold.” Saul went to his home, but David realized that he was not to be trusted. He just went to another cave.

I Samuel 25:1, “Then Samuel died; and the Israelites gathered together and lamented for him, and buried him at his home in Ramah. And David arose and went down to the Wilderness of Paran.”

Verse 4, “When David heard in the wilderness that Nabal was shearing his sheep.”

Verse 7, ““Now I have heard that you have shearers. Your shepherds were with us, and we did not hurt them, nor was there anything missing from them all the while they were in Carmel.”” David had disciplined his men and provided law and order and protection in the area.

Verse 9, “So when David’s young men came, they spoke to Nabal according to all these words in the name of David and waited.” They said, ‘Nabal you have benefited from us being here, being protected from the Philistines and marauders.’

Verses 10-11, “Then Nabal answered David’s servants and said, ‘Who is David, and who is the son of Jesse? There are many servants nowadays who break away each one from his master. Shall I then take my bread and my water and my meat that I have killed for my shearers, and give it to men when I do not know where they are from?’” He refused to give food to David and his men.

Verse 13, “Then David said to his men, ‘every man gird on his sword.’ So every man girded on his sword, and David also girded on his sword. And about four hundred men went with David, and two hundred stayed with the supplies.” David was incensed. He was a man of action, and he had to learn to wait on God.

In this, Nabal’s wife, Abigail was there to try to run interference for him (vv. 14-18).

Verse 23, “Now when Abigail saw David, she hastened to dismount from the donkey, fell on her face before David, and bowed down to the ground.”

Verse 25, ““Please, let not my lord regard this scoundrel Nabal. For as his name is, so is he: Nabal is his name, and folly is with him. But I, your maidservant, did not see the young men of my lord whom you sent.”” She brought stuff to David and said, ‘Please don’t come in and do this thing you are thinking of doing.’

Verse 36, “Then Abigail went to Nabal, and there he was, holding a feast in his house, like the feast of a king. And Nabal’s heart was merry within him, for he was very drunk; therefore she told him nothing, little or much, until morning light.” Nabal had a drinking problem. A point you might consider, you don’t ever try to talk to somebody when they are loaded. Abigail understood that. We can see Abigail’s wisdom.

Verse 37, “So it was, in the morning, when the wine had gone from Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died within him, and he became like a stone.” She waited until he sobered up. It scared him so badly that he had a heart attack and fell over dead. David didn’t take matters into his own hands. God dealt with it.

Verse 39, “So when David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, ‘Blessed be the Lord, who has pleaded the cause of my reproach from the hand of Nabal, and has kept His servant from evil. For the Lord has returned the wickedness of Nabal on his own head.’ And David sent and proposed to Abigail, to take her as his wife.”

I Samuel 26:1-2, “Now the Ziphites came to Saul at Gibeah, saying, ‘Is David not hiding in the hill of Hachilah, which is opposite Jeshimon?’ Then Saul arose and went down to the Wilderness of Ziph, having three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the Wilderness of Ziph.” Years had gone by, and everybody knew that Saul and David were really “on the outs.” They recognized David was an enemy of Saul.

I Samuel 28:4-5, “Then the Philistines gathered together, and came and encamped at Shunem. So Saul gathered all Israel together, and they encamped at Gilboa. When Saul saw the army of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart trembled greatly.” We find the situation that as the battle continued with the Philistines, Saul was going out to fight against Achish.

Verses 6-7, “And when Saul inquired of the Lord, the Lord did not answer him, either by dreams or by Urim or by the prophets. Then Saul said to his servants, ‘Find me a woman who is a medium at EnDor.’” He was so far off the track; he decided to go to a witch to bring up Samuel. You can see how bad he had gotten by this time.

Verses 9-11, “Then the woman said to him, ‘Look you know what Saul has done, how he has cut off the mediums and the spiritists from the land. Why then do you lay a snare for my life, to cause me to die?’ And Saul swore to her by the Lord, saying, ‘As the Lord lives, no punishment shall come upon you for this thing.’ Then the woman said, ‘Whom shall I bring up for you?’ And he said, ‘Bring up Samuel for me.’” He became frightened and went to the witch to bring up Samuel.

Verse 13, “And the king said to her, ‘Do not be afraid, What did you see?’ And the woman said to Saul, ‘I saw a spirit ascending out of the earth.’” The picture here is of someone ascending out of the earth.

Verse 14, “So he said to her, ‘What is his form?’ And she said, ‘An old man is coming up, and he is covered with a mantle.’ And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground and bowed down.” She thought it was Samuel, but this is not what happened.

The woman was the one who saw something and she described it to Saul. Saul assumed it to be Samuel. This was simply a demon spirit that the witch saw, a lying spirit, no different than the kind of things in séances.

Verses 17-19, ““And the Lord has done for Himself as He spoke by me. For the Lord has torn the kingdom out of your hand and given it to your neighbor, namely David. Because you did not obey the voice of the Lord nor execute His fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore the Lord had done this thing to you this day. Moreover the Lord will also deliver Israel with you into the hand of the Philistines. And tomorrow you and your sons will be with me. The Lord will also deliver the army of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.” We see the situation; he was told he was going to die.

What finally happened, I Samuel 31:2-3, “Then the Philistines followed hard after Saul and his sons. And the Philistines killed Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchishua, Saul’s sons. Now the battle became intense against Saul; and the archers hit him, and he was severely wounded by the archers.”

Verse 4, “Then Saul said to his armor bearer, ‘Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, lest these uncircumcised men come and thrust me through and abuse me.’ But his armor bearer would not, for he was greatly afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword and fell on it.” Saul committed suicide.

Verse 5, “And when his armorbearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his sword, and died with him.”

The parallel account in I Chronicles 10:13-14, “So Saul died for his unfaithfulness [KJV, “transgression”] which he had committed against the Lord, because he did not keep the word of the Lord, and also because he consulted a medium for guidance. But he did not inquire of the Lord; therefore He killed him, and turned the kingdom over to David the son of Jesse.”

You see here the very tragic end of King Saul, and the story of the introduction to David and the role he was to play in God’s plan and purpose for him. I think there is a lot to learn here from this example of the story of Saul and David. Realize that God teaches us not just by Commandment, “thou shalt and thou shalt not,” but by example. That is why so much of the Bible is taken up showing examples. What we want to learn is how they handled things properly and what mistakes were made. If we read the examples, we can learn how to handle circumstances and things that happen to us.

Old Testament Series—II Samuel 1—20 and I
Chronicles 11—20

This evening we are continuing our historical survey of the Old Testament. We are focusing quite a bit on King David. In reality, two whole Bible studies in this series, the last Bible study and this one, focus almost entirely on King David. There is a reason for that. Next Bible study we will get the concluding matters pertaining to David and the beginning of Solomon's reign. These sections dealing with King David are very important. They provide a background for the future history of Israel; and in reality, they provide a background for all of prophecy.

There are lessons here for the individual in the example of David and others whose lives are mentioned and detailed here. If we are going to learn from someone's example, it is important to see what the person or various individuals did. Then you are able to read God's reaction to what they did and gain insight.

There is the broad grouping of the law, the Prophets and the Writings. Notice the difference by which we're taught. All through we're taught God's law, but in the books of the law—the first five books—we are given direct statements, "thou shall do this, thou shall not do that." There is a direct statement of law. Of course, there are also some examples, and we went through that, but there are many direct statements of law. We are taught in that way.

Now in this section, the Prophets' section (this is the historical portion of the Prophets), we are taught and instructed not primarily by any direct statement or Commandment. Direct statements or Commandments are virtually not given in this section. What we have, continually in this section, are the examples of individuals, what people did and how God reacted to what they did.

As we continue the outline of King David's life from last Bible study, basically, we would outline David's life in four sections: David the shepherd boy, David the hero, David the outcast, and David the king. Last Bible study we focused on David the shepherd boy, David the hero, and David the outcast. This evening, we are focusing in on David the king. We ended with the death of Saul last time, and we pick up the story in II Samuel. We will go through the first 20 chapters of II Samuel this evening. There is a parallel account in I Chronicles 11-20.

We start out with David's lamentation for Saul and Jonathan. Then we focus in on David ruling over Judah. David did not immediately become king over all Israel. Rather, David was acknowledged as king over Judah from Hebron. Then David captured Jerusalem from the Jebusites after about seven years of reign over Judah from Hebron—then he began to reign over all Israel, over all twelve tribes.

We then note David bringing the ark into Jerusalem. The ark had been in various places since the time that Israel had brought it through the wilderness in the tabernacle. There wasn't one permanent sanctuary. Shiloh was the location for a period of time. The ark was at various locations, but now David brought it into Jerusalem.

Then we find God making a covenant with David, called the Davidic Covenant. It is an important section. It becomes very important for prophecy to understand the special covenant God made with David. We notice the boundaries of David's kingdom being extended and established.

Then we focus on David's sin with Bathsheba, the story of Amnon's crime and Absalom's subsequent rebellion. Next is David's sin in numbering Israel, Adonijah's rebellion, David's charge to Solomon and finally the death of David.

From a prophetic standpoint, II Samuel 7:12-16 is one of the most important sections of Scripture because we have the promise that God made to David, that David's dynasty would go on forever. This obviously ultimately looks forward to the Messiah because notice here in II Samuel 7:16, "And your house and your kingdom shall be established forever before you. Your throne shall be established forever." That obviously goes on into the future. Forever is a long time.

What did we find stated of the Messiah in the book of Luke when the angel announced the birth of Jesus to Mary?

Luke 1:32, "He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give Him the throne of His father David." Jesus Christ is going to sit upon David's throne. That's what it says in Luke 1:32. Jesus Christ the Messiah is going to sit upon the throne of David, and He is going to reign forever. This is based on II Samuel 7:16 where God told David, "your throne shall be established forever." This is obviously a promise that has overtones of the Messiah because if the throne is to be established forever, then it has to ultimately be inhabited by someone other than just a simple human being. It is ultimately going to be occupied by Jesus Christ. That's what the angel told Mary prior to His birth, that He would sit upon the throne of His father David and His Kingdom would continue forever (Luke 1:33).

Is Christ, right now, sitting upon the throne of David? I think it's important to understand that, and you can prove very clearly that Jesus Christ is not sitting on the throne of David right now. Notice what it says here in Revelation 3:21, Christ's message to the Laodicean Church.

Revelation 3:21, "To him who overcomes, I will grant [future tense] to sit with Me on My throne, as I also overcame [past tense] and am sat down [present tense] with My Father on His throne."

Christ is going to sit on His throne, and whose throne is it? It's going to be the throne of David. He is going to sit on the throne of David and those that overcome will sit on that throne with Him. 'As I also overcame and am [presently] sat down with My Father—God the Father—in His throne.' Christ, right now, is not sitting on the throne of David; He is sitting with God the Father on the Father's throne in heaven.

David's throne was not in heaven. David's throne has never been in heaven. David's throne is a throne on the earth over Israel, and ultimately to expand out to rule over all the earth. Christ overcame; He conquered and as a result, was seated with the Father on the Father's throne. Those who overcome will sit with Him (future tense) on His throne when he returns to occupy that throne. Then we will also be able to sit with Him on that throne.

That's what He says in Matthew 25:31, "When the Son of man shall come [future tense] in all His glory and all the holy angels with Him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory."

Verse 34, "Then shall the King say to them on His right hand, 'Come you blessed of My Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.'"" When Jesus returns in glory, He is going to sit upon the throne of His glory, which is the throne of David. He's coming back to sit upon a throne that does exist. He's not coming back to a non-existent throne. He's coming back to a throne that does exist; otherwise, how could He occupy it. If the throne of David ceased to exist thousands of years ago, how can it be said that Christ is coming back to sit upon that throne?

That's a remarkable prophecy in II Samuel 7:16. In fact, we might note what God told David through Nathan the prophet.

II Samuel 7:12-16, "When your days are fulfilled and you shall rest with your fathers, I will set up your seed after you, who will come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for My name [this is referring to Solomon]; I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. I will be his Father, and he shall be My son. If he commits iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men and with the blows of the sons of men. But My mercy shall not depart from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I removed from before you. And your house and your kingdom shall be established forever before you. Your throne shall be established forever."

God specifically told David, 'Look, I am going to establish your descendants upon a throne forever. If they sin, if they transgress, I will correct them, punish them and chasten them. I am not saying they won't be dealt with if it's needed, but what I am promising you is I will not take my mercy from them in the way I took it from Saul when I just simply removed his family from the kingship. Regardless of what they do, I am not going to break the promise I am making to you. I will punish them if they need it, but I am not going to take my mercy from them.'

We have here the basis of understanding this promise God made David. On the basis of this, we have to realize the throne of David has to exist as a literal throne somewhere on the earth today and be occupied by descendants of David ruling over modern descendants of ancient Israel. That throne has to exist. It did not cease at the time King Zedekiah was taken, had his eyes put out, was led away in chains to Babylon, and the city of Jerusalem and the temple were burned. That was not the end of the dynasty of King David because God had made a promise, and God's word stood sure.

God punished the descendants of David at various times through history, but that dynasty has continued down until today. And, of course, that dynasty does exist and is currently occupied by Queen Elizabeth II, sitting on the throne of David. She is a direct descendant of King David.

That dynasty was preserved as Jeremiah the prophet took of Zedekiah's daughters and went from the Middle East to Ireland. One of the daughters, prior to the destruction of Jerusalem, had married a son of the high king of Ireland. She married him; the two of them and a child that they had went with Jeremiah the prophet and others traveling from Jerusalem to Ireland in the aftermath of the destruction of Jerusalem. That royal house was the royal house that ruled as the high kings of ancient Ireland from Tara for many centuries until the throne was overturned in 841 A.D. by Kenneth MacAlpin who was the king of Scotland and a descendant of that royal house.

The insignia or the symbol of that stone was Jacob's pillar stone, that physical rock of the covenant. This physical symbol of the covenant was removed from Tara and taken to Scone in Scotland. Subsequently for several centuries, the kings of Scotland were crowned on it, and then at a later date, King Edward I of England who was a descendant of that royal house, moved the stone from Scone to London. When Jesus Christ returns it will finally be taken back to Jerusalem as the sign of the throne of David.

As we go through the book of Kings, we will notice that the kings in Jerusalem were crowned on the pillar, on that same stone. We will notice some insight into that a little later in this series of Bible studies. I think it is important to focus in on this set of scriptures because it is a key to understanding Bible prophecy—and it's rooted right here.

One of the greatest lessons that can be learned, just in terms of personal lessons and examples, comes from the aftermath of David's sin with Bathsheba. It is clearly shown that sin hurts; sin has physical consequences. You can repent, be sorry, have regret and genuine repentance, but there are physical consequences that inevitably follow. The more serious the sin is the more serious the physical consequences. When God removes our sin and forgives us, He does not erase all of the physical consequences that are the result.

We find here examples of what happened in the aftermath in David's family. David's conduct and example during the years his children were growing up left much to be desired, and he reaped headaches by the ton even though he afterward repented of his earlier conduct. There were problems that he had during the formative years of his children that had an impact, and he reaped those consequences during those latter years. God records that. He does not gloss over all of the mistakes that some of His servants made. God tells us that David was a man after His own heart. There was a certain attitude, there were certain things that were a part of David's character that God placed great value on, but David had certain problems. God does not hide those or gloss over them; He records them so that we might see and learn.

Now as we go through this section in II Samuel, one of the things that we notice is David's reaction to the death of Saul. His reaction was one of grief.

II Samuel 1:17-18, "Then David lamented with this lamentation over Saul and Jonathan his son, and he told them to teach the children of Judah the Song of the Bow; indeed it is written in the book of Jasher." The book of Jasher was a historical book. It was simply a secular record that was available that gave details that are not preserved in the biblical account. At the time that the biblical account was written, you will find a number of references in these historical books referring you to secular sources that people of that day were familiar with. In other words, it's as though we might write a summary account of something today and then in that summary account, refer you to various secular sources where you could go for more details if you wanted them.

David honored and respected Saul, right up to the end. He respected and honored Saul's office. Saul is an individual who certainly didn't conduct himself as worthy of a lot of honor or respect. David's honor and respect was not grounded on the basis that Saul was such a wonderful, deserving fellow. It was based on the premise that Saul was God's anointed. God had set Saul in a high office, and that office was to be respected.

We run into an apparent discrepancy in the account of Saul's death as it is given in II Samuel 1 by comparison to I Samuel 31. We might note that and understand.

In II Samuel 1:1-10, "Now it came to pass after the death of Saul, when David had returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had stayed two days in Ziklag, on the third day, behold, it happened that a man came from Saul's camp with his clothes torn and dust on his head. So it was, when he came to David, that he fell to the ground and prostrated himself. And David said to him, 'Where have you come from?' So he said to him, 'I have escaped from the camp of Israel.' Then David said to him, 'How did the matter go? Please tell me.' And he answered, 'The people have fled from the battle, many of the people are fallen and dead, and Saul and Jonathan his son are dead also.' So David said to the young man who told him, 'How do you know that Saul and Jonathan his son are dead?' And the young man who told him said, 'As I happened by chance to be on Mount Gilboa, there was Saul, leaning on his spear; and indeed the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him. Now when he looked behind him, he saw me and called to me. And I answered, 'Here I am.' And he said to me, 'Who are you?' So I answered him, 'I am an Amalekite.' He said to me again, 'Please stand over me and kill me, for anguish has come upon me, but my life still remains in me. So I stood over him and killed him, because I was sure that he could not live after he had fallen. And I took the crown that was on his head and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them here to my lord.'"

We find that Saul had told his armor bearer in I Samuel 31:4-5, "Then Saul said to his armor bearer, 'Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, lest these uncircumcised men come and thrust me through and abuse me.' But his armor bearer would not, for he was greatly afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword and fell on it. And when his armor bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his sword, and died with him."

We get the idea from I Samuel 31 that Saul committed suicide and II Samuel 1 that the Amalekite killed him. There are two explanations. One is simply that the Amalekite lied that he came there and saw Saul lying there dead. He recognized the body because of the royal insignia that Saul had on, and he thought that this was a good chance for him to move "one up." He would grab these things off the body and bring them to David and say, 'I have killed your enemy. He's your enemy; he was after you and was trying to get you. I came on him; he was fallen out there, and I finished him off. I brought you these things to give them to you because I am saying by this that I recognize you as the next king.' He thought, 'Boy, I will probably be rewarded—he will probably think this is great.' But David didn't think so.

II Samuel 1:14-16, "And David said to him, 'How was it you were not afraid to put forth your hand to destroy the Lord's anointed?' Then David called one of the young men and said, 'Go near, and execute him!' And he struck him so that he died. So David said to him, 'Your blood is on your own head, for your own mouth has testified against you, saying, "I have killed the Lord's anointed.'"" David had this fellow executed.

This ought to answer the question, by the way, that some have asked in recent days about euthanasia, so called "mercy killings." It has been debated in the press of recent days if that is all right.

Either one of two things happened: Either the Amalekite lied or Saul had certainly fallen on his sword as it says in I Samuel 31, but perhaps he managed to botch that like he did everything else and did a halfway job of suicide. Seeing that Saul had fallen on the sword, the armor bearer committed suicide. Then when this Amalekite came walking along, Saul had maybe managed to miss a vital spot and was lying there wounded, not yet dead. The armor bearer had only thought that he was dead. He saw him fall on the sword, but maybe it didn't pierce all the way through. That's certainly a possibility. The Amalekite came along and saw Saul wounded himself, but not actually having finished himself off, and he went ahead and did it.

Whether that was the case or whether he simply exaggerated to get a reward, it is apparent here that God does not approve of so-called "mercy killings." And David, acting as God's representative, didn't approve of that. There is certainly a great deal of difference between actively taking a life and, on the other hand, withholding the type of extreme measures that much of the current medical technology has sought to foist off on people. You can't equate at all the matter of actively taking a life, whether it is by injection or some other sort of thing and of someone who is an innocent victim, who is lying there in pain as Saul was. Saul even asked the guy to finish him off, but that doesn't matter. Your life doesn't belong to you; it belongs to God. You don't have the right to take it, nor does anyone else.

God did give the charge to the civil government that whosoever sheds blood by man, shall his blood be shed. God gave that charge to Noah in the aftermath of the flood. It's repeated in Romans 13:1-4 that God has set the civil government to bear the sword and to execute vengeance against those who perpetuate crime and violence. But that is talking about constituted authority, not somebody who takes it upon himself to go out and do that.

Of course, we as Christians are ambassadors and are not part of that constituted civil authority. We are not involved in that from a standpoint of actively taking part, but you certainly gain from this some insight that this is not God's way. That is not to say that if somebody gets sick, you can't equate the refusal to be hooked up on all kinds of artificial support systems, things that never were a part of anything God designed or established, but simply represent man's technology. You can't equate that with an active taking of life, whether by a doctor or by someone else. Again, there's certain insight into God's perspective into some of these things that we can see.

Saul ends up as a very tragic figure. Saul was a man who sought to solve his problems his own way. Even at the end, what did Saul do? He turned to a witch and then tried to commit suicide when it didn't work out his way. Nowhere did Saul ever truly repent and turn to God.

You might make the contrast, Samson had to go through some tragic things and learn some tragic lessons, but at the end, what did he do? He prayed to God. He went to God and said, 'Oh God, please be merciful, give me a chance to at least make up for my lack of what I've done in carrying out the job You gave me to do.' He came to see himself and asked God for His mercy and forgiveness. God extended that. Saul never did repent. He just continued to bumble along and try to solve his own problems his own way and ended up in a tragic way.

II Samuel 2:1, "It happened after this that David inquired of the Lord, saying, 'Shall I go up to any of the cities of Judah?' And the Lord said to him, 'Go up.' David said, 'Where shall I go up?' And He said, 'To Hebron.'"

Verse 4, "Then the men of Judah came and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah...."

Verse 11, "And the time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months."

Verses 8-10, "But Abner the son of Ner, commander of Saul's army, took Ishosheth the son of Saul and brought him over to Mahanaim; and he made him king over Gilead, over the Ashurites, over Jezreel, over Ephraim, over Benjamin, and over all Israel. Ishbosheth, Saul's son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years. Only the house of Judah followed David."

In the meantime there was a descendant of Saul who was crowned king over the northern tribes of Israel. His name was Ishbosheth, the son of Saul.

II Samuel 2:8, Abner, the son of Ner—his name is kind of an unusual name. "Ab" in Hebrew means "father," so his name literally translated meant "father of Ner, son of Ner." Abner was the captain of Saul's host, the commanding general. He took this son of Saul who had survived and made him king over the areas of Northern Israel. This man was set in place and reigned over Israel two years.

The House of Judah followed David, and David was king in Hebron seven years and six months.

Then we see the account of the battle that takes place; there was fighting back and forth, and Joab was the commander of King David's troops. Abner was the commander of the other troops (vv. 12-16).

Verse 17, "So there was a very fierce battle that day, and Abner and the men of Israel were beaten before the servants of David."

One young man who was a brother of Joab was a very fast man. It describes him as light of foot as a wild roe (v. 18). In other words, he could run like a deer. He really would have been an Olympic star. And he pursued after Abner (v. 19). Seeing he was on his heels, Abner finally turned and killed him (vv. 20-23).

II Samuel 3:1, "Now there was a long war between the house of Saul and the house of David. But David grew stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul grew weaker and weaker." Then it gives an account of some of David's sons (vv. 2-5). There came to be a falling out between Abner and Ishbosheth (vv. 6-8).

Verses 9-10, "'May God do so to Abner, and more also, if I do not do for David as the Lord has sworn to him—to transfer the kingdom from the house of Saul, and set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, from Dan to Beersheba.'"

Verse 20, "So Abner and twenty men with him came to David at Hebron. And David made a feast for Abner and the men who were with him." They had a meal, sat and ate and discussed the matter. When the time came for them to leave, Joab came out from David and told Abner he had a message. So when Abner returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside.

Verse 27, "Now when Abner had returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside in the gate to speak with him privately, and there stabbed him in the stomach, so that he died for the blood of Asahel his brother."

Verse 28, "And afterward, when David heard it, he said, 'My kingdom and I are guiltless before the Lord forever of the blood of Abner the son of Ner.'" Joab very treacherously killed Abner to get revenge because of the slaughter of his brother. When David heard it, he was really upset and disgusted at this. There was a difference in something that took place in battle and a treacherous assassination. It gives a little insight into Joab's character.

Joab was a valiant man; he was a fighter, a real go-getter in a lot of ways. Joab was a very self-willed individual. He was going to do whatever he wanted. If Joab agreed with what the boss said, he would do it; if he didn't, he would still do what he wanted to do. He could be very treacherous and very sneaky. David proclaimed mourning for Abner and gave him a state funeral. He said, ‘this is terrible; this is no way to treat this man—we were not at war.’

Verse 36, “Now all the people took note of it, and it pleased them, since whatever the king did pleased all the people.” David became very popular. Whatever the king did, it pleased the people, and they understood that David had no part in the slaughter of Abner.

II Samuel 4:1-2, “And when Saul’s son heard that Abner had died in Hebron, he lost heart, and all Israel was troubled. Now Saul’s sons had two men who were captains of troops. The name of one was Baanah and the name of the other Rechab, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, of the children of Benjamin....”

Verse 4, “Jonathan, Saul’s son had a son who was lame in his feet. He was five years old when the news about Saul and Jonathan came from Jezreel; and his nurse took him up and fled. And it happened, as she made haste to flee, that he fell and became lame. So his name was Mephibosheth.”

Jonathan had a son who was crippled. These individuals, who were trusted servants of Ishbosheth, came in while he was lying down for a nap at noon. They came in as though they were bringing something and smote him in the stomach (vv. 5-6).

Verse 7, “For when they came into the house, he was lying on his bed in his bedroom; then they struck him and killed him, beheaded him and took his head, and were all night escaping through the plains. And they brought the head of Ishbosheth to David at Hebron, and said to the king. ‘Here is the head of Ishbosheth the son of Saul your enemy, who sought your life; and the Lord has avenged my lord the king this day of Saul and his descendants.’” They actually beheaded him and brought this gory thing to David in Hebron, saying, ‘We have brought you the head of the son of your enemy Saul.’

Notice what David told them when they came to him.

Verses 9-10, “Then David answered Rechab and Baamah his brother, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, and said to them, ‘As the Lord lives, who has redeemed my life from all adversity, when someone told me, saying, “Look, Saul is dead,” thinking to have brought good news, I arrested him and had him executed in Ziklag—the one who thought I would give him a reward for his news.’” He said, ‘He thought he would have a reward for his good news. He was coming to get a reward, telling this tale, bragging about having killed Saul and thinking I was going to reward him. I executed him because he committed murder. He slaughtered the Lord’s anointed.’

Verse 11, “‘How much more, when wicked men have killed a righteous person in his own house on his bed? Therefore, shall I not now require his blood at your hand and remove you from the earth?’” They thought they would be rewarded. They had treacherously slaughtered their master. They had assassinated him, brought his bloody head to David and said, ‘Hey, now you can be king over the whole nation. We have finished off your enemy and the son of your enemy.’

David said, ‘If I would execute a passerby who killed the king, how much more when wicked men have slain a righteous person in his own house upon his bed. You who he trusted, you did a thing like this. If I executed this Amalekite that finished off Saul, you think I am going to let you go free? You guys are nothing more than common murderers. You sneaked in and murdered a man while he was asleep in bed. And you come here thinking I am going to reward you?’

Verse 12, “So David commanded his young men, and they executed them, cut off their hands and feet, and hanged them by the pool in Hebron. But they took the head of Ishbosheth and buried it in the tomb of Abner in Hebron.”

II Samuel 5:1-3, “Then all the tribes of Israel came to David at Hebron and spoke, saying, ‘Indeed we are your bone and your flesh. Also, in time past, when Saul was king over us, you were the one who led Israel out and brought them in; and the Lord said to you, “You shall shepherd My people Israel, and be ruler over Israel.’” So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron, and King David made a covenant with them at Hebron before the Lord. And they anointed David king over Israel.’ He had already been anointed king over Judah (II Samuel 2:4).

Verse 4, “David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years.”

Verse 5, “In Hebron he reigned over Judah seven years and six months, and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years over all Israel and Judah.” Now we come to the point where he became king over all the land.

Notice one thing—God tested him. God said David was a man after His own heart. What are some of the characteristics that we know? David was a man that valued loyalty. David did not appreciate treachery. God values loyalty; He places great value on it.

The capital at Jerusalem is established.

Verses 6-7, “And the king and his men went to Jerusalem against the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land, who spoke to David, saying, ‘You shall not come in here; but the blind and the lame will repel you,’ thinking, ‘David cannot come here.’ Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion (that is, the City of David).”

Let’s notice a parallel account.

I Chronicles 11:4-8, “And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, which is Jebus, where the Jebusites were, the inhabitants of the land. Then the inhabitants of Jebus said to David, ‘You shall not come in here.’ Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion (that is, the City of David). Now David said, ‘Whoever attacks the Jebusites first shall be chief and captain.’ And Joab the son of Zeruiah went up first, and became chief. Then David dwelt in the stronghold; therefore they called it the City of David. And he built the city around it, from the Millo to the surrounding area. Joab repaired the rest of the city.”

Jerusalem spread out from there, but that was the original portion of the city. Every city has its original settlement and then spreads out. Well, Jerusalem spread out from this castle, this fortification on Mount Zion.

The situation was that David put siege around the city, and Joab was the one that came up with a way to get in. Joab figured it out and was the first one into Jerusalem. He went up first and he was the chief. He did so by climbing through the shaft that connected Jerusalem with its only water supply at that time, which was known as the virgin’s pool (II Samuel 5:8). They diverted it and climbed up through this water shaft. They went in through the pool, climbed up through the shaft, got into the city, and were able to open the gates.

You read here of the exploits of these mighty men of David. This bunch of men that followed him was a tough bunch of hombres. They were outlaws and outcasts and everything else, but what they had in common was honor, respect and loyalty that they had for David. They had gathered themselves to him while he was hiding in the cave of Adulla.

In II Samuel 6:1, we find the bringing in of the ark. David gathered together Israel.

II Samuel 6:3, “So they set the ark of God on a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab, which was on the hill, and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart.”

Verse 5, “Then David and all the house of Israel played music before the Lord on all kinds of instruments made of fir wood, on harps, on stringed instruments, on tambourines, on sistrum, and on cymbals.” They were playing instruments of music, and there was great celebration, a parade and a march—all of the “hoopla.”

Verses 6-7, “And when they came to Nachon’s threshing floor, Uzzah put out his hand to the ark of God and took hold of it, for the oxen stumbled. Then the anger of the Lord was aroused against Uzzah and God struck him there for his error [irreverence]; and he died there by the ark of God.” When they came to Nachon’s threshing floor, the ark kind of wobbled on the cart, and Uzzah put out his hand to steady it. When he did, he was struck dead.

There was a reason for that. To begin with, they weren’t doing what God had instructed. God had given instructions in the law how the ark was to be carried. There were poles it was to be carried with, and the Levites were to carry it on their shoulders. So they had completely disregarded the instructions. They had not gone back and followed the instruction. The instruction in the law was to not touch the ark or you died. The ark is holy and sacred; don’t treat it carelessly.

There was a lesson that needed to be made. The real problem got back to the fact that the leaders used human reason to determine the manner of bringing in the ark instead of doing things as God commanded. God allowed this to happen and this example to be recorded that we might have impressed upon us the absolute importance of doing what God says, the way He says to do it.

If God says carry it on poles, don’t stick it on a cart and figure that ought to do. If God says the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God, don’t figure the first day ought to do just as well. If God says do something, do it the way He says it. Don’t use human reasoning: ‘I don’t see what difference it makes; this should do just fine. God should be satisfied with this.’ That really is not wise thinking, and this example is recorded here. We read of this tragedy that occurred.

Then David began the construction of a palace there in Jerusalem.

I Chronicles 14:1, “Now Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, with masons and carpenters, to build him a house.” He obtained the materials and the craftsmen from Hiram king of Tyre up in the area of modern day Lebanon.

A short time later, in II Samuel 7:1-3, “Now it came to pass when the king was dwelling in his house, and the Lord had given him rest from all his enemies all around, that the king said to Nathan the prophet, 'See now, I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwells inside tent curtains.' Then Nathan said to the king, 'Go, do all that is in your heart, for the Lord is with you.'" David told Nathan he was living here in this palace that he had and the ark of God was reposing in a temporary dwelling. 'I think we ought to build a temple.' Nathan thought that was a good idea, but God very quickly told him, "No."

Verses 4-5, "But it happened that night that the word of the Lord came to Nathan, saying, 'Go and tell My servant David, "Thus says the Lord: 'Would you build a house for Me to dwell in?'"'"

Verses 11-16, "...Also the Lord tells you that He will make you a house. When your days are fulfilled and you rest with your fathers, I will set up your seed after you, who will come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for My name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. I will be his Father, and he shall be My son. If he commits iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men and with the blows of the sons of men. But My mercy shall not depart from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I removed from before you. And your house and your kingdom shall be established forever before you. Your throne shall be established forever."

David's desire to build a temple after his own palace was made plain in II Samuel 7:1-3, but God, in the aftermath of that, said, 'No, you're not going to build the temple. You're not going to build a house for Me, but I am going to build a house for you.' Then we went through the promise of the Davidic covenant, the promise that God made to David of establishing his family forever.

We are going to note in the next Bible study the reason why God didn't let David build the temple. It doesn't state it right here, but the reason was that David was a man of much blood. David had shed much blood. David was a man of war, and that was something that God was just not going to allow David to do. Solomon was a man of peace, and God allowed Solomon to be the one to build the temple. David prepared for it.

David continued to show his loyalty to the memory of Jonathan.

II Samuel 9:1, 3, 5, 7, 13, "Now David said, 'Is there still anyone who is left of the house of Saul, that I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake'... 'There is still a son of Jonathan who is lame in his feet'... Then King David sent and brought him out of the house of Machir the son of Ammiel, from Lo Debar... So David said to him, 'Do not fear, for I will surely show you kindness for Jonathan your father's sake, and will restore to you all the land of Saul your grandfather; and you shall eat bread at my table continually.'... So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem, for he ate continually at the king's table. And he was lame in both his feet."

David wanted to find out if there was any of the family of Saul left. When he found out Mephibosheth, the little crippled son of Jonathan was still alive; he brought him to the palace and sought to reward him and to provide for him.

In II Samuel 10, we find the story where the king of Ammon died and David was going to send representatives to the funeral (vv. 1-2). This young upstart son decided maybe these guys were spies, and he was going to show them how tough he was and humiliate them. He held them up to public ridicule and made a mockery out of them; and in that sense, insulted not only them, but insulted the nation (vv. 3-4).

If the United States sends an ambassador somewhere and that ambassador is treated in a wrong way, that is not an insult to him as a person so much as it is an insult to the nation because he is there not representing himself, but the nation.

II Samuel 10:5, 7, "When they told David, he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ashamed. And the king said, 'Wait at Jericho until your beards have grown, and then return.'... Now when David heard of it, he sent Joab and all the army of the might men." David dealt with it. He sent in the army and dealt with the Ammonites (vv. 8-19). This is the way he retaliated, dealing in a carnal world with carnal people. This was the thing these people understood.

There was a time when basically the U.S. government followed this example, and we didn't have many ambassadors mistreated. If something like this happens every time your ambassador gets mistreated, there are not very many countries that "pick on" your ambassador. This is the case.

In II Samuel 11, we focus in on one of the most serious things David got into—that was the sin with Bathsheba. You know the account and how he saw Bathsheba out on her rooftop bathing (v. 2). He decided to see if Bathsheba would come over to the palace (v. 4). He arranged this rendezvous and the adultery that took place. That was compounded because Bathsheba turned up pregnant (v. 5). Because her husband Uriah was off in battle, it was going to be very apparent that it wasn't his child.

So David began to compound sin with another, thinking, 'Well, I can cover it up.' It was not just the original sin; it was the cover up, kind of like Watergate. This was kind of the Watergate of ancient Israel. He was going to have a cover up. 'I am going to get Uriah back here to spend the night at his home, and then when the child is born, nobody will know (v. 6). Well, the baby will be just a few weeks premature; nobody will be the wiser.' But as generally happens with cover ups, something goes awry.

Uriah was a soldier's soldier. He decided, no, he wasn't going to go back home and stay with his wife because all the rest of the men were out in battle (v. 9). Then David really became desperate and scared and compounded his sin even further when he gave Uriah a message to take back to Joab. The message said, 'Look, when you get in the fiercest battle, put Uriah in the front of the battle. Then you withdraw the rest of the men' (vv. 14-17). He thought, 'Put Uriah in a situation where he is going to get killed in battle to get rid of him. Let him get killed, and then as soon as it is appropriate, I will marry the widow. This will cover up the whole thing and nobody will be the wiser.' Well, of course, that's not the way it worked.

In II Samuel 12:1-7, Nathan confronts David with the seriousness of what he had done. As he went through and told the story, he ended up finally by pointing his finger and saying, 'You, Oh king, are that man' (v. 7).

I'll bet you could have heard a pin drop in there. There is no doubt that everybody all around, all the servants and guards had been gossiping about what had been going on for weeks. When you think you are hiding something and nobody knows, believe me, everybody around there who worked in the palace knew—all the guards and the maids. You can imagine something like that would spread like wildfire. Everybody was gossiping. Nobody would say it in front of the king, but they all knew what was going on. They weren't totally dumb. Ever notice sometimes people think they are going to put something over on someone. It doesn't generally work. David had gone to all this stuff to try to hide and cover up his sin. He hadn't covered it up from anybody. And then his sin was exposed in front of everyone publicly.

But one of the major reasons David was a man after God's own heart is recorded in his reaction to that. Time after time you read, particularly when someone was in a high office and they were confronted with the seriousness of what they did, they got mad at the one who confronted them. 'Boy, I'll fix you; I'll throw you in jail. I'll kill you.' That was Saul's reaction and the reaction of various kings. David didn't do that. David knew he was wrong and admitted it.

If you want to read David's reaction, go to Psalm 51. That's David's psalm of repentance, and you won't find one instance of self-justification there. David offered God no excuses. He didn't say, 'Yeah, I know I made a mistake, but she was at fault too. She shouldn't have been up there on that roof with her clothes off.' He offered no excuses. He didn't try to say other people have done the same thing and that Uriah was a clod or this or that—and Bathsheba tempted me. David offered no excuses.

In II Samuel 12:13 he said, "Then David said to Nathan, 'I have sinned against the Lord....'"

Psalm 51:4, "'Against You and You only have I sinned and done this evil in Your sight....'"

Go through Psalm 51 and read it. Contrast it with someone who was confronted with sin, going all the way back to Adam and Eve. What's the normal human reaction: blame somebody else, make excuses, try to justify yourself. 'Yeah, I know, but "so-and-so" did it, too. And they did worse than what I did. They made me do it, etc.'

David offered no excuse. Go through and read Psalm 51. I think it is a very important key to understand the importance of that reaction. What was the penalty David suffered? The penalty was that the sword was never going to depart from his house (v. 10). He was going to pay a penalty for this physically. He was going to find himself ensnared in things that were just going to go on and on.

By the time of II Samuel 13, David's kids are just about grown. Since David had all these various women, he had a bunch of children who were only half brothers and sisters. There began to be a lot of problems. One of the problems was one of the daughters, Tamar. She was a very beautiful daughter, and one of her half brothers, Amnon, wanted her (vv. 1-2). He wanted to have her. Finally, he tricked her into a situation and raped her (vv. 3-14). She turned him down and said, 'No, I don't want to have anything to do with you' (v. 12). Her brother Absalom was so infuriated by what Amnon had done that he murdered his half brother and wound up fleeing (vv. 23-34).

Years went by. Joab entreated David to forgive Absalom and let him come back.

II Samuel 14:23-24, “Joab arose and went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. And the king said, ‘Let him return to his own house, but do not let him see my face.’ So Absalom returned to his own house, but did not see the king’s face.” David wouldn’t have anything to do with him, but he let him come back. Absalom came back and was plotting vengeance.

II Samuel 15:2-6, “Now Absalom would rise early and stand beside the way to the gate. So it was, whenever anyone who had a lawsuit came to the king for a decision, that Absalom would call to him and say, ‘What city are you from?’ And he would say, ‘Your servant is from such and such a tribe of Israel.’ Then Absalom would say to him, ‘Look, your case is good and right; but there is no deputy of the king to hear you.’ Moreover Absalom would say, ‘Oh, that I were made judge in the land and everyone who has any suit or cause would come to me; then I would give him justice.’ And so it was, whenever anyone came near him to bow down to him, that he would put out his hand and take him and kiss him. In this manner Absalom acted toward all Israel who came to the king for judgment. So Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.”

Absalom began to set about trying to ingratiate himself to the people and to take over. He tried to win the hearts of the masses with political maneuvers; he had a conspiracy going to ultimately stage a coup and capture control of the government. He was going to overthrow his father.

Verses 12-14, “Then Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, David’s counselor...and the conspiracy grew strong, for the people with Absalom continually increased in number. And a messenger came to David, saying, ‘The hearts of the men of Israel are with Absalom.’ So David said to all his servants who were with him at Jerusalem, ‘Arise, and let us flee; or else we shall not escape from Absalom. Make haste to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly and bring disaster upon us, and strike the city with the edge of the sword.’” Absalom finally launched a revolution. Undoubtedly, one of the major things that affected David was he realized the consequences where his whole family was unraveling, and David lacked heart to fight against his son. He didn’t want to do that; he felt like he had brought all these things on himself. So he fled Jerusalem rather than have the city destroyed in some kind of battle. David was looking to God to somehow give him some kind of relief from this.

When we go through the battles and the situations related in chapters 16, 17, and finally in chapter 18, we find the circumstances of Absalom’s death. David had given instructions that he didn’t want Absalom killed, but what did old Joab do? He always did whatever Joab wanted to do. Absalom had long hair and only cut it once a year. He was racing through the woods trying to get away and got tangled up in an oak tree (KJV, 18:9). As the result, he couldn’t get out of the brush and was dangling up there. Someone went and told Joab, and Joab came up there and murdered him (vv. 10, 14-15). He just stabbed him through. Joab figured that was what needed to be done, and he did it.

One of the things you note here, Joab didn’t have any compunctions about doing what he wanted, whether that was the instructions or not. Joab figured David was wrong. He said, ‘This kid’s a punk; he ought to be executed. He’s a troublemaker; I never should have brought him back here.’ So we see this situation.

Let’s conclude here by noting some of the greatest strengths and weaknesses of David and contrasting them with some of the greatest strengths and weaknesses of Joab.

David evidenced many positive characteristics: faith, loyalty, zeal and wholeheartedness. I think these were certainly some of the most outstanding characteristics that David evidenced. He showed great faith, great loyalty, a tremendous amount of zeal and wholeheartedness in what he did. Perhaps his greatest failing was as a family man. He had a weakness in this area and a weakness for women. He did, frankly, a poor job of childrearing. Part of the problem was that he often allowed emotion to rule him. Rather than his head ruling the heart, his heart rules the head. You see, that is the problem.

God has given us both. God has given us a mind and He has given us emotions. We are a combination of mind and emotion, of head and heart, but when the heart rules the head, you have trouble. The head is intended to rule the heart. It’s not emotionless rule, but it is a matter that when we act on impulse and act emotionally to things rather than thinking it through, we are going to suffer the consequences.

The result of this impulsiveness and emotionalism that was often there led to a lack of consistency and got David into some problems. It caused him to get involved in things that had long-term consequences. He exemplified a tremendous amount of faith, loyalty, zeal and wholeheartedness; God greatly honored and appreciated David for these qualities. But God does not gloss over the weaknesses of David. David had many family problems, and we will note some of those a little bit further. David learned many of those lessons, but by the time David really got the point, most of his kids were pretty well grown. He couldn't go back and undo what he had done. Many of these things David taught Solomon, and undoubtedly, a lot of it is reflected in what Solomon says in the book of Proverbs. Solomon was the son of David's old age. Solomon was young; he was just a teenager when he sat on the throne. The other children were much older and had gotten into trouble as a result of David being too busy to tend to things at home.

Joab also had great strengths and weaknesses. He had tremendous courage and personal bravery. You couldn't find anyone more courageous and brave, but he had a treacherous streak. Perhaps his greatest failing was his inability to carry out orders properly. He was stubborn and insisted on doing things his own way. He was self-willed. He was right and the world was wrong. If he thought he was right, he didn't care if the boss said otherwise—he was going to do it his way. That led him to an untimely end.

As we look at some of this, it is important that we realize that God has a reason for recording both positive and negative characteristics, the strengths and the weaknesses of these individuals. God wants us to learn from these examples. We gain insight and learn lessons if we are able to read and see ourselves in some of these things. We can see things that we have done, and to the extent that we look and learn from the examples of others, we don't have to make the same mistakes and reap the same consequences.

Here we set the stage with the expanding out of Israel and the firm establishment of the throne. We set the stage for Israel to reach its height, its pinnacle, under the time of King Solomon. We will go into some of that in the next Bible study as we see what advances as God has created a nation under the rulership of King David and his descendants. With that we will be concluded this evening.

Old Testament Series—II Samuel 21—24, I Kings 1—11, I Chronicles 21—29 and II Chronicles 1—9

Last Bible study we were in II Samuel and the life of David. This evening we are primarily focusing in on King Solomon. It was during his reign that Israel reached its height and was the recipient of the choicest bounties of heaven. His kingdom stretched from the Euphrates to Egypt. Ezion Geber was an industrial city. The kingdom of Solomon set astride all the great trade routes of Europe.

The first part of King Solomon's reign was, in reality, a type of the millennial reign. The name "Solomon" means "peace." One of the statements made of the reign of Solomon and characteristic of it was that "each man under his vine and under his fig tree" (I Kings 4:25).

Micah 4:4, "But everyone shall sit under his vine and under his fig tree, and no one shall make them afraid...." It refers to the Millennium.

It was a time of abundance, wealth and prosperity in ancient Israel. Solomon hired and contracted Phoenician sailors. They even conducted expeditions to the new world. The Phoenician alphabet was very similar to the Hebrew. So literally, Solomon's navy had a worldwide impact. Solomon's navy left out of a port on the Red Sea and three years later came back to a port on the Mediterranean Sea. They circumnavigated the earth. Solomon's fleet returned every three years.

The story of Solomon's life from God's perspective is found in Ecclesiastes. In the midst of blessings and prosperity, there are also potential problems. This section and the parallel account in Chronicles is the time that we find the building of the temple. The tabernacle had been situated in various locations, but at this time there was a permanent structure built. David had desired to build it. He had been a man of war, and because of certain things, God did not want him to build it.

There was a courtyard that enclosed the temple itself, and then you had the temple. To get an idea of the temple, the actual inner part was a rectangular that measured ninety feet by thirty feet. The Holy of Holies was actually a cube thirty feet by thirty feet by thirty feet. The Holy Place measured sixty feet by thirty feet by forty-five feet. Surrounding the temple on two sides and the rear were rooms or apartments. Remember when Christ made the statement, John 14:2, "In My Father's house are many mansions...." He called the temple "the Father's house." There were three stories with thirty-three rooms per floor. There were entrances from the front side. The roof of the temple proper was forty-five feet. The roof of the apartments on the sides and rear was thirty feet. The porch rose to a height of one hundred eighty feet. This great columned porch in front was set in a great courtyard, which was many times larger than the temple itself. In the court were the brazen laver and the altar of sacrifice. The back half would be in the inner court and was located about half way behind the two great columned porch. The priests' hall and the Israelites hall consisted of the very finest of things.

Let us get on into our material.

II Samuel 23:1-5, "Now these are the last words of David. Thus says David the son of Jesse. Thus says the man raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel: 'The Spirit of the Lord spoke by me, and His word was on my tongue. The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spoke to me: "He who rules over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be like the light of the morning when the sun rises, a morning without clouds, like the tender grass springing out of the earth, by clear shining after rain." Although my house is not so with God, yet He has made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and secure. For this is all my salvation and all my desire; will He not make it increase?'"

Verse 8, "These are the names of the mighty men whom David had:" It gives their acts of valor accomplished.

II Samuel 24:1, "Again the anger of the Lord was aroused against Israel, and he moved David against them to say, 'Go number Israel and Judah.'"

I Chronicles 21:1, "Now Satan stood up against Israel and moved David to number Israel." God wanted the nation to trust Him, not trust in the military. Satan incited him and stirred him up to do that.

II Samuel 24:3-4, "And Joab said to the king, 'Now may the Lord your God add to the people a hundredfold more than there are, and many the eyes of my lord the king see it. But why does my lord the king desire this thing?' Nevertheless the king's word prevailed against Joab and against the captains of the army. So Joab and the captains of the army went out from the presence of the king to count the people of Israel."

Verse 10, “And David’s heart condemned him after he had numbered the people. So David said to the Lord, ‘I have sinned greatly in what I have done; but now I pray, O Lord, take away the iniquity of Your servant, for I have done very foolishly.’” David was feeling guilty about it. He knew he had done the opposite of what God would want him to do.

Verses 12-13, “Go and tell David, ‘Thus says the Lord: ‘I offer you three things; choose one of them for yourself, that I may do it to you.’” So Gad came to David and told him; and he said to him, [1] ‘Shall seven years of famine come to you in your land? Or [2] shall you flee three months before your enemies, while they pursue you? Or [3] shall there be three days’ plague in your land? Now consider and see what answer I should take back to Him who sent me.’”

God gave David a choice, and “none of the above” wasn’t one of the choices. Not many of us have a chance to choose our trial.

Verse 14, “And David said to Gad, ‘I am in great distress. Please let us fall into the hand of the Lord, for His mercies are great; but do not let me fall into the hand of man.’” He chose three days of disease epidemics. He would rather take his chances of falling into the hands of God. He would rather be dependent upon God’s mercy than man’s mercy.

Verse 16 (KJV), “...the Lord repented him of the evil and said to the angel...” What does that mean “the Lord repented”? Did God make a mistake? No, let’s understand these words. “Repent” literally means “to be sorry” and the word “evil” is a word that means “adversity, calamity or affliction.” What it means is that God felt pity. He looked down and had pity and mercy on what was happening.

Verse 16 (NKJ), “And when the angel stretched out his hand over Jerusalem to destroy it, the Lord relented from the destruction...”

Verse 17, “Then David spoke to the Lord when he saw the angel who was striking the people, and said, ‘Surely I have sinned, and I have done wickedly; but these sheep, what have they done? Let Your hand, I pray, be against me and against my father’s house.’”

‘It is my fault. Let it be against my family. Spare them.’ Where do you ever find Saul saying it is his fault? Ever see people where it was never their fault, always somebody else’s fault. Everything they encounter is somebody else’s fault. There was the inability to repent and change from the mistakes because he never took responsibility for anything. David made mistakes, but he took responsibility for those mistakes, and he repented and grew. God was preparing him for a job. God has an overview of things. Why do we do things this way? God knows what He is doing and what He is accomplishing. He is far more concerned about the long-range outcome on out into eternity.

Verses 18-25, “And Gad came that day to David and said to him, ‘Go up, erect an altar to the Lord on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.’ So David, according to the word of Gad, went up as the Lord commanded. Now Araunah looked, and saw the king and his servants coming toward him. So Araunah went out and bowed before the king with his face to the ground. Then Araunah said, ‘Why has my lord the king come to his servant?’ And David said, ‘To buy the threshing floor from you, to build an altar to the Lord, that the plague may be withdrawn from the people.’ Now Araunah said to David, ‘Let my lord the king take and offer up whatever seems good to him. Look, here are oxen for burnt sacrifice, and threshing implements and the yokes of the oxen for wood. All these, O king, Araunah has given to the king.’ And Araunah said to the king, ‘May the Lord your God accept you.’ Then the king said to Araunah, ‘No, but I will surely buy it from you for a price, nor will I offer burnt offerings to the Lord my God with that which cost me nothing.’ So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver. And David built there an altar to the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. So the Lord heeded the prayers for the land, and the plague was withdrawn from Israel.”

I Kings 1:1, “Now King David was old, advanced in years; and they put covers on him, but he could not get warm.” David had loss of body heat; he had health problems.

Verse 5, “Now Adonijah the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, ‘I will be king’; and he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him.” He figured he was next in line.

Verse 6, “(And his father had not rebuked him at any time by saying, ‘Why have you done so?’ He was also a very good-looking man. His mother had borne him after Absalom.)” He was a spoiled brat. His father had never put his foot down. Many of the problems David encountered later in life with his children came from his child rearing. He was entangled with various women. When a person is not really fulfilling his responsibilities at home, they try to make it up to their kids by giving them things instead of their time. They try to compensate by giving them things. His kids had not been properly disciplined, and by the time he learned his lesson, they were grown. David couldn't turn the clock back twenty-five years. He never called Adonijah into account for what he did; he was a spoiled brat who thought he could do what he wanted to do.

Adonijah was the younger brother of Absalom. David was dying and there began to be a power struggle. Adonijah was trying to take the kingdom. This was not God's intention. It was apparent that God had already chosen Solomon. Solomon was a young teenager at this time; he was not even grown. God had made plain to David through the prophet that it was to be Solomon.

Verses 33-35, "The king also said to them, 'Take with you the servants of your lord, and have Solomon my son ride on my own mule, and take him down to Gihon. There let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him king over Israel; and blow the horn, and say, 'Long live King Solomon!' Then you shall come up after him, and he shall come and sit on my throne, and he shall be king in my place. For I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and Judah.'"

Solomon is brought in and seated on the throne while David is yet alive. David did not wait until after he died for Solomon to be anointed as king. It was important that the succession be established before the leader died. If the selection is not clear, then you are going to have confusion, and we know who the author of confusion is.

Verses 50-52, "Now Adonijah was afraid of Solomon; so he arose, and went and took hold of the horns of the altar. And it was told Solomon, saying, 'Indeed Adonijah is afraid of King Solomon; for look, he has taken hold of the horns of the altar, saying, 'Let King Solomon swear to me today that he will not put his servant to death with the sword.'" Then Solomon said, 'If he proves himself a worthy man, not one hair of him shall fall to the earth; but if wickedness is found in him, he shall die.'"

I Kings 2:1-2, "Then the days of David drew near that he should die, and he charged Solomon his son, saying: 'I go the way of all the earth; be strong, therefore, and prove yourself a man.'" He charged Solomon. He is talking to one who is still a young teenager. He is talking to a young person who is going to be taking the throne.

Verses 3-4, "'And keep the charge of the Lord your God: to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, His commandments, His judgments, and His testimonies, as it is written in the Law of Moses, that you may prosper in all that you do and wherever you turn; that the Lord may fulfill His word which He spoke concerning me, saying, 'If your sons take heed to their way, to walk before Me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul,'" He said, "you shall not lack a man on the throne of Israel.'" He gives him some final advice as to how to handle certain problems (vv. 5-9).

Verses 10-11, "So David rested with his fathers, and was buried in the City of David. The period that David reigned over Israel was forty years; seven years he reigned in Hebron, and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years."

I Chronicles 22:1-5, "Then David said, 'This is the house of the Lord God, and this is the altar of burnt offering for Israel.' So David commanded to gather the aliens who were in the land of Israel; and he appointed masons to cut hewn stones to build the house of God. And David prepared iron in abundance for the nails of the doors of the gates and for the joints, and bronze in abundance beyond measure, and cedar trees in abundance; for the Sidonians and those from Tyre brought much cedar wood to David. Now David said, 'Solomon my son is young and inexperienced, and the house that is to be built for the Lord must be exceedingly magnificent, famous and glorious throughout all countries, I will now make preparation for it.' David made abundant preparations before his death."

Verses 6-9, "Then he called for his son Solomon, and charged him to build a house for the Lord God of Israel. And David said to Solomon: 'My son, as for me, it was in my mind to build a house to the name of the Lord my God; but the word of the Lord came to me, saying, 'You have shed much blood and have made great wars; you shall not build a house for My name, because you have shed much blood on the earth in My sight. Behold, a son shall be born to you, who shall be a man of rest; and I will give him rest from all his enemies all around. His name shall be Solomon, for I will give peace and quietness to Israel in his days.'" "Solomon" is derived from "Shalom" which means "peaceful."

Verses 10-12, "'He shall build a house for My name, and he shall be My son, and I will be his Father; and I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel forever.'" Now my son, may the Lord be with you; and may you prosper, and build the house of the Lord your God, as He has said to you. Only may the Lord give you wisdom and understanding, and give you charge concerning Israel, that you may keep the law of the Lord your God.'" He continually reminded him, 'Obey God, put God first, keep the Commandments, and God will bless you and back you up.'

Verses 13-14, "Then you will prosper, if you take care to fulfill the statutes and judgments with which the Lord charged Moses concerning Israel. Be strong and of good courage, do not fear nor be dismayed. Indeed I have taken much trouble to prepare for the house of the Lord one hundred thousand talents of gold and one million talents of silver, and bronze and iron beyond measure, for it is so abundant. I have prepared timber and stone also, and you may add to them." He did all of these things to prepare. There were millions of dollars in gold in today's prices.

I Chronicles 23:1-5, "So when David was old and full of days, he made his son Solomon king over Israel. And he gathered together all the leaders of Israel, with the priests and the Levites, Now the Levites were numbered from the age of thirty years and above; and the number of individual males was thirty-eight thousand. Of these, twenty-four thousand were to look after the work of the house of the Lord, six thousand were officers and judges, four thousand were gatekeepers, and four thousand praised the Lord with musical instruments, 'which I made,' said David, 'for giving praise.'" Talk about a choir, a gigantic orchestra and choir of four thousand.

Verse 6, "And David divided them into divisions [courses] among the sons of Levi..." They couldn't crowd in and do this all at one time, so David divided them into courses. There were twenty-four courses (I Chronicles 24:18). Each course served for two weeks and rotated, and then they all served together during the Festival seasons. It would take in the whole year. They could rotate through.

Understand this and look at the book of Luke.

Luke 1:5, "There was in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zechariah, of the division of Abijah. His wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth." Zechariah was ministering in the temple in his course, which was the eighth course (division) of Ahijah. The Sabbath-to-Sabbath rotation began the first Sabbath of Nisan. Course one served the first week; course two, the second week. All priests served during the three annual Festivals, so all the divisions served the week of Passover. Course three served the fourth week; course four served the fifth week, etc. The course Abijah was on duty was at the beginning of the ninth week. The following week was Pentecost, so he would have remained for the tenth week as well.

In vv. 23-24, when his course was finished he went home. John the Baptist was conceived shortly afterwards. Nine months later would be spring.

In v. 36, John was six months older than Jesus Christ, thus Jesus was born in the fall. You can derive the time of Christ's birth within a few weeks, through the courses, another proof that Christ was clearly born in the fall. It's a matter of putting together what the Bible itself gives.

I Chronicles 24 lists the divisions of the priests and the various functions. Things needed to be organized and David is trying to get things organized prior to his death.

I Chronicles 25 names the musicians to go with the twenty-four divisions.

I Chronicles 26 lists the gatekeepers.

I Chronicles 27 details the military divisions, the leaders of tribes and other officials.

I Chronicles 28:1-11, "Now David assembled at Jerusalem all the leaders of Israel: the officers of the tribes and the captains of the divisions who served the king, the captains over thousands and captains over hundreds, and the stewards over all the substance and possessions of the king and of his sons, with the officials, the valiant men, and all the mighty men of valor. Then King David rose to his feet and said, 'Hear me, my brethren and my people: I had it in my heart to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and for the footstool of our God, and had made preparations to build it. But God said to me, "You shall not build a house for My name, because you have been a man of war and have shed blood." However the Lord God of Israel chose me above all the house of my father to be king over Israel forever, for He has chosen Judah to be the ruler; and of the house of Judah, the house of my father, and among the sons of my father, he was pleased with me to make me king over all Israel. And of all my sons (for the Lord has given me many sons) He has chosen my son Solomon to sit on the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel. Now He said to me, "It is your son Solomon who shall build My house and My courts; for I have chosen him to be My son, and I will be his Father. Moreover I will establish his kingdom forever, if he is steadfast to observe My commandments and My judgments, as it is this day." Now therefore, in the sight of all Israel, the congregation of the Lord, and in the hearing of our God, be careful to seek out all the commandments of the Lord your God, that you may possess this good land, and leave it as an inheritance for your children after you forever. As for you, my son Solomon, know the God of your father, and serve Him with a loyal heart and with a willing mind; for the Lord searches all hearts and understands all the intent of the thoughts. If you seek Him, He will be found by you; but if you forsake Him, He will cast you off forever. Consider now, for the Lord has chosen you to build a house for the sanctuary, be strong, and do it.’ Then David gave his son Solomon the plans for the vestibule, its houses, its treasuries, its upper chambers, its inner chambers, and the place of the mercy seat.” He gave him all this instruction.

Verse 13, “also for the division of the priests and the Levites, for all the work of the service of the house of the Lord, and for all the articles of service in the house of the Lord.” He gave him the courses of the Levites.

Verses 19-20, “‘All this,’ said David, ‘the Lord made me understand in writing, by His hand upon me, all the works of these plans.’ And David said to his son Solomon, ‘be strong and of good courage, and do it; do not fear nor be dismayed, for the Lord God—my God—will be with you. He will not leave you nor forsake you, until you have finished all the work for the service of the house of the Lord.’”

I Chronicles 29:1-2, “Furthermore King David said to all the congregation: ‘My son Solomon, whom alone God has chosen, is young and inexperienced; and the work is great, because the temple is not for man but for the Lord God. Now for the house of my God I have prepared with all my might....’” Solomon was the only one of David’s children that God chose to work through. David had prepared all these things.

Verses 7-9, “They gave for the work of the house of God five thousand talents and ten thousand darics of gold, ten thousand talents of silver, eighteen thousand talents of bronze, and one hundred thousand of iron...precious stones...Then the people rejoiced, for they had offered willingly, because with a loyal heart they had offered willingly to the Lord; and King David also rejoiced greatly.”

Notice what David prayed to God after this. Verses 10-15, “Therefore David blessed the Lord before all the congregation; and David said: ‘Blessed are You, Lord God of Israel, our Father, forever and ever. Yours, O Lord, is the greatness, the power and the glory, the victory and the majesty, for all that is in heaven and in earth is Yours; Yours is the kingdom, O Lord, and You are exalted as head over all. Both riches and honor come from You, and You reign over all. In Your hand is power and might; in Your hand it is to make great and to give strength to all. Now therefore, our God, we thank You and praise Your glorious name. But who am I, and who are my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly as this? For all things come from You, and of Your own we have given You. For we are aliens and pilgrims before You, as were all our fathers; our days on earth are as a shadow, and without hope.’”

‘We thank you God for the chance to give an offering because everything we have is Yours.’ When we give an offering, we give God what He has already given us. So we see the end of David’s reign here.

Verses 26-28, “Thus David the son of Jesse reigned over all Israel. And the period that he reigned over Israel was forty years; seven years he reigned in Hebron, and thirty-three years he reigned in Jerusalem. So he died in a good old age, full of days and riches and honor; and Solomon his son reigned in his place.”

II Chronicles 1:3, “Then Solomon, and all the congregation with him, went to the high place that was at Gibeon; for the tabernacle of meeting with God was there, which Moses the servant of the Lord had made in the wilderness.”

Verses 6-7, “And Solomon went up there to the bronze altar before the Lord, which was at the tabernacle of meeting, and offered a thousand burnt offerings on it. On that night God appeared to Solomon, and said to him, ‘Ask! What shall I give you?’” God gave to Solomon a vision that night, and said, ‘Ask whatever you want, and I will give it to you.’

Verse 10, “‘Now give me wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people; for who can judge this great people of Yours?’” Solomon, of course, asked for wisdom. He lacked wisdom, but one thing he wanted was wisdom to be the king.

Verses 11-12, “And God said to Solomon: ‘Because this was in your heart, and you have not asked riches or wealth or honor or the life of your enemies, nor have you asked long life—but have asked wisdom and knowledge for yourself, that you may judge My people over whom I have made you king—wisdom and knowledge are granted to you; and I will give you riches and wealth and honor, such as none of the kings have had who have been before you, nor shall any after you have the like.’” ‘You didn’t ask for riches, long life, etc. I am going to give you great wisdom and many other things.’ Wealth increased tremendously.

II Chronicles 2:1-2, “Then Solomon determined to build a temple for the name of the Lord, and a royal house for himself. Solomon selected seventy thousand men to bear burdens, eighty thousand to quarry stone in the mountains, and three thousand six hundred to oversee them.” This describes the work force put together to build the temple and royal house.

II Chronicles 3:1-2, “Now Solomon began to build the house of the Lord at Jerusalem on Mount Moriah, where the Lord had appeared to his father David, at the place that David had prepared on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. And he began to build on the second day of the second month in the fourth year of his reign.”

Chapters 3 and 4 give details about the temple. Chapter 5 is the dedication of the temple.

II Chronicles 6:16, “Therefore, Lord God of Israel, now keep what You promised Your servant David my father, saying, “You shall not fail to have a man sit before Me on the throne of Israel, only if your sons take heed to their way, to walk in My law as you have walked before Me.”” God’s promise to Solomon, there will not fail to have one to sit on the throne of Israel.

II Chronicles 7:8-9, “At that time Solomon kept the Feast seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great congregation from the entrance of Hamath to the Brook of Egypt. And on the eighth day they held a sacred assembly, for they observed the dedication of the altar seven days, and the feast seven days.” The dedication of the temple and the eighth day they made a solemn assembly.

Verse 11, “Thus Solomon finished the house of the Lord and the king’s house; and Solomon successfully accomplished all that came into his heart to make in the house of the Lord and in his own house.” God warned Solomon not to turn away.

Verses 14-22, “if My people who are called by My name will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land. Now My eyes will be open and My ears attentive to prayer made in this place. For now I have chosen and sanctified this house, that My name may be there forever; and My eyes and My heart will be there perpetually. As for you, if you walk before Me as your father David walked, and do according to all that I have commanded you, and if you keep My statutes and My judgments, then I will establish the throne of your kingdom, as I covenanted with David your father, saying, “You shall never fail to have a man as ruler in Israel.” But if you turn away and forsake My statutes and My commandments which I have set before you, and go and serve other gods, and worship them, then I will uproot them from My land which I have given them; and this house which I have sanctified for My name I will cast out of My sight, and will make it to be a proverb and a byword among all nations. And as for this house, which is exalted, everyone who passes by it will be astonished and say, “Why has the Lord done thus to this land and this house?” Then they will answer, “Because they forsook the Lord God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and embraced other gods, and worshiped them and served them; therefore He has brought all this calamity on them.”” God warns Solomon not to turn away.

I Kings 4:21, “So Solomon reigned over all kingdoms from the [Euphrates] River to the land of the Philistines, as far as the border of Egypt...” Solomon reigned from the Euphrates River to the Egyptian border. He ruled over a tremendous area.

Verse 24, “For he had dominion over all the region on this side of the River from Tiphshah even to Gaza, namely over all the kings on this side of the River; and he had peace on every side all around him.” He ruled over everything west of the Euphrates and had peace on all sides.

Verse 25, “And Judah and Israel dwelt safely, each man under his vine and his fig tree, from Dan as far as Beersheba, all the days of Solomon.” This is a picture of the Millennium.

Verses 29-33, “And God gave Solomon wisdom and exceedingly great understanding, and largeness of heart like the sand on the seashore. Thus Solomon’s wisdom exceeded the wisdom of all the men of the East and all the wisdom of Egypt. For he was wiser than all men...and his fame was in all the surrounding nations. He spoke three thousand proverbs, and his songs were one thousand and five. Also he spoke of trees, from the cedar tree of Lebanon even to the hyssop that springs out of the wall; he spoke also of animals, of birds, of creeping things, and of fish.” He was an expert. He could tell you about everything from plants to shrubs, fish and creeping things. He knew about everything.

Verse 34, “And men of all nations, from all the kings of the earth who had heard of his wisdom, came to hear the wisdom of Solomon.” He had a tremendous reputation. He excelled everyone everywhere. God gave Solomon exceptional wisdom and knowledge.

I Kings 5 describes some of the things that occurred.

I Kings 6:1, “And it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel had come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon’s reign over Israel, in the month of Ziv, which is the second month, that he began to build the house of the Lord.”

We come to a verse that is important in establishing the chronology of the Bible. The reason this is essential, this verse put together with Exodus 12:41, “And it came to pass at the end of four hundred thirty years—on that very same day—it came to pass, that all the armies of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt.” The four hundred thirty years began with the confirming of the covenant made with Abraham when he was ninety-nine years old (Genesis 17:1-10). If you didn’t have this verse, you would have to wade through the book of Judges and some of the judges overlap. The fourth year of Solomon was the four hundred eightieth year of the Exodus. Then you can add the forty years of David and Saul, the wandering in the wilderness and the time you have for all the judges to fit in. From the time of Solomon’s reign down to the time of the captivity is an easier way to document it. Then we have I Kings 6:1 that gives you the time that elapsed between the Exodus and King Solomon. With those two verses you can jump back almost a thousand years in chronology.

Verse 7, “And the temple, when it was being built, was built with stone finished at the quarry, so that no hammer or chisel or any iron tool was heard in the temple while it was being built.” I want to quickly call your attention to that. God had the temple made as a pattern of something spiritual. What is God doing now? He is building a spiritual temple.

Ephesians 2:20-22, “having been built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief cornerstone, in whom the whole building, being joined together, grows into a holy temple in the Lord, in whom you also are being built together for a habitation of God in the Spirit.”

Peter tells us we are living stones.

I Peter 2:5, “you also, as living stones, are being built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.” When is that temple going to be assembled? It will be assembled in the resurrection. All the rough edges are being hammered off now. When the stones got to the construction site, it fit. It was cut to order. God is not going to squeeze us in there. He is knocking off the rough edges now. Jesus Christ is the Chief Cornerstone. Everything else has to start around that.

I Kings 6:38, “And in the eleventh year, in the month of Bul, which is the eighth month, the house was finished in all its details and according to all its plans. So he was seven years in building it.” It was finished in seven years.

I Kings 7:1, “But Solomon took thirteen years to build his own house; so he finished all his house.” He was building his own house thirteen years.

I Kings 8 is a parallel account of the dedication of the temple as noted in Chronicles.

I Kings 9:4-9, ““Now if you walk before Me as your father David walked, in integrity of heart and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded you, and if you keep My statutes and My judgments, then I will establish the throne of your kingdom over Israel forever, as I promised David your father, saying, “You shall not fail to have a man on the throne of Israel.” But if you or your sons at all turn from following Me, and do not keep My commandments and My statutes which I have set before you, but go and serve other gods and worship them, then I will cut off Israel from the land which I have given them; and this house which I have sanctified for My name I will cast out of My sight. Israel will be a proverb and a byword among all peoples. And this house will be exalted; yet everyone who passes by it will be astonished and will hiss, and say, “Why has the Lord done thus to this land and to this house?” Then they will answer, “Because they forsook the Lord their God, who brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have embraced other gods, and worshiped them and served them; therefore the Lord has brought all this calamity on them.”””

Verse 10, “Now it happened at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the Lord and the king’s house...”

Verse 26, “King Solomon also built a fleet of ships at Ezion Geber, which is near Elath on the shore of the Red Sea, in the land of Edom.” Phoenician sailors.

Notice something that I think is interesting; notice what the Queen of Sheba noticed about the people around Solomon.

I Kings 10:8, ““Happy are your men and happy are these your servants, who stand continually before you and hear your wisdom.””

Verses 6-7, “Then she said to the king: ‘It was a true report which I heard in my own land about your words and your wisdom. However I did not believe the words until I came and saw it with my own eyes; and indeed the half was not told me. Your wisdom and prosperity exceed the fame of which I heard.” Generally, you hear something and it gets stretched. But she found out she had not even heard everything. ‘It is better than I thought.’

Verse 22, “For the king had merchant ships [ships of Tarshish] at sea with the fleet of Hiram. Once every three years the merchant ships came bringing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and monkeys.” Tarshish is the area of Spain.

Verses 23-24, “So King Solomon surpassed all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom. And all the earth sought the presence of Solomon to hear his wisdom, which God had put in his heart.”

Verses 25-27, “Each man brought his present; articles of silver and gold, garments, armor, spices, horses and mules, at a set rate year by year. And Solomon gathered chariots and horsemen; he had one thousand four hundred chariots and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he stationed in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedars as abundant as the sycamores which are in the lowland...” Silver was so plentiful it had almost lost its value. He had tremendous wealth and prosperity; everything was going for him.

Ever notice so many times when people have everything going for them, this turns out to be a problem. It gets their eyes off God. And that is what has happened to this nation. God has given us everything. God has given us the choicest bounties of heaven. Have we really appreciated it and given God the credit?

All of this leads us up to the rest of the story and that is what we begin to notice in chapter 11.

I Kings 11:1-4, “But King Solomon loved many foreign women, as well as the daughter of Pharaoh: women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians, and Hittites—from the nations of whom the Lord had said to the children of Israel, ‘You shall not intermarry with them, nor they with you. For surely they will turn away your hearts after their gods.’ And he had seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines; and his wives turned away his heart. For it was so, when Solomon was old, that his wives turned his heart after other gods; and his heart was not loyal to the Lord his God, as was the heart of his father David.” He had a thousand women, and his wives turned away his heart after other gods. His mind began to get on pleasing them and was pulled in a thousand ways. It goes to show that a person can have a gigantic blind spot. He had a weakness and indulged himself.

Verses 5-8, “For Solomon went after Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, and after Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. Solomon did evil in the sight of the Lord, and did not fully follow the Lord, as did his father David. Then Solomon built a high place for Chemosh the abomination of Moab, on the hill that is east of Jerusalem, and for Molech the abomination of the people of Ammon. And he did likewise for all his foreign wives, who burned incense and sacrificed to their gods.” They wanted him to build places for them.

God was angry.

Verses 9-10, “So the Lord became angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned from the Lord God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice, and had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods; but he did not keep what the Lord commanded.” God saw the problem coming and warned him not to go after other gods.

Verses 11-12, “Therefore the Lord said to Solomon, ‘Because you have done this, and have not kept My covenant and My statutes, which I have commanded you, I will surely tear the kingdom away from you and give it to your servant. Nevertheless I will not do it in your day, for the sake of your father David; but I will tear it out of the hand of your son.’” He said, ‘I am going to rend the kingdom from you and give it to your servant—not in your lifetime but at the time of your son.’

Verse 13, “‘However I will not tear away the whole kingdom, but I will give one tribe to your son for the sake of my servant David, and for the sake of Jerusalem which I have chosen.’” God said, ‘All right, I am going to remove the blessings. I will not do it one hundred percent because of your father.’ There began to be problems here in the later years of Solomon. What we find prophesied is going to happen. His son, Rehoboam would only reign over Judah.

Verses 26-39, “Then Solomon’s servant, Jeroboam the son of Nebat, an Ephraimite from Zereda, whose mother’s name was Zeruah, a widow, also rebelled against the king. And this is what caused him to rebel against the king; Solomon had built the Millo and repaired the damages to the City of David his father. The man Jeroboam was a mighty man of valor; and Solomon, seeing that the young man was industrious, made him the officer over all the labor force of the house of Joseph. Now it happened at that time, when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, that the prophet Ahijah the Shilonite met him on the way; and he had clothed himself with a new garment, and the two were alone in the field. Then Ahijah took hold of the new garment that was on him, and tore it into twelve pieces. And he said to Jeroboam, 'Take for yourself ten pieces, for thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: "Behold, I will tear the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon and will give ten tribes to you (but he shall have one tribe for the sake of My servant David, and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel), because they have forsaken Me, and worshiped Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the people of Ammon, and have not walked in My ways to do what is right in My eyes and keep My statutes and My judgments, as did his father David. However I will not take the whole kingdom out of his hand, because I have made him ruler all the days of his life for the sake of My servant David, whom I chose because he kept My commandments and My statutes. But I will take the kingdom out of his son's hand and give it to you—ten tribes. And to his son I will give one tribe, that My servant David may always have a lamp before Me in Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen for Myself, to put My name there. So I will take you, and you shall reign over all your heart desires, and you shall be king over Israel. Then it shall be, if you heed all that I command you, walk in My ways, and do what is right in My sight, to keep My statutes and My commandments, as My servant David did, then I will give Israel to you. And I will afflict the descendants of David because of this, but not forever.'"

Verses 40-43, "Solomon therefore sought to kill Jeroboam. But Jeroboam arose and fled to Egypt, to Shishak king of Egypt, and was in Egypt until the death of Solomon. Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, all that he did, and his wisdom, are they not written in the book of the acts of Solomon? And the period that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years. Then Solomon rested with his fathers, and was buried in the City of David his father. And Rehoboam his son reigned in his place." Rehoboam reigned over Judah.

II Chronicles 8 and 9 give the account of the Queen of Sheba coming to Jerusalem, the end of Solomon's reign and his death in II Chronicles 9:30-31.

There are a lot of lessons to gain. If you want to get some insight into Solomon's experiences, go to the book of Ecclesiastes. Solomon could not take God's word for it. The way to prove God's way is to do it. Do it and see if it works.

Malachi 3:10, "'Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be food in My house, and prove [test] Me now in this, if I will not open for you the windows of heaven and pour out for you such blessing that there will not be room enough to receive it.'"

The way Solomon tried to prove God's way was to go out and do the opposite, and then he wanted to see if he got the curses. Solomon's experiments were to see if there was some other way. Solomon lived his life and at the end said, 'Fear God and keep His Commandments; that is what it's all about' (Ecclesiastes 12:13). Solomon lived a life of experience. He said, 'There is nothing you can do that I haven't already done—nothing on a grander scale.'

The Bible contains the ups and downs of those with whom God was working, and written down as examples for us. We can look, learn and understand; we are able to grasp the things that God is doing and are able to understand what God was accomplishing in these people's lives. We can go through Solomon's life and understand these lessons. We don't have to "reinvent the wheel" and do it the hard way. In many ways, Solomon's life is a very sad account of an individual who had so much going for him, and yet he began to look into the wrong places for fulfillment and satisfaction. It should give us some insight as to the pitfalls.

Solomon's reign also shows parallels to the Millennium. A lot of prosperity and abundance can be a dangerous thing. We can never take prosperity for granted. It is a matter of being thankful and appreciative.

If we allow ourselves to begin to compromise, we are on a dangerous road. It leads to compromise in other areas. Solomon's entanglements with all these women began a path of compromise. Once you start compromising, you are going in a direction that leads to more and more compromise.

It sets the stage for the period of history that we are going into next, the time of the divided kingdom and the ups and the downs. This sets the stage for it. This is how the nation got into this. Blessings come from God. God gives them and God can remove them.

From this we have the closing period of King David's reign and somewhat of a perspective of the time of King Solomon. We are going to finish the book of I Kings next time. Go through and read it. If there are areas where you have questions, make note of them. The idea is to give you an overview, a survey, of this period of Bible history.

Old Testament Series—I Kings 12—22, II Kings
1—2, II Chronicles 10—20

I have another sheet that I will pass out to you that I think will also aid in the material that we are covering this evening. We are continuing our Bible study, our historical survey of the Old Testament. We are completing the first book of Kings. The handout we are passing out is a chronology of the kings of Judah and Israel. We are getting more into the historical section with the completing of the book of I Kings and going into quite a bit of detail on the history of many of the kings of Israel and Judah in the aftermath of King Solomon's death. I think this particular chart will be of help to you.

If you will notice, this chart covers approximately a five hundred-year period. It begins at the time of King David and comes down through David and his son, Solomon. We spent several Bible studies going through the material about Saul and David and then the last time on Solomon. We note that in some of these areas, God spends a lot of time. There are a lot of details that are given on the lives of certain individuals, and then as we come down, speed picks up. God devotes a lot less space and attention to certain of these individuals. We are going to cover some of this tonight.

The date 922 B.C. was a significant date because that date reflected the death of King Solomon and the division of the kingdom. Israel, of course, was twelve tribes. They had been united under the kingship of Saul who was the first king. And then we have the death of Saul. If you remember, there was a temporary split in the kingdom because the northern ten tribes clung to the dynasty of Saul for a period of seven years. They went along for a while under the dynasty of Saul. Judah recognized David as king. He had been the one who had been anointed king by Samuel at an earlier time. Judah recognized David as king while the northern tribes recognized the dynasty of Saul. This continued along for about seven years then there was reconciliation after the assassination of Saul's son by some of his servants. The ten tribes sent emissaries down to David and said, 'Look, we would like to reunite the kingdom. We would like for you to be king over all of us.'

So the entire twelve tribes were reunited under David. David reigned forty years. We went through the ups and downs of his life and many of the lessons that God would have us to draw from that. We saw that at the time of David's death, God chose David's son Solomon to sit on his father's throne. Solomon inherited that throne. God made a covenant with David, a covenant of a perpetual kingship. God made a promise to David that if his descendants did not obey Him and did not follow the covenant that God had made, He would deal with them. He would punish them. God would punish them with the rod of men, but God would not deal with them as He dealt with Saul and remove His mercy from him. So there was a distinction. God said He would not take away the kingship from David's dynasty. God had made a promise; 'I have made a covenant with you, but on the other hand, I will punish them if they do not obey.' God would deal with them. God admonished Solomon. Solomon, of course, in his later years got into a variety of problems. Solomon's "chickens came home to roost," so to speak.

We pick up the story this evening with the death of Solomon. Solomon's son Rehoboam is to be the next king. Now, what we find is that what Solomon sowed was reaped by his son. It's important to realize that what we do can certainly have implications, not only for us, but also for those who come after us.

I Kings 11:42-43, "And the period that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years, and he slept with his fathers and was buried in the City of David. And Rehoboam his son reigned in his place."

I Kings 12:1, "Rehoboam went up to Shechem, for all Israel had gone to Shechem to make him king."

Now there was a man with whom Solomon had trouble. He was a servant of Solomon, had gotten into problems and had proved to be a "thorn in the side," as far as Solomon was concerned. His name was Jeroboam, the son of Nebat. He had been exiled to Egypt (vv. 2-3). When he heard about the death of Solomon, he decided he was going to come back. He was going to come in and, in effect, run for election. He was going to try to get in on the action. He knew that Solomon had control over things that he could not overthrow; but now there was a period of transition, and Jeroboam was going to come back and see what he could "stir up."

Verses 4-5, "'Your father made our yoke heavy; now therefore, lighten the burdensome service of your father, and his heavy yoke which he put on us, and we will serve you.’ So he said to them, ‘Depart for three days, then come back to me.’ And the people departed.”

What you had here was the same thing that people have been griping about ever since. If you heard the news, it’s what they were griping about in the legislature today—and that’s taxes. People have been complaining about high taxes. You remember when the people requested a king? Remember we went through that in I Samuel 8. When the people requested a king and Samuel was upset, God said, ‘Look, Samuel, give them what they have asked for. They have not rejected you; they have rejected Me. But you tell them what it’s going to be like to have human government.’

Remember Samuel told them three things that they were going to complain about. He said, ‘Look, you are going to complain about the taxes because the first thing he is going to do is lay on a heavy levy. He is going to start taxing you, and it is going to increase. So you are going to gripe about the taxes. He’s going to institute the draft and have big armies and military spending, and he’s going to draft your sons to be soldiers. You are going to complain about that. Thirdly, he’s going to establish this great big bureaucracy, and he’s going to have all these people, this giant court, that’s going to be big government. You are going to complain about that.’

God said, ‘When you complain, I’m not going to listen because I’ve already told you this is what you’re getting into.’ And the people said, ‘No, we want a king so that we can be like all the nations.’ They wanted to be just like everybody else.

Of course, nobody today has ever said that. You’ve never heard any of your children say that, have you? ‘Why, everybody has one; everybody does it. Why can’t we be just like everybody else?’ That’s what Israel said. There’s nothing new under the sun. It’s the same old excuses that have probably run back since the Garden of Eden. There’s nothing new. That’s what Israel said, ‘Oh, we want to be just like all the nations.’ So the result of it was that God gave them a king.

It started out where Saul instituted taxes. They increased and increased, and by the time of Solomon’s death, the taxes were high. What you have here is the original tax revolt. They came and demanded lower taxes—Proposition 13 or whatever you want to call it. They were going to have lower taxes.

Verse 6, “Then King Rehoboam consulted the elders who stood before his father Solomon while he still lived, and he said, ‘How do you advise me to answer these people?’” Rehoboam consulted with the old men that had been advisors to his father.

Verse 7, “And they spoke to him, saying, ‘If you will be a servant to these people today, and serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be your servants forever.’” They told him, ‘Look, you are young; you are just coming into power. What you’d better do is show yourself reasonable. They have a reasonable request. You’d better show yourself reasonable; be easy with them. You’ll find that if you give in to them on this, later on they’ll give in to you on other things. This is a reasonable request, and one that you had better accede to.’

But Rehoboam didn’t like what they told him. How many times people want their own way; they want to hear what they want to hear. He had originally talked to these older and wiser men who had a lot of experience, and they gave him some good advice. Because they didn’t tell him what he wanted to hear, what did he do?

I Kings 12:8-11, “But he rejected the counsel which the elders gave him, and consulted the young men who had grown up with him, who stood before him. And he said to them, ‘What counsel do you give? How should we answer this people who have spoken to me, saying, “Lighten the yoke which your father put on us?”’ Then the young men who had grown up with him spoke to him, saying, ‘Thus you should speak to this people who have spoken to you, saying, “Your father made our yoke heavy, but you make it lighter on us”—thus you shall say to them: “My little finger shall be thicker than my father’s waist! And now, whereas my father laid a heavy yoke on you, I will add to your yoke; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scourges [scorpions]!”’”

He went and hunted up his buddies, the young men who had grown up with him, his old drinking buddies, his old, old buddies. ‘Hey, what do you guys think I should do?’ Well, they told him exactly what he wanted to hear. They said, ‘Man, you go out there and tell those guys, “My father chastened you with whips, but I am going to chasten you with scorpions. You think you had it rough under him. You want your taxes lowered; I’m going to raise them. I’m going to really “put it to you.” You’d better not mess with me; I’m tough. I’m in charge around here.”’

All you need is somebody who is young and immature to really be insecure, and he has to go around and prove to everybody that he’s in charge. Ever notice that? It happens maybe even in a job. You're working under somebody; he's some fresh young guy just out of school, and he's never worked on the job before. But he knows it all because they taught it to him where he went to school. If you don't think he's in charge, just give him a chance to tell you because he wants to make sure everybody knows that he's the boss and he's in charge. This is often a problem of those who lack certain maturity, a certain seasoning, a certain experience because they really don't have that security and experience in what they know and in their authority. They feel like they have to prove something to everyone. Every time someone makes a suggestion, they take it as a challenge, and they have something to prove.

Well, this was Rehoboam's problem. He got all of his young buddies, and they agreed with him. The people had a very simple answer.

Verse 16, "Now when all Israel saw that the king did not listen to them, the people answered the king, saying: 'What portion have we in David? We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse. To your tents, O Israel! Now, see to your own house, O David!' So Israel departed to their tents." All of a sudden, instead of ruling over twelve tribes, he was ruling over two. If it hadn't been for God's mercy, he wouldn't have had those either. God makes it plain that it was because of His promise to King David, grandfather of Rehoboam. God in His mercy caused it to work out where Judah and Benjamin remained loyal to Rehoboam, the house of David because that was the territory where Jerusalem was located. They weren't loyal so much to Rehoboam as they were loyal to the memory and the dynasty of David.

Verses 20-21, "Now it came to pass when all Israel heard that Jeroboam had come back, they sent for him and called him to the congregation, and made him king over all Israel. There was none who followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah only...."

It's interesting how the more things change, the more they remain the same. Ever stop to think that basically this nation started out with the thirteen colonies. What did they do? They rebelled against the House of David over the issue of high taxes, the same old thing. It's interesting. From the time that Israel rebelled against the House of David and established their independence, they lasted as a nation just over two hundred years. The time of the rebellion was 922 B.C. The time of the captivity was 721 B.C. So it was approximately two hundred years.

Interesting! Doesn't particularly prove anything, but it makes an interesting parallel.

Jeroboam immediately wanted to consolidate his rule in the ten tribes. What did he start out by doing? He used human reasoning. What did he think was going to ensure his control? He started thinking, 'Now, if the people go down to God's temple in Jerusalem every year for the Feast and for various Festivals, after a while, they are going to get nostalgic for the House of David. They are going to start thinking about those things and are going to get over being mad at Rehoboam. They are going to go to Jerusalem three times a year for the Festivals, and chances are, they are going to get rid of me' (vv. 26-27). This was his reasoning.

'What I need to do to secure my throne is to make a break with the religion.'

So being the man of the people that he was, he said, 'Now look, you folks have had it rough. I am the reform candidate.' Ever notice, everybody that comes along, they are always the reform candidate. Everybody is going to make it better than those crooks before them. I don't care which crook gets elected; he is always going to be better than his predecessor. Nobody ever promises, 'I am going to make it worse. You elect me and I am going to make it worse. You think the guys before me messed it up; just elect me and I am going to have this thing so fouled up it's going to take twenty years to get it straightened out.' Nobody ever says that. We have some that do it over the course of time; I think that is just obvious.

Jeroboam comes alone and says, 'It's been too rough on you. You've had to go all the way to Jerusalem to worship God. You don't have to do that. I am going to build two temples. We are not just going to have one like they have in Jerusalem. We are going to have one at Dan in the north and one at Bethel in the south—just take your choice' (vv. 28-29). 'And we are going to put two golden calves, one in the north and one in the south, so you can see what you're worshiping. These are your gods' (v. 28).

Remember the golden calf (Exodus 32)? That's what brought them up out of Egypt, right? Really smart! And then he decided he needed a priesthood that he could control because the priests, the Levites, were educated. They were skilled in the law of God, and they weren't going to put up with this stuff. He couldn't control them. They weren't beholden to him. What did he do? He decided he would fire all of God's true ministry, get rid of the priests and the Levites, and would hire the lowest of the people (v. 31).

I Kings 12:28-31, “Therefore the king took counsel and made two calves of gold, and said to the people, ‘It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem. Here are your gods, O Israel, which brought you up from the land of Egypt!’ And he set up one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan. Now this thing became a sin, for the people went to worship before the one in Dan. He made shrines on the high places, and made priests from every class of people, who were not of the sons of Levi.”

He didn’t want the Levites who were educated in the law of God and understood God’s way. He went out and hired the people who couldn’t get a job doing anything else, the least educated. They were the ones who were the least capable of being hired, and they preached whatever he wanted them to. He hired them; he could fire them. They didn’t know a whole lot, one way or the other. They were glad to preach whatever the “doctrine of the moment” was. They would be glad to preach it. They would preach anything for a price.

Now notice what Jeroboam did next.

Verse 32, “Jeroboam ordained a feast on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, like unto the Feast which is in Judah....”

Now I want to ask you something. Have you noticed anything last night and tonight? It’s a full moon. It’s exactly one month since the Feast. You know what this means? This would be the beginning of Jeroboam’s feast. You know when that would climax, when it would end? A few days right after the weekend when we have an occasion coming up called Halloween.

Now let me ask you something. You know what the word “October” means? Any school kid learned what the word “October” means; it means “eighth.” The word “octopus” refers to “eight arms.” “October” means “eighth month”; “November” means “ninth month”; and “December,” “tenth month.” This should tell people something because they count December as being the twelfth month, not the tenth month. That tells you the year didn’t originally end in December. March was the beginning of the year. The year began in the spring, even on the old Roman calendar. And the months were numbered September—the seventh, January—the eleventh, and February—the twelfth. Then they moved the year ending back two months, but they kept the same names. Let people scratch their heads and try to figure that one out.

Where did Halloween come from? Where did it originate? It originated with the Druids, with the Celts in Northwestern Europe. Who were those people? They were the descendants of the House of Israel. What do we find them observing when they got to Northwestern Europe? We find them observing Jeroboam’s feast in the eighth month. What does it focus on? It is a time of emphasis on graves being opened up, all of these things coming up out of the graves—nothing but a satanic counterfeit. It’s a Satan-inspired counterfeit of the Last Great Day and the events connected with the Feast of Tabernacles. It’s the remnant of Jeroboam’s feast of the eighth month. People go right along.

People want to know if Halloween is mentioned in the Bible. Yes, right here—Jeroboam ordained a feast in the eighth month. Just because something is mentioned in the Bible doesn’t mean the Bible approves of it. It mentions idolatry in the Bible. It mentions a lot of things in the Bible. Jeroboam introduced his own version, a new and improved version. It was not a new and improved version.

One thing Jeroboam did not grasp, and all the would-be dynasty builders of Northern Israel never grasped, was the lesson of Psalm 127.

Psalm 127:1, “Unless the Lord builds the house, the weary builders toil in vain....” Jeroboam tried to build his own house and tried to establish his own dynasty; it collapsed. It came to an end within a couple of generations.

Saul tried to establish his own house. He was going to wipe out the opposition; he was going to establish his own dynasty—and God ended it.

David set out to build a house for God, not something for himself. God told David, ‘Because you have some sins, some things you have done, I am not going to let you build a house for Me. Your hands are stained with blood; I have forgiven you, but there are certain physical penalties that you are going to have to pay. I am not going to allow you that privilege of building a house for Me, I am going to let your son do that. But I tell you what I am going to do because I see your heart and your attitude. You want to build something for Me; I’m going to build something for you. You want to build a house for Me; I am going to build a house for you—a dynasty. I will establish it and it is going to endure forever.’ And so we see that. God established David’s dynasty.

I Kings 13 is a very crucial chapter. It is the account of God sending a prophet to Jeroboam to warn Jeroboam of what is going to happen. God worked a miracle through this individual as a warning to Jeroboam of the seriousness of what he was doing in departing from God. Of course, Jeroboam did not learn the lesson and refused to heed it and went on his way.

Notice the chart. It comes down from David to Solomon and Rehoboam. You see the parallel picking up with Israel, Jeroboam. We find that Jeroboam's dynasty was only Jeroboam and his son, Nadab. Nadab was overthrown and another dynasty, Baasha and his son Elah came in. They didn't last but a few years; then in a very, very quick overthrow, a matter of days, Zimri launched himself as king. He was in turn overthrown by Omri who set up one of the great dynasties or one of the most enduring dynasties of Northern Israel. Ahab, Omri's son is perhaps the most famous. Now Omri founded the most significant dynasty of Northern Israel.

We are coming down to the parallel of that. Rehoboam was succeeded by his son Abijah for just a short time, and his grandson Asa ruled for a number of years. Then Asa's son Jehoshaphat was a king that ruled for a lengthy period. That corresponded with some of the time of Omri and Ahab. This gives us the parallels.

If you will notice opposite that, you will find that this was the time of Elijah and Elisha. Elijah came on the scene about the time that Jehoshaphat ruled and Omri became king in Israel. Elijah was God's prophet for a number of years. Elijah came on the scene perhaps fifty or sixty years after the split in the kingdom. Elijah came into prominence as God's prophet, probably about fifty or sixty years after the death of King Solomon. We see him and then later Elisha, whose ministry continued on for a period of time. We are not going to go any further this evening than around the time of Jehoshaphat and Ahab.

So you can kind of get a picture of it, I'd like to make a few comments about Omri. Omri founded the most significant dynasty in Northern Israel. His son Ahab intermarried with the Phoenicians and introduced Baal worship into Israel and indirectly into Judah. One of the children of Ahab and Jezebel intermarried with the royal line of Judah. We will note some of the problems that came in a little bit later with the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel. We'll notice that in the next Bible study.

Now Omri built Samaria. Samaria became the capital city of Northern Israel and is identified throughout the rest of Scriptures and prophecy as the symbol of the northern kingdom. Omri built that, and Israel achieved a certain prominence during the reign of Omri. Omri achieved such fame that the nation of Israel actually came to be called by his name.

I want to quote to you from Langer's Encyclopedia of World History: "The Assyrians called Israel after his name Khumri." "Bathomri"—"Bath" means "house." The House of Omri is the name that came to refer to the nation of Israel. Now that is very significant because the name in Assyrian would be spelled Khumri and the Assyrians continued to use this name for Israel. This is the name that Israel carried into captivity as far as the Assyrians were concerned. This is the name that the Assyrians used for them.

History of France, Vol. I (a detailed history from the earliest years) makes the statement that the Kymrians, also spelled Cimmerians, migrated into Europe from the area of the Black Sea during the period of about 700 B.C. to about 300 B.C. Now the area of the Black Sea is the area where the Assyrians took the Israelites when they took them into captivity. They took the northern tribes into captivity in 721 B.C. They settled them up in the area between the Black and Caspian Sea.

Volume I of the History of France states that shortly after that, the Cimmerians or Kymrians (which was the Assyrian name for Israel, going back to Omri) began to migrate into Europe from the area of the Black Sea about 700 B.C. The bulk of them came in about 300 B.C. We will go into some more of that in a later Bible study, but it interesting that here's where that name came from and why it came to be applied to Israel.

Interestingly enough, as I was mentioning earlier on Halloween, that's the people you find celebrating Halloween, the festival that is a continuation of the pagan religion that Jeroboam had introduced.

We are also going to get into some things on Elijah this evening. Elijah was raised up by God to do a work of restoring the true religion in Israel. Elijah was raised up, primarily, as God's prophet to Northern Israel fifty or sixty years after the split as things began to deteriorate. Several generations went by; actually, you had the third generation by the time of Elijah. There were elderly people alive who remembered the time of Solomon and all of that, but the generation who had any firsthand knowledge, memory of the temple of Solomon and the teachings of true religion, would have been people certainly into their seventies and eighties by the time Elijah came onto the scene. We are looking at a generation that was beginning to pass from the scene, and everyone younger than that really didn't have firsthand knowledge. So the nation had gotten further and further away from the knowledge of the truth; more and more paganism began to come in.

God raised up Elijah to do a work of restoring the knowledge of the true religion in Israel. Elijah stands out as the greatest of the prophets. We notice that he founded three schools or colleges. They were schools of the prophets to train his disciples. You can show, as well, that he visited and counseled with kings and world leaders. He was completely uncompromising in his obedience to God. We are told that he was to be a type of the one who would come prior to the coming of the Messiah, one who would come in the spirit and power of Elijah. John the Baptist did that before the first coming of Christ.

We saw here in I Kings that Jeroboam got rid of the priesthood of God and sought to replace them with his own priesthood. Let's notice the parallel account back in II Chronicles 11.

II Chronicles 11:13-15, "And from all their territories the priests and the Levites who were in all Israel took their stand with him. For the Levites left their common lands and their possessions and came to Judah and Jerusalem, for Jeroboam and his sons had rejected them from serving as priests to the Lord. Then he appointed for himself priests for the high places, for the demons, and the calf idols which he had made." All the priests and Levites left Northern Israel and came down to Rehoboam in Jerusalem.

There is one thing I would like to call your attention to here in II Chronicles 11. We went through the story of Solomon's life last time. Solomon is a tremendous example when it comes to the fact of how much more your example counts than your advice. Solomon gave excellent advice. The book of Proverbs is basically the advice that Solomon gave to his son. That's the way it starts out.

Proverbs 1:1, 8, "The proverbs of Solomon... 'My son, hear the instruction of your father.'" Have you ever thought about that? Proverbs is what Solomon wrote to Rehoboam. He gave him advice on how to be wise. Did Rehoboam follow any of it? No. There's a lot of advice that Solomon gave Rehoboam in the book of Proverbs about avoiding immorality. Notice here what we are told about Rehoboam.

II Chronicles 11:21, "Now Rehoboam loved Maachah the granddaughter of Absalom more than all his wives and his concubines; for he took eighteen wives and sixty concubines, and begot twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters."

Verse 23 (KJV), "...and he desired many wives." He had a bunch and wanted more. Would you say that he followed his father's example? He just wasn't rich enough to do it on as grand a scale as old Dad. He did the best he could; he tried. Solomon had seven hundred wives and three hundred concubines. Rehoboam couldn't begin to measure up to that, but he desired many. He regretted he had to stop where he did; he just ran out of money. What was the consequence to Rehoboam? What kind of shape did Rehoboam wind up in? Solomon gave Rehoboam some excellent advice; but Rehoboam didn't follow Solomon's advice—he followed his example.

That should be an important lesson to all of us as parents. I don't care how good your advice is; your example is going to carry a lot more weight. We might as well learn that and "chalk it up," whether we like it or dislike it. It's a fact of life that our example is going to have a lot more impact than our advice.

As we continue on the main story thread, we come down to I Kings 14.

I Kings 14:1-2, "At that time Abijah the son of Jeroboam became sick. And Jeroboam said to his wife, 'Please arise, and disguise yourself, that they may not recognize you as the wife of Jeroboam, and go to Shiloh. Indeed, Ahijah the prophet is there, who told me that I would be king over this people.'" Jeroboam was very concerned, and we find that, interestingly enough, Jeroboam sent his wife to a prophet of God. He didn't send her to one of the priests of the high places. When he wanted some accurate information, he went to one of God's servants.

Verse 4, "And Jeroboam's wife did so; she arose and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. But Ahijah could not see, for his eyes were glazed by reason of age." Ahijah was very elderly by this time. He very likely had some kind of cataracts or something of that sort. God revealed to him who was coming. Ahijah told her that this son would die; he explained what was going to happen as a result of Jeroboam's sin (vv. 7-16).

Verse 20, "The period that Jeroboam reigned was twenty-two years. So he rested with his fathers. Then Nadab his son reigned in his place."

Verses 22-24, "Now Judah did evil in the sight of the Lord, and they provoked Him to jealousy with their sins which they committed, more than all that their fathers had done. For they also had built for themselves high places, sacred pillars, and wooden images on every high hill and under every green tree. And there were also perverted persons [KJV, "sodomites"] in the land. They did according to all the abominations of the nations which the Lord had cast out before the children of Israel." We find that Rehoboam wasn't a particularly good king either because he allowed Judah to build high places.

Verses 25-26, "Now it happened, in the fifth year of King Rehoboam, that Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem. And he took away the treasures of the house of the Lord and the treasures of the king's house; he took away everything. He also took away all the gold shields which Solomon had made."

Verse 30, "And there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days." Most people today, if they saw the headlines of Judah and Israel going to war, wouldn't know what that meant. They would think that was a contradiction of terms. How could the Jews be fighting Israel? Well, that's what happened. Jews only refer to the tribe of Judah, the area where Rehoboam ruled. Israel referred to the ten tribes.

In v. 31, Rehoboam died. He died prior to Jeroboam; he died during Jeroboam's eighteenth year.

I Kings 15:1-3, "Now in the eighteenth year of King Jeroboam the son of Nebat, Abijam became king over Judah. He reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maachah the granddaughter of Abishalom. And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him; his heart was not loyal to the Lord his God, as was the heart of his father David." His son Abijam reigned three years, and he did all the bad things that his father had done.

Verses 4-5, "Nevertheless for David's sake the Lord his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, by setting up his son after him and by establishing Jerusalem; because David did what was right in the eyes of the Lord, and had not turned aside from anything that He commanded him all the days of his life, except in the matter of Uriah the Hittite." God was still merciful because of David's sake. David had done that which was right.

