Joseph W. Tkach flies to SEPs for first visit as pastor general

By Michael A. Snyder PASADENA — Calling the Summer Educational Program (SEP) a "boot camp for excel-lence," Pastor General Joseph W. Tkach delivered his first addresses as pastor general to campers, fac-ulty and staff at the SEPs in Orr, Minn., and Big Sandy June 26 and

"Since this was Mr. Tkach's first visit as pastor general, he was very excited and looked forward to seeing both camps," said Mr. Feazell in a July 3 interview with The World-

After leaving the Burbank, Calif., airport at 7 a.m., Pacific Daylight Time (PDT), Mr. Tkach arrived at the Orr regional airport shortly after noon Central Daylight Time (CDT)

Aboard the Gulfstream III jet with the pastor general were Larry Salyer, director of Church Administration, and his wife, Judy; Joseph Locke, superintendent of Imperial Schools and a personal assistant to the pastor general; and Michael Feazell, a personal assistant to Mr. Tkach, and his wife, Victoria.

Serving on Mr. Tkach's flight crew were captain Ken Hopke, cocaptain Lawrence Dietrich, steward Jay Brothers and stewardess Felicia

The campers at Orr greeted Mr. Tkach by lining up on the sides of the entrance road to the SEP there.

Enthusiastic greeting

"As he drove by, he rolled the window down and gave the campers a 'high five,'" Mr. Feazell said. High fives, a light slapping of hands held aloft, are an enthusiastic greeting or sign of congratulation often

At the camp, Kermit Nelson, who directs the SEP and Youth Opportunities United (YOU) interna-tional programs under Mr. Salyer; faculty members; ministers; and some administrative staff joined Mr. Tkach and his traveling group in the SEP Chalet for a private

After the luncheon Mr. Tkach and members of his party toured the SEP activities. Accompanied by Dr. Nelson and Ricky Sherrod, assistant camp director, the pastor general stopped at the camp communications activity where he viewed a newscast prepared by the campers. While there, Mr. Tkach was interviewed for a SEP newscast by campers Valerie Weidman and Roxanne Cafourek. Aubrey War-ren, an Ambassador College junior and director of communications at the Orr SEP, said Mr. Tkach told the interviewers, "You have a golden opportunity here that cannot be measured in dollars and cents."

After viewing basketball, water-skiing, the Christian living class and other activities and touring the camp dormitories, Mr. Tkach went to the SEP gymnasium to address the more than 500 campers, faculty

After introductions by Dr. Nelson, camper Joe Wine presented the pastor general with a plaque mounted on a beaver skin to commemorate Mr. Tkach's first SEP visit as pastor general.

Before beginning his address, Mr. Tkach asked the campers to autograph the back of the plaque.

Shortly after the pastor general began speaking, a thunderstorm broke, showering heavy rain, hail and strong winds on the camp. Us-ing the storm as an illustration, Mr. Tkach encouraged the campers to soak up the things you are being

In his talk, which was interrupted twice by power outages, Mr. Tkach told the group: "Make the most of it [SEP]. Take advantage of every op-

Explaining the training that Prince Charles, the heir to the throne of Britain, underwent to prepare him to one day become king, Mr. Tkach said that SEP is similarly preparing campers to become leaders in the Kingdom of God,

Mr. Tkach ended his talk by urging the campers to resist temptation and peer pressure when their peers try to promote illicit drug use. "Say 'NO!" to drugs," the pastor general emphasized.

PERSONAL FROM

Dear brethren,

My recent visit to our Orr, Minn., and Big Sandy, Tex., summer camps brought home the admonition in Ephesians 6:4 to bring up our children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.'

It was refreshing and inspiring to see young faces full of enthusiasm and excitement about the good things of life that bring lasting happiness

The direction the students are going, the way of life the camp staffs are striving to teach and exemplify are according to what God has shown us in His Word.

As parents, none of us are perfect. But God has given us three major principles that, if followed, will produce right results. (1) There are practices we should avoid. (2) There are practices we should follow. (3) And we should realize from the outset that Satan has deceived the whole world (Revelation 12:9).