Verse 8, "So Abijam rested with his fathers ...then Asa his son reigned in his place."

Verse 9, "In the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel, Asa became king over Judah."

Verse 11, "Asa did what was right in the eyes of the Lord, as did his father David." Asa did a lot of good things.

Verse 12, "And he banished the perverted persons [sodomites] from the land, and removed all the idols that his fathers had made." Asa was a young man during the time of Solomon's last years. He remembered Solomon. He had seen the mess that his father and grandfather had made. Evidently Solomon had learned certain lessons during the final time of his life that are written in the book of Ecclesiastes. Asa had, perhaps, been impressed with some of those things and had seen certain results, learned certain lessons, and now he begins to turn things around.

The first thing he does is to get rid of the sodomites, to stamp out the immorality in the land and to remove the idols. He removed his grandmother (who was queen mother) from office because she had made an idol in the grove (v. 13), and he destroyed her idol.

Verse 14, "...Nevertheless Asa's heart was loyal to the Lord all his days." He had, basically, a good attitude toward God.

Verse 16, "Now there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days." There was continual strife between Asa and the king of Israel who had succeeded the house of Jeroboam.

II Chronicles 14:2-7, "Asa did what was good and right in the eyes of the Lord his God, for he removed the altars of the foreign gods and the high places, and broke down the sacred pillars and cut down the wooden images. He commanded Judah to seek the Lord God of their fathers, and to observe the law and the commandment. He also removed the high places and the incense altars from all the cities of Judah, and the kingdom was quiet under him. And he built fortified cities in Judah, for the land had rest; he had no war in those years, because the Lord had given him rest. Therefore he said to Judah, 'Let us build these cities and make walls around them, and towers, gates, and bars, while the land is yet before us, because we have sought the Lord our God; we have sought Him, and He has given us rest on every side.' So they built and prospered." They built up and fortified the cities and increased the army.

Verses 8-9, "And Asa had an army of three hundred thousand men from Judah who carried shields and spears, and from Benjamin two hundred and eighty thousand men who carried shields and drew bows; all these were mighty men of valor. Then Zerah the Ethiopian came out against them with an army of a million men and three hundred chariots, and he came to Mareshah." The Ethiopians came with this gigantic army. Asa had built up this great army, but when he saw how heavily outnumbered he was, he cried out to God.

Verses 11-12, “And Asa cried out to the Lord his God, and said, ‘Lord, it is nothing for You to help, whether with many or with those who have no power; help us, O Lord our God, for we rest on You, and in Your name we go against this multitude. O Lord You are our God; do not let man prevail against You!’ So the Lord struck the Ethiopians before Asa and Judah, and the Ethiopians fled.” God intervened and smote the Ethiopians, and Asa won the battle.

Now we find that Asa had some problems. There are lessons that can be learned.

II Chronicles 16:1-3 “In the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, Baasha king of Israel came up against Judah and built Ramah, that he might let none go out or come in to Asa king of Judah. Then Asa brought silver and gold from the treasures of the house of the Lord and of the king’s house, and sent to Ben-Hadad king of Syria, who dwelt in Damascus, saying, ‘Let there be a treaty between you and me, as there was between my father and your father. Here, I have sent you silver and gold; come, break your treaty with Baasha king of Israel, so that he will withdraw from me.’”

Primarily, Asa’s problems revolved around the issue of faith. Asa had a good attitude; he wanted to obey God, and he made a number of reforms in the land. But Asa lacked faith.

When the king of Israel was going to come up against Judah, he built up a fortified area that was going to control entrance and access right on the main highway, the main trade route coming into Judah. Ramah was kind of a Berlin Wall of that day, a “checkpoint Charlie”—everybody had to come through this fortified stronghold that he had made in order to get out or come in. Asa became nervous and worried about that. Instead of going to God the way he had earlier when the Ethiopians had invaded, he got silver and gold out of the treasury of the Lord’s house and decided to cut a deal with the king of Syria. He got scared and compromised. He got this money out of the temple because that was the only quick access to cash that he had. He thought he’d take this money and pay off the king of Syria. He would get him to make a league with him, and they would “gang up” on the king of Israel.

God sent His servant, a prophet, Hanani, to Asa.

Verse 7, “And at that time, Hanani the seer came to Asa king of Judah, and said to him: ‘Because you have relied on the king of Syria, and have not relied on the Lord your God, therefore the army of the king of Syria has escaped from your hand.’” God sent his servant, a prophet, Hanani to Asa and said, ‘Because you relied on the king of Syria and did not rely on the Lord your God, this thing is not going to profit you. You are going to find that the king of Syria is going to turn out to be your enemy, too.’

Verse 9, “‘For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show Himself strong on behalf of those whose heart is loyal to Him. In this you have done foolishly; therefore from now on you shall have wars.’” You didn’t trust God. You took it upon yourself to solve it your own way. You looted the money out of the temple treasury and hired allies. You are just going to have a mess.

Verse 10, “Then Asa was angry with the seer, and put him in prison, for he was enraged at him because of this. And Asa oppressed some of the people at that time.” Asa got mad. He didn’t like to be corrected; he didn’t like to being told he was wrong. It made him so mad that he threw the prophet in jail and began to be harsh to some of the people. He resented being corrected. Isn’t that human nature? He was going along fine, but now he lacks faith and does something he shouldn’t have done. God sent His ministry, His prophet to correct him, and Asa resented it. He got mad.

Verse 12, “And in the thirty-ninth year of his reign, Asa became diseased in his feet, and his malady was very severe; yet in his disease he did not seek the Lord, but the physicians.” Then Asa got sick; he was diseased in his feet. He didn’t seek the Lord, but he went to the physician.

It would have been kind of embarrassing (the prophet had been rotting in jail for a year or two now) to bring him out and ask him to pray for him so that God would heal him. ‘I’ll show him; I don’t have to ask God to heal me. I’ll just go to the doctor, and that will take care of it.’

Verse 13 simply says, “So Asa rested with his fathers; he died in the forty-first year of his reign.” Asa died; that was the end result. Who showed who? He was going to do it his way.

I think we see that Asa had some positive points; he got rid of the sodomites, tore down the idolatrous groves and even removed his grandmother from being queen. He built up the fenced cities of Judah. Judah prospered during his reign. Asa’s basic attitude was that he wanted to do what was right. But Asa had a problem. His problem was one that all of us encounter from time to time—and that is a lack of faith. And Asa compounded his problem of a lack of faith. When he was corrected over something that he did, under the temptation and weakness of the moment, instead of really repenting, he got mad. Since he resented being corrected, he compounded his problem. He got further away from God than ever. When he got sick, he didn't call on God and God didn't heal him. He called on the doctor and he died. That's the story of Asa. There are lessons to learn.

In I Kings 16, we go back to the main story flow we are following.

I Kings 16:16, "...So all Israel made Omri, the commander of the army, king over Israel that day in the camp."

Verses 23-26, "In the thirty-first year of Asa king of Judah, Omri became king over Israel, and reigned twelve years. Six years he reigned in Tirzah. And he bought the hill of Samaria from Shemer for two talents of silver; then he built on the hill, and called the name of the city which he built, Samaria, after the name of Shemer, owner of the hill. Omri did evil in the eyes of the Lord, and did worse than all who were before him. For he walked in all the ways of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in his sin by which he had made Israel sin, provoking the Lord God of Israel to anger with their idols."

Omri did various things and was responsible for having built the capital city of Samaria, but he continued to disobey God. You can follow down in the chart to keep straight who was king over which group. We have Omri king over Israel, and when Omri died, his son became king.

Verses 28-31, "So Omri rested with his fathers and was buried in Samaria. Then Ahab his son reigned in his place. In the thirty-eighth year of Asa king of Judah, Ahab the son of Omri became king over Israel; and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. Now Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the Lord, more than all who were before him. And it came to pass, as though it had been a trivial thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, that he took as wife Jezebel the daughter of Ethbaal, king of the Sidonians; and he went and served Baal and worshiped him."

Ahab came along and had the distinction of making Jeroboam look good. You think you have somebody bad until you have somebody worse come along; then all of a sudden, it makes the predecessor look pretty good. 'Oh, for the "good old days"—it wasn't as bad as I thought it was.'

The best thing Ahab ever did was what Jeroboam did, and he went downhill from there. Bad enough, but he married Jezebel, the daughter of the king of one of the Phoenicians. You remember Jezebel? She's quite well known. You can read about Jezebel all through the rest of the Bible. She's become a symbol of everything God hates. If you could take everything God hates in a woman and wrap it up in one person, you would have Jezebel. There are several men that you come across who are described as everything God hates in a man. Jezebel stands out as a really exceptional case.

I Kings 17:1, "And Elijah the Tishbite, of the inhabitants of Gilead, said to Ahab, 'As the Lord God of Israel lives, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, except at my word.'" About this time, Elijah shows up and comes to Ahab. He says, 'It's not going to rain anymore. God is going to shut off the spigot.' So Elijah left.

Verses 2-4, "Then the word of the Lord came to him, saying, 'Get away from here and turn eastward, and hide by the Brook Cherith, which flows into the Jordan. And it will be that you shall drink from the brook, and I have commanded the ravens to feed you there.'" "

Verses 6-7, "The ravens brought him bread and meat in the morning, and bread and meat in the evening, and he drank from the brook. And it happened after a while that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land."

Verses 9-11, "'Arise, go to Zarephath, which belongs to Sidon, and dwell there. See, I have commanded a widow there to provide for you. So he arose and went to Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, indeed a widow was there gathering sticks. And he called to her and said, 'Please bring me a little water in a cup, that I may drink.' And as she was going to get it, he called to her and said, 'Please bring me a morsel of bread in your hand.'" He said, 'I am hungry; would you bring me a little piece of bread—bring me something to eat.'

Verse 12, "Then she said, 'As the Lord your God lives, I do not have bread, only a handful of flour in a bin, and a little oil in a jar; and see, I am gathering a couple of sticks that I may go in and prepare it for myself and my son, that we may eat it, and die.'" She said, 'I don't have anything cooked; all I have is a handful of meal in the barrel and a little oil in a cruse. I am gathering up these two sticks, and I am going to go and make one little cake, a piece of fried bread, kind of like a piece of hot water bread or something. I am going to make that, and my son and I are going to eat it. Then we are going to die because we don't have anything else to eat. There's no food to be found, and we don't have any way of getting any food.'

Verse 13, “And Elijah said to her, ‘Do not fear; go and do as you have said, but make me a small cake from it first, and bring it to me; and afterward make some for yourself and your son.’” Elijah said, ‘Don’t be afraid. Do what you were planning to do, but before you and your son eat, before you make up what you have for him, pinch off a little bit and make some for me. Bring it to me and then feed your son and yourself.’ Now here’s an example of faith. She didn’t look at him and say, ‘You’re crazy, why should I feed you?’

Verse 14, “‘For thus says the Lord God of Israel: “The bin of flour shall not be used up, nor shall the jar of oil run dry, until the day the Lord sends rain on the earth.’”” Wonder if she believed him?

Verses 15-16, “So she went away and did according to the word of Elijah; and she and he and her household ate for many days. The bin of flour was not used up, nor did the jar of oil run dry, according to the word of the Lord which He spoke by Elijah.” That barrel just always had meal in it. You couldn’t scrape the last bit out no matter how much you took out. No matter how much oil you poured out, there was still oil in there.

Verse 17, “Now it happened after these things that the son of the woman who owned the house became sick. And his sickness was so serious that there was no breath left in him.” He was sick to the point of death.

Verse 18, “So she said to Elijah, ‘What have I to do with you, O man of God? Have you come to me to bring my sin to remembrance, and to kill my son?’” ‘Have you come here, and is God going to visit all my sins on me now?’ In her anguish, it looked like her son was dead.

Verse 19, “And he said to her, ‘Give me your son.’ So he took him out of her arms and carried him to the upper room where he was staying, and laid him on his own bed.” He carried him up into the loft, a little cubbyhole up on the roof where Elijah slept, laid him on his bed and prayed to God (vv. 19-21).

Verse 22, “Then the Lord heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came back to him, and he revived.” God restored his life.

Verse 24, “Then the woman said to Elijah, ‘Now by this I know that you are a man of God, and that the word of the Lord in your mouth is the truth.’” God provided for Elijah and used Elijah in working this miracle, sustaining this woman and using that as an example of faith. There’s an example here, there’s a lesson. You put God first and God will supply your needs. God supplied that woman’s needs because she was willing to put God first, even when all physical evidence said there was no way she was going to come out ahead by giving some of it away. You don’t have enough for yourself; why are you going to give some of it away?

God is the Most High God. He is the Owner of the Universe. He owns heaven and earth. It all belongs to Him. God doesn’t need what we have. It’s for our benefit that God allows us to have a part, and God uses certain things to teach us certain lessons. God could have fed Elijah some other way. It wasn’t that he was dependent on that woman, but He wanted the woman to learn a lesson of faith. She stepped out on faith to trust God, and God provided her needs. God could have provided Elijah’s needs some other way, but He did it for the benefit of the woman and for an example for us that we can learn.

Let’s continue. 1 Kings 18:1-4, “Now it came to pass after many days that the word of the Lord came to Elijah, in the third year, saying, ‘Go, present yourself to Ahab, and I will send rain on the earth.’ So Elijah went to present himself to Ahab; and there was a severe famine in Samaria. And Ahab had called Obadiah, who was in charge of his house. (Now Obadiah feared the Lord greatly. For so it was, while Jezebel massacred the prophets of the Lord, that Obadiah had taken one hundred prophets and hidden them, fifty to a cave, and had fed them with bread and water.)” Obadiah had risked his own life. Jezebel had launched the inquisition against anybody who was trying to obey God.

Verse 5, “And Ahab had said to Obadiah, ‘Go into the land to all the springs of water and to all the brooks; perhaps we may find grass to keep the horses and mules alive, so that we will not have to kill any livestock.’” Ahab and Obadiah were coming out of the city. They were looking for any water to keep the horses and mules alive. It had gotten down to the point there was just nothing. It was drying up.

Verse 6, “So they divided the land between them to explore it; Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.”

Verses 7-9, “Now as Obadiah was on his way, suddenly Elijah met him; and he recognized him, and fell on his face, and said, ‘Is that you, my lord Elijah?’ And he answered him, ‘It is I. Go, tell your master, “Elijah is here.”’ Then he said, ‘How have I sinned, that you are delivering your servant into the hand of Ahab, to kill me?’”

‘What have I done that you are going to get me into this kind of trouble.’

Verse 10, “As the Lord your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom where my master has not sent someone to hunt for you; and when they said, “He is not here,” he took an oath from the kingdom or nation that they could not find you.” Notice what he said. Elijah was a man who was known to the rulers of his day. Ahab went around to all of the kingdoms, every nation and kingdom in the known world, anywhere around there. Ahab sent his servants there to find out if Elijah was there, and they came and took an oath from the king.

Now if Elijah had been unknown to all these people and not traveled and met some of these people, they wouldn't have known who he was. They would have come in there and asked if Elijah was there. They would have said, ‘I don't know; never heard of him. How should I know if he is here; a lot of people come through here. We got people traveling through every day.’ Elijah was known in all of the surrounding kingdoms. He was known to all of the surrounding governments.

Obadiah says, ‘There is no nation or kingdom anywhere around here within traveling distance that Ahab hasn't sent looking for you. Man, has he ever been looking for you! You told him it wasn't going to rain and you left. And it hasn't rained since. He's mad.’

Verse 12, “And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from you, that the Spirit of the Lord will carry you to a place I do not know; so when I go and tell Ahab, and he cannot find you, he will kill me. But I your servant have feared the Lord from my youth.”

‘All I need is to go tell him that I've found you. If I come back and the Spirit of the Lord has carried you away and you're not here, do you know what he's going to do? Chop my head off! He's going to think I'm pulling a joke on him, and he's not going to think it's very funny. I have feared God from my youth. I have tried to do what was right; please don't get me in trouble.’

Verse 13, “Was it not reported to my lord what I did when Jezebel killed the prophets of the Lord, how I hid one hundred men of the Lord's prophets, fifty to a cove, and fed them with bread and water?” He said, ‘Don't you know that I am the guy who hid the prophets when Jezebel tried to kill them all?’

Verses 14-15, “And now you say, “Go, tell your master, ‘Elijah is here,’” and he will kill me.’ Then Elijah said, ‘As the Lord of hosts lives, before whom I stand, I will surely present myself to him today.’” Elijah said, ‘I am not going to get you in trouble. I'm going to wait, and you go tell him.’

Verses 16-17, “So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah. Then it happened, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said to him, ‘Is it you, O troubler of Israel?’” Ahab said, ‘Are you the guy that caused all this trouble?’ You know what Elijah said?

He looked him in the eye and said, v. 18, “And he answered, ‘I have not troubled Israel, but you and your father's house have, in that you have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and you have followed the Baals.’” Elijah said, ‘I am not the cause of the problem; you are, buddy. You have forsaken the Commandments of God and gone to follow Baal. I tell you what I want you to do.’

Verse 19, “Now therefore, send and gather all Israel to me on Mount Carmel, the four hundred and fifty prophets of Baal, and the four hundred prophets of Asherah, who eat at Jezebel's table.” He said, ‘I want you to gather all Israel unto Mount Carmel. Get all the prophets of Baal together, all four hundred fifty of them, all these that are Jezebel's “hangers on.” Get your crowd together, get all Israel up to Mount Carmel; I have something.’

Verse 21, “And Elijah came to all the people, and said, ‘How long will you falter between two opinions? If the Lord is God, follow Him; but if Baal, then follow him.’ But the people answered him not a word.” ‘Why are you vacillating, why are you wobbling back and forth?’

Verses 22-26, “Then Elijah said to the people, ‘I alone am left a prophet of the Lord; but Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men. Therefore let them give us two bulls; and let them choose one bull for themselves, cut it in pieces, and lay it on the wood, but put no fire under it; and I will prepare the other bull, and lay it on the wood, but put no fire under it. Then you call on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord; and the God who answers by fire, He is God.’ So all the people answered and said, ‘It is well spoken.’ Now Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, ‘Choose one bull for yourselves and prepare it first, for you are many; and call on the name of your god, but put no fire under it.’ So they took the bull which was given them, and they prepared it and called on the name of Baal from morning even till noon, saying, ‘O Baal, hear us!’ But there was no voice; no one answered. And they leaped about the altar which they had made.”

They really “cut up.” They were really “getting down” with it, beating the tambourines, clanging the gongs, jumping up and down, whooping, hollering and shouting. This commotion lasted all morning.

Verse 27, “And so it was, at noon, that Elijah mocked them and said, ‘Cry aloud, for he is a god; either he is meditating, or he is busy, or he is on a journey, or perhaps he is sleeping and must be awakened.’” He was making fun of them. He said, ‘Cry aloud you guys; better speak up. He’s not going to be able to hear you.’ They had been shouting their lungs out all morning. Really whooping it up. Talk about a “tarry meeting.”

They were “tarrying” all morning and weren’t getting anything. ‘Cry loud; he’s god isn’t he? He’s really up there, isn’t he? I know what it is, he’s taking to somebody—he’s on the telephone, and you are just going to have to wait until he finishes his conversation. Or he is pursuing [the New English Bible gives a more literal translation, maybe he had to go to the bathroom] or maybe he took a trip. I know what it is, he is asleep—he’s taking a nap, and you guys better wake him up.’ Well, needless to say, they didn’t appreciate Elijah’s helpful suggestions.

Verse 28, “So they cried aloud, and cut themselves, as was their custom, with knives and lances, until the blood gushed out on them.” They were really worked up. By this time, they were slashing themselves; they fell over and the blood gushed out.

Verses 29-30, “And it was so, when midday was past, that they prophesied until the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice. But there was no voice; no one answered, no one paid attention. Then Elijah said to all the people, ‘Come near to me.’ So all the people came near to him. And he repaired the altar of the Lord that was broken down.” Elijah told the people, ‘All right, we have had enough of this foolishness. You guys have provided entertainment all day; come over here.’

Verses 31-34, “And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the Lord had come, saying, ‘Israel shall be your name.’ Then with the stones he built an altar in the name of the Lord; and he made a trench around the altar large enough to hold two seahs of seed. And he put the wood in order, cut the bull in pieces, and laid it on the wood, and said, ‘Fill four water pots with water, and pour it on the burnt sacrifice and on the wood.’ Then he said, ‘Do it a second time,’ and they did it a second time; and he said, ‘Do it a third time,’ and they did it a third time.”

They just absolutely soaked and saturated everything.

Verses 36-38, “And it came to pass, at the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that Elijah the prophet came near and said, ‘Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel, let it be known this day that You are God in Israel, and that I am Your servant, and that I have done all these things at Your word. Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that You are the Lord God, and that You have turned their hearts back to You again.’ Then the fire of the Lord fell and consumed the burnt sacrifice, and the wood and the stones and the dust, and it licked up the water that was in the trench.” When God sent it, He didn’t light a little match that could hardly light. WHOOSH, it came down out of heaven, this great big burst of fire and absolutely incinerated like a nuclear blast in miniature. Just a blackened crater remained there.

Verse 39, “Now when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces; and they said, ‘The Lord, He is God! The Lord, He is God!’” It really “shook them up.”

Verse 40, “And Elijah said to them, ‘Seize the prophets of Baal! Do not let one of them escape!’ So they seized them; and Elijah brought them down to the Brook Kishon and executed them there.” Elijah had the prophets of Baal taken out and executed.

Verse 41, “Then Elijah said to Ahab, ‘Go up, eat and drink; for there is the sound of abundance of rain.’” Elijah told Ahab he’d better get up and get going, get something to eat and leave in a hurry because there is the sound of abundance of rain.

Verse 42, “So Ahab went up to eat and drink. And Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; then he bowed down on the ground, and put his face between his knees.” It gives the account of the rain, the cloud that came, and we have the end of the drought (vv. 43-45).

1 Kings 19:1-2, “And Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, also how he had executed all the prophets with the sword. Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, ‘So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I do not make your life as the life of one of them by tomorrow about this time.’” Jezebel got upset. All her prophets were killed. She sent out word, ‘I am going to get you; I am going to chop off your head before the sun sets.’

Have you ever noticed the extent to which you can find yourself going from a spiritual high to a spiritual low? Ever had some time when you were really on a “high,” and boy, you have faith to handle something. Then all of a sudden, something else comes up and you get scared. Where did all your faith go?

Here was Elijah having gone through all of this, and he gets the word Jezebel is after him. He takes off running and gets out there; he is all depressed and upset. He says, 'God, why don't you just let me die. Nothing is going to work out right. I am as good as dead' (v. 4).

God encouraged him and, in fact, sent him down to Damascus to anoint Hazael to be king over Syria (v. 15) and then to anoint Jehu to be king over Israel (v. 16). So God continued to use Elijah. And what is he doing here? He's going to kings and various rulers. He had a very prominent place.

I Kings 21:1-3, "And it came to pass after these things that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard which was in Jezreel, next to the palace of Ahab king of Samaria. So Ahab spoke to Naboth, saying, 'Give me your vineyard, that I may have it for a vegetable garden, because it is near, next to my house; and for it I will give you a vineyard better than it. Or, if it seems good to you, I will give you its worth in money.' And Naboth said to Ahab, 'The Lord forbid that I should give the inheritance of my fathers to you!'"

Naboth had a vineyard and Ahab wanted it. He said he'd like to buy the vineyard, but Naboth said, 'No, I don't want to sell it. It's been in the family for generations—an old family property—I just don't want to sell it.' Ahab said he would give him a better one. 'I will pay you cash or trade you and give you another one.' Naboth said, 'No, I appreciate it, but I don't want to sell. I want to keep it.' So what did Ahab do?

Verse 4, "So Ahab went into his house sullen and displeased because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him; for he had said, 'I will not give you the inheritance of my fathers.' And he lay down on his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no food." This shows Ahab's maturity—like a little spoiled child. Jezebel came in and said, 'What's wrong?' He said, 'Naboth won't sell me his vineyard.' She said, 'Is that all the problem? I'll take care of that.' So she wrote a letter and said, 'Let's kill this Naboth character and get rid of him.'—And she did (vv. 5-13). God was very displeased (vv. 18-22).

I'd like to point out something, just as a matter of law in Israel. Israel was different than the Gentile nations around. Israel was never established as an absolute monarchy. Israel was a constitutional monarchy. For instance, the king could not force one of his subjects to sell property; it was their property. The property came down in the family, and the king didn't have any right to confiscate it, even in payment. If Naboth didn't want to sell the property, it was legal for him to keep it. The king was under certain requirements of law. He was not absolute in the way that was the custom of the Gentile nations around. Jezebel didn't worry about the law, one way or another. But God dealt with her. God sent a message by Elijah and told Ahab that he was responsible for killing Naboth because he had let his wife do it.

Verse 19, "'You shall speak to him, saying, 'Thus says the Lord: 'Have you murdered and also taken possession?'" And you shall speak to him, saying, "Thus says the Lord: 'In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, dogs shall lick your blood, even yours.''"

Verse 21, "'Behold, I will bring calamity on you. I will take away your posterity, and will cut off from Ahab every male in Israel, both bond and free.'" He said, 'I'm going to wipe out your family.'

Verse 22, "'I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam...because of the provocation with which you have provoked Me to anger, and made Israel sin.'"

Verse 27, "So it was, when Ahab heard those words, that he tore his clothes and put sackcloth on his body, and fasted and lay in sackcloth, and went about mourning [KJV, "went softly"]."—Kind of tip toed around for a little while.

Verses 28-29, "And the word of the Lord came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, 'See how Ahab humbled himself before Me? Because he has humbled himself before Me, I will not bring the calamity in his days; but in the days of his son I will bring the calamity on his house.'" God said, 'Ahab is kind of a wimp, a jerk and a lot of other things, but it really "shook him up." I am not going to "land on him" quite as hard as I told him I would, at least not immediately.' Ahab repented of sorts. It was very apparent, as you read the story, that he was a very weak character, a very weak-willed character. He never had the gall to stand up to do what was right at all.

Verses 23-25, "'And concerning Jezebel the Lord also spoke, saying, "The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel." The dogs shall eat whoever belongs to Ahab and dies in the city, and the birds of the air shall eat whoever dies in the field.' But there was no one like Ahab who sold himself to do wickedly in the sight of the Lord, because Jezebel his wife stirred him up."

Now we pick up the story of Jehoshaphat, who was the king of Judah at this time.

I Kings 22:2, “Then it came to pass, in the third year, that Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went down to visit the king of Israel.” He was coming down to visit with Ahab. Jehoshaphat was a nice guy, a good king.

Verses 41-42, “Now Jehoshaphat the son of Asa had become king over Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel. Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-five years in Jerusalem...” His reign overlapped Ahab’s reign and down to the reign of Ahab’s son.

Verse 43, “And he walked in all the ways of his father Asa. He did not turn aside from them, doing what was right in the eyes of the Lord...”

Verse 44, “Also Jehoshaphat made peace with the king of Israel.” They quit all the fighting. He sought to get rid of the sodomites (v. 46).

To pick up a little bit more of the details of Jehoshaphat, turn back to II Chronicles 17.

II Chronicles 17:2-6, “And he placed troops in all the fortified cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah and in the cities of Ephraim which Asa his father had taken. Now the Lord was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the former ways of his father David; he did not seek the Baals, but sought the God of his father, and walked in His commandments and not according to the acts of Israel...And his heart took delight in the ways of the Lord; moreover he removed the high places and wooden images from Judah.”

Verses 7-13, “Also in the third year of his reign he sent his leaders, Ben Hail, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethaneel, and Michaish, to teach in the cities of Judah. And with them he sent Levites: Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zedadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tobadonijah—the Levites; and with them Elishama and Jehoram, the priests. So they taught in Judah, and had the Book of the Law of the Lord with them; they went throughout all the cities of Judah and taught the people. And the fear of the Lord fell on all the kingdoms of the lands that were around Judah, so that they did not make war against Jehoshaphat...So Jehoshaphat became increasingly powerful, and he built fortresses and storage cities in Judah. He had much property [KJV, “business”] in the cities of Judah; and the men of war, mighty men of valor, were in Jerusalem.”

Jehoshaphat was basically a good king. He followed all the good examples of his father, Asa. He went even further. He got the Levites working to teach the Jews God’s ways and to perform their responsibilities as teachers and judges. God blessed him greatly. But Jehoshaphat also had a problem. His biggest problem seemed to revolve around getting “tangled up” with Ahab.

II Chronicles 18:1, “Jehoshaphat had riches and honor in abundance; and by marriage he allied himself with Ahab.” Jehoshaphat was a nice guy, a peaceable sort of guy. He liked to be friends with everybody. He found it difficult to believe bad things about people. ‘Well, you know old Ahab; maybe if I can just kind of hang around old Ahab, I can be a good influence on him and kind of encourage him.’

A lot of Ahab’s problem was that he was weak. He was not as utterly corrupt in the way that Jezebel was. He was just weak; he would never stand up for what he knew was right. He had a certain respect even for God’s prophet. He certainly had a respect for Elijah, even though he didn’t follow through on what he should have done. He was a very weak-willed character.

Jehoshaphat seemed to think he could be a good influence on him. That kind of thing never works out that way. All it did was get Jehoshaphat entangled, and Ahab tried to use and manipulate him.

You have the story here where Ahab had conned Jehoshaphat into coming down and helping him out in a war. Jehoshaphat said, ‘Well, I am ready to go out to battle, but I want to talk to God’s prophet first’ (v. 4).

Verse 5, “Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, four hundred men, and said to them, ‘Shall we go to war against Ramoth Gilead, or shall I refrain?’ And they said, ‘Go up, for God will deliver it into the king’s hand.’”

Remember Ahab had called in all these others, prophets of the false god, and they whooped and hollered and put on their little show.

Verse 6, “But Jehoshaphat said, ‘Is there not still a prophet of the Lord here, that we may inquire of Him?’” ‘Yeah, but I really want to talk to a prophet of God. Don’t you have one around close by?’ Ahab said, ‘Well, we have one, Micaiah the son of Imla, but I don’t like him because he never says anything good to me’ (v. 7).

‘When I call my prophets and tell them I want to do something, they smile and say, “Bless you, my son, go ahead and do it; everything will be okay.” They tell me things I like to hear and make me feel good. It doesn’t matter what I want to do, they are always in favor of it. But this Micaiah, he never has anything good to say. Anything I want to do, he doesn’t like.’

And Jehoshaphat said, 'Please, don't say things like that (v. 7); just go ahead and call him.'

Verse 8, "Then the king of Israel called one of his officers and said, 'Bring Micaiah the son of Imla quickly.'"

When the soldier came to get Micaiah he said, 'Look, he's already asked everybody else and everybody's told him what he wanted to hear. Everybody told him to go to battle; now don't come in here and be a spoilsport like you usually do. Tell him what he wants to hear.'

Verses 13-14, "And Micaiah said, 'As the Lord lives, whatever my God says, that I will speak.' Then he came to the king; and the king said to him, 'Micaiah, shall we go to war against Ramoth Gilead, or shall I refrain?' And he said, 'Go and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand!'" Micaiah walked in and said, 'Yeah, king go on down.' The king couldn't believe it. Ahab sat back and said, 'Now, wait a minute; haven't I always told you to tell me the truth' (v. 15)? He had never told him to tell him the truth, but he liked to think that he had. Micaiah looked at him and said, 'All right, I am going to tell you the truth.'

Verse 16, "Then he said, 'I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd.' And the Lord said, 'These have no master. Let each return to his house in peace.'" Micaiah told the king, 'You are going to go out there to battle all right, but you are going to get killed.' And Ahab turned around to Jehoshaphat and said, 'Didn't I tell you; he never has anything good to say' (v. 17).

Notice what a con man Ahab was and what a gullible sort Jehoshaphat was. He was just a nice guy, the kind of guy that was very easy to get along with. He didn't like to cause trouble.

Notice what happened.

Verse 29, "And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, 'I will disguise myself and go into battle; but you put on your robes.' So the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle." Ahab tells Jehoshaphat he is going to disguise himself, just in the off-chance this guy knows what he is talking about and somebody is aiming for him. 'I am going to disguise myself and go to battle. You go ahead and put on your robes, put on your crown; you go out there looking like a king. I am just going to "stick on" some old clothes and go out to battle.'

Jehoshaphat should have wised up to that. 'What does he think? Me, put on my robes and go out there, and he's going to put on some old clothes and go sneaking out there. Who are they going to be shooting at?' But he just found it difficult to believe anything bad about anybody; he obliged and went out there.

Verse 31, "So it was, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, 'It is the king of Israel!' Therefore they surrounded him to attack; but Jehoshaphat cried out, and the Lord helped him, and God moved them to turn away from him." Just like old Ahab had figured, they were ready to come down on Jehoshaphat. When he got into trouble, he cried out to God, 'Oh, God, what have I gotten myself into?' And God helped him. God had mercy on him. All these guys left. And sure enough, somebody shoots a bow and what does it do? It hits Ahab (v. 33). So that's the story.

II Chronicles 19:1, "Then Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned safely to his house in Jerusalem." God told him to "stay put"—don't go back to Israel and get tangled up in that anymore.

In II Chronicles 20, Jehoshaphat did many positive things, but he kept having problems getting suckered into deals with Israel.

II Chronicles 20:35, "After this Jehoshaphat king of Judah allied himself with Ahaziah king of Israel, who acted very wickedly."

In v. 36, he talked him into a deal. 'Let's go into a partnership and build a navy. We will sail it from your port, Ezion-gaber.' Sure enough, Jehoshaphat probably put up most of the money, provided the port, and who knows what all he got conned into. They built this great big navy and were going to send it out, but God sent a storm and sank the whole navy (v. 37). It wasn't able to make it to Tarshish.

Here's a lesson. Get yourself tangled up with people not trying to obey God, and you are going to have trouble. Jehoshaphat, in his own personal life and in what he personally had responsibility for, was a very faithful man. But he was a "nice guy," found it hard to say "no" to anybody and kept getting suckered in. He felt sorry for the kings of Israel, thinking he could be a good influence on them, and maybe they would "come along." But they kept suckering him in. They kept using him and setting him up for one thing after another.

This is a story that I think is important for us to grasp because there are lessons of life that we can learn from the interaction of people.

Let's just briefly summarize here in the first couple chapters of II Kings which is the end of the story of Elijah, at least at this point.

II Kings 2:1-2, "And it came to pass, when the Lord was about to take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind, that Elijah went with Elisha from Gilgal. Then Elijah said to Elisha, 'Stay here, please, for the Lord has sent me on to Bethel.' And Elisha said, 'As the Lord lives, and as your soul lives, I will not leave you!' So they went down to Bethel."

Verse 3, "And the sons of the prophets who were at Bethel came out to Elisha..."

Verse 5, "And the sons of the prophets who were at Jericho came to Elisha..."

What you find as you go through here, this refers to three schools or colleges (if you want to use our modern terminology) for the prophets or sons of the prophets that Elijah had established at Gilgal, Bethel and Jericho. They were "sons of the prophets" or students of Elijah. God was getting ready to end Elijah's ministry. (His life didn't end until a little later.)

We find mentioned in v. 9, "...Elijah said to Elisha, 'Ask! What may I do for you, before I am taken away from you?' And Elisha said, 'Please let a double portion of your spirit be upon me.'"

The "double portion" had reference to the birthright portion, an inheritance. A double portion was the birthright portion. In that sense, the sons of the prophets collectively were the heirs of Elijah. They were his spiritual heirs. Elisha was the one who was going to, in that sense, take over and occupy that office. While all the sons of the prophets were the collective heirs of Elijah, Elisha received the double portion, the birthright portion. In other words, God empowered all of them; but Elisha, in a very special way, in a way that made him stand "head and shoulders" above all the other prophets, the other students of Elijah.

This didn't mean that Elisha had twice as much of God's Holy Spirit as Elijah did because Elijah was singled out as the great prophet. Even John the Baptist is one who came in the spirit and power of Elijah; he didn't come in the spirit and power of Elisha. Elijah was the great prophet, but Elisha was his heir. And in that sense, he is pictured as getting a double portion, referring to the birthright portion.

Verses 14-15, "Then he took the mantle of Elijah that had fallen from him, and struck the water, and said, 'Where is the Lord God of Elijah?' And when he also had struck the water, it was divided this way and that; and Elisha crossed over. Now when the sons of the prophets who were from Jericho saw him, they said, 'The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha....'" God performed a special miracle in intervening. God intervened and made it very obvious to all of his people as to who was taking Elijah's place. Elisha stood out. God worked through Elisha in a special way, in the same way He had worked through Elijah. In a time of transition, God always makes it plain.

There is one thing to comment on.

Verse 11, "...and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven." There are three heavens mentioned in the Bible. Heaven can refer to the heaven of the earth's atmosphere where the birds fly and the clouds are. It can refer to outer space where the sun, moon and the stars are. Or it can refer to what is called the third heaven (II Corinthians 12:2), the heaven of God's abode.

The heaven into which Elijah was taken by a whirlwind would have been the heaven of the earth's atmosphere. A whirlwind is something that exists in the earth's atmosphere. We will notice in the next Bible study that Elijah simply left. God simply, in a supernatural way, caught up Elijah and removed him to a different place.

We covered a lot of material this evening, but hopefully, in chart form, the historical portion will make it a little easier for you to follow and to keep up with all of these names. We have all these names back and forth, but it kind of gives you an idea as to the time flow. It is one of the things that we want to go through as we go through the material that is in this survey of the Old Testament.

Old Testament Series—II Kings 3—25 and II

This evening we are covering the final period of the history of Israel and Judah. It is a time where there are a lot of parallels, a lot of things that certainly parallel to our time today. If you noted last Bible study, we came down to, basically, the end of the life of Jehoshaphat and Ahab—the time period of eighth century B.C., a time period that witnesses the emergence in Israel and Judah of a commercial civilization and of great material prosperity. The commercial civilization that began to take place in Israel and Judah reached a height as far as material prosperity. There are some interesting comments in the Soncino Commentary, which is a Jewish commentary on the Old Testament. In their commentary on the book of Micah, they bring out the fact that the eighth century did witness the emergence of a commercial civilization of great material prosperity in Israel and Judah. Its foundations were laid in the peace and security in the reign of Jeroboam II.

I am going to refer to these kings if you want to look at your chart and follow along on this; otherwise, you will get lost with the names of all these kings. On the far right hand side of your chart are the kings of Israel. You will notice Jeroboam II that is written towards the bottom. Contemporary with him was Uzziah of Judah.

“The lengthy reigns of Jeroboam II and Uzziah were for Israel and Judah, respectively, a time of peace and security. They won the extension of the borders of their kingdoms from Damascus to the Red Sea and from the desert to the Mediterranean. This gave the Hebrew states command of all of the major trade routes of ancient days, everything that came across from Mesopotamia across to Egypt. The Hebrew states were sitting astride the major trade routes.

It was, however, a civilization that displayed all of the evils of a society making haste to be rich. Extremes of wealth and poverty, which had been impossible in an agricultural society based on the biblical system of land tenure, became evident everywhere. The pursuit of commerce encouraged the development of cities and city life. With the exchange of goods and the exchange of ideas, new religious cults, standards of luxury and splendor and materialistic aims of living, which heretofore had been foreign to Israel, were introduced from Syria and Egypt.”

I was reading a phrase from the Soncino Commentary’s introduction of the book of Micah. Their description of the eighth century B.C. and what it saw, as far as the historic development of Israel and Judah, could have been said about the twentieth-century United States. You see, in the twentieth century, this country went from a primarily agricultural nation to an industrial commercialized nation. We went from an agricultural rural nation to an urban nation. We have seen, as a result of that, the change and the transformation in society. We have seen extremes of wealth and poverty, down to many of the things that confront us today that are characteristic of an urban commercialized society, in a way that those extremes do not characterize an agricultural society. I bring out that parallel because when you read the history of eighth-century B.C. Israel and Judah, you are reading what seems like the history of twentieth-century America and Britain.

Now understand it’s in the eighth century B.C. If you look on your chart, which prophets were during the eighth century? The eighth-century prophets were Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah and Isaiah towards the end of it. You are looking at some of the primary prophets who wrote books of prophecy. They were writing during that time. In other words, they had a message for their society that also had implications for our society today. That’s why God preserved the message.

Now the reason why the message for that society has parallels and implications for our society today is because our society parallels. There are societies that had the same problems, and as a result, they are going to have the same conclusion.

Events began to develop rapidly about sixty years before the collapse of Israel. It was during this time that God’s work of warning the people to repent reached a peak. Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah and Isaiah all prophesied during this time period, the final sixty years of the history of Northern Israel.

Notice the time leading up to the time of God’s intervention, God’s punishment—the captivity that God allowed to come on the nation Israel. What led up to that was the greatest period of prophetic activity in the history of Old Testament Israel and Judah. The most concentrated dosage of prophetic activity took place at that time. God had a warning and a witness go out. There is a parallel. What Israel went through at that time certainly parallels what is happening to the United States during the twentieth century.

Now let's take note of the story. We will pick it up in II Kings 3. This is right after Elijah's ascension in a whirlwind.

II Kings 3:1, "Now Jehoram the son of Ahab became king over Israel at Samaria in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years." We find that Jehoram, the son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria. Ahaziah had succeeded Ahab; then Jehoram very quickly succeeded Ahaziah. God was not pleased with him. God was not pleased with anything that came from Ahab and Jezebel. Jehoram was not quite as bad as his father and his mother. He put away the image of Baal (v. 2), but he continued to follow the sin of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat (v. 3). There were problems; there was strife; and so there were difficulties.

Right after Ahab's death, the Moabites rebelled (v. 5), and Jehoram was again going to sucker good old Jehoshaphat (v. 7). You remember Jehoshaphat was a nice guy always willing to do a favor for somebody. Well, Jehoram said, 'Hey, Jehoshaphat, since Dad died the Moabites have rebelled against me. Why don't you send an army and come help me out?'

In v. 7, Old Jehoshaphat said, "...I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses." 'Anything I have, you can have. I'll give you the shirt off my back.' Sometimes you meet people this way. They're nice people, but they're just a little bit gullible and easily taken advantage of. They are so obliging that it is very difficult for them to say no. They get themselves in some "jams." Jehoshaphat was somewhat that way.

Verse 11, "But Jehoshaphat said, 'Is there no prophet of the Lord here, that we may inquire of the Lord by him?'" And one of the servants of the king of Israel answered and said, 'Elisha the son of Shaphat is here, who poured water on the hands of Elijah.'" So again Jehoshaphat honored and respected God. Before they went out to battle he wanted to know if there was a prophet of God they could inquire of. He was told that Elisha was there and Elisha was told.

Verse 13, "Then Elisha said to the king of Israel, 'What have I to do with you? Go to the prophets of your father and the prophets of your mother.' And the king of Israel said to him, 'No, for the Lord has called these three kings together to deliver them into the hand of Moab.'" Elisha told Jehoram, 'What have I got to do with you?

Why don't you go to your mother's or father's prophets? I don't have anything to tell you; you might as well go to Jezebel's prophets. I don't have any use for you.'

Verse 14, "And Elisha said, 'As the Lord of hosts lives, before whom I stand, surely were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, I would not look at you, nor see you.'" He said, 'I would not look toward you. I wouldn't so much as give you the time of day if it weren't that I have respect for Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. Out of respect for him, I will answer the question. But if it were just you asking, Jehoram, I wouldn't tell you the time of day.' So anyway, you go through the story.

II Kings 4 is an account of several miracles that took place, showing what Elisha did. We see in vv. 1-7 where Elisha performed a miracle to allow an indebted widow to pay off her creditors. The oil multiplied and she was able to sell it and earn money.

II Kings 4:1, "...the creditor is coming to take my two sons to be his slaves." Elisha asked, 'What do you have?' She said, 'All I have is a little oil' (v. 2). And he told her to borrow pots and pans—borrow everything you can "rake and scrape" that will hold oil. Get everything that the neighbors have. Everything that you can borrow, get and then start pouring oil (v. 4). She started pouring oil and the oil kept pouring and pouring until she filled up every pot and pan that she had, and everything that any neighbor had—everything around. When she ran out of pots, she ran out of oil (vv. 5-6). She sold the oil and paid off the debts (v. 7). God has all kinds of ways of providing things.

As we continue here in chapter 4, we read of the woman who befriended Elisha (v. 8), an elderly couple and the child that they had as a result of God's special blessing (vv. 14-17). We read of his subsequent death (vv. 18-20) and then the miracle that Elisha performed of restoring the child to life (vv. 32-35).

In II Kings 5, we have an interesting story of Naaman who was the captain of the host of the king of Syria. Now the Syrians had raided Israel at various times and had taken away a number of various Israelites captive; there was a little servant girl that had been taken away who was a servant in the household of Naaman. The little girl was an Israelite (v. 2). Naaman was a great favorite of the king of Syria. He was the captain of the host. Naaman came down with a dreaded disease. He came down with leprosy for which there was no known cure (v. 1). This little girl told Naaman one day, 'I wish you were down in Israel because there is a prophet in Israel that I know could cure you' (v. 3). Well, Naaman was willing to try anything, so he went to talk to the king of Syria, and the king of Syria gave him a letter that was addressed to the king of Israel.

II Kings 5:5-6, "So the king of Syria said, 'Go now, and I will send a letter to the king of Israel.' So he departed and took with him ten talents of silver, six thousand shekels of gold, and ten changes of clothing. Then he brought the letter to the king of Israel, which said, 'Now be advised, when this letter comes to you, that I have sent Naaman my servant to you, that you may heal him of his leprosy.'" He addressed this letter to the king of Israel and said, 'I am sending my favorite servant down there, and I understand that you have somebody that can cure him of leprosy. I want you to take care of him as a favor to me.' Well, needless to say, when the king of Israel got this letter, this scared him to death.

Verse 7, "And it happened, when the king of Israel read the letter, that he tore his clothes and said, 'Am I God, to kill and make alive, that this man sends a man to me to heal him of his leprosy? Therefore please consider, and see how he seeks a quarrel with me.'" He said, 'That guy is trying to pick a fight with me. Here he is sending this general down here; he's got leprosy and expects me to cure him. What am I going to do with him; I can't cure him. He's sending him down here expecting me to do something.'

Verse 8, "So it was, when Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, 'why have you torn your clothes? Please let him come to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.'" When Elisha heard about it, he was somewhat irate. Elisha sent word to the king and said, 'Let him come to me. You may not have any faith, but evidently the Syrians have more faith than you do because they sent this guy here to get cured. You're standing over there wringing your hands and figuring that it's impossible. The Syrians haven't any knowledge of the true God; at least they had enough faith to give it a try.' They were told this little servant girl had far more faith and understanding than the king because she said, 'I know God can heal you, and He has a servant, a prophet, down in Israel.'

Verse 9, "Then Naaman went with his horses and chariot, and he stood at the door of the house of Elisha. And Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, 'Go and wash in the Jordan seven times, and your flesh shall be restored to you, and you shall be clean.'" Naaman came near to Elisha's house. Elisha didn't even come out. He sent his messenger out, and he instructed Naaman to go and wash in the Jordan seven times.

Verses 11-12, "But Naaman became furious and went away and said, 'Indeed, I said to myself, he will surely come out to me, and stand and call on the name of the Lord his God, and wave his hand over the place, and heal the leprosy. Are not the Abanah and the Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? Could I not wash in them and be clean?' So he turned and went away in a rage." Now Naaman immediately became very upset, very irate. Do you know why he was irate? Because God didn't do it the way he expected it to be done.

Naaman was wroth. Look what he says. He says, "...indeed I said to myself..." He had already figured it out. Have you ever jumped to conclusions in your mind; have you ever figured out how you thought God was going to do it? He thought this man was going to come out here and would call upon the name of his God with a big hoopla, making a great sound and going on and on—something impressive—and his leprosy would disappear. But he sent his servant out and told him, 'Go wash in that old muddy Jordan River seven times.' Naaman thought, 'What good is that going to do? I have a whole lot of better rivers than that back where I come from. I don't need to wash in the Jordan. Boy, I am insulted.'

Verse 13, "And his servants came near and spoke to him, and said, 'My father, if the prophet had told you to do something great, would you not have done it? How much more then, when he says to you, "Wash, and be clean"?' His servant said to him, 'Look, if the prophet had given you some difficult terrible task to perform, some great arduous difficult task and said "if you will perform this you will be healed," wouldn't you have gone and done it? Well, yeah. All he asked you to do was something simple. Why don't you try it? What can you lose?'

Verse 14, "So he went down and dipped seven times in the Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God; and his flesh was restored like the flesh of a little child, and he was clean."

He went down and washed in the Jordan seven times, and, you guessed it, he was totally healed. Why? It was an act of faith, an act of obedience. What difference does it make whether you wash in the Jordan or whether you go back and wash in a river in Syria? Well, the difference it makes is that God said it made a difference to Him. God said to wash in the Jordan. He didn't say go back and wash in the Tigris or the Euphrates or anything else. He said, 'Wash in the Jordan.' What difference does it make? The difference is whether you are doing what God said or not. That's the difference.

It's like what difference does it make whether you keep Sunday or Saturday, just as long as you keep a day. What difference does it make? Or any number of things, what difference does it make? The question, brethren, is whether it makes a difference to God. See, that's the question.

People look at it and say, 'I don't see what difference it makes.' Of course, they don't see what difference it makes. Naaman didn't see what difference it made whether he washed in the Jordan. But I'll guarantee no other river would have washed him clean. Not because of any magic quality inherent in the Jordan River, but because he did what God said.

There's an important lesson here. God answers, but He doesn't always do it the way expected. In fact, Naaman was so "tuned in" to looking for an answer coming from a particular direction, that he was all upset and almost didn't recognize the answer when it came because God didn't do it the way he had expected.

Do we put limitations on God sometimes? We get God all figured out, put Him in a box and get it all figured out how God has got to do this. If for some reason or another God doesn't do it the way we expect, we think, 'What is this? God "slipped up"; somehow He didn't get it right.' Oh, God got it right. He did it the way He chose to do it.

Naaman came back, and you know what he wanted to do? He wanted to pay Elisha for what he had done (v. 15). You know what Elisha did? He did the same thing God's servants down through the centuries have done. He said, 'No, we don't charge for what we do.' That's quite a contrast to certain churches some of you have come out of. They charge for everything. They charge you to pray for you; they charge you for all kinds of things. That's not God's way.

Christ said in Matthew 10:8, "'freely you have received, freely give.'" Elisha would not accept payment, but then, of course, the servant of Elisha, his eyes got big when he saw all that money. He decided that maybe if Elisha didn't want it, he would take it (vv. 20-24). And that proved to be a very fatal mistake on his part.

Verse 27, "'Therefore the leprosy of Naaman shall cling to you and your descendants forever. And he went out from his presence leprous, as white as snow.'" That was a very serious matter.

It was something that should not be looked at in a light way.

As we continue, we find in chapter 6 the story of another miracle.

II Kings 6:8, "Now the king of Syria was making war against Israel...."

Verses 14-15, "Therefore he sent horses and chariots and a great army there, and they came by night and surrounded the city. And when the servant of the man of God arose early and went out, there was an army, surrounding the city with horses and chariots. And his servant said to him, 'Alas, my master! What shall we do?'" 'What shall we do, we are surrounded!'

Verse 16, "So he answered, 'Do not fear, for those who are with us are more than those who are with them.'" Elisha said, 'No problem. There are more with us than are with them.' His servant said, 'You haven't looked outside yet; you're sitting here in the house. You haven't looked out the door; what do you mean, 'more with us than are with them'? They have us surrounded.'

Verse 17, "And Elisha prayed, and said, 'Lord, I pray, open his eyes that he may see.' Then the Lord opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw. And behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha." Elisha prayed and asked God to perform a miracle—to open this servant's eyes to allow him to actually see the spirit realm. And you know what he saw? He saw all the mountains round about covered with horses and chariots of fire. Now that's a whole lot more impressive than anything the Syrians had. There are times that we would be absolutely shocked and amazed if our eyes could be opened in that way, and for a brief moment, have a glimpse of the spirit realm. Elisha had a reaction and a response of faith because he knew God; he walked with God. He knew God's power; he trusted God. So he was not overcome with fear and hand-wringing because he knew that he was the servant of the Most High God.

II Kings 6:24-25, "And it happened after this that Ben-Hadad king of Syria gathered all his army, and went up and besieged Samaria. And there was a great famine in Samaria...." There was a great famine right on down to the point that it came to literal cannibalism (vv. 28-29). The king was very quick to want to blame it on Elisha.

Verse 31, "Then he said, 'God do so to me and more also, if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat remains on him today.'" He said, 'Boy, I am going to chop off Elisha's head. He got us into all of this.'

Verse 32, “But Elisha was sitting in his house, and the elders were sitting with him. And the king sent a man ahead of him, but before the messenger came to him, he said to the elders, ‘Do you see how this son of a murderer has sent someone to take away my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door. Is not the sound of his master’s feet behind him?’” Elisha referred to this son of Ahab and Jezebel as “the son of a murderer.”

II Kings 7:6-7, “For the Lord had caused the army of the Syrians to hear the noise of chariots and the noise of horses—the noise of a great army; so they said to one another, ‘Look, the king of Israel has hired against us the kings of the Hittites and the kings of the Egyptians to attack us!’ Therefore they arose and fled at twilight, and left the camp intact...and they fled for their lives.”

Verse 10, “So they went and called to the gatekeepers of the city, and told them, saying, ‘We went to the Syrian camp, and surprisingly no one was there, not a human sound....’”

Verse 16, “Then the people went out and plundered the tents of the Syrians....” A miracle was performed; the Syrians fled and all of their provisions fell to Israel.

But notice the attitude—blame the problems on God’s prophet, God’s servant.

I would like to call your attention to something we had discussed last time—the matter of Elijah being carried away into heaven in a whirlwind. This is not the third heaven of God’s abode, nor the second heaven of outer space, but the first heaven of the earth’s atmosphere of the clouds and the birds. The first heaven of the earth’s atmosphere is where a whirlwind would normally go. He was taken up and removed, set down somewhere else, and continued to live for a period of time. We are not told how long.

Notice additional proof that Elijah’s life was not ended at that time; he continued to live here on the earth.

We noted in II Kings 3:1, “Now Jehoram the son of Ahab became king over Israel at Samaria in the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years.” Jehoshaphat was still king of Judah after the time that Elijah was taken up and Elisha had succeeded as God’s chief prophet. We saw a little bit further in II Kings 3 that Jehoshaphat was still the king of Judah at the time when Elisha had taken over as God’s chief prophet (vv. 11-14). Now let’s take note of that and turn to II Chronicles.

II Chronicles 21:1, “And Jehoshaphat rested with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the City of David. Then Jehoram his son reigned in his place.” Now this is one of the reasons you need the chart because you will find that at this particular time in history, the kings of Israel and Judah had basically the same name, which serves to confuse things more than they are already confused. In most people’s minds, they are already confused; and when you have all the kings with the same names, it gets even more confusing. So you can consult the chart here. If you want to make it even more confusing, they were all kin to one another. Would you like exact family relationships? You would get really confused here. Anyway, Jehosaphat died and his son Jehoram reigned in his stead.

Verses 5-6, “Jehoram was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, just as the house of Ahab had done, for he had the daughter of Ahab as a wife; and he did evil in the sight of the Lord.”

Notice what happened.

Verse 12, “And a letter came to him from Elijah the prophet, saying....” There was a letter to him from Elijah. Not Elisha, but Elijah! Elijah had been taken up in a whirlwind years before. Here comes a writing to Jehoram.

Verses 12-13, “...from Elijah the prophet, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord God of your father David: Because you have not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat your father, or in the ways of Asa king of Judah, but have walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and have made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to play the harlot like the harlotry of the house of Ahab....’”

He said, ‘You’ve done all these things, and here’s what is going to happen to you.’ If Elijah was where most people think he was, this was the original airmail. This letter had a long trip to get there—definitely the original airmail—which it was not. Elijah was simply somewhere else. He was taken up, removed. The work that God had for him to do there was completed. What did he do in the remainder of his life? Well, the only insight that is given was God used him to deal with at least this king. Perhaps God used him to go to other kings. We don’t know exactly what God had for him. But I would call your attention to that.

Now we come to the conclusion of the dynasty of Ahab. God doesn’t have a lot of good things to say about Ahab.

II Kings 9:5-8, “...‘I have a message for you, O commander.’ And Jehu said, ‘For which one of us?’ And he said, ‘For you, commander.’ Then he arose and went into the house, and he poured the oil on his head, and said to him, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: “I have anointed you king over the people of the Lord, over Israel. You shall strike down the house of Ahab your master, that I may avenge the blood of My servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the Lord, at the hand of Jezebel. For the whole house of Ahab shall perish: and I will cut off from Ahab all the males in Israel....”’

We find a man by the name of Jehu; he has as his dynasty, to wipe out the dynasty of Ahab. Now if you look on the chart under the kings of Israel, you will find that Jehu took over. He ended the dynasty of Ahab. How did God cut off the dynasty? Well, we find here the story of how Jehu wiped out Ahab’s dynasty in Israel as well as all the priests of Baal and he made himself king (II Kings 9:24—10:28).

Let me call your attention to something about Jehu. Jehu was famous for something.

II Kings 9:20, “And the watchman reported, saying, ‘He went up to them and is not coming back; and the driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi for he drives furiously!’”

Jehu was famous for his style of driving. He drove furiously. The watchman was standing on the city wall and saw some dust. He said, ‘I can’t tell who it is, but it must be Jehu. Nobody around here drives like that, wheeling that chariot around the corner on one wheel with all of the dust turning up.’

Verse 21, “So Joram [Jehoram] said, ‘make ready.’” Better get out of the way; here comes Jehu. Jehoram was going to go out there to meet him.

Verse 22, “Now it happened, when Joram [Jehoram] saw Jehu, that he said, ‘Is it peace, Jehu?’ So he answered, ‘What peace, as long as the harlotries of your mother Jezebel and her witchcraft are so many.’”

Verse 24, “Now Jehu drew his bow with full strength and shot Joram [Jehoram] between his arms; and the arrow came out at his heart, and he sank down in his chariot.” He drew a bow and shot Joram (Jehoram); he killed him and came into town.

Verse 30, “And when Jehu had come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; and she put paint on her eyes and adorned her head, and looked through a window.”

Now Jezebel is one of these outstanding characters; we find a little bit about her in v. 22, “...as long as the harlotries of your mother Jezebel and her witchcraft are so many.”

God used Jezebel, Queen Jezebel, as literally the personification of everything God hates in a woman. In fact, he uses her as a type of the great whore of Revelation 17. Remember the great whore is described as committing fornication with the kings of the earth, making all nations drunk with the wine of her fornication. That’s what Jezebel did literally. She wielded power by committing fornication with the kings of all of the surrounding areas. The whoredoms of Jezebel—she literally practiced whoredom. She committed whoredom with the kings of the earth. God used her as a type; in fact, if you go back to Revelation 2, you will find that God describes the false church under the person of Jezebel.

In Revelation 2:20, He tells the Thyatira era, “‘I have somewhat against you because you permit that woman Jezebel [referring to the Church in the Middle Ages], to seduce My servant.’” The reference, of course, is to the Catholic Church that is personified as Jezebel. Revelation uses the personification of a woman, a queen who commits fornication with the kings of the earth and who wields power by entering into illicit relationships with various kings. That’s the way she wielded her power. That’s the way Jezebel did. Jezebel absolutely personified everything God hates in a woman, and He uses her as a type of that throughout the book of Revelation.

“Jezebel”—we have all heard the term, a term that we grew up with. You never took it as a compliment if somebody called you a “Jezebel,” did you? If you knew anything about the Bible, you knew that was not what you wanted to be called. You did not want to be called a “Jezebel.” Well, God does not have a lot of good to say about Jezebel.

In fact, Jezebel evidently considered herself a great beauty and must have been considered so by the various kings around because they all wanted to commit fornication with her. She was getting all decked out for Jehu (II Kings 9:30), but Jehu told the servants to throw her down. So they picked her up and heaved her out of the window. She fell down (v. 33), and of course, it killed her. It was a very gruesome thing.

Verse 34, “And when he had gone in, he ate and drank. Then he said, ‘Go now, see to this accursed woman, and bury her, for she was a king’s daughter.’”

When they went to bury her, they found no more of her than the skull, the feet and the palms of her hands because the dogs had eaten the flesh of Jezebel. Jezebel came to a very gruesome, gory conclusion, a very ugly ending. I think that it serves to show that God singled her out for an especially gruesome conclusion.

Here is a woman who is concerned with outward beauty, and God's concern was with inward beauty. Jezebel may have looked good on the outside—evidently the kings of the earth thought so; but as far as God was concerned, she was a very ugly person in terms of character and everything that she represented. She came to a very gruesome and ugly end.

Again, we are given a little bit of insight as we go through these accounts of various ones that are focused on, and the influence that different ones had. Now, Jezebel's influence continued because her daughter, Athaliah had married Jehoram, the king of Judah. So Jezebel's daughter, who was somewhat a "chip-off-the-old-block," was down in Judah as the Queen, even though Jezebel was dead.

II Kings 10:1, "Now Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria...."

Verse 7, "So it was, when the letter came to them, that they took the king's sons and slaughtered seventy persons..." Jehu had Ahab's seventy sons killed, and it was a real bloodletting.

Verses 26-29, "And they brought the sacred pillars out of the temple of Baal and burned them. Then they broke down the sacred pillar of Baal, and tore down the temple of Baal and made it a refuse dump to this day. Thus Jehu destroyed Baal from Israel. However Jehu did not turn away from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who had made Israel sin, that is, from the golden calves that were at Bethel and Dan."

Verse 36, "And the period that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty-eight years."

In the meantime, in Judah, Jehoram the king of Judah had died, and his son Ahaziah had become king. Ahaziah was the son of Jehoram and Athaliah.

Now in II Kings 11 Ahaziah died (v. 1). Ahaziah was the grandson of Jezebel and Ahab. Because of intermarriage, the family of Ahab and Jezebel was ruling in Judah, as well as in Israel. Well, they were wiped out in Israel; all of the seventy sons of Ahab were killed. Now, the grandson Ahaziah died. When he died, Athaliah decided that she would be king, and she was going to murder all of her grandchildren. Nice woman, real "chip-off-the-old-block" of dear mother.

II Kings 11:1-3, "When Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the royal heirs. But Jehosheba, the daughter of King Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him away from among the king's sons who were being murdered; and they hid him and his nurse in the bedroom, from Athaliah, so that he was not killed. So he was hidden with her in the house of the Lord for six years, while Athaliah reigned over the land."

In the seventh year, the high priest called in the leaders (v. 4), and said, 'All right, enough is enough. The rightful heir to the throne of David is now seven years old; we are going to bring him out, coronate him and get rid of this wicked woman.' So he placed the guards in strategic places, and Jehoiada the priest then brought in little Joash.

Verse 12, "And he brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, and gave him the Testimony, they made him king and anointed him, and they clapped their hands and said, 'Long live the king!'"

Verses 13-14, "Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the escorts and the people, she came to the people, into the temple of the Lord. When she looked, there was the king, standing by the pillar according to custom, and the leaders and the trumpeters were by the king. All the people of the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets. And Athaliah tore her clothes and cried out, 'Treason! Treason!'"

If you will check it in some other translations, it is, "stood on the pillar, as the manner was." You know what this is describing? You will find this referred to in several occasions where coronations of kings are described. The kings and queens of the house of David are still crowned on the same pillar. Jacob's pillar stone, which was taken through the wilderness, was taken down into Egypt and brought back out by the Israelites at the time of the Exodus. It journeyed with them through the wilderness. It was set up as the pillar of testimony. The kings were crowned, coronated, on that pillar. When Athaliah came in and saw Joash standing on the pillar as the manner was, she knew what had happened. He had been coronated. When she saw this child standing on the pillar, she recognized the pillar; she knew he had been coronated. She rent her clothes and cried "treason, treason." Well, she was the one guilty of treason.

Verse 16, "So they seized her; and she went by the way of the horses; entrance to the king's house, and there she was killed." She was taken out of the temple and executed.

Of course, Jacob's ancient pillar stone is to this very day the symbol of the throne and upon which the kings are coronated. The present Queen, Queen Elizabeth, was coronated sitting on this pillar stone. If you have ever been to Westminster Abbey, you may have seen that pillar stone there under the throne. There is a sign there identifying it as Jacob's pillar.

Verse 21, "Jehoash was seven years old when he became king."

Now as we come down, we find the story of Elisha's death.

II Kings 13:14, "Elisha had become sick with the illness of which he would die..." I just call to your attention—Elisha got sick and died. He was evidently an elderly man. It was not a matter that Elisha lacked faith. God used Elisha to perform some of the most tremendous miracles of the Bible, but God designed this physical life to be temporary. The time came when Elisha got sick and he died.

Hebrews 9:27, "And as it is appointed for men to die once..."

In II Kings 14, we pick up the story of Azariah. Azariah is the name by which he is referred to in v. 21. He is also known as Uzziah (II Kings 15:13; II Chronicles 26:1).

II Kings 14:23, "...he reigned forty-one years."

Verse 25, "He restored the territory of Israel from the entrance of Hamath to the Sea of the Arabah, according to the word of the Lord God, which He had spoken through His servant Jonah the son of Amittai, the prophet who was from Atah Hopher."

He was contemporary with God's prophet Jonah. This was a time when Israel and Judah reached their height of power. They expanded; they reached their height of commercial prosperity during the time of Uzziah, the king of Judah and Jeroboam II, king of Israel. But economic, material and commercial heights and heights of morality, ethics and righteousness were two totally different things. The nation prospered materially, but the nation degenerated and deteriorated spiritually. We see that within a short time, problems began to come.

After the death of Jeroboam (v. 29), we find that it was really a matter of about forty years that saw just complete collapse. Israel went from its height to captivity in a lifespan, a generation, which is not unique, and certainly, even parallels our time.

In II Kings 15, we find that there was a rapid succession of kings. There was a lot of political instability. The nation became virtually paralyzed. There was an absence of strong leadership. It was just a turnover, one after the other—a time of instability. Of course, the Assyrians came in and originally put the land under tribute, exacted taxes and eventually came in and laid waste to Samaria. They took Israel into captivity and ultimately put an end to the nation of Northern Israel—the northern ten tribes.

We have the story of the conclusion of the history of the northern ten tribes.

II Kings 17:6-7, "In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria and carried Israel away to Assyria, and placed them in Halah and by the Habor, the River of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes. For so it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and they had feared other gods."

Verses 10-18, "They set up for themselves sacred pillars and wooden images on every high hill and under every green tree; And there they burned incense on all the high places, as the nations had done whom the Lord had carried away before them; and they did wicked things to provoke the Lord to anger, for they served idols, of which the Lord had said to them, 'You shall not do this thing.' Yet the Lord testified against Israel and against Judah, by all of His prophets, namely every seer, saying, 'Turn from your evil ways, and keep My commandments and My statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by My servants the prophets.' Nevertheless they would not hear, but stiffened their necks like the necks of their fathers, who did not believe in the Lord their God. And they rejected His statutes and His covenant that He had made with their fathers, and His testimonies which He had testified against them; they followed idols, became idolaters, and went after the nations who were all around them, concerning whom the Lord had charged them that they should not do like them. So they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, made for themselves a molded image and two calves, made a wooden image and worshiped all the host of heaven, and served Baal. And they caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire, practiced witchcraft and soothsaying, and sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke Him to anger. Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from His sight; there was none left but the tribe of Judah alone."

Verses 21-23, "For He tore Israel from the house of David, and they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king. Then Jeroboam drove Israel from following the Lord, and made them commit a great sin. For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they did not depart from them, until the Lord removed Israel out of His sight, as He had said by all His servants the prophets. So Israel was carried away from their own land to Assyria, as it is to this day.” Right on down to the time of Ezra and Nehemiah, when the Old Testament canon was completed, Northern Israel was still carried away. They were settled in the land of Assyria; specifically, they were settled in the cities of the Medes by the river Gosan.

If you want to check a map, you will find that is an area between the Black and the Caspian Sea. The southern shore of the Black Sea is way up at the top away from the Tigris/Euphrates valley. Babylon is down at the bottom right near the Persian Gulf. The Jews, one hundred fifty years later, were taken to Babylon. They were not taken up to the cities of the Medes, which was a totally different empire. The Israelites were taken, not to Babylon, but were taken by the Assyrians and settled in the cities of the Medes up by the river Gosan—in other words, up there on the southern shore of the Black Sea.

It should not come as a surprise that we read in history of the Celtic people who invaded Europe originated from the southern shore of the Black Sea. Basically, they invaded Europe in two waves, one around 700 B.C., which was the initial wave right after the captivity. The main wave was almost four hundred years later. There was a specific prophecy of that. We will get into that at a little later time.

When Alexander the Great overthrew the empire of the Medes and the Persians in 331 B.C., the Israelites who had been taken captive were freed. That is when the main Celtic invasion of Europe took place. The time around 330 B.C. to 300 B.C. is when they swarmed across the Black Sea and into Europe. Now it was prophesied in the book of Ezekiel (Ezekiel 4:5) that Israel would be in captivity three hundred ninety years. Well, from the fall of Samaria in 721 B.C. until Alexander conquered the Medes and the Persians in 331 B.C. was exactly three hundred ninety years. Exactly three hundred ninety years when Alexander conquered the Medes and Persians, the Israelites were freed; they crossed the Black Sea and invaded Europe. If you read your history, that’s when the Celts came into Europe, and that’s where they came from. It’s very easy to trace historically.

Verse 23, “until the Lord removed Israel out of His sight, as He had said by all His servants the prophets. So Israel was carried away from their own land to Assyria, as it is to this day.” Notice here that God removed them.

Verse 24, “Then the king of Assyria brought people from Babylon, Cuthah, Ava, Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel; and they took possession of Samaria and dwelt in its cities.” So he brought in these Babylonians and settled them in the areas where the Northern Israelites had been deported from.

Then these Babylonians decided they needed some instruction in the god of the land because in the intervening time that the land had lain unpopulated, wild animals had multiplied greatly. They came in being superstitious. They decided that what they needed was some instruction about the God of the land (vv. 25-26).

So the king of Assyria told them to carry back one of the priests whom they had brought from there, and he would teach them the manner of the God of the land (v. 27). Now don’t you know that he was going to do a good job teaching them God’s truth! What was this priest? He was one of the ones who had been the priest of the high places, one of the lowest, the priest of the golden calf. He was one of the ones that Jeroboam had put into office (I Kings 12:31)—so what was he going to teach them? He was going to teach them the same kind of paganism that Israel had been having. The only difference was that they used God’s name. They used the name of the God of Israel when they built this golden calf and did all of these things. They paid lip service to the God of Israel, to YHWH, but they practiced all these pagan things.

Verse 28, “Then one of the priests whom they carried away from Samaria came and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they should fear the Lord.” Notice what it says. We are told that one of these priests came back, and he taught them how they ought to fear the Lord. And don’t you know he did a good job.

Verse 29, “However every nation continued to make gods of its own, and put them in the houses of the high places which the Samaritans had made, every nation in the cities where they dwelt.”

Verse 32, “So they feared the Lord, and from every class [KJV, “of the lowest of the people”] they appointed for themselves priests of the high places who sacrificed for them in the shrines of the high places.” Evidently, the priest showed them where they were supposed to get their priests.

Verses 33-34, “They feared the Lord, yet served their own gods—according to the rituals of the nations from among whom they were carried away. To this day they continue practicing the former rituals; they do not fear the Lord, nor do they follow their statutes or their ordinances, or the law and commandment which the Lord had commanded the children of Jacob, whom He named Israel.”

Verse 41, “So these nations feared the Lord, yet served their carved images; also their children and their children’s children have continued doing as their fathers did, even to this day.” At the time of Ezra and Nehemiah, that’s what they had to say about the Samaritans. This is the origin of the Samaritans. When the Northern Israelites were taken into captivity, the Assyrians moved in Babylonians and settled them in that area. Bringing back one of the Israelite priests, they now had a “hodge-podge” religion. They kept their old pagan Babylonian religion with all of their idols, but now attached God’s name to it. That was what the Samaritans were doing. They paid lip service to God and the Bible, but they worshiped their same old idols—same old paganism.

Does that ring a familiar bell? Are you familiar with any particular religion that has made quite a practice of preserving whatever pagan tradition the people were already doing, and just attaching a new name to it—attaching a good Bible name to it? Take for example, down in Mexico, the great shrine of our lady of Guadalupe, which is the great shrine in Mexico. It is quite a famous Catholic shrine. If you study the history of Mexico, you’ll find that shrine has been around a long time; it antedates the coming of the Spaniards. It had been the shrine of the goddess worshipped by the Aztecs. When the Spaniards came into Mexico, the priests decided to sprinkle a little water, and everybody became Catholic. They decided they all liked this shrine; they were all used to coming here worshipping this goddess. That was fine—keep on doing exactly the same thing, at the same place, use the same old stuff, but now it’s not what it use to be—now it’s Our Lady of Guadalupe. We will sprinkle a little water, and all of a sudden, she’s got a new name. But it’s the same old thing.

When you come into the New Testament, you read of the animosity of the Jews and the Samaritans.

John 4:9, “...‘How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me a Samaritan woman?’ For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans.” Here is where it came from. The reason why the Jews didn’t like the Samaritans was because they knew what the Samaritans were. Remember what Christ told the Samaritan woman?

Verse 22, “‘You worship what you do not know, we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews.’” Christ settled the argument as to where you look for and who preserved the truth.

Romans 3:1-2, “What advantage then has the Jew, or what is the profit of circumcision? Much in every way! Chiefly because to them were committed the oracles of God.” The Samaritans didn’t preserve the truth; the Jews did. They preserved the Old Testament, and they preserved the truth.

In Acts 8, we read of one, Simon, known in history as Simon Magus, Simon the Magician, Simon the Sorcerer, who was the chief religious official of the Samaritans (v. 9), and to whom they all gave heed (v. 10). Maybe we will go into a Bible study on it, but in reality, what you find is that as the Jews were dispersed throughout the Mediterranean world, the Jewish community served as the nucleus around which the true Church of God was built. Even in the Gentile cities, it was converted Jews who knew the law, had access to the Scriptures and served as the nucleus of the Church. The Gentiles were added in around it because this was where there was access to the knowledge of the truth, the Scriptures.

We find that even Paul, who was the apostle of the Gentiles, came to the Jews first and then to the Gentiles. By having a stable core of people who were familiar with the law, as the first ones in the Church, it was much simpler when others who came out of other backgrounds were added in. There were already people, membership in the Church, who were culturally attuned to the Bible and to the principles of the law, and other new members coming in acclimated themselves to it. That was the logical way to do it, and that is the way God is.

But there was another church that had its beginning a couple of years later, one that had its beginnings in Samaria, with one Simon the Sorcerer. Interestingly enough, there had been, as a result of some of the conquest of Alexander the Great, a limited dispersion of the Samaritans. There were major Samaritan colonies in two areas—Rome, Italy and Alexandria, Egypt. These colonies in Rome and Alexandria became the centers of the church that Simon the Magician, the Sorcerer, sought to build with himself as the head. That gets into another story, but the origin, II Kings 17, is a critical chapter. There is very important information that is preserved there.

II Kings 18:1-4, “Now it came to pass in the third year of Hoshea the son of Elah, king of Israel, that Hezekiah the son of Ahaz, king of Judah, began to reign. He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abi the daughter of Zechariah. And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father David had done. He removed the high places and broke the sacred pillars, cut down the wooden images and broke in pieces the bronze serpent that Moses had made; for until those days the children of Israel burned incense to it, and called it Nehushtan." Hezekiah was a very zealous man.

Now turn back to II Chronicles 29 and we'll get a little insight into something that occurred right at the time of the fall of Northern Israel after the Assyrians had come in and successfully invaded. II Chronicles 29:1, "Hezekiah became king when he was twenty-five years old, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem..." This was a time of great reforms, they repaired the temple, and they had the Scriptures being preached (vv. 3-36). Now notice what he did.

II Chronicles 30:1-11, "And Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, and also wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, to keep the Passover to the Lord God of Israel. For the king and his leaders, and all the congregation in Jerusalem had agreed to keep the Passover in the second month. For they could not keep it at that time, because a sufficient number of priests had not sanctified themselves, nor had the people gathered together at Jerusalem. And the matter pleased the king, and all the congregation. So they resolved to make a proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beersheba to Dan, that they should come to keep the Passover to the Lord God of Israel at Jerusalem, since they had not done it for a long time in the prescribed manner. Then the runners went throughout all Israel and Judah with the letters from the king and his leaders, and spoke according to the commandment of the king: 'Children of Israel, return to the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel; then He will return to the remnant of you who have escaped from the hand of the kings of Assyria. And do not be like your fathers and your brethren, who trespassed against the Lord God of their fathers, so that He gave them up to astonishment, as you see. Now do not be stiff-necked, as your fathers were, but yield yourselves to the Lord; and enter His sanctuary, which He has sanctified forever, and serve the Lord our God, that the fierceness of His wrath may turn away from you. For if you return to the Lord, your brethren and your children will be treated with compassion by those who lead them captive, so that they may come back to this land; for the Lord your God is gracious and merciful, and will not turn His face from you if you return to Him.' So the runners passed from city to city through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh, as far as Zebulun; but they laughed them to scorn and mocked them. Nevertheless some from Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem."

There were a handful, a few from Asher and Manasseh and Zebulun that humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem. There were a handful that came down there, but basically, Hezekiah's messengers were laughed at and scorned. There was the final warning and witness to Israel—repent. It was in the context of coming to observe God's Festivals. They were told to come up to Jerusalem to observe God's Festivals; repent and God will be merciful. They did not respond, and the Assyrian army came in and took them all captive.

II Chronicles 31:1, "Now when all this was finished, all Israel who were present went out to the cities of Judah and broke the sacred pillars in pieces, cut down the wooden images, and threw down the high places and the altars—from all Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh—until they had utterly destroyed them all. Then all the children of Israel returned to their own cities, every man to his possession."

Verses 4-7, "Moreover he commanded the people who dwelt in Jerusalem to contribute support for the priests and the Levites, that they might devote themselves to the Law of the Lord. As soon as the commandment was circulated, the children of Israel brought in abundance the firstfruits of grain and wine, oil and honey, and of all the produce of the field; and they brought in abundantly the tithe of everything. And the children of Israel and Judah, who dwelt in the cities of Judah; brought the tithe of oxen and sheep; also the tithe of holy things which were consecrated to the Lord their God they laid in heaps. In the third month they began laying them in heaps, and they finished in the seventh month."

In other words, at Pentecost they began bringing their tithes in, and it was finished by the seventh month—the Feast of Tabernacles—when the final harvest was finished. There was revival that took place. When real revival took place, the people started obeying God. They started keeping the Festivals; they started tithing; and they started doing the things that people do when they are repentant.

Verses 20-21, “Thus Hezekiah did throughout all Judah, and he did what was good and right and true before the Lord his God. And in every work that he began in the service of the house of God, in the law and in the commandment, to seek his God, he did it with all his heart. So he prospered.” God was very pleased with Hezekiah.

We have already commented on where the tribes of northern Israel were taken into captivity. They were taken to the cities of the Medes, primarily between the areas between the Black and the Caspian Sea. Babylonians were brought in to the former land of Israel. They were known as the Samaritans, taking their name from the capital city. We are told about the religion of the Samaritans. It was the same old Babylonian Mystery religion that they had been following all along, but now they added a new ingredient—they began to call it all by the name of the true God. One of the Northern Israel priests was brought back to Samaria to teach them the manner of the God of the land. We have seen that Jeroboam’s approach to religion was also preserved.

In terms of Hezekiah, let’s notice what we are told is God’s analysis of Hezekiah.

II Kings 18:5-6, “He trusted in the Lord God of Israel, so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any who were before him. For he held fast to the Lord; he did not depart from following Him, but kept His commandments, which the Lord had commanded Moses.” Hezekiah was a very faithful and righteous man. He obeyed God and did what God said, and he did with his whole heart. There is no king of Judah that excelled him in that. What did he do when the Assyrians invaded? We get an example here of how he handled problems.

The Assyrians were going to come in to deport Judah. They had already deported Israel.

II Kings 18:31, “Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: “Make peace with me by a present and come out to me; and every one of you eat from his own vine and every one form his own fig tree, and every one of you drink the waters of his own cistern.”” They were promising the Millennium German style. The Assyrians said, ‘Look, we’ll take you away to a land like your own. We’ll take you to a nice place. We are going to deport you to these concentration camps; but they’re going to be nice places, and you will like it. Just come on out of the city, open the gate and come on out nicely. We will load you into cattle cars and transport you to these nice places that we have, and everybody will live happily ever after. Now, why don’t you nice Jews come on out.’ So this was the story. It doesn’t change a whole lot once you’ve read it. You just repeat the same thing. There is nothing new under the sun.

The solution was that Hezekiah came in to God, and he prayed before God.

II Kings 19:14, “And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it; and Hezekiah went up to the house of the Lord, and spread it before the Lord.” He received a letter from the hand of the messengers that demanded his surrender. He took it to the house of the Lord and spread it before the Lord. He just spread the letter out and said, ‘Look God, You can read; You can see what these Assyrians are saying.’

Verse 19, “Now therefore, O Lord our God, I pray, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that You are the Lord God, You alone.” So God said, ‘I am going to deliver you.’

Verse 20, “Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord God of Israel: that which you have prayed to Me against Sennacherib king of Assyria I have heard.’”

Verses 34-35, ““For I will defend this city, to save it for My own sake and for My servant David’s sake.”” And it came to pass on a certain night that the angel of the Lord went out, and killed in the camp of the Assyrians one hundred and eighty-five thousand; and when people in the morning, there were corpses—all dead.” Now the dead corpses didn’t rise up and find out they were dead, but whoever was left rose up and found out. One angel, one army, God said it wasn’t hard at all.

Hezekiah went to God with the problem. He went to God, and he really spread out his problem before God.

Verse 36, “So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and went away, and returned home, and remained at Nineveh.” (KJV, “Sennacherib the king of Assyria departed and went and returned and dwelt at Nineveh.”) You better believe he departed and went and returned. When he got up the next morning and found one hundred eighty-five thousand people dead, he was the only one left alive in his whole army. You better believe he departed and went and returned. I bet he hopped on the first horse and took off as fast as he could go. He didn’t stay around to investigate the cause of death. All he did was load it up and move it out as fast as he could get there. I suspect that anybody in a similar circumstance would have also departed and went and returned very quickly.

In II Kings 20, Hezekiah became very critically ill. Again, he went to God and God healed him, God intervened (vv. 1-5). Hezekiah died (v. 21).

II Kings 21:1-2, “Manasseh was twelve years old when he became king...he did evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the abominations of the nations whom the Lord has cast out before the children of Israel.” Manasseh was the opposite of his father. He did everything evil that he could. In fact, he was the most wicked king that ever ruled Judah. Manasseh is described and all his sins (vv. 3-16). Because of the sins of Manasseh, all of Judah was ultimately to be taken into captivity.

Verses 12-13, “therefore thus says the Lord God of Israel: ‘Behold, I am bringing such calamity upon Jerusalem and Judah, that whoever hears of it, both his ears will tingle. And I will stretch over Jerusalem the measuring line of Samaria and the plummet of the house of Ahab; I will wipe Jerusalem as one wipes a dish, wiping it and turning it upside down.’” That is pretty clean. God says, ‘I am going to clean house; I have put up with this until I am sick and tired of it.’ Well, Manasseh died (v. 18), and his son Amon ruled briefly (v. 19). Then Josiah who was eight years old, began to reign.

II Kings 22:1-2, “Josiah was eight years old when he became king...and he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of his father David; he did not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.”

We find the parallel in II Chronicles 34.

II Chronicles 34:3-4, “For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was still young, he began to seek the God of his father David; and in the twelfth year he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem of the high places, the wooden images, the carved images, and the molded images. They broke down the altars of the Baals in his presence, and the incense altars which were above them he cut down; and the wooden images, the carved images, and the molded images he broke in pieces, and made dust of them and scattered it on the graves of those who had sacrificed to them.”

Verse 7, “When he had broken down the altars and the wooden images, had beaten the carved images into powder, and cut down all the incense altars throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.” He went “all the way out.” Everything that he could find that smacked of idolatry, he burned it and ground it to powder. Josiah was a young man and had all of the zeal of youth. He was very, very zealous and was the only thing that stood between Judah and going into captivity. God had respect to Josiah and Josiah’s reforms. He said, ‘All right, I have said what I am going to do, but I am not going to do anything as long as Josiah is alive because he is obeying with his whole heart. His attitude and actions are such that I appreciate, and I will spare and protect the nation throughout his life.’ You better believe that everybody prayed, ‘Long live the king,’ and meant it because the only thing that stood between the nation and destruction was King Josiah. God said, ‘This is the only thing good about the whole place, and as long as he is king, I will spare the nation. When he is gone, look out.’

II Chronicles 35:17-18, “And the children of Israel who were present kept the Passover at that time, and the Feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days. There had been no Passover kept in Israel like that since the days of Samuel the prophet; and none of the kings of Israel had kept such a Passover as Josiah kept, with the priests and the Levites, all Judah and Israel who were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.”

Do you realize how long that had been? That had been over five hundred years. There hadn’t been anything as “all out” as what Josiah did. Now the difference between Josiah’s Passover and the great Passover of Hezekiah (II Chronicles 30) was that Hezekiah’s Passover had to be celebrated at the time of the second Passover rather than the proper date of the first month because of ceremonial uncleanness. So Josiah’s Passover excelled Hezekiah’s in that sense; it was more totally kept exactly the way God said it ought to be done.

Then Josiah died.

Verse 24, “...So he died, and was buried in one of the tombs of his fathers. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah.”

Verse 25, “Jeremiah also lamented for Josiah, and to this day all the singing men and the singing women speak of Josiah in their lamentations. They made it a custom in Israel; and indeed they are written in the Laments.”

You read some of the commentators and some of the commentaries. They say, ‘You know we wonder what this was.’ Well, if you go back in your Bible, the book that comes right after the book of Jeremiah—a little short book—is one that we don’t go to that often. Stuck in there between Jeremiah and Ezekiel is a book called the “Lamentations of Jeremiah.” The book of Lamentations! It’s very obvious that’s where it comes from.

The laments that Jeremiah wrote were added to the Bible and made an ordinance in Israel and continues to be used. It is the book that the Jews read every year on the ninth of Ob, which is the fifth month of the Hebrew calendar. It comes approximately July/August. The ninth day of Ob is a fast day that the Jews observe in commemoration of the destruction of the temple. Interestingly enough, Nebuchadnezzar destroyed the temple on the ninth day of Ob; centuries later when Titus and the Romans burned the temple in 70 A.D., they did it on exactly the same day. So now they had two reasons to lament. On the ninth of Ob they read the book of Lamentations. Lamentations was a lament written at the death of Josiah, a lament that looked forward to the destruction of Jerusalem and Judah that was going to come. The destruction that came on Judah and Jerusalem was a type of the Great Tribulation that will be the worst time of tribulation that ever comes.

So the book of Lamentation that we will go through at a later time in Bible study is a prophecy of the Great Tribulation. It was written by Jeremiah at the occasion of Josiah’s death, which signaled the onset of what really amounted to the Tribulation for Judah and Jerusalem—the destruction of the nation and captivity. The highlight of Josiah’s reign was the great Passover recorded in II Chronicles 35.

Let’s notice what happened after Josiah’s death. II Kings 23:29, “In his days Pharaoh Necho king of Egypt went to the aid of the king of Assyria, to the River Euphrates; and King Josiah went against him. And Pharaoh Necho killed him [Josiah] at Megiddo when he confronted him.”

II Kings 24:1, “In his days Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up, and Jehoiakim became his vassal for three years. Then he turned and rebelled against him.”

II Kings 25:1-3, “Now it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem and encamped against it; and they built a siege wall against it all around. So the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. By the ninth day of the fourth month the famine had become so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land.”

Verses 6-7, “So they took the king and brought him up to the king of Babylon at Riblah, and they pronounced judgment on him. Then they killed the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, put out the eyes of Zedekiah, bound him with bronze fetters, and took him to Babylon.”

Verse 9, “He burned the house of the Lord and the king’s house; all the houses of Jerusalem, that is, all the houses of the great men, he burned with fire.” Nebuchadnezzar invaded and conquered Judah; he burned Jerusalem and the temple; and he carried the Jews into captivity back to Babylon. We find the destruction that took place. By about 587 B.C. Jerusalem was destroyed and the Jews were in captivity. We find the result of the nation having departed from God. Hopefully, this has given us somewhat of an overview.

Israel, of course, had been transported around 721 B.C. About one hundred twenty years later, 604 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar invaded and Judah was a vassal state. Finally they were destroyed and taken captive with Jerusalem in 587 B.C.

That brings us to the conclusion of Kings and Chronicles. We will pick up the story in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah in the next Bible study which will give us the overview of what happened during the Babylonian captivity, the return of the Jews from Babylon back to Jerusalem under Zerubabel, the rebuilding of the temple, the time of restoration that took place, and the conclusion of the Old Testament period. The Bible study following, we will have a study that will cover the time between the Testaments. We will go into the story of what happened between the end of the book of Nehemiah and the beginning of the book of Matthew. We will run through that historic sequence.

Hopefully, this series of Bible studies has enabled you to get a little more of an overview of the history of the Old Testament. But again, over and over, I would call your attention to the fact that these things are written down for our admonition. We need to study the history that is recorded in the Bible in order to get a God’s-eye-view of life and of everything. The Bible gives us a story of what man did and didn’t do from God’s perspective.

Any author writes a book from his own vantage point. We are all familiar with that. If you read the history of anything—any event, any war—depending on where you read it, you are going to get the story differently. The story that we study on World War II is a little different than what they study in Japan or Germany. For years the story of the events surrounding the war between the states was taught differently in Louisiana than it was taught in Massachusetts. That’s just the way it is. It's just simply a matter that people tell a story from their own perspective. Now every author has his "ax to grind." Sometimes we read a book and know it is not entirely accurate; it's kind of from that author's viewpoint.

The Bible is a book that is entirely accurate because it is written from the only accurate viewpoint there is—that's God's point of view. We need to study the Bible in order to understand God's point of view. We grow up in a society and are affected by that society's point of view on any number of subjects.

In some ways, God teaches us by direct commands, "thou shalt/thou shalt not," but most of the teachings of the Bible are not direct command. Most of the teachings are by example, by illustration, by principle that is illustrated throughout the story. We need to study from that standpoint. That's what Paul told us in the New Testament. These things are written down for our admonition, and they're examples for us, written down for our admonition upon who the ends of the ages have come (I Corinthians 10:11).

Throughout this study of the Old Testament, the historical characters we study—the story of these individuals, what they did, what they didn't do—we try to study it from a standpoint of finding out what God is pleased with, what God is displeased with, what certain attributes, what certain actions, what certain attitudes cause, what were the good results, what were the bad results, what were the strengths and weaknesses of all these individuals. As we study it from that standpoint, it's not a matter of simply dead history. It is a matter of reading of real people who went through real things, and one of the real, crucial reasons it's recorded for us.

We find as we go through that God's people, time after time, century after century, have confronted many of the same problems, same troubles and same temptations. Satan has sought to undermine and thwart things the same way over and over again. We are going to find that next time when we go through Ezra and Nehemiah.

If we study the Bible from that perspective, there is nothing new that will ever happen. Any problem, anything that comes up, there is precedence for it. You can find it, and you look to see how God wanted it handled. How should the people have handled it? How did those who were righteous and faithful to God handle it? We study it from that perspective so that if or when we ever find ourselves in a similar situation, we will already know how to react and respond. It is an important way to study the Bible.

Too many times we study it, and it is just kind of a story that people go through and get bogged down with all the "begats" and all of the kings and all of this—and they miss the overview. It is there so that we can learn from the examples of others and not have to make all the same mistakes. The lesson of history is that very few ever learn anything from history. But we have the opportunity. God has given it to us, provided it for us. There are parallels all through the scriptures of what we are going through and will go through between now and the end of the age. We have to study the scriptures to find those parallels and apply them in a right way. Hopefully we have found some information of value as we have gone through this survey of the Old Testament. We will conclude the Old Testament with the next couple of studies.

Chronology of Kings and Chronicles

Bible Study # 26 Questions

HISTORICAL SURVEY OF THE OLD TESTAMENT SERIES

II Kings 3—25 and II Chronicles 21—36

1. What miracle did Elisha perform to allow the indebted widow to pay off her creditors?
2. God's ministry does not accept "payments for services rendered" from individuals. What was Elisha's example in this regard?
3. Why would washing in the Jordan seven times cure Naaman of leprosy?
4. What was Elisha's reaction at finding that the Syrian army surrounded him?
5. What was the king's reaction on learning that the famine was so severe that the people were turning to cannibalism?
6. What proof do we have that Elijah was alive and living on the earth after he was taken away in a whirlwind?
7. How did God cut off the dynasty of Ahab?
8. Show that Jezebel was up to her old tricks right to the last.
9. What attempt was made to destroy the house of David and how was the attempt thwarted?
10. Which king of Israel presided over Israel's last period of greatness and prosperity?
11. What did Hezekiah do with regard to restoring the true worship of God?
12. What offered Israel their last chance to repent and be spared before they were taken into captivity?
13. Where were the tribes of Northern Israel taken in captivity?
14. Who came to inhabit the land of Northern Israel in their place?
15. What are we told about the religion of the Samaritans?
16. How does Hezekiah rank in comparison with other kings of Judah?
17. What did Hezekiah do when Assyria invaded Judah?
18. Whose sins were directly responsible for Judah being taken into captivity? What did he do?
19. What was the highlight of Josiah's reign?
20. What was the punishment that God finally sent on Judah?

Old Testament Series—Ezra and Nehemiah

Let's look at some of the chronology of the invasions. The last Bible study, we have been using this Chronology of Kings and Chronicles. You note that 604 B.C. is the time of Nebuchadnezzar's first invasion, and then there was a subsequent invasion a few years later in 592 B.C. That was the invasion that Daniel and Ezekiel went into captivity. Jeremiah was prophesying during that time. Finally in 587 B.C. the third invasion occurred that completely destroyed Jerusalem and burned Solomon's temple.

As we continue down through the story recorded in Daniel, it gives the story of what was happening in Babylon prior to the destruction of Jerusalem. The fall of Babylon was in 539 B.C. It was the Feast of Trumpets in 539 B.C. and it was the "handwriting on the wall" for Babylon (Daniel 5). Within a matter of five years the decree was issued by King Cyrus that allowed the Jews to return to rebuild Jerusalem in 534 B.C. Zerubbabel led the Jews back from Babylon. He was the governor appointed by the Persians. Haggai and Zechariah were prophets who flourished at that time. The book of Ezra starts out with that.

By 515 B.C., the second temple was completed. Only a tiny portion of the population returned. There were a lot of problems involved in building things up. There were external problems. When Northern Israel went into captivity in 721 B.C., the Assyrians deported all the Israelites and put in other people who were practicing the Babylonian Mystery Religion. These people were there when the Jews began to return. They immediately ran into problems.

From 515 B.C., there is a gap of time in terms of the story, and we don't pick up the story again until a generation later when Ezra came in 457 B.C., fifty-eight years after the temple had been finished, basically a generation. From the time the temple was finished to the time Zerubbabel came was like from our time now back to the Great Depression—there were not a whole lot of people around who would have had a first-hand account of it. Ezra does not have control of the civil government. He has religious authority by the Persian king.

In 444 B.C. Nehemiah came back as the civil governor. He and Ezra joined together.

When the curtain rises with Ezra's return, the people are part and parcel with this society. Satan's efforts to destroy the work are evident in Ezra and Nehemiah. Satan had several methods of attacks. There was an attempt at a frontal assault. The Samaritans hired lawyers and put the whole work of God into receivership—a lengthy legal hassle. Zerubbabel won a reversal. When that didn't work, then there was a subtle infiltration to water down, to compromise, to destroy the work of God from the inside.

Ezra brought the temple scrolls back. Daniel had access to them. As Ezra comes on the scene, he brings these things back.

From the time Haggai and Zechariah preached until the time Ezra returned, that sixty-year period was the time during which Esther became Queen. This is what set the stage to enable Ezra to return. Ezra and Nehemiah are responsible for canonizing the Old Testament. Josephus wrote, "The prophetic spirit ceased among the Jews with the death of Ezra." Jeremiah had prophesied that Jerusalem would lay desolate for seventy years. So from Nebuchadnezzar's first invasion to the return of the Jews in 534 B.C. was exactly a seventy-year period. God allowed Cyrus to issue a decree that allowed the rebuilding of the temple. It is very apparent that the only ones who ever returned were the tribes of Judah and Benjamin and some of the Levites, not the ten tribes.

Let's start with Ezra.

Ezra 1:5, "Then the heads of the fathers' houses of Judah and Benjamin, and the priest and the Levites, with all those whose spirits God had moved, arose to go up and build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem." These went back.

Ezra 2:2, "Those who came with Zerubbabel were Joshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, and Baanah. The number of the men of the people of Israel." Zerubbabel is mentioned in Matthew and Luke. He was in the direct ancestry of Jesus Christ and a direct descendant of David; it starts with Joshua, and it goes through the various other ones.

Verse 64, "The whole congregation together was forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty." Just over forty-two thousand returned out of the original four million.

Ezra 3:1-6, "And when the seventh month had come, and the children of Israel were in the cities, the people gathered together as one man to Jerusalem. Then Joshua, the son of Jozadak and his brethren the priests, and Zerubbabel, the son of Shealtiel and his brethren, arose and built the altar of the God of Israel, to offer burnt offerings on it, as it is written in the Law of Moses the man of God. Though fear had come upon them because of the people of those countries, they set the altar on its bases; and they offered burnt offerings on it to the Lord, both the morning and evening burnt offerings. They also kept the Feast of Tabernacles, as it is written, and offered the daily burnt offerings in the number required by ordinance for each day; and afterward they offered the regular burnt offering, and those for New Moons and for all the appointed Feasts of the Lord that were consecrated, and those of everyone who willingly offered a freewill offering to the Lord. From the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt offerings to the Lord. But the foundation of the temple of the Lord had not yet been laid.”

To institute daily sacrifices, all that has to be done is to consecrate an altar. I went through a sermon on the Middle East and stated that daily sacrifices would have to be instituted. It doesn't take long to consecrate an altar. A temple doesn't have to be built.

Verse 8, “Now in the second month of the second year of their coming to the house of God at Jerusalem, Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, Joshua the son of Jozakak, and the rest of their brethren the priests and the Levites, and all those who had come out of the captivity to Jerusalem, began work and appointed the Levites from twenty years old and above to oversee the work of the house of the Lord.” They told them, ‘Let us get started.’ So they began the building. There were a few elderly people who came back who remembered Solomon's temple and its glory (v. 12). It was not nearly as impressive.

Those who returned were of Judah, Benjamin and Levi. The leaders of the return were Zerubbabel the governor and Joshua the high priest.

Ezra 4:1-2, “Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the descendants of the captivity were building the temple of the Lord God of Israel, they came to Zerubbabel and the heads of the fathers' houses, and said to them, ‘Let us build with you, for we seek your God as you do; and we have sacrificed to Him since the days of Esar-haddon king of Assyria, who brought us here.’” They said, ‘We are good Christians just like you. Let us join together.’

Verse 3, “But Zerubbabel and Joshua and the rest of the heads of the fathers' houses of Israel said to them, ‘You may do nothing with us to build a house for our God; but we alone will build to the Lord God of Israel, as King Cyrus the king of Persia has commanded us.’” The Samaritans suggested, ‘Let us build with you; let us all be in this thing together.’ Did the Samaritans worship God the way He wanted? –No, of course not.

In II Kings 17 they used God's name, but they kept worshipping the same old idols. They served their graven images to this day—right on down to our day. Zerubbabel, Joshua and the heads of the fathers said, ‘You are not with the program. We are not on the same wavelength. We are not compatible.’ They refused to become unequally yoked together.

Ezra 4:4-5, “Then the people of the land tried to discourage the people of Judah. They troubled them in building, and hired counselors against them to frustrate their purpose all the days of Cyrus king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius king of Persia.” They hired lawyers.

Verse 6, “Now in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.” They began to make accusations.

Verses 11-13, “This is a copy of the letter that they sent him—To King Ahasuerus from your servants the men of the region beyond the River, and so forth: Let it be known to the king that the Jews who came up from you have come to us at Jerusalem, and are building the rebellious and evil city, and are finishing its walls and repairing the foundation. Let it now be known to the king that, if this city is built and the walls completed, they will not pay tax, tribute, or custom, and the king's treasury will be diminished.”

They are trying to make it sound bad. They are trying to make it sound terrible. That rebellious city, they are rebuilding it. How did he know that they were not going to pay their taxes? He didn't know. He was just accusing.

Verses 16-23, “We inform the king that if this city is rebuilt and its walls are completed, the result will be that you will have no dominion over the region beyond the River. Then the king sent an answer: To Rehum the commander, to Shimshai the scribe, to the rest of their companions, who dwell in Samaria, and to the rest in the region beyond the River. Peace, and so forth. The letter, which you sent to us, has been clearly read before me. And I gave the command, and a search has been made, and it was found that this city in former times has made insurrection against kings, and that rebellion and sedition have been fostered in it. There have also been mighty kings over Jerusalem, who have ruled over all the provinces beyond the River; and tax, tribute and custom were paid to them. Now give the command to make these men cease, that this city may not be built until the command is given by me. Take heed now that you do not fail to do this. Why should damage increase to the hurt of the kings? Now when the copy of King Artaxerxes' letter was read before Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and their companions, they went up in haste to Jerusalem against the Jews, and by force of arms made them cease."

Now they had their court order and came charging in with all their troops.

Verse 24, "Thus the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem ceased, and it was discontinued until the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia." They shut the work down. They got a court order.

Ezra 5:1-2, "Then the prophet Haggai and Zechariah the son of Iddo, prophets, prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel, who was over them. So Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel and Joshua the son of Jozadak rose up and began to build the house of God which is in Jerusalem; and the prophets of God were with them, helping them." Zerubbabel rose up to do the work.

Verses 3-4, "At the same time Tattenai the governor of the region beyond the River and Shethar-Boznai and their companions came to them and spoke thus to them: 'Who has commanded you to build this temple and finish this wall?' Then, accordingly, we told them the names of the men who were constructing this building." They went to subpoena the record. It wrangled through court for the next few years. Finally the decree came in. They made all their pronouncements (vv. 8-10).

Verses 11-13, "And thus they returned us an answer, saying: 'We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the temple that was built many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and completed. But because our fathers provoked the God of heaven to wrath, He gave them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this temple and carried the people away to Babylon. However, in the first year of Cyrus king of Babylon, King Cyrus issued a decree to build this house of God.'" We had an order from Cyrus.