We must face the fact that before conversion each of us was deceived to one degree or another. So we need to look to God's Word as the authority, willing to dismiss our own preconceived notions and ideas if necessary. Only then can we wisely and honestly judge our own child-rearing practices and strive to change those that do not reflect God's Word.

A recent article in the usually liberal Parents magazine pointed up the direction that child rearing in the United States has been going. In an article titled "Where Have All the Children Gone?" in the May, 1986, issue these observations were made:

"There's a vague sense that parents . . . aren't sure of their own roles, responsibilities, and au-thority. Several family counselors and a number of parents were convinced, for example, that parents talk less today about sacrificing for their children... Ironically, this trend is coupled with a strong tendency to overindulge children by not setting or enforcing rules and limits.

... Almost all parents have increasingly valued autonomy in their children over obedi-

"It's also harder for parents to know what limits are appropriate today. [Family therapist Sandra Rodman Mann, Ph.D., assistant professor of parent education at Fordham University] has found many parents have lost confidence in their own ability to make the right child-rearing choices because they no longer see a consistent set of permitted behaviors generally agreed upon and reinforced by schools, society, and other parents."

What a tragedy!

Brethren, we must not allow ourselves to be deceived by the devil's wiles. We should have a clear understanding of our roles, our responsibility and authority as parents. Abraham did. God said of him, "For I know him, that he will command his chil-dren and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment" (Genesis 18:19).

Whom does God hold responsible for the training of your children? God holds you, the parent, responsible — nobody else. Not the school, not the Church, but you! What society says is acceptable, what the neighbors let their children do, or even what other parents in the Church do is not the standard by which we should evaluate our child rearing.

We have youth programs in the Church. But these programs are designed to help or assist parnot replace them. such program can only build on the foundation laid by parents.

What is the Church's responsibility? The Church must teach. The Church must point the brethren to God's Word, and give instruction in the principles God reveals there. But it is the parents' responsibility to heed that instruction and put it into God's principles of child rear-ing are fair, just, sensible, rea-sonable and sound. But like anything of value, it takes effort to put them to use for the benefit of parent and child. The entire sixth chapter of Deuteronomy explains that the parents' own personal examples, that is, their way of life and their true attitude toward God's law, are fundamen-tal to successful child rearing. The message is clear standards don't work.

Today's Western society makes it easy for the unwary parent to abdicate his or her re-sponsibility to the television set, or to the toy designers, allowing modern decadent entertainment to train, teach and shape the child's values. Some exercise no thought or discretion in choosing a child's toys, never considering whether the child's playthings reflect right or wrong values.

Parents today tend not to su-pervise children's play or entertainment, nor their selection of friends. Children are too often left on their own, to grow up without a strong, patient and loving hand guiding their way to productive adulthood.

Some parents become more concerned with how soon their children walk, talk, read or go to school, often to boost their own vanity, than they are with the (See PERSONAL, page 4)

Pasadena mayor honors Ambassador Foundation

Accepting the plaque, Mr. Tkach told the directors: "Indeed it is a pleasure to accept these gifts on behalf of the Ambassador Foundation, Ambassador College and the Worldwide Church of God.

"It always has been our pleasure and privilege to practice the way of give, and it certainly was a great opportunity to give, in this case to help celebrate the centennial this year."

Evangelist Ellis La Ravia, a vice oresident of the foundation, said: 'College and foundation people worked on the centennial presenta-tion over several months. The centennial officials first approached us to help about a year ago."

Europe moves in three political directions

PASADENA - The nations of Western Europe are moving in three political directions, all at the same time: away from the United States; toward a closer relationship with the Soviet Union; and, all the while, coalescing into an evertighter union among themselves.

All three thrusts are closely inter-related. Let's look at each one, beginning with the ever-widening rift between the United States and its West Europe allies.