Ezra 6:1-3, "Then King Darius issued a decree, and a search was made in the archives, where the treasures were stored in Babylon. And at Achmetha, in the palace that is in the province of Media, a scroll was found, and in it a record was written thus: In the first year of King Cyrus, King Cyrus issued a decree concerning the house of God at Jerusalem: 'Let the house be rebuilt, the place where they offered sacrifices; and let the foundations of it be firmly laid, its height sixty cubits and its width sixty cubits.'" Darius makes a search. Finally when the answer came down and was settled, it settled on the side of God's work.

There is an amazing parallel here in Ezra. Those who remember back in 1979, this case here is a very remarkable parallel. One of the things you learn is that Satan is not original. He uses the same old tactics again and again. What should we do when we find ourselves in circumstances like this? Like Zerubbabel, court order or no court order, we have to do the work of God.

Verses 14-16, "So the elders of the Jews built, and they prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo. And they built and finished it, according to the commandment of the God of Israel, and according to the command of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes king of Persia. Now the temple was finished on the third day of the month of Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius. Then the children of Israel, the priests and the Levites and the rest of the descendants of the captivity, celebrated the dedication of this house of God with joy."

Verse 19, "And the descendant of the captivity kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the first month." This was 515 B.C.

Between chapter 6 and chapter 7 there is an almost sixty-year gap.

Ezra 7:1, "Now after these things, in the reign of Artaxerxes king of Persia, Ezra the son of Seraiah...." We are looking here at Artaxerxes.

Verse 6, "this Ezra came up from Babylon; and he was a skilled scribe in the Law of Moses, which the Lord God of Israel had given. The king granted him all his request, according to the hand of the Lord his God upon him." Ezra was a priest.

Verses 10-14, "For Ezra had prepared his heart to seek the Law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach statutes and ordinances in Israel. Now this is the copy of the letter that King Artaxerxes gave Ezra the priest, the scribe, expert in the words of the commandments of the Lord, and of His statutes in Israel: Artaxerxes, king of kings, To Ezra the priest, a scribe of the Law of the God of heaven: Perfect peace, and so forth. I issue a decree that all those of the people of Israel and the priests and Levites in my realm, who volunteer to go up to Jerusalem, may go with you. And whereas you are being sent by the king and his seven counselors to inquire concerning Judah and Jerusalem, with regard to the Law of your God which is in your hand.”

Ezra was allowed to carry back the official temple scrolls released from Babylon. Artaxerxes was the son of Ahasuerus who was the husband of Queen Esther. The one who issued the decree was a stepson of Esther, and he had a favorable attitude toward the Jews. He now issued some favorable decrees.

Verse 18, “And whatever seems good to you and your brethren to do with the rest of the silver and the gold, do it according to the will of your God.” He gave them “carte blanche” to do whatever they had to do.

Verse 21, “And I, even I, Artaxerxes the king, do issue a decree to all the treasurers who are in the region beyond the River, that whatever Ezra the priest the scribe of the Law of the God of heaven, may require of you, let it be done diligently.” That is pretty much of a carte blanche. ‘Whatever this guy needs, you give it to him.’ We have here the return of Ezra. We notice that Ezra was a priest, and his attitude on his return was that he was coming back to teach the law and restore the Scriptures to their central place (v. 10).

Ezra 8:21-23, “Then I proclaimed a fast there at the river of Ahava, that we might humble ourselves before our God, to seek from Him the right way for us and our little ones and all our possessions. For I was ashamed to request of the king an escort of soldiers and horsemen to help us against the enemy on the road, because we had spoken to the king, saying, ‘The hand of our God is upon all those for good who seek Him, but His power and His wrath are against all those who forsake Him.’ So we fasted and entreated our God for this, and He answered our prayer.”

They got ready to leave and were heading across this “no man’s land” with these marauding raiders, and what they really would like was to have a transport of soldiers to protect them. ‘We are sitting ducks. But how can I go back and ask for this help? I have just told him how great and powerful God is. I am embarrassed that I don’t have the faith like I said.’ So he called a fast. God’s ministers have wrestled with the same emotions and feelings that we do.

Ezra 9:1, “When these things were done, the leaders came to me, saying, ‘The people of Israel and the priests and the Levites have not separated themselves from the people of the lands, with respect to the abominations of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites.’”

One of the great sins that Ezra discovered was that intermarriage had taken place. The Jews had intermarried with the Samaritans and others in the land. They were on the verge of losing their identity as a separate, identifiable people. Where did the problem start?

Verse 2, “For they have taken some of their daughters as wives for themselves and their sons, so that the holy seed is intermingled with the peoples of those lands. Indeed, the hand of the leaders and rulers has been foremost in this trespass.” People follow their leaders. They all got in line. Not every single person, but throughout history they always followed by and large as a group. People tended to follow their leader. So when the princes and rulers began to mix and mingle, others did too. Ezra was very concerned with this. This was a major problem.

Literally, the identity of God’s people was at stake—religiously, ethnically and culturally. The Jews would have ceased to exist. If Satan can’t subvert God’s plan one way, he always tries another way. God has always wanted His people to maintain a separate identity from the world. They were a nation state as well as a Church. It was important to God that they preserve their identity. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob placed great emphasis on who their children married that the identity of the people be preserved.

In Deuteronomy 32:8-9, God separated the people by geographical boundaries: the Himalayan Mountains, Sahara Desert, Pacific and Atlantic Oceans, the biggest obstacles you could put in Satan’s path. He has been busily trying to get around it. Satan stirs up people to do the opposite of what God tells them to do. It seems inborn. Whatever God wants you to do, Satan stirs you up to do the opposite.

What he commanded them to do about it: Ezra 10:3, “Now therefore, let us make a covenant with our God to put away all these wives and those who have been born to them, according to the counsel of my master and of those who tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law.”

Drastic measures had to be taken. Let me point out here that this is a practice among the Jews that is causing problems today. If your mother is Jewish, then you are considered a Jew, not if your father is a Jew. That is the reason Ezra made them put out the Gentile wives. Even if the father was Jewish, the children were not considered Jewish. That is the basis on down to this day. They were sent away from Judah.

Ezra had come back in the seventh year of Artaxerxes the king. Nehemiah's background was that he was a cupbearer to the king. God used Nehemiah to clean house.

The grandson of the high priest did not put away his pagan wife. As time went by, people resented the fact of what those at the top were getting by with. They complied, but they were not convinced and did not internalize these values. They went along with the rules, but they never got the point.

Understand something. If all you do is go along with the rules and don't get the point, then sooner or later you will go back. It is the change on the inside—not changing what we are but what we think. If what I am on the inside becomes different, than the actions on the outside are going to be different. It was going to take more than someone coming back to preach and teach.

This was the nation that Jesus was to be born into over four hundred fifty years later. The Scriptures had to be preserved. This was going to be the basis of the Church being raised up. Having an identifiable people that are obeying the law would serve as a nucleus when Jesus Christ came. It was an attempt to derail the entire future of the purpose and plan of God, to water down, dilute and destroy the Scriptures of God.

There were different personalities in the kings. Some were stronger and more disciplined. They all had their strengths and weaknesses. Nehemiah was a very strong-willed man. He was perhaps as strong a ruler—a strong and determined ruler—as ever ruled the people of God. He was a man who meant business. He was very determined. He was a strong-willed man who was needed for a very difficult time. There was nothing wishy-washy about Nehemiah. He was sent back as their governor.

Nehemiah 5:14, “Moreover, from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year until the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes, twelve years, neither I nor my brothers ate the governor's provisions.”

Nehemiah 2:5, “And I said to the king, ‘If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor in your sight, I ask that you send me to Judah, to the city of my fathers' tombs, that I may rebuild it.’” He requested the job from the king and got it. He was given leadership and authority.

Verses 9-10, “Then I went to the governors in the region beyond the River, and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent captains of the army and horsemen with me. When Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the Ammonite official heard of it, they were deeply disturbed that a man had come to seek the well-being of the children of Israel.” Sanballat was the leader of the Samaritans; Tobiah was his assistant.

Verses 15-16, “So I went up in the night by the valley, and viewed the wall; then I turned back and entered by the Valley Gate, and so returned and the officials did not know where I had gone or what I had done; I had not yet told the Jews, the priests, the nobles, the officials, or the others who did the work.” The rulers didn't know what he was doing.

Verses 17-18, “Then I said to them, ‘You see the distress that we are in, how Jerusalem lies waste, and its gates are burned with fire. Come and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no longer be a reproach.’ And I told them of the hand of my God which had been good upon me, and also of the king's words that he had spoken to me. So they said, ‘Let us rise up and build.’ Then they set their hands to do this good work.” The city had really never been completely rebuilt. The city was still laying waste. There was debris. The population was sparse; the gates had not been replaced.

Verse 19, “But when Sanballat the Horonite, Tobiah the Ammonite official, and Geshem the Arab heard of it, they laughed us to scorn and despised us, and said, ‘What is this thing that you are doing? Will you rebel against the king?’” They made fun.

Verse 20, “So I answered them, and said to them, ‘The God of heaven Himself will prosper us; therefore we His servants will arise and build, but you have no heritage or right or memorial in Jerusalem.’” ‘You don't have anything to do with it. We don't want you around here.’

Nehemiah 3 describes some of the layout and the details of repairing the city.

Nehemiah 4:1-3, “But it so happened, when Sanballat heard that we were rebuilding the wall, that he was furious and very indignant, and mocked the Jews. And he spoke before his brethren and the army of Samaria and said, ‘What are these feeble Jews doing? Will they fortify themselves? Will they offer sacrifices? Will they complete it in a day? Will they revive the stones from the heaps of rubbish—stones that are burned?’ Now Tobiah the Ammonite was beside him, and he said, ‘What ever they build, if even a fox goes up on it, he will break down their stone wall.’” They were making fun. All these ideas expressed.

Verses 6-8, “So we built the wall, and the entire wall was joined together up to half its height, for the people had a mind to work. Now it happened, when Sanballat, Tobiah, the Arabs, the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites heard that the walls of Jerusalem were being restored and the gaps were beginning to be closed, that they became very angry, and all of them conspired together to come and attack Jerusalem and create confusion.”

Verse 11, “And our adversaries said, ‘They will neither know nor see anything, till we come into their midst and kill them and cause the work to cease.’”

Verses 16-18, “So it was, from that time on, that half of my servants worked at construction, while the other half held the spears, the shields, the bows, and wore armor; and the leaders were behind all of the house of Judah. Those who built on the wall, and those who carried burdens, loaded themselves so that with one hand they worked at construction and with the other held a weapon. Every one of the builders had his sword girded at his side as he built. And the one who sounded the trumpet was beside me.” Nehemiah was determined. ‘We are going to build this wall if we have to stand guard.’

Verses 21-23, “So we labored in the work, and half of the men held the spears from daybreak until the stars appeared. At the same time I also said to the people, ‘Let each man and his servant stay at night in Jerusalem, that they may be our guard by night and a working party by day.’ So neither I, my brethren, my servants, nor the men of the guard who followed me took off our clothes, except that everyone took them off for washing.”

‘We never even got undressed when we went to bed. We were on guard. We kept right there at the wall. We changed clothes in order to wash the ones we had on.’ You see the kind of determination that Nehemiah had. He was going to build this wall, and he was not going to give them a chance to tear it down.

Nehemiah 5 is a backdrop for the book of Malachi. Malachi prophesied during this time. Malachi 3:9, “‘You are cursed with a curse because you have robbed Me.’” Notice the background. What was the curse they were cursed with?

Nehemiah 5:1, “And there was a great outcry of the people and their wives against their Jewish brethren.”

Verses 3-4, “There were also some who said, ‘We have mortgaged our lands and vineyards and houses, that we might buy grain because of the famine.’ There were also those who said, ‘We have borrowed money for the king’s tax on our lands and vineyards.’” They had to mortgage their land for food. They had to borrow money to eat and pay taxes.

Verse 5, “...‘and indeed we are forcing our sons and our daughters to be slaves, and some of our daughters are brought into slavery already. It is not in our power to redeem them, for other men have our lands and vineyards.’” They were selling their children into servitude. When Malachi said they were cursed with a curse, they were.

Verse 7, “After serious thought, I rebuked the nobles and rulers, and said to them, ‘Each of you is exacting usury from his brother.’ So I called a great assembly against them.” Some were taking advantage of those who had less.

Verse 14, “Moreover, from the time that I was appointed to be governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year until the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes, twelve years, neither I nor my brothers ate the governor’s provisions.” He didn’t even take the salary he was paid, and he told the people they had better not be in it for what they could get.

The wall was completed but the gates were not complete.

Nehemiah 6:1-3, “Now it happened when Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem the Arab, and the rest of our enemies heard that I had rebuilt the wall, and that there were no breaks left in it (though at that time I had not hung the doors in the gates. That Sanballat and Geshem sent to me, saying, ‘Come, let us meet together in one of the villages in the plain of Ono.’ But they thought to do me harm. So I sent messengers to them, saying, ‘I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down. Why should the work cease while I leave it and go down to you?’” They said, ‘Let us meet together.’ Nehemiah answered, ‘I have too many important things to do.’

Verse 5, “Then Sanballat sent his servant to me as before, the fifth time, with an open letter in his hand.” He kept trying to get to Nehemiah, to lure him off.

Verse 6, “It is reported among the nations...that you and the Jews plan to rebel; therefore, according to these rumors, you are rebuilding the wall, that you may be their king.”

Verse 8, “Then I sent to him, saying, ‘No such things as you say are being done, but you invent them in your own heart.’” He said, ‘You just made it up.’

Verse 9, “For they all were trying to make us afraid, saying, ‘Their hands will be weakened in the work, and it will not be done.’”

‘You are just trying to weaken the work.’ They were trying to undermine things.

Verses 15-16, “So the wall was finished on the twenty-fifth day of the month of Elul, in fifty-two days. And it happened, when all our enemies heard of it, and all the nations around us saw these things, that they were very disheartened in their own eyes; for they perceived that this work was done by our God.”

Verses 17-18, “Moreover in those days the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah and the letters of Tabiah came to them. For many in Judah were pledged to him, because he was the son-in-law of Shechaniah the son of Arah, and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam the son of Berechiah.” Intermarriage occurred here among the Jews, even some of the leaders.

Nehemiah 7:1-5, “Then it was, when the wall was built and I had hung the doors, when the gatekeepers, the singers, and the Levites had been appointed, that I gave the charge of Jerusalem to my brother Hanani and Hananiah the leader of the citadel, for he was a faithful man and feared God more than many. And I said to them, ‘Do not let the gates of Jerusalem be opened until the sun is hot; and while they stand guard, let them shut the doors and bar them; and appoint guards from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem, one at his watch station and another in front of his own house.’ Now the city was large and spacious, but the people in it were few, and the houses were not rebuilt. Then my God put it into my heart to gather the nobles, the rulers, and the people, that they might be registered by genealogy. And I found a register of the genealogy of those who had come up in the first return....” God inspired him to call people in to increase the size of the city.

Nehemiah 8:1-5, “Now all the people gathered together as one man in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate; and they told Ezra the scribe to bring the Book of the Law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded Israel. So Ezra the priest brought the Law before the congregation, of men and women and all who could hear with understanding, on the first day of the seventh month. Then he read from it in the open square that was in front of the Water Gate, from morning until midday, before the men and women and those who could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive to the Book of the Law. So Ezra the scribe stood on a platform of wood which they had made for the purpose...And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above all the people; and when he opened it all the people stood up.”

He opened the Book in the sight of all the people. They all stood up and Ezra blessed God (v. 6).

Verse 8, “So they read, distinctly from the book, in the Law of God; and they gave the sense, and helped them to understand the reading.” That is the way God’s ministry preaches.

Verse 9, “And Nehemiah, who was the governor, Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites who taught the people said to all the people, ‘This day is holy to the Lord your God; do not mourn nor weep.’ For all the people wept, when they heard the words of the Law.” This was on the Feast of Trumpets; that is what we teach today.

Verses 16-18, “Then the people went out and brought them and made themselves booths, each one on the roof of his house, or in their courtyards or the courts of the house of God, and in the open square of the Water Gate and in the open square of the Gate of Ephraim. So the whole congregation of those who had returned from the captivity made booths; and sat under the booths for since the days of Joshua the son of Nun until that day the children of Israel had not done so. And there was very great gladness. Also day-by-day, from the first day until the last day, he read from the Book of the Law of God. And they kept the Feast seven days; and on the eighth day there was a sacred assembly, according to the prescribed manner.”

The people kept the Feast of Tabernacles. It was more thoroughly done than since the days of Joshua.

We find a covenant, pledging their faithfulness in Nehemiah 10:29, “they joined with their brethren, their nobles, and entered into a curse and an oath to walk in God’s Law, which was given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of the Lord our Lord, and His ordinances and His statutes—.” God’s law contains both blessings and curses. If you walk in it, you are blessed; if you walk against it, you are cursed.

Verses 30-31, “that we would not give our daughters as wives to the peoples of the land, nor take their daughters for our sons; that if the peoples of the land bring wares or any grain to sell on the Sabbath day, we would not buy it from them on the Sabbath, or on a holy day; and that we would forego the seventh year’s produce and the exaction of every debt.” There was not to be intermarriage and or selling of wares on the Sabbath. 'We will keep the Sabbath; we will not be involved in business.'

Verse 37, "to bring the firstfruits of our dough, our offerings, the fruit from all kinds of trees, the new wine and oil, to the priests, to the storerooms of the house of our God; and to bring the tithes of our land to the Levites should receive the tithes in all our farming communities." The covenant involved an agreement to faithfully obey the Law, to not intermarry, to keep the Sabbath faithfully, to tithe and to give offerings.

Nehemiah 13:6, "But during all this I was not in Jerusalem, for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon I had returned to the king. Then after certain days I obtained leave from the king."

Nehemiah was gone for a while, and then he came back after twelve years. I want you to understand and focus on this a little bit. Here was Nehemiah insisting on all these reforms, and then he was gone for a period of time. You know what he found? He found Eliashib had prepared a room in the temple for Tobiah, the leader of the Samaritans.

Verses 7-8, "and I came to Jerusalem and discovered the evil that Eliashib had done for Tobiah, in preparing a room for him in the courts of the house of God. And it grieved me bitterly; therefore I threw all the household goods of Tobiah out of the room." He came in there and said, 'What in the world is going on here?' He started picking up stuff and heaving it out. He thought he had gotten rid of these people. How deep do you think the reform was?

Mr. Herbert Armstrong drew a lot of analogies and emphasis on these things. There was a seven-year period in 1979 to 1987—seven years in which he emphasized over and over again that God had brought him back to get the Church back on the track. Here God brought Nehemiah back to get things back on the track. Nehemiah was gone, and some of the people obviously had not entirely gotten the point. The leader of the Samaritans had moved in. Nehemiah cleaned house.

Verses 10-12, "I also realized that the portions for the Levites had not been given them; for each of the Levites and the singers who did the work had gone back to his field. So I contended with the rulers, and said, 'Why is the house of God forsaken?' And I gathered them together and set them in their place. Then all Judah brought the tithe of the grain and the new wine and the oil to the storehouse." Nehemiah began to organize things.

Verse 15, "In those days I saw in Judah some people treading wine presses on the Sabbath, and bringing in sheaves, and loading donkeys with wine, grapes, figs, and all kinds of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem on the Sabbath day. And I warned them about the day on which they were selling provisions." They were harvesting on the Sabbath.

Verses 16-19, "Men of Tyre dwelt there also, who brought in fish and all kinds of goods, and sold them on the Sabbath to the children of Judah, and in Jerusalem. Then I contended with the nobles of Judah, and said to them, 'What evil thing is this that you do, by which you profane the Sabbath day? Did not your fathers do thus, and did not our God bring all this disaster on us and on this city? Yet you bring added wrath on Israel by profaning the Sabbath.' So it was, at the gates of Jerusalem, as it began to be dark before the Sabbath, that I commanded the gates to be shut, and charged that they must not be opened till after the Sabbath. Then I posted some of my servants at the gate, so that no burden would be brought in on the Sabbath day."

They had set up shop outside the gate. He said, 'Why are you doing it outside the wall? If you do it again, I will lay hands on you (v. 21).' They got the point. 'No more "Mr. Nice Guy," I mean business.'

Verses 23-25, "In those days I also saw Jews who had married women of Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. And half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod, and could not speak the language of Judah, but spoke according to the language of one or the other people. So I contended with them and cursed them, struck some of them and pulled out their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, 'You shall not give your daughters as wives to their sons, nor take their daughters for your sons or yourselves.'"

He jerked up a few of them, knocked them around and explained to them what they were to do. He made it very plain to them.

Verses 27-28, "'Should we then hear of your doing all this great evil, transgressing against our God by marrying pagan women?' And one of the sons of Joiada, the son of Eliashib the high priest, was a son-in-law of Sanbalat the Horonite; therefore I drove him from me." He "ran him out of town on a rail." He was in line to be high priest. This had been the "fly in the ointment" all along. Nehemiah finally saw it. What happened was that Sanballat built a temple on Mt. Gerizim. He said, 'We will put you in business up here.'

Now when you read the story in John 4, the woman at the well said, 'our fathers worship in this mountain, but you say that in Jerusalem ought men to worship.' Remember that statement she made? On Mount Gerazim was the false temple that Sanballat had built for this renegade priest. 'You Jews say it ought to be in Jerusalem.'

John 4:20-22, "Our fathers worshiped on this mountain [Mt. Gerizim], and you Jews say that in Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship.' Jesus said to her, 'Woman, believe Me, the hour is coming when you shall neither on this mountain, nor in Jerusalem, worship the Father. You worship what you do not know; we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews. But the hour is coming and now is, when the true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth, for the Father is seeking such to worship Him.'" 'You Samaritans worship you know not what.' He made it plain to her who had preserved the Scriptures.

Nehemiah 13:29-31, "Remember them, O my God, because they have defiled the priesthood and the covenant of the priesthood and the Levites. Thus I cleaned them of everything pagan. I also assigned duties to the priests and the Levites, each to his service, and to bringing the wood offering and the firstfruits at appointed times. Remember me, O my God, for good!" Nehemiah was used by God to clean house. It was an important job that took a man of a unique temperament and approach to be able to do something like that. Nehemiah was the one that did that and stood out in that way.

There aren't any questions to be passed out for next time. I will go over and discuss some things leading up to the New Testament. This has been a historical survey. Hopefully, it has given you a little insight, and it is important for us to learn the lessons for us today.

Between the Testaments

We have been going through the Old Testament from the standpoint of an historical survey. In other words, we're not going through every book of the Old Testament, but going through the story flow of the history of the Old Testament starting with the book of Genesis, coming down through the five books of Moses, through Joshua and Judges, through the story of Samuel, Kings and Chronicles as has been put together. Then we went through the books of Ezra and Nehemiah which pick up the story from the time of the Babylonian captivity until the conclusion of the story that we have directly recorded in our Bibles.

After the death of Ezra and Nehemiah, the completed Old Testament, as the Jews had preserved it, was delivered into the hands of the Great Synagogue which was presided over by the high priests. The Great Synagogue was the Great Assembly. We are told in the book of Nehemiah that Nehemiah brought together a great assembly (5:7), and he presided over it.

After his death, it was presided over by the high priests. This was the group that was charged with responsibility of maintaining the reforms that Ezra and Nehemiah had brought together and accomplished. There is reference in the book of Nehemiah to these things and to the specifics. Some of the genealogies, the lists of names we went into (which we did not focus on in detail) delineate who was involved in the Great Assembly. Ezra, you remember, brought back the copy of the Law (Ezra 7:14), the Scriptures, from Babylon, and as he brought back those Scriptures from Babylon, he was responsible for teaching them to the Jews who had returned. This set the stage. They had all those problems. The Great Assembly was left with the responsibility for maintaining the reforms.

There were other events going on in the world that affected what was happening with the Jews and what was happening in Judea. The Persian Empire under which the Jews had gained independence continued along for a period of time, basically for a generation after the death of Ezra and Nehemiah.

Malachi would be contemporary with Ezra and Nehemiah. The book of Malachi was the last book that was written and added in. By 400 B.C., the canon of the Old Testament was completed.

The Persian Empire continued on over the course of the next seventy years. By the time seventy years has passed, we have a generation that has come into leadership that only know of Ezra and Nehemiah by what they have heard from others. They were as far removed from Ezra and Nehemiah as we are removed from World War I.

The events of World War I certainly affected us; there are a handful of people left who have firsthand memory. There are others who have secondhand memory, who heard stories told by their parents and people who went through it. But you see, after seventy years even those people are less and less.

The generation that was on the scene in leadership positions when Alexander the Great overthrew the Persian Empire was as far removed from Ezra and Nehemiah as we are removed from World War I. Alexander the Great had a tremendous impact on the ancient world at that time and a major impact on the events that shaped the world into which Jesus Christ came.

What we want to do this evening is to set the stage for the story that we are going to encounter next Bible study when we go into the New Testament and do a survey of the Gospels and Acts. What we find are the events that shaped the society into which the Messiah came. One of the events that greatly shaped this was the rule of Alexander the Great.

The events of between the Testaments are told in the Bible. They are not directly told in the Bible, but they are told in prophecy in the book of Daniel. We might just notice very briefly in the book of Daniel.

In Daniel 8, Daniel saw in vision. He is writing prior to the time and around the time that Babylon fell in 539 B.C., before the Persian Empire came to power and right around the time that Babylon fell. Daniel saw a vision (v. 1).

Daniel 8:3-5, "Then I lifted my eyes and saw, and there, standing beside the river, was a ram which had two horns, and the two horns were high; but one was higher than the other, and the higher one came up last. I saw the ram pushing westward, northward, and southward, so that no beast could withstand him; nor was there any that could deliver from his hand, but he did according to his will and became great. And as I was considering, suddenly a male goat came from the west, across the surface of the whole earth, without touching the ground; and the goat had a notable horn between his eyes." The goat had one great horn. This was a rather unusual looking goat. The horn protruded out from between his eyes.

Verses 6-8, “Then he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen standing beside the river, and ran at him with furious power. And I saw him confronting the ram; he was moved with rage against him, attacked the ram, and broke his two horns. There was no power in the ram to withstand him, but he cast him down to the ground and trampled him; and there was no one that could deliver the ram from his hand. Therefore the male goat grew very great; but when he became strong, the large horn was broken, and in place of it four notable ones came up toward the four winds of heaven.”

This was an unusual thing. When you break a goat’s horn off, you don’t see four little sprouts come out, but this is what happened with this particular goat. It goes on into some other things, but let’s notice the interpretation.

Verses 20-22, “The ram which you saw, having the two horns—they are the kings of Media and Persia. And the male goat is the kingdom of Greece. The large horn that is between its eyes is the first king. As for the broken horn and the four that stood up in its place, four kingdoms shall arise out of that nation, but not with its power.”

What we find here is the story when the empire of the Medes and the Persians is going to come in and conquer. Then they would be overthrown by an empire from the west—an empire that was going to move with great force and speed—the empire or kingdom of Greece. That was typified in that “large horn”; it is one significant king, the one that was the founder of the Empire, Alexander the Great. He was going to sweep across and absolutely destroy this ram, the empire or kingdom of the Medes and the Persians. But then this great horn, this king, Alexander the Great, was going to be broken off. And rather than his empire being perpetuated by his son and grandson, it would be broken off and would be split into four divisions with each ruled over by a king—by one of his generals as it actually was. And that was the case. Let’s go on a little bit further.

Daniel 11:2, “And now I will tell you the truth: Behold, three more kings will arise in Persia, and the fourth shall be far richer than them all; by his strength, through his riches, he shall stir up all against the realm of Greece.” This refers to Xerxes. Xerxes would be the one to stir up everyone against Greece.

Verses 3-4, “Then a mighty king shall arise, who shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his will And when he has arisen, his kingdom shall be broken up and divided toward the four winds of heaven, but not among his posterity nor according to his dominion with which he ruled; for his kingdom shall be uprooted, even for others besides these.” And then it describes a king of the South (v. 5), and it talks about a king of the North (v. 13).

What we have as you go through Daniel 11 is a story that comes down to a fight between a king of the North and a king of the South. Let’s get the picture. Alexander’s empire conquered the known world. It spread across from Greece. He swept across Asia Minor (modern-day Turkey), came down through Palestine, conquered the area of Judah, came all the way down into Egypt and conquered Egypt. He spread across to the Euphrates River to ancient Babylon, into Persia, all the way into India. He got all the way to Afghanistan, the area of India and Afghanistan.

Certain of the Afghan tribes trace themselves back and are descendants from some of the soldiers of Alexander the Great. They are a bunch of fighters, and they have been fighting ever since. Nobody has ever been able to do anything with them, as the Russians have learned to their dismay.

You read of the British Empire at its height, and the most that the British were ever able to do with the Afghans was to put soldiers at the Kybur Pass and to keep them from coming into India. They had a very similar escapade in Afghanistan as the Russians did, and they finally decided the simplest thing to do was to get out of Afghanistan, just guard the Pass and not let them get out—keep them there. They are a rough bunch when it comes to that.

Alexander’s Empire spread across all the way to India. He conquered the northern part of India, the part he wanted, and up to the border that is now Afghanistan. He left soldiers and spread across the whole Middle East. He united the whole Middle East, everything from Greece to India.

You see, the Persian Empire had not gone that far west. The Persian Empire had extended up to portions of India. Alexander conquered even more of India than the Persians had. The Persians had a great Empire. Alexander had smashed their empire, and he did it in just a few years. Basically, it took ten years for Alexander to conquer the world, from 333 B.C. when he crossed the Dardanelle from Greece into Turkey. And in ten years he was dead. He was thirty years old and he was obviously a remarkable individual to have been able to “stir up” things to that point.

But when he died, there was no one person to take his empire. Very quickly, within a few years, it split into four divisions and was led by his four generals: Ptolemy, Seleucus, Cassander and Lysimachus. These were the four particular generals that split it. It was prophesied in the book of Daniel that this would happen. Daniel was writing before the fact. In a matter of a few decades, the empire consolidated to where Seleucus in the North ruled the area of what is modern-day Syria across to Babylon. Ptolemy ruled Egypt in the South. This is north and south from the standpoint of Jerusalem, the normal way directions are given in the Bible—from the standpoint of Jerusalem. What’s east and west is different if you are in China, as opposed to if you are in the United States or Europe. Directions are a matter of where you are in relationship to other things.

The portions of Alexander’s Empire that had long-term impact on the Jews were the areas of Seleucus to the north and Ptolemy to the south. These are outlined in Daniel 11. The details of the king of the North and the king of the South pushing at each other back and forth are recorded. We are not going to go through the details of Daniel 11, but we will at a later time. It actually records in advance all of the struggles back and forth.

Now if you look at a map and look at the area to the north where Syria stretches across to Babylon and look at the south to where Egypt is, what’s in the middle? What’s between them? – Jerusalem, the area of the Jews.

Now what do you think they fought over? It didn’t take them long to start fighting. They wanted to expand their territory. Well, what is in the middle? Jerusalem. So when they were going to fight, what were they going to fight over? Who was going to rule that? It was a matter that if Ptolemy was going to move north and try to fight against Seleucus, the kingdom of the North, then he had to go through Jerusalem to get there. And if the Seleucuses were going to come to the south to fight and try to conquer Egypt, they had to come through Jerusalem to get there. So what it amounted to, the Jews caught it in every direction. Every time they came through, the Jews got caught in the middle.

This set the stage for events that greatly affected them and shaped the world into which Jesus Christ came. There were events that resulted from Alexander’s coming on the scene. One of the major events that resulted from Alexander’s conquest was that the Greek language and culture were diffused throughout the known world, all the way across to India. Each of these four kingdoms that came up was still a Greek kingdom. The Ptolemys who ruled Egypt were Greek. The last of the Ptolemys was Cleopatra. She’s probably the best known. You’ve heard the story of Anthony and Cleopatra. She committed suicide, and the Romans swallowed up her kingdom. She was the last of the Ptolemys. She was not Egyptian in the ethnic sense. She was Greek. The Ptolemys were Greek. They were descendants of one of Alexander’s generals who conquered that area and ruled it.

The Seleucus ruled from Syria to Babylon. The capital was at Antioch in Syria. They named it after themselves. Antiochus was one of the most popular names that all of these kings up in the north had. We’ll talk about one in a few minutes whose name was Antiochus Epiphanes which means “Antiochus of the glorious appearing.” He obviously had a high opinion of himself. He must have thought he looked pretty good. He plays a role in both Bible history and Bible prophecy.

So the stage was set. The Greek language and culture spread across the known world. This set the stage for the New Testament because what is the New Testament written in? It is written in Greek. That was a common language that most educated people could speak by the time of the New Testament. That’s why the apostles could go into different areas of the world and communicate in the Greek language. Wherever the Apostle Paul would travel, he could communicate in Greek. Not to say that he didn’t speak other languages. The New Testament was written in Greek, and the Christian community (scattered throughout a wide area at that time) could understand it because the Greek language was the language of education. People spoke their native language, but in addition, if they were educated, if they went to school, they learned Greek. It became the language of education, of trade and commerce in much the same way the spread of the British Empire and the English language in the nineteenth century set the stage for God’s work today.

The diffusion of the English language throughout the world meant that God’s work could go to the world in English and reach educated people throughout the world, whose native tongues would have been languages we wouldn’t have known or wouldn’t have had a way to gain access to. Then, as educated people in those societies learned the truth and came into the Church, speaking and having knowledge of English, they also spoke the native language of their country. It opened the way for the work to go out in other languages.

The widespread use of English, as well as other colonial languages, set the stage. We could go first in English to a great deal of the world. What we couldn't reach in English could generally be reached in French. Portions of the non-English parts of the Caribbeans and the non-English part of Africa could be reached in that way by the French language, and then the Spanish language, again as a result of colonial empires throughout the areas of Latin America.

So in three languages, the vast majority of nations could be impacted. God set the stage for that. God determined the bounds. We are told God has made of one blood all people that on the face of the earth do dwell and has determined the bounds of their habitations and the times appointed (Deuteronomy 32:8; Acts 17:26). So God has a great time plan.

The Greeks came on the scene and spread across the world. They spread knowledge of the Greek language and culture. Then within a very short time, it came down to a Greek kingdom in the North and a Greek kingdom in the South—and the Jews were caught in the middle.

Now Alexander the Great played a role. I want to read to you a few comments from the Jewish historian, Josephus. He was one who wrote contemporary with the Apostle Paul, a priest of the priestly family in Jerusalem. He was a general in the war of the Jews against the Romans. He was taken captive by the Romans, and therefore lived to write an account. He gives a very good historical account of many of these things. There are a number of comments that he makes. We can pick up the story at the time of Alexander.

Let me read you a comment on Alexander the Great in Josephus, Antiquity of the Jews, Book 11, Chapter 8, 4-7, "Alexander, when he had taken Gaza in Egypt, made haste to go up to Jerusalem; and Jaddua the high priest, when he heard that, was in an agony and under terror, not knowing how he should meet the Macedonians, since the king was displeased with him." So Alexander (this is about 331 B.C., about seventy years after the time of Ezra and Nehemiah) is on his way to Jerusalem. He has conquered Egypt and now is coming to Jerusalem; the high priest is scared because he knows Alexander is mad. He determines what he should do.

So they decided the best course was to bring out a copy of the book of Daniel and to show

Alexander what was said about him. They figured they needed to do something to get on his "good side." We are told, "When the book of Daniel was showed him, wherein Daniel declared that one of the Greeks should destroy the empire of the Persians, he supposed that he was the person intended and as he was then glad, he dismissed the multitude. The next day he called them and asked what favors they pleased of him. Whereupon the high priest desired that they might enjoy the Laws of their forefathers and pay no tribute on the seventh year. He granted all that they desired. When they entreated of him that he should permit the Jews in Babylon and Media to enjoy their own laws, also he willingly promised to do hereafter, as they desired."

Then we are told, "The Samaritans seeing that Alexander had so greatly honored the Jews determined to profess themselves Jews. For such is the disposition of the Samaritans, as we have already elsewhere declared that when the Jews are in adversity, they deny that they are of kin to them, and then they confess the truth, but when they perceive that some good fortune has befallen them, they immediately pretend to have communion with them, saying that they belong to them and they derive their genealogy from the posterity of Joseph."

That is the illustration that is made in the book of Revelation, "that say they are Jews, and are not, but do lie and are of the synagogue of Satan" (Revelation 3:9). That is an illustration to the Samaritans and what they have always done, as Josephus records, even back in ancient history, back to the time of Alexander.

I read the portion in Daniel that applies to Alexander the Great. He was coming in and he was mad. They said, 'We better show him something; we better show him something to get on his "good side." He's going to fight the Persians. We will bring out and say, "Here are our sacred books and you are mentioned in there. Let us show you what it says."'

So they showed him there that the king of Greece is going to smash the king of Persia; he was rather pleased with that and was sure that he was the king of Greece there mentioned. I am sure they stopped at the right part of the verse and didn't go on down to show him that he was going to be broken and that his empire would be divided. It is a matter of knowing where to stop reading. You don't necessarily read the whole thing. They read to him the good part, and he was so pleased with it that he agreed to let them out of paying taxes every seventh year because if they were keeping the Sabbatical year, they wouldn't have anything to pay taxes with.

The Samaritans thought this was a good idea. They didn't keep the Sabbatical year, but they liked the idea of getting out of paying taxes. So they sent word down to Alexander that they were Jews, too. Josephus brings out that whenever something goes well for the Jews, the Samaritans say, 'We are all in this thing together.' But when something goes bad for the Jews, the Samaritans say, 'Hey, we don't have anything to do with these people. We are not kin to them. We don't know them.' So this is the background. Josephus goes on through many of these events.

The high priest that is mentioned in the book of Ezra and Nehemiah is the one Josephus mentions.

Nehemiah 12:1, "Now these are the priest and the Levites who came up with Zerubbabel..." It goes through and names them. This is in the days of Jeshua.

Verses 10-11, "Jeshua begot Joiakim, Joiakim begot Eliashib, Eliashib begat Joidad. Joiada begot Jonathan, and Jonathan begot Jaddua." Jaddua is the one Josephus mentions that met Alexander the Great. His successor is called Simon the Just because of his kind disposition toward God. Simon the Just was high priest from about 309 B.C. to 280 B.C. This brings us down to within about two hundred eighty years of the birth of Christ. The great synagogue founded by Ezra lasted until the time of Simon. Simon the Just was considered by the Jews as the last righteous high priest. In the aftermath of his death, there were events that took place.

By this time we are getting quite a ways down from direct contact with the time of Ezra and Nehemiah. Simon was a young fellow, a young man at the time of Alexander the Great. The high priest at the time of Alexander the Great was one who had been born about the time of the death of Ezra and Nehemiah. You have a certain amount of continuity, but what happened by this time?

The Greek culture had spread and the tendency of people is to try and be like the world, to try and blend in and be part of the society. The Greek language and culture had begun to have great impact upon the Jews. The high priest had gotten involved in a lot of politics back and forth. They were ruled from Egypt by the Ptolemys. Then they got the idea of quitting paying taxes to the Ptolemys. This didn't go over too well because there was warfare back and forth. By 198 B.C., Syria had moved in and taken Judea from Egypt.

The situation continued to degenerate because of the negative influence that had come in and the fact that much of the priestly families were involved in politics and were looking for worldly power. It got to the point where there was a literal fight between two brothers for the high priesthood. They allied themselves with different factions.

Jason became high priest in 175 B.C.; he was a Hellenist. A Hellenist was one that accepted Greek culture—in other words, pagan culture. He managed to usurp the priesthood from his brother. They fought on it, and then a Benjamite purchased the priesthood from the Syrian ruler. Then Jason got it back around 168 B.C., which is when the Syrians led by Antiochus Epiphanes came down to fight against the Egyptians.

They were going to conquer the Egyptians. They were always fighting back and forth. They got down there to conquer Egypt, and the Roman fleet met Antiochus Epiphanes. The Romans told him to turn around and go back where he came from because they weren't going to let him invade Egypt. He turned around, but he was mad and wanted to take it out on somebody. So he decided the simplest thing to do was to go back through Jerusalem and see if he could kill a few Jews, which he did.

He came through and he was mad for several reasons. He was mad at the Jews in general because they stood in the way. Alexander spread the Greek language, but he did something else. He also spread the Babylonian Mystery Religion. He took the priests from the schools in Babylon and scattered them throughout his empire. His idea was to create one world, one language, one religion, one race and one people. That's why his soldiers were left behind in India and near Afghanistan. The idea was to create one world, but it was one world the devil's way.

In the succession of the Babylon system, the succession of world ruling empires that Daniel describes, the devil has his plan for one world. God is going to create one world under Jesus Christ. The devil has always tried to create one world, going back to Nimrod and the Tower of Babel. Coming all the way down, the devil has in mind to create one world, the beast system. The beast power in the future is going to have their attempt to create one world, but one world under the devil's sway and the devil's influence.

Alexander spread the Greek language and culture and the Babylonian religion. These Babylonian priests were scattered throughout his empire. The Jews who were keeping the law of God stood in the way. They didn't blend in. They didn't worship the same god, and they didn't follow the same customs. Everybody else went along with it. These guys were the "fly in the ointment." They were the ones that weren't doing what everybody else was doing. They weren't with "the program."

Antiochus Epiphanes didn't like that. So he decided that he was going to come to Jerusalem and teach the Jews a lesson. He was going to take their temple and destroy the Scriptures. He was going to set up an idol of Jupiter Olympus in the Holy Place. He was going to sacrifice a pig on the altar, and he was going to put "his man" in as high priest. He was going to make the Jews follow the same religion that everybody else was following. He was going to have one world.

When you go through the succession here in Daniel 11, it talks about the king of the North and the king of the South; it goes back and forth. We pick up the story.

Daniel 11:21, "And in his place shall arise a vile person, to whom they will not give the honor of royalty; but he shall come in peaceably, and seize the kingdom by intrigue." –A vile person, this is Antiochus Epiphanes. Since Seleucus, the previous king, didn't leave an heir, his brother came in and drove out Illedorous and obtained the kingdom. He flattered his way in. This is Antiochus Epiphanes.

Verse 22, "With the force of a flood they shall be swept away from before him and be broken, and also the prince of the covenant." Prince of the covenant would refer to the Jewish high priest.

Verses 23-24, "And after the league is made with him he shall act deceitfully, for he shall come up and become strong with a small number of people. He shall enter peaceably, even into the richest places of the province [Galilee and lower Egypt]...." He's going to do various things.

Verses 28-30, "While returning to his land with great riches, his heart shall be moved against the holy covenant; so he shall do damage and return to his own land. At the appointed time he shall return and go toward the south; but it shall not be like the former or the latter. For ships from Cyrus [KJV, "Chittim"] shall come against him [The ships of Chittim are the Roman fleet. Chittim was the ancient term for southern Italy; Sicily is the modern term.]; therefore he shall be grieved, and return in rage against the holy covenant, and do damage [The Roman fleet came and kicked him out of Egypt. He was mad and went back. What was he going to do? Take it out on the Jews!]. So he shall return and show regard for those who forsake the holy covenant."

He comes back and enters into a league with apostate Jews who turn their back on the religion of the Jews.

Verse 31, "And forces shall be mustered by him, and they shall defile the sanctuary fortress; then they shall take away the daily sacrifices, and place there the abomination of desolation."

He stopped the daily sacrifice and placed there the abomination that made desolate. What he did was set up an abomination that led to desolation or destruction. The abomination was the statue of Jupiter Olympus, and they offered a pig on the altar. This was an abomination that desecrated the temple, and it led to the desolation of Jerusalem.

Verse 32, "Those who do wickedly [the Jews who forsook the truth] against the covenant he shall corrupt with flattery [they were going to get in good with him]; but the people who know their God shall be strong, and carry out great exploits."

In the New Testament, Jesus spoke of an abomination of desolation that is going to take place in the future (Matthew 24:15 and Mark 13:14).

He said, 'When you shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet.' Daniel spoke of an abomination of desolation. It was one that had taken place in 168 B.C., one hundred sixty-eight years before Christ. But Jesus said there would come again an abomination that would make desolate, that would lead to the destruction of Jerusalem prior to His return. So there is an event that is to happen in the future, of which this event that happened in the past was a type. Antiochus Epiphanes, this vile person that had attained the kingdom by flattery, the one who came in and stopped the daily sacrifice and set up the abomination that made desolate, is the type of the final beast of Revelations 17 (and other places). It happened in history, but it is also prophecy.

When you understand about Antiochus and some of the things that he did, you are also getting a picture of the future. His idea was to have one world, one society, one language, one religion, and everybody will be happy if we all get together. Isn't that what is going to be said in the future by the beast and the false prophet? And who are they going to want to persecute? –Those that don't want to fall in line and don't want to get with "the program." That's why they are going to attack physical Israel, and they are going to attack the true Church. They are going to persecute God's people because they will not want to join "the program."

This is what is shaping up. There is going to come together in Europe a final seventh revival, that final tenth horn. The seventh head of Revelation 17, that final full revival of the old Roman Empire is going to come together. Babylon the Great is going to come together, and once again, it's going to attempt to enforce one world and one religion. They are really going to persecute those that don't go along with "the program," those that don't blend in, that don't fit in.

This is exactly what Antiochus tried to do. He came to Jerusalem, and he was doing these things. I want to read to you a little bit of a historical account of it—a firsthand historical account—the book of Maccabees. This is not part of Scripture, and it was never intended to be. It was, rather, a historical book that the Jews preserved, but they never considered it Scripture. They simply considered it part of an historical account similar to Josephus. It provides a firsthand account.

I Maccabees 1:11-45, "And there came out of them a wicked root, Antiochus, surnamed Epiphanes, son of Antiochus the king. In those days there went out of Israel wicked men who persuaded many, saying, 'Let us go and make a covenant with the nations around about us, for since we departed from them we have had much sorrow'...So they built a place of exercise in Jerusalem according to the customs of the heathens [a Greek gymnasium]. They made themselves uncircumcised. [They went to the point that they tried by an operation to actually disguise the fact that they had been circumcised—the sign of the covenant God made with Abraham. They didn't want to be identified as the people of God.] They forsook the holy covenant and joined themselves to the heathen and were sold to do mischief. Now after that Antiochus had smitten Egypt...he returned again and he went up against Jerusalem with a great multitude. He entered proudly into the sanctuary and took away the golden altar, the candlestick of light and all the vessels and he made a great massacre and spoke very proudly. They shed innocent blood on every side of the sanctuary and defiled it. The inhabitants of Jerusalem fled because of them. The city was made a habitation of strangers. The sanctuary was laid waste like a wilderness. Antiochus wrote to his whole kingdom that all should be one people, that everyone should leave his laws so all the heathen consented to his religion and sacrificed unto the idols and profaned the Sabbath."

So what did you have? You had a falling away.

Verses 46-60, "The king sent letters by messengers to Jerusalem and the cities of the Jews that they should follow the strange laws of the land and he forbade burnt offerings and sacrifices and drink offerings and said they should profane the Sabbath and the Holy Days...and whosoever would not do according to the commandment of the king, he should die. Many of the people gathered unto them, everyone that forsook the law, and they committed the evils in this land. And in the fifteenth day of the month, Kessla, they set up the abomination of desolation upon the altar and built idol altars throughout the cities of Judah on every side. Whosoever was found with any book of the Testament, or if any consented to the law, the king's commandment was that they should be put to death."

This is a type of the Great Tribulation. What Antiochus did historically was a type. Daniel prophesied of it.

Daniel 11:31-32, "...They shall defile the sanctuary fortress; then they shall take away the daily sacrifices, and place there the abomination of desolation. Those who do wickedly against the covenant he shall corrupt with flattery; but the people who know their God shall be strong, and carry out great exploits."

I Maccabees 1:65-67, "Howbeit many in Israel were fully resolved and confirmed in themselves not to eat any unclean thing. Wherefore, they chose rather to die that they might not be defiled with meats and that they should not profane the holy covenant, so they died."

I Maccabees 2:1-23, "Now in those days there arose Mathias, the priest, the son of John, the son of Simeon, a priest. He left Jerusalem and dwelt in Modine. He had five sons, the last of which was Judah, called Machabeus. Now this decree went out and Mathias said, though all the nations that are under the king's dominion obey him and fall away everyone from the religion of their fathers and give consent to his commandment, yet will I and my sons and my brethren walk in the covenant of our fathers. God forbid that we should forsake the law and the ordinances. We will not hearken unto the king's word to go from our religion either to the right hand or to the left. When he had left speaking these words there came one of the Jews..."

Now what had happened was they sent in the king's officers to each city to make the people come forward and bow down to an idol and kiss the toe of the idol. The idea was that they were going to make everybody agree. They came into this little village of Modine where Mathias the priest was. He was an elderly man. They called him up first, 'Now you, all right, you go up first, and then everybody else will come in behind you.' Well, when they told him he goes first, he said what I just read—'everybody else can do it if they want to, but I am not going to depart from the law of God.'

Verse 23, "And when he had left speaking, there came one of the Jews in the sight of all to sacrifice on the altar according to the king's commandment." There's always somebody, one of these "chicken hearted" trying to get in good with them.

Verse 24, "Now when Mathias saw this he was inflamed with zeal, his reins trembled, neither could he forebear to show his anger according to judgment, wherefore he ran and slew him upon the altar." This, needless to say, created a little bit of a furor.

Verses 25-28, "And the king's commissioner who compelled men to sacrifice, he killed at that time, and the altar he pulled down. Thus dealt he zealously for the law of God like as did Phineas under Zamri, and Mathias cried throughout the city with a loud voice, 'whosoever is zealous of the law and maintains the covenant let him follow me,' so he and his sons fled to the mountains and left all that they had ever had in the city." They went out.

Verse 70, "[Mathias] died..."

I Maccabees 3:1, "Then his son, called Judas Macabaeus rose up in his stead." Judas went forth and finally recaptured the city. He captured Jerusalem from the Syrians and won independence. He cleaned out the temple and rededicated it to the worship of God. He established his brother as high priest. This was the first Maccabees that ruled. They became known as the Maccabee family.

The Jews to this day celebrate this event for eight days. It is called Hanukah (also Hanukkah or Chanukah). You've heard about it. It generally takes place beginning the twenty-fifth day in December, which is the tenth month of the Jewish calendar, the month Kislev. This is the time when the temple was rededicated. It is called the Feast of Lights or Feast of Dedication.

You read of it in John 10:22. Jesus was in Jerusalem for the Feast of Dedication. The Hebrew name is "Chanukah," which is the term we hear. A lot of Jews in this country kind of observe it as a pseudo-Christmas, but it has no connection with Christmas at all. It goes back to the time that the Maccabees cleansed the temple and rededicated it. It is a Feast of Dedication.

This is what was spoken of in Daniel when he says:

Daniel 11:31-32, "...they would defile the sanctuary fortress; then shall take away the daily sacrifice, and place there the abomination of desolation. And such as do wickedly against the covenant and corrupt by flatteries, but the people who know their God shall be strong and carry out great exploits." Well, the people that did know their God were strong and did exploits. That was the Maccabees, and they cleansed the temple.

The Jews fought on, and finally by 141 B.C., Jewish independence was achieved from Syria. Simon Maccabee was high priest. John Hircanus who was of the Maccabee family succeeded him. His son who was high priest from 134 B.C. to 104 B.C. is considered by the Jews to be the last righteous high priest.

There are events that occurred in the time of John Hircanus. It is, basically, at this time that the Sadducees and the Pharisees arose as sects that came to power. The Pharisees were basically laymen. They were not of the priestly families. They saw the situation that had existed and the extent to which the priests had been corrupt. The Maccabees had kicked out the corrupt priesthood and installed themselves. They were of the priestly line, but it was not a direct father-son succession. They were of the priestly families, but they had to expel the corrupt high priests and establish themselves.

Because of the situation that arose, this group of people had the idea that they wanted to enforce and make sure that things did not get back like it had been. They felt the priests needed somebody to keep an eye on them, so this group of Pharisees began to arise. The Pharisees' theory was to put a hedge about the law. They began to enact all kinds of traditions to enforce a strict separation. They were kind of a reform party that came in. Josephus tells a little bit about them.

The priests were basically identified with the Sadducees. The Sadducees took the Scripture and said, 'Look, we accept the authority of Scripture, but we don't accept the authority of oral tradition.' The Sadducees were never a large popular party. They were more restricted to the priesthood.

When John Hircanus died, his son Judas became high priest, and he also proclaimed himself as king. He was both the civil ruler and the religious ruler of the land. This continued down a little bit.

Josephus, ‘The Antiquity of the Jews,’ xiii, vi, 1, “Now when their father Hyrcanus was dead, the eldest son, Aristoples, intending to change the government into a kingdom, for so he was resolved to do, first of all put a diadem on his head....” He made himself the king.

Let me read a little bit about John Hyrcanus or about the Pharisees from Josephus. John Hyrcanus had been at an earlier time a Pharisee as the Pharisees had first arisen. They had been allied with him, but he left.

Josephus, xiii, x, 6-7, “...he made him leave the party of the Pharisees, and abolished the decrees that they had imposed upon the people...the Pharisees have delivered to the people a great many observances by succession from their fathers, which are written in the Law of Moses; and for that reason it is that the Sadducees reject them...He [Hyrcanus] was esteemed by God worthy of three privileges, —the government of his nation, the dignity of the high priesthood, and prophecy; for God was with him....”

He is considered to be the last of the righteous high priests. Aristoples made himself king, and then his son Alexander took over and ruled as king in his stead and died in 76 B.C.

Now when Alexander died, his widow Queen Salome was left.

I want to read to you a statement from Josephus, xiii, xvi, 1, “...when she [Salome, the wife of Alexander] had taken the fortress, acted as her husband had suggested to her, and spoke to the Pharisees and put all things into their power....” Now in the New Testament, we read where Jesus made the statement:

Matthew 23: 2, “The scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses’ seat.” Have you ever wondered how the scribes and Pharisees came to sit in Moses’ seat? This is how. In 76 B.C. Queen Salome delivered the religious authority over the nation to the Pharisees. It really makes a transition.

If you really want a parallel in terms of eras of the Church, the Maccabees makes a parallel with the Philadelphia Church—the context and the description of what the Maccabees did parallel the sixth era. And really, as you go through the eras of the Old Testament Church, they represent the sixth period or era. They were succeeded by the final era, the seventh one, which was the domination of the Pharisees, which lasted from 76 B.C. until the time of the New Testament Church.

It was the Pharisees who were in Moses’ seat at the time when Christ came on the scene. They had gotten in Moses’ seat, having been placed there by the Maccabee family but after several generations had basically gotten away from that zeal. Finally, the widow of the Maccabee king, to perpetuate herself in power, gave the Pharisees religious control over the nation. Within a short period of time (this was in 76 B.C.), by 63 B.C., the Romans came in and established their rule. Less than thirty years later Herod was set up as king by the Romans. He was king when Jesus Christ was born.

The story that we have is a story of ups and downs. It is a story of the spread of Greek influence, Greek religion (Babylonian religion with a Greek overlay), Greek culture and Greek language that spread throughout the known world at that time. There was a constant bickering back and forth (with the Jews in the middle) between the Greek kingdom of Syria to the North and the Greek kingdom of Egypt to the South. This bickering went back and forth.

As more and more of the Jews had gotten away from God, they entered into an alliance with Antiochus Epiphanes, who came in and launched what was really a type of the Great Tribulation. The result was the Maccabees and the cleansing of the temple, a certain revival that took place that lasted for basically a long generation and began to trickle out. Finally, by 76 B.C., the kingdom was basically turned over to the Pharisees to govern the religious affairs of the nation, and it set the stage for the world into which Jesus Christ came.

The Romans came in and picked up the pieces and governed things from a civil standpoint. The Pharisees governed religiously. They came in with their own ideas and traditions. They were going to solve the problem using human reason.

You have these ups and downs, these revivals, these departures. The tendency has always been for people to begin to compromise with the world, to try to be like the world, to try to blend in as Satan tries to get in his influence, to water down the law of God, to get people to kind of back off of real zealous obedience to the law.

Time after time, God has raised someone to make sure that the truth was preserved. It was in this context that Jesus the Messiah was born, coming with the good news of the Kingdom of God. Not an earthly kingdom that was going to be set up as one of the competing governments of this world, but a government that God was going to establish.

I hope that in going through some of this material, we’ve gained a little bit of insight into the story flow of the Old Testament and even the time between the Testaments. While it is time between the Testaments, it is also covered in the Bible because Daniel covers it through prophecy in Daniel 8 and 11. We see the ups and downs that culminated in the time of Jesus Christ.

We are going to pick it up next Bible study. We will start a new series. Having completed this Old Testament series, we will start into a new series on the New Testament.

Bible Study # 29

Mr. John Ogwyn

The Gospels and Acts Series—Introduction to the Survey of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John

This evening we will get into a brand new series. We have been in the Old Testament for quite a while. We have gone through a historical overview of the Old Testament and focused in on the historical flow going through the historical books of the Old Testament. We will, at later times, come back and pick up the books that we did not cover going through this survey of the Old Testament. Last Bible study we came up to the time between the Testaments.

This evening we are going to start in the New Testament, and we are going to begin a new series—a survey of the Gospels and Acts. This is a fourteen-part series that will take us through the four Gospels and Acts. As we go through the four Gospels, we are going to go through them in a harmonized fashion. In other words, we are not going to go through the Gospel accounts one at a time, but rather we are going to go through the account and get the story flow.

On the study questions, you will be directed as to what portions or verses in each book we will be going through and where the questions are derived from. As we go through the story, it will give you a kind of a historical flow to focus in on the Gospel accounts. We will follow it up with the book of Acts, which really follows the sequence.

The material that we have gone through prior to now really sets the stage for what we will get into this evening because ultimately the whole Bible focuses on, centers on, Jesus Christ, the Messiah, the One who was promised, the Savior of the world, the One who is ultimately to return as Lord of lords and King of kings. The entire Bible focuses in on Him, whether looking forward to or looking back in retrospect.

We went through a series of Bible studies on the canonization of the Bible, and one of the things that we noted was the way that the Jews count the books. They count the books as being twenty-two books in the Old Testament, and when you look at the New Testament, there are twenty-seven. It's interesting. If you take the four Gospels and Acts—five books—you have twenty-two on each side: twenty-two books of the Old Testament and twenty-two books of the New Testament that come after the Gospels and Acts. So, if you were looking at it like a seesaw or something balanced, you have the center, the heart and core with everything balanced on either side. The center is Jesus Christ: the story of Jesus Christ and His personal ministry, and the extension of that, as He worked through the apostles as reported in the Acts of the apostles.

Let's look into the way in which the world was prepared for the introduction of Jesus Christ, for the coming of the Messiah. God knows where He is going and He knows what He is doing. God made sure that the world was prepared for the coming of Jesus Christ and for the message that He brought.

Let's look at five specific ways in which God ensured the world was prepared, to set the stage, for the coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of the New Testament Church.

(1) The first way in which God saw that the world was prepared for the coming of the Messiah and the establishment of the New Testament Church was what is called the "Diaspora" or the dispersion, the scattering of the Jews over the known world. The scattering over the whole known world was vital to the preparation of the establishment of the New Testament Church. Wherever the Jews went, copies of the Scriptures and knowledge of God's law also went. In the areas they settled, synagogues were established, and after a period of time, even many of the Gentiles were exposed to the teaching of the Bible.

God knows where He is going before He ever gets started. God had a plan and a purpose. Revelation 13:8, "...the Lamb of God [Jesus Christ] was slain from the foundation of the world." In other words, from the time that God began His plan for man, He had in mind a plan that certainly included the need for a Savior. God foresaw these things. God's whole plan outlined in the Holy Days was thought out. God didn't set about building things by starting out by just kind of stumbling through.

God knew that Jesus Christ was going to come, Galatians 4:4, "...when the fullness of time had come..." He knew when, just as God knows now.

In Acts 1:7 Jesus said, "...It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has put in His own authority." God knows the second coming and the first coming. God set the stage.

One of the things he allowed to happen was the dispersion of the Jews. When the Babylonians (Nebuchadnezzar) took the Jews captive, there began a scattering and a settling of the Jews in various areas. The bulk of the Jews were in Babylon, but afterward, particularly with Alexander the Great and the time after that, the Jews scattered. Most of the Jews never came back to Judea. Some came back under Zerubbabel, and others came back under Ezra and Nehemiah. There were groups of Jews and colonies of Jews that returned, but most of the Jews never returned to Judea. Just as today, most of the Jews do not live in the land of Israel. The Jews dispersed and settled in groups in various cities.

Over a period of several hundred years, particularly from the time of Alexander the Great on to about a three hundred-year period, there came to be sizable Jewish communities in virtually all the major cities in the Roman world. Now where there was a Jewish community, there was a synagogue. Where there was a synagogue, there was a copy of the Scriptures—there was a scroll of the Scriptures.

We take for granted the availability of the Bible, but you have to realize in that day the only copies of the Book that existed were handwritten copies. Therefore, you didn't have a lot of copies. There now were, in major cities, copies of the Scriptures; there came to be certain knowledge of this people, of their religion, of their God and things that they did. This scattering served as the basis later on when the New Testament Church was going to be built.

Where did the Apostle Paul go when he went into the cities of the Gentile world? Where did he start out? He always went into the synagogue and preached there first. That way the nucleus of the Church was people that knew the law; they were familiar with the Sabbath and were familiar with the Bible.

The first converts in any of the Gentile areas were Jews and Gentiles who attended synagogue services, so-called proselytes, Gentiles impressed with the Jewish religion. The nucleus was people who knew and understood the law and had access to the Scriptures. Then as others who came from a totally pagan background came to be converted, there were others in the Church who already had a certain understanding of the law. It was the logical way to build something. This scattering of the Jews was something important. This Diaspora was one of the ways in which the world was prepared for the introduction of the Messiah and His message.

(2) The Greek language was virtually a universal language at this time due to Alexander's conquest. Because of the Greek emphasis on education, literacy reached a high point for the ancient world. There were more people who could read and write in the Roman world at this time than was the case for many centuries thereafter.

When you go through the Middle Ages, it got down to a point where very few people could read. The average person couldn't read or write. In fact, you don't have to go back very long ago in our time that there were many people who could not read or write at all. If they could, it was in a very limited fashion. That was very common. You don't have to go back very far where educational opportunities were not available even in this country. You go back in the 1800s and most people simply could not read or write.

The Greek period of time was really the high point of literacy in the period of ancient history. The Greeks placed a lot of emphasis on education. Obviously, there were a lot of wrong ideas that were a part of Greek education, but they did value education.

The Greek language had spread very widely because of Alexander's conquests. It was a second language in almost any of these countries. So what did that mean? What was the value of that? What it meant was that most people at this time could read and write. The Scriptures were more accessible to them. They were able to read Paul's letters and the letters that the other apostles wrote, letters that make up much of our New Testament.

Much of our New Testament was letters that were sent out. What good is a letter if nobody can read it? So it was necessary for people to be able to read. God ensured that there was this spread of the Greek language. In what language were they going to be written? They were written in the Greek language. They wrote letters to places that weren't in Greece. Paul could write to the Romans in Italy, and he could write in Greek. James could write to the twelve tribes scattered abroad, and he could write in Greek. You could have letters written to churches in widely scattered areas; they could be written in Greek, and people could understand it. It may not have been their first language, but Greek was a language that most people who had an education could read and write. It provided an almost universal language; you had a degree of literacy that enabled people to utilize the Bible.

(3) A third way in which the world was prepared was the relative peace and stability which the Roman Empire provided along with a system of Roman roads which facilitated travel. This opened a way for the proclamation of the Gospel over a wide area. In most periods of history, you had all these little nations, little kingdoms, and they were all fighting one another. You couldn't go from one place to another, without somebody knocking you in the head, killing you and stealing what you had. How were you going to get there?

You don't have to go back very far in the history of this country when roads were few and far between. In 1928, when Huey Long came in as governor of Louisiana, there were less than one hundred miles of paved roads in the state.

The Romans built thousands of miles of paved roads in the Roman Empire. Not graveled roads, we are talking about paving. The Romans built roads that were so substantial that there are Roman roads that are still in use today. You have places in Spain and in Italy where they are still using roads that the Romans built. The Romans were tremendous engineers. They put curbs and drains on these roads; they got the pitch as to the elevation of the road where the rain would shed. They came in and dug down, cleared it away, tamped the earth, and put in crushed rock. They built right on up to where on top was paving stone—and there were thousands of miles of that. In fact, you could travel in the whole Roman Empire.

The speed with which you could travel from one area to another was not duplicated again until after the middle of the 1800s. Julius Caesar could travel on Roman roads from a city in Switzerland to Rome, Italy in four days. They even had way stations along the way. Every twenty miles you could change horses for official Roman business; you could go at full horse speed on a good paved road for carriages and chariots. There were mileage posts all over the Empire. There are a few you can still find. There is an old saying, "all roads lead to Rome." They literally had the best system of roads that existed until you get into the twentieth century.

So, what does that mean? The Romans thought they were doing that to move their armies. But how do you think the apostles were able to travel and go from one end of the Empire to the other—all the way from Britain, through France, Spain, Italy, across through Greece and Asia Minor, and on into the Middle East, down into Egypt and as far as Babylon—over a vast area. Because you had the Roman Empire, you didn't need passports or papers. The Romans ruled with an iron hand. It was safe to travel because the Romans policed it. Roman garrisons were all along the way so you could safely travel all over Europe and the Middle East and as far as India. There was Roman law. Paul was a Roman citizen; wherever he went, that Roman citizenship was good and it was recognized.

Roman roads made it possible not only to travel, but you had mail service. This facilitated communication as much as what could have been done prior to the invention of modern electronic technology, steam engines and things of that sort. You would have to come all the way to the middle of the 1800s before you could even begin to duplicate it. In terms of the roads, you really didn't have the equivalent until this century.

The Romans were builders. They were engineers. The Roman Empire set the stage. It provided a period of relative peace and stability. It centered at the time of the first century, the time when things were at their height. The first two-thirds of the first century was a time when the Church was growing, when there was a need—and here it was—a situation that wasn't duplicated until our time.

(4) A fourth way in which the world was prepared for the coming of the Messiah and His message was the fact that the bankrupt pagan mythology of the Gentile world had ceased to be strongly believed, particularly by those with any degree of education. The mystery religions of the East were gaining prominence in the areas of Greece and Rome, as well as more traditional areas of Babylon. The point is many people had ceased to be satisfied with what traditional religions had to offer.

We have all heard of the old pagan mythology. Maybe in school you had to study about Greek or Roman mythology. You've heard about Zeus, Athena, Mars, all the Greek gods or the Roman gods and all the various things. What you come up to is, by this point in history, most educated people had ceased to believe mythology as being real. They still told the old stories and went through a lot of the ceremonies, but it was obvious that this really did not answer the questions that people wondered about. It was bankrupt. Pagan mythology had simply ceased to provide the answers people were looking for.

It was a time of great religious turmoil. Many of the so-called mystery religions of the East had begun to spread. People were searching. They had ceased to be satisfied with what traditional religion offered. So it set the stage. At a time when people were questioning, there was certain curiosity.

(5) Because of at least a limited understanding of Daniel's seventy-week prophecy given in Daniel 9:24, many of the Jewish religious leaders were expecting the Messiah in that generation. Many Jews were restive because of their subservient status to the Romans and eagerly anticipated the coming of the Messiah who would free them from the yoke of foreign domination. This was what the Jews were looking at. They looked at all of the prophecies in Isaiah, Jeremiah, Micah and Zechariah, and they said, 'When the Messiah comes, He is going to run out the Romans.' They liked that idea.

The Romans may have built roads and policed the areas, but they were foreigners, and in many ways, harsh taskmasters. They allowed a certain level of freedom on the local scene, but they didn't allow independence. That was very important to the Jews. So, they were expecting the Messiah, but they were expecting Him to come and take action when He came—as far as overthrowing the Romans. The Jews were expecting something in that generation.

Daniel had made a prophecy of seventy weeks to be determined. He talked about sixty-two weeks plus seven weeks from the time that the decree to rebuild Jerusalem went forth. From this decree issued by Artaxerxes in 457 B.C., there would be sixty-nine weeks until the Messiah, the Prince, would come. Sixty-nine weeks equal four hundred eighty-three days or four hundred eighty-three years (a day for a year). If you move forward from 457 B.C. four hundred eighty-three years, you come to 27 A.D.

The Jews did not fully understand what all that portended, but it was obvious that something was going to happen right around that time. Jesus began His public ministry in 27 A.D. That's when He made His public appearance as the Messiah. We would date the prophecy to begin at the time that Jesus made His appearance and was baptized by John the Baptist. Then the final seventieth week was His ministry. He was cut off in the midst of the week, three and one-half days or three and one-half years. He was cut off in the midst of the week literally because He was crucified on a Wednesday. He was cut off in the middle of a prophetic week in that His ministry, instead of lasting seven years, it only lasted three and one-half years. This means that there is three and one-half years left which will undoubtedly be the first three and one-half years of the Millennium when He will conclude His ministry to Israel and will set the stage to expand out into the world.

The Jews had a certain limited understanding of that. That's why Herod quizzed the wise men (Matthew 2). The Magi came, and Herod wanted to know where the Messiah was going to be born, the One who was going to be King of the Jews. Herod, of course, thought that he was king.

It kind of disconcerted him when he found out someone else was going to be king. Here are these guys that had come all the way from the East, probably from the Parthian Empire. They had made this journey, coming here looking for somebody, and they weren't looking for Herod. That made him a little nervous. He called the Jewish religious leaders and wanted to know some answers; they were able to tell him that there was a certain expectation that they had around that time. God had set the stage for the coming of the Messiah and the establishment of the New Testament Church.

We look at the Gospels, and there are four of them. Have you ever asked yourself why? Why four? You have Matthew. Why do you need Mark, Luke and John? Why are there four Gospels? Are they identical? Do they all say the same thing? If they don't, why don't they? Why does some have certain information and others have other information?

The four Gospels are the account of Jesus Christ's life and His ministry. We have four distinct accounts. There is a purpose and logic as to why it was handled the way in which it was. The Gospel accounts take their name from their authors. Matthew wrote Matthew, etc.—that's pretty obvious. Now who were these four individuals? Mark and Luke weren't apostles. Matthew and John were of the twelve. Where did they come in? Why were they the ones?

Matthew was one of the original twelve apostles. He was also called Levi; he was probably of the tribe of Levi. He was an educated Jew from Palestine, a Roman tax collector, obviously an educated man. This was a position that demanded a certain amount of education. Because of his occupation, he would have been very unpopular with people. Tax collectors aren't really popular today; they were less popular then. Back then they didn't get a salary; it was a commission job. You got a percentage of the take, which gave you a lot of incentive to be kind of strong on tax collecting. The Romans didn't care as long as they got theirs. Matthew left this job and accepted the opportunity to be one of the twelve.

His Gospel was the earliest written, about 45-50 A.D. It was evidently the only one of the Gospels to have been written originally in a language other than Greek. Matthew was probably originally written in Hebrew with a Greek translation. It was written primarily for use in Palestine among the Jews there in Judea. The copies that have come down to today were written in Greek—undoubtedly, translated into Greek by Matthew himself. It was written in Hebrew for a Hebrew audience. It was written for the Jewish audience there in Judea, with a translation made so it could be utilized outside the area of Judea.

Matthew, in many ways, is the Jewish Gospel. It deals with the King and the Kingdom. The term “Kingdom of heaven” is used in the book of Matthew thirty-three times. Have you ever wondered why Matthew talks about the Kingdom of heaven, and Mark, Luke and John talk about the Kingdom of God? There is a reason.

The Jews had developed such a consciousness during this time between the Testaments, particularly after the Maccabees revolt and the time the Pharisees came to the fore. The idea was to put a hedge about the law to make sure nobody even got close to breaking the law. They developed an almost superstitious type of awe and respect for God’s name; they wanted to make sure they didn’t use the name of God in vain. So the way to not use God’s name in vain was to not use God’s name. They got to where they would not pronounce the name of God.

Anywhere you see in the King James Version of the Bible the name “LORD” in all capitals or “GOD” in all capitals is translated from the original Hebrew “YHVH.” Hebrew is basically written with just the consonants and not the vowels. We are not entirely sure of how to pronounce it. The reason we are not sure how to pronounce it is that the Jews quit pronouncing it. Whenever they would read the scriptures orally, every time they would come to that name, they would substitute the word “Adoni,” which is the Hebrew word for Lord. They used it as a euphemism for God’s name, just as a title of respect.

Even today, a Jew, instead of saying, “Praise be to God” or something of that nature, he would use the Hebrew phrase “Barach Hasheem” which simply means “Blessed be the Name.” They wouldn’t pronounce the name; they would say, “Blessed be the Name.” The Jews did not use the term “Kingdom of God”; they used the term “Kingdom of heaven” as a euphemism. It was the Kingdom of God ruled from heaven, so came the common term among the Jews. When the Jews discussed the Kingdom, they always used the term “Kingdom of heaven.” That is why they always used it. When Matthew wrote a Gospel to the Jews, he used the terminology that was common. That was what the Jews in Judea used. That was the term they used and that was why they used it.

So, you find throughout the book of Matthew the use of the term “Kingdom of heaven” where other Gospels were written to a wider audience. They were written to areas outside of Judea, and they used the term that was the most commonly used term. There is nothing wrong with the term “Kingdom of God.” In fact, Mark, Luke and John all use it. Matthew simply used the term that the Jews were accustomed to using. “Kingdom of heaven” is used thirty-three times in Matthew out of regard for Jewish sensibilities. The Jews normally referred to the term “Kingdom of heaven” rather than “Kingdom of God.”

Matthew introduces Jesus Christ as the son of David. He quotes His legal genealogy through Joseph. When Matthew gives the genealogy, he gives the legal genealogy and traces it back to David and to Abraham. Matthew traces the genealogy back no further than Abraham because to Abraham were the promises made, and the promise of the scepter confirmed through David. So Matthew has no need to trace it back further than that, but he does trace it back that way to accentuate the fact that Jesus is the Messiah, the son of David.

Matthew quotes the Old Testament sixty-five times. There are sixty-five Old Testament quotations in Matthew—just chock-full—because it was written to people who were very familiar with the Old Testament Scriptures.

The terms “righteous” and “righteousness” are used more often in Matthew than in the other three Gospels put together.

Matthew alone tells of the Jew’s request that Christ’s blood be upon their heads. Remember that? Pilate was getting ready to wash his hands and he said, ‘Look, He is innocent; I don’t want this righteous man’s blood be upon me.’ And the mob said, ‘His blood be upon us.’ Matthew records that (Matthew 28:11-3). He’s the only one that did, but he was writing to them and wanted to make sure that they understood the enormity of what they had said. So he mentions that specifically.

Matthew was the only account that tells of the sealing of the stone when Christ was crucified—the sealing of the stone, the setting of the guard and the fabrication of the story that the disciples came and stole the body while the guard slept (Matthew 28:11-13). Matthew mentioned that because he was writing to an audience that was familiar with the story. That was a story that had been widely circulated.

The Pharisees wanted a sign that He was the Messiah. Jesus told them the only sign He would give them was that He would be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth (Matthew 12:38-40). That was a sign; in a unique way, it was a sign to the Pharisees, the Jewish religious leadership. You know why it was such a special sign to them? Because when Jesus was buried, they went to Pilate and said, 'Look, this schemer has said He is going to rise from the dead. You know what's going to happen, Governor? His disciples are going to come and steal the body and spirit it away. They are going to tell the story that He rose from the dead, and we are going to have more trouble than we have now. So what we want you to do is to set a guard on the tomb, and we are going to seal it' (Matthew 27:63-66).

What is meant that they sealed it? It is like an official document that is sealed. The Post Office puts a seal on registered mail; if you open the letter, it will be apparent because you have broken the seal and it will show. That's what they did at the tomb. They rolled this big flat stone there in the front and placed the Governor's seal there; if anybody came in and moved it, it would be apparent that they moved it. They placed a guard there to make sure nobody did. And you know what happened? He rose anyway. He was gone.

Who knew for a fact that the disciples didn't come and steal Him away? Well, the guard and the Pharisees knew it. The Jewish religious leaders knew it because they told the guard to tell the story that he went to sleep, and the disciples came and stole the body while he was asleep. If the Governor heard the story, the leaders would make sure he didn't get in trouble with him (Matthew 28:11-15).

They bribed the guard. Now if you bribe somebody to tell a story, who knows if they are telling a story? The guy that paid the bribe and the guy who took the bribe, those are the two that know. The people that hear it may not know, but if I bribe you to do something, there are two of us that know that you aren't telling the truth—you and me.

So Christ being in the tomb three days and three nights was, specifically, very uniquely a sign to the Jewish religious leadership because they knew the truth. They had the evidence, and they had fabricated this story. Matthew told that. His is the only one of the Gospel accounts that mentions it because he is writing to the audience of people who had firsthand knowledge and memory. Matthew was writing within fifteen years after Christ's crucifixion and ascension.

Remember 1974? You remember events that happened then? Sure you do. That's not that long ago. It would be very difficult to falsify something like that because you have too many people who are alive who have firsthand knowledge and memory. He gives some of these specific details that have specific relevance to his audience.

He is the only one who mentioned the fact that when Christ rose from the dead, many of the saints who had died and were buried also rose (Matthew 27:52-53). There were a number of people who had died prior to Christ's death who were resurrected. Some had been dead for hundreds of years and some who recently had died. If you attended a guy's funeral last month, you saw him dead in the coffin. All of a sudden, the guy comes walking up. When they pick you up off the floor and kind of revive you, you realize something unusual has happened. This was not the normal course of events. These were the saints. It was a witness to the resurrection.

It had happened fifteen years earlier; the story on that was still circulating around. People had heard about some of these things. Matthew gives the details. These were incidents that would have had particular interest and benefit to Jewish readers there in Judea. Matthew gives those things.

Matthew chapters 1—4 are basically chronological chapters.

Matthew chapters 5—13 are topical. In other words, Matthew deals with what Christ said on a subject. He may introduce what Christ said. He is going along telling the story. For instance, in the Sermon on the Mount, he gives what Christ said, not only at that moment, but the other things Christ said on that subject are put in at that time. These are topical. They may have a general chronological flow, but they are topical. When he dealt with a subject, he told you what Christ said on that subject, even though He may have said part of it in the story flow and part of it six months later, etc. Matthew kind of gives you what He said on a subject.

Matthew 5, 6 and 7 give greater details. This had particular significance for a Jewish audience because this was Jesus Christ in the role of Lawgiver. Remember the scripture we focused on back in the early part of the Bible study?

In Deuteronomy 18:15, the canonization was when Moses said that, "the Lord your God will raise up unto you a Prophet like unto me. One who will give law." Then at the end of Deuteronomy we are told that no prophet has arisen like unto Moses. The Old Testament concluded as Ezra and the scribes working with him provided and gave the final copies of the Old Testament and put it in final form. They could state that the Prophet like unto Moses had not yet arisen.

Matthew points out who that prophet like unto Moses was. Jesus Christ came as a lawgiver, and in the Sermon on the Mount, He is giving law. Over and over again He said, 'It has been said unto you of old time, you shall not do this, etc...but I say unto you....' He modified. He changed. He gave law. Matthew gives greater details and focuses on the Olivette Prophecy which had specific relevance.

Matthew chapters 14—28 are again chronological. Matthew gives the most detailed account of Christ's teaching on the Mount and of the Olivette Prophecy in Matthew 24.

Mark's Gospel, primarily, represents Peter's account. Mark was Peter's companion, disciple and his assistant. All ancient tradition treats the Gospel of Mark as Peter's account. John Mark, who was the author of Mark, was a cousin of Barnabas (Colossians 4:10). He was from Jerusalem. His mother Mary lived in Jerusalem, and her house was used as a meeting place for the Church (Acts 12:12). Tradition states that the upper guest room, at which Christ and the twelve held the Passover, was located in that house, in John Mark's mother's house.

He was a teenage boy at the time. This certainly fits with the evidence that Mark, himself, was the young teenager who fled naked from the Garden of Gethsemane (Mark 14:51-52). It mentions the account of the young boy who was there in the house. He heard Christ and the disciples leave after the Passover service, and he wanted to go out and see what was going on. He just wrapped a sheet around himself and sneaked out of the house to follow them. He got out there trying to see where the action was and he saw the action, all right! Here came the Romans, and he saw all that happen. All of a sudden, one of the soldiers looked over there in the bushes and saw this person crouching down. They grabbed for him. When they grabbed the sheet, he turned loose of it and took off running, which was a smart thing to do, but rather embarrassing. So, when he told the story in the book of Mark, he told the story, but he left out his name. That's a firsthand account that basically only the author would know.

He had certain firsthand impressions, but they were the impressions of a young boy, of a teenager. It's interesting that in Mark's account, the stress is continually on what Christ did, more than on what He said. The miracles are stressed quite a bit in the book of Mark. These were things that certainly would have impressed a young person the most.

Mark was Peter's traveling companion. Peter, in the latter period of his ministry, had his headquarters in Babylon (I Peter 5:13), which was the capital of the Parthian Empire. It had a large Jewish community; a considerable portion of the remnants of the twelve tribes was in the area of the Parthian Empire—those that had not already migrated to Britain. Peter was in Jerusalem for perhaps the first ten or twelve years of the New Testament period. But even prior to that time, he had begun to leave.

By the time you pick up the ministerial conference (Acts 15) in Jerusalem in 49 A.D., James was the chief apostle in Jerusalem. Peter came in and out, but he was not based in Jerusalem. By the early to mid-40s A.D., Peter had left Jerusalem and only returned periodically. He was primarily based in Babylon. This is where his epistles were written from.

In I Peter 5:13, he says, "She [the Church] who is in Babylon...." Babylon was the capital of the Parthian Empire. It had a very large Jewish community, and it was an area where there were many of the ten tribes that had not yet migrated from the Parthian Empire into Europe. Mark was there with Peter.

That is mentioned in I Peter 5:13, "...and so does Mark my son."

Mark's Gospel was written at Peter's direction. It was primarily written and circulated in the areas of Peter's ministry. It was probably written about 60 A.D. The scope of Mark's Gospel corresponds to that of Peter's address at Caesarea, as recorded in Acts 10:34-43. The narrative abounds with details of time, place, circumstances and the feeling and manner of Jesus and the others mentioned. Greek scholars state that the language of Mark is "clean, vigorous, direct speech of the sturdy middle-class." The style is very simple. The stately periods of the classics are wholly absent. The narrative is commonly terse and concise. The descriptions are wonderfully vivid.

Mark throughout portrays Jesus as the servant of the Lord. Much is said about the Servant (Isaiah 42:1; Isaiah 52:13). Go back and look at those prophecies. Mark is a Gospel of deeds. The word "euthus," which is rendered "straightway" or "immediate," is used forty-one times in Mark—five times as many as are used by the other three writers put together. Mark's entire Gospel is in chronological order and stresses action and deeds. It is the account that records the vivid impressions on a teenage boy with the details and general outline supplied by Peter. It was written primarily to circulate in the areas where Peter was preaching—the Israelite areas, the areas where there was a Jewish community outside of Judea and the area where the twelve tribes were.

Luke, on the other hand, was Paul’s traveling companion. Just as Mark was written at Peter’s direction and utilized in the Churches where Peter was primarily ministering, Luke was Paul’s traveling companion and represents Paul’s account. It was written for circulation in the Greek speaking Gentile world to which Paul was commissioned to preach.

Luke was a highly educated Greek, probably from Antioch. He was a physician. His account is written in the classical, historical style of the day. He refers to many historical illusions. Luke is the one that tells you that Christ was born when Caesar Augustus was emperor, when Tiberius was Governor of Caesarea. He records those historical details written from the standpoint of a Greek historian. He is the one who gives the chronological details. Theophilus (Luke 1:3), who was a wealthy nobleman, must have played the part of patron and paid the cost of production of the Gospel because it is dedicated to him, as was standard practice in the classical Greek world. It was intended for the public, especially the Greek public. From the beginning it was written in that vein.

Luke stresses the humanity of Christ. He traces the genealogy all the way back from Mary to Adam. Matthew traces it back to Abraham and stops because as far as the Jews were concerned, that was as far as you needed to go. Luke traces it back to Adam, stressing that Jesus was the Son of man and the Promised Seed—the Seed that was promised to Adam and Eve (Genesis 3:15). Luke traces it back that way, going back to the common ancestry that everyone has. Luke emphasized that Christ was the Son of man as well as the Son of David.

In Luke 2:10, he’s the one who speaks of “...good tidings of great joy which shall be for all people.” Luke is the only one who mentions that. It is only in later retrospect of Paul’s ministry that the full implications of that statement came to be understood. The glad tidings, good news, were for all people, everybody regardless of ethnic origin. Luke is the only one that quotes Isaiah 52:10, “...all flesh shall see the salvation of God” (Luke 3:6). Luke emphasizes some of those things. In Luke, Christ is pictured as the Redeemer (Luke 1:68; Luke 24:21).

Luke was probably written during the time that Paul was in prison in Caesarea, which would put it about 58 A.D. It was written to circulate in those areas.

All of these three accounts, Matthew, Mark and Luke, were written within the first thirty years of the New Testament period. There was nothing written immediately because the twelve were expecting the end at any moment. That was kind of the thinking—‘any day now, any day.’

In Acts 1:6, when Christ got ready to ascend from the Mount of Olives, the disciples questioned, “...Lord will You at this time going to restore the Kingdom to Israel?” ‘Right now?’ Undoubtedly Peter was the one that asked the questions; he was never afraid to speak up.

They were expecting it at any moment, so there obviously wasn’t any need to write a bunch of things down because they expected it was going to happen in just a few days or a few months. Some of the earliest converts liquidated property and pooled all their money together. Nobody wanted to leave Jerusalem and go back home because they just knew it was all going to come together quickly. But twelve to fifteen years later, it was apparent that things were going to go on a little longer than what was anticipated. By this time you begin to have adults coming on the scene who really didn’t have firsthand memory of those events, even in Judea. It began to be necessary, so Matthew wrote the first account.

At the time he wrote, the whole Church was primarily centered there in Judea. It had not really begun to spread outside Judea. The Church’s decision on circumcision was not made until several years later, so the real mushrooming growth of the Church outside of Judea had not really occurred to speak of. Matthew’s account was needed in Judea because the account was written from a Jewish view point by a Jew living in Judea.

But as the Church grew and growth mushroomed, Peter was in Babylon ministering over a wide area with the twelve under his direction. Paul was traveling throughout the Gentile areas. As things progressed, perhaps twelve to fifteen years after Matthew had written his Gospel, there became greater need. Paul and Peter each had one produced under their direction that stressed details that were important to be understood by the people to whom they were ministering. They wrote Gospels that stressed things that they felt needed to be stressed in their areas. Then by the time we come to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D., three of the Gospels existed—Matthew, Mark and Luke.

The Gospel of John was the last written. It was written almost thirty years after all of the apostles were dead. John wrote in the late 90s A.D. John's perspective was quite different. At the time Peter, Paul, Matthew and the others were doing what they were doing, Jerusalem hadn't been destroyed. The Church was centered in Judea, and clearly, the Jewish element predominated. The questions involved questions of the law.

By the time John wrote in the late 90s, the Jerusalem Church had fled Jerusalem. It was destroyed, and the Jews were scattered. All of the original apostles were dead. There were heresies coming into the Gentile world. John had totally different things to address. Questions had arisen that simply never had even been an issue forty to fifty-five years before when the others were writing. John was written much later.

John closed the canonization of the New Testament by adding his own five books to the twenty-two that had previously been canonized by Peter. We noticed that when we went through the series. John wrote one more Gospel account in order to meet certain needs of the time. There were certain problems that were engendered by Simon Magus and the Gnostic heresies that were sweeping the Church at that time. John's epistles and his Gospel were written to meet this necessity. John emphasizes the divine nature of Jesus Christ. He emphasizes the teaching of Christ, particularly in regard to the Holy Days.

It's interesting. John doesn't start out by giving you the genealogy from Abraham or from Adam.

John starts out in John 1:1-3, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, the same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by Him, without Him was not anything made that was made." John starts out by going back to the very beginning showing that the One that we know as Jesus Christ was from the beginning—He was God. Because there were problems around that time, and that was not something clearly understood, many of the heretics were teaching all kinds of crazy ideas. John dealt with some of those things.

If you go through the book of John, nearly the whole book of John centers around what Jesus said and did in seven Festival seasons. We could go through a sermon sometime just showing you how we can find several Passovers, Feast of Trumpets, Feast of Tabernacles, the Last Great Day, Pentecost, as well as some Passovers and Unleavened Bread seasons.

John does not give the same information the others gave. There wasn't any need to go back through and retell it. He skips the Sermon on the Mount and the Olivette Prophecy; there wasn't any need to give that information. Matthew had given it in detail. Mark and Luke had added the details of any clarification that was needed in addition to Matthew. John didn't need to give that. He focused in on what Christ said, did and taught in the context of the Holy Days and the Festivals.

John uses the expression over and over again, the "Feast of the Jews." He emphasizes the fact that Jesus observed the same days the Jews observed because by this time, the Holy Days were coming to be questioned. In some of the Gentile areas, they were trying to downplay the necessity of keeping the Festivals. John emphasized that Jesus kept them over and over. John is the only one who gives a detailed account of the teaching of Christ to the apostles on the night of the final Passover. The others describe in detail the physical actions that took place. John describes what Jesus said. He doesn't go into detail about the bread and the wine—Matthew, Mark and Luke had already given that—but John gives you in detail what Jesus said.

John wrote from Ephesus in the 90s A.D. He was writing to the whole Church. He emphasized deep spiritual things. John was an elderly man, probably around ninety years of age when he wrote this—comparable age to Mr. Herbert Armstrong in the last years of his life. Mr. Armstrong also wrote with an emphasis on very deep spiritual things.

I mentioned the Holy Days. Just to give you an idea: John 2-3 relate to the Passover; John 4 to Pentecost; John 5 to the Fall Festivals, particularly Trumpets; John 6 to Passover and Unleavened Bread; John 7:1-36 relates to the Feast of Tabernacles; John 7:37 through chapter 10 relate to Christ's teaching on the Last Great Day; and John 11-19 focus on Christ's final Passover. As you go through, you have this outline.

John emphasizes the things that Christ taught. He gives us the message that Christ gave on the various Festival seasons so that we might have a deeper understanding of the New Testament implications of these days. John recorded Christ's teaching on these occasions. It was something skipped over by the others, but it was an issue by the time that John wrote.

We have what each one adds in. God used different men writing from different backgrounds, different perspectives, writing to different audiences at different times over the period of about a generation to record the life and teachings of Jesus Christ. Each one adds in details. Because of circumstances, they emphasized certain details in different ways so we are able to have an overview and a balanced picture. No one Gospel, while it contains a tremendous amount of useful and necessary information, gives as balanced a picture as all four taken together. I hope that we can gain a little bit of insight as to why there are these four.

We are going to begin going through the Gospel accounts. Matthew will be the one that we will perhaps refer to quite a bit for the story flow and some of the details he adds in. But we are going to go through everything in all of them. We are going to go through in survey fashion. You will notice on the study questions that I give you the verses from each book so you won't need a harmony of the Gospels, per se. If you have one, fine. This will take you through step by step and will point out the scriptures that overlap. We will start going through that next time.

To give you an idea of what we will cover, we will cover the beginning portion, the equivalent of the first four chapters of Matthew. In other words, we will cover from His birth up to prior to the Sermon on the Mount. Then following that, we will cover the time period from the time of the Sermon on the Mount through Passover 29 A.D., covering about a year of Christ's ministry. Christ's ministry stretched from the fall of 27 A.D. to the spring—Passover 31 A.D.

Next Bible study will basically cover from Christ's birth up through the first six months of His ministry, which would bring us to Passover of 28 A.D. Then in the second series we will cover the next year, from Passover 28 A.D. to Passover 29 A.D., which will be basically the equivalent of Matthew 4—9. As you begin to get into the latter part of Christ's life, we begin to get more and more details, so we will begin to go a little more slowly. I think it will be helpful to go through and get a little bit of an overview, step by step, of the life and the ministry of Jesus Christ stretching on into the ministry of the New Testament Church.

[Editorial Comment: Both the New King James Bible (NKJV) and A Harmony of the Gospels in Modern English (MEV) are used in the Gospels Series unless otherwise indicated.]

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 1—4:11;
Mark 1:1-13; Luke 1—4:13; John 1—2:12

The Bible study material we are focusing on this evening is the events surrounding the birth of Jesus Christ and immediately thereafter. The events that surround the birth of Christ are often read over and not properly understood.

To begin with, God prophesied many of the details of the coming of the Messiah centuries before—details involving time and place. God brought about these events, right on down to moving the Gentile king Caesar Augustus to institute a special taxing system so as to bring Joseph and Mary to the right place at the right time.

Think about that for a little bit. Caesar didn't know why he got this brainstorm as a new way of taxing people. All he knew was kind of like "a little bird" told him something. An idea popped into his head, 'You know what I could do? I'll bet there are people who are evading taxes. We need to crack down on taxes. What we need is this system where we make everybody go to their home city, the city to which their particular clan is attached. We will take a census, and in the process of this census, we will tax everyone.'

Generally, one of the main reasons for taking a census is to see that nobody evades their taxes. So Caesar Augustus came up with this great idea at this particular time. He may have thought it was just to raise more money. But, in reality, God stirred him up to do that to make sure that Joseph and Mary were at the right place at the right time. God worked through circumstances to bring about fulfillment of the prophecies that prophesied that Jesus would be born in Bethlehem.

The birth of the Messiah—think about the way that Christ's birth was announced. To begin with, the angels announced the birth to shepherds in a distant field. The result was that these shepherds journeyed into Bethlehem looking for the newborn Messiah. What do you think they did? They were stopping people all along the way and inquiring where they could find the newborn Messiah. You better believe this set the whole city of Bethlehem astir. Everything was in an uproar because of these shepherds. The angels didn't tell them exactly where it was; they had to hunt through the city, which means you get the whole city abuzz. Within the next couple of days, they probably had Jerusalem "abuzz," too.

I might mention in terms of the "manger"—most people misunderstand and the traditional pictures are generally incorrect. There have been a number of recent things that have shown, from archeology and archeological excavations, the way that houses were commonly constructed. It shows that the common way of construction involved the use of a big room and stalls for animals off this room. The barn and the house were, in that sense, built together, but not in the sense that the animals wandered through the living quarters of the people.

I have some pictures from a recent article in Biblical Archeological Review showing some things that they had excavated. It was a fairly compact arrangement where the center structure was the main room, the main courtyard. Approximately where the beams are, there would be several pillars, and there would be an upstairs. It was kind of an enclosed courtyard area down there where cooking fires would be and various things of this sort. Over in the courtyard where the pillars came up, a low wall—kind of a half wall—would be divided into stalls for animals. Generally, they would have cobblestones in there with cracks between them where the stalls could be washed down. The floor of the main courtyard would be clay. It was tamped down until it was solid, but it was basically a dirt floor. Then there would be stairs leading up to a second floor where there would be bedrooms over the stalls. In the winter when they would bring the animals in, the animals would be in their stalls that were divided off from the rest of the house. That served to actually provide heat for the house because it was closed in, and the animals were down there.

If you have ever been in a barn and there were cows in several of these stalls, you would realize what an amount of body heat they could give off in this small confined space. The heat would tend to rise, and that had a very heat-conserving effect for the bedrooms that were on the upper story. This is still done in the Middle East and portions of Europe where the houses and the barns are kind of built together. Most of the living quarters are upstairs, and they keep the animals downstairs. During the summer and most of the spring and fall, the areas where the animals were kept during the winter are cleaned out and are pretty well empty. They may put the animals in part of the time or bring them in to milk, but generally they are just kept there during the winter or when they needed to be fed.

It was a time when the animals were still abiding in the fields. Even by night they were not being bought in. This was a time when Bethlehem was heavily crowded, and as a result of that, these stalls in the lower part of the house were rented out to handle this great influx of people. Since the inns had been over crowded, private individuals were renting out a room or a place in their homes. This area downstairs which is attached to the dwelling (where the animals would have been kept in the winter) was part of what was being rented out. That, undoubtedly, was where Christ was born—in one of those circumstances.

The shepherds coming in and inquiring over the city ensured that the news was going to spread like wildfire among the common people of Bethlehem. A little while later, maybe a month or six weeks later, wise men from the East came. They came before Herod inquiring about the birth of the Messiah. Herod summoned the whole Sanhedrin. He was all upset. He didn't know what was going on; he demanded of them where the Messiah would be born, and they had to give testimony. The witness from the wise men, the Magi, was an announcement to the officials of the Jewish nation. The very top officials, the whole Sanhedrin and the Roman appointed king had a witness that the Messiah was born. The Sanhedrin had to acknowledge where.

Let's notice Matthew 15:24, "But He answered and said, 'I was not sent except to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.'" If you note here, this is the story of the Canaanite woman who came and wanted Christ to heal her daughter. Christ had not come to deal with the world as a whole. He said, 'I am not come to deal with the world as a whole.' He said, 'I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.' That certainly included the Jews. His ministry for those three and one-half years was primarily to the Jews.

What about the other ten tribes? They are the lost sheep of the house of Israel. How did they become aware of the birth of their Messiah? They did and there is a clear answer on that. Matthew talked about these wise men from the East. The East, as spoken of by Matthew, refers to the area east of the Euphrates River, which was ruled by the Parthian Empire in the last century. It was on the border of the Roman Empire. The lost ten tribes, the Israelites, were the rulers of the Parthian Empire, which had risen to power about two centuries earlier. The Magi were the leading wise men and counselors of the king. They saw a star and followed it (as prophesied in Numbers 24:17) until coming to Jerusalem. Because of their prominence, they had no trouble coming before King Herod and giving a witness to him and to the Jewish religious leaders. After their return to Parthia, it served as a witness to the ten tribes.

It is interesting. The tradition of the Eastern churches is that there were twelve Magi. The tradition of three, as we know it, originated in Rome, but ancient tradition and all Eastern tradition hold that there were twelve—one from each of the tribes of Israel. These wise men came to do homage to the Messiah on behalf of the ten tribes in exile and to serve as a witness to the religious leaders of the Jewish nation, as well as the Roman government of Judea. God set the stage for the proclamation of the Gospel of the Kingdom by evidencing that the Messiah had truly arrived.

This was added to by the testimony of elderly Simeon and elderly Anna in the temple. Remember the story when Jesus was brought to the temple to be presented to God? This was forty days after His birth according to the laws of purification as brought out in Leviticus 12.

In Luke 2:25-31, we are told at this point, "And behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon, and this man was just and devout, waiting for the Consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him. And it had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ. So he came by the Spirit into the temple. And when the parents brought in the Child Jesus, to do for Him according to the custom of the Law, he took Him up in his arms and blessed God and said: 'Lord, now You are letting Your servant depart in peace, according to Your word; For my eyes have seen Your salvation which You have prepared before the face of all peoples, a light to bring revelation to the Gentiles, and the glory of Your people Israel.'"

You can imagine a crowd gathered around here. Simeon is a very well-known elderly man and highly respected. This testimony spreads.

In vv. 36-37, there was Anna, a prophetess, a very elderly woman who had been married for seven years and had been widowed for eighty-four years. She was a very elderly woman who lived there in the temple complex. You can imagine that Anna had been well known for decades. Everyone who came to the temple was very familiar with Anna. God had given miraculous revelations to her.

Interestingly, it had probably been a hundred years since the Urim and the Thummin had worked for a high priest because they had so departed. At this point in time, God wasn't answering the high priest. The only one that we have record of that God was revealing anything supernaturally through was this elderly widow who lived in the temple by the name of Anna. The way God chose to work certainly was a witness and a condemnation to the hypocrisy of the Jewish religious leadership. You can believe she was well known; she was recognized. Everyone who had come into the temple for decades, Anna was there. She lived there in the temple complex for many, many years.

She came over and began to speak to Mary and Joseph. A crowd gathered around, as people do. Everybody wants to know what's going on, 'Hey, what's happening?' They see a bunch of people gathered over there, and they go stick their ear in to see what's happening. So this testimony was given.

God testified in many, many ways. God never leaves His people without a witness of the truth when the time comes for Him to intervene in human affairs. God makes it plain where He is working if we simply have the wit to look and to see.

We are going to go through the Gospels, and you can follow me in your Bible. I am going to primarily utilize a harmony of the Gospels. I will give you reference as to where I am going. The starting place, if we harmonize the Gospel accounts, is the Gospel of John because it starts in the beginning.

John 1:1-3, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was in the beginning with God. All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made." The universe and all things were created and came into being through His power and authority. Without Him, not even one thing came into existence which has been created.

Verses 4-5, "In Him was life and the life was the light of men. And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend or overcome it." Who was actually the One who did the creating recorded in the Old Testament? It is very apparent it was none other than Jesus Christ. The One who was in the beginning was the Word, the Spokesman. He was with God and He was God. We are given clear record of that.

Verse 14, "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." It is very apparent that the Word was none other than Jesus Christ. It was testified of by John the Baptist and others that the very One who did the creating recorded in the Old Testament was the One that we know as Jesus Christ. That is made plain in John 1:1-3. Now as we follow the account down, Luke gives the details.

Luke 1:5-6, "There was in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the division [KJV, "course"] of Abijah. His wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless." This is some information that we would often tend to read over. What important information are we able to derive from learning that "Zacharias was of the course of Abijah"? We are actually able to arrive at the approximate time of the birth of Christ as a result of that information.

Luke 1:5, "...of the course of Abijah..." When we go back to I Chronicles 24, we learn that David divided the priesthood into twenty-four courses or divisions. Since there became so many priests, they couldn't all get into the temple and carry out the functions. As the priesthood grew, there were too many of them. Generation after generation the family of Aaron increased. At first there were a few of them. It started out just being Aaron and his sons; after a while, there were dozens of them, scores of them and finally, hundreds of them. It got to where there needed to be some organization. There were too many of them to function all at once, so they were divided up in the time of David into twenty-four courses.

The course of Abijah, we are told in I Chronicles 24:10 was the eighth course. Each course served in the temple for two weeks a year. Twenty-four courses at two weeks each would be forty-eight. Forty-eight weeks were accounted for. Then we have the Festival weeks—the weeks surrounding the week of Passover/ Unleavened Bread season, the week around Pentecost, and the two weeks of the Feast of Tabernacles which fill in the whole year. Each course served in the temple for two weeks a year in addition to the three festival seasons.

They started with the first course, which began serving the first of the sacred year, two weeks prior to Passover. The second course worked the second week; then all of the courses would serve for a week for Passover and Days of Unleavened Bread. Then the third course would serve for a week, and so it would go.

From Luke 1:8-24, we can go through how many weeks into the year we were. I have a little chart here that brings it out. We are looking at the spring of 5 B.C. The first course began serving at noon on the Sabbath on the first day of Abib, the first day of the sacred month, which was coincidentally a Sabbath. They began serving at noon on that Sabbath that coincided with the first day of the sacred year, which was April 8th in 5 B.C. The second course began serving a week later at noon; then two weeks after that, all the courses served for Passover and Days of Unleavened Bread. Coming on through, we would track it on down as to when all of the courses would begin serving at Passover. The courses would serve all the way to the third week. Then the third course would begin its service at noon on the Sabbath, which would be the 22nd of Abib or April 29th. Then that's when the third course would end; the fourth course would begin at noon on the 29th of Abib. It would just continue down to where the eighth course would begin serving at noon on the Sabbath, June 3rd. They would serve all through that first week of June, and then the following week was the week of Pentecost when all of the courses would be serving. Zacharias would have been free to leave after noon on the Sabbath of June 12th. That brings us to the last half of June 5 B.C., which would be the probable two weeks during which Elizabeth conceived.

Remember the account where Zacharias the priest entered into the temple, saw a vision and the angel told him, "Your wife is going to conceive a child." Well, if we would track it through, we could lay out these courses. We would find that when his term in the temple service was over and he would have returned home, we have an approximate two-week period that we would allot and say that Elizabeth conceived fairly soon.

Then we track it through as to the months of her pregnancy. When Mary is told that she is with child of the Holy Spirit, that she has conceived Jesus, she is told also about Elizabeth.

Luke 1:36, "Now indeed, Elizabeth your relative has also conceived a son in her old age; and this is now the sixth month for her who was called barren." So this brings us, if we track it through, to December. The angel Gabriel was sent to the Virgin Mary. The power of the Holy Spirit enveloped Mary, and she was impregnated with Jesus Christ. Mary visited Elizabeth at the sixth month of Elizabeth's pregnancy. Her sixth month would end right around the end of December. We have an overlap of Mary's first month of pregnancy with Elizabeth's seventh month of pregnancy as being the same. What it comes down to, John the Baptist was six months older than Jesus Christ.

We can calculate from the time of the course of Abijah, the time that Zacharias was in the temple and the subsequent conception of his wife. We would come all the way down to March when John the Baptist was born; Jesus was born about six months later in the fall. We can track back to the time when the course of Abijah would have been serving in the temple, come forward nine months from that, and we're at John the Baptist's birth. We come forward six more months, and we're at the birth of Jesus Christ. It is kind of a technical, drawn-out thing, but it is a point. If we put the whole story together and go back to I Chronicles 24 to get the layout of it, we are able to clearly see the way that it would work out.

We are also shown from Luke 1:15 that John the Baptist was going to be under a Nazarite vow from his mother's womb.

Luke 1:15, "For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink. He will also be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb." John the Baptist was under a Nazarite vow. You can go back to Numbers 6 and read a little more about that.

At this point, I would like to call your attention to something interesting. Did you ever notice the extent to which Zacharias and Mary both reacted similarly when informed by Gabriel of the approaching birth of their sons? Yet they were dealt with in a different way. Let's notice.

Luke 1:5-10, "There was in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, of the division [KJV, "course"] of Abijah. His wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless. But they had no child, because Elizabeth was barren, and they were both well advanced in years. So it was, that while he was serving as priest before God in the order of his division, according to the custom of the priesthood, his lot fell to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord. And the whole multitude of the people was praying outside at the hour of incense.”

I think I have mentioned before that the burning of incense in the temple was symbolic of the prayers of the saints. Revelation 5:8 makes that plain. The Jews had adopted a custom of considering an hour of prayer at the time of the morning and evening sacrifice. They took one of the coals from the altar of sacrifice, took it inside the temple and put it in the golden censer. Then they put incense on these live coals taken from the altar of burnt sacrifice. This symbolized the prayers of the saints. The Jews had adopted this custom. When you read of “the hour of prayer” (v. 10 and Acts 3:1), that’s what you’re talking about—the hour of the morning and evening sacrifice. Well, people were outside praying and Zacharias was performing the ritual.

Luke 1:11-12, “Then an angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing on the right side of the altar of incense. And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.” You better believe it. Here he was walking in there with his incense going through his thing, and all of a sudden, he looked up. Out of nowhere was this great, powerful, brilliant, shining being totally clothed in white. You can imagine Zacharias was absolutely stunned. He had never seen anything like this before, and terror seized him.

Verses 13-19, “But the angel said to him, ‘Do not be afraid, Zacharias, for your prayer is heard; and your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you shall call his name John. And you will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth. For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink. He will be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother’s womb. And he will turn many of the children of Israel to the Lord their God. He [John] will go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.’ And Zacharias said to the angel, ‘How shall I know this? For I am an old man and my wife is well advanced in years.’ And the angel answered and said to him, ‘I am Gabriel, who stands in the presence of God, and was sent to speak to you and bring you these glad tidings.’”

The angel asked, ‘What do you mean, how are you going to know if that’s true? I am Gabriel, who do you think I am? Do you just normally run into somebody standing in there by the incense altar in white shining brilliance?’

Verse 19, “...‘I am Gabriel who stands in the presence of God and was sent to you and bring you these glad tidings.’” Gabriel said, ‘You want a sign? I am going to give you a sign. You are going to be struck dumb.’

Verse 20, “‘But behold, you will be mute and not able to speak until the day these things take place, because you did not believe my words which will be fulfilled in their own time.’”

Gabriel said, ‘I’ll give you a sign, all right. You won’t be able to say anything until all of this is over with. That will be sign enough for you.’

Verse 21, “And the people waited for Zacharias, and marveled that he lingered so long in the temple.” All the people outside were expecting Zacharias; after a while, this was dragging on, and people began wondering what happened.

Verses 22-24, “But when he came out, he could not speak to them; and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple, for he beckoned to them and remained speechless. And so it was, as soon as the days of his service were completed, that he departed to his own house. Now after those days his wife Elizabeth conceived; and she hid herself five months....”

Then we are told, v. 26, “Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent by God to a city of Galilee named Nazareth,” So Gabriel returns.

Verses 27-29, “to a virgin betrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David. The virgin’s name was Mary. And having come in, the angel said to her, ‘Rejoice, highly favored one, the Lord is with you; blessed are you among women!’ But when she saw him, she was troubled [awestruck] at his saying, and considered what manner of greeting this was.”

Again, the same reaction—just absolutely shocked and dumbfounded. What is this!

Verses 30-34, “The angel said to her, ‘Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God. And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bring forth a Son, and shall call His name Jesus. He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David. And He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of His kingdom there will be no end.’ Then Mary said to the angel, ‘How can this be, since I do not know a man?’”

Mary said, ‘I am a virgin.’ Now again, she asked the question just as Zacharias did, ‘How do I know this is going to happen? How can this be? I am an old man, and my wife is an old woman.’ The angel dealt with Zacharias a little more abruptly. ‘I will give you a sign.’ Mary asked, ‘How can this be? There must be some mistake here; I am a virgin.’ The angel then explained.

Verses 35-38, “And the angel answered and said to her, ‘The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Highest will overshadow you; therefore, also that Holy One who is to be born will be called the Son of God. Now indeed, Elizabeth your relative has also conceived a son in her old age; and this is now the sixth month for her who was called barren. For with God nothing will be impossible.’ Then Mary said, ‘Behold the maidservant of the Lord! Let it be to me according to your word.’ And the angel departed from her.”

I think it is interesting in reading the account to just understand there was a difference in the way God dealt with an elderly priest whom God expected to know a little better, to exercise a little more faith and not to question in that way. God dealt with him a little more abruptly because he should have known better than to ask a question like that. Here was Mary, a young girl of age nineteen or twenty; the angel dealt with her very patiently and explained everything to her in more detail. I think that one of the points we get from this is that God does not always deal with everyone exactly the same way. God expects a little more of some than others. He expected a greater level of understanding from an elderly priest than He did from a young girl who was maybe nineteen or twenty years old. So, to one He gave a little more detailed explanation; the other one, He dealt with a little more abruptly. Gabriel said, ‘Zacharias you shouldn’t have asked a question like—“how shall I know this?” You shouldn’t have expressed that kind of doubt. You’ve been around long enough Zacharias that you should have known that, if I say something that is the way it is. Where are all these questions coming from?’

Genealogy of Jesus Christ: Luke 3:23-38 and Matthew 1:1-17.

Now let’s take note of the genealogies given in Luke 3 and Matthew 1. The genealogies are different. Luke gives the natural genealogy. He gives the genealogy of Mary and traces it all the way back to Adam. Matthew gives the legal genealogy, which would be the genealogy of Joseph. Joseph was the legal father (though not the literal father), and he traces it back to Abraham, the one to whom the promises were made.

It is made plain if you go through Matthew’s account.

Matthew 1:1-3, “The book of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, the Son of David, the son of Abraham. Abraham who was the father of Isaac, and Isaac the father of Jacob, and Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers, and Judah the father of Pharez and Zerah by Tamar....” It goes right on down.

Luke 3:23, “Now Jesus Himself began His ministry at about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph, the son of Heli.” If you will notice, the word “son” is in italics. Matthew 1 is worded differently, “so and so” begat “so and so.” It is a literal description of somebody born to somebody, and somebody else born to them, and somebody else born to them. It is a literal step-by-step genealogy, one after another.

Here in Luke 3, we run up against different names. In reality, Joseph was simply the son-in-law of Heli. There is no evidence that Heli had any sons. We know that he had several daughters. Salome, the wife of Zebedee, the mother of James and John, was a sister to Mary and a daughter of Heli. The wife of Alphaeus was another sister. James, the son of Alphaeus was one of the apostles. One thing that a lot of people don’t realize is several of the apostles were first cousins to Jesus. These were people who had connections in that way.

So, if Mary only had sisters, when she married, of course, it would be someone in her tribe. She was of the tribe of Judah. She married in the tribe of Judah, and her husband would have been accounted as though he were a son and would have inherited property from her father.

You can go back to the book of Numbers (Numbers 27:1-7; 36:6-7) and notice the legal requirements in terms of property inheritance. Where there were no sons, the daughters inherited as though they were sons. If they married within the tribe, in effect, their husband equated with a son, legally. So Luke uses the term “Joseph of Heli” as “son,” as it is supplied in italics, but it could just as clearly have been “son-in-law,” which is really the sense of it.

Luke traces the genealogy differently than Matthew. Luke traces it back through the natural genealogy through Mary’s family; Matthew traces the legal genealogy through Joseph’s family.

Christ had claim to the throne of David in both directions. He was a descendant of David from both of these. What did the angel tell Mary concerning the destiny of the Son that she was to bear? In Luke 1, we noticed here a few moments ago that the angel told Mary that she would bear the Messiah who would inherit the throne of David and rule over an everlasting Kingdom. This child is going to be called the Son of God.

Luke 1:32-33, “He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David. And He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of His kingdom there will be no end.” This very clearly shows that Jesus was born to be a King and to sit on a literal throne.

Now what was the mission of John the Baptist? That’s made plain here.

Luke shows in Luke 1:17, “He [John] will also go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.”

We go on a little further; John was born.

Luke 1:63-64, “And he asked for a writing tablet, and wrote, saying, ‘His name is John.’ And they all marveled. Immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue loosed, and he spoke, praising God.”

Verses 68-75, “Blessed is the Lord God of Israel, for He has visited and redeemed His people, and has raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of David, as He spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets, who have been since the world began, that we should be saved from our enemies and from the hand of all who hate us, to perform the mercy promised to our fathers and to remember His holy covenant, the oath which He swore to our father Abraham: to grant us that we, being delivered from the hand of our enemies, might serve Him without fear, in holiness and righteousness before Him all the days of our life.”

Zacharias was speaking to John.

Verses 76-80, “And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Highest; for you will go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways, to give knowledge of salvation to His people by the remission of their sins, through the tender mercy of our God, with which the Dayspring from on high has visited us; to give light to those who sit in darkness and the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.’ So the child grew and became strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his manifestation to Israel.”

We have the description of what God was going to do through John the Baptist. John was a cousin of Jesus. He was a little more distant cousin of Jesus. He would have been a second cousin. His mother Elizabeth and Mary were first cousins.

Undoubtedly, since Elizabeth was described as a daughter of Aaron, she was of the priestly line. Mary’s mother was, undoubtedly, a sister to either Elizabeth’s mother or father. In other words, Mary’s mother was of the priestly family of Levi and Aaron and married Heli who was of the royal line of David. Mary, on her mother’s side, traced her genealogy back through Aaron and Levi; on her father’s side, back to David. That’s why she and Elizabeth were cousins even though Elizabeth was of the priestly line. John the Baptist and Jesus would have been related; their mothers would have been first cousins. John was raised up to give a message.

Again, notice how God prepared a witness. You can imagine how word of this big event that occurred in the temple—the priest having seen a vision—you can imagine how that spread. Because this occurred right around the time of Pentecost, you had people there from all over. Word like this must have spread like wildfire. This would have been big news. It set the stage.

We can clearly see that the wise men did not come at the time of Christ’s birth.

Matthew 2 shows the account of the coming of the wise men.

Matthew 2:11 makes it plain that Mary and Joseph were already abiding in a house by the time they arrived, “...when they came into the house...”

In v. 16, Herod was not taking any chances. When he realized that the wise men had not come back and told him where the child was, he sent word out to put to death all the boys in Bethlehem and surrounding areas who were two years old and younger. This was according to the time in which he had diligently inquired of the wise men, based on the time that the Magi had seen the star. The star hadn’t appeared when Jesus was born. It had appeared prior to that time and brought them in that direction. The star, undoubtedly, was an angel.

People talk about “star” or “comet.” Have you ever seen a comet go and stand over somebody’s house? You see this thing up there? It takes weeks and months to go across the sky and it finally stops over the top of somebody’s house—one that appears and disappears. You’ve never seen a comet like that, have you? A star, as we think of a star, how can you tell if that star is on top of somebody’s house? You go out and look up, and say, ‘Boy, that star is right above this building.’ If you were somewhere else, you’d look up and think, ‘That star is right above that building.’ How could you tell? Obviously, it was an angel. All they had to be was just a slight distance away and could see a bright shining light—and they would follow.

Stars are used as symbols of angels. You can read that in Revelation 12:4. This angel who manifested himself that way, all they could see was the bright light, but it was close and vivid enough that they could tell where it was and where it was standing over. That was the way in which they were led.

Herod realized that he had been “had.” He didn’t want to go worship the Messiah, ‘Oh, go find Him and come back and tell me where He is so I, too, can go and worship Him.’ Herod didn’t want to go and worship anything. He didn’t worship anything but himself.

Josephus tells us about Herod’s death. Herod had a very gruesome death. I won’t even go into all the details, but it was a very gory disease in which God really visited retribution on him. A type of maggot consumed him; just a very gory, gruesome death consumed him. Josephus records how Herod died.

Joseph and family returns to Nazareth:

Matthew 2:23 and Luke 2:39.

Where did Jesus grow up? Matthew 2:23 makes it plain that He grew up in Nazareth and was called a Nazarene—not a Nazarite, as of the Nazarite vow. Christ wasn’t a Nazarite. He was a Nazarene and grew up in Nazareth, a little village in Galilee.

There is proof that the Being who dealt with men in the Old Testament in a visible manner (in other words, talked with Adam, walked with Enoch, ate with Abraham, wrestled with Jacob) was not the Father. That’s made plain in John 1.

John 1:18, “No one has seen God at any time. The only begotten Son who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him.” This shows very clearly that no one has ever seen the Father at any time. Any time in the Old Testament when you read of God manifesting Himself, it had to have been the One that became Jesus Christ because no one has seen the Father at any time. The Father has not manifested Himself. Jesus came to reveal the Father. Jesus Christ was the Word, the Spokesman and the One who dealt with man.

Ministry of John the Baptist: John 1:6-18, Luke 3:1-6, Matthew 3:1-4 and Mark 1:1-3.

As we read these parallel accounts, all of them start out with the story of John the Baptist, and how John the Baptist came for a witness and a testimony.

John tells us in John 1:6-8, “There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. This man came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all through him might believe. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.”

Luke adds in the detail, Luke 3:1, “Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea and the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene.”

Scholars have calculated the fifteenth year of Tiberius Caesar in several different ways. The method of reckoning that Luke used to record is not clearly indicated from the context. But throughout all of his account, Luke uses the Jewish method of reckoning time and events. It would be consistent for him to use the Jewish method of reckoning in this case—using a spring-to-spring calculation.

It was Biblical for the priests to begin their priesthood at the beginning of age thirty. This is found in Numbers 4:3 as well as v. 30. It is a historical fact that the priesthood under Moses began to function in the first month of the second year out of Egypt, when the tabernacle was set up. This was the only method of reckoning used by priests. Since John the Baptist was the son of a priest, he would have begun his ministry when he became thirty years of age. This means he would have had to begin his ministry no later than the time of Passover, 27 A.D. This would have given him at least a six-month ministry preparing the way for the Lord. He would have continued until just before the Feast of Pentecost in 28 A.D., at which time he was cast into prison.

This is the time when, Luke 3:2, “...the word of the Lord came to John, the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.”

In v. 3, we are told, “And he went into all the region around the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance for the remission of sins.”

There is one thing I would like to point out, to illustrate. The Jews understood and had a concept of what we term “baptism.” They had what they termed “mikvah,” which had reference to immersion in water, to the ritual purifications and washings. That was what a woman went through, the rites of purification; that’s what the priests went through prior to entering into the temple. It was gone through at certain times, any time someone was ceremonially unclean.

Now when a Jewish baby boy was born, the baby was circumcised and was then considered an heir of the promises, but if a Gentile converted to Judaism, there was something else that was added. He not only had to undergo circumcision, but he had to undergo the “mikvah”—the ritual washing, the ritual immersion, to purify him, in a sense, from the uncleanness. The Jews viewed themselves inherently clean because they were the sons of Abraham. But everybody else was unclean. They were familiar with immersion, but they looked upon it as something that was necessary for Gentiles if they became ceremonially defiled. They felt, that for them, it was not an inherent need because they were, in a sense, born clean.

John’s message really shook them to their socks. John’s message was the fact that they were unclean, too. You have to be baptized. You have to have your sins washed away. That had never dawned on them before. They thought they were inherently “one up” on everybody else. All they needed was circumcision (the sign of the Covenant), and they were inherently clean. John came preaching the baptism of repentance, performing, in a sense, this priestly ritual, but saying, ‘You Jews, you Pharisees, you Sadducees—you’re just as dirty. You’re just as polluted; you’re just as much sinners as any Gentile that you have ever converted or immersed. You better repent and be baptized or you’re not going to be forgiven.’

This is the context in which John preached baptism. People wonder where he came up with baptism. It was an adaptation of something. The Jews had never understood it as having applied to them. They viewed everybody else as having a problem, but they were okay. John broke the news to them that, no, they weren’t. That was news to them. They had thought they were clean, but John made it plain that they weren’t.

John’s baptism to repentance: Matthew 3:5-12, Mark 1:4-8 and Luke 3:7-18.

When the religious leaders came to John for baptism, it’s recorded in Matthew 3:6-7 that John was baptizing those who came to him acknowledging and confessing their sins. But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said:

Matthew 3:7, “...‘Brood of vipers!’ [You bunch of snakes. Now the snake was a symbol of the devil, so it was not a very complimentary term.] Who has warned you to flee from the wrath to come?’” He really kind of took the hide off of them. ‘Look, which rock did you slither out from under? Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? You “snake in the grass”!’

Verse 8 states that if you want to be baptized, go and produce evidence worthy of repentance. Prove a change in your attitude and your life; go and bring forth fruits worthy for repentance. Let me see some changes; let me see you shape up. Change as an evidence that you are really repentant if you want to be baptized.

The only reason they wanted to “get on the bandwagon” was because everybody acknowledged John as a prophet. You can imagine—the event that had occurred at the time of John’s birth was known. Everybody in Jerusalem, everybody who was there, had been aware of these things when John had been born. They had been in expectation of this, and when he made this appearance, it really created a stir.

Notice briefly a couple of other things. Notice John’s advice to soldiers and to tax collectors. People came to John when they wanted to be baptized, and they asked him what to do.

In Luke 3:12, the tax collectors said, “...‘Teacher, what shall we do?’” What is the evidence of repentance?

John told them in v. 14, “...‘Collect nothing above what’s been appointed to you.’” ‘Be honest. You can collect taxes, but you need to be honest, be scrupulously honest. Don’t cheat people.’

Soldiers asked him in v. 14, “...‘And what shall we do?’....” The Roman army didn’t have conscientious objector status; you were a soldier. John told the soldiers, all right, “...‘Do violence to no man’” (KJV). Now that’s a difficult order for a soldier because you may find yourself in a situation that requires faith. If you’re not going to do violence to any man, you may find yourself in a situation where you are going to get killed because you’re brought out there and told to fight. John told them, ‘If you are going to repent, then you have to do violence to no man. You don’t falsely accuse anyone; you don’t misuse your status. You be satisfied with your wages. You make the best of it; treat people fairly, and do violence to no one.’

Verse 16, “John answered, saying to them all, ‘I indeed baptize you with water; but One mightier than I is coming, whose sandal strap I am not worthy to loose. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire.’” John said he baptized with water, but One mightier than he was coming who was going to baptize in a different way, which was to baptize with the Holy Spirit.

Christ's baptism: Matthew 3:13-17, Mark 1:9-11, Luke 3:21-23 and John 1:28-33.

As we continue the account, we find in Luke 3:21 that Jesus came to be baptized at the beginning of His ministry.

Verse 23, He was baptized at thirty years of age, which would have been in the fall of 27 A.D. John had begun his ministry in the spring of 27 A.D. Jesus appeared there in the fall of 27 A.D., and there was a miraculous display.

Luke 3:22 mentions it, "And the Holy Spirit descended in bodily form like a dove upon Him, and a voice came from heaven which said, 'You are My beloved Son; in You I am well pleased.'" This was a very miraculous event to point out the uniqueness of this.

The first miracle that Christ worked is clearly shown and referred to in John 2:1-11, the turning of water into wine.

Christ tempted by the devil: Matthew 4:1-11, Mark 1:12-13 and Luke 4:1-13.

What Jesus did right after His baptism, prior to the formal beginning of His ministry, is recorded in greatest detail in Matthew 4.

Matthew 4:1-2, "Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. And when He had fasted forty days and forty nights, afterwards He was hungry." This was necessary before He could begin His proclamation of the Gospel message because before He could begin announcing the good news of the Kingdom of God, He had to qualify to be King over that Kingdom by overcoming Satan. Adam, who had the first opportunity to rule the world, yielded to Satan and accepted his government. Jesus Christ showed that He would not yield to Satan, but would be totally yielded to God. He would resist and overcome Satan by the power of God.

These events occurred between the fall of 27 A.D. when Jesus made His first public appearance and the spring of 28 A.D. when He came into the temple for the first cleansing of the temple.

I might comment on a couple of things. One of the things made plain in John 1 is that many of the disciples that Jesus later dealt with were previously disciples of John the Baptist. Peter and Andrew were John the Baptist's disciples.

John 1:35-42, "Again the next day John was standing with two of his disciples and looking at Jesus walking and he said, 'Behold, the Lamb of God.' The two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus. Then Jesus turned, and seeing them following, said to them, 'What do you seek?' They said to Him, 'Rabbi' (which is to say, when translated, Teacher), 'where are You staying?' He said to them, 'Come and see.' They came and saw where He was staying, and remained with Him that day (now it was about the tenth hour). One of the two who heard John speak, and followed Him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. He first found his own brother Simon, and said to him, 'We have found the Messiah (which is translated, the Christ). And he brought him to Jesus....'"

You get this account of those that Jesus began to deal with.

We will go through the calling of the apostles in greater detail at a later time. Some of this material we will come back and summarize from a little different standpoint, but I think this gets us started.

There is a lot that is packed into the Gospel accounts. I think, hopefully, over the course of the next few Bible studies, we will come to more clearly see the real impact of some of these things—many of which we have read before. But I think as we really study into them, we will find that God has packed a lot into the Gospel accounts.

We will pick up from there next time and perhaps be able to summarize a few more comments on a little bit of what we covered this evening. I have some questions for the next Bible study, which will primarily concentrate on the Sermon on the Mount and related material. With that, we will conclude this evening.

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 4:12—9:17; Mark 1:14—2:22; Luke 4:14—5:39; John 2:13—4:54

This evening we are continuing our survey of the Gospels and Acts. We are near the beginning portion of that. What we are covering this evening has to do with the events in the life of Christ from the time of the Passover of 28 A.D. until the Passover of 29 A.D.

Christ began His public ministry in the fall of 27 A.D., the time of His baptism by John the Baptist. John was preaching by the River Jordan. Jesus appeared there, was baptized by John and was pointed out by John to the multitudes.

Shortly thereafter, Jesus and some of His disciples left. They went back to Cana of Galilee where His first public miracle was performed—the turning of the water into wine at the wedding feast. A short time after (we are not told exactly how long) Christ left and went into the wilderness. He was gone for a considerable period of time. He spent forty days in fasting and prayer. At the end of that time, He was tempted by Satan the devil. Remember the account of the temptation that occurred? It was very shortly after that incident, as we approach the beginning of the spring of 28 A.D., where we pick up the story this evening.

Jesus publicly began His ministry by suddenly appearing in the temple in Jerusalem at the time of the Passover season of 28 A.D. The first six months of His ministry were used for private teaching. During that time, He was baptized and made initial contact with His disciples. I might bring out that some of Christ's disciples had known Him and He had known them going all the way back to childhood because, in several cases, they were actually cousins of His.

It is made plain, for instance, that James and John (who were brothers) were the sons of Zebedee and Salome. Salome was the sister of Mary, the mother of Jesus. So, we find that James and John were first cousins of Jesus. There is another mentioned, James, the son of Alphaeus. It is mentioned that his mother, as well, was a sister of Mary, the mother of Jesus. So there were several of the disciples that He had, undoubtedly, known all the way back to childhood.

There were others that He had previously had contact with. Andrew (Peter's brother) and several others had been with John the Baptist. John the Baptist had accumulated quite a number of disciples. A "disciple" is simply "a learner, a student, someone who is seeking to learn the lessons that someone else is teaching." We are given the example, for instance, that Andrew, the brother of Peter, was there with John the Baptist. He had spent at least a certain amount of time there. John the Baptist pointed out Jesus as the Messiah to Andrew and acknowledged Him as such when He came to be baptized.

What we have, as we will find a little bit later, is Jesus coming where Peter and Andrew were and saying, "Come and follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." This was not an occasion such as is portrayed in one of the movies, where He comes by and kind of transfixes these two fellows with this hypnotic stare. Then they get this kind of blank look on their faces, drop their nets and just kind of walk out as though they were hypnotized. That was not the situation at all.

These were people who had known Him, had known of Him, were familiar with the ministry of John the Baptist and had some initial contact with Him. Some of those who were there with John the Baptist followed Him back to Cana of Galilee. Some saw that miracle of turning water into wine and returned to their business. They had their own lives; they had their own businesses. For the most part, they were self-employed. They had taken off some time and had spent time there listening to John the Baptist. They had spent some time there as a disciple of his.

There came a point, right here at the beginning of this material that we are going to go through this evening, where Jesus told some of them, 'I want you to come and follow Me full time.' They knew who He was and believed that He was the Messiah. They didn't fully understand the role of the Messiah. They were expecting that He would restore the Kingdom to Israel right away. The disciples came out of a variety of backgrounds.

As we pick up the story this evening, Jesus begins His public ministry during the Feast of Unleavened Bread of 28 A.D. We find that immediately prior to Passover, Jesus came to Jerusalem and He showed up at the temple. Now what is the temple called in Scripture? How did Jesus refer to the temple? He referred to it in John 2:16 as "His Father's house."

What do you do with your house immediately prior to Passover and the Days of Unleavened Bread? You clean it up, don't you? What did He do to His Father's house right before Passover? He cleaned it up; He unleavened it in the spiritual sense. There is a reason as to why Jesus began His ministry this way.

John 2:13-16, "Now the Jews' Passover was near, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. And He found in the temple those who were selling oxen and sheep and doves, and the money-changers stationed around. Then after making a scourge of cords, He drove out every one of them from the temple, including the sheep and the oxen; He poured out the coins and threw over the tables of the money-changers. And He said to those who were selling the doves, 'Take these things out of here! Do not make the house of My Father a house a house of merchandise!'"

Let me call your attention to a prophecy in the book of Malachi.

Malachi 3:1-2, "'Behold, I send My messenger, and he [John the Baptist] will prepare the way before Me. And the Lord, whom you seek, will suddenly come to His temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, in whom you delight. Behold, He is coming,' says the Lord of hosts. 'But who can endure the day of His coming? And who can stand when He appears? For He is like a refiner's fire and like Fullers' soap.'"

You know what refiner's fire and Fullers' soap do, don't you? A refiner's fire is what you use to refine metal so you can skim off the dross. A fullers' soap will take the dirt, the hide and anything else off of you. It's kind of like "Eagle Eye." Some of you remember old "Eagle Eye" soap. That's about what you are looking at. Pretty strong stuff! It will take anything out—and that's what it says Christ's coming was like. He was going to show up and He was going to clean house—and that's what we find here.

Some of those in the temple had come up with a real gimmick to make a little money on the side. If you came to the temple, you were supposed to offer a sacrifice. That's why the people would come there to the temple. They would offer sheep, goats, doves and various things. Where were you going to get them? If you didn't live right there in Jerusalem, you would have to buy them. You weren't going to drive your sheep hundreds of miles from some far away place. Jews were coming there from all over making pilgrimages. Plus, you not only had to offer the animal, but the animal that you offered had to be approved by the priest as being without spot or blemish—a perfect specimen.

Some had come up with the idea that there was a lot of money to be made in selling these animals for sacrifice. What they did was sublet the concession to sell animals there in the temple. In fact, 'if you don't buy one of my animals, if we look long and hard enough, we can find some kind of spot or blemish on yours. We can find something wrong with it, and it won't do. That one has dirt under its hoof; you can't offer that one. You have to get one of these over here.'

They had a real gimmick going. They had turned it into a real moneymaking thing. You had to buy the animal from them. And you can bet their prices were higher than what you'd pay out of town. Not only that, but they had come up with another deal. They said, 'This money people come in here to spend, that's pagan money. It has pagan inscriptions; it has the picture of the Roman emperor who proclaims himself as god [it was just regular money of the Roman Empire]. Being that's pagan money, we can't put that pagan money into the temple treasury. Tell you what we are going to do; we are going to have some money exchange. We are going to have our own money. This will be good, righteous money. And you can only spend it right here in the temple. Now, we will sell you our money that you can put into the temple treasury, and you can buy these sheep and goats in here. If you want to make an offering, you have to use our money; we won't accept this pagan Roman money. You give it to me and I will exchange it.'

They considered the money too pagan to put into the temple treasury, but not too pagan to put into their pocket. They really had a deal going—a real moneymaking operation—and some of the priests were getting a "rake" of it. They were subletting all this stuff. All of it was contrary to the law, but after all, who was enforcing the law? They were! There's nothing new under the sun. We also have seen plenty of approaches by those who were supposed to be enforcing the law around here over the years.

This was the situation: Jesus showed up and cleaned house. 'Get this stuff out of here!'

Matthew 21:13, "It is written, 'My Father's house is supposed to be a house of prayer for all nations, but you've made it a den of thieves.'" Tables were flying, coins went scattering and sheep and goats started taking off for the gate. Jesus came here and He did this—and it really stirred things up. They said, 'Who do You think

You are, doing this?’ If you will notice, nobody tried to arrest Him.

In fact, in just a matter of a few days later, in John 3:1-2, “There was a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews. He came to Jesus by night and said to Him, ‘Rabbi [teacher] we realize and can tell You are a teacher come from God [a teacher sent by God], because no one is capable of doing these miracles which You are doing, unless God be with Him.’”

Jesus came and He performed certain miracles. Very clearly, God’s stamp of approval was there. The religious leaders did not like it. They resented it, but they knew that He was not just somebody that showed up on His own authority. They considered Him at the least a teacher from God or a prophet because of the miracles that He worked.

Verse 3, “Jesus answered and said to him [Nicodemus], ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, except a man is born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God.’” Nicodemus was very puzzled by this. He thought this was a very unusual way to open a conversation. He said, ‘That doesn’t make sense.’

Verse 4, “Nicodemus asked Him, ‘How can it be possible for a man to be born when he is old? Is he able to enter a second time into the womb of his mother, and be born?’”

Nicodemus understood the meaning of the term “born again” and because he understood the meaning of the words, he scratched his head and he said, ‘It doesn’t make any sense.’

Jesus then went on to explain, v. 6, “‘That which has been born of the flesh is flesh; but that which has been born of the Spirit, is spirit.’”

Verse 5, “‘...except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God!’” What are we told in I Corinthians 15:50? Paul tells us that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.

In v. 53, he says this mortal will put on immortality.

John 3:6, “‘That which has been born of the flesh is flesh...’” Every one of us has been born of the flesh and we are flesh. If you don’t think so, just take the hatpin test. Stick your finger and see if you don’t bleed or if you don’t hurt. You’re flesh! You and I right now are flesh and blood. We have been born of the flesh.

In I Corinthians 15:50, Paul explains, “‘...flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.’” The Kingdom of God is eternal; it is going to last forever. What good is something that is going to last forever do for me in the state I am right now? I am going to get old, deteriorate and I am going to die. A few years will go by and I will be gone, and this eternal inheritance will still be there. The only way that an eternal inheritance is going to do us any good is if we are transformed from flesh and blood that deteriorates, decays, grows old and eventually dies. We must be transformed from mortal to immortal. That’s what Paul explained in I Corinthians 15.

I Corinthians 15:51-52, “Behold, I tell you a mystery: We shall not all sleep [we’re not all going to die because Christ is going to come back when some are still living], but we shall all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye....”

Paul says when Christ descends, that is all going to take place.

I Thessalonians 4:16-17, “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of an archangel, and with the trumpet of God. And the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And thus we shall always be with the Lord.” Try rising up right now and see how far you rise. You may stand up out of your chair, but that’s about as far as you get. You can jump and you come right back down. You clear the ground a few inches and that will be it. But that’s not going to be the state of things when we are changed, when we are transformed.

John 3:6, “‘That which has been born of the flesh is flesh, that which has been born of the Spirit is spirit.’” Jesus explained that to Nicodemus.

John 3:3, “‘...except a man is born again he cannot enter the Kingdom of God.’”

The miracles showed that Jesus was sent from God, and even the Pharisees recognized that. The miracles were a sign that God used to authenticate the genuineness of Jesus. Jesus went on and explained the matter of being born again. It’s not simply an emotion or feeling. It’s a rebirth, a birth into the spiritual realm just as we have been born into the physical realm. If we are going to inherit eternal life in the Kingdom of God, we are going to have to be born again, born a second time, not of a human mother, not into the physical realm of a physical flesh and blood human being, but born again—born of the Spirit as a born again son of God.

Notice a little bit later what Jesus taught about going to heaven.

John 3:12-13, “‘If I tell you earthly things and you don’t believe, how will you believe if I tell you heavenly things? No man has ascended up to heaven, (except He who came down out of heaven, the Son of man who is in heaven).” John added that latter part as a parenthetical statement. John is, of course, writing the account maybe sixty years after it occurred. John adds in parenthetically, “except the One that came down from heaven, even the Son of man who is in heaven.” In other words, Jesus Christ came down from heaven and has ascended up to heaven and He is up there right now. John added that in to modify Christ’s statement because Jesus said, “No man has ascended to heaven.” That’s true, except, obviously, for Jesus Himself who came down from heaven and is right now in heaven. People talk about “when we all get to heaven.” According to John 3:13, no man has ascended up to heaven. Peter explained a little later in Acts 2:29, 34 that David wasn’t in heaven and in Acts 13:22, David was a man after God’s own heart. In fact, Jesus said, “no man has ascended up to heaven,” and it shows how opposite what most people think is in the Bible and what it really says. People think they get their religion out of the Bible, and when they start reading the Bible, what the Bible says is a lot different than what most people think it says. They think, ‘If the Bible says anything, it certainly says, “If you are good, you will go to heaven.”’

In John 2 and 3, Jesus’ message at that time was the message about Passover and the Days of Unleavened Bread. What did Jesus teach? The first thing He did was clean out the temple. He was teaching by example what it means to unleaven—to clean out, to get rid of sin, to get rid of that which pollutes or taints.

Then in John 3:16, He proceeded and He began to talk about how, “...God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life.” Isn’t that the message of Passover? Jesus expounded, at that season, the message surrounding Passover.

Then, v. 22, we find that Jesus Himself left Jerusalem; he came into the area of Judea outside Jerusalem and stayed there baptizing. His disciples were the ones actually baptizing; this is made plain a little bit later.

John 4:1-2, “Therefore, when the Lord realized the Pharisees had heard that Jesus was making and baptizing more disciples than John, (although, in fact, Jesus Himself was not baptizing, but His disciples were).” Jesus did not personally baptize anyone. He had His disciples do that, I think, for obvious reasons. What would be the tendency of people later on? If they had been baptized by Jesus, personally, the tendency would be to feel like, ‘My baptism is obviously better than yours because Jesus Himself baptized me, and you were only baptized by one of the disciples. Mine is kind of “one step up”.’

There were things He simply chose not to personally do. Since He couldn’t do it for everyone, He just had His disciples do it. It does express it in John 3:22 as though He was baptizing, but John 4:2 explains technically He was not personally doing it—His disciples were doing it. That shows that Christ’s disciples’ baptisms were counted as though He Himself were doing it. In other words, when we come to those who are Christ’s representatives, it is Christ working through them. Christ was working through the disciples, through His representatives; it was as though He Himself was doing it, even though He was not literally, physically present and doing so.

We might notice as we come down through scripture that this was prior to John’s being cast into prison.

John 4:3, “Then He left Judea and went again into Galilee.” If you look at a map, Judea is in the south; Samaria is in the middle and Galilee is at the top. Galilee is the area where Jesus grew up. It’s where the city of Nazareth is located, as well as the city of Capernaum and others.

There were two ways of going to Galilee. The Jews normally took the long way and went around because they did not like to go through Samaria. The Jews really looked down on the Samaritans in a “big way.” We discussed some things about the Samaritans at the end of our survey of the Old Testament; you can understand why there was a lot of antagonism. The Jews really looked down on the Samaritans as just “lower than dirt.” They didn’t want to associate with them, talk with them or even walk through their country if they could help it. But Jesus was not that way.

Verse 4, “But it was necessary for Him to pass through Samaria.” It was necessary for Him to pass through Samaria because He was on His way back to Galilee, and He wanted to get there. We are going to see that He was on His way back and wanted to be back in Nazareth in time for the day of Pentecost, for the services there. It was immediately prior to Pentecost as He came through Samaria. This was the most direct route. It only took a few days to go that way.

They came through and they came to the city of Sychar. Jacob’s well was located there (v. 5).

Verses 7-8, “A woman then came out of Samaria to draw water, and Jesus said to her, ‘Give Me a drink.’ Because the disciples had gone away into the city so they might purchase some food.” The Samaritan woman was shocked.

Verse 9, “Therefore the Samaritan woman said to Him, ‘Why do you, being a Jew, ask me, a Samaritan woman, to give you a drink? Because the Jews have nothing whatsoever to do with the Samaritans.’” ‘Hey, Jews don’t want anything to do with Samaritans.’ She was really surprised that He would ask her to do Him a favor—‘please give Me a drink of water.’

Jesus continued and said, v. 10, “...‘If you knew the gift of God and Who it is that says to you, ‘Give Me a drink;’ you would have asked Him to give you a drink, and He would have given you living water!’” That didn’t make a whole lot of sense to her.

Verse 11, “The woman said to Him, ‘You have nothing with which to draw out the water, and the well is deep; where then did You get the living water!’” ‘What is this living water? You don’t have anything to draw with. The well is deep. How are you going to get any water?’

Jesus continued, vv. 13-14, and He began to expound to her about the Holy Spirit, which is the rivers of living water to which He had made reference.

And then He told her in v. 16, “...‘Go, call your husband, and come here.’”

Verses 17-18, “The woman answered and said, ‘I have no husband.’ Jesus said to her, ‘You have well said, “I have no husband,” for you have had five husbands, and the one who you now have is not your husband; in that you spoke truly.’” She kind of stammered around a little bit and said, ‘Well, you see, I am not married.’ Jesus smiled and said ‘You’re right; you are not. You have had five husbands and the one you are living with now is not your husband; so you have said the truth, you are not married.’

About this time, v. 19, “The woman said to Him, ‘Sir, I perceive that You are a prophet.’” She said, ‘Somehow, you know something about me that I didn’t tell you, something I had not planned on bringing up. This was not what I had in mind. Suffice it to say that I wasn’t married, but now you press for details. You are right—I have had five husbands and I am living with somebody right now.’

She said, ‘I think You must be a prophet. Now let’s change the subject here from my marriages and my husbands. Why don’t we kind of change the subject; we are getting a little bit personal here. I just as soon not discuss the subject of my marriages. Tell you what—let me ask You a Bible question. There is this Bible question that I have really been wondering about.’

Verse 20, “‘Our ancestors worshiped in this mountain [Mt. Gerizim], and you Jews claim that Jerusalem is the only place where it has been ordained for people to worship.’” She said, ‘I have always wondered and wanted to know: where is the place that men ought to worship?’ Now, don’t you know, that was really the primary thing on her mind for a long time; obviously, she was a very devout woman, right? Human nature hasn’t changed. They are put on the spot, and immediately they start looking to see if there isn’t some way to change the subject.

Jesus told her in vv. 21-22, “...‘Woman, believe Me, the time is coming, when you shall worship the Father neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem! You Samaritans do not even know what you are worshiping because salvation is of the Jews.’” Jesus clearly shows that the Samaritans and the religious tradition that they had preserved were in error. We should not look to the Samaritans or to the text of Scripture that the Samaritans preserved as some kind of an authoritative guide.

Jesus made plain that the Jews were the ones that had preserved what was necessary (Romans 3:1-2). Salvation is of the Jews. They had preserved the correct information.

In vv. 23-24, He went on to explain that God is a Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. What is Jesus doing? He is expounding the message of Pentecost—the message of God’s Spirit and the rivers of living water, worshipping God in spirit and in truth.

You can prove the time setting was immediately prior to Pentecost because of a statement a little bit later on.

In v. 31, “But in the meantime the disciples asked Him, ‘Master, will you eat?’ But He told them, ‘I have food to eat which you know nothing about.’ Therefore the disciples questioned one another, ‘Did anyone bring Him something to eat?’” In their minds they always took everything in a very literal, physical way.

Jesus said in v. 34, “...‘My food is that I should do the will of Him who has sent Me, and that I should finish His work.’” ‘You guys were hungry and the only thing you could think of was going into town and getting something to eat. That was what was primarily on your mind. What was primarily on My mind was doing the work.’

Verse 35, “Didn’t you say that it is yet four months, then the harvest comes? Listen, I tell you, lift up your eyes and look at the fields; because they are already white for harvesting.”

The harvest would have been at the beginning of the seventh month. That was the time of the great fall harvest. Four months earlier would have been at the beginning of the third month. Since Pentecost always comes in the first week of the third month, we are four months prior to the fall festival season, the fall harvest season. This would then put us in the late spring, the time of Pentecost—and that was Christ’s message here.

Verse 43, “But after the two days He left there, and went to Galilee.”

Verses 45-46, “Then when He came into Galilee the Galileans accepted Him, because they had seen everything He had done in Jerusalem during the Feast of Unleavened Bread; because they also had gone to the Feast. Now Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, the same place where He made the water wine. And there was a certain courtier of the king, whose son was sick in Capernaum.”

Now we are going to switch over to Luke 4, which picks up the account.

Luke 4:16, “He came to Nazareth (which is there in Galilee), where He had been brought up: and according to His custom and habit, He entered into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and stood up to read.” This certainly shows Christ’s custom regarding the Sabbath. What was His custom? Well, He went into the synagogue. He assembled with God’s people. This particular expression that is translated “the Sabbath day” is more literally translated from the Greek, “the day of the Sabbaths.” “Sabbaths” is plural; the “day of Sabbaths” or “the day of Weeks” was the Jewish name for Pentecost. So actually it was an annual Sabbath.

He stood up and read this portion of Isaiah (Isaiah 61:1-2; 49:8-9), which was a section of Scripture that was normally read at that time by the Jews as it is recorded here in Luke 4.

Luke 4:18-19, “The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He has anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor. He has sent Me to heal those broken in heart and spirit, to proclaim deliverance to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to send away the crushed and oppressed with liberty.”

Now this was the year of 28 A.D.; 29 A.D. was a Jubilee year in the Jubilee cycle. So in that sense, it was literally this special year, this acceptable year of the Lord, which was looked forward to. It was prophetic of Christ and His ministry, His proclamation of liberty, because that’s what the Jubilee was physically in Israel anciently. It was the time when liberty was proclaimed throughout the land. Well, Jesus came to proclaim true liberty, and there was an outcry. People got upset because of this attitude, ‘Who do You think You are? Why we have known You since You were a little kid. Why we know Your mother, Your father and Your brothers and sisters. Who do you think You are?’

Verse 24, Jesus said a prophet is not without honor except in his own country. That’s the tendency of people, ‘How can you be anything important? I have known you for years. Therefore, that kind of automatically means that you can’t be anything very important because I know you.’ That’s the way people think. The crowd got very upset. Kind of a big mob scene developed, and He just passed through the middle of the crowd and got away.

Jesus goes to Capernaum: Luke 4:31-32 and Matthew 4:13-17.

He came down to Capernaum and taught them on the Sabbath; they were astounded at His doctrine because His message and His preaching were with authority.

We are told in Matthew 4:13, He left Nazareth and He came and lived in Capernaum. We will notice a little bit later the fact that He refers to a specific house, a specific home. Jesus came to Capernaum, and following that Pentecost, He began to proclaim and to preach there.

Matthew 4:17, “From that time Jesus began to proclaim and preach, ‘Repent, for the Kingdom of heaven is drawing near!’”

Jesus calls the disciples: Mark 1:16-20, Matthew 4:18-22 and Luke 5:1-11.

We find the account of His walking here by the Sea of Galilee, seeing Simon and Andrew, and telling them ‘follow Me; I am going to make you fishers of men.’

Then, in Mark 1:19-20 and Matthew 4:21-22, a little later He saw James and John, the sons of Zebedee; they left and followed Him.

Luke 5:10 makes plain that James and John were partners with Simon and Andrew. Andrew had been a disciple of John the Baptist. James and John were first cousins to Jesus. These were men who had known Him, had known things about Him, had known the uniqueness of Him, had seen certain of these things and had spent periods of time with Him in the past. They had been with Him on certain occasions such as the wedding feast at Cana. Now He comes and says, ‘I want you to quit what you're doing and come and follow Me because I have a job for you.' They knew who He was, and they were prepared to make that commitment at that time.

Jesus casts out demons: Mark 1:21-28 and Luke 4:33-37.

Mark 1:21-27, Christ enters into the synagogue in Capernaum and heals the man with the demon.

Jesus heals Peter's mother-in-law: Mark 1:29-31, Luke 4:38-39 and Matthew 8:14-15.

Mark 1:29-31, "And soon after leaving the synagogue, they came into the house of Simon and Andrew with James and John. And Simon Peter's mother-in-law was lying in bed sick with a fever, and immediately they spoke to Him concerning her. And He came to her, and took her by her hand, and lifted her up. Then the fever immediately left her, and she served them."

The Catholics teach that Peter was the first Pope, but he was not. It makes it very plain here that he was also married. He had a mother-in-law. How can you have a mother-in-law if you are not married? Christ healed her.

After the Sabbath, Jesus heals many: Mark 1:32-34, Luke 4:40-41 and Matthew 8:16-17.

Mark 1:32-34, "Then when evening came (when the Sabbath ended), they brought to Him all who were diseased, and those who were possessed by demons. And the entire city was assembled together at the door. So He healed many that were sick with various diseases, and He cast out many demons. But He didn't allow the demons to speak, because they knew Him." His fame spread far and wide as a result of these things. It's in this context of time that we come to what is called the Sermon on the Mount.

Sermon on the Mount: Matthew 5, 6, 7 and Luke 6:20-49.

In reality, the Sermon on the Mount was really more of a private teaching to the disciples.

It is made plain in Matthew 5:1-2, "But seeing the multitudes He went up into the mountains and when He sat down, His disciples came to Him, and He opened His mouth and He taught them." So what is called the Sermon on the Mount is really more of a private teaching, as He was seated there on a mountain with His disciples gathered around Him in a small group; He was teaching them.

What is called the "Sermon on the Mount" (Matthew 5, 6 and 7) is essential in terms of understanding what the New Covenant is all about. When God made the Old Covenant with ancient Israel, Moses stood on the mountain and gave to those who had accepted the Old Covenant (which was based on the Ten Commandments) the statutes and judgments (Exodus 21, 22, 23). The statutes and judgments were the application of the principles of the Ten Commandments to a physical people and to physical circumstances. It was the physical application of the principles of the law to a civil nation. That was the basis of the Old Covenant. Jesus in Matthew 5, 6 and 7 gives the basis of the New Covenant, the application of the spiritual principles of the Ten Commandments to a spiritual people.

He begins to teach, starting out by showing what real happiness is and where real blessings come from. The word "blessings" here is the Greek word "makarios," which can also be rendered "happy." People grasp after happiness; they search for happiness. They are looking for and pursuing happiness, but Jesus explains that what really leads to happiness and blessings is an attitude, a state of mind—a state of mind of being totally yielded to God, of having God's perspective, of recognizing your dependence on God, of recognizing and really desiring God's way, of being yielded and surrendered to God. That's what really brings happiness. When you are completely yielded and surrendered to God, there is a peace and a happiness that is produced.

Jesus makes plain in Matthew 5:17 that He didn't come to abolish or to destroy the law. People think Christ came to do away with the law. But Christ says, 'Don't think that I've come to destroy the Law or the Prophets.' So people immediately think the law's done away. Where do they get that? Jesus said, 'Don't think I am come to destroy the Law, but to fulfill.'—To fill it up to the full!

Isaiah 42:21, "...He will magnify the law and make it honorable."

Matthew 5:20, "...that except your righteousness exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees you shall in no case enter into the Kingdom of heaven." The scribes and Pharisees lived in outward conformity to the law. It is not simply to conform to the law. You have to be transformed and renewed in the way you think, on the inside. It is not enough to simply go through the motions of outward obedience. There needs to be a changed heart and mind to accompany it. We have to conform inwardly, as well as outwardly.

Jesus then continues and He begins to expand and amplify. He illustrates the principles of the law. Notice here as we go through.

In Matthew 5:21, I will just call your attention to, “You have heard that it was said by them of old time....”

Verse 22, “But I say unto you....”

Coming down in v. 27, “You have heard that it was said by them of old time....”

Verse 28, “But I say unto you....”

Verse 31, “It has been said of them of old times....”

Verse 34, “But I say unto you....”

Verse 38, “You have heard it has been said....”

Verse 44, “But I say unto you....”

Christ goes through and picks out six principles that He says, ‘This is what you have always understood; this is what has been taught. But I am telling you, I am amplifying and magnifying.’

Matthew 5:21-22, “You have heard that it was said to the ancients, “You shall not commit murder,” but whosoever shall commit murder shall be subject to the judgment. But I tell you, that everyone who is even superficially angry with his brother shall be subject to the judgment. You have heard that it was said to the ancients, Whoever shall say to his brother, “Raca,” shall be in danger of the council: but I tell you, Whoever shall say, “You fool,” shall be subject to the fire of Gehenna.”

The first thing He addressed was the matter of violence, anger, resentment and hostility to others. He expounded the commandment on murder. He said, ‘You have heard that you are simply not to kill; you are not to do violence to your neighbor; but I am telling you that is not enough.’ It is not enough to simply refrain from picking up a gun and “blowing him away.” You can’t hold this attitude of hostility or resentment. You can’t hold on to resentment.

Verses 23-24, when you bring your gift to the altar and then remember your brother has something against you, go be reconciled to your brother—and then come offer your gift. You have to be willing to make amends; you can’t hold on to those resentments and hostility. You can’t carry that around because the magnification of the commandment on murder says you don’t harbor the spirit of murder. A lot of people don’t commit murder simply for the reason they are scared of getting caught. They don’t want to go to prison. They have better things to do. Because they are afraid they will get caught, they don’t do it. God wants something that goes beyond just being scared of getting caught. He wants us to come to have an attitude that He has.

And then Christ continued and said in Matthew 5:27-28, “You have heard that it was said to the ancients, “You shall not commit adultery.” But I tell you that whosoever looks at a woman to lust for her has already committed adultery with her in his heart.” ‘You are not supposed to commit adultery. You thought that simply meant that while you are married to this woman, you are not supposed to go out with another woman. Well, I am telling you that it is not enough. It involves the whole attitude of lust. You don’t let something get in your way of obedience to Me.’

Then He went on even further concerning the matter of divorce.

Verses 31-32, “It was also said, “Whoever divorces his wife, let him give her a certificate of divorce.” But I say to you that whoever divorces his wife for any reason except sexual immorality causes her to commit adultery, and whoever marries a woman who is divorced commits adultery.”

‘You thought it was a simple matter that if you wanted to get rid of your wife, you just give her a writing of divorcement, and that’s all there was to it. That’s what the scribes have told you, but I am telling you that if you do that [He is speaking here to His disciples] except for the cause of sexual immorality [Greek, “porneia,” “gross immorality”], you cause her to commit adultery.’ Christ showed here that in terms of His disciples, those who were His followers, the matter of divorce and remarriage was not something that He permitted. He didn’t permit His disciples to put away their mates.

Now Paul clarified the situation in I Corinthians 7 dealing with the Corinthians, where the question arose: what about circumstances that happened before you came into the knowledge of the truth? What happens about circumstances in your past before you became Christ’s disciple?

Paul explained in I Corinthians 7:17-24 that in a case like that, “every man abides in the situation where he is called.” You can’t go back and start ten years ago. You start where you are when you come into the knowledge of the truth. Christ is speaking to those who knew the truth, those who were His disciples. He said, ‘This kind of stuff that you’ve heard and you’ve done—that “won’t wash.” That is not what I intended from the beginning.’

Matthew 5:33-34, “Again you have heard that it was said to the ancients, “You shall not perjure yourself [swear], but shall perform your oaths to the Lord.” But I say to you, do not swear at all....” ‘You’ve heard that you ought to perform your oath. I am telling you that this is not enough. You shouldn’t even be swearing because, by the very fact of swearing, you are making a distinction that, “Boy, I am really telling the truth this time.” Well, if you have to make such a big deal that you are telling the truth, what are you doing the rest of the time?’

Verse 37, Christ said, “...let your “Yes” be “Yes,” and your “No,” “No.”...” As His disciple, you don’t have to go around sticking your hand on a stack of Bibles swearing and calling on God to witness, ‘Man, I am really telling the truth this time!’ Just tell the truth! It’s not enough just to tell the truth when you swear that you are not lying. He says, ‘I expect you to tell the truth—period.’ You don’t have to make a big deal of it. If you open your mouth, whatever comes out must be the truth. That’s all it means—“yea,” “yea” and “nay,” “nay.”

Matthew 5:38-39, ““You have heard that it was said, “An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.” But I say to you, do not retaliate with evil: but whoever shall strike you on the right cheek, turn to him the other also.””

You’ve seen the bumper stickers, “Don’t get mad, get even.” Christ did not subscribe to that philosophy. That principle, “an eye for an eye,” as was given in the Old Testament was a principle of civil justice. In other words, it simply meant that the punishment had to fit the crime.

If you look in even fairly recent history, European history through the 1700s and early 1800s, you find some horrible punishments being meted out for some very minor crimes. Well, the principle that God gave to ancient Israel was “an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.” You don’t exact more than the value of the crime. It didn’t mean they gouged out eyes and teeth. If you go back, you find in Exodus 21-23 that there were actually fines that were levied. It was simply an expression that the punishment fit the crime.

What Christ is telling His disciples is, ‘Look, this does not apply in personal dealings. You don’t have some kind of personal vendetta to get even. You put your cause in God’s hands. That’s not a principle that carries over into private feuds and vengeance. Don’t have this attitude that nobody is going to get by with anything with me. Be peaceable. I am telling you that you need to have a peaceable attitude and be willing even to suffer loss to keep the peace.’

Verses 43-44, ““You have heard that it was said, “You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy,” but I am saying, love your enemies and bless those who curse you; do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who spitefully use you, and persecute you.””

It’s not enough simply to love the ones that love you and hate everybody else. If you do that, you’re not “one up” on sinners. That’s no big deal; a lot of people do that. You have gangsters who like their friends and hate their enemies. You’re not “one up” on anybody else when you do that, but rather, have God’s attitude, which is the attitude of love and concern.

In v. 48, Christ magnifies and sums up, ““Therefore you shall become perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect.”” In other words, become like God. That’s what the New Covenant is all about—the law being written in our hearts and in our minds. Christ is amplifying and expounding it. Chapter 5 is dealing with the way we think and the way we are, which carries over into what we do.

In Matthew 6, He begins to deal with other matters. He deals with things we do—the outward displays of religion, the giving of alms, making offerings and prayer. Christ emphasizes things that are acts of worship need to be private acts of worship between you and God. When you are going to make a gift or give an offering, you do it privately. Don’t be as the hypocrites and sound the trumpet before you to make sure everybody is looking and then drop it in coin by coin. Religion was what they did to impress other people. Christ said your religion needs to be between you and God, not something you put on as a public display to impress others.

It’s the same thing with prayer. At the time of the morning and evening sacrifice (roughly at about 9 A.M. and 3 P.M.), a coal from the altar of burnt offerings was taken into the Holy Place and placed in the altar of incense. Incense was sprinkled on it and the odors of incense wafted up and filled the Holy Place into the Holy of Holies.

We are told in Revelation 5:8 this symbolized the prayers of the saints. The Jews understood that symbolism, and they came to regard the time of the burnt offerings as the hour of prayer. Some of the Pharisees took upon themselves the custom of making a point of praying at those particular times when that ceremony was being carried out in the temple. They thought, ‘Well, that symbolizes our prayers going before God, so we’ll make a point of praying at that time.’

There is nothing intrinsically wrong with that. The Pharisees, however, made such a fetish out of it that they would make a point of being out on the street at that time. They started into these prayers because, after all, it was the hour of prayer. It was something they wanted, in effect, to impress everybody else with and make them feel kind of spiritually inferior—‘I’m praying, why aren’t you?’

Christ emphasized, ‘Look, when you pray, go to God; go in a private place.’ Now there are certainly examples of very brief public prayers. Christ on several occasions gave public prayers such as the blessing of a meal or invoking God’s presence at a particular occasion. In the Old Testament, you find Solomon doing that at the dedication of the temple. We find reference to it being done in the Church. But it was very brief public prayer offered by one on behalf of the congregation. It was not the prayer life of the individual. Christ was making reference to people who were doing what they did to be seen of men.

Christ went on to expound about prayer and said, ‘This is the way you pray; this is the way you do it.

Verse 7, “...don’t use vain and empty chants, as the pagans do...” So what do people do? They have taken what Christ gave to the disciples as an outline, and they memorize it and parrot it out. They just rattled it off and made a vain repetition out of it. There is nothing wrong with memorizing this piece of scripture any more than there is anything else. But when something is just repeated over and over in a meaningless fashion, like an “Our Father” or “Hail Mary,” just repeated over and over and over, it becomes meaningless. It is a vain repetition; that’s not what prayer is all about.

Prayer is communication with God. You’re talking to God. Christ told the disciples this is the way you do it. He gave them the outline, and people memorize the outline instead of filling in the details. They just parrot the outline over and over again until it becomes meaningless. He emphasized the way that we should go about it. We are to address God as our Father, praising Him, desiring and acknowledging our need for Him, His Kingdom and the time when His will shall be completely fulfilled on this earth. We pray about our needs and ask God for forgiveness. We ask God to help us to not be overwhelmed with sore trials, but rather, delivered from Satan’s power and influence.

He continued and expounded on the subject of forgiveness in Matthew 6.

Matthew 6:14-15, “Because if you forgive men their sins, your heavenly Father will forgive your sins. But if you don’t forgive men their sins, neither will your heavenly Father forgive your sins against Him.” The matter of forgiveness is a very important matter to understand. If we want to receive forgiveness, we have to be prepared to give it out. We cannot go around holding a grudge, resentment and animosity, and then expect to receive God’s mercy and God’s forgiveness.

He continued and discussed fasting.

Verses 16-18, “When you fast, do not be as those sanctimonious pretenders, affecting a gloomy, mournful appearance; because they contort their faces in order that they may show off to men that they are fasting. Truly, I tell you, this is their reward. But when you are fasting, anoint your head and wash your face, so that you do not give the appearance to men that you are fasting, but rather, fast to your Father who is in secret: and your Father who sees in secret will reward you openly.” Again, it is something that is to be private. It reflects our private worship to God.

He then emphasized the fact that where our treasure is, that’s where our heart is going to be.

Verses 19-20, “Do not store up wealth and treasure for yourselves upon the earth, where moth and rust spoil, and where thieves can burglarize and steal. But instead, store up wealth and treasure for yourselves in heaven, where neither moth nor rust spoil, and where thieves do not burglarize or steal: because where your wealth and treasure is, there is where your heart will be also.” There’s a balance in our attitude in terms of our service to God with the material and physical things.

There is recognition that, as it says in Matthew 6:33, “But seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you.” Put God first and everything else will fall in place. It is not a matter that we don’t need physical things. It is just a matter of getting our priorities straight.

In Matthew 7:1-5, He showed the kind of attitude that we are to have—not a judging, condemning kind of an attitude.

He sums it all up here. The whole meaning of the Law and the Prophets is summed up.

Verse 12, “Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets.” In other words, the whole point of God’s law is to treat people the way you want to be treated. It is a matter of love, outgoing concern

In v. 21, Jesus also went on to make plain that not everyone who says “Lord, Lord” is going to enter the Kingdom. There are those who think that all you have to do is say, “I believe.”

James brings out in James 2:19, ““You believe there is one God, you do well. But the demons also believe—and tremble.”” If all you do is to believe in God, you are not even “one step up” on the devil. He believes in God. He knows that. It is a matter that, in James 2:17-18, “faith without works is dead.”

Jesus brings out here in Matthew 7:21, ““Not everyone who calls Me “Lord, Lord” is going to enter into the kingdom of heaven, but only He who is doing and practicing the will of My Father who is in heaven.”” It’s not just a matter of saying “Lord, Lord”; it is a matter of obeying and serving God, of yielding and surrendering to God. That’s what’s involved. If we really believe God, we are going to surrender to Him.

Jesus went on to make a contrast between the way that leads to life and the way that leads to death.

Matthew 7:13-14, ““Enter in through the narrow gate, because wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction and many there be that go in by it. Because narrow is the gate and straight is the way that leads to life, and few there be that find it.”” There is a distinction that God’s way—the pathway that leads to life—is a narrow pathway. The way that leads to destruction is very wide and broad because that’s the one that most are on. If you’re on the road that everybody else is on, you’re on the wrong road—that is kind of what it comes down to.

A lot of people think, ‘How can all these people be wrong?’ The question is not how can they all be wrong, the question is how can they all be right? Christ made plain that most people weren’t going to be on the right road. So if you’re on the road and you look around and, ‘Boy, everybody is headed this way,’ you better go back and look again at the road signs because you made a wrong turn somewhere. Christ makes a contrast. We can’t just do something because others are doing it. That’s one of the worse reasons in the world to do it. ‘Well, I saw everybody else do it. I saw them do it, and I thought I’d just do the same thing.’

Christ makes it plain we need to be doing what we are doing because we are trying to follow Him. We are trying to be like Him. When you make decisions and choices in your life, they need to be based on the fact that you are trying to become more like Christ, not more like the world or more like somebody else. Jesus Christ is the One we are trying to copy. We are trying to emulate His attitude. We need to examine what we do, the way we are in comparison to Him. He’s our standard.

False prophets known by their fruit: Matthew 7:15-20 and Luke 6:43-45.

He warns us in Matthew 7:15, ““But be on guard against false prophets, who come to you dressed as innocent sheep but within they are extorting and ravenous wolves.”” The devil doesn’t show up with a little sign hanging around his neck saying, ‘I am the devil; I am here to deceive you.’ You can always recognize the devil because he has a red suit and pitchfork in his hand, right? He never shows up that way. He shows up as an angel of light (II Corinthians 11:14).

As the Sermon on the Mount concludes, we continue the account in Mark 2.

Mark 2:1, ““And after some days He came back into Capernaum, and the news circulated that He was in the house.”” In other words, the news circulated that He was back home again. That’s an indication that He had a house; he had His own home there in Capernaum. We saw earlier of a move that He made from Nazareth to Capernaum. When He got back to Capernaum, the news was that He was simply in the house. He was back at home. People knew where to come. It was a specific house where they expected Him to be.

Jesus heals on the Sabbath: Mark 2:3-12, Luke 5:17-26 and Matthew 9:2-8.

Mark 2:3-4, there were some who had a friend who was paralyzed, and they wanted to bring him in to have Christ heal him. But there were so many people crowding in that they couldn’t even get in. So they climbed up on the roof, cut a hole in it and let him down that way.

Now I think we understand that the kind of roofs they had were not our steep pitched Acadian-style roofs. Probably all five of them would have needed to be healed if that was the case. Somebody probably would have fallen off. Roofs are steep-pitched in this area because it is an area where there is a lot of rain. Capernaum was an area where there was very little rain, and they didn’t need a steep pitch on the roof. They generally had a flat roof, and they would use it as extra living quarters. Often that would be the case or, if you had a shady area, you could pitch kind of a little canopy up there. You could “catch” a breeze and it would be pleasant.

But anyway, they got up on top of this flat roof, dug back and let this guy down. Christ healed him.

Notice in v. 5, He told the man, "...your sins have been forgiven'...", and the Pharisees and scribes got all upset.

Verse 7, "'Why does this man speak blasphemies this way? Who is able to forgive sins except God?'" 'Who do You think you are to forgive sins?'

He said, v. 9, "'Which is easier to say to the paralytic: 'your sins have been forgiven you,' or to tell him, 'Stand up! Pick up your bed, and walk?'" When the guy got up and left, that kind of clenched the argument. See, it is easy to say, 'I forgive you and your sins are forgiven.' How do you know though that they speak with authority? Well, if they tell you, 'Rise, take up your bed,' and you walk. By "bed" He meant like a little bedroll. He was not talking about picking up your Sealy Posturepedic and putting it on your shoulder. It was like a sleeping bag or something. So that kind of clenched the argument as to 'whom do You think You are to forgive sin?' Obviously God was paying attention.

We might just notice here a couple of other things.

Matthew is called: Mark 2:13-14, Luke 5:27-28 and Matthew 9:9.

Mark 2:14-16 is when Levi (also known as Matthew) the son of Alphaeus was called.

Scribes and Pharisees accuse Christ: Mark 2:16-17, Luke 5:30-32 and Matthew 9:11-13.

Matthew 9:11-13, the Pharisees were upset when they saw Jesus going in and eating with Matthew and some of his friends. They asked, 'Why are you associating with these sinners?' Christ said He hadn't come to call the righteous (or actually those who thought they were righteous) to repentance, but those who knew they were sinners. Christ said, 'These people, by your definition, are sinners. They are the ones that need to repent. You don't need to repent; why should I take up My time with you? You don't think you have anything to repent of. You figure they have a lot to repent of; maybe I better tell them about it.' He just put it back on them because they were standing there always ready to carp and criticize because they were jealous. They resented the authority with which He spoke, and they felt like He was going to take away their following.

Parable of the wineskins: Mark 2:21-22, Luke 5:36-39 and Matthew 9:16-17.

In Luke 5:36-39, there is an interesting expression that is sometimes not clearly understood, "And also He spoke a parable to them: 'No one puts a new piece of cloth on an old garment; otherwise the new tears from the old garment, and the old does not agree with the new piece of cloth. And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise the new wine will burst open the wineskins and be poured out, and the wineskins will be destroyed. But new wine should be put into new wineskins, and them both are preserved together. Also, no one having drunk the old wine, immediately desires the new wine; because he says, 'The old is better.''"

The wineskins were made out of leather and they stretched and expanded. The gasses and the fermentation process stretched them out. By the time it was over with, they had been used and the leather was set. It wasn't going to expand anymore; it would burst. Christ said to put new wine in new wine skins and both are preserved. No one having drunk the old wine immediately desires the new, as the old is better.

This is a parable. Christ gives a very important principle. You see, new truth can't be added to an old approach to life. The new and the old don't go together—it won't fit. People are more comfortable with the old because it is familiar, but when you learn God's truth, you can't simply patch it onto your old way of life. It is an entirely new way of life. You can't fit in a few elements of God's truth (the new wine, so to speak); you can't fit that in with the old way because it will just burst it asunder. It takes a new way of life to be conformable to God's truth.

I have already commented on the Sermon on the Mount in regards to Christ's office as Mediator of the New Covenant. The whole basis of the New Covenant is the amplification of the principles of the Ten Commandments applied to a spiritual nation. We find right here in the Sermon on the Mount that Christ amplified the principles in Matthew 5, 6 and 7, just as Moses in Exodus 21, 22 and 23 amplified the principles in terms of dealing on a physical basis with a physical, carnal nation.

The key word in Exodus 21, 22 and 23, over and over again, was the word "IF." If a man shall do such and such, this is what you do. That's what Moses had to be concerned with. Because the people didn't have a heart to obey, all these "ifs" were given. He finished giving the Ten Commandments, but what do you do if somebody does this or somebody does that? What do you do when this happens? You are dealing with a civil nation. Well, if this happens, then this is what you do; if that happens, then you do this. It goes through Exodus 21, 22 and 23.

Now Christ in Matthew 5, 6 and 7 doesn't deal with all of these "what ifs" because this is a message directed to people whom God is writing His laws in their hearts and minds—people who have a heart to obey, people who are wanting to surrender to God. He explains the principle: this is what you are supposed to become. This is really the principle of the law magnified. This is what God was really driving at, not simply a list of, "this is what is going to happen if you do this, and this is what you do if you do that." It was a different approach given for a different people for different circumstances.

I hope this has given you a little bit of insight into this portion of Scripture—Passover 28 A.D. to Passover 29 A.D. We are one year and a half into Christ's ministry. We are going to pick it up next time at the Passover of 29 A.D. We are going to find that as we get further along, the scripture begins to go into more and more detail, and we will go into greater and greater lengths of detail on some of this.

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 8, 11, 12, 13; Mark 2:23—4:20; Luke 6:1—8:15; John 5

This evening we are covering the period from the Passover of 29 A.D. until the Feast of Tabernacles of the same year, 29 A.D. It was during this period of time that Jesus passed the halfway point of His three and one-half year ministry. We want to note some things concerning that this evening.

The last Bible study covered the time between the Passover 28 A.D. and the Passover 29 A.D. Remember Jesus began His public ministry at the fall festival season of 27 A.D. That was when He appeared where John was baptizing by the River Jordan. Jesus came there and was baptized by John. He remained there preaching for a short period of time. We are not told how long. Within a short period of time, He returned to Galilee and went to Cana for a wedding feast that is recorded. Then within a short period of time after that, His first public miracle is recorded. He left, went away into the wilderness by Himself, fasted for forty days and was tempted of Satan. He went through this period of time and returned from there; we picked up the story with His coming to Jerusalem at the Passover of 28 A.D., which was about six months after He had been baptized by John.

He made a very dramatic appearance in Jerusalem. He came in and chased the moneychangers out of the temple. We went through the whole thing. You remember the whole story. Last Bible study we focused in on that time period. We picked it up there as He cleansed the temple. Then He began that period of privately teaching of His disciples.

Now understand that Jesus had more than twelve disciples. There were twelve of the disciples that were ordained as apostles. We will note that this evening. A disciple was anyone who followed Him. At the end of His public ministry, the time that is recorded in Acts 1, there were one hundred twenty acknowledged followers—one hundred twenty disciples or students. Out of that one hundred twenty, there were twelve that He singled out and ordained as apostles.

Remember the story in Acts 1, after Judas had committed suicide and Simon Peter and the rest of the eleven were gathered in the upper room.

They said they needed someone to take Judas' place and that it needed to be someone who was with them from the beginning. So they singled out two individuals, as recorded in Acts 1, who they said had been with them from the beginning. In other words, the two had been among the disciples; they were not one of the twelve, but were disciples or students. They had been there, had seen the things that Jesus had done and had heard firsthand the things He had said. In that sense, they could testify as an eyewitness of the resurrection and of the things that had transpired.

During this year we have the private teaching to His disciples, the Sermon on the Mount and various things that are recorded.

We pick up the story this evening around the time of the Passover 29 A.D. This was about a year and a half after Jesus had begun His public ministry. We will focus on a six-month period of 29 A.D. The bulk of this time Jesus spent in Galilee.

The religious establishment, the Pharisees and particularly the Sadducees (the priestly group), was centered in Jerusalem. If you look at a map, you find there are three areas that make up what we call the Holy Land. There was in the southern part around Jerusalem the province of Judea. North of Judea was the Roman province of Samaria; north of Samaria was the province of Galilee. These three taken together plus some territory on the other side of the Jordan River make up the ancient kingdom of Israel.

Later when they split after Solomon's death, it consisted of Judah in the south and the kingdom of Israel in the north. Israel was taken into captivity; then a little over a hundred years later, Judah was taken into captivity. Judah (the Jews) was the only ones that ever returned. They came back and they settled, not only in the southern area around Jerusalem, but gradually, as time went on, they spread out and settled in some of the other areas that had been anciently the territory of Israel.

The areas of Samaria and Galilee were both parts of what had been the territory of the northern tribes. The northern tribes were moved out. Babylonians were brought in to take their place and were settled there by the king of Assyria (II Kings 17). These Babylonians became known as Samaritans, taking their name from Samaria, which was the capital city of ancient Israel. In our Old Testament series, we studied them and the great antipathy that was present between them and the Jews. The Jews really looked down on and despised the Samaritans. There had been various problems in the past.

Then north of Samaria there was an area of Jewish settlement known as Galilee. Now the Jews in Judea tended to look down on Galilee and Galileans. The Jews in Judea were a very exclusivist group. They really looked down on anyone else. In Judea they did not have a lot of contact with non-Jews. They didn't have to, other than some of the Roman occupation troops and things of this sort. They really had very limited contact with non-Jews.

Galilee was an area where the population was a little more diverse. There were Jewish settlements, Jewish communities predominantly, but there was a significant Gentile settlement in the area. It tended to be more involved in direct trade and commerce. There was a lot more contact with non-Jews. The Jews in Judea kind of looked down on the Galileans. They viewed or compared the territory of ancient Israel to the temple. They compared Jerusalem to the Holy of Holies, Judea as being the Holy Place, and they called Galilee the court of the Gentiles. This was kind of the area on the periphery.

So they had a kind of disparaging, patronizing attitude toward the Galileans. That's not uncommon because you can go around the world and can find that virtually anywhere you go, whoever is there, they have someone else they look down upon. That seems to be human nature. People want to look for somebody they can look down upon. So the Jews, who looked down upon a number of people, looked down upon the Jews who lived in Galilee. They looked down on the Jews who lived in Diaspora even more because they were really in contact with the Gentiles.

You have to kind of get the picture of it and realize when Jesus came in and began to preach. In John 1:46, they said, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth [Galilee]?" That was kind of their attitude. If it was of any value, certainly it originated in Judea and in Jerusalem. Anything of value, anybody who knows anything originates from right there. 'I mean, obviously, if this guy knew very much, He would be one of us. How could He be anything of value; He comes from way up there.'

We have regional and sectional conflicts in our nation and our society today—same thing. Human nature is basically the same all the way down. Jesus knew that when He began to spend a lot of time in Jerusalem and Judea; He was going to very quickly come into really strong conflict with the religious leaders because He was going to be right there in their territory, on their turf. And it wasn't going to be long before they were going to resent it—and how! They were jealous of Him because, as they viewed it, He came in and did these things, said these things that people were impressed with. They flocked to hear Him, and they ignored them as religious leaders.

They worried, 'We are going to lose our status, our position. We have a good thing going. We are the ones that everybody looks to. Then He comes in here and people start paying attention to Him, acknowledge Him and want to listen to Him. They are impressed with Him. He performs these miracles and preaches these powerful sermons; we don't like the effect it is having on the people. What's more, we are afraid that He is going to stir up something, and the Roman government is going to intervene because He is talking about a Kingdom of God. He is talking about being the Messiah, or people are talking about that and saying that He is the Messiah. All we need is something that provokes the Romans, and they will send in troops. They will "smash" us and we are out of a job. We don't want that!'

Jesus knew that when He started spending a lot of time in Jerusalem and Judea, a crisis was going to come to a head very quickly. The result was that Jesus did not stay there in Jerusalem a great deal of the time of His ministry. He would come up there for the holy days, would be there for periods of time and then He would leave—just be gone out of the way. He would be up in Galilee and other areas, preaching and teaching, but He was kind of out on the periphery.

The Jews tended to think that anything of significance had to be going on where they were. It's kind of like today. The power centers in our nation are Washington, D.C. and New York City. People who are part of the Eastern power establishment tend to view anything going on in (as they would view it) the "backwater" areas of the country, well, that can't be of any significance. If it were important, it would be going on right there in Washington or New York. How can something of value be going on in Lafayette, Louisiana? Nothing of value could be going on there because, after all, they are the ones who are where the center of power and money and control and everything else is. People tend to have that kind of shortsighted outlook. That's true in our time today, and it's true in other times, other societies. It's the nature of things.

During the time that we are going to cover this evening, Jesus was going over Galilee, city by city. Galilee, although it was looked down upon, was really the richest part of Palestine. Palestine at the time of Christ was divided into Judea, Samaria and Galilee. Alfred Edersheim in his classic work, The Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah, quotes various ancient sources to prove that Galilee had upwards of two hundred forty cities and towns of fifteen thousand inhabitants or more. Josephus points out that it was a rich area that teemed with agriculture. The climate was described as being the best in Palestine, and there were great forests in that area at that time—dissimilar to what it is today. Anciently the whole land was a land flowing with milk and honey.

As a result of misuse and as a result of God's removal of His blessing, various problems came in. And, of course, we have seen parallels in more modern times. As an area is denuded of its forests, the patterns of rainfall change, the climate tends to change and various problems come in. Things have changed since then, but at that time, Galilee was really the richest area agriculturally in Palestine.

The Sea of Galilee, which was there, was famous for its abundance of fish. The entire area was a rather prosperous commercial area. Caravan routes came through there. It was an area that had a lot of contact with the Gentiles. This is where Christ grew up, and it is also the area where He spent a great deal of His public ministry.

During the time period we are covering this evening, shortly after the Days of Unleavened Bread in 29 A.D., the twelve apostles were selected from among Christ's disciples and ordained. Now, we should take note of the apostles and who they were. Sometimes if you have seen some of the movies, they really don't give an accurate view. It shows one of the accounts we will read this evening of Christ walking by and seeing Peter and Andrew. He tells them, 'Come and follow Me; I will make you fishers of men.' As that kind of thing is introduced in the movie, you see Him come by and kind of "lays eyes" on these guys—transfixes them with a stare. It's almost as though there is a hypnotic effect; they drop what they are doing and follow off.

Well, it wasn't that way. He had known Peter and Andrew for a period of time. Andrew and Peter both knew Him. Andrew, in particular, had been a disciple of John the Baptist and was there when Jesus was baptized. John had pointed out Jesus to His disciples. Andrew followed Him because John had pointed Him out. Plus, Peter and Andrew (who were brothers) were in a fishing partnership with James and John, the sons of Zebedee.

James and John were the sons of Zebedee and their mother's name was Salome. Salome was a sister to Mary, the mother of Jesus. So that meant that James and John were first cousins of Jesus Christ. They had known about Him from the time of early childhood. Since they did not grow up in the same town, we don't know exactly how much contact they had. But, undoubtedly, they had some contact, particularly at festival times, as they would tend to travel together to Jerusalem to the Feasts and things of that sort.

So they certainly knew who He was and there was a contact there. On occasion they had spent time with Him, had listened to Him and had been with Him. By the time He told Peter, 'come, follow Me and I will make you fishers of men,' Peter and Andrew had been with Him on a number of occasions, had heard Him preach and had probably been there at Cana of Galilee and had seen the turning of the water into wine. They had heard the Sermon on the Mount; they had been with Him from time to time at various occasions.

They were in business for themselves and would be gone for periods of time, but they were there spending time with Christ when He was in the locale. They were students as well as disciples, but they had not turned their back on their business. So at this point Jesus told them, 'I have something in store for you that will go beyond what you are doing. You need to leave that and come follow Me full time.' By that time, they knew enough and were convinced enough that they were prepared to do so.

We read also of Philip who was a native of Bethsaida. He was a friend of James, John, Peter and Andrew; he was also a disciple of John the Baptist.

Bartholomew was also known as Nathaniel. Bartholomew is really a surname. "Bar" in Hebrew or in Aramaic (which is virtually the equivalent of Hebrew) signifies "son of." "Bartholomew" means "the son of Tholomey or Tholomeu." The term "bar" was commonly used, like where Jesus referred to Peter as "Simon Barjona." That just meant "Simon, the son of Jonah." So Bartholomew or Nathaniel, as he was also called, was a native of Cana. Philip introduced him to Jesus Christ.

We are not told much about Thomas in terms of his background. According to tradition, he was born in Antioch.

Matthew is also known as Levi. He is described as the son of Alphaeus. He was a tax collector from Capernaum. We have two other individuals who are referred to as the sons of Alphaeus. There is no specific mention of James, the son of Alphaeus, and Judas (not Iscariot), also known as Thaddaeus or Lebbaeus. He is called Labbaeus Thaddaeus in one case or Judas (not Iscariot). That particular Judas that is mentioned here and James, the son of Alphaeus, were bothers.

There was a third brother in the group; Simon the Zealot was also a brother of James, the son of Alphaeus. This particular Simon, Judas and James were the sons of Alphaeus. Their mother was another sister of Mary, the mother of Christ. So, those three were also cousins. Simon the Zealot is called Simon the Canaanite in one account. The term “Canaanite” in that context refers to “a political faction”; it was a nationalist faction. The Zealots were out to overthrow the Roman government.

Now, note here, the people that Christ called. Christ called individuals out of a wide variety of backgrounds. They came out of divergent political backgrounds. Christ’s disciples did not remain in those backgrounds. They did not remain involved in politics. Simon didn’t keep trying to go out and overthrow the Roman government. If you want the two extremes, you have Simon the Zealot and Matthew who was a Roman tax collector.

Now the Jews really resented Roman occupation. They resented that greatly because, as they viewed it, they said, ‘Look, God gave this land to us. Who are these pagan Romans coming in here “lording it” over us? They really think they are something; but really they are nothing because we are the chosen people, and God gave this land to us. These pagan Romans are coming in here “lording it” over us and oppressing us and taking taxes.’ They really resented that anyone would do such a thing. So they despised Jews who worked in cooperation with the Roman government.

For a parallel, go back in American History to the time of the reconstruction after the War Between the States. Nobody was hated worse in the South than the group called the “Scalawags”—Southerners who collaborated with the Carpetbaggers because they could see that was the way to success and money. Their own people hated them because they viewed them as a collaborator, a “turncoat.” You can look at other parallels and examples of history. That’s one that would be more familiar to us, but you can look at other parallels.

Nobody is more unpopular than someone who is viewed as a traitor to his own. ‘You have turned your back on us, your own people, and you are in collaboration with those that we view as the enemy.’ They actually hated them worse than they did the enemy. ‘The enemy is from outside and came in—we can understand that. But you—you are a “turncoat”.’ That’s the way Matthew was viewed.

You have to understand how the Jews looked down on what they called the “Publicans.” “Publican” simply meant “someone who held public responsibility, public office, an employee of the Roman government,” which meant that they were in continual contact with the Romans. They were viewed as collaborators with the Roman government, plus the fact that many or most of the tax collectors were notorious for being crooks.

The Romans operated on a principle that the tax collector was paid on a percentage basis. The more he collected, the more he made, which gave incentive to be an industrious tax collector. Because the Romans wanted to make sure they got “theirs,” they figured the best way was to pay the guy on a percentage basis. That way he would get a lot more for them. The more he got for them, the more he got for himself, which you can imagine did not endear the tax collector to the people.

So you had on that extreme one such as Matthew. On the other hand, you had Simon the Zealot who was a really revolutionary firebrand type. That’s what the Zealots were; they were kind of an ultra nationalist movement. They used everything from guerilla tactics and techniques to drive out and overthrow the Romans. They were involved in various methods of political propaganda and attempts to stir up and incite rebellion. They were ready to go to war to drive out the Romans.

So Jesus’ disciples came from both ends and all in the middle. God calls His people out from a variety of backgrounds. Every one of us comes from a variety of backgrounds, perhaps even a variety of political backgrounds. Some may have no interest whatsoever in politics; others may have been very involved on the one side or the other. God calls us out. And that’s just it—we are called out (John 6:44).

Christ's disciples did not continue to stay enmeshed in that world's system. Simon the Zealot had to learn; Matthew had to learn. All of them had to learn that there was a Kingdom coming. It was the Kingdom of God. It was not going to be set up by some revolutionary overthrow; it was not going to be voted in; and it was not going to be this or that. It was going to be established by the power of God.

So Christ called His disciples from a variety of backgrounds.

The final one, Judas Iscariot, was the treasurer of the group. He was called the "keeper of the bag" (KJ, John 12:6; 13:29) (NKJ, "money box"). That meant he was the treasurer. I would call that to your attention; I think we should see that God sometimes allows things.

Sometimes we wonder why God is allowing this. Sometimes people get upset because they think, 'well, surely God wouldn't allow this.' Well, Judas was there, right at the top. He was one of the twelve apostles for three and one-half years. He held a position of responsibility and trust. He was the keeper of the bag; he was the treasurer. Not only was he the treasurer, he was also a thief.

Now that's not speculation. It says so right there in John 12:6. Remember the story when the woman bought the ointment to pour on Christ's feet and Judas got upset. He asked, 'Why was this stuff wasted? This is extravagance; this is waste—and it's ridiculous. This stuff should have been taken out and sold; we could have gotten money for it and given it to the poor. And here you let this woman just waste it, pour it out here on Your feet.'

Boy, he was all upset. He thought that was terrible and, undoubtedly, some of the others standing around thought, 'Yeah, that's a good point, why wasn't it sold? I'll bet we could have gotten a lot of money for that and given it to the poor and helped people.'

John adds in the parenthetical thought in v. 6. John 12:6, "This he said, not because he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and had the money box [keeper of the bag]; and he used to take what was put in it" That's why he said it. Sometimes what people say and what their motive for saying it is entirely different. John adds that in when he tells the story in retrospect—that way you don't think that Judas was this altruistic guy. Yeah, he sounded that way. He didn't say, 'Give it to me so I can steal it.' No, he said, 'This stuff should have been taken and sold, given to the poor and helped all these people.' He didn't say it because he cared for the poor; he said it because he was the treasurer and was planning on "skimming some off the top." He was a thief.

The point I would like to make is: do you think Jesus knew that Judas was up to "no good" on some of that? Of course He did.

He confronted the woman at the well in Samaria and asked her where her husband was. She said, 'Oh, I am not married.' And He said, 'Right, you are! You've had five of them, and the one you are living with now, you haven't gotten around to marrying. It's good that you tell the truth. You definitely are not married.' Jesus could look into the hearts of people. He knew and could discern the motives.

Of course He knew that Judas was stealing. And you know, the situation dragged on and on for a period of time until finally, in God's time, it was dealt with. There's an important lesson to learn from that: God does not solve problems based on our time schedule. There's nothing you know about that is going to be news to God; nothing you've found out that is going to be a shock to God—'Man, I wouldn't have known that if you hadn't told Me.'

Anything that is going on, even a sparrow that falls to the ground, God knows. There is nothing that happens that is news to God. God knows and God doesn't operate on our time schedule. You see, that is a matter of walking and living by faith, of trusting God to do what He says He will do, when He chooses to do it. That is a very important lesson that all of us must learn.

Jesus shows He is Lord and Master: Luke 6:1-5, Matthew 12:1-8 and Mark 2:23-28.

Luke's account makes it plain when it happened. The others don't. The others simply refer to a Sabbath in which Jesus was walking through the grain fields, but Luke makes plain the time setting.

Luke 6:1, "Now it occurred on the second first Sabbath [the second Sabbath of the first rank], that He passed through the grain fields; and His disciples were picking heads of grain, rubbing them with their hands and eating them." Now the term "the second first Sabbath" (KJV, "And it came to pass on the second Sabbath after the first...") is a very ambiguous thing. What in the world is that? The more literal translation would be "on the second first Sabbath." Now what is that? What are the Sabbaths of first rank? Those are the annual Holy Days. A reference to a Sabbath of first rank would be one of the annual Sabbaths, one of the "high-day Sabbaths" as the Jews termed them. The “second first Sabbath” would be the second annual Holy Day, which would be the Last Day of Unleavened Bread. This is the time setting—on the second Sabbath of first rank, which was the second annual Holy Day of Unleavened Bread.

They were passing through the grain fields and His disciples were picking ears of grain. They weren’t out harvesting. They had spent the night in a house outside of the walled city, and that morning they walked a short distance into town. That’s normally the way people got around in those days. They didn’t hop into their car to go three blocks. They walked. And when they walked, it was normally on a footpath other than some of the main Roman roads that connected the major cities. It was a footpath because all that traveled it were people going back and forth by foot. So here was a little pathway that went from the house where they had stayed going into the town, a pathway that cut through a grain field.

Some of you remember back before all of the highways were fixed up the way they are now with all the road-grading equipment and everything. There were a lot of times the connection between houses out in the country was a small path, a bridle or footpath, maybe a wagon path. It was usually fairly narrow and kept clean by people walking back and forth or people riding an animal or pulling a wagon back and forth. If there was a field of grain next to it, it was right up there at the edge of the path.

They were walking down the path and were reaching out plucking off some heads of grain, rolling them around in their hands, getting the grains off and eating it. There was nothing illegal about that.

Deuteronomy 23:24-25: “When you come into your neighbor’s vineyard, you may eat your fill of grapes at your pleasure, but you shall not put any in your container. When you come into your neighbor’s standing grain, you may pluck the heads with your hand, but you shall not use a sickle on your neighbor’s standing grain.”

The law made specific arrangement for the fact that a stranger, a sojourner, was welcome as they were walking down the road to anything that was out there at roadside that they could pluck off. They could not harvest in the sense of going out and gathering things to take someplace else, but what they ate as they walked along was permissible. So there wasn’t a problem with that. It was not a matter of stealing; there wasn’t a law of God involved.

What was involved was one of the traditions of the Pharisees, the Rabbis. The fourth commandment says you are not to work on the Sabbath. Well, the Rabbis had asked the question, ‘what is work?’ You and I ought to know what work is, but they wanted to get technical about what work is. So they finally defined thirty-nine different categories of work that were prohibited on the Sabbath. And each of those thirty-nine types was sub-divided into other groups. So this came under the prohibition of harvesting on the Sabbath. Anything over three heads of grain consisted of harvesting. They had to define harvesting. You shouldn’t harvest. Well, all right, how much is harvesting? They had it figured out.

In Nehemiah 13, Nehemiah reprimanded them because they were coming in bearing burdens on the Sabbath. They were hauling their agricultural produce into Jerusalem. Nehemiah reprimanded them because they were not to be bringing in these burdens on the Sabbath. So when the Rabbis got through with it, they asked, what constitutes a burden? They finally concluded that anything over the weight of three dried figs consisted of a burden that you should not bring in because you were transporting agricultural produce. They had to “nail it all down.”

You understand now why so many of the top lawyers are Jewish. They have a proclivity for very detailed, technical-minded approaches to things. They have a real proclivity to be technically minded; they had become so technically minded here that, as lawyers often do, they were “straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel.” They missed the whole point of it; they were worried about defining every little thing.

But it gets back to whether or not we have a heart to obey. Is the question we ask, ‘How close can I get to what God really wants?’ Or is it, ‘How close can I get to the edge and not get “zapped?”’ How close can I get to the edge and God not strike me with lightning?’

‘I really don’t want to get sent to the lake of fire or anything, but I want to make sure that I don’t do anything more than I have to. I want to be right on the edge, dabble my toe over in the cesspool [that is this world] and get just as close as I can but stay out of trouble. I want somebody to draw a line, and I will get right up to it with my toe on it.’

That’s not the way God wants us to be. It’s a matter of our attitude, of our approach. Are we trying to be as much like God as we can be or are we trying to see how much we can get by with without getting into trouble? These are two totally different approaches.

Well, the approach they had taken that led into all of these lines being drawn was people really didn't have a heart to obey. They didn't want to do anything more than they had to. The Pharisees said, 'Well, I'll tell you what we will do. We will draw these arbitrary lines and we will really "rope them in." We will attach so many "do's" and "don'ts" that they won't even be able to get close to breaking the law because we will hedge them about.' It reflects an attitude.

Jesus said in Matthew 12:7, "'But if you had only known and understood what this means, "I desire mercy, and compassion and not sacrifice," then you would not have condemned the guiltless.'" Not the guilty, but the guiltless.

If you had understood the principle, the spirit of the law, if you had understood what God meant when He said, 'I want mercy and sacrifice.' God is more concerned with an inward attitude that is displayed by outward action, than He is by somebody who simply goes through the motion of outward ritual and conformity. 'What you see is what you get!' There is a contrast, a play on the symbolism.

Jesus utilized that time period and emphasized a part of the spiritual lesson. A little later we find He was in the synagogue and was teaching. Notice why they watched Him; they watched Him to see if He would heal on the Sabbath.

Man with withered hand healed: Luke 6:6-10, Mark 3:1-5 and Matthew 12:9-13.

Luke 6:7, "And the scribes and the Pharisees were carefully watching Him to see whether or not He would heal on the Sabbath, so that they might find an accusation and complaint against Him." They were doing it so they could have an accusation. They were looking for a chance to accuse. They were not concerned about helping someone.

Jesus pointed out an example to them recorded in Matthew 12:11-12, "But He answered them, 'Which man shall there be of you, who shall have one sheep, and if this sheep fall into a pit on the Sabbath, shall not take hold of it and pull it out? How much better then is a man than a sheep? Therefore it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath.'" "If you have a sheep that's stuck in the pit, you pull him out. Here this man has his right hand all withered and crippled; Christ reached out and told him, "Be healed." He knew that they were watching. They were looking for an excuse to accuse. We see their attitude. They hated Him because they felt He was a threat to their domination over the people.

Jesus prays and selects twelve disciples: Mark 3:13-19 and Luke 6:12-16.

As we continue the account, Mark 3:13-16, "And He went out to a mountain and He called to Him those He had chosen: and they came to Him. And He ordained and appointed twelve, that they might be with Him, and that He might send them out to preach, and to have power and authority to heal diseases and to cast out demons. And He gave Simon an additional name, Peter." Peter is always mentioned first; he was the leader of the twelve. In every listing that you find of the twelve apostles, Simon Peter's name is always mentioned first. We find here the listing of them. We have already gone through that.

We find here how Christ went about selecting them. He went out to a private place. He prayed all night. He was facing a momentous decision. Luke 6:12-13 mentions that He prayed all night in prayer to God concerning the selection of these twelve, going over each one of them, talking about it and discussing it with the Father before making that very important decision. He ordained them as apostles, sent them out to preach and gave them authority to heal and to cast out demons.

Jesus heals the centurion's servant: Luke 7:2-10 and Matthew 8:5-13.

Luke follows more of a direct chronological account. Matthew tends to be topical; he deals with topics or subjects and lumps things together with only the very most general regard for chronology. It's just that he is writing from a different standpoint.

Luke 7:2-5 brings out that there was a centurion, a Roman soldier, who had a servant who was sick and about to die. This Roman soldier was very concerned about his servant. He was a man that had come to have a certain regard for the Jews. He had knowledge of the Jewish religion, what the Jews sometimes termed a "proselyte of the gate." In other words, he was not fully converted into Judaism, but he was one who would frequent the synagogues and would seek to learn these things. The Roman soldier heard about Jesus and sent some elders of the Jews to ask Jesus to come and heal his servant.

These elders came to Jesus and said, 'Look, this man is a very deserving man. He loves our nation. He's been very favorable to us; he built a synagogue for us. We wish you would come and do as he asks.' Jesus went with them, and when he was fairly close to the house, the Centurion sent friends to Him.

Verses 6-8, "...saying to Him, 'Lord don't trouble Yourself because I am not worthy that You should even come under my roof. Furthermore, neither did I consider that I was worthy myself to come to You. But just give the command and my servant shall be healed. Because I also am a man appointed under authority, and having soldiers under me: and I command this one, "Go," and he goes, and this one "go" and he goes; and to another, "Come," and he comes; and to my servant, "Do this," and he does it.'"

He said, 'I understand how authority works. I don't deserve for You to come into my house. I don't feel worthy to even come up and talk to You face to face, and I certainly don't deserve the honor that You would bestow in doing that. I don't need that because I understand authority. You don't have to come over here because I know You have authority, and all You have to do is give the word. I may not understand a lot of things, but one thing I understand—I understand authority. I am a Roman soldier and I know how authority works. If you have authority, you say it and it is done.'

They didn't put things to a vote in the Roman army. Authority was absolute. When they said go, you went. There was no question about it. You didn't ask to know why you were supposed to go. You took off. This Roman Centurion said, 'I understand authority and I know You have authority. So, really, all that is needed is You just give the word and my servant is going to be healed.'

Verse 9, "But when Jesus heard these things, He was amazed: and turning to the crowd that was following Him, He said, 'I tell you, I have not found even in Israel such great faith.'" He marveled. He said, 'You know, I have never met an Israelite that had this kind of faith. Here this Roman soldier has an understanding of faith that puts to shame all the rest of you.' He told His disciples and all of those that were there, 'You know this Roman soldier understands what faith is all about—he grasps that.'

There is an important lesson to learn here, a lesson of what faith is all about. Faith really gets back to the confidence that God can and will do what He says He will do. The Centurion had confidence. So often we get our eyes on "the around" and lose sight of the power of God. We live in an age in which we are surrounded with all of the things that man can do, all of the glitter and glamour of man's technology. We are so surrounded with what man can do that we lose sight of what God can do.

Jesus made the observation in Luke:

Luke 18:8, "...when the Son of man returns shall He find faith on the earth?" He gives the indication that He wouldn't find very much.

I think we have to understand, we have to realize, that we live in a faithless age. Maybe part of it is that of all the ages that didn't understand authority, ours is probably the chief. There is a correlation of the understanding of authority and faith. Nobody understood it better than this Roman soldier. We, perhaps, live in an age that has less faith, as well as an age that understands authority less, than any other age. It shouldn't surprise us that there is a little bit of a correlation here. Christ pointed this out, and this example is set down in the Bible to give us some insight as to what faith is all about.

In Matthew 8:10, as He was talking to the Centurion, Christ told some of the Pharisees around them, "...I have not found such great faith, not even in Israel!"

Verses 11-12, "And I say to you, that many shall come from East and West and shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of heaven. But the children of this Kingdom shall be thrown into the outer darkness..."

He looked around and said, 'You think you have it made. Let Me tell you something; you see that example over there, that Roman centurion. Understand something—when the Kingdom comes, you are going to find that there are people from the east and west and north and south, from all over the world. You are going to find people of every background who come and sit down with Abraham in the Kingdom because they're the children of faith—like this Roman Centurion. You're going to find people of every background, people from all over, who are going to be there with Abraham. Some of you think you have it made because of your physical origin, but you are going to find yourself on the "outside looking in" because God looks on the heart.'

God looks on what we are, not simply on what we have or whatever the external trappings are. God looks on the heart, and that is very important.

Scribes and Pharisees accuse Jesus: Mark 3:22-27 and Matthew 12:24-30.

They accused Christ of casting out demons by Beelzebub, and He showed what a ridiculous statement that was.

We note in Matthew 12:30, “‘Anyone who is not with Me is against Me; and anyone who doesn’t gather with Me, scatters.’”

Christ had been talking here beginning in v. 25, “...‘that a kingdom divided against itself is brought to ruin and desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will not stand.’” This should certainly show that Christ is not seeking to work through two or more competing organizations. God is not the author of confusion (I Corinthians 14:33). Jesus said every kingdom divided against itself is going to fall. Now the Kingdom of God is not going to fall; God is not working through various competing, differing, bickering organizations. He simply doesn’t do that. A kingdom divided against itself is going to fall. Jesus said, “If you are not with Me, you are against Me, and if you don’t gather with Me, then you scatter.” So again, we have an important lesson. We have an insight to help us realize that God is not divided in such a way as that.

Jesus warns of unpardonable sin: Mark 3:28-30 and Matthew 12:31-37.

Christ then went on to discuss the subject of the unpardonable sin and warned the Pharisees. Let me summarize it. Sin is unpardonable it because it is not repented of. It involves a willful hardening of the heart and mind against the workings of God’s Holy Spirit. That’s why it is called blasphemy against the Holy Spirit because the Spirit is the agency by which God works with our mind. When a person becomes so hardened against God’s Spirit, there is simply no longer a means to bring them to repentance.

Christ warned the Pharisees because they knew better than what they were saying. They were very upset and were accusing Him of things out of jealousy and resentment. He knew that they knew better. He told them, ‘Look, you are hardening your heart and mind and you had better be careful.’

He mentions in Matthew 12:32 concerning this unpardonable sin that, “‘...it will not be forgiven him, neither in this age nor in the coming age.’” Now that singles out this sin. It says it won’t be forgiven now or in the future. That shows, of course, that some sins will be forgiven in the age to come.

The Catholic Church takes that verse and uses it to support purgatory—the idea that you can pay your way out in the world to come—which is taken out of context. They put it together with another couple of verses, which are also out of context, and use this to support the concept of prayers for the dead and the concept of purgatory. Many of you have come out of that background. You should be aware of the two or three verses they use to support that doctrine. This is not saying that you can say so many masses for someone and somehow help them to work their way out of purgatory because the key to being forgiven is repentance. The individual must repent. It talks about “in the world to come” or “the coming age,” not simply that you go on living after you’re dead. Ecclesiastes 9:5 says the dead know not anything. You don’t know anything until you’re resurrected, until you’re brought back to life.

The Protestant world says, ‘Boy, when you die that’s it—your fate is sealed.’ Well, they’re not right either. This verse certainly shows that there will be sins forgiven. In fact, everything except the unpardonable sin can be forgiven in the age to come, in the time of the resurrection. That is, as we understand it, the White Throne Judgment period.

Christ then went on to give a sign to the Pharisees.

Matthew 12:39-42, “And answering He said, ‘A wicked and adulterous generation seeks after a sign; and a sign shall not be given to it, except the sign of Jonah the Prophet. Because in the same way that Jonah was in the belly of the great fish three days and three nights; so shall the Son of man be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights. The men of Nineveh shall stand in the judgment with this generation and condemn it... The Queen of the South shall stand up in the judgment with this generation and shall condemn it...’”

That is the age to come. It is the time of judgment when the men of Nineveh and the Queen of the South are going to be resurrected at the same time when that generation, with whom Christ dealt with, was going to be resurrected.

So that’s the context, but notice this sign. “No sign except the sign of the prophet Jonah, three days and three nights.” Do you know why that sign was uniquely a sign to the Pharisees and the religious leaders? In a special way that was the sign of Christ’s Messiahship to them. Now think about it.

Remember Matthew 27:57-66. When Jesus was crucified, Joseph of Arimathea got the body, took it and quickly buried it before sunset. The Pharisees and some of the chief priests went to Pilate and said, ‘We have a request to make. This deceiver while He was alive said that He would rise from the dead. Now what we are afraid of is that His disciples are going to come and steal the body and then claim He is raised from the dead. Then the latter condition of things will be worse than the beginning. We are really going to have a mess on our hands. What we need to do, at all costs, is to prevent that from happening. What we request from you, Pilate, is that you will give us a detachment of troops. We will set a guard on the tomb and we will seal the rock—nobody is going to be able to get in and steal that body. We will guarantee that. We'll have these soldiers there.' Pilate said, 'Fine, take them.' So they ensured that nobody broke in and stole the body—and nobody did. But the body was still gone. You see, they had the witness of their own soldiers they had placed there to guard the tomb. The soldiers told them, 'Hey, this earthquake occurred and the rock rolled back. He's been resurrected. He's gone. Nobody came and stole the body.'

Remember what the Pharisees told them? Matthew 28:13-14, "saying, 'Tell them, "His disciples came at night and stole Him away while we slept." And if this comes to the governor's ears, we will appease him and make you secure.'" They said, 'Look, now don't you tell anybody. You tell the people that you went to sleep, and while you were asleep, the disciples came and stole the body. If Pilate hears of it and you get into trouble, we will take care of it and make sure that nothing happens to you.'

Verse 15, "So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day." That story went abroad.

Now, if you worked up a lie with someone, other people may hear it and may not know if it's true or not. But there's two people that know it's a lie—you and the guy you bribed to tell it. So Christ being in the grave three days and three nights was a witness, a sign, to them in a unique way because they had the witness of their own soldiers who were there to testify He came out the same time He said He would. So it was, in a very direct sense, a sign to them.

John the Baptist hears of the works of Jesus:
Luke 7:19-23 and Matthew 11:2-6.

We continue on in Matthew 11:2-3, "Now when John was in prison, he heard about the works of Christ; and when he sent two of his disciples, they asked Him, 'Are You the One who should come, or should we look for another?'" Now understand, John had known and acknowledged Christ to be the Messiah, but he had not fully understood all of the Old Testament prophecies. All of a sudden something happened that he hadn't anticipated. He was put in jail, and it looked like he was going to be executed. And Jesus hadn't done anything. The Kingdom was not restored and nothing was being done to stop it. John began to wonder, and, even more likely, his disciples were wondering if maybe they had misunderstood something. So he told them, 'Well, you go ask Him. Is He the Messiah; is He the One that everything points to or is He simply another forerunner? Is someone coming after Him?'

Verses 4-5, "Jesus answered and said to them, 'Go and tell John the things which you hear and see: the blind receive their sight and the lame walk; the lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear; the dead are raised up and the poor have the gospel preached to them.'" Jesus then simply pointed to the works that He was doing. He told them to go and tell John what they saw and what they heard, and in that sense, strengthen and encourage John in that final trial that he went through.

Verses 7-11, Jesus began to talk about John and the role that he served.

In Matthew 11:12-15, He said, "'But from the days of John the Baptist until now, the Kingdom of heaven is taken by violence, and the violent seize it. Because the law and all the prophets prophesied until John. And if you're willing to receive it, he is Elijah, who was prophesied to come. Anyone who has ears to hear, let him hear!'"

There's an interesting comment on these verses in the Adam Clark Commentary. It says, "The tax gatherers and heathen, whom the Scribes and the Pharisees think has no right to the Kingdom of God, filled with zeal and earnestness, seize at once on the proper mercy of the Gospel and so take the Kingdom as by force from those learned doctors who claim for themselves the chiefest places in that kingdom." An earnestness of violent intensity is necessary to make it into the Kingdom. That's the point! It takes earnestness. You have to thrust in, to really mean it, to go after it with everything in you.

Then he says in v. 13, "...The law and all the prophets prophesied until John..." Prior to John the Baptist, only the Old Testament message was proclaimed. Since that time, the Gospel of the Kingdom was preached and the opportunity to be a part of the Kingdom was now extended. It began to be extended when John began to preach and to proclaim repentance. He was the one who came in fulfillment of the prophecy in Malachi, in the "spirit and power of Elijah."

Luke 1:17, “He [John the Baptist] will also go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah....” This was prior to the first coming of Christ.

Are the intellectuals the ones that find it easiest to understand God’s plan and purpose? Not at all!

Matthew 11:25, “...Jesus said, ‘I praise You and fully agree with You, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because You have hidden these things from the self-esteeming intellectuals and prudent ones and have revealed them unto babes.’”

In other words, those who viewed themselves as the educated, the elite who looked down on everyone else, they really did not understand the truth. Some people think the scholars are the ones you have to look to. If all it took was scholarship to understand the truth, why didn’t the scribes and Pharisees understand it? All you would need to understand the truth would be the ability to read Greek and Hebrew. Greece is full of people who speak Greek and they read it, too. If they read the New Testament, they read it in Greek. It is all “Greek” to them because that is what they speak and read. How many of them understand the truth? How many of them keep the Sabbath? How many of them are converted?

The scribes and Pharisees spoke and read Hebrew. When they studied the Old Testament, they studied it in the original Hebrew. How many of them understood what it was talking about? The point that I make is that it takes a lot more than simply knowing the Greek and the Hebrew to understand the Scriptures. If it didn’t, then why aren’t all the scholars the ones who are converted?

In fact, if you want to read some of the craziest, most “crackpot,” asinine, idiot theories in the world, look up some of the great scholarly writings on the subject of the Bible. You will find every “crackpot” idea that has ever occurred to the mind of man. They look back in the book of Genesis or the first five books of the Bible and find that some verses use the name YHWH and some use the name ELOIHM. Some verses contain certain priestly instructions to the priests. The book of Deuteronomy goes back and restates a lot of things to the final generation that had been stated earlier. Instead of being able to understand what that’s all about, they come to the conclusion that Moses must not have written that. They conclude that must have been written by five different people. They come up with all of these crazy ideas.

They don’t understand and Christ simply said, ‘Father, I thank that You have hidden these things from the wise and prudent ones.’ In other words, the ones who think they are wise and prudent, the self-esteeming intellectuals, those who really think they know it all. You’ve hidden it from them and revealed it to babes. You’ve revealed the truth to people they look down upon. They look down on people like you and me. ‘What do these guys know—we’re the great scholars; we know it all.’ Well, in a few years they are going to find out how much they know.

All the arguments about the Greek and Hebrew are going to be moot because Christ is going to come back in power and glory and the argument is going to be settled. About that time, none of them standing there are going to want to be arguing about the Greek. So it’s a matter of realizing that understanding the truth is something that comes because God’s Spirit is working with you.

It says in Psalms 111:10, “...a good understanding have all they that do Your Commandments.” The key to understanding is your willingness to obey God, having a humble, teachable attitude, a child-like spirit. Part of the problem with the intellectuals is that they get so “bent out of shape” trying to reason themselves astray.

A child takes things literally. Most of us have had children. You tell something to a little child, and they take it literally. And sometimes they can come out with some statements that just embarrass the “fire” out of you—at just inappropriate times. It’s just a very simple, child-like approach. You say it and they believe it. Babes, just simple-minded enough that if God says that’s what it is, then we say, ‘Well, that’s what it is.’

God makes a promise. We believe it and we reach out and claim it. Then there are those that reason around, reason astray, and get all bogged down in all these things. We never want to lose that child-like simplicity. When God makes a promise, when God tells us that He is our—whatever He is—our Sustainer, our Healer, our Creator, our Ruler, our Master, our Lord, you want to believe those things. Simply take Him at His word and have that simple child-like approach, that child-like teachability, that very simple approach.

Let’s summarize here. We note the feast of the Jews.

John 5:1, “After this there was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.” This was the fall festival season. Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

Verse 19, "...Jesus answered and said to them, 'Truly, truly, I say to you, the Son is able to do nothing by Himself, unless it is something He sees the Father doing, because whatever the Father does these same things the Son does in exactly the same way.'" Jesus did not come to do away with His Father's law. He did not come doing His own thing. This makes plain that Jesus Christ followed the Father completely and totally.

In terms of judgment, is the Father the One that is going to judge us?

In John 5:22, Jesus said, "'The Father judges no one, He's given responsibility of all judgment to the Son.'"

Verse 27, "'and He has given Him authority and power also to execute judgment because He is the Son of man.'" The authority to judge was given and delegated to Jesus Christ. He is the One that came and lived life as a human being; God committed judgment to Him as the One responsible for that judgment.

Matthew 19:28 makes plain that we can share in that role of judgment. It talks about the twelve apostles sitting on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel. So judgment is assigned out by God to Christ and those who will rule and reign under Christ.

Let's note John 5:45, "'Do not think that I shall accuse you to the Father, there is one who accuses you already, Moses, in whom you claim to trust and have hope.'" In other words, that generation paid lip service to recognition of Moses as God's prophet. They stood guilty because they weren't doing and believing the very things taught by Moses whom they claimed to follow and believe.

Christ said, 'I don't have to accuse you; Moses accuses you'—the first five books written by Moses. He said, 'Moses accuses you. Moses has left a written record. You pay lip service. You acknowledge it to be the Word of God, but you don't do it. So you stand accused by the very one that you acknowledge as being God's prophet. You don't acknowledge Me, but acknowledge Moses—fine. I don't accuse you; Moses accuses you because you're not doing what Moses said. You do not believe the prophecies he gave. You're not keeping the laws he gave.'

Notice that the whole setting here in John 5 is the setting of the fall festival season, the time of God's judgment, the time when those in the graves will come forth.

John 5:28-29, "'Don't be amazed at this because the time is coming in which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice, and they shall come out of the graves....'" The whole setting here of John 5 is the fall festival season, the time of the Feast of Trumpets.

As we continue, Luke 8:1 makes plain, "And afterwards it happened that He made a tour through every city, city by city and village by village, preaching and proclaiming the gospel of the Kingdom of God; and the twelve were with Him." He was going through making a tour city by city, village by village. He was going through every place, step by step.

Parable of the sower: Matthew 13, Mark 4 and Luke 8.

We are beginning to get into many of the parables that are recorded. He began to teach the parables. The parable of the sower and the seed is the one that He is teaching here.

Note in Matthew 13:10-11, why He taught in parables, "But the disciples came to Him and said, 'Why do You speak to them in parables?' And He answered them, saying, 'Because it has been given to you to know and understand the mysteries of the Kingdom, but to them it is not given.'" They hear it but they don't understand it.

Verse 15, "'Because the heart of this people have grown corrupt, and their ears have become insensitive and dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed....'" They don't understand. They don't get it. Because they don't really have a heart to obey, it's just simply not being made clear to them.

The parables served two purposes. They obscured the truth from those with whom God was not working, but once you have the key to the parable, it makes the truth plainer. The parables make the truth more understandable to us because we have the key.

Notice Matthew 13:18, "'Therefore hear the parable of the sower.'" Then Jesus begins to go through and explain the parable he told them earlier (vv. 3-8). It is an illustration that those with whom God is not working, those who don't have the key, don't understand it—it just goes in one ear and out the other. If God is working with you, opening your mind and calling you, you have the key to understanding. It made the truth more understandable to those with whom God was really working.

The parable of the sower is explained. Matthew 13:18-23 shows basically the different categories of people that hear the Gospel. The word goes out.

Verse 19, a lot of it falls by the wayside. Millions of people come into contact with the telecast, with the magazine or however it reaches them; it goes in one ear and out the other. It never takes root. That's the seed that fell by the wayside and the birds gathered up.

Verses 20-21, then there is that which takes root in rocky stony ground.

Verse 22, that which falls in the thorns and the thistles.

Verse 23, finally, that which falls in good ground and bears fruit. The last three categories would be the ones that we would be concerned about because if you are here, then obviously the word took some root.

Now notice the three categories. Christ explains it.

He said, vv. 20-21, ““And he who was sown on the rocky place, this is the one who hears the word, and right away receives it with joy; but he has no root in himself, so this is only temporary: when tribulation or persecution comes along because of the word, in a short time he falls away.””

The one that fell on the stony ground, that's the ones that hear the truth, that hear the word and with joy they receive it. They get all excited; it's all emotion, but they have no depth of root in themselves. When persecution comes because of the word, they wither. You have the stony ground, the hard ground. The problem is that there is a lack of root structure. The root system is what gives staying power to the plant. Here are people that are shallow. It's all on the surface; it's all emotion. They emotionally respond very quickly, but they haven't really proven anything. They don't really know it and know that they know it! They haven't deeply proven it to themselves. The result is when things happen, problems arise and difficulties come, they wither away. They don't have staying power because they're not deeply anchored and rooted in the truth. Their roots are shallow. It's “spur-of-the-moment” and emotion; it doesn't have staying power. That's the first pitfall of the two pitfalls Christ warned about. One is not being deeply enough rooted in the truth, being too shallow.

The other is where it falls in the ground. The thorns and the thistles come up and gradually choke it out.

Christ said in Matthew 13:22, ““And he who was sown among the thorns, this is the one who hears the word; and the cares and distractions of this world, and the delusions of wealth, completely strangle the word, and he becomes unfruitful.””

The cares of this life gradually come in, choke it out and prevent it from being fruitful. What happens, other things get in the way; other things compete for time, attention and resources.

We plant a garden, and we all have to fight the battle of the weeds and all the things that come up. Ever had tomatoes come up and choke out all your weeds? Somehow or other it never works that way. If something is of value, you have to tend it. It takes work. You don't have to plant your weeds and water them. I never had trouble getting weeds to grow. They just grow. Just leave them alone, don't do anything, and they'll grow. And if you leave it alone, they'll choke out everything else. The point is that the cares of this life will crowd in; we only have so much time, so much attention and so many resources. These things crowd in, they compete, they choke it out, and finally the plant never bears any fruit.

Verse 23, the final category is that it's in good ground and brings forth fruit—some more, some less. But it's fruitful.

So Christ warned us. He says that the word takes root. Two things you have to be concerned about: (1) It better take deep root, not be shallow and on the surface, but deeply rooted where you can stick through the hard times, the tough times. (2) You better keep your garden weeded because if you don't, the cares of this life will come in and they will choke it. This is a very important parable that Christ gave.

Christ showed right here in Matthew 13:17 that we have a more clear understanding of things that the prophets only vaguely comprehended. Matthew 13:17, ““Because of a truth I am telling you, that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see what you are seeing, but have not seen; and to hear what you're hearing, but did not hear.”” God has revealed, and we have the opportunity to understand things that the patriarchs of old didn't. It's more clearly explained and understood. That is plain.

You can go to the book of Daniel. Daniel didn't understand many of his own prophecies. These things were “sealed up, shut up, until the time of the end” (Daniel 12:9). Christ made it plain. He explained things in detail that many of the prophets and righteous men of the past had only dimly seen.

There's an awful lot that is packed into what Jesus taught and preached. As we go through this series, we come to these parables. We are going to be spending a pretty good bit of time over the next couple of Bible studies in going into the details of many of these things that Jesus taught and said. Many of the details of these messages are recorded. The period this evening basically brought us up until the fall festival period, from the Feast of Unleavened Bread of 29 A.D. to the fall festival period of 29 A.D.

Next time we will pick up the story where we left off, which would be in the late fall of 29 A.D. following the festivals up until the time just before the Passover of 30 A.D. That will bring us up to the final year of Christ's ministry. One of the things we will note as we go through is that the further that Christ's ministry progresses, the more details are given—we have more details of what He said and taught.

Go through the chapters we are going to be covering next time. Review it in detail. I think that will conclude it this evening.

Mr. John Ogwyn

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 8, 9, 10, 13, 14; Mark 4:21—6:29; Luke 8:16—9:9

Christ had a perfect sense of timing. He recognized that the message He was preaching, the miracles He was working and the things He was doing were going to bring things to a real “head” with the religious leadership in Jerusalem. They resented what He was doing. The more they were exposed to the full force and impact of His message, the more they were going to resent and dislike it, the more they would be driven to do the things they ultimately did that resulted in His death. Jesus came to Jerusalem to preach. But what we will note is that until the final few months of His ministry He was only in Jerusalem occasionally. He was primarily there at the festival season. Apart from that, He covered other areas—areas that were on the periphery. In other words, He timed it to where He would conclude His ministry in Jerusalem because He knew that the full force of persecution was going to come on Him once He was in Jerusalem on a regular basis.

Word of what He was doing traveled out. Certain of the religious leaders even came out from Jerusalem to check up on Him, but they did not feel as threatened when what He was doing was primarily in the areas that they would look on as the “boondocks.” They were not as concerned with it. It did not bother them in the same way as once He began the thrust of His ministry right there in Jerusalem.

During most of this period that we are covering this evening, He was in Galilee covering the cities there, city by city. One of the things that we are going to note is the extent to which we get into parables. This evening and the next Bible study as well, we will have a lot of focus on parables that Jesus gave. Parables actually serve both to clarify and to obscure. That may sound contradictory. We find through this time that Jesus was preaching in parables.

Parable of the sower: Matthew 13:1-9, Mark 4:1-9 and Luke 8:4-8.

Matthew 13:3, “And He preached many things to them in parables, saying, ‘Now the sower went out to sow.’” He preached the parable of the sower.

Parables clarify and obscure: Matthew 13:10-17, Mark 4:10-12 and Luke 8:9-10.

The disciples asked Him, Matthew 13:10, “...Why do You speak to them in parables?” Jesus was telling these stories, examples, and illustrations; the disciples asked Him the question, ‘Why are You continually giving these illustrations?’

Verses 11-15, “...Because it has been given to you to know and understand the mysteries of the Kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given...This is the reason I speak to them in parables: because in observing, they do not see; and in listening, they do not hear, nor do they understand. So that in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah, which says, “In listening you shall hear, and in no way understand; and observing you shall see, and in no way comprehend: Because the heart of this people has grown corrupt, and their ears have become insensitive and dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and they should hear with their ears, and they should understand with their heart, and they should be converted, and I should heal them.””

Mark 4:10-11, “But when He was alone, those in his company with the twelve asked him about the parable. And He said to them, ‘to you it has been given to know and understand the mystery of the Kingdom of God: but to those who are without, all things are done in parables.’”

Explains parable of the sower: Matthew 13:18-23, Mark 4:13-20 and Luke 8:11-15.

Then Jesus began to explain the parable of the sower. He began to define for them what this illustration meant. Get the point! There are several things we learn from this. If you were to ask most religious people why Jesus taught in parables, they would say He was trying to make the meaning clear and used all these rural illustrations. No, it didn’t! The parable makes it clear in only one way. The only way is if you have the key to understanding what the parable is talking about. Jesus gave that key to His disciples.

He told the story about the sower and the seed, which was a nice story. The people must have thought there must be a point to this. But they didn’t really get the point. You wouldn’t understand exactly what the meaning was until Jesus went through and defined “the seed is the word of God, and the sower goes forth to sow.” He went through and defined what each category of the parable was. What it amounts to is God deals with everyone in His own time, in the time that is best for that individual. And unless God opens our minds to understand, then we simply don't understand.

God is not trying to call everyone at this time. If God is desperately trying to call everybody and get everybody saved right now, then you have to conclude that He has failed because the vast majority of human beings who have lived and died on this earth have never even heard the name of Jesus Christ.

Acts 4:12, "...there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved." You look at all the millions of people in Africa and Asia who have lived and died over the centuries, and you have to conclude that the vast majority of human beings that have drawn breath on this planet have never even heard about Jesus Christ, much less comprehended the message He came to bring.

If there's been a great contest between God and the devil, the devil has been winning. If God has been doing His best for the last two thousand years, how many people believe and practice the message Jesus taught? —A very tiny minority of human beings by any stretch of the imagination.

God has a time schedule, and it's not God's purpose to open the eyes of the whole world to see things right now. God knows they are not prepared to act and follow through. Most people are simply going to have to learn a lesson of human experience and "bottom out" before they are convinced that there's no way to make the devil's way work.

The world, in effect, has been on a six thousand-year experiment trying to see if there isn't some way to make the devil's way work. Over the course of time we have tried every "ism," every political, economic, social, religious system that you can devise. People have tried all kinds of things, and none of them have really produced long-term satisfaction.

Jesus came teaching, preaching and speaking in parables. For those whom He was calling, for His disciples, He went beyond His public message. He spoke publicly and there was a point to what He said. But people understood it only on a certain level. Those that He was working with, He began to open up their minds to understand and began to explain further. The parables do make the meaning clear if you understand the point of what He is talking about, if you have the key to understand what the parable is about. And it is recorded for us here. We don't have to use our imagination, wondering what that parable meant—maybe it meant this or that. Jesus defined what it meant. We are going to see quite a few of the parables as we go through here.

Mark and Luke are more chronological. Matthew skips around. Matthew followed chronology in only the most general of terms, but Matthew gives the most detailed account of what Jesus said on many of these occasions. Mark's account is more abbreviated, but is more directly in chronological story flow. Matthew tends to group everything Jesus said on a particular subject. He tended to organize his book by subject matter. When he would come to a particular point that Jesus taught, He would go through in a very general chronological sense; he would tend to bring in not only what Jesus said on the subject on that occasion, but things that Jesus said on that same subject at other occasions. So Matthew gives you the most detailed picture of Christ's teaching on a particular subject, but you don't always know exactly when He said it. You get the context of when He said it more clearly from Mark and Luke; you get more details of what He said from Matthew. That's why there are different Gospels. They tell the story from different standpoints. God used the natural proclivities of these individuals, and the way they organized the story gives us a more full and complete picture.

Let's go into the material that we have to cover this evening. Jesus had gone through the parable of the sower and the seed. We have commented on that one before.

Secrets revealed; nothing hidden: Mark 4:21-23 and Luke 8:16-17.

Mark 4:21-23, "And He asked them, 'is a lamp brought in so that it may be put under a basket or under the bed? Rather, isn't it put upon the lamp stand? Because there is nothing hidden which shall not be exposed and revealed, neither has any secret thing taken place, but that it shall be brought into the light. If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear!'"

The point Christ was bringing out was that some of these teachings that He gave about the parables were private teachings for the disciples at that time; it was not intended to be permanently hidden. God is going to open the understanding of these things to everyone, but He is simply going to do so at the time that is best for them. You don't have a lamp and put it under a bushel basket or a bed. Christ was not teaching these things for the purpose of permanently obscuring it from the masses. It was His purpose that all things are ultimately going to be revealed and made clear. Certain things are not yet for public understanding, but the ultimate purpose is for all to understand. Those of us who have an advance opportunity to understand and grasp these things will have more required of us. God expects more of us because we have an advance opportunity.

We are responsible for what we hear: Mark 4:24-25 and Luke 8:18.

Jesus went on in Mark 4:24, “And He said to them, ‘Pay attention to what you hear; with whatever standard of measure you measure it, it shall be measured to you. And to you who hear, more will be given and added.’” He tells us that we are responsible for what we know. In a sense, the knowledge of God is dangerous knowledge. It’s dangerous if we don’t act upon it and use it.

Explaining parables to disciples: Matthew 13:36-43 and Mark 4:33-34.

Matthew 13:36, “When He dismissed the multitudes, Jesus went into the house. His disciples came to Him, saying, ‘Expound to us the parable of the tares of the field.’” They heard the illustration and the example that He gave, but they didn’t really grasp the point He was getting at. He left the crowd to draw their own conclusion; the disciples asked Him to clarify it for them.

Verses 37-42, “And He said, explaining to them, ‘the one who sows the good seed is the Son of man; and the field is the world; and the good seed, these are the sons of the Kingdom; but the tares are the sons of the evil one; And the adversary who sowed them is the devil; and the harvest is the completion of the age; and the reapers are the angels. Therefore as the tares are gathered and are totally consumed in the fire; this is exactly the way it shall be at the completion of this age. The Son of man will send out His angels and they will gather out of His Kingdom all sins and wickedness [KJV, “all things that offend, and them that do iniquity”—all things that cause offense, all things that are causes of scandal, all those breaking and transgressing God’s laws] and all those who live and practice lawlessness. And they will be cast into the furnace of fire, and there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’”

What are we told here? Jesus said that the Kingdom of heaven is compared to a man sowing good seed in his field, and the enemy came and sowed tares in among the wheat.

Now that’s important to understand. In years past there were problems in the Church. One of the reasons that some became offended and even left as they saw certain problems is because they did not understand the parable of the tares. They saw individuals—in some cases in fairly high places—that certainly were sources of scandal and offense. They became bothered and offended, even to the point that they left because they really didn’t grasp the point. If they had really understood the parable of the tares, they never would have done that. They would have recognized that Jesus Himself specifically said that the devil was going to sow a few tares in among the wheat. So why should we be shocked if we find a tare here and there? God permitted it. It serves as a test. Here’s what people lose sight of.

The bottom line is not impressing people, fooling people and kind of putting one over on everyone else. The bottom line is God knows. And when all is said and done, it’s not other people’s opinion that counts. When the end of the age comes, the angels are going to be sent out with specific instructions; they are going to gather out the tares.

He drew the analogy of the field. You have to understand the way that fields were sown in that time. They didn’t use some of the modern agricultural techniques. Seed was broadcast. They did not have the drill seed planter. Basically seed was broadcast on a field. In the early stages when it began to come up, it was hard to tell which was which. If you went out and started to try and pull up the tares, you could wind up pulling up good wheat. You didn’t always know. The easiest thing was that as it began to mature, the real thing brought forth fruit and the tares didn’t. As they matured and developed, it became very apparent which was the wheat and which were the tares. The tares were gathered out and burned, and the wheat was gathered into the barn. Christ used that analogy.

Then He defined it for the disciples. It was not a matter of putting an interpretation on it. Jesus defined it as to when it was and who the enemy was. He described that there was going to be a few tares sown in among the wheat and some wouldn’t be gathered out until the end came. But the point is God knows.

We need the perspective of faith to realize that God is not shocked and surprised at the turn of events. God’s not sitting up there wringing His hands wondering what to do. If we grasp this point, then we are prepared to deal with things as they come and with problems as they come. We don’t know everything or every detail of everything we are going to go through from now until the end of the age, but I think what we have to understand is that God has allowed things we have gone through for the purpose of teaching us lessons.

There will be other trials and some of them may even be similar. We don't know every detail. We know the broad outline and the way the story ends, but we are to learn lessons using the principles of scripture so that we can understand how we need to deal with things when they arise and not be caught short. These examples and illustrations are for our benefit so we can know how we should handle it and so we can realize that there are tares. They are defined as those that offend and cause scandal, those that do iniquity and practice lawlessness—a lawless approach. They don't have the deep regard for the law of God. God knows. So, we see this parable of the tares.

Let's look here in this context. In Matthew 13, Christ gave another parable: vv. 31-33, He compared the Kingdom to a mustard seed, and then, v. 33, to leavening. The basic point was that what God does among people starts out very small and grows and grows. He compares the Kingdom first to a mustard seed and then to leavening. A mustard seed is a very tiny seed that grows up to a gigantic shrub. The leavening is something that just a little bit is put in with the flour and spreads until it permeates the entire dough. So He drew the analogy that the Kingdom of God, what God is doing among people, starts very small. It will ultimately spread out to great magnitude and great size, and it will ultimately permeate everything because that's the way God's truth, His government, the expansion of it, will ultimately permeate everything.

Isaiah 11:9, "...for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

Isaiah 9:7, "Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end...."

Jesus went on speaking in parables and explaining these things to the disciples.

In Matthew 13, He drew other parables.

Verse 44, He compared the Kingdom of God to hidden treasure, and, vv. 45-46, to a pearl of great price. The truth of God's Kingdom is compared to a priceless possession that someone really grasps the value of, and they are willing to forsake everything in order to have hold of it. He compares it to a merchant man seeking beautiful pearls; he finds one exceedingly precious pearl and liquidates everything he has to get that one because he knows that it has greater value than everything else that he has. He sells the rest of his stock in order to get this one because this one is that pearl of great price.

Or there is someone who finds hidden treasure buried in a field; they go and sell everything else so that they can buy that field because they know that the treasure hidden there is of greater value many times over than everything else they have. He draws an example, 'Look, if you really knew that there was a treasure hidden on this acre of ground that was of untold wealth, you would liquidate everything you had in order to buy that acre. You would raise the money to buy that acre because you would know that the treasure hidden there was tremendously more than all the rest of it.' If we really grasp the value of God's Kingdom and God's calling, then we realize there is no price to be put upon it.

Here He compares the Kingdom to a fisherman's net.

Verses 47-50, "Again, the Kingdom of heaven is compared to a dragnet cast into the sea, that gathered together fish and sea creatures of every kind: which, when it was filled, was dragged up on the shore; and when they sat down, they gathered the good into containers, and the worthless they threw away. This is the way it shall be at the completion of the age: the angels shall go out, and shall separate the wicked from among the righteous, and shall throw them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." There will be a sorting out process.

As we follow the story flow, we have the illustration in Matthew 8.

Matthew 8:18-22, "And when Jesus saw the great throngs of people around Him, He commanded to leave for the other side of the sea. Then a scribe came to him, and said, 'Teacher, I will follow you wherever You may go.' But Jesus answered him, 'The foxes have holes, and the birds of heaven have nests; but the Son of man does not have any place where He may lay His head.' And another of his disciples said to Him, 'Allow me first to go and bury my father.' But Jesus said to him, 'Follow Me; and let the dead bury their own dead.'"

What did He mean by that? You shouldn't go to funerals or what? That was not the point of it at all. Here was someone who was a disciple, a student of His, and in effect said, 'I believe these things, but let me put off acting on it. Let me go and bury my father.' The idea was, 'I am going to stay at home and take care of things and run the farm as long as my father is alive. Once he is dead, well, then I will come and do these things.'

And Jesus said, "Let the dead bury their own dead." The reference is to the fact that there were other relatives who were likened to being spiritually dead who could take care of the physical duties, but there were none of those that could fulfill the spiritual duties. In effect, this young man was using the fact that he had an elderly father at home as an excuse to not act on the calling that Christ had given him. Christ was saying, 'Let the spiritually dead bury the dead; let them take care of these responsibilities. You have plenty of others in the family who can fulfill those responsibilities, but they cannot do what you are called to do right now.' The man was offering excuses as to why he could not act on the calling he had been given now. He said, 'I'll do it later, after my father is dead—after a few years on down the road.' Jesus wants us to have a sense of urgency. He wanted those He was dealing with at that time to have a sense of urgency, not kind of thinking, 'Well, sometime in the remote distant future I will do these things.'

As we continue on through the account from Mark 4:35-38, we find that as evening was come, He pushed out in the boat into the sea after dismissing the multitudes, and a violent wind storm came up. The waves battered against and over the boat and filled it with water. And He was asleep on a cushion in the stern. They aroused Him and said, 'Master, we are dying; aren't You concerned? We are about to perish.'

Mark 4:39-41, "Then He got up and He rebuked the wind, and He commanded the sea, 'Silent! Be quiet!' And the wind ceased and there was great calm. And He said to them, 'Why are you so afraid? How is it you don't have faith?' And they were terrified with great fear, and said one to another, 'Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?'"

'What's wrong, fellows, don't you have any faith?' It really impressed them.

This must have been quite a storm. A number of disciples were fishermen. They were men who were accustomed to the sea. They had been out on the sea and had been in boats. They had spent their lives that kind of way. They were not easily frightened every time a little wind blew and the waves came up on the sea. These men had spent their lives on the sea. If this storm was enough to scare them and they were losing control of the boat, you know that it was severe. Because they couldn't understand how He was sleeping through all of this, they finally woke Him up. 'We are about to die and here You are sleeping.'

He asked, 'What's wrong; don't you fellows have any faith?' No, they didn't have a whole lot, that's true.

Jesus Christ had a total, deep, complete awareness of God and God's power. He had that closeness, that proximity to God. When He was confronted with something, He reached out in faith and in confidence—He knew God was there. At that point in time, God wasn't that real to the disciples. Faith and sight are opposite.

Hebrews 11:1, "...faith is the evidence of things not seen...." People base what they believe on what they can see. That is not the most significant evidence. We are willing to take people's word; yet when it comes down to taking God's word, sometimes we really have to puzzle about it and kind of work up faith. Do you work up faith every time your paycheck comes? God's word we can count on.

Jesus casts out legion of demons: Luke 8:26-39, Mark 5:1-20 and Matthew 8:28-34.

They crossed over from the west side of the Sea of Galilee over to the southeast coast of the Sea of Galilee to the area of Decapolis. Decapolis was the Roman province or section that had a certain amount of Jewish settlement, as well as a large portion of Gentiles. This was the area of the Gadarenes. They crossed the Sea of Galilee, and there was a certain man there who had been possessed by demons for a long time.

Luke 8:27-29, "...a certain man from the city met Him, who had been possessed by demons for a long time, and wasn't even wearing clothes, and didn't live in a house, but lived in tombs in the graveyard. But seeing Jesus he screamed out with a loud voice, prostrated himself before Him, saying, 'What have I to do with You Jesus, Son of the Most High God, I beg you that you don't torment me!' For He was commanding the unclean spirit to come out of the man. (Because countless times it had seized him; and he had been bound up with chains and shackles, and had been kept under guard. But he would break the bonds...)"

There was an incredible supernatural strength when someone was possessed that way.

I remember various incidents. One that comes to mind is of a young woman, a fairly small young woman in a very similar situation, in terms of being possessed and going into these things. In one particular case when this came to a head, it was all they could do for four strong men to restrain her. It was everything they could do trying to restrain her, and they couldn't entirely do that in terms of trying to hold her down. Any one of them would have probably weighed twice what she did. There was an incredible amount of strength, and yet when the demon was cast out, the problem was resolved.

That kind of thing is described here. When the demon would take over and seize this individual in terms of overt action, the kind of strength and things displayed frightened people and they were scared.

Verse 30, “And Jesus asked him, ‘What is your name?’ And he said, ‘Legion’ because many demons had entered into him.” He was actually possessed of more than one demon.

Verse 31, “And he pleaded with Him that He would not command them to go away into the abyss [the place of restraint and torment for Satan and the demons].” They said, ‘Look, our time isn’t up yet.’ They kind of panicked. The demons recognized Jesus. They knew who He was. They, of course, were fallen angels who had followed Lucifer (who had become Satan). They knew exactly who He was. They panicked when they saw Him. They knew He exercised the authority of God. They said, ‘Our time isn’t up yet; You aren’t going to put us into the abyss are You?’ No, He was not going to do that. He was going to make them come out of that individual.

So they asked Him permission, vv. 32-33, ‘If you cast us out of him, let us go into these swine.’ He did not forbid them to do that. They did and that served to panic the pigs to the point that they went charging down and over the cliff into the sea.

Verse 35, after Christ cast out the demons, the people came out and saw the man clothed and of a sound mind sitting at the feet of Jesus; it just scared them to death. They couldn’t believe it. Here was the guy completely sane. This kind of situation that we have here certainly represents God’s power over demon spirits. They have to be subject to God’s power.

Verse 37, a lot of the people around were so upset and panicked by the power that Jesus had displayed in terms of casting the demons out that they asked Him to please leave. They were scared to have Him around.

Verses 38-39, Christ told the individual to go back home (not to come with Him), and to tell the things that God had done. We find that this man, who was undoubtedly well known and had quite a bit of notoriety, went through that area. As he bore testimony of what Jesus had done, that had quite an impact on the people around.

Jesus returns to other side of sea: Luke 8:40, Mark 5:21 and Matthew 9:1.

Christ crossed back across the Sea of Galilee from Decapolis into Galilee.

Mark 5:21, “And when Jesus came across in the boat to the other side again, a great multitude was assembled to Him: and He was by the sea.”

Jarius requests healing for daughter: Luke 8:41-42, Mark 5:22-24 and Matthew 9:18-19.

We pick up the story here of Jairus. In Luke 8:41-42, a man came, whose name was Jairus, the ruler of the synagogue, and asked Christ to come and please heal his twelve-year old daughter who was dying.

Woman is healed of hemorrhage: Luke 8:43-48, Mark 5:25-34 and Matthew 9:20-22.

As Jesus went, we find in Luke 8:43, a woman who had a constant hemorrhage for twelve years. She had spent everything she owned on physicians and doctors and could not be healed by any of them.

Mark 5:26, “...she had suffered many things under the hands of many physicians, and all her means of support had been spent; and she didn’t benefit in any way, but instead became worse.”

Jesus worked very few miracles in Nazareth except, we are told, Mark 6:4-5, that He laid His hands on a very few sick folk and they were healed. This woman came up and God honored her faith.

Luke 8:48, “...‘your faith has healed you....’” You evidenced that faith.

Jarius’ daughter dies and brought back to life: Luke 8:49-56, Mark 5:35-43 and Matthew 9:23-26.

After this healing as Jesus was walking to Jairus’ house, someone came and said:

Luke 8:49-50, “And while He was speaking, one came from the ruler of the synagogue, saying to him, ‘Your daughter has died; don’t trouble the Master!’ But hearing this, Jesus answered him, saying, ‘Don’t be afraid: only believe, and she shall have her life restored!’” He said, ‘Look, don’t bother; there’s no point in coming because the daughter is dead.’ Jesus said, ‘Only believe, have faith, have confidence.’

Verses 51-52, “And when He entered into the house, he didn’t allow anyone to go in with Him, except Peter, James and John and the father and mother of the child. And they were all weeping and mourning over her. But he said, ‘Stop weeping! She is not dead, but only sleeps.’” There were all these people in there carrying on, and Christ sent them out; He got them out of there with all of their goings-on.

Verses 54-56, “But after He sent everyone out of the room He took her hand, and called out saying, 'Child get up!' And immediately her spirit returned, and she got up: and He directed that something to eat be given to her. And her parents were amazed and awestricken: and He commanded them to tell no one what had happened."

Matthew 9:27-30, "And as Jesus was leaving there, two blind men followed Him, loudly calling after Him and saying, 'Have compassion and mercy on us, Son of David!' But after He had come into the house, the blind men came to Him and Jesus said, 'Do you believe and have faith that I am able to do this?' And they answered Him, 'Yes, Lord!' Then He touched their eyes and said, 'According to your faith be it done to you,' and their eyes were opened...." Again, we see the matter of faith.

Verses 32-33, "And as they were leaving, suddenly they brought a man who was dumb, and was possessed by a demon. And when the demon had been cast out the dumb man spoke. And the multitudes were amazed...." This was incredible to them. In this particular case, this man had been demon possessed and Christ cast out the demon.

Verse 34, the Pharisees were very upset. Some people were impressed with the things that were going on. This really electrified the whole place.

Verse 34, "Then the Pharisees said, 'He casts out demons by the prince and chief ruler of the demons.'" They said He was in league with the devil. This was their attitude.

Verses 35-38, "And Jesus went all around to all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom and healing every disease and every bodily weakness among the people. But seeing the multitudes He was moved with compassion for them, because they were wandering about, as sheep not having a shepherd. Then He said to the disciples, 'Truly the harvest is great, but the workmen are few. Beseech and supplicate therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He may send out workmen into His harvest.'" Jesus' attitude toward the multitudes was one of compassion. He had compassion as He looked and saw people wondering around not knowing the way to go. They were disoriented in their lives. They needed someone to guide and help them. Jesus had an attitude of compassion.

A prophet has no honor in his own country: Mark 6:1-6 and Matthew 13:54-58.

Mark 6:1-3, "And He left there, and came to His own country; and His disciples followed Him. And when the Sabbath came, He started to teach in the synagogue. But when many heard Him teaching, they were startled, and said, 'Where did this man get these things? And what kind of wisdom is this, which has been given to Him, that even such miracles are performed by His hand? Isn't this the carpenter, the son of Mary, and brother of James, and Joses, and Judas, and Simon? And aren't His sisters here with us?' And they were offended at Him."

They were saying, 'Who does this guy think He is, coming in here doing all these things? Why we know Him. He is the carpenter. I remember when He built that house down the road. Why His mother lives over there across the village. Why we know her—been knowing her for years—and we know His brothers. How can He be anything great?' Notice the attitude of people: 'I have known Him all of His life.' What does that prove? I don't care who it is; somebody has known them all his life.

Verses 4-6, "But Jesus said to them, 'A prophet has honor and respect everywhere, except in his own country, and among his own relatives, and in his own family.' And while He was there He was not able to do many miracles, except He laid His hands on a few sick folk and healed them. And He was amazed at their disbelief and lack of faith...."

Again, we see the factor of faith in miracles. Faith is a pre-requisite to experiencing God's miracles; a lack of faith is a barrier. Even Jesus Himself could do very few miracles because people lacked faith. They didn't trust.

We have to recognize the extent to which we are in an age which Jesus characterized in Luke.

Luke 18:8, "...when the Son of man returns shall He find faith on the earth?" We live in an age that is so impressed with the things that man can do that it's lost sight of the things that God can do. An age that is so impressed with the power and ingenuity of man, that it's lost sight of how much greater is the power and ingenuity of God. It's very hard because faith is a simple thing, a child-like quality; the more sophisticated people get, the harder it is, seemingly, to have faith. It sounds like such a simplistic answer, yet we are told this in Hebrews.

Hebrews 11:6, "...without faith it is impossible to please God..." Faith is a very important matter. It is simply a matter of taking God at His word—of believing God.

In Mark 6:3, one thing that we should also note is that it is very clear that Jesus had brothers and sisters. This would come as a shock to a lot of people because according to Roman Catholic teaching, Mary was a perpetual virgin. That does not come out of the Bible at all. She had at least six other children. There are the four brothers that are mentioned, plus sisters (plural, that means a minimum of two). So she had at least seven children. She could have had more depending on if there were more than two girls. That's what it says right here. Saying Mary was a perpetual virgin is just a matter of human tradition that people had, but it is not based on what the Bible says.

Jesus sends out the twelve apostles: Matthew 10:1-4, Mark 6:7-13 and Luke 9:1-6.

We pick up the story.

Matthew 10:1, "And when He called His twelve disciples to Him, He gave to them power and authority over the unclean demon spirits, to cast them out, and to heal every disease and every bodily weakness."

Verses 2-4, He enumerates the twelve and then Jesus commanded them.

Verses 5-11, "These twelve Jesus sent out, and commanded them, saying, 'Do not go into the way of the Gentiles, and do not go into any city of the Samaritans: But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as you go, preach, saying, "The Kingdom of heaven is at hand." Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, and cast out the demons. Freely you have received, freely give. And provide no gold, silver, nor money in your money belts, nor a bag of provisions for the way, nor two coats, nor extra sandals, nor a walking staff: because the workman is worthy of his food. And into whatever city or village you enter, search out who is worthy in it; and remain there until you leave.'" He gave them instructions.

Verse 16, "'Listen, I am sending you out as sheep among wolves: therefore be shrewd as serpents, and innocent as doves.'" As Jesus sent them out, the commission He gave to the twelve is made clear. They were to go to the lost sheep of the House of Israel. At a later time, the Apostle Paul was called as the apostle to the Gentiles, but the twelve were not sent primarily to the Gentiles. Their responsibility was to the lost sheep of the House of Israel.

Why is it that the twelve disappeared from view in the book of Acts a few years after the day of Pentecost? We read of Paul, but we don't read of where Thomas went, or Phillip, or John, or Andrew, or even Peter. We have a little bit of insight into where Peter went. We are told Paul went into the Gentile areas. Why did the twelve disappear from view? One of the main reasons is they were sent to the lost sheep of the House of Israel, and if God had clearly recorded where they went, then everybody would have known where the House of Israel was. Now we can piece together historical records, and it's a very intriguing tale. Perhaps we can go into it at a later Bible study. But that's where the twelve went—to the lost sheep of the House of Israel.

They started out by going through the land of Judea in kind of a warm-up, but the real thrust of the commission was where they went in the future. Christ sent them out and told them not to make provision and to go forth.

Understand a little bit as to the setting. How did you reach large crowds at that time? There wasn't mass media or television or radio. When someone would come into town, they would announce a public meeting and people would gather in a village square. So the disciples, as they would go out two by two (Mark 6:7), would go into these villages. They would announce a meeting and people would come around. This was the way they would go to the public. And of those who heard them, if someone responded and wanted to find out more, they would ask them to come over to their house and have a meal, etc.

Christ said, 'If you get a response and somebody has questions, you go over there. You will be provided for. Don't feel badly to take their hospitality. A workman is worthy of his hire.' He told them not to put a charge on what they did. Freely you have received; freely give (Matthew 10:8).

God's Church or ministry does not charge for any of its services—funerals, weddings or whatever. Whatever it is, the principle is "freely you have received, freely you give." You can't put a price on the truth of God. We don't sell the literature. We put no charge on the services we render.

Some of the specific instructions that Jesus gave of not providing any expense money and things of that sort, we will find later on toward the end of His life as He prepared to send the disciples out after His death that He then modified those instructions. He told them, 'When I sent you out before, did you lack anything?' And they said, 'No.' He said, 'Now I am going to send you out, and this time I want you to provide for those things.' We will get into that a little later.

Christ emphasized that He was sending them out as sheep among wolves.

Matthew 10:16, 'Use your head; be wise as a serpent, but harmless as a dove. Don't go out doing damage to people, mistreat or do things that are going to take advantage of people in a wrong way. But be smart; use your head. Don't be gullible; don't be naive.

Realize people will deliver you up. You'll wind up being accused of things.'

Verses 18-20, "And you shall be brought before governors and kings on account of Me, for a witness against them and the nations. But when they deliver you up, do not be worried or anxious about how you shall speak or what you shall say: because it shall be given to you, at that very instant, what you should say. Because it is not merely you who are going to speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaks in and through you.'" 'If you are put in that kind of position, I will inspire you at the right time. I will put the words in your mouth.'

Verses 21-23, "But the brother will betray his brother to be killed; and the father, the child; and children will rise up against their parents and will cause them to be killed. And you will be hated by all people because of My name. But he who endures to the end, he shall be saved. But when you are persecuted in this city, flee into another: because truly I tell you, you shall not have finished preaching in the cities of Israel, until the Son of man appears at His coming.'" That is looking all the way down to our day.

Verse 25, "It is quite sufficient for the disciple if he become as his teacher; and the slave, if he become as his master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call those of his household?" 'Don't worry about it if people criticize you. They have called Me Beelzebub; what do you think they are going to call you? They haven't liked Me; so what do you think they are going to think of you.' They criticized Jesus Christ and accused Him of being in league with the devil. We shouldn't be surprised if we are criticized.

People are sometimes amazed. They have written these things about the Church and say we are a cult. Well, what did they say about Christ? We shouldn't be surprised that people come out and misstate what we believe, take things out of context and accuse us of all kinds of things. They accused Him. We are certainly not entitled to any better treatment than what He received. If people took exception to someone who was perfect, and Jesus was, how much easier is it going to be for them to take exception to us, who are not perfect? If you can find fault with somebody who's perfect, you can be sure the world can find fault with somebody else. They found fault with Him, so it's no trouble to find fault with the rest of them because they are not perfect.

Verse 27, "What I tell you in darkness speak in the light: and what you hear in the ear preach it from the housetop.'" You proclaim boldly what I have told you.

Verse 28, "And you should not be afraid of those who can kill the body, but are not able to kill the life: but rather you should fear Him who is able to destroy both body and soul in Gehenna.'" Some misunderstand this. Some have used this verse to prove there's an immortal soul. Is that what it says? It talks about the fact that God will destroy both body and soul. So whatever the soul is, it is something that can be destroyed in Gehenna fire. It doesn't say anything about it being immortal. It describes it as something that will be destroyed or that can be destroyed in hell fire. The point is Christ told them not to worry about what people can do, don't be concerned and primarily focused on people and what some human being can do.

You had better be concerned about God and what God can do. Human beings can kill your body, but God will ultimately resurrect you. What you had better be concerned about is not the first death, but the second death. That is the one that not only destroys the body, but it destroys the "psyche." In other words, it destroys that aspect of the person that is the person, the individuality.

There is nothing conscious about the soul apart from the body. There is nothing immortal in that sense. It is used here to refer to that unique individuality that sets apart every individual that God preserves a record of. When they are resurrected they have the memory and the mind restored. Resurrecting someone is not simply a matter of recreating a body that looks like that person because what is it that makes you, you? Your mind, character, personality, and memories—it's all of the unique things that set you apart, your individuality. God maintains a record of that. A human being can take your life, but God will ultimately restore that life in a resurrection. Jesus said don't be worried about human beings; the most they can do is kill you with the first death. But what you'd really better be concerned about is God. God can render the second death, which is the destruction not simply of the body, but of any potential for eternal life. Destroying your individuality, your psyche, destroys your potential for life eternal. So in effect, don't be impressed with people and what they can do. Be impressed with God and what He can do.

Verse 34, “Do not think that I have come to bring peace on earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword.” If Christ came to bring peace on earth, He certainly failed. Some of the most horrendous bloodlettings that have ever occurred in the history of mankind have occurred in the last two thousand years. He is going to come and bring peace, but He didn’t bring peace at His first coming. In fact, He said, ‘I didn’t come to bring peace, but a sword.’ What does that mean?

As a result of following Christ, people are sometimes going to be alienated from family members—even parents and children. There are times, that in order to follow Christ, you are going to be alienated from those human beings that are closest to you. In some cases you are going to have strife as a result of obeying Christ; persecution can come by family members.

Verse 37, “Anyone who loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me.” –Putting other people before God. God will not take second place—not to father, mother, husband, parent, child or whomever. The first commandment is you shall have no other gods before the true God. Whatever we put first is our god. God says, ‘I won’t take second place.’ God wants first place or none at all.

Verse 38, “Anyone who does not take up his cross and deny himself to the point of death, and follow after Me, is not worthy of Me.” Jesus said, ‘Take up your cross, deny yourself and follow Me. If you don’t do that, you are not worthy of Me. You have to be willing to pick up the load and follow the way I lead, if you want what I offer.’

God’s way of life is not a matter of convenience. On the one hand, Jesus said, ‘Come unto Me all you that are heavy laden and I will give you rest’ (Matthew 11:28). God’s way is a way of release from many of the burdens of this world, but we also have to realize that it is not simply a matter of convenience to be a Christian. Christ did not promise us a convenient religion where everything would always be simple and everybody would think it is just wonderful because you are trying to obey God. That’s not the way it is.

The one point we want to recognize is if we do get persecuted, we want to make sure it is persecution for righteousness sake. Every person who is persecuted doesn’t mean they are persecuted for righteousness sake. Sometimes they are persecuted because they brought trouble upon themselves, they shot off their mouth when they should have kept it quiet or they did certain things when they shouldn’t have. We want to make sure we are doing what God says so that any persecution that comes is there because of our obedience and not because of our disobedience.

Jesus said if you set your attention on trying to save this physical life, you will lose it. If your top priorities are trying to hold on to physical life and physical possessions, you are going to lose it. If that is the most important thing to you, and if you are trying to hold on to the things in the “here and now,” it will go through your fingers. If you are willing to sacrifice everything for God’s sake, in the long run you’ll prosper.

Matthew 10:39, “He who seeks to save his life shall lose it and he that loses his life for My sake shall find it.” People who set their priorities on the physical, holding on to the “here and now,” are going to find this age passing away, and the things that have been so important to them crumbling to dust. But if our priorities consist of God and His way, we have a hold of something that will never pass away. It’s not that we shouldn’t take care of and be wise stewards with whatever God has blessed us with, but it is a matter of priorities. What comes first in our life?

Jesus went on to tell His disciples in Matthew 10:40, “Anyone who receives you receives Me; and anyone who receives Me, receives Him who sent Me.” He said the way they treat you is really the way they treat Me. And the way they treat Me is the way they treat the Father. So we show respect to God and to Jesus Christ by the way in which we treat those whom God sends. It’s a matter that the disciples were sent forth and represented Jesus Christ. They were sent forth and commissioned by Him. Respect that was shown to them was not simply to them as individuals, but it really was respect to the One who sent them.

There is the same principle today when an ambassador is sent by the United States to a foreign nation. The way our ambassador is treated is considered the way this country is treated. If our ambassador is treated with respect, that is a token of respect to this country. If our ambassador is mistreated or abused, that is considered an insult to the nation, and in some cases, has been a ground for war because an ambassador was abused. The way you treat an official emissary of this country is taken personally. It is either an insult or a compliment to the nation. It's the same principle here.

Herod thinks Jesus is John the Baptist resurrected: Matthew 14:1-2, Mark 6:14-16 and Luke 9:7-9.

Matthew 14:1-2, "At that time Herod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus, and told his servants, 'This is John the Baptist; he has risen from the dead, and because of this the mighty miracles operate powerfully in him.'" Herod, when he heard about all these things, being the superstitious sort that he was, thought John had come back from the dead to haunt him. You remember the story.

How John the Baptist is beheaded: Matthew 14:3-11 and Mark 6:17-28.

John the Baptist had been put in prison. Herod's wife Herodias was very upset. She was angry with John the Baptist because John called things what they were. There had been this immoral situation going on—wife swapping and all that kind of thing. John the Baptist called her by what she was and didn't make any "bones" about it; this really upset her. Herod didn't particularly like it, but he knew John was telling the truth and was kind of scared of him. He figured John was a prophet from God and had a certain kind of superstitious respect, not to the point that he was ready to act on it, but 'this guy has something.' But Herodias was so angry that Herod had to put John in prison.

Then Herod had his birthday party, a big blowout; everybody was getting drunk and carrying on, and Herodias' daughter Salome was dancing. Now she was not a six-year old doing a tap dance. You read the account. It becomes very obvious that this was a very sensual type of thing. Here he was with his drinking buddies, all about "half-crocked," and here she came out doing one of these seductive dances—probably Middle East belly dances kind of a thing. Old Herod was getting so "beside himself" that finally he said, 'Hey, what do you want?' You get an idea of the corruption and immorality because her mother put her up to this. Her mother got her to seduce Herod, her own husband, in order to get her own way. You get an idea of the morality of the ruling family.

Verse 8, "But her mother instigated her to demand, 'Give me, here on a platter, the head of John the Baptist.'" Her mother had already told her what to ask for. She said, 'I want the head of John the Baptist on a platter,' and Herod was kind of "caught on the spot."

Matthew 14:9, "And the king was grieved and upset, but because of the oath and because of those who were with him at the table, he commanded that it be given to her." It bothered him. He knew that he shouldn't do that, but he had already "stuck his foot in his mouth." He had said this and everybody there heard it. Now he felt he couldn't back down.

Verse 10, "Then he gave orders, and had John beheaded in prison." He sent somebody out to execute John the Baptist. A little later when he heard about Jesus, he thought John the Baptist was back from the dead to haunt him (Matthew 14:1-2). This was the conclusion he leaped to. He was somewhat of a superstitious sort. He figured God was going to "get him." God did deal with him a little later. That provides an interesting story as to what God finally did and the way Herod met his end.

I think we have an overview here. That brings us up to the point of where we are going to be next time, which is the feeding of the five thousand. This brings us up to the Passover of 30 A.D. This brings us up to the final year of Christ's ministry. One of the things we will note is that the further along we go, the story begins to slow down and go into greater and greater detail. As we started out, we found that events were told in more broad and general terms; now it is going into more and more details.

So next time we will pick it up in the Passover season of 30 A.D., continue on through to the time through the summer of 30 A.D., and then right before the fall festivals. So we will continue to go through this series on the harmony of the Gospels.

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Matthew 8, 9, 10, 13, 14; Mark 4:21—6:29; Luke 8:16—9:9

1. Explain Mark 4:21-24.
2. In what way is the Kingdom of God like a mustard seed, like leaven?
3. What is the meaning of the parable of the tares? What does this have to do with certain problems and offenses that occur in the Church?
4. Does Matthew 8:22 mean you should not go to funerals? What does it mean?
5. Who was Legion and what happened to him? What was the reaction of the people in this area to what happened?
6. In what way was the woman with an issue of blood an outstanding example?
7. What was Christ's answer to the two blind men when they requested healing?
8. What was Jesus Christ's attitude toward the people?
9. What was the attitude of people in Nazareth to Jesus Christ? Did He work many miracles there? Why?
10. Where did Christ commission the twelve apostles to go?
11. Prove from Christ's commission that while on the one hand we are to freely give the message we have without charge, that it is right and proper that we take free-will donations from interested listeners.
12. How should we expect to be treated by the world for doing God's Work?
13. What should be our attitude if we are brought before government authorities because of doing the Work?
14. Explain Matthew 10:28.
15. Did Christ come to bring peace on earth? Explain.
16. Who did Herod think Jesus Christ was?
17. What had happened to John the Baptist?

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 14:13—17:23; Mark 6:30—9:32; Luke 9:10-45; John 6:1—7:1

Let's focus on the material we are covering this evening. We are covering events between the time immediately before Passover in 30 A.D. and the fall festival season of 30 A.D. We are covering approximately a six-month period. Jesus remained primarily in the area of Galilee, entirely outside of Jerusalem and Judea.

We pick up the story in John 6. In this particular occasion, all four of the Gospels have a parallel account.

The feeding of the five thousand: John 6:1-13, Mark 6:30-44, Luke 9:10-17 and Matthew 14:13-21.

They all start out with the account of the feeding of the five thousand. Now John brings in a detail that the others don't. John focuses in very specifically on the holy days and festivals of God. John emphasizes the holy days and festivals because he is writing at a much later time when some were beginning to question whether or not God's festivals really needed to be kept. John was writing in the 90s A.D. At the time Matthew, Mark and Luke wrote, the Church was primarily Jewish and there really wasn't any question on the holy days; they did not make any special comment on them.

John focused the entirety of his Gospel on the things that Jesus said and did in the context of the festival seasons.

John makes plain in John 6:4, "And the Passover, a Feast of the Jews, was near."

Verses 5-9, it was in that context that Jesus looked up and saw a multitude coming toward Him. He saw this group of people there and He said to Philip, 'Where are we going to get all of the food to feed these people? Where are we going to get enough loaves?' He asked Philip that, not because He didn't know what to do, but He wanted to see what Philip would say. Philip's eyes got big and he asked, 'Feed them? Man, two hundred coins worth of bread isn't sufficient for them; each one would just get a little bitty piece. There is no way we can feed this large a crowd.' Andrew said, 'We've already checked, and the only thing we can come up with, the only food out here, is this one little kid whose mother sent lunch with him. He's the only one who has anything, and all he has is five little barley loaves and two small fishes. What good is that going to do?'

Jesus had an attitude of compassion. We find that the multitudes had followed them, and it was late in the day.

Luke 9:12 tells us that the twelve had already come to Him saying, 'You better send them home so they get something to eat and find provisions and lodging in the surrounding area because this is out in the wilderness.'

We are told there were approximately five thousand men. It doesn't say exactly how many women and children there were, but this is in addition to the women and children (Matthew 14:21). Chances are the group was predominantly male, but there would have been a number of families that would have been included as well. The point is it was a very large group, and the disciples didn't see any way to feed them. Jesus had mercy; He had compassion. We find that He took the loaves and fishes, gave thanks, divided it among the disciples and the disciples distributed it to those who were sitting.

In John 6:11-12, we are told that when it was all over with, they collected twelve baskets of leftovers. So they wound up with a whole lot more leftover than they started out with. Generally, your "start-out-with" is a lot more than your leftovers, but this time the leftovers way outnumbered the "start-out-with." There was a lot more. It was a miracle. It is interesting to note a couple of things.

Luke 9:14-15, "Because they were approximately five thousand men. And He told His disciples, 'Make them sit in groups of fifties.' And they did so, and made everyone sit down."

In Mark 6:39-40, we are told, "And He commanded all of them to sit down by groups on the green grass. And they sat down in ranks by hundreds and by fifties." Notice the first thing Christ did was to organize the group. God's not the author of confusion. He had a big group here and He was going to feed them. The first thing He did was He organized it.

Notice one other thing He did.

John 6:12, "And when they were full, he told His disciples, 'Gather up the fragments which are left, so nothing will be lost.'" Notice that they didn't trash the place. He didn't walk away leaving a mess behind. I think it is a very small point, but it is one of those areas that give us a little insight into the way that Jesus Christ did things. Sometimes I have come into a bathroom, and you see water splashed all over the place. Particularly in a public rest room, you see paper towels all over the floor, and the place has just been trashed. People made a mess. Can you imagine Jesus Christ crumpling up His paper towels and just throwing them on the floor and leaving the place a wreck?

It's just a couple of things to show insight into His character. When He finished feeding the group, they cleaned up the area. They made sure no mess was left. Remember when they came into the cave and found the burial garments, they found the napkin for His head folded separately (John 20:7). Ever stop to think about that? He didn't just leave it in a crumpled heap when He left. He took the time for a mundane task of folding it up and leaving it neatly behind.

You might say, 'What difference does it make? I'd be so excited to leave that I'd just leave the napkin lying in a heap on the floor.' Well, maybe you would, but He didn't. It was simply a point of character that when Jesus Christ left something, he left it neat and clean. It's one of those things that give us insight as we read the Bible. There are all kinds of lessons; there are little lessons and big lessons to draw.

One of the things that we see by example and illustration is simply ways of doing things. We gain insight from that in terms of points of character, and we realize that it is something we can put into practice.

We have had problems even here in our Church hall. Deacons and ushers have a job trying to clean up the mess that's been left behind on the floor. Can you imagine coming in behind Jesus Christ where He had been sitting to clean up the mess He left behind? I know it's generally the children, not the adults, but isn't that a good opportunity to start with a little child—'okay, now let's pick up. You have this mess here; we can't go off and leave this mess.' It's a good opportunity to teach them that you don't leave the place trashed when you go away expecting that somebody else will come in behind you.

Jesus goes up into a mountain to pray: John 6:14-17, Mark 6:45-46 and Matthew 14:22-23.

After this Jesus sent the disciples across the sea and He went off into the mountains.

Matthew 14:23, "And when the multitudes were dismissed, He went up into the mountain to a private place to pray...."

He wanted some time by Himself. He wanted some time to pray. The disciples had gone ahead of Him.

Jesus walks on the water: John 6:18-21, Mark 6:47-49 and Matthew 14:24-27.

John 6:18-20, we are told the sea was turbulent and they had been rowing about three miles; all of a sudden they were terrified. They looked up, and it looked like somebody was walking toward them. And sure enough there was. Needless to say, this really frightened them when they saw somebody walking. Jesus called out to them and said it was He.

Matthew adds in a detail that the others omit.

Matthew 14:28-31, "Peter answered Him and said, 'Lord, if it is You command me come out to You upon the waters.' And He said, 'Come!' And when Peter climbed out of the boat, he walked upon the waters, to go to Jesus. And seeing the tumultuous wind, he was exceedingly afraid; and as he began sinking he yelled out, saying, 'Lord, save me!' And immediately Jesus stretched out His hand, and grabbed hold of him, and said, 'O you of little faith! Why did your thought waver?'"

Peter started walking, and then all of a sudden after a few steps, he looked down at that water, looked out there at all the wind and the waves. He thought, 'What am I doing; I can't do this.' Just about that time, sure enough, he couldn't. Glug, glug and down he went. Christ reached out His hand and pulled him up. He asked, 'Why did you doubt, Peter? Why did you waver?'

Now understand that Peter at least had a little more "going for him" than the others. He was the only one that even tried. You say Peter doubted, didn't have faith. Well, how far have you walked on water? I dare say he's gone more steps on water than any of the rest of us have. So we can't cast stones.

There is a point here. When did he get into trouble? –When he took his eyes off of Christ and on to what he could see around. That is the lesson of faith.

Hebrews 11:1, "...faith the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen..." If you can see it, touch it and taste it, that doesn't take faith because you have physical evidence. Faith is spiritual evidence. As long as Peter kept his eyes on Christ, he didn't have a problem. When he took his eyes off of Christ and looked on the around, he had problems. The immediate conclusion of when you look at the around is this is impossible, and there goes faith down the drain. This is a very important lesson: as we keep our eyes on God, on Jesus Christ, on the promises of God, we are focusing on that which will never fail or let us down. As we get our eyes on what we can see and on the around, as we start focusing in on the other things, then we are focusing on things that will mess us up.

John 6:22-25, the rest of the crowd wanted to come over, too. They waited there for Christ and figured they would catch Him when He got ready to cross. They waited and He never did cross. Finally some of them went over. We're told that they got on board boats and came to Capernaum looking for Him. When they found Him, they asked, 'How did You get here? We were watching. We didn't see you take a boat. We saw the disciples leave without You. How did You get here before we did?' Well, He didn't tell them. But He did tell them this.

Verse 26, "Jesus answered them, 'Truly, truly, I tell you, you are not seeking Me because you have seen miracles, but because you ate of the bread and were satisfied.'" He said, 'I know why you are looking for Me. It's not because you have seen a miracle or heard a message. You are here because you ate an enjoyable meal. I fed you and you'd like to get fed again.'

Verses 27-35, "'Do not labor and work for the food which is perishable and temporal. But work and labor for the food which remains and endures throughout eternity, and for eternal life, which the Son of man will give to you: because God the Father has sealed Him with His own stamp of approval.' Therefore they asked Him, 'What should we do in order to work the works of God?' Jesus answered and told them, 'This is the work of God, that you should have complete trust and faith in Him whom the Father has sent!' Therefore they said to Him, 'Then what miracle will you do, so that we may see, and may believe and have faith in You? What are You going to perform? Our fathers ate manna in the wilderness; as it is written, "He gave them bread out of heaven to eat.'" Jesus answered them, 'Truly, truly, I say to you, Moses did not give you the bread out of heaven, but My Father gives you the true bread out of heaven. And truly the bread of God is He who comes down out of heaven, and gives life to the world.' Then they said to Him, 'Lord, always give us this bread.' But Jesus said to them, 'I am the bread of life....'"

Notice the context is the Passover and Days of Unleavened Bread. The miracle in the feeding of the five thousand occurred immediately prior to Passover. Now by this time, He is back in Capernaum, and it may very well be the message He gave on the first holy day. It's very possible and it's certainly in the context of the Passover and the Days of Unleavened Bread that Jesus began to explain that He is the bread of life. So when we take of that unleavened bread at the Passover as well as throughout the Days of Unleavened Bread, we understand that it is not enough simply to get rid of leavening—we have to replace it with something. Jesus Christ is the bread of life. It is not enough to simply try to get rid of the old habits, the old ways of thinking and the old ways of doing things that have characterized us in this world. We need to have Jesus Christ in us. We need to replace the old things with something new, with something positive, with something right. We need Jesus Christ living His life in us. He, we are told, is the source of our spiritual nourishment and survival.

He says, v. 35, "'I am the bread of life. Anyone who comes to Me shall never hunger....'" Well, many of the Jews began to be upset because they didn't understand what He was talking about. They began to be offended, so He told them in John 6:44, "'No one is able to come to Me except the Father who has sent Me draw him and I will resurrect him.'" Only those that the Father draws can come to Christ.

And then He went on to tell them in v. 48, "'I am the bread of life.'"

Verses 50-51, "'But this is the bread which comes down out of heaven, so that anyone may eat of it, and not die. I am the Living Bread that comes down out of heaven! If anyone eats of this bread, he shall live into the ages of eternity; and the bread which I shall give is My flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.'"

Verse 53, "...'except you eat of the flesh of the Son of man and drink His blood, you cannot have life in yourself.'" In other words, 'you have to take Me in.' You have to consume, to absolutely take in Jesus Christ in His entirety. We are told He gave His life; He gave Himself—it was a total and complete sacrifice. We are to live by and through Him.

Verse 59, "These things He said, teaching in Capernaum in the synagogue." If He were teaching in the synagogue, it would have undoubtedly been on a Sabbath or holy day. In the context, it was most likely the first Holy Day of Unleavened Bread. He was giving a message on "What is this Bread?" He had just performed a miracle of multiplying the loaves, and now He began to explain that there was a spiritual analogy.

Verse 60, “After hearing this, many of His disciples said, ‘This is a hard and difficult message. Who is able to understand it?’”

Verses 66-68, “From that time, many of His disciples went back, and didn’t follow Him any longer. Therefore Jesus asked the twelve, ‘Are you also desiring to go away?’ Then Simon Peter answered Him, ‘Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life!’”

Many of those who were listening to His message were offended. Some began to go back and not follow any longer. Peter and the rest of the twelve didn’t really understand the point Jesus was getting at. They didn’t entirely understand what He was saying, but what they did know was that He had the truth. Peter said, ‘I may not understand what You are doing or the point You are making on this. This may strike me as a little strange, but I am not going to go away. Where would I go?’

Once you’ve found the truth, where are you going to go? This principle and the understanding of this certainly have helped some to endure and to make it through some tough times. Sometimes in the past when certain problems and things beset the Church, there was the realization as Peter had: ‘Well, Lord, where are we going to go; you have the truth.’

John 7:1, “And after these things Jesus was traveling throughout Galilee: because He did not desire to travel through Judea, since the Jews were plotting to kill Him.” So He remained in Galilee through this period of time.

Man’s tradition; washing of hands: Mark 7:1-13 and Matthew 15:1-9.

Mark 7:1, “And then the Pharisees and some of the scribes, came from Jerusalem, gathered themselves together to Him.” News of what Jesus was saying and doing was traveling far and wide. He was not coming down to Jerusalem, so they came to where He was. Some of them were very upset.

We are told in v. 2, “But when they saw some of His disciples eat bread with defiled and supposedly unholy hands, that is, unwashed hands, they criticized and found fault.” Now this really “bent them out of shape.” They had many traditions of this matter of eating with washed hands. With them it wasn’t simply a matter of hygiene; it was a matter of ritual purity. They viewed the problem was when they came into contact with other people, with sinners. That was just terrible. Before they would touch food that would go into their mouth, they had to make sure their hands were washed. They didn’t want to come into contact with sinners. They had made a fetish out of some of the principles of washings and carried it to an extreme. In some cases they had taken the rituals of Leviticus that applied to the priesthood coming into the temple and had sought to apply it to individuals in their own home at their own table. That was literally the point they had gone to. The table was analogous to the altar, and the individual was to be as holy and undefiled as the priest. This was their thinking; they had taken it to such extremes in all of this. It really “bent them out of shape” when Christ’s disciples were not following all these rituals. They approached Christ about it.

Verses 5-9, “Then the Pharisees and the scribes demanded of Him, ‘Why don’t Your disciples conduct their lives according to the tradition of the elders, instead of eating bread with unwashed hands?’ But He answered them by saying, ‘Isaiah has perfectly prophesied concerning you, hypocrites, sanctimonious pretenders; for in this manner it has been written, “These people honor Me with their lips, but their heart is far away from Me. But in vain they worship Me, teaching for doctrine man-made religious precepts, injunctions and commandments.” As a result you have completely left out the commandment of God, and you cling to and follow the traditions of men, such as the washing of pots and cups: and you do many things like this.’ And He told them, ‘It is true, you have completely rejected and repudiated the commandment of God, in order that you may practice and observe your own traditions!’”

Christ said that the Pharisees were hypocrites. They paid lip service to God, but their actions belied their words. They elevated the importance of their own human tradition above the actual law of God. That still characterizes most of man’s religions to this day—most of what passes as Christianity. People would rather cling to human tradition than to observe the commandments of God. They elevate that human tradition.

Unwashed hands do not defile: Mark 7:14-16 and Matthew 15:10-11.

Mark 7:14-16, ““And when He had called all the multitude to Him, he said to them, “Listen to Me, all of you, and understand: There is nothing from outside the man, which entering into him, is able to defile him: but the things which go out from of him, these are the things that defile the man. If anyone has an ear to hear, let him hear.””

What comes out of man defiles: Mark 7:17-23 and Matthew 15:12-20.

In Mark 7:17-19, "...the disciples asked Him about the meaning of the parable. And He said to them, 'Are you also without understanding? Don't you comprehend that anything which enters into the man from outside is not capable of defiling him? Because it doesn't enter into the heart and mind of the individual, but into the stomach, and goes out of the body into the sewer, purifying all the food.'" In other words, what you eat, what goes into your mouth doesn't enter into your heart and mind. It goes through the digestive system and is eliminated, passed out into the sewer and is gone. It's simply a matter of time and it passes through the body. That is not what defiles and makes you spiritually unclean. Verses 20-23, "And He said, 'Those things which proceed out of the man, these actually defile and profane the man. Because from inside the hearts and minds of men emanate evil reasonings and imaginations, adulteries, sexual debaucheries, murders, thefts, covetous desires and impulses, wickedness, deceit, evil permissiveness, an evil eye, blasphemy, haughtiness, pride, and foolishness! All these evils proceed from inside of the man, and defile him.'"

It's our attitudes, our thoughts and our covetous desires. It's the wrong thinking that is the problem. Some have tried to take this totally out of context and quote this account as proof that Christ did away with the laws of clean and unclean meats, which is absolutely ridiculous. There isn't any suggestion here of eating unclean foods. The subject is not even under discussion. It was the subject of the tradition of the elders, of human customs that the Pharisees paid great service to. The subject had to do with washing the hands, and Christ made plain that this was the case.

When you go back to the account in Acts 10, Peter was confronted with the sheet containing the unclean animals; you remember what he said?

Acts 10:14, "'Not so Lord, I have never eaten anything common or unclean.'" Now Peter was with Christ for three and one-half years, and there was nothing here at any time that made him think that he should eat unclean food. He had never eaten it with Jesus, so it was very plain that Jesus was not doing that.

Christ heals the daughter of a Gentile woman:
Mark 7:24-30 and Matthew 15:21-28.

Mark 7:24-30 tells us He went to the area of Tyre and Sidon and He came into a house. He didn't want anyone to know that He was there, but word did spread. A woman who heard it appeared with her little daughter who had an unclean spirit. The woman, we are told, was a Greek, a Syrophenician by race. (She was referred to as a Canaanite in Matthew 15:22.) In other words, the term "Greek" is referred to in this context as simply being "a Gentile, a Greek speaker." Specifically, she was a Syrophenician or Canaanite. This had reference to tracing back to the Phoenicians who were descendants of Canaan. She came in and desired that He cast the demon out of her daughter.

She evidently had certain knowledge of Him. Recognize, of course, that the people who lived here in this area were not normally those who practiced the religion of the Scriptures. They were of pagan background. Jesus Christ came specifically and His ministry was to His own—the Jews. He did not come ministering and taking His message out to other areas. Later, He sent the disciples out to these other areas. But God does things in an orderly and organized way.

It was God's purpose and plan to start with Israel, particularly with the Jews. They had retained the Scriptures, the knowledge of the law of God; therefore in terms of building the Church, it needed to be built around a group that was familiar with, understood and had access to the law—that group served as a nucleus. Then once it was established with them, it would begin to spread out and include others; eventually spread worldwide. But there was a logical reason as to why you start where you do. If you start with a group of people where the nucleus is totally unacquainted with the law and does not have access to the Scriptures, you have engendered confusion before you ever get started. Christ's ministry, we are told in the book of John, specifically and uniquely came to His own. His own received him not (John 1:11). But His ministry was to them. It was not here in Tyre and Sidon.

So this woman came in. He, perhaps, had come to visit an individual because certainly there were Jews who lived there a short distance away. He had come into someone's home, and He had sought to keep His presence private. He was not trying to get something started among the Gentile population there in that area. But this woman had heard and had certain knowledge. She came there.

Christ, at first, made a statement to her.

Verses 27-29, "But Jesus said to her, 'First let the children be satisfied [I have come to the Jews, the children of Israel]: because it is not proper to take the children's bread, and cast it out to the dogs.' But she answered and said to Him, 'Yes, Lord! Yet even the little dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs.' And He said to her, 'Because of this answer, go; the demon has gone out of your daughter.'" The demon was gone out and the problem was solved. There was an attitude of humility.

I think it is interesting to note that perhaps the greatest example of faith and the greatest example of humility that our attention is called to in the New Testament were both evidenced by Gentiles. You know what was said of the Roman centurion that Christ pointed out to His disciples, 'I have never seen this kind of faith, no, not in Israel' (Matthew 8:5-13). This woman had an attitude of humility. Christ, in that sense, was testing her. His ministry was not primarily to the Gentiles.

Some Gentiles had a kind of magical or superstitious approach, and anybody that they heard of and would view as having some kind of magical powers and connection with the gods, they would just add in to their collection. They worshipped many gods. They weren't picky. Christ was not going to get involved in that kind of situation. He was not there to deal with her and that group of people. But because of her persistence, humility and faith, He dealt with her. In a sense, she was dealt with ahead of time because she evidenced persistence, faith and humility. The example is preserved for us.

I think we need to recognize that we live in a society that does not value humility. Can you imagine the response that Jesus would have gotten with a statement like this in our society? This would not have been a very popular response, but there is a lesson here. God values things that people don't value. God values humility; our society and modern end-of-the-century America do not value humility as being something important. Why no! You have to demand your rights. Don't let anybody tell you anything. You just go charging on and insist on your way. You don't take anything off of anybody. And certainly don't have a humble approach. Well, God values humility, and this woman evidenced that humility. Christ was impressed and touched by her humility, her faith and her persistence; her daughter was healed.

We find that Christ continued to work these healings and these miracles. Mark 7:31-37 mentions Christ healing a deaf man.

Matthew 15:31, "So that the multitudes were awestruck when they saw the dumb speaking, the maimed made whole, the lame walking and the blind seeing. And they glorified the God of Israel."

Jesus feeds the 4,000: Matthew 15:32-38 and Mark 8:1-9.

Matthew 15:32, "But when Jesus called his disciples to Him, He said, 'I am moved with compassion and mercy towards the multitude, because they have continued with Me for three days already, and have nothing to eat. I am not willing to send them away fasting, because they might faint on the way back.'" Again, He had an attitude of compassion in dealing with people. He cared about people and was very much concerned with human beings and their problems, their difficulties and frailties.

Verse 38, "Now those who had eaten were four thousand men, in addition to women and children." Here we have another account of feeding four thousand men in addition to women and children.

The Pharisees demand a sign: Matthew 15:39-16:1-4 and Mark 8:10-13.

Matthew 15:39, "Then after dismissing the multitudes, He boarded the boat, and came into the area of Magdala."

Matthew 16:1, "Then the Pharisees and Sadducees came, tempting Him, demanding that He demonstrate a sign from heaven for them." They said, 'How do we know You are whom You say you are?'

Verses 2-3, "But He answered them, 'When evening comes, you say, "Fine weather tomorrow, because the sky is red." But in the morning, "A storm is coming, because the sky is overcast." You hypocrites, sanctimonious pretenders! You know how to discern the outward appearance of the sky, but the signs of the times you cannot discern.'"

He told them, 'You can observe the signs of nature; you can tell whether it's going to rain or not—but you don't see the signs of the times.'

Verse 4, "'A wicked and adulterous generation seeks after a sign; but a sign shall not be given to it, except the sign of Jonah the prophet.' Then He left them, and went away." They were going to have that sign impressed upon them in a special way within a matter of months.

Leaven (doctrine) of the Pharisees: Matthew 16:5-12 and Mark 8:14-21.

Matthew 16:5, "And when His disciples arrived at the other side, they noticed that they had forgotten to take loaves." They had forgotten to take any food with them. They just got on the boat in a hurry and had forgotten to take any bread.

Jesus made the comment, v. 6, "... 'Watch out and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees.'" Jesus took advantage of physical circumstances to make a point, and His disciples always tended to take everything He said in a very literal, physical way. Many times He was speaking in a figurative sense.

Verse 7, "But they reasoned among themselves, saying, 'He said this because we did not take loaves.'" Immediately they began inquiring about what He meant; 'maybe He didn't want us to buy any bread from the Pharisees.' They were all murmuring about this.

Verses 8-12, "And knowing this, Jesus said to them, 'Why are you reasoning among yourselves, O you of little faith, because you haven't brought loaves? Don't you comprehend or remember the five loaves for five thousand, and how many baskets you gathered up? Nor the seven loaves for the four thousand, and how many baskets you gathered up? How is it that you do not comprehend that I did not speak to you concerning bread, in warning you to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees?'"

He asked, 'What are you guys talking about? Do you think I am worried about where we are going to get bread? Didn't I just get through feeding four thousand people, and didn't I feed five thousand a little earlier? You think I am standing here worried about where I am going to get bread and not want you to buy it from the Pharisees.' Then they understood that He did not say to beware of the leaven of bread, but to beware of the teaching and doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

We are told in Luke 12:1 that the leaven of the Pharisees is hypocrisy. He was using leaven in a spiritual sense. He was contrasting the leaven of the Pharisees with the bread of life. We are to partake of the bread of life, and we are told to avoid the leaven of the Pharisees. That is the spiritual lesson we need to have on our minds through the Days of Unleavened Bread as we studiously avoid the leavened bread.

We can get so meticulous in trying to remember, 'No, I can't have a doughnut. No, I can't have a hamburger.' We are thinking and concentrating on this. The spiritual lesson is we need to be spending just as much time throughout the year thinking and concentrating on avoiding the leaven of the Pharisees as we do on trying to avoid physical leaven for seven days. Just as we make it a point to acquire unleavened bread and eating it through the Days of Unleavened Bread, in the same way, we need to be conscious of partaking of the bread of life, Jesus Christ, throughout our lives. Make it a point to avoid the leaven of the Pharisees and partake of the bread of life. The physical action we go through needs to impress upon us what we need to be doing spiritually.

Jesus' Church built on the Rock: Matthew 16:13-18, Mark 8:27-30 and Luke 9:18-21.

Matthew 16:13, "And when Jesus came into the area of Caesarea Philippi, He questioned His disciples, and asked, 'Whom do men claim the Son of man to be?'" He asked, 'Who do people think I am?'

Verse 14, well, different people had different opinions. Some thought he was John the Baptist. Herod evidently thought that. He was kind of a superstitious sort. He thought that John the Baptist had come back to haunt him. That was his opinion. Some said they thought He was Elijah based on the prophecies in Malachi. Some said He was Jeremiah. Why did they say Jeremiah? Why not? It just shows that people have an opinion.

It may not make sense, may be ridiculous, may not have any point in it, but they have an opinion. 'Oh, I think "so and so"' —A "man-on-the-street" poll. What does that prove? Sometimes you need to take a look at what street you take the poll on—Skid Row or Wall Street. You can have a wide variety of opinions that could be brought out. But the point is people have opinions, and just because they have opinions doesn't mean that their opinion is valid. People take a Gallup poll. 'Who do you think this guy is?' Everybody had an opinion, but their opinions weren't right. They didn't know. But not knowing has never kept people from having an opinion. Far be it from them to let lack of knowledge get in the way of having an opinion. So Christ asked and He got different ones mentioning different things that they had heard people say.

Verses 15-17, "He asked them, 'But whom do you claim Me to be?' Then answered Simon Peter, saying, 'You are the Christ [the Messiah], the Son of the living God.' And answering, Jesus said to him, 'Blessed are you Simon Barjona [Simon, the son of Jonah], because flesh and blood has not revealed it to you, but My Father who is in heaven.'"

'You didn't get this from listening to the man on the street. Flesh and blood hasn't told you this. You didn't get this from what other people said, but My Father, which is in heaven, has opened your mind to really understand and grasp this.’

Verse 18, “‘And I also tell you, that you are Peter [which means “a stone,” and refers to Peter. Aramaic, “Cephas,” “a little rock or stone”; Greek, “petros”]. You are Peter [Greek, “petros,” “a little stone, rock”] but on this rock [Greek, “petra,” “a great massive rock,” and refers to Christ Himself] I will build My Church, and the mouth of the grave [the gates of hell—Hades] is not going to prevail against it.”

In other words, ‘I am going to build My Church, and it is not going to be swallowed up in death. It’s going to continue to exist.’ Whom did Jesus Christ build the Church upon? He built it upon Himself.

We are told in Ephesians 2:20 that the Church is built upon the foundation of the prophets and the apostles, Jesus Christ being the Chief Cornerstone.

Now Peter described in I Peter 2:5 that we are all living stones. In a sense, what He told Peter was, ‘You are a “chip off the old block”—you have a certain rock-like quality.’ He had nicknamed him Peter or “rock” at an earlier time. ‘You have certain qualities; you have certain rock-like qualities. You reflect that and on this ROCK, I will build My Church.’

It is interesting if you look at the location of Caesarea Philippi. Just prior to entering Caesarea Philippi, there is a huge cliff that dominates the scene. At the base of the cliff, during the time of Jesus, a major spring gushed out from under the cliff. It was one of the sources of the Jordan River. It’s interesting. Here is the stream of living water where they were standing. Right there outside of Caesarea Philippi was a great cliff, a great rock, a “petra” that dominated the scene, and down at the base, there was a stream that gushed out from the base of the cliff that fed the Jordan River. There was a stream of living water and in that sense, flowing water.

It really kind of set the stage as Christ drew on the physical things that they could see to explain that He was building His Church. He was going to build it with Himself being the chief cornerstone. He was the ROCK on which it was built, and it would never be swallowed up. The disciples, of course, were going to play a part. They were part of the foundation. The prophets and the apostles make up the foundation built around and upon the chief cornerstone, which was Jesus Christ.

Then He went on to tell the twelve apostles in Matthew 16:19, “‘...I am giving you the keys of the Kingdom of heaven. Whatever you may bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.”

“Binding and loosing” was a common legal term used among the Jews. It referred to, specifically, decisions made by the religious arm of the Sanhedrin, called by the Jews, “The Great Beit Din” or “The Great House of Judgment.” It is in this situation, sitting in the “Great Beit Din,” that the Pharisees sat in Moses’ seat. Remember when He told the disciples that the Pharisees sit in Moses’ seat (Matthew 23:1-4)?

Look at Luke 11:52, when Jesus told the doctors of the law, “‘Woe and misery to you doctors of law because you have taken away the key of knowledge. You did not enter in yourselves, and those who were entering in you hindered.’” When He’s talking about the keys of the Kingdom, He’s talking about the keys that unlock the knowledge necessary to go in. He told the apostles, ‘I am giving you the keys of the Kingdom.’ A little later He rebuked the lawyers; He rebuked the keepers of the law—the ones who supposedly had the keys.

He said, ‘You have taken away the key of knowledge. You have locked it up where people can never understand it. Not only have you not acted on it, you have obscured the truth from others who were sincere and looking for it. Instead of unlocking things to their understanding, you have locked them up and made it a closed book’ (Luke 11:52).

He told the apostles that He was giving them the keys. He was giving them what they needed to unlock the knowledge of salvation, and He gave them authority to make binding and loosing judgments. If circumstances arise where the law had to be applied in situations and circumstances, they would have had to make decisions. They would be responsible to God for those decisions. There is a responsibility that those who make the decisions have before God.

Jesus rebukes Peter: Matthew 16:22-23 and Mark 8:32-33.

Christ was clearly not making Peter the infallible Pope. All you have to do is go down a few verses. Christ began to speak about how it was necessary for Him to go to Jerusalem and suffer many things.

Matthew 16:22, “‘And Peter took Him aside and began to rebuke Him, saying, ‘God will be merciful to You, Lord. This will not happen in any way to You.’”

He said, ‘Let’s forget about this. This is not going to happen. I am not going to let anybody do anything like that to You. This is not going to happen.’

Verse 23, “But turning to Peter, He said, ‘Get behind Me, Satan! You are an offense to Me: because your thoughts are not on the things of God, but on the things of men!’” Christ asked, ‘What are you talking about? Get behind Me Satan. You don’t know the things you are talking about. You don’t know what spirit you are because your thoughts are not the things of God.’ So again it shows here that there was nothing infallible in terms of Peter. Peter was a servant of God and one that God used.

You must lose your life: Matthew 16:24-27, Mark 8:34-38 and Luke 9:23-26.

Matthew 16:24-25, “Then Jesus said to His disciples, ‘If anyone desires to come in My footsteps and follow after Me, let him utterly disown himself, let him take up his own cross and let him follow Me. Because whosoever may desire to save his life shall lose it; but whoever may lose his life for My sake shall find it.’”

He emphasized that if you put “saving your own hide” first, you are going to lose out. He said if the greatest emphasis is on taking care of yourself, you are going to find that you are going to lose out even on what you are trying to do. If your greatest emphasis is on serving God and Jesus Christ, you are going to find God will take care of you. If you try to take care of yourself, you are going to get overwhelmed. If you put your emphasis on doing what God said and let God take care of you, He will certainly do so.

Vision of the transfiguration: Matthew 16:28-17:1-9, Mark 9:1-10 and Luke 9:27-36.

Let’s notice as we come down.

Matthew 16:28, “Truly I tell you, there are some of those standing here who will in no way experience death, until they have seen the Son of man coming in His Kingdom.” What does He mean by that? All you have to do is go to the very next verse. There is a chapter division here in Matthew. There is not one in Mark 9:1-2, which gives the same account. Man added chapter divisions at a later time. They were added in just to try to make the scriptures more manageable. They went through and divided into chapters and verses and putting numbers on them. Generally, they are very helpful, but occasionally they obscure the point by making a break where there is really a single thought flow. This is an example.

Matthew 16:28, “...there are some of those standing here who will in no way experience death, until they have seen the Son of man coming in His Kingdom.”

Matthew 17:1-9, “Then after six days He took Peter, James and John and brought them to a high mountain away from the rest of the disciples. And he was transfigured in their presence: and His face shined as the sun, His clothing became brilliant and white as the light. And suddenly Moses and Elijah appeared to be talking Him. Then, speaking up, Peter said to Jesus, ‘Lord it’s good for us to be here. If You desire let us make three tabernacles, one for You, and one for Moses and one for Elijah.’ While he was still speaking, suddenly a bright cloud enveloped them. And then a voice out of the cloud said, ‘This is My Son, the Beloved, in whom I have found delight, and whom I have sanctified; listen to Him.’ When the disciples heard it, they prostrated themselves on their faces, and were exceedingly terrified. Then Jesus came, touched them, and said, ‘Get up and do not be terrified.’ When they looked around, they saw no one except Jesus alone. And as they were descending from the mountain, Jesus commanded and charged them, saying, ‘Tell the vision to no one, until the Son of man is resurrected from the dead.’”

It was a vision—that’s all. Moses and Elijah were not literally resurrected at this time. But in vision they saw the Kingdom. They saw Him coming in His Kingdom. They saw Him in His glorified state with Moses and Elijah standing there.

What does that signify? What are we going to be in the Kingdom? We are going to be kings and priests. Moses was the one through whom God established civil government among human beings. God used Moses to establish His kind of civil government. God used Elijah to restore the knowledge of the true religion in Israel and to establish an educational system. There were three schools of the prophets. God used Elijah and Moses in those ways.

We see, in effect, Christ coming in His Kingdom. Here is Moses through whom God organized human civil government, and here is Elijah through whom God established an educational system and restored the knowledge of the true religion. The disciples are standing here with Christ, and they were given in vision insight to see what it’s going to be like in the Kingdom. Undoubtedly, Moses and Elijah will occupy very high positions. Perhaps Moses will be the one who will be over all of the civil government. Perhaps Elijah will be the one who will be over religion and education. Certainly, religion and education will be tied together in Tomorrow's World because in God's scheme of things, they are very much intertwined. Religion, properly understood, is education, and education has to be based on the true religion. So perhaps Elijah will be the one that will coordinate all of that. That at least could be speculated upon based on Matthew 17.

This is a vision. Peter quotes it later on back in II Peter 1:16-19, "For we did not follow cunningly devised fables when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were witnesses of His majesty. For He received from God the Father honor and glory when such a voice came to Him from the Excellent Glory: 'This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.' And we heard this voice which came from heaven when we were with Him on the holy mountain. We also have the prophetic word made more sure...."

The "we" at the time Peter wrote that, referred to Peter and John. James had died years earlier. These two, Peter and John, were actually the ones that God used to put together the New Testament as we have it. This set them aside in a special way. They were given a certain insight into the future into what God has in store for those who are going to be in His Kingdom and in His Family.

John the Baptist type of Elijah: Matthew 17:10-13 and Mark 9:11-13.

Then a little later, kind of in the aftermath, His disciples brought up the subject of Elijah. Matthew 17:10, "But His disciples asked Him, saying, 'Why then do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?'" They had been discussing earlier the fact that they believed Him to be the Messiah, and they asked, 'What is this prophecy about Elijah that the scribes talk about?'

Verses 11-13, "And answering them, Jesus said, 'Elijah shall truly come first, and shall restore all things. But I tell you, that Elijah has already come, and they did not know or recognize him; instead they did to him whatever they intended and desired.' Then the disciples understood that He spoke to them concerning John the Baptist."

Now notice that He makes a reference here in vv. 11-12, "'Elijah shall truly first come and shall restore all things [future].' And He also said, 'Elijah has already come [past]....'" John the Baptist came in the spirit and power of Elijah (Luke 1:17). John the Baptist fulfilled that before the first coming of Jesus Christ. He fulfilled that prophecy.

In Malachi 4:5-6, "'Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. And he will turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers, lest I come and strike the earth with a curse.'" Christ was coming again, coming a second time, coming as King of kings and Lord of lords.

I think that when we look at things, certainly many of us have felt very clearly that God raised up Mr. Herbert Armstrong back in the 20s and 30s to do the work of Elijah and to restore the knowledge of the true religion in Israel. That's what He did. He restored the knowledge of the true religion in Israel to make a people ready and prepared for the Lord. The Church had always existed, but God raised up and revived a work to be done by His Church—in bringing Mr. Herbert Armstrong among His Church and raising him up as His servant in the latter days. God raised up a servant in the spirit and power of Elijah to do that work of which we are, let's say, the result and the continuation of the work that God began in this modern age through Mr. Armstrong. God used him to restore that work.

Jesus casts out deaf and dumb spirit: Mark 9:14-27, Matthew 17:14-18 and Luke 9:37-42.

Mark 9:17-22, "Then someone out of the crowd answered and said, 'Master, I have brought to You my son, who has a dumb spirit...And I asked your disciples, that they might cast it out; but they didn't have the power to do it.' Then He answered him and said, 'O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him to Me.' And they brought him to Jesus. But when the spirit saw him, immediately it threw him into convulsions; and he fell down on the ground, rolling about and foaming at the mouth. And He asked his father, 'How long has it been doing this with him?' and he said, 'From childhood.' And frequently it has thrown him into fire and into water, seeking to destroy him: but if you are able to do anything, please help us, have compassion on us!'" Jesus had compassion.

Verses 23-27, "And Jesus said to him, 'If you are able to believe all things are possible to anyone who believes.' And immediately crying out, the father of the little child, with tears streaming down, said, 'I do believe, O Lord; but help my unbelief.' Then as Jesus saw that a multitude was running and surging together around Him, He rebuked the demon spirit, saying to it, 'You dumb and deaf spirit, I command you, come out of him, and you may never enter into him again.'

And after screaming, the spirit threw him into convulsions; then it came out. And the boy became as if he were a corpse; so much so that many said, 'He is dead!' but Jesus took him by the hand, and raised him up; and he stood up."

Faith comes through prayer and fasting: Mark 9:28-29 and Matthew 17:19-21.

A little later, Matthew 17:28-29, "And when He came into a house, His disciples asked Him privately, 'Why was it that we were not able to cast him out?' And He answered them, 'This type cannot go out by anything except prayer and fasting.'" That was the key of faith. The disciples lacked faith.

That's what it said in Mark 9:19, "...'O faithless generation....'" They lacked the faith to cast the demon out. Why did they lack the faith? They lacked the faith because they were not close enough to God.

That's the point. How do we grow in faith? Well, one of the ways is by drawing close to God in prayer and fasting. When we draw close to God in prayer and fasting, we increase our faith; we build our faith. Mark 9 gives the lesson or key to healing faith.

This account brings us right up to the point that we are going to be next time as we pick up the story in John 7 of the Feast of Tabernacles. This was the Feast of Tabernacles of 30 A.D., which brings us up to within six months of the end of Jesus' human life and ministry. As we have gone through, we have noted how, as we close in on the end of Christ's ministry, the account begins to go into greater and greater detail. Increasingly, God focuses in on that detail and on what Jesus said and did. There are many, many lessons that we can derive. There are many things that we can gain insight into—insights into the things that Jesus Christ taught, things that He said, things that He did, things that give us a basis by which we can live our lives, things we can put into practice in our lives and the things we must do.

Next time we will pick up at the Feast of Tabernacles 30 A.D. This will conclude the Bible study for this evening.

Bible Study # 34 Questions

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Matthew 14:13—17:23; Mark 6:30—9:32; Luke 9:10-45; John 6:1—7:1

1. About how many people did Christ feed from the five barley loaves and the two small fishes? Was there a confused melee when the feeding took place? Explain.
2. What promoted Peter to begin to sink instead of continuing to walk on the water?
3. What did Christ mean “I am the bread of life”?
4. Who can come to Christ?
5. How did Christ characterize the religion of the Pharisees in Mark 7?
6. Explain Mark 7:18-19. Does it mean that Christ was doing away with God’s law of clean and unclean meats?
7. Explain the exchange between Christ and the Syrophenician woman with the demon-possessed daughter.
8. Explain Matthew 16:6.
9. Explain Matthew 16:18.
10. Explain Matthew 16:19.
11. Was Christ here making Peter the infallible Pope? Prove from context.
12. Explain Matthew 16:28.
13. Who was the Elijah that prepared the way for the first coming of Christ?
14. What important key to healing faith did Christ give in Mark 9?

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 17:24—18:35; Mark 9:33—10:1; Luke 9:46—12:59; John 7:2—10:21

We are picking up the story immediately prior to the Feast of Tabernacles of 30 A.D. This study focuses on the things that Jesus said and did, particularly during the Last Great Day. It is interesting to the extent that John focuses in on the actions of Jesus in conjunction with the holy days. This is what we are looking at this evening. Most of His ministry, prior to this time, has been in Galilee. We see that there has been an increase in the time that He is spending around Jerusalem. Once He started spending very much time teaching and preaching in Jerusalem, it was going to bring Him into a confrontation with the religious leaders because of their jealousy against Him.

We pick up the story in John 7:2, “Now the Feast of the Jews was approaching, the Feast of Tabernacles.” There was a reason why He used the term “Feast of the Jews.” John was writing about thirty years after the other apostles were gone. He was writing after the disappearance of Peter, Paul and those of that generation. The other Gospels had already been written. The holy days were not really an issue at the time the rest was written. The keeping of the holy days was not an issue one way or another. At the time John wrote, at the end of the first century, there had already begun to arise certain heresies after the Romans destroyed Jerusalem. He emphasized over and over that Jesus observed the same days the Jews observed.

Verses 3-5, “Then His own brothers said to Him, ‘Leave here, and go into Judea, so that Your disciples also may see Your works which You are doing. Because no one does anything in secret, but seeks to be known by the public. If You do these things, reveal and show Yourself to the world.’ For even His own brothers did not believe in Him.”

Think for a moment. They had grown up with Him. How difficult would it have been for you to accept that your brother was God in the flesh? Jesus was maybe two or three years older than James. James was the oldest, next to Christ. They were playing with Him, working with their Dad, and helping in the carpentry business. It was a very difficult thing for them. They had admired and respected Him, but “God in the flesh!” That was kind of a “tall order;” it had not really sunk in. They did believe after the resurrection. When He appeared to them after the resurrection, they had no question. Then the reality hit them. But at this point, they just didn’t really believe these things and understand them.

The only statement Jesus ever made concerning the Feast of Tabernacles was in v. 8, “...as for you, you go up to this Feast of Tabernacles....”

I Corinthians 5:8, “Therefore let us keep the Feast...” –The Days of Unleavened Bread.

Hebrews 4:9, “There remains therefore a rest [a Sabbath keeping] for the people of God.” The New Testament is very plain. “...Go up to the Feast...” Some people say the New Testament doesn’t say anything about keeping the holy days. Where does it say to keep Christmas? Where did you ever see that? The world can’t find where it says to keep Easter, Christmas or Sunday.

John 7:10, “But when His own brothers had gone up, then He also went up to the Feast, not publicly, but secretly.” He went up secretly.

Verse 11, “Now the Jews were searching for Him at the Feast, and asked, ‘Where is He?’” The Jews were looking for Him; He knew what they were up to. Actually, they had a contract out on Him. But they were not going to risk a public confrontation. They viewed Him as a threat. They wanted to get rid of Him. He knew if He went up the way everybody was expecting, it would create problems. He just kind of got lost in the crowd. And suddenly, there He was there in the temple in the middle of the crowd.

Verse 14, “But about the middle of the Feast, Jesus went up into the temple and was teaching.” Then it was a little late for them to do anything. They would have had to do it in full view, and they didn’t want to take that risk.

Verse 24, “Judge not according to the outward appearance, but judge righteous judgment.” This is the crux of the Feast; it pictures the Millennium. What are we going to do in Tomorrow’s World? We are going to judge the world. What is going to be the basis? Righteous judgment! That is the trouble of serving on the world’s juries and courts. They want to make decisions based on technical matters, on the form of things. Christ said judge righteous judgment based on motive and intent. This is what He emphasized during the Feast of Tabernacles. The Feast looks forward to that time of righteous judgment.

Verses 25-31, “Therefore some of those of Jerusalem said, ‘Isn’t this the One they are seeking and plotting to kill? And look, He is preaching publicly, and they are saying nothing to Him. When did the rulers truly recognize that this is indeed the Christ? But we know this Man, where He is from. And the Christ, whenever He may come, no one will know where He is from.’ Then Jesus called aloud in the temple, as He was teaching, and said, ‘You both know Me, and you know where I am from. I have not come of Myself alone, but He who sent Me is true, whom You do not even know. But I know Him: because I am from Him, and He has sent Me.’ Therefore they were seeking to take Him: but no one laid his hands upon Him, because His hour had not yet come. But many of the people believed and had faith in Him, and said, ‘The Christ, when He comes, will He do more miracles than these which this Man has done?’”

Verses 37-39, “And in the Last Day, the Great Day of the Feast, Jesus stood up and called aloud, saying, ‘If anyone thirst, let him come to Me and drink! Anyone who believes and has complete faith and trust in Me, as the Scripture has said, Out of his innermost being shall flow rivers of living water.’ But He said this concerning the Spirit, which those who were believing in Him were going to receive: because the Holy Spirit had not been given, since Jesus was not yet glorified.” Jesus was speaking concerning the Holy Spirit.

It is interesting if you understand the ceremony that took place at the temple on the day that began the Last Great Day. It was the pouring out of water drawn from the well of Siloam. The priests utilized a particular verse in Isaiah.

Isaiah 12:3, “Therefore with joy you will draw water from the wells of salvation.” The Jews had at least an insight and certain understanding because the Last Great Day looks forward to a time when everyone who is spiritually thirsty will have access to the waters of salvation. Jesus, by what He said and did, explained the meaning of the Last Great Day, the eighth day of solemn assembly.

Jesus began His teaching by illustrating the fact that this pictures a time when everyone who is spiritually thirsty will have access to the waters of salvation. That is not the case right now.

John 6:44, “No one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws him; and I will raise him up at the last day.” The White Throne Judgment is the time when all who spiritually thirst will be able to come. The Holy Spirit will be available to them.

People were disputing with one another. Some of the officers had gone out there and wanted to take Him.

John 7:43-53, “Then a division occurred among the people. And some of the officers wanted to take Him; but not one of them arrested Him. Then the officers returned to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they asked them, ‘Why didn’t you bring Him?’ The officers answered, ‘Never has a man spoken as this Man speaks!’ The Pharisees answered them, ‘Have you also been deceived? Have any of the rulers and leaders believed in Him, or have any of the Pharisees? But this multitude which does not understand or know the law is accursed.’ Then Nicodemus (he was the one who came to Jesus by night, being one of them) said to them, ‘Does our law judge and condemn the Man unless we hear from the Man Himself first, and we understand what He is doing?’ They answered and said to him, ‘Are you also from Galilee? Search and see, that a prophet has never come out of Galilee!’ And every man went to his own house.” This is the evening portion of the Last Great Day.

John 8:1-2, “But Jesus went to the Mount of Olives. And early in the morning [morning of the Last Great Day] He came again into the temple, and all the people came to Him; and He sat down and began teaching them.” There was a crowd that gathered around.

Verses 3-6, “Then the scribes and Pharisees brought a woman to Him who had been caught in adultery; and after displaying her in the middle of them, they said to Him, ‘Master, this woman was caught in the very act of committing adultery. Now in the law, Moses commanded us to stone such persons. Therefore what do You say?’ But this they said, tempting Him, that they might be able to accuse Him....” They were tempting Him. They were going to argue with anything He said. They had long since ceased to exercise the penalty that the law required. If Jesus had opted out on the side that it was too harsh, then they would have accused Him of ignoring the law. But if He said to stone her, they would have tried to make Him look unjust.

Verses 6-8, “...But Jesus leaned forward, and with His finger wrote on the ground. But as they continued asking Him, He lifted Himself up, and said to them, ‘The sinless one among you, let him throw the first stone at her!’ And again He leaned forward, and wrote on the ground.” He could have written names and dates.

Verse 9, “But after hearing that, and being convicted by their own conscience, they went out one by one, beginning with the eldest, until the last....” They began to slink away.

Verses 10-11, “Then Jesus lifted Himself up, and seeing none of the accusers, but the woman, He asked her, ‘Woman, where are your accusers? Didn’t anyone condemn you?’ And she said, ‘No one, Lord.’ And Jesus said to her, ‘Neither do I condemn you. Go, and never sin again like that!’”

The evening portion He taught about the Holy Spirit; we will have free access to the Spirit. The next day, the day portion, what was He going to teach them? What was going to occur on the Last Great Day? He was going to sit in judgment. People would be brought before Him in their sin. What was He going to tell them? ‘Go and sin no more! I am going to give you a chance to change.’

Then He began to speak about being the light of the world and about judgment.

Verse 12, “Then Jesus spoke to them again, saying, ‘I am the light of the world. Anyone who follows Me shall never walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.’”

Verses 15-16, “‘You judge according to the dictates of human nature; I judge no one with that standard! And if also I judge, My judgment is absolutely true: because I am not alone, but I and the Father who has sent Me.’” The Pharisees began to get very upset. They didn’t like what Christ was teaching them. They didn’t like what He was teaching the crowd about judgment and His position.

Verses 30-31, “As He was speaking these things, many believed on Him. Then Jesus said to the Jews who believed on Him, ‘If you continue in and live by My word, truly you are My disciples.’” That is what makes you a disciple of Christ—if you continue in His word. Many think all you have to do is believe, but He says, ‘If you continue in My word, then you are My disciple and you have to endure to the end’ (Matthew 24:13).

John 8:34-36, “Jesus answered them, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, that everyone who is practicing sin is a slave of sin. Now the slave does not live in the house forever. The Son lives forever, into the ages of eternity. Therefore if the Son shall set you free, you shall truly be free.’”

Verses 41-44, “‘You practice and do the works of your Father!’ Then they said to Him, ‘We have not been born from fornication. We have one father, even God!’ Therefore Jesus said to them, ‘If God were really your Father, you would love Me: because I proceeded forth and came from God; neither have I come of My own self, but He has sent Me. Why don’t you understand My speech? Because you are not able to hear or understand My word. You are of your father, the devil, and you love to practice and execute the lust of your father! He was a murderer from the very beginning, and did not live by or remain in the truth, because there is not truth in him. Whenever he tells a lie, he is speaking from his own heart: because he is a liar, and the father and instigator of it!’”

Those are pretty strong words. ‘You are of your father the devil. You are a “chip-off-the-old-block.” He was a murderer from the beginning; a liar and the father of the lie.’ They were ready to murder Him for this.

Verse 59, “Then they picked up stones to stone Him: but Jesus hid Himself, and went out of the temple, going through the middle of the crowd, and in this way escaped.” There was a crowd.

John 9:1-2, “And as He came along, He saw a man who was blind from birth. And His disciples asked Him, saying, ‘Master, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?’ He was blind from birth. People were asking what happened.

Verse 3, “Jesus answered, ‘Neither did this man sin, nor his parents: but this man was born blind so that the works of God might be demonstrated in him.’”

Verse 6, “After saying these things, he spit on the ground, and made clay out of the spittle, and applied the clay to the blind man’s eyes.”

Verses 7-12, “And He told him, ‘Go and wash in the pool Siloam,’ which is interpreted, Sent. Then he went, and washed, and returned seeing. Now the neighbors and those who had seen him before, when he was blind, said, ‘Isn’t this the one who was sitting and begging?’ Some said, ‘He is the one:’ but others said, ‘He is just like him.’ He said, ‘I am the one!’ Then they asked him, ‘How were your eyes opened?’ He answered and said, ‘A man called Jesus made clay, and applied it to my eyes, and told me, “Go to the pool of Siloam and wash:” and when I had gone and washed, I received sight and could see.’ So they asked him, ‘Where is He?’ He said, ‘I do not know.’”

Verse 14, “Now it was the Sabbath when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.” It was the Sabbath and the Last Great Day. This was a weekly Sabbath as well. The Pharisees became upset. They were accusing Christ of breaking the Sabbath because He had performed this healing. Verses 15-19, "Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight; and he told them, 'He put clay on my eyes, and I washed, and now I see.' Therefore some of the Pharisees said, 'This man is not from God, because He does not keep the Sabbath.' Others said, 'How can a man be a sinner, and perform miracles?' And there was a division among them. They asked the blind man again, 'What do you say concerning this Man, because He opened your eyes.' And he said, 'He is a prophet!' Therefore the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had actually been blind, and had received sight and could see, until they called the parents of the man who could now see. And they asked them, saying, 'Is this really your son, whom you claim was born blind? Then how is it that he is able to see now?'"

Verses 20-21, "His parents answered them and said, 'We know that this man is our son, and that he was really born blind. But how he is able to see now, we do not know; and who opened his eyes, we do not know. He is of legal age. Ask him: he can speak for himself.'" If you want to know any more than that, you ask him.

Verses 24-27, "So they called in the man who had been blind a second time, and told him, 'Give glory to God. We are sure and know that this man is a sinner.' Then he answered and said, 'I do not know if He is a sinner. But one thing I do know: that I was blind, and now I see.' But they asked him again, 'What did He do to you? How did He open your eyes?' He answered them, 'I have told you already, and you did not listen. Why do you wish to hear about it again? Do you also want to become His disciples?'"

'I already told you and you don't want to hear it.' These were frightening words.

Verses 28-30, "Therefore they ridiculed him, saying, 'You are His disciple; but we are Moses' disciples and followers. We know that God spoke to Moses: but this Man, we do not even know where He is from.' The man answered and said to them, 'Truly this is a marvelous and wonderful thing, that He opened my eyes, and yet you do not even know where He is from.'"

'This is a marvelous thing. He opened my eyes and you don't even know where He is from.'

Verse 32, "'It has never been heard of, that anyone has opened the eyes of one who had been born blind.'" He really told these guys off.

Verses 33-41, "'If this man were not from God, He could do nothing.' They answered and said to him, 'You were born entirely in sin, and are you teaching us?' So they cast him out. Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and after finding him, He asked him, 'Do you believe and have faith in the Son of God?' He answered and said, 'Lord, who is He, that I may believe and have faith in Him?' And Jesus said to him, 'You have also seen Him, and the One who is speaking with you is He.' Then he said, 'Lord, I do believe and have faith;' and he worshipped Him. And Jesus said, 'For judgment I have come into this world, so that those who do not see might be able to see; and those who see might become blind.' And those of the Pharisees who were with Him heard these things, and they asked Him, 'Are we also blind?' Jesus told them, 'If you were really blind, you would not have any sin: but now you claim, "We can see"; therefore your sin remains and continues!'"

Jesus healed the blind man on the Last Great Day. What, again, is going to happen on the White Throne Judgment? The spiritual blindness of the whole world is going to be removed. In Tomorrow's World, He is going to remove the spiritual blindness of the whole world. Those who really don't see are not held accountable. He made it plain that people are responsible for what they know. He told the Pharisees that they had knowledge and they were held accountable (v. 41). Those who see and don't act on what they see are going to be held accountable. Those who don't see will not be held accountable. The point is not whether you are immersed in water and spiritually blind. God is going to give every person a chance to see and understand the truth. It is not a matter of a first or second chance. God looks on the heart. He knows whether the person sees and understands. Nobody ever plays games with God.

John 10:1-7, "'Truly, truly I tell you, anyone who does not enter in through the door into the sheepfold, but climbs up some other way, he is an extortioner, a thief and a robber. But he who enters in through the door is the shepherd of the sheep. The doorkeeper will open to him; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calls every one of his own sheep by name, and leads them. And when he brings his own sheep out, he goes out in front of them, and the sheep follow him: because they know and understand his voice. But a stranger they will never follow in any way, but will run away from him: because they do not know or recognize the voice of strangers.' Jesus spoke this allegory to them: but they did not understand those things which He was speaking to them. Therefore Jesus again said to them, 'Truly, truly, I say to you, that I am the door of the sheep.'"

Verse 9, "I am the door...." He emphasizes again.

Verses 10-12, "The thief does not come except that he may steal, extort, kill and destroy: I came so that they might have life, and might have life more abundantly! I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd lays down His life for the sheep. But the hired servant, who is not the Shepherd, and the sheep are not his own, when he sees the wolf stalking the sheep, leaves the sheep all alone, and escapes and runs away: and the wolf seizes some of them and drags them away, and scatters the rest of the sheep." The hireling is simply in it for the money, for pay. He is not going to put his life on the line.

Verses 14-16, "I am the Good Shepherd, and I know and understand those who are My own and I am known and understood by those who are My own. Just as the Father knows Me, I also know and understand the Father: and I lay down My life for the sheep. I also have other sheep, which are not of this fold: it is also ordained and necessary for Me to bring those to Me, and they will hear My voice: and there shall be one flock, and one Shepherd."

We are the sheep of God's pasture, but He has other sheep in the Last Great Day. We are the ones who teach as Jesus taught. He has others that He has not yet called. This doesn't represent the end of what God is doing. It is the beginning, the starting point. It's not a bunch of competing sheepfolds. There is only one way in. It is through Jesus Christ. He is the door. Christ made it plain there is one way. 'It is through Me, I am the door. You don't get to the Father but through Me; I have other sheep.' He shows the quality of the Good Shepherd.

Verse 15, "Just as the Father knows Me, I also know and understand the Father: and I lay down My life for the sheep." He knows the sheep. The Good Shepherd lays down His life for the sheep. There was the spiritual standpoint.

This basically concludes the teachings of Christ on the Last Great Day.

John 7, 8, 9 and 10 has a lot packed in them which ties in with the spiritual emphasis of the Last Great Day. John preserved the details of Christ's teaching in this information because it emphasizes the spiritual lessons to be learned from the festival.

Dispute among disciples: Matthew 18:1-5, Mark 9:33-37 and Luke 9:46-48.

Matthew 18:1, "At that time the disciples came to Jesus, asking, 'Who then is the greatest in the Kingdom of heaven?'"

Mark 9:34, "But they remained silent: because on the way they had been discussing among each other who would be the greatest." Who would be the most important when He sets up the Kingdom? You want to know who will be the greatest?

Matthew 18:2-4, "Then Jesus called a little child to Him, and He placed him in the middle of them, and said, 'Truly I tell you, unless you are converted, and become as little children, you shall in no way enter into the Kingdom of heaven. Therefore anyone who will humble himself as this little child, he is the greatest in the Kingdom of heaven.'"

You want to know who will be the greatest? You won't even be there if you don't develop this child-like attitude of humility and dependence. A little child is dependent. He needs his Mother and Daddy. Let a little child get into trouble, and they want Mommy and Daddy.

We need to have this attitude toward God. We need to be going to our Father in heaven realizing how we need to walk with Him. When a child perceives danger, he wants to hang on to Mommy and Daddy. We need to have that relationship with God and need to be aware of how much we need Him. We must be aware of Him and have confidence in Him. We are to have an attitude that is teachable and humble, dependent on our Father in heaven. Christ brings out and shows us this attitude here.

Man casting out demons in Jesus' name: Mark 9:38-41 and Luke 9:49-50.

Mark 9:38-39, "Then John answered him, saying, 'Master, we saw someone casting out demons in Your name, who doesn't follow us: and we prevented him, because he doesn't follow us.' But Jesus said, 'Don't try to prevent him....'" If someone has respect for God's word, God will deal with it. We should not be trying to undermine someone.

Warning of offending little ones: Matthew 18:6-14 and Mark 9:42-50.

Matthew 18:6, "But whoever shall cause one of these little ones who believe in Me to offend or sin, it is more profitable for him that a millstone [the size turned by a donkey] should be hung around his neck, and he be hung around his neck, and he be sunk down into the deepest part of the ocean." We should be conscious of our example that we do not conduct ourselves in a loose, permissive way. And somebody who is excited about the truth ends up turned off because of God's people who know better, but are not doing better.

Mark 9:42-47, “But whoever may cause one of the little ones who believe in Me to sin, it would be better for him if a millstone were hung around his neck, and he were thrown into the sea. But if your hand should cause you to sin, cut it off: it is better for you to enter into life maimed, rather than having your two hands and for you to go away into Gehenna, into the unquenchable fire: Where their worm doesn't die, and the fire is not quenched. And if your foot should cause you to sin, cut it off: it is better for you to enter into life lame, rather than having your two feet and for you to be thrown into Gehenna, into the unquenchable fire: Where their worm doesn't die, and the fire is never quenched. And if your eye should cause you to sin, pluck it out: it is better for you to enter into the Kingdom of God with one eye, rather than having your two eyes and for you to be thrown into Gehenna fire.”

What does it mean? You don't let anything get in your way. Nothing! No matter how precious, how close to you or important, don't hold on to it at risk of losing salvation. The literal cutting off of a hand is a figure of speech—it does not stop sin. It was to emphasize that you go to lengths to get rid of sin. You don't hold on to sin.

Matthew 18:15-17, “Now if your brother sins against you, go and admonish him between you and him alone. If he will listen to you, you have won back your brother. But if he will not listen, take one or two more with you, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established. But if he fails to listen to them, then tell it to the church. And if he also fails to listen to the church, let him be to you the same as the heathen and the publican.”

‘Go to him, and then if he doesn't listen, take someone with you. Then if he doesn't listen, go to the Church. If he has to be disfellowshipped, God will back up those decisions.’

The term “binding and loosing” has to do with judgment and making judgmental decisions. If you have a problem with someone, the starting point is to try and settle it with that person if you can. Then get somebody to go with you, individuals that you mutually respect that you can sit down with. Sometimes it is just helpful to have a third party there, someone who can help you get it resolved. If you are not able to get the problem resolved, you go to the Church. You go to the ministry, and then the Church becomes officially involved. Then if the individual is unwilling to listen, he has cut himself off. As a part of the Church, we have to recognize that authority.

Verses 18-20, “Truly I tell you, whatever you shall bind on the earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Again I tell you, that if two of you on earth may come to an agreement concerning any matter, then whatever they shall ask, it shall be done for them by My Father who is in heaven. Because where two or three are assembled together in My name, I am there among them.” Christ said He will back you up.

Verses 21-22, “Then Peter came to Him and said, ‘Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I have to forgive him? Even as many as seven times?’ Jesus said to him, ‘I tell you, not just until seven times: but until seventy times seven!’” Peter wanted to show that he had gotten the point. He would be willing to forgive him seven times if his brother sins against him—Christ said seventy times seven.

Verses 23-27, “Therefore the Kingdom of heaven will be compared to a man, a king, who decided to compute his accounts with his servants. And after he had begun computing, there was brought to him one debtor, who owed ten thousand talents. But when he did not have anything to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, also his wife and his children, and everything, as much as he possessed, and payment to be made. Then the servant prostrated himself, and worshipped him, saying, ‘Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay everything to you!’” And being moved with compassion and mercy, the lord of the servant released him, and forgave him the loan.” He was going to write off the debt.

Verses 28-30, “But when that same servant left, he went out and found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him a hundred coins; and he seized him, and choked him, demanding, ‘Pay what you owe me!’” Therefore his fellow servant prostrated himself at his feet, and pleaded with him, saying, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay you everything!’” But he would not listen: instead he went and threw him into prison, until he would pay everything that was owing.” He had the guy thrown in jail. He was going to get his.

Verses 31-33, “But his fellow-servant, when they saw what things had taken place, were extremely distressed, and went and related to their lord all that had taken place. Then his lord called him in, and said to him, ‘You evil and wicked servant, I forgave you all that debt because you begged me. Shouldn't you also have had compassion and mercy on your fellow-servant, as I had compassion and mercy on you?"

They went and told the king. He said, 'You wicked servant; I forgave you everything you owed [ten thousand talents], shouldn't you have had compassion on this guy who owed you a dollar?'

Verses 34-35, "And his lord was furious, and handed him over to the tormentors, until he would pay all that was owing to him. In the same way will My heavenly Father also do to you, unless each one of you from your heart forgives your brother his offenses and sins."

Forgive your brother from the heart. You want God to keep tally on you? 'I am going to "zap" him.' How long does it take you to get up to four hundred ninety (seventy times seven)?

The point is we go to God and ask for forgiveness. He stands ready to forgive us; and if we are going to expect to be a partaker of God's mercy, we better expect to have mercy. We can't stand there having an unforgiving attitude. Maybe a person has to bring forth some fruits before they can be trusted, but you should be willing to give him an opportunity to show those fruits. It is a matter of having a merciful attitude; when you see they have changed, you give them a chance. You don't hold a grudge, a vengeful, retaliatory kind of attitude—I am going to "fix" you! If we want God to forgive us, we need to forgive others. Christ was giving an example of this.

Jesus passes through Samaria: Luke 9:51-56, Matthew 19:1-2 and Mark 10:1.

Matthew 19:1, "...He left Galilee, and came into the area of Judea on the other side of the Jordan."

Luke 9:51, "...He absolutely set His face to go to Jerusalem." He was going back to Jerusalem. We notice that Christ was beginning to come back to Jerusalem more and more.

Verse 52, "And He sent messengers ahead of Him. And they came into a village of Samaritans, to prepare for His arrival." He passed through a village of the Samaritans.

Verses 53-54, "But they did not welcome him, because His face appeared as though He would go to Jerusalem. And seeing their reaction, His disciples James and John said, 'Lord, would You desire that we should call fire to come down out of heaven, and destroy them, as Elijah also did?'"

"The sons of thunder" (Mark 3:17), they were a stormy bunch. They had some things to learn. Christ didn't let things "get" to Him. He didn't brood and let it ruin His whole day.

Verse 62, "But Jesus told him, 'No one, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back on the things left behind, is fit for the Kingdom of God.'"

Luke 10:1-3, "Now after these things the Lord appointed and authorized seventy others also, and sent them two and two ahead of Him into every city and place where He Himself was about to come. He therefore said to them, 'Truly the harvest is bountiful, but the workmen are few. Therefore pray and make supplications to the Lord of the harvest that He may send out workmen into His harvest! Go! But listen, I am sending you out as lambs among wolves.'"

Verses 4-7, "Carry neither purse, nor bag, nor sandals: and greet no one along the way. And into whatever house you may enter, first say, 'Peace be to this house.' And truly, if a son of peace be there, your peace will come upon him: but if not, it shall return to you. And remain in the same house, eating and drinking the things supplied by them: because the workman is worthy of his hire. Do not go from house to house!"

They were to go into those cities and teach. They would come into these villages where there was a public gathering area, and they would gather a crowd who was interested. Those who were interested would invite them into their home. He told them they were to enter into the village, make plain what they were there for, and when they were invited to someone's home, they were to stay there and not go from house to house. A long time ago this was the way you reached people.

Even in this country prior to the time of radio and TV, this was the only means to reach people. This was a little bit of entertainment. Today, you don't get the same response at all. Politicians did that, too. The way to reach the people now is through the mass media. Everybody is pursuing their own business. But there was a time years ago that was how you got the community together. We don't go from house to house and try to "cram it down their throats." They went to the public, and if they wanted to hear more, they invited you to their home.

Verse 14, "But it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the Judgment, than for you."

Verses 17-20, "And the seventy jubilantly returned, saying, 'Lord, even the demons are subject to us through Your name.’ And He said to them, ‘I saw Satan falling as a streaking comet out of heaven. Listen! I am giving you the authority and power to trample underfoot serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall harm you in any way! Yet in this do not rejoice, because the spirits are subject to you: but rather rejoice that your names are written in heaven!’”

Don’t be impressed by that. I saw Satan fall from heaven. What you need to rejoice about is that your names are written in heaven. Christ sent them to do this work.

Verses 25-28, “And then a certain doctor of the law stood up, tempting Him, saying, ‘Teacher, what should I be doing to inherit eternal life?’ And He asked him, ‘What has been written in the law? How do you read it?’ Then answering he said, ‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your being, and with all your strength, and with all your mind, and you shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ And He said to him, ‘You have answered correctly. Be doing this and you shall live.’” That is right!

Verse 29, “But he was anxious to justify himself. So he asked Jesus, ‘And who then is my neighbor?’” Who is really my neighbor?

Verses 30-37, “And taking him up on the question, Jesus replied, ‘A certain man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among robbers and thieves, who stripped him of everything, and inflicted wounds, and escaped, leaving him lying there half dead. Now by coincidence a certain priest went down that same road: and even though he saw him, he passed by him on the opposite side of the road. And in the same way a Levite also, when he came to the same spot, came over and looked at him, then passed by on the opposite side of the road. But a certain Samaritan journeying along came to him, and seeing him, was moved with compassion and mercy. And he went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring wine and oil on the wounds; then he put him on his own animal and brought him to an inn, and personally took care of him. And the next day as he left, he took two coins, and gave them to the innkeeper, and told him, “Take care of him; and whatever additional expense you may have, I will repay you on my way back.” Now then, which of these do you think has been the neighbor to him who fell among the robbers and thieves?’ And he answered, ‘The one who showed compassion and mercy towards him.’ Jesus therefore said to him, ‘Go, and practice the same thing!’”

Who is your neighbor? Your neighbor is whomever you come into contact, whomever you are able to help.

Verses 38-42, “And it happened that as they proceeded on their way, he went into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha welcomed Him into her house. Now she had a sister called Mary, who also sat down at Jesus’ feet, listening to His message. But Martha was distracted from listening, because she was doing all the serving; and she came up and said, ‘Lord, aren’t you concerned that my sister has left me alone to do all the serving? Would You ask her to help me?’ But answering, Jesus said to her, ‘Martha, Martha, you are overly concerned and anxious about many things. But one thing is needful: and Mary has chosen the good and beneficial part, which shall not be taken from her.’” Martha was very concerned about the physical things. She needed to sit down and listen to what was being said.

Luke 11:1-4, “And it happened that as He was praying at a certain place, when He stopped, one of His disciples said to Him, ‘Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.’ And He told them, ‘When you pray, say, “Our Father, who is in heaven. Your name is sanctified and holy. Let Your Kingdom come. Let Your will be done: as in heaven, so also let it be upon the earth. Give us day by day our needed bread. And forgive us our sins; as we ourselves also forgive everyone indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from the evil one.”’” The disciples wanted Him to teach them about prayer; He begins to teach the key to answered prayer.

Verses 5-13, “Then He said to them, ‘Who among you would have a friend, and would go to him at midnight, and ask him, “Friend, lend me three loaves; because a friend of mine has just arrived from a journey to visit me, and I have nothing that I can give him to eat.” But from inside he would say, “Do not disturb me! The door has been shut already, and my children are in bed with me; I am not going to get up and give you anything!” I say to you, even if he would not get up and give him anything, merely because of being his friend, yet because of his importunity and insistence he will get up and give him as much as he needs. And I tell you, Ask, and it shall be given to you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. Because everyone who asks will receive; and anyone who seeks will find; and anyone who knocks, to him it will be opened. And which of you who is a father, if your own son asks for bread, will you give him a stone? If also he asks for a fish, will you give him a serpent instead of a fish? Or also, if he should ask for an egg, will you give him a scorpion? Therefore if you, being evil by nature, know how to give good gifts to your own children: how much more will the Father who is in heaven give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him?" We have to follow through—the key is persistence.

Verse 14, "And He was casting out a demon, and it was dumb. And it happened that after the demon was cast out, the dumb and mute man spoke and the multitudes wondered." He cast out the demon.

Verses 24-26, "Afterwards, when the unclean spirit has gone out from a man, it wanders through dry and barren places, seeking and searching for rest; but not finding any, it says, 'I will return into my former abode which I left.' And it comes back, and finds it unoccupied, swept, and ready for possession. Then it goes and brings seven other demon spirits with it, more evil than itself; and they enter in, and possess him, and live there and the last condition of that man becomes worse than the first." When you get rid of something negative, you have to put in something positive. The man had not filled his life with something positive. They weren't involved with the positive. We have to fill our minds with what is right and good.

Verse 29, "And as the multitude grew larger, He began to say, 'This generation is evil and wicked. It is seeking after a sign; and a sign is not going to be given to it, except the sign of Jonah the prophet.'"

Verses 37-44, "Now as He was speaking, a certain Pharisee asked Him to dine with him. And he entered and sat down. But the Pharisee, seeing that he sat down, began wondering why He had not washed before the dinner. But the Lord said to him, 'Now, you Pharisees cleanse the outside of the cup and the dish; but the inside of you is full of greed, plunder and wickedness. You fools, did not He who made the outside also make the inside? But you should rather be motivated from within to have real compassion and mercy; and then all things are clean to you. But woe and misery to you, Pharisees! Because you pay tithes of mint and rue and every little herb, but you neglect judgment and the love of God. It is necessary and binding on you to do these things of judgment and love, while not leaving those other things of tithing undone. Woe and misery to you, Pharisees! Because you love the most important seats in the synagogues, and the greetings in the marketplaces. Woe and misery to you, scribes and Pharisees, sanctimonious pretenders! Because you are just like the unseen tombs, which men walk over without even knowing it.'" He rebuked the Pharisees for their hypocrisy. That was their great sin. They were hypocrites. You clean the outside of the cup, but not the inside. You clean what people can see, but your attitude and motive on the inside is corrupt. You go through the outward motions.

Verses 45-46, "And one of the doctors of the law answered, saying to Him, 'Teacher, by saying these things you are also insulting us!' And he replied, 'Woe and misery to you also, the doctors of the law! Because you burden down man with burdens heavy to bear, and you yourselves do not touch the burdens with one of you own fingers.'" The lawyers misused the law. They paid lip service.

Verses 47-51, "Woe and misery to you! Because you enshrine the tombs of the prophets as monuments, and your forefathers killed them. So in reality, you bear witness that you consent to the works of your forefathers: because they truly killed them, and you enshrine their tombs as monuments! Also, because of this, the wisdom of God said, 'I will send to them prophets and apostles, and some of them they will kill and persecute.'" So that the blood of all the prophets, poured out from the very foundation of the world, may be required of this generation. From the blood of Abel to the blood of Zacharias, who died between the altar and the temple. Truly I am telling you, it shall be required of this generation." They became a party to the death of every righteous man who ever lived from the time of Abel. He made that plain.

Luke 12:1, "...Then He began to say to His disciples first, 'Guard yourselves from the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.'"

Verses 4-5, "But I tell you, My friends, you should not be afraid of those who can kill the body, but after this are not able to do anything more. But I will show you whom you should fear: fear Him, who after He has killed also has the authority and power to throw you into Gehenna fire! Truly I am telling you, fear Him!" Be afraid of what God can do to you. You better be a lot more concerned about pleasing God.

Verse 10, "And anyone who shall say a word against the Son of man, it will be forgiven him: but anyone who has blasphemed against the Holy Spirit of the Father, it will not ever be forgiven."

The Holy Spirit is the power by which God works with you. We become so hardened by our outlook that we are not receptive.

Verse 15, “Then he told them, ‘Be careful, and keep yourselves from greed and covetousness: because no one has life in the abundance of the things which he possesses.’”

Verse 21, “‘This is the way it will be for the one who treasures up possessions for himself, and is not rich toward God.’” It’s not in the abundance of what you possess. What is really important is that your primary possession needs to be rich toward God.

Then He addressed the subject of worrying. Realize that there is a lot more to life than what you see.

Verses 22-30, “And He said to His disciples, ‘Because of this I tell you, don’t be worried and anxious about your life, what you should eat; nor for the body, what you should put on. The life is more than food, and the body is more than clothing. Consider the ravens: because they do not plant nor harvest. They have no storehouse or granary; but God feeds them. By how much more, then, are you more excellent and precious than the birds? And which one of you, by worrying or by power of intellect, is able to add one cubit to his stature? Therefore if you are not able to do even the very least, why do you worry about the rest? Consider the lilies, how they grow. They don’t labor nor do they spin; but I tell you, not even Solomon in all his glory was clothed as richly as one of these! But if the grass, which is in the field today, and tomorrow is thrown into an oven, is so beautifully clothed by God, wouldn’t He much rather take care of you, O you of little faith? But you, don’t be all wrapped up in seeking and striving for what you may eat, or what you may drink, and do not be overanxious and worried: Because all the nations of the world seek and strive after these things....’” This is what the world is all wrapped up in.

Verses 30-32, “‘...Now your Father knows that you have need of all these things. But seek the Kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added to you. Do not be afraid, or fear, little flock; because your Father is taking pleasure and delight in giving you the Kingdom.’” Don’t worry about if you will be in the Kingdom of God. Christ said don’t worry about those things. God wants you there. It is the Father’s good pleasure to give you the Kingdom. He is not trying to get you out. He is trying to get you in. Just hang on.

Verse 34, “‘Because where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.’”

Luke 12:35-37, “‘Let your loins always be girded tightly, and your lamps always burning brightly; And be like men waiting and ready for their Lord, whenever He shall return for the wedding feast; that when He returns and knocks, immediately they may open to Him! Blesses are those servants, who when the Lord returns shall be found diligently watching! Truly I say to you, that He shall invite them to sit down at His table, and will come and serve them.’” Be ready, stay alert waiting for your Lord. Be found “so doing.” That is the way to be blessed—to be “so doing.”

Verses 40-44, “‘And you therefore be ready. Because in the hour you don’t expect, the Son of man is coming.’ Then Peter said to Him, ‘Lord, are You speaking this parable to us, or also to everyone?’ And the Lord answered, ‘Who then is the faithful and wise manager, whom the Lord will place in charge over His household, to give out the measure of food in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom His Lord when he comes will find doing this very thing. Truly I tell you that He will put him in charge over all His possessions.’” That is the one that is going to be put in charge.

Verse 45, “‘But if that servant should reason in his heart, saying, ‘My Lord delays His coming;’ and begins to beat and abuse the menservants and maidservants, and to eat and drink, and becomes a drunkard.’” He will be caught by surprise. He has the attitude of ‘the Lord delays His coming.’ He is being abusive to others and getting caught up in the lifestyle of this world.

Verses 51-53, “‘Do you think that I came to give peace on the earth? No, I am telling you; but rather, division! Because from this time forward there will be five in one household, three against two, and two against three. Father will be divided against son, and son against father; mother against daughter, and daughter against mother; mother-in-law against daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.’” He did not come to bring peace, but division. Sometimes it even creates problems in families.

Verses 54-56, “‘And he said, also to the multitudes, ‘When you see the clouds rising up from the west, immediately you say, ‘A shower is coming;’ and so it happens. And when a south wind is blowing, you say, ‘It is going to be hot;’ and it happens. You hypocrites, you know how to discern the appearance of the earth and the sky; but how is it that you do not discern this time?’”

You look at the sky and can discern, but you can't discern the reality of the times. Look and see what is really going on. This is an important lesson that we have here.

This Bible study brings us up to the Feast of Tabernacles, up through the beginning of December. We pick up the story next time of Jesus being in Jerusalem for the Feast of Dedication. As you get closer and closer to the time of the crucifixion, the scriptures begin to zero in on detail. The last part of His life is the most thorough. There is a lot packed in there as we see the things that our Savior did and taught.

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 19;
Mark 10; Luke 13—19:29; John 10:22—12:11

What we are covering this evening is the time between Christ's journey to Jerusalem at the time of Hanukkah, the Feast of Lights or Dedication on December, 30 A.D., up until six days before the Passover of 31 A.D. We are looking at approximately three and one-half months.

He went to Jerusalem for the period of Hanukkah and went from there to an area near the Jordan River where John was first baptizing. From there Christ was summoned by Mary and Martha to Bethany (a small town near Jerusalem) at the death of Lazarus. Immediately there were some results of that tremendous miracle. It intensified persecution. It stirred up a hornet's nest. The religious leaders decided this Man was a threat, and they must get rid of Him. He went out to the Judean Desert prior to His journey back to Jerusalem for Passover.

When the miracles and works are poured out and intensified in that way, it is setting the stage for great persecution. This is one of the reasons why Jesus spent little time in Jerusalem except for the festival seasons. Christ knew what was going to happen, had to happen. Because of that, He handled things in such a way that it was only when the time came that He then made Himself available in that way and performed that miracle. It set the stage for things to happen.

The Feast of Dedication is not one of God's holy days. The only mention of it is in John 10:22. There is a reason for that, and I will point it out. It is one of the ways we can derive certain principles. It had its origin one hundred sixty-four years prior to the time of Christ (164 B.C.)—two hundred fifty years after the conclusion of the Old Testament Canon.

Remember, we went through the story of how the Greek ruler Antiochus Epiphanes had done everything he could to wipe out any vestige of God's truth. He prevented circumcision; he offered a pig on the altar; and he set up the abomination of desolation. He did everything he could to show his contempt for the religion of God. Mattathias, an aged priest, drew his sword and slew the apostate Jew; the Maccabean revolt began. Then in 168 B.C., just over three years later, the cleansing took place. Judas Maccabaeus, the son of this priest, overthrew the Syrian generals and restored Temple worship. The Jews thereafter celebrated this occasion.

In John 10:22-23, Christ was going there for the celebration, their national holiday. It is akin to July 4th or Thanksgiving Day. It was a celebration of independence from the Greeks and a time to memorialize their thanks and appreciation to God for their deliverance—for rescuing them. One of the things we derive from that statement in John 10 is the fact that it is not wrong to take note of national holidays, as long as those days do not commemorate in their origin something that is negative or of pagan origin. That is part of the way we study the Bible. We seek to derive principles from the Bible and how God views some things. Does He mention something in a positive or negative way? In the way He mentions it, we are able to derive what God thinks of it. That is a good rule of thumb. It helps us deal with questions that come up in our own lives today.

Luke 13:10-13, "And He was teaching in one of the synagogues on the Sabbath day. And there was a woman who had a spirit of infirmity for eighteen years, and she was hunched over, and completely unable to lift herself up. Then Jesus, seeing her, called to her, and said, 'Woman, you have been set free from your infirmity.' Then He laid His hands upon her: and instantly she was made straight, and she glorified and thanked God." The woman was crippled and Christ healed her.

Verse 14, "But the rulers of the synagogue answered indignantly, because Jesus had healed on the Sabbath, and told the people, 'There are six days in which it is necessary and proper for men to work: in these days therefore come and be healed, but not on the Sabbath day.'" The Pharisees were indignant. They wanted to find fault with everything He did. If somebody was of that frame of mind, even if you were perfect, you couldn't please him. What about you and me? We are not going to please everyone. Even when you are perfect you can't please everybody.

He "pulled no punches." As things came to this point in time, it was time to speak very plainly. There was a time when He taught in parables. There was a time to lay a foundation and a time to be prepared to speak with boldness and "lay it all out"—"let the chips fall where they may."

The time is coming in this age when Christ's message is going to be proclaimed in greater power and boldness, and the power of God will be made manifest. That will result in persecution on a level that will lead into the Great Tribulation. There are serious events that are going to occur that are not occurring right now.

Verses 15-16, “Therefore the Lord answered him, saying ‘You sanctimonious pretender, hypocrite! On the Sabbath doesn’t each one of you loose his ox or donkey from the manger, and lead it away to drink? And shouldn’t this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan has bound these eighteen long years, be loosed from this shackle of the devil on the Sabbath day?’” Christ said, ‘You extend mercy to your animals. Of all your hypocrisy! You turn an ox loose to get a drink, and you want Me to wait until sundown to heal this woman.’

Verse 22, “And He went through, city by city, and village by village, teaching, and making progress towards Jerusalem.” Towards Jerusalem, on His way, step by step.

Verses 23-25, “And someone asked Him, ‘Lord, are there only a few who will be saved?’ But He answered them, ‘Labor and fight with zeal and diligence to enter in through the narrow gate: because many, I say to you, will desire to enter in, but will not be able. From the time that the master of the house shall get up and shut the door, and you shall stand outside and begin to knock at the door, saying, “Lord, Lord, open the door for us!” and answering He will tell you, “I do not know you, nor where you are from.”’” He went on to describe those who were going to be standing on the outside looking in.

Verses 26-27, ““Then you will begin saying, “We ate and drank in Your presence, and in our streets You taught us.” But He will answer, “I tell you, I do not even know you, nor where you originated. Depart from Me, all you workers and teachers of unrighteousness and iniquity.””

Some of you are going to be told, ‘Depart from Me.’ He was speaking to some of the religious leaders of His day. They had a disregard and disrespect for the law of God. He said, ‘You teach lawlessness.’

Verses 28-30, ““There shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth, when you shall see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the Kingdom of God, but you yourselves are cast out. And they shall come from the east and the west, and from the north and the south, and shall sit down in the Kingdom of God. And listen, there are those who are last, who shall become the first; and there are those who are first, who shall become the last.”” The Jews had a first opportunity. They had access to the Scriptures, and it was first preached to them. You are going to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom and every ethnic group, people that you look down on. You are going to find yourself on the outside. Some of those that are last will be first—those with the last opportunity or at a much later time. Those who have had a chance to be in have “blown it.”

This is an important principle for those who grew up in the Church. If you have grown up in the Church, you have had an opportunity to be in on the ground floor. If you have not valued that access you have through your parents and practice iniquity, you are going to find you are on the outside looking in. People God has called will be in the first resurrection; you will be “bringing up the rear” in the second resurrection or later. There is a principle here. We better take advantage of opportunities. We have an opportunity, a first opportunity, but if we don’t utilize it, it will slip from our grasp. It is important that we grasp that. The religious leaders did not grasp that.

Verse 34, ““O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, who kills the prophets and stones those who have been sent to you; how often would I have gathered your children, in the same way a mother hen gathers her brood under her wings, but you rebelled.”” He describes a mother hen and how she gathers her chicks in danger; they get up under her wings. Christ said, ‘I have that kind of protective feeling toward Jerusalem, but you don’t.’ That is a sad state of affairs.

In time sequence it was the Feast of Dedication. John 10:22, “And the Feast of Dedication was taking place at Jerusalem, and it was winter.” Verse 40, “And He departed again across the Jordan River to the place where John was first baptizing; and remained there.”

Luke 14:8-10, ““When you are invited to a wedding feast by anyone, do not sit down in the first and most important place; since someone more honorable and distinguished than you may have been invited by him, and the one who invited both of you may come and tell you, “you will have to give your place to this one;” and then with embarrassment you may begin to take the very lowest place. But when you are invited, go sit down in the lowest place; so that when he who has invited you comes, he may say to you, “Friend, come up higher!” Then you will have honor instead of embarrassment in the presence of those who are sitting at the table with you.””

At a wedding, you don’t grab the most important spot or you might find yourself embarrassed. Someone else may come that the important spot belongs to. Go sit at a lower place, and then maybe someone will come and ask you to take a better place.

Verse 11, “Because anyone who exalts himself shall be abased; and anyone who humbles himself shall be exalted!” Be willing to step back and not exalt yourself.

Verses 12-14, “And He also said to the chief Pharisee who had invited him, ‘When you make a dinner or supper, do not call your friends, nor your brethren, nor your relatives, nor your rich neighbors; since they will also invite you in return, and you will be paid back. But when you make a feast, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind: and you shall be blessed; because they do not have the means to pay you back. Then you shall be rewarded in the resurrection of the righteous.’” It shouldn’t be simply a matter of inviting those who can return the favor, but those who can’t return the favor.

Verses 16-21, “But Jesus answered him, saying; ‘A certain man made a great supper, and invited many. And at the dinner hour he sent out his servant to say to those who had been invited, ‘Come; because everything is ready now.’ And every one of them in the same attitude began excusing himself. The first one told him, ‘I have just purchased a field, and it is imperative that I go out and see it: I beg you to have me excused.’” And another said, “I have just bought five teams of oxen, and I am going to inspect and test them out: I request, have me excused.” And another said, “I have just married my wife, and because of this I am unable to come.” And after returning, that servant reported these excuses to his master. Then the master of the house became angry, and told his servant, “Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring back the poor, and the crippled, and the lame, and the blind.””

Those that were invited didn’t come. They didn’t appreciate and value that invitation. The result was that the servant was finally instructed to bring in the lame and the blind.

Verses 22-23, “And the servant said, ‘Sir, it has been done as you have commanded, and still there is room left.’” Then the master told the servant, “Go out into the highways and through the hedgerows, and urge them to come in, that my house may be filled with guests.”” The point was that many of those who had first opportunity did not value that opportunity.

Revelation 3:11, “...let no man take your crown.” The point is that if we don’t respond to the opportunity that God provides us, God is not going to be left empty handed. He will fill the place, but it may not be with us. This is a principle for all of us as well as our children. We are to deeply value the opportunities God gives; if we treat them cheaply and don’t value and appreciate it, God will ultimately fill it with someone else.

Luke 14:25-26, “Later, great multitudes were going with Him: and turning to them He said, ‘If anyone comes to Me, and does not hate [that is, love God more than] his own father and mother, and his wife and children, and his own brothers and sisters, and besides all of these, his own life also, he cannot be My disciple.’” Love much less than God, by comparison—even his own life. Obviously, God was not saying you should hate. We are to honor our father and mother and love all men, but by comparison to the love we have for God, what we have for others would be almost the comparison to hatred. Love much less by comparison. God will not take second place. He insists that He comes first. There is a commitment involved.

Verse 27, “And whoever does not carry his own cross, and come after Me, cannot be My disciple.” This discipleship requires that we stand ready to forsake anything and everything in order to follow Him.

The parable of the lost sheep is given in v. 28, “Because which of you, desiring to build a tower, doesn’t first sit down and estimate the cost, to see if he has the means for its completion?”” It emphasizes counting the cost. If we are going to be Christians, if we are to be disciples, we are to give our all. Many of God’s people have had to pay with their lives. The Bible is the obituary of many of the people of God who suffered martyrdom. God expects a commitment.

Luke 15:1-7, “All the publicans and sinners were gathering around to hear Him. And the Pharisees and the scribes were complaining and grumbling, saying, ‘This man welcomes and receives sinners, and eats with them.’” Then He spoke this parable to them, saying, ‘What man of you, if he has a hundred sheep, and loses one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness, and search for the one which is lost, until he finds it? And after finding it, he lays it on his shoulders, rejoicing. And then he returns to the house, and calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, ‘Rejoice with me, because I have found my sheep which was lost!’” I say to you, that in exactly the same way, there shall be more joy in heaven over one sinner who is repenting, than over the ninety-nine righteous ones who have no need of repentance.”

Verses 8-10, “Or what woman having ten coins, if she loses one, doesn’t light a lamp, sweep out the house, and meticulously search for it until she finds it? And after finding it, she calls her neighbors together, saying, “Rejoice with me; because I have found the coin which I lost!” In exactly the same way, I tell you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who is repenting.”

Joy over one sinner who is repentant. When someone is baptized, that is an occasion of note. God is taking note and is watching; there is joy in the presence of the angels of God. That is what Jesus said and He should know. When you were baptized, it was a celebration of occasion in heaven. We don’t want to treat it cheaply and casually. It is of tremendous value.

Luke 15:11-15 is the parable of the prodigal son. “And He said, ‘A certain man had two sons. And the younger of them said to his father, “Father, give me my share of the property.” So he divided the property between them. And a short time after that, the younger gathered together all that he had, and went away into a distant country; and there he squandered his property, and dissipated himself by unrestrained and debauched living. And after wasting everything he had, a raging famine swept throughout that country; and he began to be hungry and destitute. And he went and joined himself to one of the citizens of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.”

He drank it up and threw it away. Hard times came. Finally he got a job feeding pigs. For a Jew, there could probably be no more humiliating job. Christ picked the job for him that would be horrible.

Verse 16, “And he was longing to fill his belly with even the husks which the swine were eating: and yet no one gave him anything.” Soon he began sharing their food.

Verses 17-19, “Then he came to himself, and said, “How many hired servants of my own father have an abundance of food, but I am dying with famine?” Then getting up, he said, “I will go to my father, and I will tell him, ‘Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before you. And I am no longer even worthy of being called your son. Make me the same as one of your hired servants.’”” After a while he came to the realization, ‘You know the hired help on my dad’s farm have it much better than this. I am going to swallow my pride and tell him, “I have sinned against heaven and you. I am not asking to be back as a son, but would you please give me a job.”

Verses 20-24, “So he got up, and returned to his father. But while he was still at a distance, his father saw him, and was moved with compassion and mercy: and running out to meet him, he embraced him; then with emotion and excitement, he kissed him. And the son said to him, “Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before you, and I am no longer of fit character even to be called you own son.” But the father told his servants, “Quickly bring the best robe, and clothe him; and give him a ring for his hand, and sandals for his feet. And go, bring the fattened calf, and kill it; let us have a feast, and celebrate: Because this, my son, was dead, but is alive again; and was lost, but is found!” And they began to celebrate.” The father saw him a long way off and made a great preparation.

Verses 25-27, “But the older son had been out in a field. And as he was coming closer to the house, he heard music and dancing. And he called one of his servants over to him, and inquired what was the meaning of these things. And he told him, “Your brother has returned, and your father has killed the fattened calf, because he has returned to him safe and sound.”” The older son heard all the great festivities.

Verse 28, “But he became angry, and was not willing to go in. Therefore the father came out, and begged him to join the celebration.” He was in a pretty foul attitude about the whole thing.

Verses 29-30, “But answering he said to his father, “Look, for so many years I have served you, and not once have I transgressed your commandment: but never did you give me even a kid goat that I might celebrate with my friends! But when this son of yours returns, who has squandered your property with harlots, then you kill the fattened calf for him!””

‘I have done everything you wanted me to. You never even gave me a kid goat to celebrate with my friends. He has used his inheritance on harlots, etc.; now he is coming back. It’s not fair.’

I want to point out some things. The father loved the son enough to turn him loose and let him learn his lesson. The natural tendency of the parent is to bail out the child when he is in trouble, protecting him from the consequences of his actions. The father realized that until the son was brought down to a point of humility and surrender; he couldn’t be worked with. He had to leave it in God’s hands. He hit bottom. He realized that anything was better than this. He returned with an attitude of humility. How did the father receive him? With open arms! He was happy, thrilled and glad to see him. It wasn't a lack of love. God loves us enough that He allows us to learn lessons.

The other aspect I would call your attention to—notice what he told his older son.

Verses 31-32, “But the father answered him, “Son, you are always with me, and everything that I own is yours. But on this occasion, it is right to celebrate and rejoice: because this your own brother was dead, but is alive again; and was lost, but is found!”” You notice they were not going to re-divide the inheritance. ‘Listen, everything I have is yours. It is all yours, but this is something special. We should celebrate.’

Even when you learn a lesson, it will never be simply as though you had never gone. There are penalties of life, some more serious than others. It wouldn't have been fair to take the property and divide it again. A person can learn lessons and repent, and God forgives; but sometimes you accumulate battle scars. They will always leave a scar.

We know our children are going to get nicks along the way, but we hate to see them get the battle scars. Forgiveness doesn't turn back the clock. You can repent deeply, and God will forgive you. But you can't go back and start over twenty years ago or five minutes ago. Again, this is an important principle. You can't go and sow your wild oats and come back and everything is okay. Yes, God will forgive, but there can be wounds and scars that can take their toll from which God would like to spare us.

Luke 16:1-2, “And he said also to His disciples, ‘There was a certain rich man, who had a hired administrator; and he was accused to the rich man of squandering his goods. Then he called his administrator and asked him, “What is this I am hearing about you? Give an accounting of your administration; because you cannot be my administrator any longer.”” He called him and said, ‘We are going to audit the books.’

Verse 3, “And the administrator said within himself, “What shall I do, because my master is taking the office away from me? I am unable to dig; I am ashamed to beg.”” He said, ‘What am I going to do?’

Verse 4, “I know what I will do, so that when I have been removed from the office, my master's debtors may welcome me into their house.”

‘I have a few days before the auditors come, and I am going to make provision for myself while I still have authority.’

Verses 5-7, “Then calling each one of the master's debtors, he asked the first one, “How much do you owe to my master?” And he said, “A hundred measures of oil.” And he told him, “Take your bill, sit down quickly, and write fifty.” Then another he asked, “And you, how much do you owe?” And he replied, “A hundred measures of wheat.” And he told him, “Take your bill, and write eighty.”” He slashed large amounts off their debts.

Verse 8, “And the master praised the unrighteous administrator, because he had acted shrewdly. For the sons of this world and society are in their own time more shrewd and wise than the sons of the light.” He praised him, not for the dishonesty, but for being shrewd. He was looking ahead. There is an expression, “give the devil his due”—he outsmarted me. They look ahead and make provisions. That is what this is saying. He did it in a dishonest way, but the basis of his actions was that he was looking down the road. The lesson is Christ said we also need to be thinking about what the future holds and making provisions for it.

Verse 9, “And I say to you, “Make friends to yourselves by the wise use of your physical wealth; so that when it fails, they may welcome you into the eternal dwelling.””

What is your best investment? The point is that anything in this world that may look like a good deal, don't kid yourself. There is no sure thing; it shall fail. What about money? Money is mammon, physical wealth. Utilize the physical resources in this world in a wise way, looking toward the future because there is coming a time when this economic system is going to collapse. But putting our hearts into this work, there is going to be dividends there.

There are those who will welcome us because of the tithes and offerings that allowed them to come into the knowledge of the truth. We came into contact with the work because others have given. The principle there is to learn a lesson from the unrighteous steward. He only thought in a temporary way, not in a long-term view. We also need to use the physical resources we have access to and get our priorities straight. We set the stage for something that goes way on beyond the here and now.

Verse 10, “Anyone who is faithful in the very least is also faithful in much: but anyone who in unrighteous and dishonest in the very least is also unrighteous and dishonest in much.” If we are unrighteous in a little, we are unrighteous in a lot. Verse 11, “Therefore, if you have not been faithful with the unrighteous physical wealth, who is going to trust you with the true riches of God’s glory.” The point is to think ahead for a long-term view.

Verse 13, “No servant is capable of serving two masters: because either he will hate the one, and he will love the other; or he will follow one, and he will despise and reject the other. You are not capable of serving God and materialism.” We can’t choose two masters—around what does our life revolve?

Luke 16:19-21, “Now there was a certain rich man, and he was clothed in purple and fine linen, and satiated himself daily in splendor and luxury. And a certain poor man Lazarus, who was laid at his porch, was covered with open sores. Now he was longing to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man’s table. But instead the dogs were coming and licking his sores.”

The rich man was living with every luxury, and Lazarus was a poor man. He was hungry, covered with sores and desired to have the crumbs that fell from the rich man’s table. The dogs came and licked his sores. Get the contrast? A dog showed him more compassion than a human being—a pretty poor contrast when a human being has less concern for his neighbor than a dog has.

Verses 22-23, “And it happened that the poor man died, and he was carried away [at the resurrection of the just] by the angels into the bosom of Abraham. And the rich man also died and was buried. Then in the grave [at the resurrection of the wicked] he opened his eyes, and he became filled with fear and torment, when he saw Abraham in the distance, and Lazarus in his bosom.”

Many get very confused over this story. The idea they get was that Lazarus went to heaven and the rich man went to hell. Christ was not going into a detailed explanation. He summarized it. The poor man (Lazarus) died, and at some point after he died (we are not told how long), he “was taken by the angels to Abraham’s bosom.” That is an expression that refers to an intimate relationship with Abraham, where a mother carries a little child.

When was Lazarus taken by the angels to meet Abraham?

Matthew 24:30-31, “...And they shall see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. And He will send His angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they will gather together His elect from the four winds, one end of heaven to the other.” He is going to send the angels, and they are going to gather together the elect. We live on a round earth, and everyone would be resurrected going in a different direction. But the angels go out to gather everyone together to meet over Jerusalem.

I Thessalonians 4:16-17, “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of an archangel, and with the trumpet of God. And the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And thus we shall always be with the Lord.”

I Corinthians 15:52, “In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.”

John 5:28-29, “Do not marvel at this; for the hour is coming in which all who are in the graves will hear His voice and come forth—those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation.”

Lazarus died, but the time is coming when he will come forth out of his grave when the just are resurrected. Lazarus is gathered into Abraham’s bosom. That is a figurative statement. Not that everybody is going to spend their time in heaven on Abraham’s lap.

Galatians 3:7, 29, “Therefore know that only those who are of faith are sons of Abraham... And if you are Christ’s, then you are Abraham’s seed, and heirs according to the promise.” When you are a Christian, you enter into a special relationship as a little child to the Father. God made the promise to Abraham. He is the heir of the whole world; he is going to inherit the whole world. We inherit through Abraham. He is the father of the faithful. This is a relationship likened to a child to the father. He was like a little child sitting there, holding him on his lap. Lazarus enters into this relationship at the resurrection.

Matthew 24:31, “And He shall send His angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they will gather together His elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.”

The rich man died, and we’re told that he is resurrected. As he opens his eyes (that means they were closed), all of a sudden he is restored to life. When he wakes up and opens his eyes, it scares him. He sees the Kingdom of God in the distance. This is a picture of the third resurrection. There is no consciousness of the passage of time. Death in the scriptures is likened to sleep (I Corinthians 15:6). When you go to sleep, you are not aware of how much time has passed.

Luke 16:24, ““And crying out, he said, “Father Abraham, have compassion and mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip just the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue.””” The first thing he wants is a touch of water to his tongue. That is what happens when you really get scared. Your mouth becomes like cotton. If he were resurrected in the kind of hell people talk about, he would have wanted a fire truck. He saw the fire in the distance.

Verses 27-28, ““And he said, “I beg you, father, that you would send him to my father’s house: Because I have five brothers; that he may exhort and warn them, that they also may not come into this place of torment.””” He wanted someone to go and warn his family. He was not aware of the passage of time.

Luke 17:1-2, ““And He said to the disciples, ‘It is impossible but that offenses will not come: but woe and misery to him by whom the offenses come! It would be more profitable for him if a millstone turned by a donkey were hung around his neck, and he were plunged down into the depths of the ocean, than if he were to cause one of these little ones to be offended and stumble.’”” He warns of offenses.

Verses 3-4, ““Pay attention to what you are doing: and if your brother sins against you, admonish him; and if he repents, forgive him. But if he sins against you seven times in a single day, and turns to you seven times in a single day, saying, “I repent, I am sorry;” you shall forgive.”” The importance of forgiveness!

Verse 10, ““And you also, in the same way, when you have done all things commanded you, say, “We are unprofitable servants: because we have done only that which was our duty to do.”””

An unprofitable servant is one who has to have everything pointed out to him. He will only do his duty. The profitable servant is one who sees the big picture, understands and is going to carry it out. To the unprofitable servant, you have to point out everything. It takes two men to do one man’s work. You can turn a profitable servant loose and he will do it right. He thinks the way you think. He has the big picture. That is what God wants. God wants us to learn to think like Him. We are to have the mind of Jesus Christ (Philippians 2:5). We become a profitable servant, one that God can count on. It is the measure of conversion. It goes beyond simply complying with the rules. The unprofitable servants didn’t understand. Nothing was ever internalized. When someone wasn’t there telling them what to do, they reverted back to the world. God wants more than that of us. Those who don’t have the big picture slip back into other things.

Verses 12-19, ““Now as He was entering into a certain village, there were ten leprous men who met Him, and they were standing off at a distance. And they raised their voices and shouted, ‘Jesus, Master, have compassion and mercy on us!’ And looking at them, he told them, ‘Go and show yourselves to the priests.’ And it happened that as they were going, they were cleansed and healed. But one of them, seeing that he was healed, turned back, and crying out with a loud voice was glorifying God; and he came, prostrating himself at His feet, giving thanks to Him, and he was a Samaritan. And answering, Jesus said, ‘Were not ten cleansed? But where are the other nine? Were not any found returning to give glory to God, except this stranger?’ And He told him, ‘Stand up and go your way. Your faith has healed you!’”” Ten lepers—only one was thankful.

Verses 20-21, ““And He had been asked by the Pharisees when the Kingdom of God would come. He answered them, saying, ‘The Kingdom of God does not come with observation and speculation. Neither shall they say, “Look here!”’ Because look, the Kingdom of God is standing among you.”” (KJV, “the Kingdom of God is within you.”) Some think that is some feeling in your heart. Note who He was talking to; He was talking to the Pharisees. You don’t have to be looking and wondering about these things. Christ said, ‘I am your King, and I am in your midst.’ They needed to look to Him. He was the representative of it.

Verses 26-27, ““And as it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man. They were eating, and they were drinking, they were marrying, they were being given in marriage, until the very day Noah entered into the ark, and the flood came, and destroyed all.”” He begins to talk about the end times.

Verses 28-34, ““Conditions will be similar to what was happening in the days of Lot: they were eating, they were drinking, they were buying, they were selling, they were planting, and they were building. But on the very day that Lot went out from Sodom, it rained down fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed all. This is exactly how conditions will be in the day the Son of Man is revealed. In that day, anyone who shall be on the housetop and his possessions are in the house, let him not come down to take them away; and anyone who is in the field, let him likewise not return to the things behind. Remember Lot's wife. Whoever seeks and strives to save his life shall lose it, but whoever is willing to lose it shall preserve it. I tell you, in that night there shall be two in one bed; the one shall be taken, and the other shall be left." One taken and one left.

Verses 35-37, "Two women shall be grinding together; the one shall be taken, and the other shall be left. Two men shall be working in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left.' And answering they said to Him, 'Where, Lord?' And he told them, 'Where the body is, that is where the eagles will be gathered together.'"

What is He talking about? Christ drew two analogies—the days of Noah and the days of Lot. Everybody was pursuing his normal everyday activities oblivious to God's judgment. Noah and Lot were taken to a place of protection, and then it all broke loose. The time is going to come when there is again going to be a division, and there will be those taken, as Noah and Lot were taken to a place of safety. Everyone else is going to be oblivious to what is going on around them, and when they do see what's happening, it will be too late. It is not referring to the return of Christ. They will be oblivious right up to that time period, until the time that God makes a distinction and takes His people to a place of protection. Just as He did Noah and Lot, and then everything breaks loose. It is not referring to the return of Christ.

Read Revelation 8:7-13, "...the sun scorching, great earthquakes, etc." No one will be eating and drinking during that time.

Luke 17:37, "And answering they said to Him, 'Where, Lord?' And He told them, 'Where the body is, that is where the eagles will be gathered together.'"

Revelation 12:14, "...on the wings of a great eagle..." This is symbolic of the gathering of God's people. They wanted the physical details. But Christ said that is not important. If Christ gave all the physical details, they would get their minds on that. The body, the Church, everybody will wind up at the right place. We need to get our minds on the spiritual, and then God will take care of the rest.

Luke 18:1-8, "And He also spoke a parable to them, for the purpose of showing how it is absolutely necessary for them always to pray, and not give up, or falter and get weak; saying, 'There was a judge in a certain city, who didn't fear God, and wasn't a respecter of persons. And there was in that city a widow; and she kept coming to him, saying, "Avenge me of my adversary!" And for a time he would not: but afterwards he said to himself, "Even if I don't fear God, and I am not a respecter of persons, Yet because this widow keeps causing me trouble, I will avenge her, otherwise her perpetual coming will wear me out." But the Lord said, "Listen to what the unrighteous judge says, And shall not God execute the avenging of His very own elect, who call out to Him day and night, though He is being patient with them and their problems? I tell you that He will speedily execute the avenging of them. In spite of this, when the Son of Man comes, will He truly find faith on the earth?"' Persistence!

Verses 9-14, "Then He also spoke this parable to some who were confident and boasted within themselves that they were really righteous, and held all others in contempt: 'Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican. The Pharisee was standing and praying with himself this way, "God, I thank You that I am not like the rest of men, extortioners, unrighteous, adulterers, or even as that publican over there. I fast twice in every week, I tithe all things that I gain." But the publican, standing off at a distance, would not even lift up his eyes to heaven, but was beating his chest, saying, "God, be merciful to me, the sinner!" I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the Pharisee: because everyone who exalts himself shall be abased; but anyone who humbles himself shall be exalted.'"

The self-righteous Pharisee and the publican! One didn't lift his eyes to heaven; the other said, 'I am glad I am not like everyone else.' Who do you think God heard?

John 11:14-16, "Then Jesus told them plainly, 'Lazarus has died! Moreover I rejoice for your sakes, in order that you may believe, since I was not there. But let us go to him.' Then Thomas, called Didymus, said to his fellow-disciples, 'Let us go also, that we may die with him.'" Notice Thomas said, 'that we may die with him.' Christ said, 'we are going to go to him.'

Verse 43, "Then after saying these things, He called with a loud voice, 'Lazarus come out here!'" Christ resurrected Lazarus. Notice the reaction of the Pharisees.

Verse 53, “Therefore from that day they plotted and schemed together, that they might kill him.” That clinched it in their mind. ‘This is something of a scale that we cannot deny. We have to get rid of Him.’

Verse 54, “So Jesus could no longer appear publicly among the Jews, but left there, and went into the countryside near the desert, to a city called Ephraim; and He stayed there with His disciples.” He no longer appeared publicly before them.

Pharisees question Jesus about divorce: Matthew 19:3-9 and Mark 10:2-12.

Matthew 19:3, “But the Pharisees came to Him, tempting Him, and saying to Him, ‘Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for any cause?’” The Pharisees were trying to trip up Christ.

Verses 4-7, “But He answered them, ‘Haven’t you read, that He who created them in the beginning made them male and female.’ And said, ‘Because of this a man shall leave father and mother, and shall be joined to his wife: and the two shall become one flesh. So then they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has united and joined together, man is not allowed to separate.’ They retorted, ‘Why then did Moses command to give a certificate of divorce, and to divorce her?’” (Deuteronomy 24:1) They wanted to trick Christ into a technical argument.

Verses 8-9, “He answered them, ‘Moses allowed you to divorce your wives because of your hardheartedness: but from the beginning it was not this way. But I am telling you, whoever shall divorce his wife, except for fornication, and shall marry another, commits adultery: and anyone who marries her that is divorced commits adultery.’”

There is a lot to learn from Christ’s answer. He never answered their question, ‘Is it okay to divorce your wife for any cause?’ He said, ‘If you are really interested in how many wives God wants you to have, see how many He made for Adam.’ He referred back to the beginning. ‘Moses allowed you because of the hardness of your heart. But from the beginning it was not so.’ Things he allowed carnal unconverted people to do should not be found among God’s people.

Verses 10-11, “His disciples said to him, ‘If this is the case of a man with his wife, it is not profitable to marry.’ But He said to them, ‘Everyone cannot receive this word, but those to whom it has been given.’”

‘Well, maybe we should not get married. That sounds pretty harsh.’

Jesus blesses little children: Matthew 19:13-15, Mark 10:13-16 and Luke 18:15-17.

Christ takes up the little children and points out that a child-like attitude is important.

Leave everything and follow Christ: Matthew 19:27-30, Mark 10:28-31 and Luke 18:28-30.

Matthew 19:27-29, “Then Peter answered and said to Him, ‘Look, we have given up everything, and have followed You. What then shall be for us?’ And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I tell you, those of you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man sits on the throne of His glory, you also shall sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. And anyone who has left houses, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for the sake of My name, shall receive a hundredfold, and shall inherit eternal life.’” Whatever is given up, you will be rewarded.

Matthew 20:1-15, remember the story of some who were hired just before quitting time. What is the point there? Some will have been called earlier in their life—twenty, thirty, forty years or more. Some are called only with six months or a year left in their life. Different ones come in at all stages—some at the beginning of their life and others in the twilight of their life and have only a short time. The outstanding example of that is the thief on the cross whose Christian life consisted of a few hours. But everyone will get eternal life. There is a reward that is given. Rewards in terms of responsibility are where the distinction is made, but not in terms of that basic distinction of eternal life.

Matthew 20:16, “‘In exactly the same way, the last shall be first, and the first shall be last: because many are called, but few are chosen.’”

James and John ask to sit at right and left hand of Jesus in the Kingdom: Matthew 20:20-24 and Mark 10:35-41.

Matthew 20:20-23, “Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to Him, with her sons, worshipping Him, and was asking something from Him. And He said to her, ‘What do you desire?’ She said to Him, ‘Give the word that these two sons of mine may sit, one on your right hand, and one on your left hand, in Your Kingdom.’ But answering, Jesus said, ‘You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink of the cup which I am about to drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism which I am baptized with?’ They said to Him, ‘We are able.’ And He said to them, ‘Yes, truly you shall drink of My cup, and you shall be baptized with the baptism which I am baptized with: but to sit on My right hand, and on My left, is not Mine to give, but to those for whom it has been prepared by My Father.” “To sit on My right hand and at My left is not Mine to give, but the Father’s.”

Luke 19:11-12, “But as they were listening to these things, He spoke an additional parable, because He was nearing Jerusalem, and they thought that the Kingdom of God was about to appear immediately. Therefore He said, ‘A certain nobleman traveled into a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then to return.’” Some thought the Kingdom would immediately appear. The nobleman traveled to a far country. There were things that had to happen yet. It was not going to immediately appear. He was setting the stage for the fact that there is something in between.

John 12:1-8, “Then six days before the Passover, Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, who had died, and whom He had raised from the dead. Now they had prepared a supper for Him there; and Martha was serving, and Lazarus was one of those who sat with Him, Then Mary took a pound of very expensive ointment of pure spikenard, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped His feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the aroma of the ointment. But one of His disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon’s son, who was about to betray Him, said, ‘Why wasn’t this ointment sold for three hundred coins, and the money given to the poor?’ But he said this, not because he actually had concern for the poor, but because he was a thief, and had the moneybag, and carried what was put into it. But Jesus said, ‘Let her alone! Toward the day of My burial has she kept it. Because you will always have the poor with you; but you will not always have Me with you.’”

Mary anointed Christ with precious ointment. Judas said this was waste and extravagance; this could have been sold and given to the poor. Notice what John said. John said Judas was a thief. Judas was the treasurer; that is why he said what he said. It sounded impressive to others. Yes, that is kind of wasteful. Judas had a problem and Jesus knew it. God allows a problem to exist for a while before He does anything about it.

Verse 9, “Then a great multitude of the Jews knew that He was there: and they came, not on account of Jesus only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom He had raised from the dead.” Here Lazarus came forth when Christ appeared. That was kind of hard to deny. When he was walking down the street, he was pointed out as the one who was resurrected. He was quite a celebrity there.

Verse 10, “But the chief priests proposed that they might also kill Lazarus.” They were really indignant; ‘let us get rid of him, too.’ We can see this kind of mentality that they had.

The next Bible study we will focus in on the three to four days before the Passover when things really came to a head. That’s when “no punches are pulled,” and things won’t last very long. Remember when He told the Pharisees they were snakes in the grass? It didn’t last very long.

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Matthew 19; Mark 10; Luke 13—19: 29; John 10:22—12:11

1. What was Christ's justification for healing a woman of an eighteen-year infirmity on the Sabbath?
2. What did Christ teach in Luke 13 about entering into the kingdom?
3. What was Christ's attitude toward Jerusalem?
4. What was the meaning of Christ's parable of the Great Supper in Luke 14?
5. In Luke 14, what conditions did Christ lay down for the multitudes that were following Him?
6. Give proof that when we have a baptism there is a celebration in heaven at that time.
7. What is the meaning of the parable of the Unjust Steward?
8. Did Lazarus go to heaven when he died? Prove.
9. Explain Luke 17:21.
10. Does Luke 17:36 refer to the day of Christ's second coming? Explain the implications of this entire section.
11. Prove that Thomas was not the "world's greatest optimist."
12. What was the reaction of the Pharisees when they heard that Jesus Christ had resurrected Lazarus from the dead?
13. In Matthew 19 and Mark 10, we have an account of the Pharisees trying to trap Christ into a technical argument. What lesson do we learn here about how to deal with this sort of thing?
14. What reward will the twelve apostles receive in the kingdom?
15. Explain the meaning of the parable of the workers in the vineyard (Matthew 20).
16. What example did Christ give because many expected the Kingdom to be established immediately?
17. Why was Judas upset with Christ's extravagance?
18. What was the attitude of the religious leaders toward Lazarus, who had been resurrected by Jesus Christ?

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 20:18—25:13; Mark 11:1—13:37; Luke 19:29—21:38; John 12:12—50

We are picking up six days prior to Christ's crucifixion in 31 A.D. We are picking it up at that point and bringing it up to just before the crucifixion.

Christ had been in Jerusalem in December at the Hanukkah celebration. He then went to Bethany, raised Lazarus from the dead and then went into the Judean Desert for a time. He did not come into the limelight until just a week before Passover. He used Bethany as a base of operations. He walked back and forth to Jerusalem each day. These trips began with His triumphant entry into Jerusalem and the final cleansing of the temple that took place. The different factions of the Jewish leadership were trying to trap Him; He denounced them. His address at the Mount of Olives came next. That brings us up to the time of the crucifixion.

John 12:1-3, "Then six days before the Passover, Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, who had died, and whom He had raised from the dead. Now they had prepared a supper for Him there; and Martha was serving, and Lazarus was one of those who sat with Him. Then Mary took a pound of very expensive ointment of pure spikenard, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped His feet with her hair; and the house was filled with the aroma of the ointment."

There was a supper prepared. It was the occasion where Mary anointed His feet. If He came six days prior to Passover, that would be on the eighth day of the first month. We are looking at a Thursday (probably that Thursday evening) when a big supper meal was prepared. He probably got there during the day. The next morning (Friday morning) was five days before Passover.

Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem: John 12:12-19, Mark 11:1-10, Matthew 21:1-11 and Luke 19:29-40.

He left Bethany to start into Jerusalem. He gave them a job to do.

Mark 11:1-3, "And as they came closer to Jerusalem, into Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount of Olives, He sent two of His disciples, and said to them, 'Go into the village ahead of you: and immediately as you are entering into it, you will find a colt tied, which no one has ever sat upon, When you have untied it, bring it here. But if anyone asks you, 'Why are you doing this?' say, 'The Lord has need of it;' and immediately he will send it here.'"

'Tell them the Master has need of it and He will bring it back when He is finished.'

The people heard He was coming.

John 12:12-13, "...after hearing that Jesus was coming into Jerusalem, took branches of palms, and went out to meet Him, and were yelling out, 'Hosanna! Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord, the King of Israel.'"

Verses 17-18, "The crowd that was with Him, when He called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead, testified and witnessed about Him. On account of this also, the multitude went out to meet Him, because they had heard that He had done this miracle."

Just a matter of two or three months earlier, Jesus had raised Lazarus from the dead. Word had spread among the multitudes. Word had spread very widely. Lazarus was evidently a very prominent person, and many had probably come to his funeral. How long do you think it would take for news like that to spread? Many people had seen it. It really stirred up a furor. There had been many miraculous healings, and His teachings were well known; but when an event like this occurred, things were electrified.

A couple of months later, He came just a few days before Passover. People are ready to acknowledge Him as the Messiah. They didn't have any trouble acknowledging Him as the Messiah. What they had a problem with was that He didn't do things the way they thought He should.

The bulk of the prophecies about the Messiah related to the second coming. In the book of Isaiah, you would be hard-pressed to realize that there is about a two thousand-year break between the first and last part of the sentence. It wasn't even obvious to the disciples. They really hadn't grasped the time element nor did He clearly explain it to them. The people expected the Messiah as coming to heal the sick, etc., but also to chase out the Romans.

Isaiah 2:2-4, "...the Law will go out of Jerusalem and all nations will go up to Mount Zion and the Messiah is going to rule at Jerusalem." So they had it all figured out. The crowds came out to acknowledge Him.

John 12:19, "The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, 'Don't you see that we are gaining nothing? Look, the world is going after Him!'" The Pharisees did not like this. Christ received this public acclaim in His entry into Jerusalem. Christ was not impressed with all the glitter and glamour and the things that they were impressed with, but He came with a realization of the destruction that was to come.

Luke 19:42, "...if you had known, even you, at least in this your day, the things which are for your peace. But now they are concealed from your eyes, and kept secret."

Matthew 24:2, "...Truly I tell you, there shall not be left here one stone standing upon another stone, which shall not be thrown down." As Jesus looked at the city, He recognized the absolute total destruction that was going to come upon the city in the lifetime of many of those people. They didn't grasp His message. He looked out and felt compassion for them.

Let us understand about His entry into Jerusalem. There was significance to that. Remember what occurred on the tenth day of the first month? The lamb was chosen out of the flock, set aside and utilized at the Passover. What did the Jews do if that day came on a weekly Sabbath, which this year it did? Their practice was that they went out into the field and whatever physical work was involved, in terms of dealing with the flock and getting a lamb, they did on the Friday. They didn't pen it up until the next morning, but the actual separation from the flock was done on that Friday. Who was the Lamb of God? Jesus Christ. At the same time that the lambs were being selected from the flocks in the fields by the farmers, Jesus was being acknowledged as the Messiah by the multitudes who lined the road.

Matthew 21:9, "...crying out, saying, 'Hosanna to the Son of David: blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest.'" It is interesting the timing of it. He finally came to the temple about the time of sundown, at the time when the lamb would have normally been pinned up.

Mark 11:11, "And Jesus came into Jerusalem, and entered into the temple; but after looking around at everything, the hour already being late toward evening, He went out to Bethany with the twelve."

Jesus curses fig tree; casts out money-changers: Mark 11:12-19, Matthew 21:12-19 and Luke 19:45-46.

Mark 11:12-13, "And in the morning, after they had left Bethany, He was hungry. And from a distance, He saw a fig tree, which had leaves. And He went up to it, if perhaps He would find something on it. But as He came to it, He found nothing except leaves, because it was not the season for figs." He spent the night in Bethany and early the next morning, on His way back, He saw the fig tree and cursed it. It was not the season for ripe figs. It was all green and leafy, but it was apparent that no fruit would be on it. It was not bearing fruit. It looked good from a distance. Since there was nothing but leaves, He put a curse on the fig tree. We will see what that symbolized.

Matthew 21:43, "Because of this I am telling you, that the Kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and it shall be given to a nation producing the fruits of the Kingdom of God."

That fig tree was symbolic of the nation. Outwardly it had the appearance of being viable, of being the people of God. The people of God are compared to a fig tree. It had the appearance, but it had no fruit being borne. That tree was being shriveled up and would be replaced by a viable, living tree that would bear fruit. It was fulfilled, in the sense, when the Old Testament Church was replaced by the New Testament Church.

Israel and Judah had ceased to bear fruit. He cursed two fig trees. One did not wither immediately, but the other one withered immediately. On the way in, on the Sabbath, one tree was cursed and another one was cursed on Sunday morning. It was symbolic of Israel and Judah. Israel withered over a period of time. It was a more gradual decline that occurred. Judah, in a moment, was taken away with the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. God does not want something that gives a deceptive appearance. If we are going to claim to be the people of God, we better be the people of God and yield Godly fruit in our lives.

Mark 11:15, "Then they came into Jerusalem: and after Jesus entered into the temple, He began to throw out those who were selling and buying in the temple, and He turned over the tables of the money changers, and turned upside down the benches of those selling the doves." He entered the temple. What did He see there? He was absolutely infuriated by what He saw. He had probably taken note of it the evening before. He turned upside down the tables of the moneychangers and the seats of those that sold doves.

You have to understand what a racket they were running. There was the necessity of offering sacrifices. The sacrifice had to be without blemish, approved and accepted by the priests. What had developed was a real racket. Some were not farmers, and some Jews were dispersed all over the known world. They would come to Jerusalem. You brought your money and bought the animal there. But since it had to pass inspection (which put the priests in a position to run a racket), odds were they would find something wrong with it if you didn't buy it from them. And they commanded higher prices.

That was bad enough, but they also had moneychangers. What was on Roman coins? – Pagan pictures. They said they couldn't use this money in the temple. It had pagan insignias. They said, 'You can't use this money to buy an offering for God. We have a moneychanger table; we will exchange your pagan money for temple shekels. We set the exchange rate; you take the clean money and pay two prices for the sheep.'

They had a real racket set up here, and Jesus cleaned house. What do you do just before Passover? You clean house. Well, He unleavened His Father's House. He chased the cows and doves out. Some have misused this account for civil disobedience. He did not break the law. The priests were breaking the law, and they knew it. None of them went after Him. The only thing they did was to ask, 'What is the source of Your authority' (vv. 28-29)? But they didn't press that very far.

Verses 30-33, "The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or from men? Answer Me!' And they argued among themselves, saying, 'If we should say, 'from heaven;' then He would say, 'Why didn't you believe him?' But if we should say, 'from men;' then we would be afraid of the people: because everyone was convinced that John truly was a prophet. And replying, they said to Jesus, 'We do not know.' And Jesus answered and said to them, 'Neither am I going to tell you by what authority I do these things.'"

They didn't answer His question. 'If we say His authority was purely human, the people will be mad because the people accept John as a prophet. If we acknowledge to Him that this authority derived from God, He will say why didn't you follow him?' So they said they didn't know the answer. He had to do it authoritatively.

The people had greeted Him hours before, and He had worked miracles. God had placed His stamp of approval on Him to the point of raising the dead, and they had acknowledged Him just before He came in, took charge and really enforced the law. Everybody knew it was right. The people didn't have much love for the "shysters." They thought it was about time somebody did something about it. Even though many didn't understand His office, they did recognize that He was a prophet of God. The religious leaders did recognize Him.

John 3:1-2, "There was a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, ruler of the Jews. This man came to Jesus by night and said to Him, 'Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God; for no man can do these signs that You do unless God is with Him.'"

Who was the "we"? Nicodemus was a member of the Sanhedrin. There was no question of civil disobedience. He was exercising His lawful authority that God had placed His stamp of approval on—the authority the entire population had acknowledged hours previously. It was an exercise in lawful authority of a prophet of God and attested to by God. It set the stage for these events. He left, but there was tremendous resentment. After taking this authoritative action, He began to heal the sick.

Matthew 21:14-15, "And the blind and cripple came to Him in the temple; and He healed them. But when the chief priests and scribes observed the miracles which He accomplished, and the children shouting aloud in the temple, and saying, 'Hosanna to the Son of David;' they were indignant." They hated Him. They began to plot His murder.

Mark 11:18, "Then the scribes and the chief priests heard about it, and they began plotting how they would kill him: because they were afraid of Him, since all the people were amazed and astonished at His doctrines and teachings." They resented Him greatly, but they were not going to challenge Him openly. He drove the cattle out, but there is no indication that He hit anyone. He had a very commanding presence. He meant business, and it was very obvious He meant business. They were mad because He had made them look bad.

In John 12:20-21, as we continue you see, "And there were certain Hellenist Jews among those who were coming up so that they might worship at the Feast. Then these came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida of Galilee; and they asked him, saying, 'Sir, we desire to see Jesus.'" We find that there were Hellenist Jews who had come up and wanted to see Jesus.

Verse 27, "Now my whole being is filled with turmoil and anxiety and what shall I say? 'Father, save and deliver Me from this hour?' But this is the very reason and purpose I have come to this hour." He was filled with anxiety and turmoil because things were closing in. He prayed about it.

Verses 28-29, “‘Father, glorify Your own name.’ Then a voice came out of heaven: ‘I have both glorified My name, and will glorify it again!’ Therefore the people who were standing there, and heard this, said, ‘It has thundered.’ Others said, ‘An angel has spoken to Him.’” Some said they heard thunder or an angel spoke.

Verse 30, “Jesus answered and said, ‘This voice has not come for My sake, but for your sakes.’”

‘This voice came not because of Me, but for your sakes.’ God publicly backed up the authority of Christ and showed His support and approval.

Verse 37, “But even though He had done miracles and signs in their presence, they still did not believe in Him.” The people believed on a certain level. If they saw a miracle, then they would believe. There is a lot more to faith than simply seeing a miracle.

One of the most outstanding miracles that occurred in this era of the Church was back at a time in the mid-50s; one of the last things Mr. Dick Armstrong did prior to his death in an automobile accident. A man was a total quadriplegic, and to be baptized, his entire wheelchair apparatus had to be put down into the water. He asked for Mr. Armstrong to pray for him. Mr. Armstrong prayed for him; he stood up and was healed. He served on the faculty, etc. You would look at him and never believe that he had been a quadriplegic. It was a case of “rise up and walk.” And yet, sadly, at a later time, he became embittered and eventually left the work and the Church. You would think that if you experienced something that dramatic, you would never leave.

In another incident, this young man called me up. His child was stricken with appendicitis. He was about one hundred fifty miles away. I told him I would pray where I was, and he could pray. The child was healed immediately. About twelve unconverted relatives showed up at services that week. They were greatly impressed for about two weeks. I could recount event after event, many, many over the years, things that happened instantly and people who were greatly impressed for a short time. That is the point. Faith has to be anchored to something more than a physical sign. You can’t find something more dramatic than the Exodus.

Here the people were shouting, “Hosanna, praise to God;” a few days later they were shouting, “Crucify Him.” They had a shallow belief. They were impressed with what they could see, but there wasn’t any depth. Faith is the substance hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. They still didn’t really believe Him. They knew He was going to come and heal, but they also expected Him to send out the Romans and restore independence.

But what if Christ told them some things they didn’t want to hear? They weren’t prepared to believe that. They expected Him to fit in with what they wanted Him to do. And when He didn’t do it, they became upset. You can’t put parameters on God. When He doesn’t dance to your tune, you get mad. They became disillusioned and upset with Him. They weren’t willing to change their ideas. Christ knew that their loyalty was very fickle. They didn’t have depth of faith; what they had was superficial. They were impressed with Him, but they became quickly disillusioned when He didn’t meet their expectations.

There are some lessons to learn in that. Faith and confidence must go beyond some physical manifestation. I don’t care how impressive it is—it will fade.

Luke 19:47-48, “And He was teaching day by day in the temple; but the chief priests and the scribes and the leading people were seeking to destroy Him. But found no way that they might do it: because all the people were attentively listening to Him.” He came day by day into the temple. This was the problem. The people were paying attention.

Priests and Pharisees challenge Jesus’ authority: Mark 11:27-33, Matthew 21:23-27 and Luke 20:1-8.

Mark 11:28, “Then they asked Him, ‘By what authority do You do these things? And who gave you this authority, that You should be doing these things?’” They asked, ‘By what authority?’ That is when He asked them the question about John the Baptist. That was the response.

Verse 29, “And answering, Jesus said to them, ‘I will also ask you one question, and answer Me; then I will tell you by what authority I do these things.’” He answered them with a question about John the Baptist. He didn’t involve Himself in arguments. He just gave it back to them and left them on the spot.

We should answer people differently in different circumstances. If somebody asks a sincere question, they deserve an honest and sincere answer. But to ask a question to try to argue, you never found Jesus involved in that. He would answer them with a question or respond in a way that would squelch the argument. He didn’t bring it down to squabbling.

Matthew 21:28-31, “But what do you think about this? A man had two sons; and he came to the first one, and said, “Son, go work today in my vineyard.” And answering he said, “I will not.” But later he repented, and went to work. Then he came to the second son, and said the same thing to him. And answering he said, “Sir, I will go:” but he didn’t go. Now then, which of the two did the will of his father? They said to him, “The first one.” Jesus answered them, “Truly, I am telling you, that the publicans and the harlots are going into the Kingdom of God before you.””

This was the example that Christ gave of the parable of the two sons. One said, ‘Yes sir, I am on my way.’ But he didn’t go. The other said, “No,” but then felt bad and went. So which one did the will of the father? They had to acknowledge that it was the one that did it.

Verse 32, “Because John came to you in the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him: but the publicans and the harlots believed him. But you, having seen this, did not repent afterwards to believe him.” A lot of them changed their lives. They went the other way. They believed what He said. ‘The harlots and publicans will enter the Kingdom before you. They turned their life around, but you didn’t.’ It became obvious which son they were, which son was the harlot and publican.

Parable of the vineyard: Mark 12:1-11, Matthew 21:33-44 and Luke 20:9-18.

Mark 12:1, “And He began speaking to them in parables. ‘A man planted a vineyard...and leased all of this out to farmers, and left the country.’” He let it out to keepers.

Verses 2-5, “And he sent his servant to the farmers at the harvest, so that he might receive from the farmers the vineyard’s crop. But they took him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. Then again he sent another servant to them; but they stoned him, wounded him in the head, and, after insulting him, sent him away. And again he sent a third one, but they killed him; a great many others were also sent. They beat some, and they killed others.” He sent his servants to collect the rent, and they robbed and mistreated them.

Verses 6-7, “Therefore, he had one more to send, his own beloved son. Last of all, he sent him to them, saying, “They surely will have respect for my son.” But those farmers said among themselves, “This is the heir. Come now, let us get together and kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.”” He sent his son, and they said, ‘Let us kill the son. He is the heir.’

Verses 8-9, “So they seized him, and killed him, and threw his body outside the vineyard. What therefore will the owner of the vineyard do? [Now what do you think he is going to do?] He will come and will destroy those farmers, and will give the vineyard to others!” He will slaughter them. ‘You are right—that is what he is going to do.’

Verse 10, “‘Didn’t you ever read this Scripture; “The stone which the builders rejected, this same one has become the head of the corner.””

Matthew 21:43, “Because of this I am telling you, that the kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and it shall be given to a nation producing the fruits of the Kingdom of God.”

Verse 45, “But when the chief priests and the Pharisees heard his parables, they knew he was speaking about them.”

‘Hey, fellows, you are the wicked husbandmen. You are the ones. You think God is going to let you get by with this? Every prophet God has ever sent, you and your forefathers have mistreated. Now you want to kill Me.’ They knew He was speaking about them.

Verse 46, “And they plotted against Him, to lay hold of Him; but they were afraid of the multitude, because they looked upon Him as a prophet.” They plotted against Him. They wanted to embarrass or humiliate Him. But they were afraid to come in with soldiers and arrest Him for fear there would be a riot.

John 12:42, “Although, truly, even among the rulers and leaders many believed in Him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess it publicly, so they would not be excommunicated from the synagogue.” Many believed Him, but because of the Pharisees, they were afraid to confess it publicly.

Verse 43, “Because they loved the praise and flattery of men more than the glory and honor of God.” That was more important to them.

In Matthew 22:1-14, He compared the Kingdom of heaven to a wedding feast. Those who had first chance at the invitation didn’t value that invitation; others were invited in their stead. It refers to the Jews who had the first opportunity, and others took their place.

Spies are sent to trap Jesus: Mark 12:13, Matthew 22:15 and Luke 20:21.

Mark 12:13, “And they sent to Him some of the Pharisees and some of the Herodians, in order that they might trap Him in His speech.”

It was the Herodians that the Pharisees teamed up with. They were a political faction that backed Herod as king. Normally they were looked on as renegades. Herod was a descendant of Esau, an Edomite. He had “finagled” the throne. He had married the widow of the last Jewish king. There is a saying, “politics makes strange bed fellows.” They all saw their office and status threatened. ‘This Man is a threat to us. If He gets rid of the Romans, the Herodians will be out of a job, and the Sadducees will be out of a job. This Man is a threat to us.’

Render the things of Caesar to Caesar: Mark 12:14-17, Matthew 22:16-22 and Luke 20:21-26.

Mark 12:14-15, “...Now then, is it lawful to pay tribute to Caesar, or not? Should we pay it, or should we not pay it...?” The Pharisees put the Herodians up to ask the trick question. The Jews did not want to pay tribute to the Romans. The Jews said, ‘God gave us this land.’ They paid the taxes, but they resented it and didn’t like it. They thought it was illegal—it wasn’t right.

People didn’t like to pay taxes then and still don’t now. But they paid them. They had to. There were the Roman soldiers. The zealots were on the fringe of society. The trick question was that they didn’t want to do that. They didn’t want to lose favor with the people. Either He will make the people mad or the Romans will come in and arrest Him.

Verses 15-16, “‘Should we pay it, or should we not pay it?’ But knowing their hypocrisy, he told them, ‘Why do you tempt me? Bring me a coin, that I may look at it.’ And they brought it to Him. And He asked them, ‘Whose image and engraving is this?’ And they replied to him, ‘Caesars.’” Christ said, ‘Give Me a coin. Whose picture is on this?’

Verse 17, “And answering, Jesus said to them, ‘Render the things of Caesar to Caesar, and the things of God to God.’ And they marveled at His answer.” He didn’t even define what belonged to Caesar and what was God’s. They let the issue drop. They were stunned at that answer. They didn’t know how to answer that.

Questions about marriage in resurrection: Mark 12:18-27, Matthew 22:25-33 and Luke 20:27-40.

Mark 12:18, “Then the Sadducees, who claim there is no resurrection, came to Him. And they questioned Him, saying;” The Sadducees came. They didn’t believe in the resurrection. They liked to argue with the Pharisees about the resurrection. They knew He taught about the resurrection. They came up with this far-fetched story about the seven husbands (vv. 19-22).

Verse 23, “‘Therefore in the resurrection, when they shall be resurrected, which one’s wife shall she be? Because the seven had her as wife.’” It wasn’t a question that bothered them because they didn’t believe in it.

Verses 24-25, “And answering, Jesus said to them, ‘Aren’t you therefore in error, not knowing or understanding the Scriptures, or the power of God? Because when they are resurrected from among the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels who are in heaven.’”

This is talking about the first resurrection. Since they didn’t believe in one, there was no point in going into the three. The fact is there is going to be a restoration of life.

Verses 26-27, “‘But concerning the dead, proving that they rise: haven’t you read in the book of Moses, in the section about the bush, how God spoke to him, saying, ‘I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?’ He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living...’” That is why He speaks of them that way. That is why He brings it up that way.

So they said, ‘Maybe we better ask Him because the Sadducees and Herodians didn’t fare very well.’ So they decided to ask Him which was the most important commandment.

Two Great Commandments: Mark 12:28-34 and Matthew 22:34-40.

Mark 12:28, “And one of the scribes, listening to them discussing this together, and perceiving that He answered them perfectly, began questioning Jesus, asking Him, ‘Which is the first commandment of all?’”

Matthew 22:36, “‘Master, which is the greatest commandment in the law?’”

When they asked Him, Christ said in vv. 37-40, “And Jesus answered him, ‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your being, and with all your mind. This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second one is like it. You shall love your neighbor as yourself. Upon these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets.’” He summarized the whole thing.

Mark 12:32-33, “And the scribe said to Him, ‘Correct, Master, You have spoken according to the truth, that God is One, and there is not any other God besides Him at all. And loving Him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the being, and with all the strength, and loving one’s neighbor as himself, is greater than all the burnt offerings and the sacrifices.’”

Verse 34, “And when Jesus observed that he answered Him intelligently, He told him, ‘You are not far from the Kingdom of God...’” Christ took note of that man’s attitude. ‘That is right; that is the most important. You have really answered well.’ Christ told him, ‘You are not far from the Kingdom of God. If you keep that attitude of being impressed with the truth, you are heading in the right direction.’

Verse 34, “...And no one had enough courage any more to ask Him questions.” This took the “starch out.” Nobody wanted to ask the next question.

Some try to say that He replaced the Ten Commandments with the two, the principles on which every commandment hung. The first four tell you how to love God; the last six, how to love your neighbor.

Christ is son of David: Mark 12:35-37, Matthew 22:41-46 and Luke 20:41-44.

‘You guys have been asking Me questions.’

Mark 12:35-37, “Then Jesus asked, while He was teaching in the temple, ‘How is it that the scribes say that the Christ is the Son of David? Because David himself said, inspired by the Holy Spirit, “The Lord said to My Lord, sit at my right hand, until I make Your enemies as a footstool for Your feet.” Therefore if David himself calls Him “Lord,” then how can He be his son?’ And the great multitude gladly listened to Him.”

Matthew 22:46, “But no one was able to answer Him a single word, nor did anyone dare to question Him any more from that day on.” They couldn’t respond to that.

In Matthew 23, He begins to say, ‘woe unto the scribes and Pharisees’ over and over. He really begins to “nail their hides to the wall.”

Matthew 23:24, ““You blind guides, who filter out a gnat, but swallow a camel!””

Verse 33, ““You serpents, you offspring of vipers, how are you going to escape the judgment of Gehenna?”” ‘You are snakes’; He really told them what they were. ‘You are going to burn like fire.’ He “pulled no punches.”

Verse 35, ““So that upon you may come all the righteous blood poured out upon the earth, from the blood of Abel the righteous, to the blood of Zachariah, son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the temple and the altar.”” He summarized who was slain on the altar. They really became guilty of the murder of every righteous man because they stood ready to murder the One who sent all the others. He gave this scathing denunciation of the Pharisees, and then He left.

Olivet prophecy: Matthew 24, Mark 13 and Luke 21.

Matthew 24:1-2, “And walking out, Jesus went away from the temple; and His disciples came to Him, and pointed out the buildings of the temple to Him. But Jesus said to them, ‘Don’t you see all these things! Truly I tell you, there shall not be left here one stone standing upon another stone which shall not be thrown down.’”

Verse 3, “And as He was sitting upon the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, asking, ‘Tell us, when shall these things take place? And what is the sign of Your coming, and of the completion of the age?’”

‘We want to ask You about that. When is that going to be, the sign of Your coming and the end of the age?’ They thought this addressed the same subject, but in reality they asked Him two different questions: (1) Jerusalem would be destroyed and (2) then the end of the age.

Verses 4-14, “And Jesus answered and said to them, ‘Watch out, and be on guard, so that no one deceives you! Because many are going to come in My name, saying “I am the Christ;” and they shall deceive the vast majority of people. But you shall hear of wars and rumors of wars. See that you be not afraid: because it is necessary that all these things occur, but the end is not yet. Because race shall rise up against race, and nation against nation, and there shall be famines, and plagues of diseases, and earthquakes in different places. But all these things are just a beginning of sorrows, devastations, and upheavals. Then they will deliver you up into tribulation, and will kill you. And you will be hated by all the nations for My name’s sake. And then many will be offended, and they will betray one another, and will hate one another. And many false prophets will arise, and will deceive the majority of all people. And because of lawlessness and sin shall be multiplied, the love of the majority of all people will grow cold. But anyone who endures to the end shall be saved. And this gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the habitable earth for a witness and testimony to all the nations; and then shall the end come.’”

The Olivet prophecy was spoken to the disciples. Verse 34, ““Truly I tell you, it is not possible for this generation to perish or die out, until all these things have taken place.”” Clearly, the generation to whom He was speaking did not live to see His return. The generation that is being addressed is the generation in whose lifetime these events were going to occur.

Verse 14, “And this gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end come.”

Verse 22, “And unless those days of tribulation had been shortened, there would not be any living thing left alive....” Now He is talking of events that are going to culminate in His return.

Verses 31-34, “And He shall send His angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together His elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other. But learn this parable from the fig tree: when its branches have already become tender, and the leaves are budding out, you know that summer is near. In exactly the same way also, when you see all these things taking place, know that it is near, even at the doors. Truly, I tell you, it is not possible for this generation to perish or die out, until all these things have taken place.”

This is in the context of His return. The generation that sees these events will culminate in the lifetime of a single generation. It will occur quickly and not stretch out over centuries. It will happen in the lifetime of a single generation.

How long is one generation? Is your generation passed? It hasn't entirely; you are here. Whether you are twenty, forty, sixty or seventy, your generation has not passed because you are still here. It will be occurring in a lifetime of a single generation. We are simply looking at things that will not stretch out on toward the end of the next century. Things have been building.

When did the gospel go forth as a witness to the whole world—a worldwide impact? The true Church continued to exist, but the Gospel of the Kingdom did not go forth to the world in power until Mr. Herbert Armstrong was raised up. It didn't really begin to reach the world with worldwide impact until the 50s. It had begun to go out, but had not reached the world previously.

Verse 22, “...No flesh left alive.” That was not possible until the advent of the nuclear age. Until it became possible to annihilate life off the planet, it was a meaningless statement. Disease epidemics, earthquakes, etc., the other things have been characteristic of many times. They are not unique to prove that this is the end time. But this generation, the Gospel has gone out to the world for the first time and the ability to annihilate man off the planet—those are things unique to this generation. It will culminate in the lifetime of one generation.

Matthew 24:3, “And as He was sitting upon the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him, asking, ‘Tell us what is the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age?’” He gave these signs for the disciples. The world would not understand.

Luke 21:36, “Therefore keep watching at all times, praying that you may be accounted worthy to escape all these things which are about to come to pass, and that you may be able to stand in the presence of the Son of Man!”

There are two types of salvation: physical and spiritual. (1) Pray that you may be accounted worthy to escape, to be saved physically from the tribulation and (2) to ultimately stand before the Son of Man. Christ warned of what would happen. The tendency was going to be to “go to sleep at the switch.” Over and over the warnings are that the tendency at the end time was to slow down and lose any sense of urgency.

We need to focus on the warnings because the warnings are for us. We need to see what is the likely tendency and that it doesn't have to happen to us. This age is going to be a lot more suited to producing Laodiceans than Philadelphians. We have a lukewarm, watered-down society, and the Church has always had the tendency to reflect the society around and its problems. Our society is a liberal, lukewarm, watered-down society; we have to be on guard against those influences.

Matthew 25:1, “Then the Kingdom of heaven will be compared to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom.” The virgins typify the Church.

Verses 2-5, “Now five of them were wise, and five were foolish. Those who were foolish took their lamps, but did not take oil with them. But the wise took oil in containers with their lamps. But while the bridegroom delayed his coming, they all became drowsy and went to sleep.” They all slumbered and slept. The Church “went to sleep at the switch” in the first century.

Verse 6, “Then at midnight there was a shout, ‘Look! The bridegroom is coming! Get ready to meet him!’” That was the beginning of the “midnight cry” when God raised up Mr. Herbert Armstrong back in the 20s and 30s.

Verses 7-8, “Then all those virgins got up, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the wise, ‘Give us some of your oil; because our lamps are going out.’” There is a distinction of those who are wise and those who are foolish.

Verses 9-10, “But the wise answered, ‘No;’ explaining, ‘Perhaps there may not be sufficient for us and you: but go instead to those who sell, and buy for yourselves.’” But as they went away to buy, the bridegroom came; and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast: and the door was shut.” They ran out of oil.

Verses 11-13, “Then afterwards the other virgins came also, crying out, “Lord, Lord, open to us.” But answering he said, “Truly I tell you, I do not even know you!” Therefore watch, because you do not know the day nor the hour in which the Son of Man comes.” We have a responsibility to lay in a proper supply of God’s Holy Spirit.

We will break here. This brings us down to late Sunday afternoon prior to Christ’s observance of the Passover on Tuesday afternoon. Notice all the events and actions; the culmination of things came to a head very quickly. Ultimately, that will be so with this world. Things will come to a head and come to a head quickly. We are in a time that we’d better take advantage of. If we don’t use the opportunity to get spiritually prepared for the events ahead of us, we will be caught in a bad way. These examples are admonitions, and they are there for our benefit.

Bible Study # 37 Questions

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Matthew 20:18—25:13; Mark 11:1—13:37; Luke 19:29—21:38; John 12:12—50

1. What miracle did Christ perform prior to His return to Jerusalem?
2. Did Christ ever receive public acclaim? Prove.
3. Why did Christ weep over Jerusalem while others rejoiced?
4. Did Christ ever curse a tree? Why? Give proof.
5. What kindled Christ's anger in the temple of God? What did He do? Did He strike anyone?
6. Was Christ within the law when He took the action referred to in question 5? Give proof.
7. Humanly, how did Christ feel about the ordeal that lay ahead of Him?
8. Why did a voice thunder out as Christ was praying (John 12)?
9. Because of the miracles and signs performed by Christ, the people believed in Him—True or False? Give proof.
10. Is it ever good to answer a question with a question? Did Christ ever do this? Explain.
11. What is the significance of the parable of the two sons?
12. What was Christ's purpose in relating the parable of the vineyard?
13. Did any of the religious leaders believe in Christ? If so, why didn't they state it publicly?
14. On what subject did the Pharisees try to trap Christ regarding His relationship to the Roman government?
15. As spirit beings, will we marry? Prove your answer.
16. Did Christ replace the Ten Commandments with Two Commandments? Explain.
17. Explain Matthew 24:34.
18. Was Matthew 24 intended for the general public? Give proof.
19. Prove from Matthew 24 that we are presently living in the end time.
20. Prove from Luke 21 that God offers two kinds of salvation.
21. In the parable of the ten virgins, what does the oil symbolize?

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 25:14—26:75; Mark 13:37—14:72; Luke 22:1-62; John 13:1—18:27

We are almost to the end of our survey—at least, the Gospel part of it. We will be getting into the book of Acts as we finish the Gospels. This Bible study and our next Bible study will complete the Gospels portion of it, and then we have three studies in the book of Acts.

We are picking up the story at the time just immediately before Jesus' final Passover. One of the things that I think we have seen is the way things have really begun to come to a climax at the very end of Christ's ministry.

One of the things to note is that Jesus had been in Jerusalem earlier. He had been there at the time of the Hanukkah celebration, which was in the latter part of December. He had been there at that time and a little while afterward, had come back. Lazarus had gotten sick and had died by the time Christ got there. Jesus had intentionally waited until He knew Lazarus was dead. Mary and Martha had sent word asking Him if He would please come. He came there, perhaps in January, maybe February, but probably right around the latter part of January. Lazarus had been dead and had been buried for several days. When Jesus came, He resurrected Lazarus. Needless to say, that created no small uproar.

Think of the timing. He waited. He didn't just show up when Lazarus was sick. Then people, who want to discount God's hand, could always say he just had the flu and would have gotten better anyway. He waited until Lazarus had been dead and buried and in the grave for days. Then there was no question.

Lazarus was a prominent member of the community. He lived in Bethany, which is right on the outskirts of Jerusalem within less than a mile of the city gates. We would think of it, really, as a part of town, but Jerusalem had definite walls—and Bethany was outside the walls. Lazarus was a prominent individual. He owned a home where he and his sisters lived. There had been a lot of people at the funeral. They knew he was dead. They had seen him buried. Jesus came and resurrected him. There were a lot of people there when Jesus came and Lazarus was resurrected. There were multiple witnesses to that, and it created no small stir.

You can imagine that word spread like wildfire. Remember, Jesus came to the tomb and told them to roll the stone back. Martha said, 'Don't do that; don't go in there. You don't want to open up the tomb because he's been dead for days—the place stinks.'

Well, He had them open it up. And I'm sure at that point there was no question that Lazarus was dead. Jesus said, "Lazarus, come forth," and Lazarus came forth. Well, you can imagine that it created a tremendous furor in the area and word spread.

Jesus left immediately afterwards and went out to the Judean Desert where He was difficult to find. He went there for a period of time, out around the Jordan River, and out into the Judean Desert. He stayed out of the mainstream.

In the meantime over a period of weeks, word travels, news spreads, the story grows, and people are stirred up. This is the talk of Jerusalem because Jesus had been known. He had been there and miracles had been performed. He was an authoritative teacher. He was someone who had built a certain reputation. But when He did this, this was really the "final straw"—this was monumental. It created such a furor, at that point, many of the religious leaders began to plot how they could murder Jesus and get rid of Him. In John 12:10, they also wanted to get rid of Lazarus. They were not comfortable with having him walking around because that just kind of called attention to the fact that Jesus had raised him from the dead.

It was in this context that Jesus showed up six days before the Passover. In other words, if the Passover came on Wednesday, then He showed up on the Thursday six days before. He showed up sometimes during the day on Thursday, and by Thursday evening when the evening meal was fixed, you could imagine there was quite a crowd that had gathered around. Word began to spread, and it says, John 12:9, people came to see Jesus. They also came to see Lazarus. This was quite a thing. It had gotten a lot of people's interest. They had the meal that Thursday evening.

The next day, on Friday, Jesus sent the disciples for a donkey. They got the donkey, and He started riding into Jerusalem—the place went wild. They began putting palms down and throwing their coats down so that the donkey's feet wouldn't even touch the dust of the ground. This was the idea. This huge crowd was shouting, "Hosanna to the King." They were acknowledging Him as the Messiah.

But you also have to understand what their concept was of what the Messiah was going to do. What it talks about in Isaiah, Micah and all the other places is very plain. The Messiah is going to set up a Kingdom. He is going to set up a government. They had read those scriptures. They were chafing under Roman rule. So, in their mind, this had to be the Messiah. No one could teach and preach and do the miracles that He did and not be the Messiah. He did miracles, right to the point of having raised the dead. What more could the Messiah do? The Messiah was going to throw the Romans out and establish the Kingdom. So they were lining the streets, yelling and cheering and shouting. They were all excited. It is in this context that He came into Jerusalem.

Friday evening He came to the temple and saw the mess things were in. He left, went back to Bethany and spent the night. Sabbath morning He came back, and when He did, it was in that context that He walked into the temple.

He said, Mark 11:17, “It is written, My Father’s house shall be a house of prayer for all nations. You’ve made it a den of thieves.” ‘Get this junk out of here!’ He started heaving tables here and there, cutting loose oxen, sheep and goats and flipping open dove cages. All of a sudden there was quite a scurry of activity.

Again, you can imagine how resentful people had been about the “rip-off” that was going on there in the temple with these priests running nothing more than just a “racket” with the sacrifices. You can imagine how people resented that. People always take note when those in authority are doing things like that. They resent it now, and they resented it then. So that was a very popular move. Everybody knew they shouldn’t have been doing it, but nobody had done anything about it. Nobody challenged the priests and the Pharisees on it.

The whole city had just gone wild acknowledging Him as the Messiah the previous day. Nobody was prepared to come up and arrest Him. No way! He was being acknowledged, at the very least, as a prophet and many were acknowledging Him as the Messiah. They had expectations. They had decided how God was going to act.

It is interesting, as we will note, how on the one hand, they believed Him, and on the other hand, they really didn’t. There really wasn’t faith because when He didn’t conform to their expectations when He didn’t do things exactly the way they thought that He would do it, the mob very quickly turned against Him. It was only a matter of days that some of that same group were standing in a mob outside Pilate’s palace yelling, “Crucify Him, crucify Him.” Why the variation? He didn’t fit their image. He didn’t do things the way they anticipated it being done. They had it all figured out in their minds as to how He had to do it. And when He didn’t do it that way, they took great exception. Oh, they didn’t like that at all, but this hadn’t come up yet.

Of course, the Pharisees and the religious leaders all had a vested interest. He came in and they were in a panic at the reception He was getting. They very quickly got together as politicians do. You hear the saying, “politics makes strange bed fellows.” Well, it did back then the same as it does now. The Pharisees, Sadducees and Herodians who normally can’t stand one another, got together. It was worse than the “left wing,” the “right wing” and the other “wings” in between. These were the various political factions. But they quickly got together. They had things divided up; each one had their sphere of influence. ‘But if this guy keeps muscling in, we are all going to be in trouble.’

So the Pharisees put the Herodians up to coming in and asking Him the questions. They came up there to confront Him on this issue of taxes. You remember He addressed that and very quickly put them in their place. They didn’t have any more questions to ask.

The Sadducees came and they had their trick question on the resurrection, which they thought was the real clincher. He very quickly put them in their place and they began to slink away.

Then the Pharisees showed up. They heard that the Sadducees and the Herodians had been put to shame, so they decided that they would try to show Him up. After a couple of statements from them, His response “took the wind out of their sails.” They didn’t have a whole lot of other comments to make.

This brings us up through Matthew 23 where they had asked Him, ‘Where do You get Your authority?’ And He said, ‘Let Me ask you one question—where did John get his?’ This really put them at a quandary because they didn’t know how to respond to that without antagonizing the crowd.

Then there was a question that came up—what’s the most important part of the law? He very quickly addressed that subject. He summed it up and explained the principles upon which the whole law hung: love God and love your neighbor. That summarized everything there was to say on the subject. None of them had any response to that.

Now He begins to set the stage.

Matthew 23:2-3, “Saying, ‘The scribes and the Pharisees sit in the seat of Moses. Therefore whatever they may tell you to observe, that observe and do, but do not according to their works: because they command, but do not practice it themselves.’”

And He proceeded to go through and tell them, Verse 33, “‘You serpents, you offspring of vipers, how are you going to escape the judgment of Gehenna?’” ‘You sons of snakes, you sons of the devil, you hypocrites, you are going to burn in hell fire.’ Boy, He began to really read them the “riot act.” There was no question. Needless to say, by the time He finished with that, a crowd had gathered around because He just really “laid it out to them.”

He told them, Matthew 21:43, “‘...the Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits of the Kingdom of God.’” They were in authority, but He was in ultimate authority as God in the flesh. Here they were purporting to represent Him as the God of the Old Testament. They had so distorted and abused the responsibility they had, that they really deserved to be corrected sternly and strongly. He told the people that as long as they occupy this office, you respect them in it. Listen to what they say, but don’t follow their example.

As I have mentioned before, that is advice that goes so totally “against the grain” when it comes to human nature. When people find out that someone is not practicing what he preaches, they immediately say, ‘That hypocrite!’ Well, yes, he is! He’s not practicing what he preaches. But then the response of human nature is, ‘Why should I do that? He doesn’t even do it himself. He’s been telling me to do that, and he’s been doing the opposite. Why, I am not going to pay any more attention to what he says.’

Isn’t that the response, so often, that people have? Christ said that even if he’s a hypocrite, if he tells you the truth, you do the truth; you just don’t follow his hypocrisy. His problem is not that he’s preaching the wrong thing and doing the right thing. His problem is he is preaching the right and doing the wrong. What people want to do is ignore the message and follow the example. Then they get mad because they think somebody’s gotten by with something they’ve wanted to get by with and didn’t dare try it. Then they get resentful about it. Christ made it plain as to the perspective.

This was on a Sunday. This was the day of confrontation and when all these events had occurred.

Matthew 24:1-3, He left and went back out to the Mount of Olives. As they were leaving Jerusalem going back to Bethany, He went through the Olivet prophecy with the disciples.

Matthew 25, we pick it up that Sunday evening, or late Sunday afternoon as He is speaking to the disciples. We see here the parable of the ten virgins that Christ gave in the first thirteen verses of Matthew 25. It’s apparent that the ten virgins symbolize the entire Church.

Verse 5 describes them all “going to sleep at the switch.” The bridegroom delayed His coming, and they all slumbered and slept.

Matthew 25:6, “‘Then at midnight there was a shout, “Look! The bridegroom is coming! Get ready to meet him!”’” What do we have? Christ is giving a parable. It applies and is descriptive of what happened to the Church. The Church is described here and pictured as ten virgins. It became apparent that Christ did not come immediately as they expected that He would, and by the time the destruction of Jerusalem had come, it was apparent that the Messiah was not coming back in that generation. Effectively, the Church “went to sleep at the switch.” They all slumbered and slept. The Church continued, it existed, but they went to sleep—that sense of zeal and urgency was lost.

Then when God raised up Mr. Herbert Armstrong in the 1920s and 1930s, the midnight cry began to go out, “Behold the bridegroom comes.” Mr. Armstrong was raised up to cry out that, ‘Behold the bridegroom comes. Get ready to go meet Him. Be prepared.’ That, of course, was part of the commission of Elijah, of John the Baptist—to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

Then we come forward in our time now and the earlier part of this century. We find the story is that the virgins got up and began to trim their lamps. Then we find a distinction here—five were wise and five were foolish. There has been some speculation in terms of perhaps symbolizing the Laodicean and Philadelphia eras. There are various points, but certainly the point of it is that we had better be adequately prepared with God’s Spirit because that’s what is needed to be ready.

Then Christ gave the parable of the talents in vv. 14-30. The man called his servants and left property entrusted to them. He gave to them on the basis of what they were able to handle. Then after a while he came back and evaluated what they had done. Two of the servants had been diligent. They had been faithful. One had been unfaithful, unprofitable. It's made apparent here that the difference between the profitable and the unprofitable servant was that the unprofitable servant was one that was incapable of carrying out the master's expectation. He needed total, constant supervision. He didn't think like the master thought. The two who took the five talents and the two talents went out and doubled it.

The term "talent" is an old English word. It is a translation of a word that has reference to "a unit of money." The "talent" was a unit of money in the Middle East at that time. It is simply an analogy of money having been entrusted to individuals who took and used what they had been given. They did things as the master would have done had he been there. And he was very well pleased. He was pleased at the way they had the big picture. They sought to be responsive to his way of doing things.

We have the contrast that is given of how we take and use what God gives us now and the growth that we bring forth. This determines our reward.

Look at the statement in v. 21, "...well done good and faithful servant, you've been faithful over a few things, I will appoint you over many things. Enter into the joy of your Lord."

Right now, whatever our area of responsibility, it's over a few things. We have to learn to use them properly. Use the small opportunities we have right now, and God will ultimately give us great things in the Kingdom. It's a principle: if we're faithful with a little, we'll be faithful with much; if we are unfaithful on a small scale, we would be unfaithful on a grand scale. I saw a sign the other day that I thought had an interesting point. It said, "If you can't do great things, then do small things in a great way." That's part of what it's saying right here.

Most of the things we are involved in right now are not great earth-shattering, world moving events. The world news does not particularly take note of what you and I are doing in our daily lives. We are not making decisions that are impacting thousands and millions of people. Maybe we are only making decisions that impact us and our immediate family or a few people that work with us. What we do is on a small scale, but if we learn to do it right on a small scale, then we have the promise of greater things.

Christ says, 'I want to see that you are learning to be a faithful servant and that I can count on you to handle things the way I would handle it. I want to see if you're developing My mind. I want to see if you are learning to think like Me. You don't need somebody to just stand there and point out every single rule, and all you do is conform to the rules.' We must be transformed to think like God.

Now if the master had been over there and said, 'Take this dollar, go over here and do this with it; take that one, go over there and do this,' then I'm sure he would have carried it out. 'You take this one, go to the bank with it and deposit my dollar.' He would have probably done that. It didn't say he was a thief. He gave the man back what he had. He had buried it. It was just that he was incapable of exercising any independent thought or action unless somebody was standing there giving him a long list of rules, spelling out every detail. He simply couldn't take and apply the principles he had learned and do it the way the master would. He didn't do that.

As we come through, Matthew 25:31-32, Christ makes plain that when the Son of Man comes in all of His glory and all the holy angels are with Him, that's when He is going to sit on the throne of His glory. That's when He is going to separate the sheep from the goats. That is a judging process. Again an agricultural analogy is used.

If you have ever been around sheep and goats, you understand there is a distinct difference. They are not animals of the same temperament at all. It was a figure of speech that would have been easily understood to people at that time and to some of us who've had occasion to be around sheep and goats. Sheep are known for their willingness to follow the leader. Goats don't follow anyone. They tend to have a very definite mind of their own. We even use the expression of somebody being "stubborn as a Billy goat." All you have to do is have a Billy goat, and you realize how stubborn that is.

The distinction that Christ describes in Matthew 25 are those who willingly follow Him and those who are stubborn, self-willed and go their own way. What it ultimately comes down to is converted and unconverted. Are we willingly yielding ourselves and trying to follow Christ? The sheep follow the shepherd. Christ is the Good Shepherd. The sheep are the ones that try to follow Him. The goats are the ones that go charging off in their own direction, and if they are dragged back, they may come. But every time you look around, they go wandering off somewhere else. They don't want to follow.

Christ went on to make it plain that He has not been ruling and judging during the last nineteen hundred years. He has been in heaven.

He says in vv. 31-32, "When He comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him"—that's when He's going to sit on the throne, and that's when He is going to judge the nations. The judgment process is going to begin at the second coming.

Verses 35-40, "Because I was hungry, and you gave Me something to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave me something to drink; I was a stranger, and you took me in; I was naked, and you clothed me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to see Me.' Then the righteous shall answer Him, saying, 'Lord, when did we see You hungry, and fed You something? Or thirsty, and gave You something to drink? And when did we see You a stranger, and took You in? Or naked, and clothed You? And when did we see you sick, or in prison, and came to You, and visited You?' And answering, the King will say to them, 'Truly I tell you, as long as you have done it to one of these, the very least of My brethren, you have done it to Me.'"

We demonstrate our real attitude toward Christ by the way we treat one another. You know, Christ takes it personally the way we treat one another. Look around. Anyone that we would consider the least of Christ's brethren, maybe they're someone who is elderly, maybe they're "this or that," maybe they're having a problem. Whatever the circumstance, do you realize that the way we treat them, Christ says, "inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, you've done it unto Me."

He goes through and talks about this distinction of those that are going to say, 'I was hungry' or 'I needed help' or whatever it is. 'I needed a ride to Church'; 'I needed somebody to come and encourage me'; 'I needed somebody to help me' or do whatever. 'And you wouldn't come.'

They will say, 'Lord, we never saw You. Boy, if I had ever seen You needing help, why surely I would have come and done it!' He says, 'No, you didn't do it to the one of the least of these My brethren. You wouldn't go across the street to help him; you wouldn't do it to help him. If you didn't do it to him, you didn't do it to Me.'

When we serve one another, it is the same as if we have done it to Christ personally. Maybe you don't think of it that way. Jesus takes it personally the way we treat His brothers and sisters. That's what He calls us—His brothers and sisters. He takes it personally. It is important that we have that concept in mind. The way we treat one another, Christ is taking it personally. It's as though He were there. The next time you do something for someone realize that as God looks at it, it is the same as if you had done it personally for Jesus Christ.

We read in the New Testament about different ones that did different things for Him. Sometimes we think, 'I wish I could have been there and could have done some of those things, had that contact, had the honor of serving Him a meal, giving Him a place to sleep, doing certain of these things'—whatever it may be. Realize that if you have done it to His brethren, you have done it to Him. He takes it personally.

Then on the other hand, if we have opportunities to do something for someone and we don't, then it's just like we didn't do it for Christ. We have to look at it that way. If that were Jesus Christ there, would I go do it? Would I help Him out? Would I be willing to serve? Would it be too inconvenient? That's the point that He goes through here, "inasmuch as you have not done it to one of the least of these My brethren, you didn't do it to Me." He takes it personally, and I think that is an important concept.

If you really grasp that, how would there be problems and friction? How would there be gossip? Would you say that about Christ Himself? Do you realize that if we go around and say bad things about people, we are doing it to Christ? We do things and we might as well be doing it to Him. It's an important concept. If we really grasp the extent to which Jesus Christ takes it personally, then we have that concept, and that's the way we treat one another. Treat one another exactly as you would treat Jesus Christ. That is a very important principle.

Two days before Passover: Matthew 26:1-5, Mark 14:1-2 and Luke 22:1-2.

Matthew 26:2, "You know that after two days the Passover takes place, and the Son of Man is to be betrayed and to be crucified." This would have been Sunday evening; one day later would have been Monday evening; two days later would have been Tuesday evening—and that's when Christ and the disciples kept the Passover. So, this is Sunday evening.

Verses 3-5, "Then the chief priests and the scribes and the elders of the people were assembled together in the court of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas. And they consulted together, in order that they might find a way to seize and arrest Jesus by deceit, and kill Him.

But they said, 'Not during the Feast [of Unleavened Bread], lest there be a riot among the people.'" They were afraid of a riot. They wanted to do it quietly. They wanted to betray Him, to get rid of Him "on the quiet." They did not want a public outcry. They were afraid of trouble.

Jesus is anointed in Bethany: Matthew 26:6-13 and Mark 14:3-9.

Matthew 26:6, "Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon..." That Sunday evening there was a dinner there at the home of Simon.

Verse 7, "A woman came to Him having an alabaster flask of ointment which was extremely expensive, and poured it on His head, as He was sitting at the table." You remember a few days earlier when He had gotten there, Martha had anointed His feet with oil and Judas had gotten very upset. Judas said, 'That's just wasteful and extravagant. Why this stuff could have been sold and the money given to the poor. It could have helped people. Look at that!' He began to talk around among some of the others and stir things up.

Well this time, this other woman came in and poured this ointment on His head; some of the disciples began to be indignant (v. 8). You can imagine Judas is the instigator of it. He had evidently stirred up a few others, and they began to think that it was awfully wasteful and extravagant. 'Why does He encourage extravagance like that?' You know what Judas' motive had been; John made it plain. He said Judas said all of this stuff, not because he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief (John 12:6). He was keeper of the bag; he was the treasurer. He wanted it sold and the money put in the "pot" because he planned on "skimming" some off the top. That was the real motive. He wasn't interested in the poor, one way or the other. He had stirred things up, and it got some others stirred up.

People have done that. I remember years ago, Mr. Herbert Armstrong was getting ready to build the auditorium. There were people that were all upset. 'That's extravagant! Why does he have to go out and have that carpet specially made; I know some he can get on special down there at Wal-Mart. Why doesn't he put some of that in?' Well, he didn't do it that way. And I think anyone who has ever had opportunity to be out there and has seen it realizes that he did it just the way God inspired him to do it. In fact, if you really get back to it, the ones that were stirring it up were at the top, and they were stirring because they had the same motives as Judas. They stirred up things down through the ranks and eventually some got bitter and accusative. It's unfortunate. When people start being accusative of things, you better kind of wonder what their motives are. Judas managed to get some upset.

Verse 11, Christ said, 'If you're so interested in the poor, you have plenty of opportunity to help them because they will always be here.'

Matthew 26:11, "...But you will not always have Me." I am not going to be here much longer.

Verses 12-13, "For this woman, in pouring this ointment on My body, did it toward My burial. Truly I tell you, wherever this gospel shall be preached in all the world, what this woman has done shall also be spoken of, for a memorial."

He said, 'Leave this woman alone; she's doing a good thing. This is going to be remembered. This is an act of faith on her part, and you will have plenty of opportunity to do other things.' Christ undoubtedly made it very plain. I suspect He looked Judas squarely in the eye when He said some of this and made it very plain what He was talking about because of the next thing we read.

Judas betrays Jesus: Matthew 26:14-16, Mark 14:10-11 and Luke 22:3-6.

Matthew 26:14-15, "Then one of the twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priest, and said, 'What are you willing to give me, and I will betray Him to you?' And they agreed to give him thirty pieces of silver." Judas was a traitor. Christ didn't do things Judas' way. In fact, Christ saw through Judas, and instead of Judas repenting, he became resentful to the point that he thought, 'I'll fix you; I'll get even with you.' So he went.

Now why were the leaders willing to pay Judas this large sum of money? Thirty pieces of silver was a significant sum of money. They wanted to get Him, to arrest Him, but they did not want to try and seize Him at a public occasion because of fear that there might be a riot on their hands. As a result, they had been trying to lay wait for Him, but they never could catch Him. They wanted to seize Him privately, and Judas came and said, 'I will give you an opportunity. I will point Him out to you. I'll help you find Him privately, off away from the crowd.' That was what they wanted. They wanted to do what they did quietly. They were not prepared to try it in the temple or some place like that.

The disciples prepare for Passover: Matthew 26:17-19, Mark 14:12-16, Luke 22:7-13 and John 13:1.

Matthew 26:17, “Now on the first of unleavened [the first day of unleavening] the disciples came to Jesus, asking Him, ‘Where do You desire that we should prepare for You to eat the Passover.’” I commented on this prior to the Days of Unleavened Bread. The reference here, in what is called “the first of the unleavened” or “the first of the unleavened bread,” is not a reference to the first holy day of Unleavened Bread (the first day of the seven days of Unleavened Bread) because the first day of the seven days of Unleavened Bread is a holy day. It comes after the Passover.

It is very plain in Leviticus 23. Passover is on the 14th; the days of Unleavened Bread begin on the 15th—and the first day is a holy day. The expression “the first of the unleavened bread” or “the first of unleavened” was a term that referred to “the 13th day of the first month.” In this year, it would have been Tuesday.

The Jews’ custom was that after twelve o’clock noon on the 13th, no more leavened bread was to be made. No more dough was to be put out to rise. They began to clean and gather up things, to gather the leavening. Now, they continued to eat the leavened bread that they had, but there had to come a point you stopped baking it. You know, you don’t bake right up to sunset on the 15th. There is a cutoff point. Their cutoff point was at noon on the 13th. After that they didn’t bake more leavened bread. They would continue to eat what they had from noon on the 13th to noon on the 14th. After noon on the 14th they burned the leavening or it was consumed that afternoon, prior to sunset that evening.

Most of us do that. We dispose of our leavening at least a few hours before or sometimes the day before. Maybe you have a little bit you have saved back, and you finish it off that morning. Well, they did something similar. The 13th was known as “the first day of the unleavened” because it was the beginning of the time, from noon, that they could only bake unleavened bread. It can be confusing as you read through it without knowing that phrase. It’s just a little awkward.

They asked, ‘Where do You want us to prepare the Passover?’ He told them and they did. I know that there are some who say that Christ changed the time of Passover or some have said it in the past. I don’t know about saying it now, but some in the past have said that Christ changed the time of the Passover. I find it hard to reconcile that with the account that’s given right here.

The disciples brought it up. The clear implication from Matthew 26, Mark 14 and Luke 22 is they ate the Passover when they expected to eat the Passover. Can you imagine Jesus saying, ‘Go prepare the Passover’ the day before they had ever been doing it? ‘You know, we are going to eat Passover tonight.’ If they had always done it a night later, can you imagine Peter not saying, ‘Wait a minute, Lord, You are a day early, aren’t You? Why are we doing it tonight? That’s not till tomorrow night.’ Can you imagine Peter just letting it pass and not asking why? He asked for a whole lot less than that. That would have been pretty major.

There was never a “ripple,” never a question. It was never an issue. It never seemed to have come up. In fact, the disciples came to Him and said, ‘Where do You want us to prepare it?’ In fact, Peter and John were the ones that Christ sent. They didn’t have any questions. They weren’t surprised. They weren’t taken aback. It was just the normal course of things. They ate the Passover every year, and there is no indication here that they ate it any other time than when they expected to eat it.

It’s plain when you go through John’s account (John 19:14) that the Pharisees were observing it a day later than Christ did. I have no questions as to who knew the right time. Christ told Peter and John where to go and they did. Things were prepared; they went in to eat the Passover.

We will continue the account.

Matthew 26:20, “And evening came and He sat down with the twelve.”

In John 13:2-5, we will pick up the account, “And during supper (the devil having already put into the mind of Judas Iscariot, Simon’s son, that he should betray Him), Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He had come from God, and was returning to God; He rose from the supper, and put aside His garments; and took a towel, and secured it around His waist. Afterwards He poured water into a washing basin, and began washing the disciples’ feet, and wiping them with the towel which He had at His waist.” The clear implication from John 13 is that Jesus washed Judas’ feet.

I wonder if you have thought about that. Suppose you knew that somebody was a traitor, someone who purported to be your friend had sold you out and was collaborating with people who were going to murder you. How kindly disposed do you think you’d be toward that person? To really grasp the compassion, the mercy, the attitude, and the willingness to serve, what about serving a “Judas”? It’s no big deal to serve somebody who is nice to you, somebody who is your best friend and always does good things for you. It’s easy to serve that person because you want to. You serve them; they serve you. What about serving a “Judas”? Do you feel much incentive to go out and serve a “Judas”? I don’t think any of us do. Christ got down and washed his feet. He had that attitude, that willingness to serve, that attitude of humbling Himself; He began washing the disciples’ feet. We went through the account at Passover. I won’t go into the details.

Judas dips the sop and then leaves: Matthew 26:21-25, Mark 14:18-21, Luke 22:21-23 and John 13:18-32.

Matthew 26:21, “And while they were eating, He said, ‘Truly I am telling you, that one of you shall betray me!’” It is plain that they were still eating the meal because different ones began to ask about it. This was upsetting.

John 13:24, “Then Simon Peter motioned to him [John] to ask who it might be that He was speaking about.” This was a Middle Eastern style banquet. The table was fairly low to the floor, and they were reclining on cushions. The meal was on the table. John was over there right up next to Jesus, and Peter was always curious. That’s why I find it hard to believe he wouldn’t have asked something about Passover. He immediately kind of motioned to John and said, ‘Ask Him who it is. Ask Him.’

Verse 25, “Leaning over on Jesus’ chest, he asked Him, ‘Lord, who is it?’”

Verse 26, “Jesus answered, ‘It is he to whom I shall give this sop, after dipping it.’ Then, after dipping the sop, He gave it to Judas Iscariot, Simon’s son.” Now it was customary that there were not a lot of utensils that were used. Bread, even unleavened bread, would have been broken off and dipped. Often some of the food was wrapped in it and dipped in the gravy. You might compare it to a tortilla. If you have gone to a Mexican restaurant, they bring out these tortillas, and you wrap some of the food in it, using it to hold the food. Well, that’s similar to what He did. He tore off a piece and wrapped a morsel of meat in it, dipped it in the gravy and handed it to someone. The dish was evidently there near Him. He just quietly said to John, ‘It will be the one that I hand this to.’ And He handed it to Judas.

Verse 27, “...Jesus therefore said to him, ‘What you are going to do, do quickly!’”

Verse 30, “After receiving the sop, he immediately went out....” Judas got up and left.

Verses 28-29, the others really didn’t grasp it; they thought that maybe Judas was being sent out to buy something for that evening or to give something to the poor—since he claimed to be so interested in them. They didn’t really grasp what had happened, but in reality, Judas had gone out to betray Him. This was during the meal portion.

Eating the unleavened bread: Matthew 26:26, Mark 14:22, Luke 22:19 and I Corinthians 11:23-24.

Matthew 26:26, “And while they were eating, Jesus took the bread, and blessed it, and broke it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, ‘Take, eat; this is My body.’” This makes it plain that it was at the conclusion of the meal, as the meal was drawing to a close, that Jesus then took the bread and the wine and gave a special significance. He took the bread, broke it and gave it to them; He said, ‘This is My body, broken for you.’

Verses 27-28, “And after taking the cup, and giving thanks, He gave it to them, saying, ‘All of you drink of it, because this is My blood of the new covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins.’” He took the cup and said, ‘This is My blood shed for you.’ This was obviously something that was done in a special way at the end of the meal to give significance to it. Judas had gone by then. It was certainly appropriate that Judas was not there to partake of the symbols of Christ’s sacrifice because he didn’t really accept those symbols. He did not partake of that although he was present at the foot washing. Jesus was willing to wash his feet, but Judas did not partake of the symbols of the New Covenant.

In this context, there was a contention.

Luke 22:24, “And there was also an argument among them about this: which of them should be thought to be the greatest.” They got to arguing about who was the most important. Who’s going to have the greatest job in the Kingdom?

Verses 25-27, “And He told them, ‘The kings of the nations lord it over them; and those exercising religious authority over them are called benefactors. But with you it shall not be this way: but he who is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he who leads, let him be as he who serves.’” Christ made it plain that the real key to greatness is service and humility—willing to serve and not to exalt the self.

John 13:34, “A new commandment I am giving to you, for this purpose, that you should love one another; in the same way as I have loved you, this is the way you also should love one another.” That’s the way. Not simply love. Our relationship with one another is not simply as neighbors. You are to love your neighbor as yourself. You are to deal fairly and equitably with him. Your neighbor is anybody you may come into contact with. Deal fairly and above board with all people.

But with the brethren, we are told that we’re more than neighbors—we’re brothers. We are not simply neighbors—we are family. Christ said, ‘This is the commandment that I am giving you. Don’t simply love your brother as yourself, love him the way I have loved you—with a sacrificing kind of love. We’re not commanded to love our neighbor that way. We’re commanded to love our neighbor as we love ourselves. We deal with him the way we want to be dealt with. Treat him fairly. Treat him the same way we wish to be treated. That’s certainly expected. But we’re told with the brethren we are to even go beyond that. We need to have the kind of attitude that Christ Himself had.

Peter denies Christ three times: Matthew 26:31-35, Mark 14:27-31, Luke 22:31-34 and John 13:36-38.

Matthew 26:31, “Then Jesus said to them, ‘All of you will be offended because of Me during this night: because it has been written, “I will smite the shepherd, and the flock will be scattered abroad.”’”

Verse 33, “And answering, Peter said to Him, ‘Even if all should be offended in You, I will never be offended!’” Peter was quick to tell Him, ‘I don’t care who forsakes You; I don’t care who leaves or who does what. I will never back down. I will never turn away from You. I am prepared to go to the bitter end.’

Verse 34, “Jesus said to him, ‘Truly I tell you, that during this night, before the cock crows, you will deny Me three times.’” Christ said, ‘You don’t really know what you’re saying. Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.’

Verse 35, “Peter said to Him, ‘Even if it were needful for me to die with You, in no way will I deny You!’ And all the disciples answered in the same way.” Peter was just adamant; he knew he wouldn’t do that. Well, Christ knew he would because as I’ve mentioned before, there was a lesson Peter had to learn.

Peter had not come to realize that his strength was inadequate. We need more than what we can supply. We need God’s strength. Our strength is inadequate. Our strength can fail us. Peter learned that in a very humiliating experience. He learned that, and he simply didn’t make the mistake of relying on his own strength anymore. He was clearly not converted at this time.

Luke 22:32, ““But I have prayed for you, that your faith may not fail: and when you are converted, establish and strengthen your brethren.”” When you are converted! That would, of course, be at the Day of Pentecost.

Next we find Christ’s message to the disciples on that final evening of the Passover.

John 14:2, ““In My Father’s house and family there are many positions and offices....”” There are many responsibilities and offices. (NKJV, “In My Father’s house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also.”) Christ makes it plain. He didn’t tell the disciples that they would go to heaven.

Some want to quote, “In My Father’s house there are many mansions.” I can remember as a child growing up in the Baptist Church, the preacher would read, “In My Father’s house are many mansions.” Many times they do that at funerals. At that point they would close the Book and begin to talk about how the dear departed were in heaven.

As a child I remember my concept when somebody said “mansion,” the only thing I could think of was some of these antebellum-style homes. My concept, as a child, was that the streets of heaven must be lined with great big white houses with great big white columns. Many mansions—just filled with mansions.

The preachers want to stop there and give you the impression that you are going to go floating off up there; you check into that great hotel in the sky. You get your room, and you don’t check out. That is not what Christ said.

He said, v. 3, ““And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto Myself, that where I am you may be also.”” Christ made it plain that we are not going up there and meeting Him. He is coming here to us. He didn’t say I am going away, and I will leave you a road map as to how to get there. He said, ‘I am going to come back.’

The term “My Father’s house” was a reference to “the temple,” which the Jews understood. Christ had said just a few days earlier in Matthew 21:13, ““It’s written My Father’s house is to be a house of prayer and you’ve made it a den of thieves.”” The temple was symbolic of the Father’s house. The temple did not symbolize heaven. The Holy of Holies and the ark of the covenant symbolized the throne of God. There were many compartments and apartments. There were many places in the temple that were assigned to various offices and functions of the priesthood. The particular office or dwelling that particular ones held was in accordance with the position that they held there in the government. These apartments or places were around on three sides of the temple. They were part of the temple. The concept given is that the New Jerusalem is going to come down from God out of heaven (Revelation 21:2). Christ is going to prepare a place, and He's going to bring it with Him. It's ultimately going to come down. He's going to come down and assign offices and responsibilities. There's an analogy here, and it's plain that He's going to come back to bring the reward.

John 14:16, “And I will pray the Father, and He will give you another Comforter, that it may remain with you forever, even into the ages of eternity.”

Verse 26, “The Comforter, the Holy Spirit, which the Father will send in My name, it will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all things, whatever I have said to you.”

One of the things the Holy Spirit does is it opens our mind to understand spiritual things. One of the reasons we need God's Spirit is that it helps us to learn to grasp spiritual things on our own and with God's Spirit working with us. Certainly for all of us here, God's Spirit is with us, but until you come to a point of conversion, until you come to really truly repent and be baptized, there is a difference. The difference is you can make progress; you can grow; you can make a certain level of progress; and you can go to a certain point on your own. With God's Spirit with you, you can go to a certain point, but then it's like you come up against a brick wall. You've made progress, changed, done certain things and gone as far as you can go, but you can't seem to get beyond that point. That's the point beyond which you can't go without God's Spirit in you! The Spirit had been with the disciples but it hadn't yet come into them, which it would on the Day of Pentecost.

With young people growing up in the Church or new people coming in, perspective members, the spirit is working with them, but they'll only make progress to a certain point. Beyond that point they cannot go until they surrender, make that commitment and the Spirit comes into them. Then it is like somebody tore down the wall.

Progress is still a step at a time and a day at a time, but there's no longer a limitation beyond which you can't go. At that point, God's Spirit is the unlimiting factor.

Christ makes it plain there is no so-called “independent Christian.”

John 15:1-4, “I am the true vine, and My Father is the vinedresser. Every branch in Me that is not producing fruit, He takes it away; and every one that is producing fruit, He cleanses and purges it, so that it may produce more fruit. You are already clean through the word, which I have spoken to you. Remain and live in Me, and I in you. Just as the branch is not able to produce fruit by itself, all alone, except it remain and live in the vine; in exactly the same way, neither can you produce fruit, except you remain and live in Me.”

Imagine cutting a branch off, tying it to a fence post or a telephone pole and expecting it to bear fruit. Of course not! You cut the branch off, and it is not receiving nourishment anymore from the trunk—it dries up and withers.

Verse 6, the only thing you can use it for is firewood. Christ made that plain. All the branches have to stay attached to the main trunk. We have to be unified. The source of our ability comes through Christ. It comes through being attached to the body. Christ also made it plain to the disciples.

Verse 16, “You have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you. Also, I have ordained and appointed you, that you should go out and produce fruit, and that your fruit should remain: so that whatever you may ask of the Father in My name, He may give it to you.”

Why are you here? Why am I here? Well, God called us; God chose us. I am not here because I figured it out for myself, and you're not here because you did it yourself. God sought us; God called us. Christ said, ‘You haven't chosen Me; I have chosen you.’ We didn't take the initiative, God did. He took the initiative in our lives. If God had not taken the first step, we would still be in our sins.

Christ then went on talking about how we would have trials and tribulation. Why did He tell us we should take courage?

John 16:33, “I have spoken these things to you, that in Me you may have peace. In the world you shall have tribulation: but be of good courage; I have overcome and conquered the world!” ‘I have overcome! I have conquered!’ We can have courage in facing whatever problems, whatever trial, whatever difficulties in this world, realizing that Christ has already won. The battle is won. The war is won, and all we have to do is hang on to the winning side. It's already determined.

I am not going through every detail here in John 14, 15 and 16. We went through that on Passover. I'll hit some of the high points. We note here they had been there in the upper room where they had the Passover service.

Jesus comes to Gethsemane to pray: Matthew 26:36, Mark 14:32 and Luke 22:39.

Then Christ and the disciples left and on the way out to the Garden of Gethsemane, they were discussing some of the things that are here in John 15 and 16. We have the account of what Jesus was telling them as they were walking along. By this time they came to Gethsemane.

Matthew 26:36, "Then Jesus came with them to a place called Gethsemane: and He said to the disciples, 'Sit here, while I go and pray nearby.'"

Jesus takes Peter, James and John with Him: Matthew 26:37-38, Mark 14:33-34 and Luke 22:40

Matthew 26:37, "Then He took with Him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee; and He began to be extremely sad and deeply depressed." The whole reality of what was happening began to converge on Him, and it just overwhelmed Him. He felt just absolutely overwhelmed at the thought.

Verse 38, "Then He said to them, 'My soul is extremely sad, even to death: wait here, and watch with Me.'" 'I just feel so depressed that life is a burden. I am just extremely overwhelmed with this sense of what is happening.' He said, "Wait here and watch with Me."

Jesus prays for three hours: Matthew 26:39-44, Mark 14:35-40 and Luke 22:41-46.

Matthew 26:39, "And after He had gone forward a little way, He prostrated Himself, face down, and prayed...." What did Jesus do when He reached that point when He began to be overwhelmed with this discouragement and this depression? He went to God with it! He went to God and made His request known.

Verse 39, "...saying, 'My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me: nevertheless not as I will, but as You will.'" He came and had this request. He said, 'I don't want to go through with this, but help Me—not My will but Your will.' Jesus prayed to come to that point of absolute total surrender. There is a serenity that comes from surrender. When you really put it in God's hands, there is a peace of mind that you have. There is peace and Christ had that. He wrestled through it in prayer. He had total surrender. He was asking God to help Him get rid of any vestige of holding on to His way. 'Let it be Your will.' And when you really turn loose and you know it is in God's hands, you can relax and have peace. We have the account in John 17, some of the prayer that He prayed. Then He began to get His mind more and more on others because He had peace in Himself.

The time of betrayal: Matthew 26:45-46 and Mark 14:41-42.

Matthew 26:46, "'Get up, let us go. Look! He who is betraying Me is approaching.'" Finally, He told His disciples, 'Come on, let's go.' He was ready.

That's the key. He understands what it's like to be depressed, to be discouraged and to be absolutely overwhelmed. As the reality of what He was facing, what He was going to have to go through and what it was going to be like started to come to mind, it was just overwhelming. But He turned loose. He knew that God knew what He was doing, and He prayed it through. We have to come to that point of surrender. Once you really turn loose, then you can have peace because you know that God is going to work it out.

Judas betrays Jesus with a kiss: Matthew 26:47-49, Mark 14:43-45, Luke 22:47-48 and John 18:1-9.

Matthew 26:47-49, "And while He was still speaking, suddenly Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a large crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and elders of the people. And he who was betraying Him gave them a sign, saying, 'Whomever I kiss, He is the One: seize Him.' And immediately he came up to Jesus, and said, 'Rabbi!' And with an outward show of love, he kissed Him."

Now they had paid this sum of money. Judas would lead them to where He was privately. They were just a small group, away from the crowds. The other thing was that as they came in with a group like this, it was dark and they had these torches. These were men all about the same age and would have been similar in appearance. They weren't sure of being able to pick out Christ in a group of other young men about His age. These were men around age thirty. Jesus was age thirty-three, so I think it is safe to say the disciples were pretty much in the twenty-five to thirty-five-age bracket. They would have been men right around that age. Christ was standing there, and they weren't sure they would pick Him out in a crowd like that where it was dark and torches and everything. But Judas would have known Him well; he went up and kissed Him. It's apparent that Jesus didn't have a halo over His head to where you could see Him because He glowed in the dark. No, He looked just like an ordinary Jew of His day. And they paid Judas a considerable sum of money to "tip them off" as to where He was and then to go and point Him out.

Peter cuts off ear of high priest's servant: Matthew 26:50-55, Mark 14:46-49, Luke 22:49-53 and John 18:10-12.

Matthew 26:50, "But Jesus asked him, 'Friend, for what purpose have you come?' Then they came to Jesus, and grabbed him with their hands, and arrested Him."

All was done to fulfill prophecy: Matthew 26:56 and Mark 14:50-52.

Matthew 26:56, "...Then all the disciples, deserting Him, ran away." The disciples left. Everybody split.

Jesus led to high priest's house: Matthew 26:57, Mark 14:53, Luke 22:54 and John 18:13-14.

Matthew 26:57, "But those who had arrested Jesus led Him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders were assembled."

John 18:13, "And they led him away to Annas first; because he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the high priest that year."

Peter follows into the courtyard: Matthew 26:58, Mark 14:54, Luke 22:54-55 and John 18:15-18.

Matthew, Mark, Luke and John all make plain that a couple of disciples followed Him. Peter followed Him. Peter is mentioned in all of the accounts. John makes it plain that he was with Peter. The two of them followed Him.

John 18:15-16, "Now following Jesus were Simon Peter and the other disciple [John]: but that disciple was known to the high priest, and he [John] entered with Jesus into the court of the high priest. But Peter stood outside the door. Then the other disciple [John] who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the doorkeeper, and brought Peter in."

John was actually a witness to the trial because he entered into the room and stood there and watched. He was evidently known and had some connections. He showed up there, and whoever was at the door let him come in. He stood there and watched. Peter was outside waiting.

Verse 24, "Then Annas sent Him bound to Caiaphas, the high priest." So all of this commotion was going on, and then they brought Him in.

Chief priests illegally condemn Jesus: Matthew 26:59-65, Mark 14:55-63 and Luke 22:63-65.

All the accounts bring this in.

Matthew 26:59-60, "And the chief priests, and the elders, and the entire Sanhedrin, tried to find spurious evidence against Jesus, in order that they might put Him to death. But they did not find any: yes, even though many false witness had come forward, they did not find any." Now here we are in the wee hours of the morning. What kind of people do you find on the streets in the wee hours of the morning? They had false witnesses in there. If you notice the story, the false witnesses couldn't get their stories together.

Mark 14:56, "For many gave false testimony against Him, but their testimonies were not in agreement."

What had they done? They had gone out, dragged the streets and grabbed a few drunks in off the streets. They had gone out, grabbed some of these drunks that left the bar about one o'clock in the morning. Who else are you going to find on the streets in the wee hours? They got this crowd in there, and these guys couldn't even get their story straight. They were all willing to go in there and give false testimony. They were trying to maintain the outward appearance of legality, so they needed two witnesses. They got this bunch of drunks, and they couldn't even find two of them who could remember the same story. So they had confusion there for a while until finally two of them managed to land on the same story. They said, 'Okay, that's it!'

Matthew 26:61, "But at last two false witnesses came forward and said, 'This Man said, I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it again in three days.'" You talk about a stacked deck in a courtroom. The judge starts parading witnesses through and finds two that agree. 'Those are the right ones. I know because they agree. It's clear.' All you have to do is go through the account, and you can see what a trumped up false thing this was. It was an outward sham. They were ready to crucify Him, to take Him to Pilate.

Sanhedrin condemns Jesus and sends Him to Pilate: Matthew 27:1-2, Mark 15:1, Luke 22:66-73:1 and John 18:28.

Matthew 27:2, "And after binding Him, they led Him away, and delivered Him over to Pontius Pilate, the governor."

At this point, we will stop here this evening. The next Bible study we will conclude with Jesus before Pilate, the crucifixion, the resurrection, and the ascension into heaven. The final events will be covered in the next Bible study.

Hopefully, as we have been going through this series on the harmony of the Gospels, we can gain a little more insight into what Jesus did, what He said and taught, and gain a deeper insight into the day-by-day things that transpired. We see the development through His ministry, as it was finally time for things to culminate. He came in full force there to Jerusalem realizing that things had built up and the foundation was laid. When the foundation is laid, the full force doesn't take long.

I think from our standpoint, we need to realize that we are right now in the position of finishing the foundational structure in terms of the work. When the time comes that we "hit it" with full force, it won't take long. But we are in that position right now of completing the foundation. With that we will be concluded this evening.

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Matthew 25:14—26:75; Mark 13:37—14:72; Luke 22:1-62; John 13:1—18:27

1. What spiritual lesson was Christ teaching in the parable of the talents?
2. Has Christ been sitting on His throne and ruling and judging everyone during these last 1900 plus years He has been in heaven?
3. How do we demonstrate our real attitude toward Christ?
4. Did any of Christ's disciples ever feel that He was extravagant and wasteful with money?
5. Why were the religious leaders willing to pay Judas Iscariot thirty pieces of silver?
6. Prove from the context that Jesus did not initiate some new and different day of keeping the Passover.
7. Why did Jesus wash the disciples' feet? Was Judas present for this?
8. Did Judas partake of the bread and the wine?
9. What is the real way to greatness?
10. What was the new commandment Jesus Christ gave?
11. Was Peter converted at this time?
12. What function would the Holy Spirit serve when it came?
13. Did Christ tell the disciples in John 14 that they would all go to heaven to be with Him?
14. Prove that there is no such thing as an "independent Christian" according to the teachings of Jesus Christ.
15. Had the disciples been the ones who had chosen Christ? How does this apply to us?
16. Even though we face trials and tribulation in this world, why did Christ tell us that we should take courage?
17. What was Christ's attitude toward the crucifixion as the hour approached? How did the disciples react?
18. Where was Jesus taken after His arrest? Did any of the disciples go with Him?
19. Demonstrate that Christ's trial was illegal.

The Gospels and Acts Series—Matthew 27:1—28:20; Mark 15:1—16:20; Luke 22:66—24:53; John 18:28—21:25

Everything has been building to this point—to the events that culminated in the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. He came as the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world (John 1:20). He was that final Passover Lamb that God did provide.

Last Bible study we went through the events of the final Passover supper that He observed with His disciples. We saw the events that culminated with His arrest and ended with Peter's denial. There is an important lesson that we are to gain from that. God ensured that Peter learned the lesson, and then he went on to serve God in powerful ways. When we rely on human strength, it will fail us and let us down at a crucial time. He felt that when the going got tough, he could handle things.

Jesus had gone aside that evening and prayed. He went a little further and prayed fervently. His disciples dozed off and fell asleep. Jesus recognized the crucial nature of the events He was going to be going through. He saw the enormity of what lay ahead, more than anything ever. The disciples did not recognize how powerless they were. If they had, they would have found it a little bit easier to concentrate. There was an illusion of the suffering. Peter went through a bitter experience and recognized his own weakness. At a crucial time his strength failed, and he learned a crucial lesson. He learned the lesson to never depend on his own strength. Strength was something that came from above.

John 18:28, “Then they led Jesus from Caiaphas to the Praetorium [which is the judgment hall]: and it was early. Now they did not enter the Praetorium, so they might not be defiled: but that they might eat the Passover.” The members of the Sanhedrin did not go into the Judgment Hall to talk to Pilate. They didn't go in the Judgment Hall so as to not be defiled by coming into contact with Pilate. Many of the Jews observed the Passover on a different day than Jesus and His disciples—who had observed it on the previous night. The members of the Sanhedrin and others had not observed it yet. We follow the practice of Jesus.

Notice the hypocrisy of their thinking. It would be a terrible thing if they would come into contact with the Italian governor. They would be defiled and couldn't eat the Passover. They built up this attitude in their minds. Like Jesus told them, ‘they strain at a gnat and swallow a camel.’ Defilement originates in the heart and mind.

Judas repents and hangs himself: Matthew 27:3-10 and Acts 1:15-19.

Matthew 27:3-4, “Then when Judas, who had betrayed Him, saw that Jesus was condemned, he regretted what he had done, and returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders, saying, ‘I have sinned by betraying innocent blood.’ But they said, ‘What does that matter to us? That is your problem.’”

‘Big deal! What do we care? What you did was a sin, but paying you was not a sin.’ They had paid the bribe and didn't feel guilty. Then they had a great discussion.

Verse 6, “And the chief priests took the pieces of silver, saying, ‘It is not lawful to put these coins into the treasury, since it is the price of blood.’” ‘We used this to cause a man to be betrayed and murdered. We can't put it back in the temple treasury.’

Verse 7, “After taking counsel, they bought the potter's field with those coins, for a burying ground for strangers.” They bought a parcel of ground and used it for a cemetery.

Matthew 27:5, “Then he threw down the pieces of silver in the temple, and left, and went out and hung himself.”

Acts 1:18, “Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity; and after falling headlong, he burst asunder in the middle, and all his bowels gushed out.” He evidently hung himself in an out-of-the-way place; the body hung, fell down and burst. If you put the two accounts together, you have the full story. Matthew tells us how it started; Luke tells us how it ended.

Jesus condemned before Pilate: Matthew 27:11-14, Mark 15:2-5, Luke 23:2-4 and John 18:29-30.

Luke 23:4, “Then Pilate said to the chief priests and the multitude, ‘I find no fault, nothing to condemn, in this man.’” Pilate found Him innocent. ‘This Man hasn't done anything.’

Verse 5, “But they were indignantly insistent, saying, ‘He stirs up the people, teaching throughout the entirety of Judea, beginning from Galilee even to here.’” This mob was agitated. ‘He has stirred up the whole nation. He started in Galilee.’

Verse 6, “But Pilate, when he heard Galilee mentioned, asked whether the Man were a Galilean.” When Pilate heard this, he thought he was going to get “off the hook.”

Verse 7, “And after finding out that he was from Herod’s jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who was also at Jerusalem at that same time.”

He said, “That should be Herod’s jurisdiction.” Pilate was a politician, and they had been doing that for years. He wanted to “pass the buck” to Herod.

Verse 8, “When Herod saw Jesus, he was extremely pleased for he had been wishing for a long time to see Him, because he had been hearing so many things about Him; and he was hoping to see some miracle or sign performed by Him.” Herod heard about it and was really excited. He had heard about all these miracles and had never seen a miracle.

Verses 9-11, “And he questioned him with many words; but Jesus answered him nothing. And the chief priests and the scribes stood and vehemently accused Him, and Herod and his troops were arrogantly insulting and ridiculing Him, and after mocking Him, they put a gorgeous robe on Him, and sent Him back to Pilate.”

When Herod didn’t see any miracles, he let his troops abuse Him and sent him back to Pilate. Here was a man who had an obligation to enforce justice, but he didn’t want to “make waves.” If he could “pass the buck,” he would.

Pilate finds Jesus innocent: Luke 23:13-15 and John 18:31-37.

John 18:31, “Then Pilate said to them, ‘You take Him, and judge Him according to your own law.’ But the Jews answered him, ‘We are not permitted to put anyone to death.’” They didn’t want to do that. They wanted Him taken out and executed. They wanted a horrible death for this One whom they hated. Pilate spoke to Jesus in a little more detail.

Verses 33-36, “Then Pilate entered the Praetorium [the judgment hall] again, and called Jesus, and asked Him, ‘Are You the King of the Jews?’ Jesus answered him, ‘Are you asking this of your own self, or did others tell you this about Me?’ Pilate answered, ‘Am I a Jew? Your own people and the chief priests have delivered You up to me. What did You do?’ Jesus answered, ‘My Kingdom is not of this world. If My Kingdom were of this world, then My servants would fight, that I should not be delivered up to the Jews. But now My Kingdom is not from this world and society.’”

Christ and His disciples did not get involved in the politics of this world. He came as an emissary of a Kingdom to come; as His followers, we find ourselves in the same situation.

Pilate releases Barabbas and crucifies Jesus: Matthew 27:15-23, Mark 15:6-14, Luke 23:16-23 and John 18:39-40.

Matthew 27:18, “Because He knew that through jealousy and envy they had arrested Him.”

Mark 15:7, “And there was one called Barabbas, who was imprisoned with his confederates after making insurrection, he had committed murder.”

Luke 23:18, “But they cried out in unison, yelling, ‘Away with this Man, and release Barabbas to us!’”

John 18:40, “Then they all shouted again, saying, ‘Not this One, but Barabbas!’ Now Barabbas was a robber.” Barabbas was kind of terrorist leader of his day. Pilate knew that through jealousy and envy they had arrested Jesus Christ. He knew that was what it was. He desired to turn Him loose.

Matthew 27:24, “When Pilate saw that nothing could be done to change their minds, but instead a riot was starting, he took water, and washed his hands in front of the multitude, proclaiming, ‘I am innocent of the blood of this righteous Man. You must tend to it yourselves.’” He saw a riot was on the verge of starting. He was concerned about his own political future, not what was right and wrong. That is what is wrong with human government. They know what they should do and have some inclination to do it, but pressure is brought—and they back down. He said, ‘I am going to wash my hands of it.’ He thought he could wash the guilt away.

So Pilate set Barabbas free and sent Jesus to be crucified. They beat and scourged Jesus Christ. They brought Him out and were still demanding that He be crucified. Finally, Pilate “caved in” and they led Him away to be crucified.

Soldiers lead Jesus away to be crucified: Matthew 27:31-33, Mark 15:20-22, Luke 23:26-31 and John 19:16-17.

John 19:17, “And carrying His own cross, He went out to the place called The Place of a Skull, which is called in Hebrew, Golgotha.”

Matthew 27:31-33, “And they led Him away to crucify Him. And as they were coming out, they found a man, a Cyrenian, named Simon: and they compelled him to carry His cross. And when they came to a place called Golgotha, which means, Place of a Skull.”

He started out carrying His cross, but because of the brutal beating, He was unable to continue. Simon of Cyrene carried the cross the rest of the way. Simon of Cyrene later came into the Church, and his children are mentioned in Paul's epistles. We are not told if he knew anything about Jesus Christ. This had quite an impact on him. Later his family is mentioned—his sons Alexander and Rufus are mentioned in Mark 15:21.

Title and accusation written on cross: Matthew 27:37, Mark 15:26, Luke 23:38 and John 19:19-22.

As we continue the account, we find there was a sign that was made. This is a good example of how the Bible interprets itself. Every writer gave a summary account. You give the information that impressed you.

Matthew 27:37, "And above His head they put up His written accusation, 'This is Jesus, the King of the Jews.'"

Mark 15:26, "And the inscription of His accusation was written over Him, 'The King of the Jews.'"

Luke 23:38, "Now there was also an inscription written over Him in Greek and Latin and Hebrew, 'This is the King of the Jews.'" Luke tells us something Matthew and Mark didn't tell us. It was written in three languages. They summarized the title.

John 19:19-21, "And Pilate also wrote a title, and put it on the cross. It was written, 'Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews.' Then many of the Jews read this title: because the place where Jesus was crucified was close to the city (now it was written in Hebrew, in Greek, and in Latin). Then the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, 'Do not write, "The King of the Jews," but rather, "He claimed, I am King of the Jews."'" The Jews wanted to change the sign to that He claimed He was King of the Jews.

Verse 22, "Pilate answered, 'What I have written, I have written.'" Enough is enough. This was a testimony written in languages that everybody present could read, a testimony any literate person in that area could read. Here was something that testified in each of those languages. Every account gives a little more detail that the other didn't give. That is how the Bible is written.

Two thieves crucified with Jesus: Matthew 27:38, Mark 15:27-28, Luke 23:32-33 and John 19:18.

Luke 23:33, "And when they came to the place called a Skull, there they crucified Him, and the criminals, one on the right side, and one on the left."

Matthew 27:38, "At the same time two robbers were crucified with Him, one on the right hand, and another on the left hand." Matthew tells us that He was placed in the midst of those.

Jesus is mocked and reviled; darkness: Matthew 27:39-45, Mark 15:29-33 and Luke 23:35-44.

Luke 23:35, "And the people stood gawking. And the rulers were also sneering and ridiculing Him with them, saying, 'He saved others! Let Him save Himself, if this is the Christ, the chosen One of God!'"

Matthew 27:44, "And in the same way the robbers also, who were crucified together with Him, insulted and reproached Him." He said, "robbers"—Plural.

Luke 23:39-40, "Now one of the criminals who had been crucified blasphemed Him, saying, 'If You are the Christ, save yourself and us!' But the other one rebuked him, saying, 'Don't you even fear God, seeing that you are suffering the same condemnation?'" Luke tells us that one was joining in, but the other was not.

Both said something at the beginning. But Luke says one continued to taunt; the other one rebuked the other. 'Don't you even fear God, seeing you are in the same condemnation? You are going to be dead and face God in the judgment.'

Verse 41-42, "'And we truly are condemned justly; because we are receiving a due payment for what we did: but this Man did nothing wrong.' And he said to Jesus, 'Remember me, Lord, when You are coming in Your Kingdom.'"

Note here the attitude of conversion. What does it take to be converted? —Basically to repent of our sins and to believe the Gospel. The thief demonstrated this attitude of repentance. He said that he was getting what he had coming. He offered no excuses. He made no attempt to minimize what he had done. 'I am getting what I had coming. I have sinned.' That is not the normal carnal approach. 'I have broken the Law of God, and I am getting my just consequences.' When you talk to anybody in prison, they always say they got a "bum rap"; he is on appeal, and everybody is against him. Talk to anyone in law enforcement.

What we have here is something different. He acknowledged himself as a sinner. Did he have faith? Did he believe the Gospel? Here he was hanging there, a man whose life was ebbing away. He said, 'I know that You are going to come into Your Kingdom. I believe that You are the Messiah, the King, and that You are going to establish that Kingdom. When You do, please remember me.’ Here was an act of faith.

There isn’t any evidence to the fact that Jesus was going to do anything except die. But he believed that this Man was who He said He was. He believed that and he said, “Remember me, Lord, when You come into Your Kingdom.”

Verse 43, “And Jesus said to him, ‘Today I am truly telling you, you shall be with Me in Paradise.’” The punctuation has caused some misunderstanding. ‘Today you will be with Me in Paradise.’ –That is not what it said. The question is did Jesus go to Paradise that day? Three days later He told Mary, ‘Don’t touch Me; I have not ascended to My Father’ (John 20:17).

Ecclesiastes 9:5, “...the dead know nothing...”

The thief did not expect to go to Paradise that day, but when Christ came with His Kingdom. Perhaps he had heard the message that Christ preached. Here was Jesus who could see into the hearts of men, could see that this man had made a commitment, that he was prepared to stick with it. God looks on the heart.

How long does a person have to be converted? Some people have misunderstood. How many Sabbaths do you have to keep? It is not a matter of that, but what you are willing to do. Repentance is a willingness to turn from the works of man. Our willingness to do those things is an evidence of repentance and a desire to do what God said. But it is not our physically doing those things. It is an important principle that we learn from this account.

John 19:25-27, “And standing near the cross of Jesus was His mother, and the sister of His mother, and Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene. Therefore seeing His mother, and the disciple whom He loved standing nearby, Jesus said to His mother, ‘Woman, now this is your son!’ Then He told the disciple, ‘See, this is your mother!’ And from that very hour the disciple took her into his own home.” One of the last things He did was to ask John to take care of His mother. Here was Jesus still thinking of others at the last part of His life. He asked John to look after her.

Jesus is forsaken, offered vinegar; spear thrust into His side; He dies; veil torn in two: Matthew 27:46-51, Mark 15:34-38, Luke 23:45-46 and John 19:28-30.

Matthew 27:46, “And about the ninth hour Jesus yelled out with a loud voice, saying, ‘Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?’ Which is, ‘My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me.’”

Matthew 27:49-50, “But the rest said, ‘Let Him alone. Let us watch, and see if Elijah comes to save Him!’ And another took a spear, and thrust it into His side, and out came water and blood. And then Jesus yelled out again with a loud voice, and yielded up His Spirit.”

Luke 23:45-46, “And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was ripped down the middle. And crying out with a loud voice, Jesus said, ‘Father, into your hands, I commit My Spirit,’ and after saying these things, He died.”

John 19:34, “Rather one of the soldiers had already pierced His side with a spear, and immediately blood and water had gushed out!”

Matthew 27:51, “And suddenly the veil of the temple was ripped in two from the top to the bottom. And the earth shook, and the rocks split and cracked.” There was an earthquake. The veil was rent in two. Previously, direct access to God the Father was not available. When Jesus died, the veil was rent in two to demonstrate that there was no longer a barrier. He had done away with what separated us from God the Father. We have direct access because our sins have been paid for.

Matthew 27:52-53, “And the tombs were opened; and many bodies of the saints which had fallen asleep arose. And walked out of the tombs after His resurrection, and went into the Holy City, and appeared to many.” There was a literal resurrection that occurred. The tombs opened. They did not come out of their graves until after Jesus resurrected them. They were resurrected to physical life.

What happened to the saints? The same thing that happened to Lazarus—eventually he died. These saints were resurrected to physical life. Evidently, they were people who were known in the community. The whole purpose was to witness to the resurrection. If someone appeared and said they were Abraham Lincoln, you wouldn’t believe it. But if your next-door neighbor, whose funeral was last week, suddenly were resurrected, that would get your attention. These were people that when they were resurrected, it created a stir. They had probably heard the message. Some would be there for the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2), receive the Holy Spirit and will be in the first resurrection.

John 19:31, “Then the Jews, in order that the bodies might not remain on the cross on the Sabbath (because it was a preparation day, since that coming Sabbath was a great day, a holy day) [the First Day of Unleavened Bread] [NKJV, “a high day”], requested of Pilate that their legs might be broken, and their bodies taken away.” They didn’t want the bodies to remain on the cross on the Sabbath. But it didn’t bother them to murder an innocent Man. They wanted to break their legs. When they were hanging and once the legs were broken, the pain was so excruciating; they couldn’t push themselves up to get a breath every so often. They would die in a few minutes. He had a very gruesome death. They did not break Jesus’ legs because He was already dead.

Verse 33, “But when they came to Jesus, and saw that He was already dead, they did not break His legs.” They were not to break any bones of the Passover lamb. This was prophetic.

Many of the women watch to the end: Matthew 27:55-56, Mark 15:40-41 and Luke 23:48-49.

Matthew 27:55-56, “And there were many women standing at a distance, looking on, who followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to Him. Among whom were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.” Jesus died at three o’clock in the afternoon.

Body of Jesus laid in tomb: Matthew 27:57-61, Mark 15:42-47, Luke 23:50-55 and John 19:38-42.

Matthew 27:57-58, “And as evening approached, there came a man of Arimathaea, Joseph by name, who also himself was a disciple of Jesus. He went to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered to him.”

Luke 23:50-51, “And then a man named Joseph from Arimathaea, a city of the Jews, being a counselor, and a good and righteous man, (He had not voted with the counsel, and did not approve of their actions,) who also himself was waiting for the Kingdom of God.” We are given a little more insight. Joseph had not voted with the Sanhedrin. He was a disciple, but he had concealed it.

John 19:39, “And also Nicodemus, who at the beginning had come to Jesus by night, came carrying a mixture of myrrh and aloes, weighing about one hundred pounds.”

They were evidently the two members of the counsel who had not gone along with it. They had been afraid to take a public stand before this. They had done what they had done quietly. They were men of wealth and importance, afraid of what people would think; but when it came “down to the wire,” they took a stand and made plain where they stood. When they saw what the leaders were doing, they couldn’t go along with it.

Mark 15:44-45, “And Pilate was amazed, and wondered if he were already dead. And when he called the centurion, he asked him if he had been dead very long. And after he knew it from the centurion, he granted permission to Joseph to take the body.”

Pilate asked, ‘Is He already dead?’ He sent a soldier to go and check; he came back and said, ‘Yes, He is dead.’ Pilate then wrote a release for the body to be released to Joseph and Nicodemus. This was at sunset.

Verse 46, “And he had bought a linen cloth: and after taking Him down, he wrapped Him in the linen cloth, and laid Him in a tomb which had been hewn out of a rock; then he rolled a stone to cover the entrance of the tomb.” They took the body of Jesus and very quickly wound it with linen. They did what they could and buried it in a nearby tomb. They buried it very quickly prior to sunset. We are given that account.

Now let us notice the three days and three nights. Matthew 27:57, “And as evening approached, there came a rich man of Arimathaea, Joseph...a disciple of Jesus.”

Verses 59-60, “And Joseph took the body, and wrapped it in clean linen cloth, and placed it in his own new tomb...” Let us see what happened.

After Holy Day women buy and prepare spices: Mark 16:1 and Luke 23:56.

Mark 16:1, “And after the Sabbath was past [the first holy day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread], Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought aromatics and spices, that they might come and anoint Him.” This tells us plainly it was after the Sabbath was past that they bought the spices to prepare Him.

Luke 23:56, “And they returned, and prepared spices and ointments [on the day following the holy day Sabbath], and on the [weekly] Sabbath they rested according to the commandment.” Look at what Luke tells us. They prepared the spices and then rested on the Sabbath. How could they buy the spices after the Sabbath and prepare them before the Sabbath. The key to the mystery is made plain.

John 19:31, “Then the Jews, in order that the bodies might not remain on the cross on the Sabbath (because it was a preparation day, since that coming Sabbath was a great day, a holy day (the First Day of Unleavened Bread)...)” (NKJ, “Therefore, because it was the preparation day, that the bodies should not remain on the cross on the Sabbath (for that Sabbath was a High Day)....”) It was the preparation day. The coming Sabbath was a high day, a holy day, the First Day of Unleavened Bread. That was an annual Sabbath. The preparation day on which Jesus was crucified was for an annual Sabbath, a high day. They prepared the spices and rested on the regular Sabbath.

So when you put it together, He was crucified on the preparation day of an annual Sabbath. After the holy day had past, they purchased the spices and then rested on the (weekly) Sabbath day. Then early Sunday morning as soon as dawn began to break, they made their way out there to embalm the body. But when they got there, the tomb was opened. If you go through all the accounts, it becomes very plain.

Women come to tomb early first day of week; Jesus already resurrected: Matthew 28:1-8, Mark 16:2-8, Luke 24:1-12 and John 20:1-10.

Matthew 28:1, “Now after the [two] Sabbaths [the first holy day during the Feast of Unleavened Bread and the weekly Sabbath], as it was getting light toward the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to see the tomb.”

Mark 16:9, “Now after Jesus had risen, early the first day of the week He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom He had cast seven demons.” He was already gone from the tomb on the first day of the week. He appeared first to Mary Magdalene.

John 20:1-2, “But on the first day of the week Mary Magdalene came very early, while it was still dark, and saw that the stone had been taken away from the entrance of the tomb. Then she ran and came to Simon Peter, and the other disciple, whom Jesus loved [that was the way John referred to himself], and told them, ‘They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid Him!’” She went and got Simon Peter and John.

Verses 4-6, “And the two ran together: but the other disciple ran ahead, faster than Peter, and came to the tomb first. And stooping down and looking in, he saw the linen clothes lying there. However he did not enter. Then Simon Peter came, following him, and entered the tomb; and he saw the linen clothes lying there.” When they got there, John, being cautious, stopped; Peter, not being cautious, rushed right on in.

Let me point out something here in John 20. You have all heard of the shroud of Turin. It was a fraud and we knew it. The Turin was one garment.

Verse 7, “And the handkerchief, which had been upon His head, was not lying with the linen clothes, but was folded up and was lying in a place by itself.” He was wrapped in two different things. There were two separate garments used to wrap His head and His body. The people who forged the garment back in the Middle Ages should have made two separate pieces. The selling of relics was a very popular and lucrative business. They should have made two different pieces. Peter and the others came and looked and went away. Mary came back.

Verses 11-12, “But Mary stood outside the entrance of the tomb, weeping. And as she was weeping, she stooped down and looked into the tomb. And suddenly she saw two angels dressed in white. And they were sitting, one at the head, and one at the foot, where the body of Jesus had been laid.”

Verses 15-16, “Jesus said to her, ‘Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you seeking?’ But thinking that He was the gardener, she said to Him, ‘Sir, if you have carried Him away, tell me where you have laid Him, and I will take Him away!’ Jesus said to her, ‘Mary!’ Turning around, she said to Him, ‘Rabboni!’ That is to say, ‘Teacher!’” When He said it that way, she turned.

Verse 17, “Jesus told her, ‘Do not even touch Me; because I have not yet ascended to My Father. But go to My brethren, and tell them, ‘I am ascending to My Father, and your Father; and to My God, and your God.’”

Later on He did let the disciples touch Him (Matthew 28:9; John 20:27). But not until the wave sheaf, the first of the first fruits was offered in the temple.

Matthew 28:11-15, “And as they were leaving, some of the guards went into the city, and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. And the chief priests assembled with the elders; and after taking counsel, they gave the soldiers a large amount of money, instructing them ‘to say, ‘His disciples came at night, and stole Him away while we were sleeping.’ And if this comes to the governor’s ears, we will convince him, and you will have nothing to worry about.’ So they took the money, and did as they were instructed. And this report is widely circulated among the Jews to this day.”

The three days and three nights was a special witness to the priests. Remember when they asked for a sign? That sign was a special sign, in a unique way, to the religious leaders of the day. Remember when He was buried. They had gone to Pilate saying that Jesus had been saying He was going to be resurrected and that the disciples were going to steal the body (Matthew 27:62-66). The soldiers were a witness to what happened, and the priests told them not to tell anybody. 'You tell everybody that you went to sleep, and if you get into trouble, we will get you out of it. But you need to spread this rumor.' If you pay somebody to tell a lie, there are two people who know it is a lie. And this was the situation here. It was a witness to them because they knew it was a lie.

The disciples had trouble handling the event of the resurrection.

Luke 24:10-11, "Now it was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary of James, and the rest of the women with them, who told the apostles these things. But their report appeared to them like idle talk, and they did not believe them." They didn't really believe it.

Luke 24:36-37, "And as they were telling these things, Jesus Himself stood among them, and told them, 'Peace be to you!' But they were terrified, and filled with fear, thinking that they were seeing a spirit." Their first response was that they didn't believe it. Then they were terrified, scared to death, and then they came and rejoiced (Luke 24:41).

Luke 24:12, "Peter, however, got up and ran to the tomb; and as he leaned over to look in, he saw the linen clothes lying there alone; and he went away, wondering in himself at what had occurred." He wondered what happened.

John 20:7, "And the handkerchief, which had been upon His head, was not lying with the linen clothes, but was folded up and was lying in a place by itself."

A very minor point—Jesus took time to fold them up and put them away neatly. In the excitement of the moment, you would have wanted to just put them away. But it showed His character. Jesus was a neat person. He cleaned up after Himself. The ushers would have had an easy time to clean up if they came around where Jesus sat. Anywhere you went behind Him, you would find it very neat. He cleaned up after Himself and folded up His garment. If He thought it was important at a time like that, then we should do so, also.

Jesus appeared there and began talking to them, and they couldn't believe it.

Luke 24:31, "And their eyes were opened, and they knew Him. Then He disappeared before them." When they realized who He was and their eyes were opened, He disappeared.

John 20:19, "Then, it being evening on that same day, the first day of the week, when the doors had already been shut where the disciples were assembled, because they were afraid of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the middle of them, and said to them, 'Peace be to you!'" That scared them. Here they were in a locked room.

Matthew 28:10, "Then Jesus said unto them, 'Don't be afraid! Go tell My brethren that they must go into Galilee, and there they shall see Me.'"

Luke 24:37, "But they were terrified and filled with fear, thinking that they were seeing a spirit." They thought they were seeing an apparition and were scared to death.

Verse 38-39, "And He asked them, 'Why are you disturbed, and why do these imaginations spring up in your minds? Look at my hands and my feet. You can see that I AM! Handle Me, and see for yourselves; because a spirit does not have flesh and bones, as you see I have.'"

'It is Me! I am here. You can touch Me. I have flesh and bones.' It didn't say anything about blood. He showed them the wounds. They couldn't believe it. They had seen Him die and knew He was dead. It was like their whole world had been shattered. They couldn't fully accept what it was.

Verse 41, "But, while they were yet disbelieving for joy, and were wondering, He asked them, 'Do you have anything here to eat?'"

Verses 44-45, "Then He said to them, 'These are the very words which I spoke to you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which have been written in the Law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning Me.' Then He opened their understanding and comprehension, that they might understand the Scriptures." He explained the scriptures to them.

John 20:24-25, "But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not present with them when Jesus came. Then the other disciples told him, 'We have seen the Lord.' But he said to them, 'Unless I can see in His own hands the scar's and holes of the nails, and put my own finger into the scars and holes of the nails, and put my own hand into his side, I will not believe, no, not ever!'"

Eight days later they were assembled again. Thomas had been saying he wouldn't believe it until he could touch Him. Ever "sounded off" and said something?

John 20:26-27, "But after eight days His disciples were again assembled inside, and Thomas with them. Jesus came, after the doors had already been shut, and stood in the middle of them, and said, 'Peace be to you!' Then He said to Thomas, 'Reach here with your own finger, and look at My hands; and reach out with your own hand, and put it into My side: and do not be faithless and unbelieving, but believing and filled with faith!'" Jesus told Thomas to come and stick his hand here. Jesus knew what Thomas had said. Verses 28-29, "Thomas answered and said to Him, 'My Lord and my God!' Then Jesus said to him, 'Because you have seen Me, Thomas, you have believed: blessed are those who have not seen, and have believed!'"

Verses 30-31, "Therefore, Jesus did many other signs also in the presence of His disciples, which are not written in this book: But these have been written, that you may believe and have faith that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing you may have life in and through His name."

Those details not given in the Gospels:

I Corinthians 15:4-7, "And that He was buried, and that He rose again the third day according to the Scriptures: And that He was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: After that, He was seen by over five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain until this present day, but some are fallen asleep. After that, He was seen of James; then of all the apostles." Paul mentions He was seen by the twelve, and there was over five hundred that saw Him at once.

The disciples left Jerusalem and went to Galilee.

John 21:1, "After these things Jesus manifested and revealed Himself to the disciples at the Sea of Tiberias. And He manifested and revealed Himself this way." They were at "loose ends." He would appear and leave. They were having trouble putting things together.

Verse 3, "Then Simon Peter said to them, 'I am going fishing.' They said to him, 'We will go with you, too.' They left, and immediately boarded the boat; and during that night they caught nothing." Peter was an impulsive sort.

Verse 9, "Therefore, when they came up on the shore, they saw a fire of coals burning, and fish lying on it, and bread."

Verse 12, "Jesus said to them, 'Come and dine.' But none of the disciples ventured to ask Him, 'Who are You?' knowing it was the Lord." They didn't quite know what to say.

Verses 14-17, "This is now the third time that Jesus was manifested and revealed to His disciples, after He had been resurrected from the dead. Therefore, when they had dined, Jesus said to Simon Peter, 'Simon, son of Jonas, do you love Me more than these?' He said to Him, 'Yes, Lord; You know that I have deep personal affection for You.' He said to him, 'Feed My lambs!' He asked him again, a second time, 'Simon, son of Jonas, do you love Me?' He said to Him, 'Yes, Lord; You know that I have deep personal affection for You.' He said to him, 'Shepherd My sheep.' He asked him the third time, 'Simon, son of Jonas, do you have deep personal affection for Me?' Peter was grieved and hurt because He said to him the third time, 'Do you have deep personal affection for Me?' and said to Him, 'Lord, You know and understand all things. You know that I have deep personal affection for You!' Jesus said to him, 'Feed My sheep!'"

This was in a spiritual sense. He went through this three times. It is connected to the fact that Peter had denied Him three times. He kept stressing, "Feed My sheep."

Verses 18-19, "'Truly, truly, I tell you, when you were younger, you dressed yourself, and walked wherever you desired. But when you become old, you shall hold out your hands, and someone else shall dress you, and take you where you do not desire.' But He said this, signifying by what manner of death he would glorify God. And after He had spoken this, He said, 'Follow Me!'" What manner of death—the time would come when he would be taken against his will and be executed.

Verses 20-21, "Then as Peter turned around, he saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following him; who also had reclined on His chest at the supper; and had asked, 'Lord, who is it that is betraying You?' As Peter saw him, he asked Jesus, 'Lord, what about this one?'"

When Peter saw John, he asked, 'What is going to happen to him? All of this is going to happen to me. What about John, he is not going to get off scot-free, is he?'

Verse 22, "Jesus said to him, 'If I desire that he remain alive until I come, what does it matter to you? Follow Me!'"

Jesus answered, 'If I want him to remain alive until I come, it is none of your business. You follow Me!' This is Jesus' answer to all of us! When we look around and see what our neighbor is doing, we want to make sure that if we "get it," everyone else does, too. 'You don't worry about him. That is between him and Me. You follow Me! What you need to do is you follow Me.' We have to follow Him. That is a statement to all of us. If you want to follow somebody, you have to keep your eyes on Him. If we keep our eyes on Him, then we don't have to worry about anybody else.

Christ's commission to the disciples: Matthew 28:18-20, Mark 16:15-20, Luke 24:49-53 and Acts 1:8-11.

The great commission is given in Matthew 28. Matthew 28:18-20, "And Jesus came to them, and spoke to them, saying, 'All power and authority in heaven and earth has been delegated to Me. Go therefore, teaching and making disciples in all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit: Teaching them to observe all things, whatever I have commanded you. And listen, I am with you always, every day, even until the completion of the age. Amen.'"

Mark 16:15-16, "And He commanded them, 'Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to all the creation! He who believes and is baptized shall be saved; and he who disbelieves shall be condemned.'"

Luke 24:49, "'And listen, I am sending the promise of My Father upon you: but you must remain in the city of Jerusalem, until you be clothed and imbued with power from on high.'" 'Wait here until you receive power from on high. You can't do it on your own.'

Acts 1:8-11, "'But you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you shall be witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth.' Now when He had spoken these things, while they watched He was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, who also said, 'Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will so come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven.'"

We have an overview with the events that culminated with the resurrection. We have the events of Christ's life and His ministry. We see the fact that He came truly as the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world. He laid down His life for us. He triumphed over death; through that power, we can triumph.

We are going to continue on through the book of Acts and on through the New Testament Church in the book of Acts in the next Bible study.

The Gospels and Acts Series—Acts 1—9

This evening we are continuing in our survey series. We finished up the Gospels last Bible study and we are continuing into the book of Acts. The book of Acts is a direct continuation of the Gospels. It was originally written as a continuation of Luke's Gospel. In fact, Luke and Acts really could almost be viewed as two volumes of one work.

In Luke 1:3, you might note here, "it seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write to you an orderly account, most excellent Theophilus." Luke addresses his book to an individual by the name of Theophilus. It was a style of writing that was common in the Greek world when addressing a patron. Luke was written to give a detailed story of the things that Jesus taught and did. He addresses it to Theophilus.

Note in the book of Acts 1:1-3, "The former account [treatise] have I made, O Theophilus of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which He was taken up, after He through the Holy Spirit had given commandments to the apostles whom He had chosen, to whom He also presented Himself alive after His suffering by many infallible proofs, being seen by them during forty days and speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God."

Now the former account (treatise) is the book of Luke. Here you have, in effect, two volumes of the same work. Luke wrote the Gospel of Luke that told the story of Jesus and what He did. It gave the account of His life and ministry from the beginning and continuing until the crucifixion and the resurrection. Then in the Acts of the apostles (the book of the actions of the apostles of Jesus), the story continued. Luke picks up the story in Acts exactly where he left off in the book of Luke. He picks it up with the ascension into heaven and then comes forward with the story of what happened. So the two books go together to tell what Jesus did and said in His human ministry and then the continuation of His ministry.

Christ's ministry is still going on through the power of the Holy Spirit. The Church that Jesus built is functioning to do His work. He came to do the will of the Father. He left behind His disciples and went to the Father in heaven; He empowered them through the Holy Spirit to do the work that He had begun. So we have the continuation here in the book of Acts.

I think I mentioned before that the original canonization of the New Testament, basically twenty-two books by the Apostle Peter, was in about 67 A.D. There remained one final canonization, one final adding of Scripture which was by the Apostle John thirty years later. John added in his own five books. The twenty-two that Peter codified would have corresponded to the twenty-two that the Jews reckoned in the Old Testament. In that original reckoning, the Gospels would have been Matthew, Mark, Luke, and then Acts would have come next. Luke and Acts would have been together and read as two volumes of one work. One picked up the story where the other one left off. It's kind of like going through Samuel and Kings or something of that sort. There is a break and then you pick it right up.

John, about thirty years later, gave us the New Testament in the form that the Greeks have preserved it. He added in at that point his own five books: the Gospel of John, the epistles of I, II, III John and the book of Revelation. This was the final capstone of God's revelation to mankind that was to be preserved in Scripture. Of course, the only logical place for the Gospel of John is with the four Gospels. It was the last written. It did not follow exactly the story of the other three. The other three are much more similar than John. There was no point in John writing something that was going to simply rehash what the others had already told from several different standpoints. John focused on the information that needed attention.

By the end of the first century, it was apparent that there were things that needed to be focused on, details that needed attention that the others had not seen a need of at an earlier time when they had written. John's Gospel comes in at the end of the Gospels and it is "sandwiched" in between Luke and Acts. Sometimes we don't stop to think about it; we don't realize the extent to which there is a story flow that comes right on over into the book of Acts. Acts is a continuation of the Gospels. It is an integral link in the New Testament. Acts picks up the story where Luke leaves off in his Gospel account.

One of the main purposes of the book of Acts is to show the continuity of the ministry of Jesus Christ through the work of the ministry of the early Church. The ministry of Jesus Christ did not end with His ascension into heaven. Christ did not go into retirement. There was a work to be done.

Luke, of course, begins Acts with the ascension of Christ from the Mount of Olives and the role of the twelve apostles there in Jerusalem. We will note that the narrative begins to narrow its focus. We find that Peter and John are the ones that are primarily focused on for the first twelve chapters. Others are mentioned somewhat incidentally. The rest of the twelve apostles pretty much drop from view and are just incidentally mentioned. The attention of the first twelve chapters of Acts is primarily on what Peter and John were doing. Beginning with Chapter 13 to the conclusion of the book, the focus switches from Peter and John to Paul. James, the brother of Jesus, was not one of the twelve, but he was certainly one that occupied that office and played a very major role presiding at the Jerusalem Church throughout his lifetime. He appears off and on throughout the book as a major figure. He is the one there in Jerusalem.

We note here the focus in Acts. Have you ever wondered why the book of Acts ceases to focus on the twelve apostles after Acts 12? After Acts 12, it concentrates primarily on the Apostle Paul. One of the reasons is that after Acts 12 the twelve apostles drop from view—they left the area of Judea. Christ had given them a specific commandment. Their primary commission was not to the Gentile nations. They were told by Jesus to go to the lost sheep of the house of Israel (Matthew 10:6). That's where the twelve went.

Paul, on the other hand, had as the primary focus of his mission to preach in the Gentile world throughout the Mediterranean area. It was not God's purpose that the location of the lost sheep of the house of Israel should be made clear back at this time. It was a part of God's purpose to allow the identity of Israel to be lost from view. And because that was God's purpose, He did allow the identity of Israel to be lost from view. The attention was not focused on where they went and what they did because if it did, we would have the story of the travels to Britain and to areas of France. Perhaps some of them went in the area of Scythia and Northern India where certain of the tribes were and later migrated up into Northern Europe. Since where they went would be very clearly identified, we change focus. Certain ones drop from view. It was not God's point to preserve all of those details at that time and in that way.

There is another reason for focusing in on Paul's ministry. The latter part of the book of Acts gives us the details of Paul's ministry. It provides for us the background of Paul's epistles. Paul's epistles make up the backbone of much of the New Testament. Paul wrote fourteen books. They are the most detailed explanation of the teachings of the New Testament Church on various doctrinal subjects. Paul addresses any number of things. Yet we could not really understand what Paul had to say if we weren't provided some of the background for his epistles. To whom was he writing? What were the circumstances? What were the situations? Luke gives us a background from which we can begin to understand more clearly some of the things that Paul had to say.

Another thing we note, as we go through the book of Acts, particularly in the first few chapters, there is a heavy emphasis on the miracles that God wrought through and on behalf of the early New Testament Church. We have in Acts 2 the miracle of languages on Pentecost. In chapter 3 we have the healing of the lame man. In chapter 5, we have God's punishment of Ananias and Sapphira. We have the account even of people being healed by just Peter's shadow passing over them. We have an angelic deliverance of the apostles from prison.

These things all serve to illustrate the dramatic way in which God made known to all in Jerusalem that He had taken the Kingdom from the Pharisees and Sadducees and given it to a people bearing the fruits of it (Matthew 21:43).

In Matthew 21:43, Jesus had told the Pharisees that the Kingdom was going to be taken from them. He indicted them for the way in which they misused their authority. He told the people that the Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat (Matthew 23:2-3); 'all they bid you do and observe, but don't follow their example.' He began to indict them. But earlier, He had told the Pharisees that the Kingdom, the authority, the government of God, was going to be taken from them, and it was going to be given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.

Acts 2 makes that transition plain. God made it plain in a very dramatic way to all in Jerusalem who were interested in looking through whom He was working. God never leaves His people in the dark. If God makes a transition, God will make it plain. God will make it apparent through whom He is working. He doesn't leave His people in a quandary where you cannot tell and you don't know. This was the case here.

Go back and read Mr. Herbert Armstrong's autobiography of the period during which this era of the work, the Philadelphia era, came into existence. When you read the early period of his ministry in the 1930s, God made it very apparent to the Church at that time and to all who had the wit to see what was the live branch of the Church that was bearing fruit—through whom God was working—and what were the dead branches comprising the Sardis era.

It was very apparent because of the miracles and because of the works. Some of the most dramatic miracles and works that God accomplished in this era were done back in that period of the 1930s. It was back in time when there was a transition being made from one era to the next. It was made apparent to all with the wit to see what part of the tree was dead and what part had life and was bearing fruit. When God makes a transition that way, He makes it apparent. He never leaves His people in a quandary.

We have a dramatic focus on this kind of thing in the early part of the book of Acts. Then we will note, as we go through the book of Acts, that this dramatic upsurge of public miracles at the beginning begins to gradually fade somewhat as the Church became established. God had demonstrated where He was truly working.

We will note here, this evening, that there was a time when the apostles were put in jail, and the jailers hardly got back to town before God sent an angel and brought them right out (Acts 5:18-19). You had dramatic interventions in that way. By the time we get to the end of the book of Acts, Paul had been put in jail and stayed there for years. It was not that God began to run low on miracle-working power. It was a matter that God was working to accomplish His purpose—God's purpose in our lives.

At an earlier period in Paul's life or Peter's life or some of these others, God had a job for them to do. He wanted them out where they could travel, where they could speak, where they could do certain things of that nature. If a man sought to stop it by putting them in jail, God just simply sent an angel to solve that problem right away. Paul was still just as anxious to get out, but later on there came a period in Paul's life where he had reached another phase of his ministry. He wound up languishing in one place for a long time. He had a lot of time to sit and think. Some of the most important contributions that he wrote for the New Testament were composed at that time. You see, he was in a different phase of his ministry, not because he chose it, but because God who had an overview knew what was most important for Paul to do at the time.

We have to understand that God may intervene in our lives in one way at one point in our life, and then in another point in our life, He may choose to deal in another way. What is important is that we are close to God and we can look to Him. As we look to Him and let God rule in our lives, there may be different things that are more important for us at different times in our life. We may not know what those are.

We will also note as we go through the book of Acts, in chapters 8 and 9 we are given our introduction to important figures in the early history of the Church. We are introduced to Saul, the persecutor, better known as Paul the apostle. We are also introduced to Simon the Sorcerer, known in history as Simon Magus. He was a Samaritan who played a very important role in Church history. We will note some of that as we go through.

We saw that Acts is a continuation of what Luke had written previously. We might note that here again.

Acts 1:1-3, "The former account I made [the Gospel of Luke], O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which He was taken up, after He through the Holy Spirit had given commandments to the apostles whom He had chosen, to whom He also presented Himself alive after His suffering by many infallible proofs, being seen by them during forty days and speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God." Note here what Jesus preached.

In the beginning of Christ's ministry, He started out preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

Mark 1:1, "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God."

Verse 14, "Now after John was put in prison, Jesus came to Galilee preaching the gospel of the Kingdom of God."

Acts 1:3, "...being seen by them during forty days and speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God."

In the book of Acts, we find the conclusion of Christ's ministry—after His crucifixion, His resurrection, immediately prior to His ascension into heaven. What was He teaching the apostles during these forty days between His resurrection and His ascension? He was teaching them things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. Jesus started out preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God and He ended up preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. So we note in the beginning of the book of Acts, at the beginning of the history of the New Testament Church, Jesus was preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

What do we find Paul preaching at the end of his ministry?

Acts 28:30-31, “Then Paul dwelt two whole years in his own rented house, and received all who came to him, preaching the Kingdom of God, and teaching the things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ with all confidence, no one forbidding him.” The book of Acts ends up by saying Paul was preaching the Kingdom of God.

Jesus came proclaiming a message, the message of the Good News about God’s coming government. He preached that all through His human ministry. He continued to lay stress on it to the apostles after His crucifixion and resurrection, and we find it preached throughout the book of Acts. When we come to the end of the book of Acts, we find the last thing we have recorded is Paul was still preaching the Kingdom of God. It’s very apparent, when we look from a biblical standpoint, that the message that Jesus brought was not simply a message about the person of Christ. It is the message that Jesus Himself brought and preached. It’s the good news Jesus proclaimed which is the good news of the Kingdom of God. The apostles understood that because notice the last question they asked Him.

Acts 1:6, “Therefore when they came together and they asked Him, saying, ‘Lord will You at this time restore again the Kingdom of Israel?’” He had been talking about a literal kingdom, a literal government. He talked about it all through His ministry. He talked about it here after His resurrection. So they asked a logical question, ‘Well, Lord, is now the time? You’ve gone through all of this. You’ve been resurrected from the dead. Are You at this time going to restore the Kingdom to Israel?’ They kept expecting the establishment of the Kingdom.

Verse 7, “And He said to them, ‘It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has put in His own authority.’” It was not God’s purpose that they, at that time, should fully perceive those things in terms of more clearly understanding God’s time plan.

We find some of that later on into the New Testament period. We find Peter mentioning in II Peter 3:8, God’s seven thousand-year plan: comparing the days of the week with one thousand-year time periods. Peter gives a little bit of insight.

John makes it plainer in Revelation 20:4-5 as he gives the capstone and makes it clear for the first time. John defines the length of time that the Kingdom of God is going to rule in the days of the Messiah. It will last for a thousand years. We talk about the Millennium so much that many times we don’t stop to realize that the only place the length of the Messiah’s reign is clearly defined is in the book of Revelation.

If you didn’t have the book of Revelation, you couldn’t prove that it’s a thousand years. You don’t find that in the book of Isaiah or in the book of Daniel. You find prophecies of the Messiah’s coming and the Kingdom of God, but there’s no place where it says that it will be a thousand years. It says so in Revelation. He will reign for a thousand years. Revelation is progressive. Some of these things were made clearer and clearer as time went on.

Christ had a job for them to do. It was not something that they needed to fully understand at the time. Christ didn’t tell them yes or no. He just said that the Father has reserved certain things for Himself (Acts 1:7). God has a time plan. That time plan is seasonal in nature. The times and the seasons the Father has put in His own power. God has a time plan that is seasonal. We picture it through the seasonal observance of God’s Festivals. God knows what He is doing. God is right on schedule.

Christ gave them instructions. They were gathered there and were in anticipation of the establishment of the Kingdom because Jesus had talked of it so much. He appeared to them and dealt with them from time to time over this period of forty days beginning with the Wave Sheaf Sunday during the Days of Unleavened Bread (when He first manifested Himself to them), and then for forty days—a number for trial and testing.

Acts 1:4, “And being assembled together with them, He commanded them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the Promise of the Father.” Jesus told them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father.

Verses 8-9, “‘But you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you shall be witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth.’ Now when He has spoken these things, while they watched He was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up....” He told them, ‘At this time you have a job to do, but you shall receive power after the Holy Spirit has come upon you. You will be witnesses unto Me.’ When He had spoken these things, He ascended to heaven. They watched Him as He ascended up from the Mount of Olives and out of their sight.

Jesus gave them a job to do, but He stressed to them, ‘Don’t go out and try to do it on your own. You need the promise that the Father has made. You need the fulfillment of the Father’s promise. You need to be endued with power from on high.’ They didn’t know exactly when they were going to get that power. He told them to go back to Jerusalem and wait.

We find out when they did.

Acts 2:1, “Now when the Day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.” They were there to observe God’s holy day.

Verse 2, “And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting.” That power came upon them suddenly.

This was ten days after Christ’s ascension. They didn’t know it would be ten days; they didn’t fully realize it. They may have wondered if that was going to be it, but Christ didn’t tell them to go back and wait ten days. He said to go and wait until it happens. That’s always a difficult thing for us to do. We don’t like to wait, particularly when it’s open ended. We like to know when. That was the last thing they asked Him, ‘When are You going to do all this stuff You have been talking about?’

That’s probably the question you and I would have asked. When? Isn’t that the question we ask now? When? When? When do you think? Christ made it plain what the concern needed to be. The concern was doing and accomplishing the job that God had given to be done. But that job could not be done and accomplished on the basis of human skill and human power. It’s not just human wherewithal. There was a need for the power of God to make possible the accomplishment of the job God had given to do.

That is a very important lesson for all of us to realize. No matter what talents, no matter what skills, no matter what things are available to us to accomplish God’s work, the most important tool is not human skill. The most important tool we have in accomplishing God’s work is not the printing press. It’s not the computer, the automobile, or the airplane. It’s not the radio; it’s not television. The most important factor in accomplishing God’s work is the Spirit of God! That is the most crucial factor in the accomplishment of God’s work—not some physical device or tool. Those things are well and good and they certainly have their place. God has provided that those tools are available to us, but the crucial ingredient is the power of God’s Spirit.

Acts 1:9, they stood there and watched Him as He ascended. They stood there staring and “gawking,” as would be the case. Just imagine as He began to rise and finally got so high the clouds obscured Him.

Verses 10-11, they just stood there with their mouths open and their eyes looking toward heaven. Finally, a couple of angels appeared and said, ‘You men of Galilee, what are you looking up into the heavens for? What are you staring at? This same Jesus whom you’ve seen going up is going to come back, just like He said. He will come back in the same manner as He left.’

Verses 12-14, then they went to Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. They came to an upper room, evidently an apartment or place they had used, where the apostles were residing. They were staying in Jerusalem. The group continued in one accord in prayer and supplication, seeking to understand and grasp the full impact of what was going on and what God wanted them to do. We find in v. 15 there were one hundred twenty disciples altogether. It says the number of names together were about one hundred twenty.

By the way, this is a digression, but I would call your attention to it. Let me show you a good example of how a verse can be taken out of context. What I am going to tell you is literally true. You remember the story of Galileo and the telescope? Galileo discovered and taught that the earth was not the center of the universe, but rather revolved around the sun. Feticus came up with the idea, but Galileo proved it with his telescope and promulgated that.

Well, this created a problem for Galileo. He got in trouble with the Pope who already had infallibility and had proclaimed that the earth was the center of things and everything revolved around it. So, there was a cardinal at the Pope’s behest who wrote a book as a counterblast to Galileo. Of course, Galileo was threatened with ex-communication and everything else. He was dragged up there and threatened with worse than that. He was threatened with dire physical harm if he didn’t “see the light.” It struck me as funny, as far as how a verse can be taken out of context.

The Vatican quoted this verse in this particular papal bull to prove that people shouldn't be looking in telescopes. They quoted a portion of Acts 1:11, "...Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven...?" "You men of Galilee why stand you gazing up into the heavens?" That was the only part of the verse that they quoted to prove that the Bible said you shouldn't be looking up into telescopes. You've heard people say you can prove anything from the Bible. You really can't prove "anything" from the Bible if you take the Bible for what it says. If you lift things out of context, take a word here and a word there and stick it all together, well, there is no telling what you would come up with. But that's not an honest use of the Bible.

We note here in the end of Acts 1, Peter who is the leader of the twelve—we notice that all through the Gospel accounts—stood up and addressed the twelfth apostle being chosen (vv. 15-20). Twelve, of course, is the number of organized beginnings. The nation of Israel began with twelve patriarchs, and the Church clearly needed to begin with twelve apostles, twelve witnesses. In addition to being apostles, they were the foundation of the New Testament Church (Ephesians 2:20). They were to be eyewitnesses of Jesus Christ and His ministry through His resurrection.

Verse 22, they concluded that whoever was chosen to take Judas' place should be one who had been in the group of disciples from the time of John's baptism on up. It needed to be someone who had association with Jesus throughout the entirety of His ministry. The twelve were not the only disciples. Disciple and apostle are not interchangeable. "Disciple" simply means "learner."

In Luke 10:1, you read one place in the Gospels where Jesus ordained seventy and sent them out two by two. But the twelve were set aside as apostles. There was a need for this twelfth one. Verse 23, they came up with two names that met the criteria. They did not know which of the two God had chosen, so they prayed.

Verses 24-26, "And they prayed and said, 'You, O Lord, who know the hearts of all, show which of these two You have chosen to take part in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.' And they cast lots, and the lot fell on Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles."

You might note as you come through the rest of the book of Acts or in any other later portion of scripture, you will never find another example of this term "choice by lot." You know what the difference was? It's what came next. What happened right after they had chosen the twelfth apostle by lot? The Day of Pentecost came! And what happened on the Day of Pentecost? The Holy Spirit was given. Prior to that time, the Holy Spirit had not been given. After the Holy Spirit as given, there was no longer the need for casting lots, or something like that, to determine God's will. It was something that had been utilized from time to time in the Old Testament period and was utilized prior to the giving of God's Spirit.

Now in Acts 2, we find the Day of Pentecost came. We find this miraculous gift was given. It was a gift of speaking in foreign languages. That is made very, very apparent.

Acts 2:4, "And they were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak with other tongues [languages], as the Spirit gave them utterance." Now what was the purpose of that?

Verses 5-11, "Now there were dwelling in Jerusalem Jews, devout men, from every nation under heaven. And when this sound occurred the multitude came together, and were confused, because everyone heard them speak in his own language. Then they were all amazed and marveled, saying to one another, 'Look, are not all these who speak Galileans? And how is it that we hear, each in our own language in which we were born? Parthians and Medes and Elamites, those dwelling in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya adjoining Cyrene, visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own tongues the wonderful works of God.'"

Here were people of all different nationalities. They were Jews—but just as the Jews today in the United States speak English, and the Jews down in Mexico speak Spanish, and the Jews in France speak French. The Jews normally are going to speak the language of the country where they reside. If they are Orthodox Jews and practice their religion, they may know a smattering of Hebrew, but very few Jews other than those living in Israel are really that fluent where they can carry on a comfortable conversation in Hebrew. This was the case here. The average Jew of the time who was a practicing Jew knew certain phrases in Hebrew, but even the Scriptures were not commonly read in Hebrew outside of Palestine because most Jews were not that familiar with it. It was the language of liturgy. They used certain words and certain expressions in religious terms.

Like some of you who had a Catholic background, years ago when the Mass was said in Latin, you may have been familiar with certain Latin phrases and religious terms that were commonly used, but you couldn't carry on a conversation in Latin. If the Pope had given a speech in Latin, you wouldn't have gotten a whole lot out of it. You may not have gotten much out of what the priest said, and that wasn't a whole lot. In other words, while a person may recognize certain words or expressions, they aren't fluent in the language.

With all of these people in Jerusalem, the only way that they were going to clearly hear and understand what was said was in their own language. God performed a miracle. The miracle that God performed is quite a contrast to what the modern group that calls itself "Pentecostal" practices. To begin with, the first difference, the apostles were keeping one of God's holy days. How many Pentecostals do you know who keep God's holy days? They don't keep God's Festivals. The apostles were doing that. They were gathered together to keep one of God's Festivals.

The next thing we note in Acts 2:2, "And suddenly there came a sound from heaven...." This just came suddenly. It didn't say that Peter had been there working up the crowd for about an hour or two, playing all this music, getting all jazzed up and getting the crowd to answer him back—kind of working the crowd, building up and getting this excitement building.

Verse 3, "Then there appeared to them divided tongues, as of fire, and one sat upon each of them."

I can remember years ago when old A.A. Allen (some of you may remember him) would get on the radio and ask, 'You want that baptism of fire?' Well, he didn't really want that baptism of fire if he had gotten it. When you understand what the baptism of fire was, it was not these tongues of fire. Being baptized is "plunged into." If you get that baptism of fire, you get immersed in fire, known as the lake of fire. So, I don't think he really wanted that baptism of fire. The "Pentecostals" don't have cloven tongues of fire that appear. They are not speaking in languages that all of these people of every nationality understand. No, that is not the case.

Jimmy Swaggart says that he has the gift of tongues. He's gone all over the world preaching.

When he goes to Japan, why doesn't he speak Japanese if he has the gift of tongues? And in Mexico or South America, why doesn't he speak in Spanish? Why doesn't he speak in a language that somebody understands if he has the gift of tongues? He goes all over, but he needs somebody there who speaks that language because he doesn't have the gift of speaking any language that anybody understands.

The apostles didn't get up and work themselves up until they were just mouthing a bunch of "gobbledygook" that nobody understood. They were preaching a message. The apostles weren't just reciting certain catch phrases over and over again, just kind of building up speed and repetition. The apostles were preaching a message that proclaimed God's message. We see many, many differences that occurred right here.

Peter gave the main sermon. He really indicted them for what they had been a party to, and we find the question that they asked.

Acts 2:37, "Now when they heard this, they were cut to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, 'Men and brethren, what shall we do?'"

Verses 38-40, "Then Peter said to them, 'Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise is to you and to your children, and to all who are afar off, as many as the Lord our God will call.' And with many other words he testified and exhorted them...." He went on and explained a lot of things.

They believed the message Peter brought. Their response to their belief was, 'What shall we do? We believe you. We have heard the Gospel message and believe it—what shall we do?' Now Peter didn't tell them what some would have today: 'Well, you don't do anything. You just believe, brother; you don't do anything.' Peter didn't tell them that. Peter said, 'Repent. That's what you do! You turn around and go the other way. You've been going the devil's way; now turn around and go God's way. You need to change direction in your life.' That's what repentance is. It involves surrender to the will to God. Peter made it plain that there was something to do. What there is to do is a change of direction, a surrender of our will.

Then he told them, on the basis of their faith and repentance, they should be baptized as an outward sign, and they would receive the gift of God's Spirit. This was a promise that extended to them and also to their children. The obvious implication is, of course, young children who were at home still being taught and trained by their parents. As a result of God's calling, these people have access to God; their children at home who were growing up and being taught by them also had access to God. They weren't cut off from God as the rest of the world was. They could have an understanding. Here was a promise that was available if they would reach out and take it. The promise extended to them and to their children. It also extended to any elsewhere that God would individually and specifically call.

We might note in Peter's sermon on Pentecost a couple of comments that would be quite at variance with what most modern-day Pentecostals would say. Peter was not preaching about going to heaven. In fact, he made it very plain that the saved don't go to heaven.

Acts 2:29, "Men and brethren, let me speak freely to you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried and his tomb is with us to this day."

Verse 34, "For David did not ascend into the heavens..." David has not gone to heaven? Now we are looking at ten days after Christ ascended to heaven. Christ was already in heaven. Everybody that was going to go to heaven had gone (John 3:13). Peter made plain that David wasn't up there. David hadn't ascended up to heaven. 'David was dead and buried and his grave is right over there. That's where David is; he's in the grave.' Quite a contrast to what most people believe.

We note also in v. 41, "Then those who gladly received his word were baptized; and that day about three thousand souls were added to them." There were about three thousand individuals that day.

Verse 42, "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, in the breaking of bread, and in prayers." There was doctrine taught. There was a way of life being taught. There was more to it than "believe." The individuals that were being converted and being baptized were individuals that continued steadfastly, resolutely, in the apostles' doctrine and in their fellowship. There was a closeness that was there. It says, "...in the breaking of bread and in prayers." What is this "breaking of bread"? Some people think that means communion, 'Boy, just have communion everyday.' No, that's not true.

Notice in v. 46, "So continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, they ate their food with gladness and simplicity of heart."

"Breaking bread" simply means "having a meal together." They didn't just go down to the store and buy Wonder Bread enriched twelve ways. The wonder is that you eat it and live to tell the tale when you find out all the stuff it has in it. And Holsum Bread, which isn't. The bread that they ate was bread that was literally broken. It was similar to Pita bread. This was a very common style of bread that was utilized. It kind of doubled as something to put the other food in.

Bread was a common part of the meal. In certain parts of this country—certain parts of the South—inviting somebody to break bread with you simply meant to have a meal. A lot of time, the kind of bread people ate was cornbread or something of that sort. Sometimes that was what they literally did—they broke bread. Going back to the time when that was the way bread was divided up, it was broken into pieces.

There is nothing here that refers to them having communion every day, but 'with gladness they broke bread from house to house and ate their food with gladness.' They were spending time with one another. They were eating at one another's homes day by day.

One of the things to realize is that a large portion of the Church that began on the Day of Pentecost was Jews from elsewhere in the Roman Empire. There were Jews who didn't live in Jerusalem. Remember there were people from all over the Empire to observe Pentecost, and this event occurred. Now, none of them wanted to go back home. There was excitement, exhilaration and the thrill of all of the things that was going on here. They didn't want to be separated from that, so they stayed. How did they stay? They had things in common. They shared. They moved in. Those who were from out of town only had enough money to maybe have been there for a short period of time for the festival. Once that was gone, and if they were going to stay, they would have to stay with somebody. So, they all pitched in. They shared. You see this type of thing.

Verse 47, "praising God and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to the Church daily those who were being saved." God calls. People don't just join on their own initiative. God adds those whom He is calling.

Acts 3:1, “Now Peter and John went up together to the temple at the hour of prayer; the ninth hour.” The “hour of prayer” was an expression the Jews had that referred to the hours of the morning and evening sacrifice.

Verses 2-8, we have the healing of this lame man who had been there at the gate of the temple.

Verses 9-11, this created quite a stir because this individual had been there for an extended period of time. Thousands of people had seen him; when he was suddenly healed, it really created a stir. This also antagonized the religious leadership. Peter preached a very powerful sermon. He didn't pull any punches.

He told them in Acts 3:19-21, “Repent therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, so that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, and that He may send Jesus Christ, who was preached to you before, whom heaven must receive until the times of restoration of all things, which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began.”

The restitution of all things is when God's Kingdom is going to be established.

In Acts 4:1-7, we find that the priests were all upset because of the people who believed the word.

Acts 4:8-12, “Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, ‘Rulers of the people and elders of Israel: If we this day are judged for a good deed done to the helpless man, by what means he has been made well, let it be known to you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, whom God raised from the dead, by Him this man stands here before you whole. This is the “Stone, which was rejected by you builders, which has become the chief cornerstone.” Nor is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved.’” He didn't pull any punches in speaking to them.

Verse 12 makes it plain that there is only one way to salvation and that's through Jesus Christ.

As we continue, we see the power that God's message had. At this point, time had passed. There were people who were liquidating property and donating it to the Church to provide for all of the new converts who had stayed in Jerusalem.

In Acts 5, we read of a certain couple, Ananias and Sapphira who sold a possession and kept back part of it. Then they came and brought it to the apostles. This is a very dramatic event. We see Ananias being struck down dead and then Sapphira. Now notice here because some have had the idea the New Testament practiced communism and didn't believe in private property. Well, that's not true. The Bible certainly teaches private property. One of the commandments teaches, “Thou shall not steal.” This presupposes there is something to steal. If everything belongs to everybody, then how can you steal?

Acts 5:4, “While it remained, was it not your own? And after it was sold, was it not in your own control? Why have you conceived this thing in your heart? You have not lied to men but to God.” Ananias and Sapphira didn't get in trouble because they didn't donate everything. They were in trouble because they lied to the Holy Spirit.

Notice what Peter told Ananias, “While it remained, was it not your own?” ‘It was your property. You could do with it as you wished. It was yours; after you sold it, it was in your own power—it was still your money. You have conceived this thing in your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit. You brought this part over here and said it was everything. You tried to aggrandize yourself as though you were sacrificing and giving everything; you weren't. It was your property; you didn't have to sell it at all. After you sold it, you could have given any part you wanted or you could have kept it all. It was your property. Nobody made you give any of it. The Church didn't say you had to sell your property. You “cooked up” a scheme really to lie to the Holy Spirit because that's whom you were lying to. You weren't simply lying to a man; you were lying to the Spirit of God.’

This account makes it plain that property belonged to the member. It was not some New Testament enforcement of communism or something of that sort. People had all kinds of ideas that they dreamed up.

Verse 15, “so that they brought the sick out into the streets and laid them on beds and couches, that at least the shadow of Peter passing by might fall on some of them.” Things had gotten to the point that even the shadow of Peter passing over them caused some people to be healed.

Verses 17-20, “Then the high priest rose up and all those who were with him (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and they were filled with indignation [jealousy], and laid their hands on the apostles and put them in the common prison. But at night an angel of the Lord opened the prison doors, and brought them out, and said, ‘Go, stand in the temple and speak to the people all the words of this life.” They threw them in jail.

Verse 21, “And when they heard that, they entered the temple early in the morning and taught. But the high priest and those with him came and called the council together, with all the elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.” They said, ‘Okay, bring these guys in. We are going to have a trial.’ They sent the officers to the prison and they came back and said, ‘They’re gone. Where are they?’

Verse 25, they said, ‘Well, I think they are over there in the temple preaching. How did they get there?’ Things were moving with power. God made it very plain. Things continued right along.

Peter made it very plain that if we are confronted with a requirement of men to disobey God, what should we do?

Verse 29, “Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said: ‘We ought to obey God rather than man.’” When there is a conflict between our duty to God and our duty to man, God comes first.

These things continued. There was increasing antagonism that the Jewish religious leadership had—even to the point that they sought to beat up Peter and some of the apostles (v. 40).

Verse 41, “So they departed from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name.” That was their attitude toward persecution. It was persecution for righteousness sake. There is nothing wonderful about being persecuted in and of itself; it’s only if we are persecuted for righteousness sake. Peter and the others were persecuted for righteousness sake.

Verse 42, “And daily in the temple, and in every house, they did not cease teaching and preaching Jesus as the Christ.”

In Acts 6, as the Church grew very rapidly, there arose a problem. One of the things we should learn is that even in the Church there can sometimes be misunderstandings, cases of hurt feelings or whatever. Here was a problem that arose.

Even though the entire Church consisted of Jews, some were Jews of the Diaspora called Grecians or Hellenists. Others were Hebrews or Jews of Judea. The Jews of Judea looked down on the Jews of the Diaspora because of their contact with the Gentiles. The Jews of the Diaspora tended to look down on the Jews of Judea as being pretty limited and narrow in scope and not really as educated and sophisticated. So there was a certain antagonism that was common in the Jewish world. There were certain prejudices that people had.

It’s not uncommon for people to have prejudices. You can go all over the world and can find groups of people who look down on somebody else and have some prejudice against some other group. You can go to any continent or nation and can find some of these groups of people having all kinds of problems. You and I couldn’t tell them apart. They’ve been having rioting in Bulgaria of ethnic Bulgars and ethnic Turks. Now you line them up—chances are that most of us couldn’t tell which one was which. But they can tell. There have been thousands of ethnic Turks fleeing across the border in Bulgaria over into Turkey. You can go around the world; there is certain antagonism between people. Satan always likes to play on this kind of thing and stir up people.

Here, even in the Church, there arose a problem because here were these two groups. Even though they were both Jews, there were certain cultural differences because of background. All of the leadership were Judeans. After a while some were kind of grumbling and saying, ‘I don’t think our widows are being paid enough attention to. I think some of those who are seeing after the widows are not paying enough attention to ours.’

Verse 2, the apostles finally got called in on this thing. They said, ‘We have more important things to do. We can’t stop doing the work of proclaiming the Gospel and get out there, count out exactly how much every widow is receiving and attend to waiting tables. If we spend all our time looking after all the physical details, we would never get around to doing what we have been commissioned to do.’ They recognized that while it was an important matter that needed to be tended to, it was not their primary job to get bogged down in the physical administration of things. They wouldn’t have the time to concentrate on the spiritual job. So they instituted an office in the Church—the office of Deacon.

Acts 6:3-6, “Therefore, brethren, seek out from among you seven men of good reputation, full of the Holy Spirit and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business; but we will give ourselves continually to prayer and to the ministry of the word.’ And the saying pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, and Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Pramenas and Nicolas, a proselyte from Antioch, whom they set before the apostles; and when they had prayed, they laid hands on them.”

Men who had spiritual qualifications were appointed to a physical responsibility. They were men who could see after this matter and make sure that there was no inequity in how it was being carried out. They were ordained, set apart, for this office.

Verse 7, we find as a result of taking an action such as this, of becoming more highly organized and becoming more efficient, the number of the disciples multiplied. God blessed and multiplied what was going on as they properly handled their responsibilities.

Verses 8-10, we find that there was an individual, in fact one who had been ordained, a man by the name of Stephen who was a remarkable individual. The religious leaders were very antagonistic toward him because when they would bait him with questions, they simply could not withstand his answers. So they decided what they were going to do. They were going to arrest him and do something to get rid of him.

Verses 11-13, “Then they secretly induced men to say, ‘We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and God.’ And they stirred up the people, the elders, and the scribes; and they came upon him, seized him, and brought him to the council. They also set up false witnesses who said, ‘This man does not cease to speak blasphemous words against this holy place and the law.’” They hired false witnesses.

In Acts 7, we find Stephen on trial. We find the sermon he gave. As they had him there, he gave a very powerful message to the court that was standing there. Then, we find that they killed him.

Acts 7:59-60, “And they stoned Stephen as he was calling on God and saying, ‘Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.’ Then he knelt down and cried out with a loud voice, ‘Lord, do not charge them with this sin.’ And when he had said this, he fell asleep.” They threw stones and rocks at him and killed him. Notice Stephen’s attitude that he expressed right in the end was ‘forgive them.’ He was a remarkable man.

Here was the first death that occurred. About two years had passed since the Day of Pentecost. Things were growing and multiplying. But everybody was bunched up in Jerusalem. Nobody wanted to leave. Stephen’s death launched a persecution.

Acts 8:1, “Now Saul was consenting to his death. At that time a great persecution arose against the Church which was at Jerusalem; and they were all scattered throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles.”

Saul is introduced here. He was a young man at the time. He stood there and watched this. We find that as a result of this persecution, there was a scattering. The disciples were scattered throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except for the apostles. So there was now a scattering. Everybody was all bunched up together, and then this tragic event occurred. It undoubtedly had a tremendous impact. People must have had their faith shaken. How could this be? How could God allow this to happen? Just a matter of months earlier, the apostles were thrown in jail and God sent an angel and delivered them. He could have sent an angel and delivered Stephen.

What was the result of this persecution? The Church was scattered! Was that bad? –No, not in God’s overall plan. It caused the disciples to have to spread out, and now the message could spread. God is sometimes working out a plan that we don’t understand. We look at an event and we say, ‘Why would God let that happen?’ Well, God’s ways are not our ways. We don’t always know where God is going in terms of how He is going to accomplish His overall purpose.

Verse 5, “Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ to them.” Philip went down to Samaria and began to speak to people.

Verses 9-10, “But there was a certain man called Simon, who previously practiced sorcery in the city and astonished the people of Samaria, claiming that he was someone great, to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, ‘This man is the great power of God.’” We are introduced to a man by the name of Simon. He used sorcery and bewitched the people of Samaria. He was the religious leader of the Samaritans.

Verse 11, “And they heeded him because he had astonished them with his sorceries for a long time.” He worked lying wonders. He was a sorcerer.

Verses 12-13, “But when they believed Philip as he preached the things concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, both men and women were baptized. Then Simon himself also believed; and when he was baptized he continued with Philip, and was amazed, seeing the miracles and signs which were done.” The whole city seemed to believe Philip's teaching—what he was telling them about the Kingdom of God. They were baptized. Simon himself was rather impressed and thought he had better get baptized, too—and he did.

Verse 14, "Now when the apostles who were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them." There is government in the Church; they found out there was something going on in Samaria. It took a little time for word to travel. They sent Peter and John to see what was going on.

Verses 15-17, "who, when they had come down, prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit. For as yet He [It] had fallen upon none of them. They had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then they laid hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit." Philip had baptized them, but he had not laid hands on them for the receiving of the Spirit.

Verses 18-19, "Now when Simon saw that through the laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Spirit was given, he offered them money, saying, 'Give me this power also, that anyone on whom I lay hands may receive the Holy Spirit.'" Simon noticed what was going on and he came to Peter and offered money.

Verses 20-23, "But Peter said to him, 'Your money perish with you, because you thought that the gift of God could be purchased with money! You have neither part nor portion in this matter, for your heart is not right in the sight of God. Repent therefore of this your wickedness, and pray God if perhaps the thought of your heart may be forgiven you. For I see that you are poisoned by bitterness and bound by iniquity.'" Now I want you to notice that expression "part nor lot."

'You have neither part nor lot in this matter.' Hold your place here and turn back to Acts 1:25-26 where they had chosen Mathias, that he may take part of this ministry and apostleship. And they gave forth their lot and the lot fell upon Mathias, that he might take part of the apostleship. The lot fell upon Mathias. That expression, "part nor lot," has reference to an apostleship. Simon was trying to buy the office of apostle. Peter said, 'You have neither part nor lot in this matter. You have no part of an apostleship. You were not chosen by lot, you have no part in this apostleship.' He went on to emphasize that Simon was in the bond of iniquity, of lawlessness. He was in the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity. He was a slave of lawlessness. Peter saw through him.

Simon was the religious leader of the Samaritans there in Samaria.

What many don't realize—just as the Jews had a Diaspora and were spread throughout the Roman Empire, the Samaritans had also been scattered at an earlier time by Alexander the Great. There were sizable Samaritan communities in Alexandria, Egypt and Rome, Italy. It was the nucleus of Samaritans in these areas that gave heed to Simon.

We will note at a later time the role that Simon played in the beginning of a great false church that called itself "Christian." In reality, it traces back not to the leadership of Simon Peter, but to the leadership of Simon the Magician. He was the "pator," the Babylonian or Samaritan word for the "opener" of the old Babylonian Mystery religion that had come to Samaria. We are introduced to Simon in somewhat detail here in Acts 8 so that we might understand the background later on.

As we look through Acts 8, a little later, vv. 27-40, we have the conversion, the baptism of the Ethiopian eunuch. I might comment on that. From the time of King Solomon, many of the upper class leaders in Ethiopia practiced the religion of the Old Testament. For literally hundreds and hundreds of years, the ruling families and the upper classes of Ethiopia practiced the religion of the Old Testament, to the point that it was not uncommon that they were circumcised. That's why an Ethiopian could come to the temple and go right in to the same court at the temple that any of the Jews could because they were circumcised. Right to this day, particularly among the leadership classes, the Ethiopians have continued to practice the religion of the Old Testament. It was not uncommon for them to travel to Jerusalem. It was obviously those who had the money and the wealth to do so.

Verse 27, this Ethiopian was a man of great authority. He was an Ethiopian that was there. In one sense he was the first Gentile baptized, and yet is not considered such because he was in that sense a convert to Judaism first. He was not converted to Christianity directly from a Gentile pagan religion. He had undoubtedly, as many of the upper class in Ethiopia, practiced the religion of the Old Testament. He had gone to Jerusalem and was traveling back.

Verse 28, he was sitting there in his chariot reading the book of Isaiah.

Verses 31-35, Philip preached the Gospel to him from the book of Isaiah.

You know, the Old Testament is a guide to salvation. Peter preached his sermon in Acts 2 out of the Old Testament. Philip preached to the Ethiopian eunuch out of the Old Testament. So, it is made very plain.

In Acts 9, we are introduced in more detail to the Apostle Paul or the one that became the Apostle Paul in his conversion.

Verse 3, Saul, the persecutor, was struck down on the road to Damascus. You are familiar with the account.

I would call your attention to a three-fold commission God had in mind for him.

Acts 9:15, “But the Lord said to him, ‘Go, for he is a chosen vessel of Mine, to bear My name before Gentiles, kings, and the children of Israel.’” Those were the three parts of the commission that God gave to Paul.

But God, even in working with Paul, continued to work through the government of His Church.

Verses 8-9, God struck Paul blind, and he was blind for a period of three days. God sent Ananias (no relationship to the Ananias of Acts 5 who had been struck dead) to anoint him.

Verses 17-18, “And Ananias went his way and entered the house; and laying his hands on him he said, ‘Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road as you came, has sent me, that you may receive your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit.’ Immediately there fell from his eyes something like scales, and he received his sight at once; and he arose and was baptized.”

Ananias anointed and laid hands on him; he was healed. He talked to him, counseled with him, and baptized him. God does things in an orderly fashion through the government that He has established in His Church, even when He is going to work with someone in a unique manner.

We will pick up the story next time here with Paul. We will focus in on that in more detail next time.

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Acts 1—9

1. For how many days did Jesus Christ remain on earth teaching His disciples after the resurrection?
2. What was Christ's final instruction to the disciples?
3. How many real disciples did Jesus have after He ended His earthly ministry?
4. Who took Judas' place?
5. What are some of the differences between what took place on the day of Pentecost (as recorded in Acts 2) and the modern "Pentecostal experiences"?
6. Prove from Peter's sermon on Pentecost that heaven is not the reward of the saved.
7. What does God require of us in order to receive the Holy Spirit?
8. Did people become converted on their own initiative?
9. Is there more than one way of salvation? Prove.
10. Did the Church insist that everyone dispose of all their possessions and donate everything?
11. What did God do when the apostles were put in prison?
12. What should we as God's people do when man's law conflicts with God's law?
13. Why was the office of deacon created?
14. Why were Jewish religious leaders so anxious to get rid of Stephen?
15. What was Stephen's attitude toward his murderers?
16. Who was Simon of Samaria and what did he attempt to purchase from Peter?
17. Prove from the first eight chapters of the book of Acts that the Old Testament is a guide to salvation.
18. What was Paul's (Saul) three-fold commission?
19. Did God work through human instruments and the government in His Church in Paul's conversion, even though Paul was being called for a special job? Give example.

The Gospels and Acts Series—Acts 10—17

This evening we are continuing our survey in the book of Acts. We are up to the middle section in the book of Acts—chapters 10-17. One of the things that we will note, particularly this evening, is the issue of Gentiles. One of the great issues of the early New Testament Church involved the acceptance of the Gentiles into the full fellowship of the Church. Now let me preface that by saying that the issue was not simply a matter of accepting Gentiles. It was a matter of accepting uncircumcised Gentiles. That was the issue. The great issue had to do with circumcision.

It wasn't simply a matter of ethnic origin. If you want to note the contrast in Acts 8, we have the account of the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch. There wasn't any controversy concerning that. In Acts 10, when we come up with Cornelius (who was Italian by ethnic background), all of a sudden we have a major controversy that, to an extent, occupies the next five chapters. It really isn't settled until after Acts 15; even after Acts 15, it resurfaces from time to time. There was a reason for that. I think I mentioned this last time.

The Ethiopians, particularly the leading upper class in Ethiopia, the educated class, had from the time going back to King Solomon (almost a thousand years earlier) practiced the religion of the Old Testament. Many of them were circumcised. There were many Sabbath keepers among the ruling class in Ethiopia. It was the only example of a Gentile nation, over any period of time, where a significant portion of the population took it upon themselves to follow many of the principles of the Old Testament. It goes back to the account of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba (I Kings 10). In fact, the last emperor of Ethiopia who died several years ago, Emperor Selassie, traced his genealogy in an unbroken line back that far. The Ethiopian royal line held the throne of Ethiopia for almost three thousand years. So there was continuity.

For someone who was circumcised, such as this Ethiopian who had come to Jerusalem, there wasn't any problem. He could enter into the inner courtyard of the temple. He could enter into the court of the Israelites. He was not confined to the outer court of the Gentiles. The issue had to do with the physical sign of the covenant. The Jews were prepared to accept a Gentile into religious fellowship if he took upon himself the outward sign of the covenant with Abraham, which was circumcision.

Now the issue arose, beginning in Acts 10, concerning the spiritual necessity of a Gentile man taking upon himself that outward sign of the physical covenant that God had made with Abraham. Was it necessary? You see, the position of many of the religious Jews who were being converted was that if a Gentile wanted to come into the Church, fine, but first he had to become a Jew. Salvation is of the Jews. If you want to become a Christian, first you had to become a Jew; then you become a Christian. This was the controversy.

There was a lot that needed to be resolved in terms of what were the spiritual requirements for salvation. We might also understand the term "Gentile" because the term that is translated "Gentile" throughout the Old Testament, the Hebrew word "goyim," simply means "the nations." It was a general term that referred to everyone except the twelve tribes of Israel. Gentiles could be of any race or ethnic background. They could be white, black or yellow. They could be any number of ethnic backgrounds because it was an inclusive term that simply meant everyone except the descendants of Jacob.

Abraham had other children besides Isaac. But the promise line, the seed of promise, came through Isaac. So Abraham's other children would have been considered Gentiles. Ishmael, the Arabs and all of those that descended in that way were considered Gentiles. Isaac had two sons, Jacob and Esau. But because the promise came through Jacob, Esau's descendants would have been considered Gentile. Jacob (his name was changed to Israel) had twelve sons. They became the ancestors of the twelve tribes. The descendants of the twelve tribes, the descendants of Jacob (or Israel) was, let's say, the dividing line. It was a general term. It referred to Israel, and then everyone else was "the nations" or "Gentiles."

The Jews had developed this separateness by the time the New Testament was written. The other tribes of Israel had been dispersed in captivity and disappeared from the scene several hundred years earlier. The Jews were the only ones who were still living there in the Middle East. They were the only ones who preserved and maintained their identity and association with the Promised Land. So they tended to view themselves as separate and distinct people. God had laid great importance on the fact that Israel maintained their separate and distinct identity from the nations around.

The problem that had developed by the time of the first century was something that went beyond recognizing the need to avoid the corrupting influence of the world and the society around. This is a struggle that God's people all through the centuries have had. You can go back to the beginning of God establishing a people, which was Israel being called out of Egypt. The great battle all the way down has been the tendency of the people of God, collectively, to have that contaminating influence of the world around. It is a necessity that God's people maintain their separate identity because if we're going to please God, we have to conform to God and His ways—not to the world and its ways. The world takes its standards from the devil, in terms of value systems and priorities.

The real problem was the Jews had taken this concept and had developed it into a purely physical concept to where they really looked down on all of the other people as being in some way polluted and dirty. That's why it was such a novel concept.

Even to this day, there are three requirements for a man who wishes to convert to Orthodox Judaism. They have maintained these requirements for many centuries. The first one was ritual circumcision. Secondly, was what they called the “mikvah,” which was the “ceremonial washing” or the “ritual bath.” The third was the offering of a sacrifice (a sin offering) there in the temple. Today a convert to Orthodox Judaism goes through the circumcision and the “mikvah” and simply makes a pledge that, if the temple is rebuilt in his lifetime, he will offer the appropriate sacrifice.

The concept was that all “the nations” are born in sin; they are dirty and they have to be washed. They are unclean. However, when a Jewish baby is born, they are circumcised and a sacrifice is offered—but there is no “mikvah,” no ritual bath. Their concept was that they are born clean and everybody else is born unclean. They are better than everyone else. That's why when John the Baptist came and said, “Repent and be baptized,” that was a novel concept. The Jews were familiar with this practice of immersion. They were familiar with the Hebrew term “mikvah,” the immersion, the washing away, but it was something they only applied to Gentile men.

Interestingly enough, at the time of the first century, they also applied it to Jewish women, but they didn't apply it to Jewish men. They considered themselves as having been born clean. That's why Christ told them, ‘If the Son shall set you free, then you'll be free indeed.’ And boy, they got indignant and said, ‘We are Abraham's seed; we have never been in bondage to any man. What do you mean you'll set us free? We don't need to be set free; we're okay.’ When John the Baptist came and preached the message, “Repent and be baptized,” this was a radical departure. It had never occurred to them that they were unclean, also.

The thrust of John the Baptist's message in preparing the way for the Messiah was the fact that you are unclean. You need to be washed and cleansed. You need a Savior. You are born in sin.

As Paul stressed it in Romans 3:23, “...all have sinned and come short of the glory of God.” It is not just the Gentiles that have sinned, but all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. Nobody has a spiritual “leg up” based on their ancestry. It's as simple as that.

The issue of baptism was a difficult concept for many of these first-century Jews to grasp. John the Baptist came preaching baptism and many were baptized. They were convicted at least of the fact that they were unclean and needed to repent and be forgiven. Jesus preached baptism and His disciples practiced it. That was never the issue. But the issue of circumcision was another thing. Many of the Jews could accept the fact that they needed to be baptized, that they needed to be washed from their sins. But they also said, ‘Gentiles need to be circumcised if they are going to be as good as we are. They need to take upon themselves the outward sign of the covenant that God made to Abraham.’ So God made it plain in dealing through Peter that circumcision was not a spiritual matter of salvation.

Now there is nothing that was ever said to discourage the continuing practice among the Jews to circumcise their children on the eighth day after birth. There was never anything to discourage the descendants of Abraham to continue the physical sign of that physical covenant. But it was not a spiritual matter of salvation. It didn't have bearing on salvation. That was not what was involved. God, dealing through Peter (who was the chief of the twelve), revealed that the Gentiles were not in some separate category in that way. And of course, Peter had this vision that prepared him for this event. It was a major event. As we go through, we recognize the magnitude of it.

I would like to mention something that is sometimes overlooked. When you go through the book of Acts, you see what an issue circumcision was, particularly starting here in Acts 10, and for chapters it keeps coming up and coming up. Then Paul mentions it in his epistles. It was an issue for years, literally for several decades as long as the Church was centered in Jerusalem. From the time of the first Gentile converts and for a good twenty years, it was really an issue; it did not entirely cease to be an issue until the Church was no longer primarily centered there in Jerusalem and in Judea.

But consider—with the modification that was made in regards to circumcision, it was explained that this was not a spiritual requirement of salvation. Spiritually, circumcision was of the heart (Romans 2:25-29) and was not necessary to be performed in order for someone to be saved. If the issue of circumcision created this much controversy, how is it that people think that the Sabbath was changed? You never read a whisper of the controversy in the New Testament.

If circumcision was a big deal to the Jews, do you know what an even bigger deal was? The Sabbath! The two biggest things to the Jews in the first century were idolatry and Sabbath keeping. The prohibitions against idolatry and Sabbath keeping were major issues. That's why meat offered to idols kept coming up. It was a controversial issue. In fact, the Jews had made such an issue of the matter of idolatry that there were riots in Jerusalem when the Roman troops displayed the imperial insignias in a flag over the citadel. The Jews considered it an idolatrous emblem, and there were riots all over Jerusalem. In order to maintain peace in Jerusalem, the Roman troops didn't display the imperial insignias (the Roman eagle) on their flags. The Jews considered it idolatrous because of its connection with Roman gods.

They had such an issue over idolatry, and they took it to such a point—that's why you had all the issues about eating meat offered to idols. It's why you will to this day find certain wines that are labeled kosher wines. Ever noticed that? There are wines that are labeled kosher wines. Do you know why? It's not because any unclean food is used in making any wine. The issue of kosher wine goes back to this time. At the time of the vintage when the wine was made, it was the practice or the custom of the Gentiles in the Greek and Roman world that the first cup would be poured out in an offering to the god of the vintage—to Bacchus or the various gods. The Jews saw it as everything out there being polluted. It had been offered to idols. Here, this cup had been poured out there in front of that idol. They wouldn't touch it. They would make their own. And to this day, that is where kosher wine comes in. It goes back to the idea that they didn't even want to take a chance that there may have been a cup of this poured out in front of an idol. They wanted nothing to do with idolatry. That's why you also find the subject of meat offered to idols that come up. It was something that had to be resolved in terms of the way it was dealt with.

You never find a mention or a breath of controversy about the Sabbath. Paul was never accused of teaching the Gentiles to break the Sabbath. Now, they got all upset; they accused him of bringing in an uncircumcised Gentile into the inner court of the temple (Acts 21:28), which he didn't do. But they provoked a riot that led to Paul's arrest over that issue. Nobody ever accused him of breaking the Sabbath or teaching against the Sabbath. How can anybody say that the early New Testament Church moved from the Sabbath to Sunday and think that there would never be a hint of a controversy over the subject in the New Testament. Boy, I tell you—the "ripple" about circumcision would have been minor compared to the controversy that would have been had they taught that it was permissible to desecrate the Sabbath and do something else. That is just a sub-point to bring in, which I think is good for us to realize.

In Acts 10:44-48, we are going to notice that when the first uncircumcised Gentiles were baptized (Cornelius, and those with him of his household) there was an unprecedented event that occurred in that context. It is the only example that we have given in Scripture of people who received the Holy Spirit prior to baptism. There was a reason for that miracle.

It was such a hurdle for Peter and those there with him to accept the fact that God was ready to accept the Gentiles on a spiritual basis without their having carried through the physical ritual of circumcision. It was such a major hurdle for them to get over in their mind, that God performed this miracle of giving the Holy Spirit before baptism. Peter looked around at the others and said, 'God's accepted them; how can we not!' And he went ahead and baptized them. It was again a specific example where this miracle of speaking in other languages was worked at the time of their conversion. There's a reason why that miracle occurred. You don't read that's what normally happened when people were baptized and received the Holy Spirit. Why did God perform that miracle for Cornelius and his household?

It's very evident as to why God had performed that particular miracle for the apostles and for those who were there on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2). They were speaking to a multi-lingual audience. Why the necessity of this miracle for Cornelius and his household? I think if we look at it, it is apparent that God performed the same miracle when the first Gentiles were converted as He did when the first Jews were converted. If He didn't, the Jews could have still said, 'Yeah, but yours still is not as good as ours. We are still "one up" on you.' God knew human nature and certainly knew the way that people would reason.

God knew the tendency of people to compare themselves among themselves. So the same miracle was performed to make it apparent that God had not in some way made a spiritual distinction. God does not make spiritual distinctions based on physical criteria. Now obviously, there are physical distinctions. We are male and female. That's pretty physical. But we are heirs together of the grace of life. There are not spiritual distinctions that are made on physical criteria. This was emphasized.

We will note some other things. In fact, we will note something a little later in the book of Acts that will show the extent of some of the multi-ethnic background of many of the early New Testament Church, even the leaders of the New Testament Church. A lot of people have read over and not realized that all of the early New Testament Church did not come from an exclusively ethnic Jewish background. We have already mentioned the Ethiopian eunuch who was a clear case in point. But let's continue. We will come to it.

In Acts 10, we noted the first uncircumcised Gentile convert. This was Cornelius, the Roman Centurion. He was an Italian and a leader of a group who were stationed in Judea (v. 1). There were a significant number of soldiers who were stationed in Judea as a part of Roman troop detachments, as well as others who came in contact with the Jews who were impressed with the teachings of Scripture.

The bankrupt pagan mythology that was extant in the first-century Greek and Roman world had long since lost its hold in terms of really filling any kind of void for people who thought very much. Many of the Gentiles in some of these areas who were exposed to Jewish culture were impressed with the teaching of Scripture. They recognized standards and recognized answers that were something beyond anything that they had from their background. Many of these became proselytes or converts. They were called "proselytes of the gate." In other words, if they came to the temple, they never could go past the gate because they did not become circumcised and take upon themselves the full commitment of the covenant, which circumcision involved. But they attended the synagogue and would listen to the Scriptures read. They would practice many of the principles of the law. They recognized its moral value and worth. They saw that there was something here, but they stopped short of becoming circumcised and becoming, in the eyes of Greek and Roman society, a Jew. This was a major step to take and most did not do that.

Verse 2, Cornelius, we are told, was a devout man. He, evidently, had been exposed to the teaching of Scripture there in Judea. He had, undoubtedly, spent time attending synagogue and hearing the law read. He was impressed with many of these things. He had come to believe in the true God—the God of Israel. He recognized that the idols that the Greek and Roman world worshipped were nothing. There came a point in time when he was sincerely seeking God; God heard and honored his request.

In vv. 3-8, Cornelius was told where to go and find Peter.

In v. 9, it was around noon (we are told the sixth hour, which would have been noon counting from sunrise) when Peter went upon the housetop.

Of course, their housetops were a flat style and not what we think of as housetops with the Acadian style as here in south Louisiana. That would have been kind of a difficult place to navigate. You wouldn't want to climb up on that kind of roof to pray—you definitely would feel like praying if you were balanced precariously up there. That's not the kind of housetop Peter was on. In an area where there isn't a lot of rain, they utilize a flat rooftop. With a little bit of drainage, it wasn't a problem. There wasn't much rainfall. It was often an area that expanded the living area. You'd get up there in the cool of the evening or when the sun began to set. It was a little cooler up there; you would pick up a little bit more of a breeze.

Verse 10, Peter had gone up there. It was a private place and he was waiting for them to prepare lunch. He was hungry and went up there to pray. While he was up there praying, waiting for the meal to be prepared, he went into a trance, and had a vision.

Verses 11-12, in this vision he saw a sheet come down from heaven. On this sheet was every kind of creature you can imagine. Now this is proof that Peter did not come from south Louisiana because when he saw all those creeping things, he didn't jump up and have a crayfish boil.

Acts 10:13-16, "...Not so, Lord. I have never eaten anything common or unclean." When he was told to rise, kill and eat, he said, 'No, I can't do that.' Now this vision was repeated three times.

Peter was really scratching his head. He couldn't figure out what it meant. A lot of people today jump to the conclusion that they know what it means. They think that they can eat anything that doesn't eat them first. Almost all of us (you did and I did) grew up eating all kind of things. I think about some of the things I used to eat, and it spoils my appetite to even think about them. I don't even want to describe it at mealtime. I'm sure you are the same way. But there was a time when we ate it and didn't think anything about it. But Peter didn't jump to that conclusion. He couldn't figure out what it meant.

Peter had spent three and one-half years with Jesus Christ, living with Him, spending day after day together. They camped out together; they ate meals together; and they spent hours together, day after day over a period of three and one-half years. There was nothing that Christ had ever said which in any way gave Peter the indication that he should be eating unclean foods. Peter had never eaten anything common or unclean. It's obvious that Jesus didn't either, because Peter was with Him, and they ate the same thing during the years of His ministry. Peter didn't jump to the conclusion that the laws against clean and unclean had been done away. That never occurred to him.

Verse 17 says afterwards that he doubted in himself—he wondered—what this vision he had seen could mean. He couldn't figure it out.

About this time word came to him.

Verses 18-19, somebody downstairs wanted to see him. It was a Gentile.

Verses 20-23, he was told to go home with them and not to worry or be disturbed about it. So he went down and found out what the situation was. They explained it to him, and Peter accompanied them. Several of the other brethren went with them and came to Caesarea.

Verse 24, Cornelius waited for them. He had called together his relatives and his close friends.

Verse 25, when Peter came in, Cornelius met him, fell down at his feet and worshipped him. Now if Peter had been the Pope, he would have told him, 'Here, kiss right here on this big toe.' Peter didn't tell him that. It is pretty good evidence that Peter didn't view himself as the first Pope. He didn't have people bowing down and kissing his feet. When the man did that, he told him to stand up, 'don't be groveling down there on the ground trying to kiss my feet.'

Verse 26, '...stand up, for I am a man just like you are. I am a human being.'

Cornelius had come from Rome from a religious background where the religious leaders were venerated in that way. Well, that's not God's way. God's way is certainly a way of respect.

God tells us to respect those who are older, respect our elders, rise up before the hoary (gray) head (Leviticus 19:32). Certainly we are to respect our elders and use terms of respect that are appropriate. Just as we show respect to those who are elders, physically, it is certainly just as appropriate and just as proper to show respect to those who are our spiritual elders. To show proper respect for another human being or respect for an office or age is one thing, and something we should show to one another. But there's a difference between an appropriate respect and an attitude of veneration, worship, adoration and this type of thing.

That's why in God's Church we don't use some specific religious titles. We don't call ourselves "reverend" because we read in Psalm 111:9 (KJV), "... holy and reverend is His name." Since that's God's name, we never talked about Reverend Armstrong. We don't use those terms because they would be inappropriate. Holy and reverend is God's name. We refer to them respectfully in the same way we refer to older people or to any people we would hold in respect. We refer to our spiritual leaders with a courtesy title of respect that we use in this society, not with a religious title.

We see here this attitude. It is good to notice that a lot of the things associated with a certain religion, where the head of it calls himself the successor of St. Peter—he doesn't follow the example of Peter. If you are going to claim to be Peter's successor, then you need to be held to the same standard of doing what Peter did. Do you practice the things that Peter practices?

A little while later, it began to dawn on him what his vision had been.

Acts 10:28, "...'God has shown me that I should not call any man common or unclean.'" Now Peter got the point of his vision. He realized what this was all about. He had been putting people, human beings made in the image of God, in the same category as an unclean animal. Peter was viewing them in kind of the same context, using the same terms, and he had come to realize and to see that was wrong. That was an attitude of prejudice. That was not reflective of God's perspective at all. Peter recognized that.

As we go through Acts 10, we note the rest of the story of Cornelius and his household receiving the Holy Spirit prior to baptism.

Verses 44-48, "While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit fell upon those who heard the word. And those of the circumcision, who believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out on the Gentiles also. For they heard them speak with tongues and magnify God. Then Peter answered, 'Can anyone forbid water, that these should not be baptized who have received the Holy Spirit?' And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then they asked him to stay a few days."

This, of course, demonstrated that a man did not first have to be circumcised before he could be part of the Church. God made it clear. If there is something of this magnitude, God makes it clear. God does not make a change (that is a change from God) in some obscure way that leaves people confused, where you can't know which is which. When God made a specific change, in terms of circumcision, He made it plain to the New Testament Church. He did it in a very plain and a dramatic way that was a clear basis that anyone could look to. God's will was plain.

Acts 11:1-3, "Now the apostles and brethren who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God. And when Peter came up to Jerusalem, those of the circumcision contended with him, saying, 'You went in to uncircumcised men and ate with them!'" Peter came back to Jerusalem, and needless to say, there were people that were upset. 'You ate with uncircumcised men!' Boy, they were upset about that. There was a prejudice that was there. It had its origin, in terms of religion, that carried over in all of these ways. Obviously, it came down to viewing every non-Jew in an unclean category. The average Jew wouldn't think of going in and eating a meal at a Gentile's table. That was unthinkable. So they were pretty upset when they heard Peter had done this.

Verses 4-14, Peter then explained the matter from the beginning. He went through and told them the story; he made it clear that it was from God.

Then he says in v. 15, "'And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, as upon us at the beginning.'" It was not the way the Holy Spirit normally came every time. 'It was the way the Holy Spirit fell on us at the beginning.' We go back to that point. God wanted to make it plain that Gentiles didn't get a second-rate baptism or a second-rate conversion. Peter goes through and explains what happened.

Verse 16, in the light of what had happened, he began to understand some scriptures that he had not previously understood.

Verses 17-18, when all this was explained, those who were there glorified God and said God was also granting repentance to the Gentiles.

Verse 19, in the meantime, the Church had been scattered. There was a persecution that had arisen after the stoning of Stephen. Much of the Church had been scattered. For the first couple of years the Church had remained right there centered in Jerusalem. When Stephen was stoned in 33 A.D., persecution broke out. The result was it forced people to begin to leave, to spread out. There had been a reluctance to leave the center of action. The result was that, as people began to spread, the knowledge of the truth began to spread.

Verses 20-22, it had come to the attention of the apostles that there were a number there in Antioch.

Verse 19, there were some from the area of Judea who had gone there; they had been talking about the truth, about the Church, and the knowledge of the Messiah—but only to the Jews. They had been doing so, certainly, in the synagogues at Antioch.

Verse 22, when word came to Jerusalem, the decision was made at headquarters that since there was interest in Antioch, they needed to send a minister who would go to Antioch to take charge of the situation. Here we see a clear account of Church government. The people in Antioch didn't get together and send a pulpit committee out to find somebody to preach what they liked and invite him to come there. When something came to the attention of headquarters, the apostles in Jerusalem sent Barnabas. He was sent down there as the pastor.

Verse 25, when Barnabas came, he went on to Tarsus—which was not all that far away—to seek Saul.

You remember that Saul, or Paul, had been converted several years earlier. He had been struck down on the road to Damascus. He had come to repentance, been baptized and converted; he had gone to Jerusalem but had not been that well accepted. They had accepted him, but they really didn't want him hanging around there. Because there was a little bit of skepticism, he stayed there about two weeks, got acquainted with several of the apostles and left.

In Galatians 1:17-18, we find that he spent a period of about three years in Arabia, there in the desert, having been taught directly by Christ (vv. 11-12). He came back through Jerusalem and was there for a short time. But at that time there was not a place for him. He was told, 'The best thing for you to do is to go back to Tarsus where you came from and get a job. Don't call us; we'll call you!' So that's what he did.

He knew that God works through the leadership He has established and ordained. When Barnabas, whom Paul had met and talked with right after his conversion (and evidently kept tabs on him), was sent to Antioch to pastor the Church, he went to Tarsus and brought Paul back to Antioch with him (vv. 25-26). Paul was evidently ordained as an elder at that time because we will note later that Paul was an elder in the Church at Antioch, although he's listed in the tail end of the list of the ministers serving there in Antioch (Acts 13:1).

Barnabas went there to Tarsus and Paul entered the ministry full time. Saul (as he was known then) came back to Antioch to assist Barnabas. There's a period of a year that went by and the Church built up there in Antioch.

Verses 27-29, we find that there were prophets from Jerusalem that came down to Antioch with the message of a famine. There was a certain relief that was sent.

In Acts 12:1-2, we pick up the story of the first apostle to be martyred. Herod had James killed. This was James, the brother of John. When he saw that this was popular, he decided that he would finish off some of the others as well.

Verse 3, he arrested Peter and was going to execute him after the Days of Unleavened Bread.

Verses 5-11, the Church prayed and besought God's intervention. God intervened in a very dramatic way. He sent an angel and brought Peter out of jail.

Verses 12-16, when Peter came there to the house where all the people were praying, they were so shocked that they almost didn't believe their prayers had been answered. That's sometimes the case. We pray for a miracle, and then we are amazed when it occurs. We need to not only pray for it, we need to expect it! This created quite a stir.

Verse 25, Barnabas and Saul remained there in Antioch. They had come down to Jerusalem and had returned to Antioch.

Acts 13:1-3, "Now in the Church that was at Antioch there were certain prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Simeon who was called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. As they ministered to the Lord and fasted, the Holy Spirit said, 'Now separate to Me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them.' Then, having fasted and prayed, and laid hands on them, they sent them away."

Now, who laid on the hands? Well, Simeon called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene and Manaen. These were, evidently, prophets that had been sent down from Jerusalem. We are told they are prophets and teachers. Barnabas is listed first in the list because he was pastor of the Church. He had been sent down from Jerusalem as the Church pastor. These others who had evidently come down from Jerusalem were prophets from Jerusalem.

Verses 2-3, they were given revelation from God because what we have here is the ordination of Paul and Barnabas as apostles. This is what we have—an ordination. They fasted and prayed and laid hands on them; then they sent them away. They were sent out. That's what "apostle" means. They were sent forth. This is the ordination.

I think it is interesting to note—I mentioned the multi-ethnic background of the leadership of the early New Testament Church. 'Simeon that was called Niger'—"Niger" is the Greek word for "black." It specifically refers to Blacks from the area of West Africa. We have today the Niger River, the nation of Nigeria. It comes from the same term. The term "Ethiopian" was used as a general term to refer to Blacks from East Africa, just as the term "Niger" was used as a general term to refer to Blacks from West Africa.

The Roman Empire took in portions of Northern Africa. Cyrene was in North Africa in the area around where Tunisia is today. That was a part of the Roman Empire, but the Roman Empire did not include East or West Africa down in the area of Ethiopia. Ethiopia maintained its independence, and so did certain kingdoms in West Africa. There was trade and commerce. There was a familiarity in the Greek and Roman world with people of both East and West African origin. There was trade and a certain amount of commerce there on the border of the Empire. It was not uncommon.

We are not introduced to anything of the background of this individual (this Simeon called Niger), except that it is clear from his surname what his origin was. He was a West African from the area that we would refer to as the area of the Niger River in West Africa. We are not given any details at what point he came into the Church or at what point he had been ordained in the ministry. We are not given background on that. We are simply introduced to him, as well as to Lucius of Cyrene of whom we are told nothing else. The only thing we know about Manaen was that he was of an aristocratic background. He had actually grown up with Herod. He had been a friend and companion of many of the upper class.

What we see is that the leadership of the New Testament Church had been called from a variety of backgrounds, ethnically and culturally. It wasn't any longer exclusively Palestinian Jews. In fact, Simeon and the other two were the ones by whom God actually ordained Paul and Barnabas as apostles. We get a little bit of insight into the beginning of the impact of the New Testament Church. These prophets had been sent from Jerusalem headquarters to Antioch. God had given them that commission.

At this point, after the ordination of Barnabas and Saul, we find that Barnabas and Saul left to begin the first evangelistic journey. They sailed from Antioch and went to Cypress. Then they went up to central Asia Minor and preached in the area that we know as Galatia. Then they came back over land down to Antioch. If you look at a map, you will see that Antioch is in the modern nation of Syria. They went from there across a small stretch of the Mediterranean to the island of Cypress, then up to ancient Asia Minor (the central portion of modern-day Turkey), the area of Galatia. They went there, traveled overland through Asia Minor (or modern-day Turkey) and then came back down the coast over land to come back to Antioch. This was the first evangelistic journey that they made. The account of it is given in Acts 13 and 14.

Beginning in Acts 13:9, there is one thing that we find plainly evident. We see that the name Paul begins to be used in place of Saul, which was the Hebrew name. Paul was the Roman name that he had, and Saul was his Hebrew name. As he began traveling in the Gentile areas, he elected to go by his Roman name. We see that switch over at that time.

We find in Acts 13:5 Paul's address to the Jews in Cyprus and the sermon he gave. I will refer back to this a little later.

One thing I would like to call your attention to. I mentioned earlier, in terms of the Sabbath, the fact that there isn't any New Testament evidence at all of any controversy about a change of the Sabbath. If anybody were going to change it, certainly Paul would have done it when he preached to the Gentiles.

But we are told in Acts 13:42, "And when the Jews went out of the synagogue, the Gentiles begged that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath."

Paul could have told them, 'You don't need to wait until next Sabbath. We are going to have church service for you Gentiles ten o'clock Sunday morning. We are going to have Sunday services. You don't need to wait until the Sabbath. The Sabbath has been done away!' Why didn't he explain that? Because it wasn't true! These Gentiles (Greeks primarily) in the area of Asia Minor came up and said, 'We'd like for you to preach to us next Sabbath. We would like to get together and hear you.'

And we are told in v. 44, "And the next Sabbath almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God." It is very clear that Paul was preaching to the Gentiles on the Sabbath, as well as the Jews. Some say, 'Yeah, Paul preached to the Jews on the Sabbath. He went to the synagogue because that's where the Jews were. He didn't go there because he believed it; he just went there because that's where the audience was.' Well, if that was the case, the Gentiles didn't normally keep the Sabbath; so why did he preach to them on the Sabbath? Why didn't he use that as an opportunity to introduce Sunday worship? It's very plain when we go through the scriptures that Paul did not institute Sunday worship among the Gentiles.

We see that the main persecution Paul faced was religious persecution from the Jewish religious leadership.

Verse 45, "But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy; and contradicting and blaspheming, they opposed the things spoken by Paul." They were really jealous.

Verse 50, “But the Jews stirred up the devout and prominent women and the chief men of the city, raised up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them from their region.” They stirred up a great controversy.

Acts 14:2, “But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the brethren.” They began to spread all kinds of rumors and gossip. There were all sorts of problems that were stirred up.

We see the account in chapters 13 and 14 of the trip back that Paul made over land and the arrival back in Antioch. This was the first large-scale conversion of Gentiles where large congregations were raised up in some of these areas that, primarily, consisted of Gentiles with a very small Jewish contingent. The issue of uncircumcised Gentiles being accepted into full fellowship was still kind of “cooking” and there was a problem. There was a controversy that came up.

Acts 15:1, “And certain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren, ‘Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved.’” There were some that came down from Jerusalem and began to tell some of the brethren that it was fine to be baptized, but they still need to be circumcised. ‘I know you’ve been baptized and received the Holy Spirit, but if you are going to be saved, you still have to be circumcised.’

It stirred up a controversy and a dispute. When this doctrinal matter came up, it was not something that could be entirely addressed there locally. Paul and Barnabas decided to go up to Jerusalem to the apostles and elders there about the question and have it resolved once and for all. There would be an official statement of Church position.

Verse 2, “Therefore, when Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and dispute with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas and certain others of them should go up to Jerusalem to the apostles and elders, about this question.” We see the recognition of the concept that God is not the author of confusion (I Corinthians 14:33). There is peace. We see that there was a discussion. As the leadership in Jerusalem came together, there was a lot of discussion. Peter finally rose up.

Verse 7, “And when there had been much dispute, Peter rose up, and said to them: ‘Men and brethren, you know that a good while ago God chose among us, that by my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel and believe.’”

Verses 7-11, Peter began to recount the situation from the beginning as to how God had originally opened the door to the Gentiles through him. He went through, recounted it and explained it; he brought it through, step by step, exactly what had happened.

Verse 12, “Then all the multitude kept silent, and listened to Barnabas and Paul declaring how many miracles and wonders God had worked through them among the Gentiles.” They explained all the things that God had done through them on this evangelistic journey. They added to and reinforced the things that Peter had said. Once these things had been stated, this kind of concluded the discussion.

Verses 13-15, “And after they had become silent, James answered, saying, ‘Men and brethren, listen to me: Simon [Peter] has declared how God at the first visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name. And with the words of the prophets agree, just as it is written....’” James got up and made the official pronouncement. He was the brother of Jesus Christ. He was an apostle. He was not one of the twelve, but he held the rank of apostle. He was the pastor there of the Jerusalem Church and presided over the conference. Since he was the one who was presiding, he then said, ‘All right, Simon [Peter] has explained how this whole matter started.’

Verses 15-17, he invoked scriptural principles from the Old Testament that backed that up.

Verse 19 (KJV), “‘Therefore my sentence is....’” The word “sentence” is the Greek word “krino.” It is a legal technical term in the Greek that refers to “a judgment” in the sense that a court would make a judgment. It is in the sense of a judge passing sentence or a judgment. It was an official legal decision. He was saying, ‘All right, everything has been discussed. We have heard it. Peter has explained what God revealed to him and what God did through him. Paul and Barnabas have told you what occurred. We have listened to all of this, and the scriptures certainly prophesied and anticipated of the event that we have experienced and gone through. Wherefore, my sentence, my official statement, my official legal decision, the binding decision of the Church is....’

Verse 19, “‘...that we should not trouble those from among the Gentiles who are turning to God.’” This was concerning circumcision.

Verses 20-23, “‘But that we write to them to abstain from things polluted by idols, from sexual immorality, from things strangled, and from blood. For Moses has had throughout many generations those who preach him in every city, being read in the synagogues every Sabbath.’ Then it pleased the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, namely Judas who was also named Barsabas, and Silas, leading men among the brethren. They wrote this letter by them....”

Verses 23-29, a letter was written, and it was dispatched stating the decision of the Church.

Let’s note something here. Some quote this statement in v. 20 and say, ‘You see, James didn’t say anything about the Gentiles keeping the Sabbath. Therefore, it is very obvious that the Gentiles don’t have to keep the Sabbath. All of that’s done away. They weren’t told to keep the Sabbath.’

Well, that’s right! They weren’t told to keep the Sabbath; neither were they told not to commit murder. If v. 20 does away with the fourth commandment to remember the Sabbath, it also does away with the sixth commandment not to murder because that’s not mentioned either. In fact, there’s nothing here that says the Gentiles shouldn’t steal or shouldn’t lie or covet or dishonor their parents. There are a lot of commandments that are not mentioned. Most people who want to do away with the Sabbath aren’t quite so anxious to do away with murder, particularly, if they are on the receiving end of the gun. They generally figure that’s a good commandment to have around.

Why isn’t the Sabbath mentioned? Well, the Sabbath isn’t mentioned because it wasn’t a question. James didn’t answer it because nobody asked the question. That simply had never come up. What had come up and was being discussed was circumcision. When they address the subject of circumcision and they say, ‘All right, circumcision applies in the spirit. It is a circumcision of the heart (Romans 2:28-29). The physical ceremonial requirement of circumcision is not necessary for salvation.’ Then that raises the question of what about some of these other things that are so uncommon and strange in the Greek and Roman world? Are they also ceremonial? What about meat offered to idols? Is there anything wrong with that? What about morality? Do the prohibitions of morality apply?

Most of us have trouble associating the concept of morality with some of these other matters. But what you have to realize is that the whole concept of chastity and morality was such an uncommon thing in the Greek and Roman world that it was looked upon as a peculiarity of the Jews. Immorality (fornication) involved in idolatrous temple worship and this kind of thing was taken for granted. Immoral practices were so taken for granted in the Greek and Roman world of the first century, that it was a real culture shock to some of these who came out of this kind of background. They needed to recognize the importance that God placed on morality. The Jews placed great emphasis on it. What the Gentile converts had to realize was that this was not simply a peculiarity of the Jews. God placed great emphasis on it.

We are almost coming back to a situation like that in our society today. There is no sense of scandal being attached to immorality in a way that was common twenty-five or thirty years ago. It was common that immorality was a scandal. It is so taken for granted and accepted now, that many young people growing up in this society and surrounded by the attitudes of a society evidenced at school and through the media, etc., have trouble grasping, ‘What’s the big deal?’ Now, that’s a concept that some of us who grew up thirty or forty years ago and longer may have trouble grasping. How can you not understand what a big deal it is? We have to realize how much the culture in this nation has changed in the course of a generation—a drastic change that we could date to the 60s. You could pick various benchmarks, but I think the most recent radical change began in the 60s—particularly, by the mid-60s the toboggan slide had really begun to become evident.

These were issues in the Gentile world, and they had to be addressed. What James makes plain is that these other things you wondered about are not ceremonial. You should abstain from pollutions of idols, from immorality, from things strangled and from blood. This had to do with the methods of slaughter and the use of blood as a matter of diet. There were some questions about some of these things; James summarized it to make it plain.

Now, concerning the matter of blood—the Jehovah’s Witnesses take this and make a big issue of blood transfusions. Blood transfusions are not being discussed here. It is discussing dietary laws. It is not a verse that has any bearing on blood transfusion, one way or the other. Notice what James went on to say. Why did James not feel it necessary to do anything more than clarify these points that had been raised? He answered the questions that had been asked, and he didn't feel the need to explain more. Why?

Verse 21, "For Moses has had throughout many generations those who preach him in every city, being read in the synagogues every Sabbath." It was apparent that James knew and accepted that the brethren were going to go and hear the Scriptures and the Law read every Sabbath. The Gentiles were going to the synagogue and were hearing the Law read every Sabbath. James said, 'I don't need to explain any further because you will hear it read in the synagogue. You will hear it on the Sabbath when you go listen to the Law being read.' It is very apparent that James didn't say, 'Hey, you Gentiles are going to the synagogue on the Sabbath and listening to the Law being read; don't you know the Sabbath is done away? The Law is done away, and you shouldn't be going. All it is going to do is get you confused.' He didn't tell them that did he? So again, it is important to note. The letter was written and sent forth.

Verses 40-41, "But Paul chose Silas and departed, being commended by the brethren to the grace of God. And he went through Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches." Paul and Silas were going on their second evangelistic journey. This time they were going to leave and go over land up through Syria and across through Asia Minor.

Acts 16:1, "Then he came to Derbe and Lystra. And behold, a certain disciple was there, named Timothy, the son of a certain Jewish woman who believed, but his father was Greek." They came through the area of Galatia.

Verse 3, "Paul wanted to have him [Timothy] go with him. And he took him and circumcised him because of the Jews who were in that region, for they all knew that his father was Greek."

You notice this. The issue had been resolved. It was not a spiritual matter, but they did circumcise Timothy. There is a reason. Timothy's mother was a Jew and his father was a Greek. It was known in the area what Timothy's background was. Timothy, being of a Jewish background, would have been a stumbling block to the Jews. They would have viewed Timothy as a traitor to his own people. Paul recognized this. It wasn't that Timothy needed to be circumcised in order to be saved, but Paul recognized that it would be a stumbling block in Timothy's ministry if the Jews viewed him as one who was kind of a traitor to his people. They viewed it as rejecting the outward sign of the covenant, and it would brand him as one who identified with his father's Greek heritage and rejected his mother's Jewish heritage—which would obviously be an issue of contention in the Church. The simplest thing was that he be circumcised; it would not be an issue.

So this was done. Paul and the group traveled across to the coast of Asia Minor and into what is Europe (modern-day Greece).

Verse 9, he saw the vision of the man in Macedonia. Macedonia is northern Greece. He crossed over from Asia Minor into Europe.

Verse 13, "And on the Sabbath day, we went out of the city to the river side, where prayer was customarily made: and we sat down and spoke to the women who met there." This is the first time the gospel went out in Europe.

Now, in my KJV Bible, there is a little "4" out by the word Sabbath. The marginal rendering is "Sabbath Days." This has a different ending in the Greek that is like a plural ending. It means it's not the common way of writing "Sabbath." It would more literally be "on the day of Sabbaths." It was a term used among the Jews to refer to Pentecost, the Feast of Weeks or the Day of the Sabbaths because you counted seven Sabbaths to arrive at it. We would date the first sermon Paul preached here in Europe as Pentecost of 50 A.D.

The interesting thing to note is the New Testament Church began on Pentecost of 31 A.D. Exactly nineteen years to the day later the gospel first went into Europe. Of course, God's whole calendar is based on a nineteen-year cycle. The calendar repeats itself every nineteen years. Exactly nineteen years after Pentecost, the gospel first went out into Europe.

Exactly nineteen years after that on Pentecost of 69 A.D. there was a voice in the temple. The Jews heard thunder, but the Christians heard a message, and the Church fled Jerusalem. In the aftermath, the Roman troops came in, surrounded the city and Jerusalem fell. It was destroyed in 70 A.D.

You can divide the organized proclamation of the gospel by the early New Testament Church into two nineteen-year periods. It is just a matter of historical reference in the Scriptures.

Verse 12, we see that Paul was preaching in the area of Macedonia. Let me call your attention again to what Paul was preaching and the way he was identified. After Paul had cast a demon out of a girl, her master brought them to the magistrate.

Verse 20, "And they brought them to the magistrates, and said, 'These men, being Jews, exceedingly trouble our city; and they teach customs which are not lawful for us, being Romans, to receive or observe.” Notice that Paul was being accused of teaching Jewish customs. That’s what they accused him of. If Paul had come in and had been preaching Sunday, Christmas, Easter and doing all this stuff, he wouldn’t have been creating a problem. They would have been familiar with all those things. Those were good old Roman holidays. He wouldn’t have been teaching customs unlawful for the Romans. They wouldn’t have identified him as being Jewish. Paul was looked upon as teaching Jewish customs.

He was accused of the same thing that the Church is accused of today. People think Paul is the one who did away with the law. It’s very plain. You never find Paul being accused of that. In fact, it’s interesting, a little later on, when Paul came to Ephesus. The people who were the angriest were the silversmiths (19:24-27) because they were in the idol-making business. They got all upset and said, ‘This guy is going to put us out of business.’ Now if Paul had been a good Catholic, they wouldn’t have been upset. They would have just switched over into making crucifixes and all kinds of little trinkets. Paul would have been good for the business. They would have been glad to see him there. It would have just added something extra to sell. But what Paul taught was going to put these guys out of business because all of a sudden, there was not going to be any demand for all of their little idols and shrines, all their little religious figurines that dotted the countryside. I think it is important to note some of these things as we go through.

Acts is not so much the teachings of the apostles. Though it tells us what they said, Acts does not primarily focus on the teachings—it focuses on the actions. It is important that we note what these actions were. We notice how much these actions contrast with the things that pass for Christianity in our modern society and country. People accuse us of not being a New Testament Church. People say, ‘You just have the Old Testament; you don’t really follow the New Testament!’ Well, yes we do! We follow the New Testament, as well as the Old Testament. In reality, they follow neither. They follow the customs and traditions of men. They follow the things that you don’t find here in the book of Acts.

Acts 16:21-24, we find Paul being thrown into jail because he was “teaching customs that are not lawful.”

Verses 25-26, they were praying. About midnight, God sent a big earthquake.

Verses 27-28, the jailer got so scared that he was going to commit suicide. He just knew all these prisoners were going to get away. Paul stopped him and said, ‘Don’t do that. We are all here.’ This jailer was so impressed that he brought these men out.

Verse 30, “And he brought them out and said, ‘Sirs, what must I do to be saved?’” He was familiar with who they were and what they had been teaching.

Verse 31, “So they said, ‘Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and you will be saved, you and your household.’ Then they spoke the word of the Lord to him, and to all who were in his house.” They went through and explained.

He was familiar with what Paul and Barnabas were doing. They had been thrown in jail for teaching the necessity of observing Jewish customs (as the Roman government looked upon it). He was familiar with all of these things. He was familiar with their message. He knew who they were and why they were in jail. When he saw the hand of God, he was so impressed that he asked, ‘What do I need to do to act on all of this?’ They told him, ‘You are going to have to believe, to really believe what Jesus said.’

Now, you can’t take this out of context and say that’s all you have to do is believe. They continued and spoke to him the word of the Lord. They went through and explained to him. He had already heard these other things.

Verse 33, we find that he was baptized. The next day they found out that Paul was a Roman citizen, so the magistrate said, ‘We are just going to kind of send these guys away and get them out of here.’

Verse 37, “But Paul said to them, ‘They have beaten us openly, uncondemned Romans, and have thrown us into prison. And now do they put us out secretly? No, indeed! Let them come themselves and get us out.’” Paul said, ‘You’ve beaten us openly and illegally. You want us to leave? You come ask us nicely.’

Paul was not averse to utilizing the rights of Roman citizenship. He submitted to the government authorities. But there is a time, particularly in terms of the work of God, that it is important that we avail ourselves of the rights and privileges that the laws of the land give us. Paul availed himself of those rights and privileges. But recognize that’s not where our protection is going to come from. Our protection comes from God, but those things can be properly utilized.

Acts 17:1-2, "...they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. Then Paul, as his custom was went in to them, and for three Sabbaths reasoned with them from the Scriptures."

Verses 10-11, "Then the brethren immediately sent Paul and Silas away by night to Berea. When they arrived, they went into the synagogue of the Jews. These were more fair-minded than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness, and searched the Scriptures daily to find out whether these things were so." They checked it out. They proved it out of the Bible.

That's what is important! God wants us to prove out of the Bible the things that we hear so our faith and our confidence rest upon Him and upon His word. We are to really prove what we believe and why we believe it.

Paul went from there to Rome.

Verse 16, they took him there while he was waiting for the others to join him. They took him to Mars Hill, the Areopagus (v. 19).

Verse 21, "For all the Athenians and the foreigners who were there spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing." We are told they loved to discuss things, and they prided themselves on really being open-minded. They always wanted to hear something new. They were always coming up with something. We see that example. Paul took advantage of the opportunity. He went there to Mars Hill and had an opportunity to speak. He addressed them. I would call your attention to the way he handled it.

Verse 22, "Then Paul stood in the midst of the Areopagus and said, 'Men of Athens, I perceive that in all things you are too superstitious [KJV].'" The KJV gives kind of a negative impression. That is not really the sense of it. Paul didn't start out in a negative way. Some of the modern translations bring it out a little more clearly. What he really said was, 'I perceive that you are very religious.' Paul didn't start out insulting them.

He said in vv. 22-26 (paraphrase), 'Men of Athens, I notice that you are very religious people. I have noticed your devotions, the outward signs of your religion; one of the things I noticed was that you even have an altar dedicated TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. It is this Unknown God that I wish to tell you about this afternoon. He is the One you ignorantly worship, this Unknown God, who is unknown to you. You don't know Him. I want to explain Him to you today. He is the God that made the world and all things that are therein. He is the Creator.'

Paul goes through and begins to explain. He starts by introducing the Athenians to the God who is the Creator of the Greek people. He comes through, and then, finally, we have the conclusion of his summary.

Verse 31, "'because He has appointed a day on which He will judge the world in righteousness by the Man whom He has ordained. He has given assurance of this to all by raising Him from the dead.'"

I would call your attention to something. In Acts 17, as Paul went through and addressed the issue, he didn't mention the name of Jesus Christ. If you compared the sermon Paul gave in Acts 17 to the one he gave the Jews in Acts 13, it's totally different. In Acts 13, he started out quoting the Bible. He's quoting Scripture—bang, bang, bang—straight Bible all the way through.

Why the difference? You address people in a way that they are going to be receptive and understand what you are talking about. If you are addressing people who acknowledge the authority of Scripture, then you start with the Bible and quote the Bible to them. If you are addressing people who don't even know what is the Bible, then you don't start out by quoting the Bible. There is no point. They don't even know what's under discussion.

The way that Paul addressed the Athenians was much the same way as Mr. Herbert Armstrong began his initial addresses in some of the Gentile nations—in Japan and some of these places. In fact, he used Acts 17 as a guide. This was the way you addressed people. In that context, you then bring them to the point of recognizing that there is a Messiah and there is One who is coming to judge the world.

SURVEY OF THE GOSPELS AND ACTS SERIES

Acts 10—17

1. Who was the first Gentile convert (uncircumcised) of the New Testament Church?
2. Did God want Peter to start eating unclean animals for food?
3. Show from Acts 10 that Peter did not conduct himself as the “first Pope.”
4. What was different about the way Cornelius and his household received the Holy Spirit? Why was it done that way?
5. Show from the account in Acts 11 that Church government was understood and practiced.
6. Who was the first of the apostles to be martyred?
7. How did God respond to the prayers of the Church when Peter was arrested?
8. How did Paul become an apostle?
9. Where did Paul go on his first evangelistic journey?
10. Prove that Paul did not institute Sunday worship among the Gentiles.
11. Who proved to be the main source of persecution that Paul faced during his ministry?
12. What was the reaction of Paul when a dispute arose over doctrine?
13. Since Acts 15:20 does not mention the Sabbath, does this mean that it was not necessary for the Gentiles to keep the Sabbath? Prove from the context.
14. When did the gospel first go into Europe? Who was the first European convert?
15. Prove from Acts 16 that Paul was not teaching that the law of God (particularly in regard to Sabbaths, Holy Days, clean and unclean meats, etc.) was done away with.
16. Did Paul believe in standing up for his legal rights?
17. What was unusual about the people of Berea?
18. How did the people of Athens like to spend their time?
19. Did Paul “preach Christ” to the Athenians? There is a vast difference between the sermon recorded in Acts 13 and the one Paul preached to the Athenians in Acts 17. Why?

The Gospels and Acts Series—Acts 18—28

We will be finishing up our series on the survey of the Gospels and the book of Acts. There is an awful lot that we could have gone through on some of this as far as this sequence of studies. Hopefully, it has given you a little bit of an insight in terms of continuity and the flow of it. This evening we are continuing this series.

One of the main areas that we will focus on this evening has to do with the imprisonment of the Apostle Paul. I think this section is an excellent place to illustrate the point as to how God works in our lives in ways that we could not begin to foresee. We have the account of the way God worked in the circumstance of Paul's life—Paul's imprisonment or what resulted in his Roman imprisonment.

He was first imprisoned in Caesarea for a couple of years. He was in transit on a ship and was shipwrecked. He went through a lot of difficult circumstances and finally wound up in Rome. He was there for a couple of years. The whole circumstance was not at all an enjoyable sequence of activities. It was not a pleasant experience. Well, God allowed that! Don't you think the Apostle Paul must have wondered why?

You know, we have the advantage. We look at it and we read it. It only takes us a matter of a few minutes to read the last portion of the book of Acts, and we know the end of the story. He lived his life one day at a time, just like you and I live our lives and the sequence of our lives. Paul had found himself in difficult situations before. He had found himself in jail before. There was a time when he was thrown in jail. He and Silas prayed and sang hymns. About midnight, God sent a big earthquake and an angel, and they were delivered. That's pretty dramatic.

This time Paul was thrown in jail. Midnight came and there was no earthquake. In fact, the next day came and there wasn't any earthquake. It dragged on and on. The days turned into weeks; the weeks turned into months; the months dragged out; and a couple of years went by. It was a very difficult and trying experience. It dragged on and on for several years.

Now, undoubtedly, Paul must have wondered during this time why God was allowing this. 'I need to be out of this place. There are things that I need to do, people I need to visit, places in which I need to preach, and areas where the Gospel needs to be spread. There are a lot of things that need to be done.' I am sure all those things went through his mind. They would go through mine, and I'm sure they would go through yours.

We look back on it from a little different perspective because while he was in jail, the only way that Paul could really impact the areas where he had worked was to write letters. Now, we are familiar with those letters. They comprise a goodly portion of our New Testament. Some of the most important things the Apostle Paul did, he did from a jail cell. He wrote letters that had a tremendous impact. They explained many things. He was in a circumstance that writing letters was all he was able to do—and he did it.

The point is God was working out a purpose. Paul may have looked at it at the time and wondered why he had been "put on hold." He couldn't get out and do anything. And yet we look back on it and realize that while he was in jail, he did what turned out to be one of the most permanent, enduring and important parts of the work that he had ever accomplished. He gave us a goodly portion of our New Testament.

The point that I would like to make in that regard is that when we are going through difficult circumstances, when we are going through trials and we can't see why, we have to accept the fact God may be working something out in our lives. God may have a plan and a purpose that supersedes anything that we can see or fathom at the time. Generally, we can never see the purpose until after it is all over. Very rarely we can understand the purpose of a trial when we are in the midst of it. Generally, we only see it in retrospect; sometimes it is even years in retrospect because it takes time to get it into perspective.

Paul's imprisonment in Rome allowed him to come into contact with the very top leadership of the Roman Empire. A lot of times that's not realized, but there's a lot of evidence of Paul's impact upon the very top echelon of the Roman Empire. Notice what Paul says in one of the books he wrote in prison.

Philippians 4:22, "All the saints greet you, especially those who are of Caesar's household." There were people converted in the very household of Caesar. That's getting pretty close to the top. There were converts in Caesar's household.

Philippians 1:12-13 (KJV), “But I want you to understand, brethren, that the things which happened to me have actually turned out for the furtherance of the gospel, so that my bonds in Christ are manifest in all the palace, and to all the rest.” This we often read over. We notice here that he talks about throughout “all the palace.”

I would like to give you the RSV translation of it because it brings out an additional detail. “I want you to know, brethren, that what has happened to me has really served to advance the gospel, so that it has become known throughout the whole Praetorian Guard.” “Praetorian” is the Greek word for “palace.” The RSV translates it, “the whole Praetorian Guard.” What was the Praetorian? Who was the Praetorian Guard? Why is that significant?

The term that is used here refers specifically to the Praetorian or Praetorian Guard. It was an elite group that was first established by Caesar Augustus as a detachment of troops to be his private bodyguard. They were an elite organization and under the later emperors came to have many special privileges. This Praetorian Guard became so powerful that it was able to raise and depose emperors at its will because after all, these were the elite troops. They were the ones who were right there in the capital city. They were the ones who were responsible for the security of the emperor. They had direct access to him in a way that no one else did. You’re at the mercy of no one more than you are at the mercy of your bodyguards. No matter what you think you have, you are no more secure than your bodyguards.

This special Praetorian Guard was ruled by the Praetorian Prefect, an individual who was second only to the emperor because he held the supreme military and judicial authority there in Rome. As the captain or Prefect of the Praetorian Guard, he was kind of a combination Joint Chief of Staff and Supreme Court. He was the commander of the Praetorian Guard, the supreme military commander of the Roman Empire. He commanded the home troops and had seniority on every other commander; he was considered the supreme military commander of the Roman Empire. He also had supreme judicial authority. He exercised the judicial authority in the name of the emperor. He had a certain amount of legislative power in control of finances and influence with the provinces. In fact, it was almost impossible to exercise an important influence in political affairs, except in concert with the Praetorian Prefect. It was a powerful post. He was in a position of daily contact with the emperor. He had the personal command of the emperor’s bodyguard, the troops that maintained the palace and the troop right there in the capital. He was a very powerful individual.

Let’s notice Paul being brought to Rome. Acts 28:16, “Now when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the captain of the guard; but Paul was permitted to dwell by himself with the soldier who guarded him.”

That’s how it’s rendered in the NKJV, but if you will check it up, you will find the literal rendering is, “the centurion delivered the prisoners to the Praetorian Prefect, but Paul was allowed to dwell by himself with the soldier that kept him.”

Paul was actually handed over to the Praetorian Prefect when he arrived in Rome. He arrived on an appeal, a judicial appeal to the emperor. There was direct knowledge of his circumstance. At the time Paul was delivered to Rome in 60 A.D., Emperor Nero was the ruler; he was the emperor. If you have read very much about Nero, you know what a perverted character he was, and he was a pretty good size, too. He was “nutty as a fruitcake.” If you’ve read very much about him, he did some crazy things.

There were two main rival factions there in Rome. There were two individuals who had great influence with Nero. One was his mistress who, of course, had her own brand of influence. She was a woman by the name of Popaea. The Praetorian Prefect was a man by the name of Burrus. He had risen to power in the Roman Empire. He had originally come from North Africa. He had risen to great power and influence there in Rome and Italy; he was the commander of the Praetorian Guard. He was a very close friend of the philosopher Seneca who was the great Roman philosopher at the time and had also been a teacher of Nero. Burrus and Seneca were close friends. As long as Burrus lived, they sought to combine their influence to keep Nero in check because they recognized his mental instability—the cruel and crazy tendencies that he had.

Popaea was attracted to Judaism. She was somewhat familiar with Judaism and was attracted to that. Burrus, on the other hand, was very much anti-Jewish. Now, this sets the stage for something.

Paul had been a political “hot potato” back in Judea. The Jewish religious leadership had brought charges against him. It was primarily because of an unwillingness to create a lot of upset with the Jewish religious leadership in Judea that the Roman governors had held Paul as a prisoner, and then finally sent him to Rome. He was a “hot potato,” and they were trying to get him off their hands.

They realized that Burrus, who was anti-Jewish, would have an automatic incentive to be favorable to Paul and Paul’s appeal. He didn’t have much use for the Jews. Poppaea was the rival for the influence that he had because she had a lot of influence with Nero. She was really the only one who was in a position to influence Nero, apart from Burrus and Seneca. Burrus resented that. So for political reasons, he would have had incentive to take Paul’s side against the Jews. With this level of contact and with the attitude Burrus had, when Paul came, it evidently set the stage for allowing Paul the level of freedom and the level of contact all the way up to the palace.

Paul became well known in the Praetorian Guard and in the palace. He became very well known and had contact. Many of these people had connections with him. In fact, it may certainly have influenced even some of the later writings of Seneca. There is evidence of that. When you read some of the things that he wrote, because of the timing of it, you wonder to what extent he came under the Apostle Paul’s influence.

Paul was released from prison evidently in 61 A.D. Burrus died a few months later in 62 A.D., shortly after Paul’s release from prison. Now, with Poppaea in the ascendance, once Burrus was gone, she was able to influence Nero without Burrus’ counter-influence. It took time for the new Prefect to establish his authority. One of the things that happened was that Nero turned tolerant toward the Jews and began to persecute the Christians.

One of the things that seem to be characteristic of the demagogue type of politicians is that they always look for some group to be made the scapegoat. They like to blame all the problems on some minority—somebody that is significant enough in the minority to be noticed but is powerless enough that they are not going to be able to successfully defend themselves. You have to pick a group that is small enough that you can overwhelm them, but they are large enough that everybody notices them. You blame all the problems on them. You say, ‘They have caused all the problems. Let’s get them.’ This is an old tactic that has been used on various groups. In some cases, it was used on the Jews.

The Jews have been a target, but they have not been the only target. There were other groups and other targets. It depends on the society and the culture at the time as to what’s used, but it is an attitude of human nature. People don’t want to take responsibility for their own problems. They want to believe that somebody else is the source of all their problems. Boy, you gang up on them; you get them; and you’ll solve all your problems. Politicians are good at that. They try to make a scapegoat out of some segment of society.

Nero, the Roman Emperor had used the Jews that way at various times. It was also a handy way to get a little cash because when you expelled the Jews from Rome, you confiscated all their property—you got a little cash in your hands. You “sent them packing.” Then after a few years, they gradually drifted back.

In Acts 18:2, we read of Aquila and Priscilla who were Jews from Rome. We read that they had been expelled from Rome when Claudius kicked out the Jews. They had come to Corinth. Paul had met them and became acquainted with them. Why were they expelled? Claudius was a predecessor of Nero. He decided that they had problems, so they just blamed all the Jews and kicked them all out of Rome. They gave them a few days to leave with what they could carry on their backs. Then they confiscated their property, which of course went to the emperor. This was the situation. Later, the Jews were allowed to come back in. They needed them for business purposes. This was the kind of situation that was going on.

After the death of Burrus, Nero began to turn his persecution from the Jews to the Christians. Because Poppaea influenced him to not be so rough on the Jews, he looked for another group he could blame all the problems on. If you can’t blame it on the Jews, there should be somebody you can blame it on. Blame it on the Christians. This led to the situation that later resulted in the Roman martyrdom of Paul and Peter and several of the other apostles. Prior to that time, the latter 60s, the persecution the Church received was from the Jews. The Romans were observers. There may have been times when they didn’t step in simply because they didn’t want to risk stirring up political trouble. They just let the events take their course. They didn’t really care, one way or the other, unless they got “put on the spot” with it.

After the late 60s, after the death of Burrus, then they began to turn their attention toward using the Christians as the scapegoat. Official Roman persecution began to come on some of the leadership of the Church. When the book of Acts ends, it ends with the conclusion of Paul's imprisonment in 61 A.D.; Paul left Rome. When he was let go from prison, he left Rome, went to Spain (which was where he had said he was going (Romans 15:24)) and then from Spain to Britain. There was a period of several years that went by. About three years afterwards, about 65 A.D., Paul returned into the Mediterranean area. It was shortly after that, about 67 A.D., that he was arrested and put to death. Luke ends his account in Acts with the release of Paul from prison. He didn't go further.

One of the things to note about the book of Acts is that it does not end with "Amen." "Amen" is the concluding statement, the word that gives the connotation of completion and finality that we find in the other New Testament books, with a few notable exceptions. We note it here with the book of Acts, in the book of James and in the book of III John. They are the only New Testament books that do not end with "Amen." There are reasons in each case.

When we go through the General Epistles, we will focus in on why that was the case in James and III John. We might just note that Acts was written as a book to catalog the acts or the actions of the apostles; it ends abruptly. It doesn't end with the death of Paul. It just summarizes the fact that he was released from prison in Rome two years after being brought to Rome. He dwelt in his own rented house two years.

Now, there's a reason why it ended there. God did not want the rest of the story recorded. You remember Paul's three-fold commission. He had been commissioned to take God's name before the Gentiles, before kings and before the children of Israel (Acts 9:15). That was the commission, and that was the order of the commission. The book of Acts records him taking the message before the Gentiles, and it brings us up to where he was going before kings. He went before governors and rulers, right on up to the Roman emperor. But it ends when he left Rome.

God did not have recorded the third part of his commission to the lost sheep of the House of Israel. God did not intend that it be clearly and unequivocally preserved in Scripture exactly where the lost sheep of the House of Israel were; otherwise, they wouldn't have been lost sheep. God allowed that knowledge to be pretty much lost from sight. It's been available and accessible, but God allowed it to be lost from common sight. God didn't preserve that clearly.

I think it is interesting if we look at the commission God gave Paul: take God's message to Gentiles, to kings and to the lost sheep of the House of Israel. You could say that in Mr. Herbert Armstrong's case, it was the same commission, only in reverse order. He took God's message first to the lost sheep of the House of Israel, then to the Gentiles and then before kings. It's kind of an interesting reversal of the way that it went.

There is this ending in Acts. The acts of the other apostles are not noted here. Luke told a portion of the story that God wanted recorded for us. But the absence of the "Amen" gives us realization that there is more. It does not have that "ring" of finality. It was what God wanted preserved as Scripture for this time. Perhaps in the Millennium, Luke himself will write the rest of the story. Perhaps he will write the completion of the history of the Church, which is the action of the apostles.

Let's note briefly, let's summarize this portion of the book of Acts.

Acts 17 ended up with Paul having come to Athens and his address on Mars Hill.

Acts 18:1, "After these things Paul departed from Athens and went to Corinth." Corinth is a little further down in Greece. This is where he found Aquila who had lately come from Rome.

Verse 2, "And he found a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla (because Claudius had commanded all the Jews to depart from Rome); and he came to them." Claudius had expelled the Jews from Rome.

One of the ways of dating the book of Acts is that the command to expel the Jews from Rome was issued by Emperor Claudius in 50 A.D. That is simply a matter of secular history and Roman records. It is one of the ways of cross-dating. The book of Acts can be dated internally. We will go into that in a later series. We will go through a "Life and Letters of the Apostle Paul Series." We will go into detail in terms of how we date the events here. Much of Acts can be dated internally, but there are also a few places where we can check with an external date—a date from secular history—where an event of secular importance is noted. It serves as a crosscheck on the date. This is one of those ways of cross-dating.

We see what Paul did when the Jews no longer allowed him access to the synagogue. We find that Paul simply rented a place nearby.

Acts 18:6-8, “But when they opposed him and blasphemed, he shook his garments and said to them, ‘Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean. From now on I will go to the Gentiles.’ And he departed from there and entered the house of a certain man named Justus, one who worshiped God, whose house was next door to the synagogue. Then Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his household. And many of the Corinthians hearing, believed and were baptized.” He rented a location nearby. He went to a place that was nearby and preached to the Gentiles. This was Paul’s approach.

Verse 11, he stayed in Corinth for a period of a year and a half. He was anxious to return to Jerusalem.

Verse 21, “but took leave of them, saying, ‘I must by all means keep this coming Feast in Jerusalem; but I will return again to you, God willing.’ And he sailed from Ephesus.” He was anxious to go to Jerusalem.

This was the Feast of Tabernacles 52 A.D. Paul didn’t say he just wanted to go to Jerusalem because it had been a long time. He didn’t say he wanted to be there at Feast time to preach to some Jews. He said, ‘I must by all means keep this Feast!’ Now, if he was going to keep the Feast, he was going to observe the Feast.

The Protestants try to explain it away and say Paul wasn’t going to keep the Feast; he was going to be there to preach to some Jews because he knew there would be a bunch of Jews there. You can go through and read the account. That’s not what he did. He didn’t evangelize in Jerusalem at all. When he went back for the Feast, he didn’t go there to evangelize. He knew that he wasn’t a very popular person in Jerusalem, and he didn’t go there to evangelize. There isn’t any mention of him doing that at all. He went there to do what he said. He went to keep the Feast.

It’s incredible—if you were to ask most people, most theologians, they’d tell you, ‘Oh, the New Testament does away with the need to keep the Sabbath and the Holy Days.’ And they’re sure that if anybody did away with it, Paul did away with it. Some of them will say, ‘Well, maybe James kept them or Peter did, but Paul, he didn’t fool with all those Jewish things.’

You go through the book of Acts and find Acts 18:4, “And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, and persuaded both Jews and Greeks.”

Verse 21, “but took leave of them, saying, ‘I must by all means keep this coming feast in Jerusalem....’” You find example after example where Paul kept the Feast and kept the Sabbath. He preached not only to the Jews on the Sabbath, but he also preached to the Gentiles on the Sabbath.

He commanded the Church, the Gentile Church, in Corinth:

I Corinthians 5:8, “Therefore let us keep the Feast....” Paul made it very plain that he kept the Feast and the Church should keep the Feast.

We find that Paul left.

Acts 18:22, “And when he had landed at Caesarea, and gone up [to Jerusalem] and greeted the Church, he went down to Antioch.” To go “up” means to go to Jerusalem. That is the term that is used. When a Jew speaks of going to Jerusalem, he always speaks of going up to Jerusalem. It doesn’t matter where he is going from; if he goes to Jerusalem, he goes up to Jerusalem.

A part of that is derived from the symbolism of Isaiah where it talks about how, in the Millennium, all nations will say:

Isaiah 2:3, “Come, and let us go up to the house of the Lord.”

Verse 2, “Now it shall come to pass in the latter days that the mountain of the Lord’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow into it.” The Jews always speak of it in that term and from that perspective. From wherever you are, you are always going up to Jerusalem and going down to anywhere else when you go from Jerusalem.

Acts 18:22 says he landed in Caesarea. Caesarea was the seaport. He went up, which means up to Jerusalem. He greeted the Church. He didn’t evangelize the Jews. He went to keep the Feast. He met with the congregation in Jerusalem. Then he left right after the Feast and went down to Antioch.

Antioch was his headquarters for the Gentile portion of the work. It was the center from which he worked. He spent some time there. Evidently, he wintered there. He spent a period of several months there, probably about six months, between the Feast and the Spring Festivals. Then he left to go over land. This began his third evangelistic journey going up through Asia Minor, Galatia and Phrygia.

Acts 19:1, “And it happened, while Apollos was at Corinth, that Paul, having passed through the upper regions, came to Ephesus....” Paul came to Ephesus, which is located in Asia Minor on the seacoast across from Greece. We find that he went into the synagogue.

Verses 8-9, “And he went into the synagogue and spoke boldly for three months, reasoning and persuading concerning the things of the Kingdom of God. But when some were hardened and did not believe, but spoke evil of the Way before the multitude, he departed from them and withdrew the disciples, reasoning daily in the school of Tyrannus.”

When trouble came up and he no longer had access to the synagogue, he rented a school, a school of Tyrannus. Evidently, a fellow by the name of Tyrannus had a school there. So Paul utilized that and separated the disciples.

Verse 10, he stayed there for a period of two years and evangelized the whole area. The Roman province of Asia (what we would think of today as the Western portion of Turkey) was a portion of Asia Minor.

In Acts 19:1-7, we note here an example of some who had been baptized, but they had not received God’s Spirit. They had been baptized at an earlier time. This is an example of someone whose baptism was not valid. What makes a baptism not valid? Well, what makes it not valid is if you did not receive God’s Spirit when you were baptized. You weren’t truly converted. You really didn’t understand.

Verses 2-3, here were people who had been baptized by John the Baptist or some of his disciples, but they did not understand conversion. They didn’t understand about the Holy Spirit.

Verses 5-6, Paul baptized them in the name of the Lord Jesus and laid hands on them; they received the Holy Spirit and spoke with tongues and prophesied.

This is the third and final mention in the book of Acts of the miraculous gift of foreign languages at the time of receiving of the Holy Spirit. This was not something that happened every time. It was something that happened only on special occasions, and this is the third occasion that is mentioned. God gave that original gift on the Day of Pentecost. That marked the beginning of the establishment of the New Testament Church. We’ve gone through and read that and saw reasons why that particular gift was chosen and given at that time. Later on, when the first Gentiles were converted, God worked the same miracle. God wanted it clearly shown that the Jews would not consider that the Gentiles had gotten a second-rate baptism. So it was the same miracle. Here in this place, again God put His stamp of approval in a very clear way. Here was a decision that had to be made. Here were people who had been baptized earlier by John the Baptist or his disciples. After Paul counseled with them, he determined that their baptism was not valid and he re-baptized them. God put His clear stamp of approval in a very dramatic and miraculous way to clearly evidence that the decision had been a valid one. God made this clear distinction.

Paul remained there in Ephesus for an extended period of time. Various events took place. One thing we might note simply by way of example in Acts 19:11-12, “Now God worked unusual miracles by the hands of Paul, so that even handkerchiefs or aprons were brought from his body to the sick, and the diseases left them and the evil spirits went out of them.”

As Paul was preaching there in Ephesus, people sent word to him of illnesses and of problems. Paul was certainly not able to go and personally anoint and pray for everyone who sent word of being ill. With transportation being what it was, it would be far more difficult than it is today. It is not always immediately possible and practical to go today, and far less so at that time. What did Paul do when he was unable to go and personally anoint and pray for someone? He anointed a cloth. “Handkerchief” or “aprons” just means “a piece of cloth.” He took a piece of cloth, anointed it, laid hands on it and sent it to the individual. God honored that.

Many, many years ago, back in the early 1930s, as Mr. Herbert Armstrong was preaching on the radio, there began to come in requests for him to pray and to anoint someone for illnesses. He was unable to go and personally do that everywhere. That would have been impossible. He looked here and saw the example of what Paul did when he was in that circumstance; he followed that example.

That, of course, is what we do today. If it is possible for us to do so, we go and personally anoint those who are sick. In some cases when that isn’t possible, we will anoint a cloth and send it. It is not the physical act that does the healing. God is our Healer. God has chosen to designate that. God utilizes the laying on of hands. Laying on of hands is listed in Hebrews 6:2 as one of the basic doctrines of the Church. The laying on of hands has to do with Church Government and the fact that God works through human instruments. We find the laying on of hands utilized in cases of ordination, receiving of God's Spirit at baptism and in cases of someone seeking God's intervention in healing. It designates the fact that God is working through human instruments. God could do it some other way, but He has chosen to do it that way to make plain His working and the continuity of His working through human instruments. It shows the fact that we need to go through God's government in certain areas.

One of the things we run into in the book of Acts is the problem that came up with the silversmiths in Ephesus. I think it is interesting to note why the silversmiths were mad at Paul.

Acts 19:24-27, "For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, who made silver shrines of Diana, brought no small profit to the craftsmen. He called them together with the workers of similar occupation, and said: 'Men, you know that we have our prosperity by this trade. Moreover you see and hear that not only at Ephesus, but throughout most all Asia, this Paul has persuaded and turned away many people, saying that they are not gods which are made with hands.'"

'By this craft we have our wealth. Now this Paul has persuaded people to get rid of all these idols and our craft is in danger. He's going to put us out of business.'

This is a good place to go to prove that Paul was not a Catholic because if he had been a Catholic, the Ephesian silversmiths would not have been mad at him. He would have been good for business. They would have added a new line of crucifixes, Madonnas and all kinds of trinkets, saints and medallions. They would have had a whole new line of products. Paul wouldn't have been bad for business. They wouldn't have had any complaints about him. But they did. Why? Because Paul told the people to get rid of that junk! 'That is idolatry; get rid of those things. Throw them away. You don't want those things around.'

It makes a contrast. I think it is good for us to note the clear evidence of the departure of what calls itself "Christianity" and what calls itself "the Church" that Jesus built. It is important for us to note how far departed it is from the teachings and the practices of Jesus and the early apostles. Paul did not preach a message that was compatible with idolatry and the use of all kinds of shrines. You can't drive down the street without seeing all these little shrines out in front of the houses, and all the various things. That's what they had in Ephesus. But the people that believed Paul got rid of those things, just as you did when you came into the Church. All of us, when we came into the knowledge of God's truth, had things we had to get rid of because we realized that was not God's way. There was so much of a problem in Ephesus that Paul finally had to leave. He left and went to Macedonia.

Acts 20:1, "After the uproar had ceased, Paul called the disciples to him, embraced them, and departed to go to Macedonia." We find Paul had gone from Macedonia and had crossed into Asia Minor.

Verse 7, "Now on the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul, ready to depart the next day, spoke to them and continued his message until midnight." Some had tried to take this out of context and say that Paul was having a Sunday morning service and they were having communion. On the first day of the week, Paul was over there to say mass and have communion early Sunday morning. Well, that's not what it is talking about at all.

Notice in v. 6 when it was, "But we sailed away from Philippi after the Days of Unleavened Bread, and in five days joined them at Troas, where we stayed seven days." Oh, they were keeping the Days of Unleavened Bread. Luke and the group with him had been in Philippi for the Days of Unleavened Bread. Paul was in Troas. Why was Paul breaking bread? "Breaking bread" just simply means "eating a meal." Why was he breaking bread and eating a meal with the disciples on the first day of the week?

Verse 7, "...Paul, ready to depart the next day..." Paul was getting ready to depart the next morning. He ate this meal and the speech lasted until midnight. Now, what is the evening or night portion of the first day of the week? It's not Sunday night. It's Saturday night! If Paul was gathered with them breaking bread on the first day of the week and their meeting lasted until midnight, when was this? This was Saturday night. This was at the close of the Sabbath. They had a going-away dinner for Paul. He was getting ready to leave; after the Sabbath they had a going-away party, so to speak, and Paul spoke. When he got "cranked up," he just kept going. It lasted until midnight.

Verse 9, there was a fellow sitting there by the name of Eutychus. He got sleepy, which occasionally occurs. The only problem with Eutychus was that they didn't have air conditioning and the windows were open. He was sitting up there in the balcony and was evidently trying to get a little fresh air. He dozed off and the next thing you know, he fell out of the window, which is even worse than falling out of your chair. It's bad to go to sleep and fall out of your chair. But what was really bad, he was sitting up there by the open window and he fell out.

Now can you imagine how Eutychus is going to feel when he comes up in the resurrection and finds out the only time that he got his name in the New Testament was one time when he fell asleep in Church. Luke had to write it down and put his name in there so that everybody who has ever read the Bible, all the way down through the centuries, the only thing they know about Eutychus is that he went to sleep in Church and fell out of the window. If I were Eutychus, I think I would have a few words with Luke. I would want to ask Luke, 'Did you have to mention my name? Couldn't you just say "somebody"?'

Anyway, he went to sleep and he fell out. Verses 9-12, Paul went down and prayed for him. He raised him up and he was healed. They went in and ate some more. They broke bread and ate again because it was late. They talked a long while, even until the break of day. So this thing lasted all night. The moral of that story is if you're going to go to sleep, don't sit next to the window. Everybody else was either wide-awake after that time or they stayed away from the windows because we don't have a record of anybody else falling out.

Verse 13, Paul left early the next morning. What happened (if you look at a map) is that the others had left and sailed around the peninsula. Paul was able to walk straight across it. He stayed there on the Sabbath and Saturday night. Early Sunday morning when it was daybreak, he took off on a twenty-mile hike. That's what he was doing Sunday morning. He stayed there until daybreak. Sun-up Sunday morning, he took off on a long hike across this peninsula and met the ship on the other side. He had quite a day's work. I say twenty miles; it may be seventeen or eighteen, but that is a pretty good walk. I think that's usually about as much walking as most of us would care to do in a day—and then a little bit. There certainly isn't any Sunday morning church service going on here.

Paul sailed by Ephesus. He did not want to spend time there.

Verse 16, "For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he would not have to spend time in Asia; for he was hurrying to be at Jerusalem, if possible, on the Day of Pentecost." Here he is observing the Day of Pentecost. He was on his way to Jerusalem to observe the Day of Pentecost.

Verses 17-36, he had sent word and the elders of Ephesus met him at the Port when he came; he was able to speak to them.

Notice the emphasis that he gave and the message that he preached.

Verse 25, "And indeed, now I know that you all, among whom I have gone preaching the Kingdom of God..." Jesus came teaching the Kingdom of God. Paul taught the Kingdom of God. It was a message about the establishment of God's government. The God of heaven is going to set up a Kingdom. You find that emphasized throughout.

The last question the disciples asked Jesus was, Acts 1:6, "Lord, are You at this time going to restore the Kingdom to Israel?" Why did they ask that? He kept talking about a Kingdom and the establishment of a Kingdom. They understood what a kingdom was, and they just wanted to know when, which is the question most of us have. 'When, Lord, are You going to restore it? Right now? Five years from now? When?' Well, that's the question they had.

He told them to wait until they received the power of the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:4, 8) and then to go and do the work. That's what we are to do until the Kingdom comes. We are to be busy doing the work. That was Paul's message here to the Ephesians elders.

Verses 29-30, he warned them about the falling away and the things that were going to happen. There were already things coming in that were setting the stage for the apostasy—the falling away and the false church that would occur.

Acts 21:8, "On the next day we who were Paul's companions departed and came to Caesarea..."

Verse 15, "And after those days we packed and went up to Jerusalem."

Verses 17-18, "And when we had come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly. On the following day Paul went in with us to James, and all the elders were present." James was an apostle and the brother of Jesus. He was the apostle who presided over the Jerusalem Church. This was the headquarters Church in the New Testament period. This was the area from which everything centered. When Paul arrived at Jerusalem, he went to James.

Verse 19, all the other ministers were gathered there and they greeted them. He gave them a report of the things that God had been doing.

They were very thankful, and they updated him on the work that was going on there.

Verse 20, “And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord. And they said to him, ‘You see, brother, how many myriads of Jews there are who have believed, and they are all zealous for the law.’”

Now notice. Had Christians in the headquarters Church in Jerusalem been taught that Christ did away with God’s law? James was the brother of Jesus. Surely, if Jesus had done away with the law and nailed it to the cross, He would have let His brother know. James is saying we have a lot of people here, and they are all zealous for the law! James didn’t say, ‘We are trying to tell them that the law is done away.’ Paul didn’t say, ‘Why haven’t you told them it was nailed to the cross?’ People just read right over that and want to say, ‘Well, the law was done away.’ James didn’t think it was done away. He said they were all zealous for the law.

Verse 21, “but they have been informed about you that you teach all the Jews who are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children nor to walk according to the customs.”

‘They have been misinformed about you.’ Things were wrongly stated. Word has gone out that Paul was teaching the Jews who lived in the Diaspora, the Jews who lived in the Gentile areas, that they shouldn’t circumcise their children. That was not what the Church taught at all. The Church did not teach against circumcising the children on the eighth day. That was not what the Church taught at all.

The decision of Acts 15 did not say that there should not be circumcision any more. They said that circumcision is not a matter of spiritual salvation, and when Gentiles who are uncircumcised are converted, they don’t have to go through the ritual of circumcision to be a part of the Church. It is not something that is necessary. It is not part of conversion. If you were uncircumcised when you came into the Church, there is no reason for you not to remain that way.

But in the case of Jews, circumcision was the physical sign of the covenant God made with Abraham. There is nothing the Church said in any way to discourage the continuation of that practice, most specifically, by those who were themselves the descendants of Abraham. There was nothing there to discourage that. And the Church has never discouraged it in that sense, as a physical matter. But it is not a part of salvation.

If someone is uncircumcised when they are converted, there is no need for them to make a change in that. It has no bearing on their salvation.

Verse 21, Paul’s statements had been misinterpreted. Paul had never said that, but some of the Jews had believed this rumor that Paul was telling Jews in the Diaspora to just ignore the instructions on circumcision of their children. So they came up with an idea.

Verses 23-24, “Therefore do what we tell you: we have four men who have taken a vow. Take them and be purified with them, and pay their expenses so that they may shave their heads, and that all may know that those things of which they were informed concerning you are nothing, but that you yourself also walk orderly and keep the law.” They said, ‘We want the Jews here to recognize that you are not anti or against or disparaging of the custom that we observe, even as a part of the temple ritual.’

There were some volunteers from individuals who had a vow. You have to understand that there were things that could be carried out when the temple stood that simply can’t be carried out today. You could not take upon yourself a Nazarite vow today because a part of that vow involves a temple ritual at the end of it. When the vow expires, you have to go to the temple and do certain things. Today there isn’t a temple to go to. If you can’t do exactly as God says, you leave it alone.

That is why the Jews don’t offer sacrifices today. It’s not because they consider that the need for them is done away, but because they recognize the instructions in Deuteronomy 12 that say you can’t do it just anywhere you think of doing it. You have to go to the place where God has set His name. You have to do it at the altar that is sanctified, and the Levites and the priests have to perform it. They recognize that if there isn’t a sanctified altar and a Levitical priesthood to carry out the ritual, it is something that they can’t do. It will occur, but they won’t do it until that is re-instituted.

There was nothing here that restricted those who had access to the temple from taking part in certain rituals, which were not wrong and which had their place. Since Paul was not against that, he was going to be involved in this. The intent was to have his presence there in the temple, bear the cost of these individuals ending their vow, and let it be seen that Paul was not the kind of individual that he had been represented to be. But that was not the way the story went.