"When the Americans closed ranks round President [Ronald] Reagan after the US bombing of Libya," observed West German journalist Hans Wilhelm Vahlefeld, "anti-American protest marches were all they saw of Britain, Ger-many and Italy on their TV screens

... Slowly but surely Americans in all camps — politicians and intellectuals, the elite and the nameless are losing patience. Western Europe is well on its way to becoming a millstone round America's neck."
As reported several times in this column in the past year or so, the idea continues to grow in influential circles in the United States that America must scale back — espe-cially now in a time of sharp budget reductions - its on-site military commitment to Europe. At the same time, Europe is being urged to do more to develop its own military, including nuclear, capacity.

An editorial in the June 30 U.S.

News & World Report, for exam-ple, reflects the accelerating U.S. mood. "The U.S. is assuming too much of the military and financial burden for NATO," wrote editor Mortimer B. Zuckerman. "Some Mortimer B. Zuckerman. "Some $140 billion, or about half our mili-tary budget, goes to Europe, where we have our largest overseas con-ventional forces committed — 340,000 troops out of a total of 540,000 overseas . . .

"Europeans . . . [meanwhile] seek to veto the use of U.S. forces based in Europe for actions outside the NATO-treaty area - witness the European opposition to American retaliation against Libya. Europeans must do more to maximize their capabilities to defend their own territory . . .

"Some 150,000 troops should be phased out of Europe over a five-to-10-year period and redeployed as an additional strategic reserve in the United States," concluded Mr. Zuckerman. "It is time for the U.S. to bite the European bullet,"

What particularly incenses

Americans, even some knowledge-able Europeans admit, is the growing tendency in Europe to equate ing tendency in Europe to equate U.S. foreign policy with Soviet ac-tions. One example is to treat on the same basis the U.S. military opera-tion in Grenada, which put a halt to a Marxist drive in the eastern Caribbean, with Soviet policy in Afghanistan, where a full-blown drive is under way to stamp out not only Afghan resistance but Afghan cultural heritage.

This belief in the so-called "moral equivalence" between the two superpowers "makes Americans hopping mad," admits journal-ist Vahlefeld.

But according to Paul Belien, who works on the foreign desk of the Gazet Van Antwerpen (Antwerp, Belgium), European differences with the United States lie deeper than the moral-equivalence

Americans and most Western tration Western Europe already has towards its Atlantic partner ... Many West Europeans share anti-capitalist feelings with the Soviets."

Europeans today embrace common political ideals. But democracy and pluralism, Mr. Belien wrote, "rep-resent only systems of the political and moral-cultural fields of life. There is a third important field of social life, economics . . . Ordinary Americans have always felt economic liberty an indispensable guarantee of their democracy and pluralism . . . [But] in 'welfare state' Europe, capitalism is a dirty word, as despicable as communism

"Economic freedom in Western Europe is severely restricted by a multitude of regulations and laws ... So Western Europe's economy stagnates while America's keeps growing. This causes jealousy, which reinforces the political frusand its European allies and is doing his best to capitalize on it and tug Western Europe closer to the Soviet

New EEC treaty leaves Parliament weakened

 British author and journalist
 Paul Johnson has joined Peregrine Worsthorne at the apex of British news reportage.

His insight increases as the years pass by. Almost no other English re-porter seems to grasp the behindthe-scenes happenings in Europe – and what they portend for Britain

In an article published in The Times June 23, Mr. Johnson tried hard to shake Britons out of their lethargic view of the European Economic Community (EEC). A fundamental alteration in Britain's relationship to the Common Mar-ket is about to happen. Yet as he observed, "It has aroused no passion in the Cabinet, in the Commons or the media."

What Mr. Johnson termed "The what Mr. Johnson termed The Single European Act" is close to becoming British law. He wrote in The Times: "It is, in effect [an endorsement of] a completely new treaty, which ought properly to have been placed on a level of signif-icance equivalent to that of the orig-inal treaty of Rome."

This is no small matter that the British public has chosen to ignore. Said Mr. Johnson of the newly amended treaty, "It will transform relations among the EEC states into a European union and it will invest the union with the necessary means of action."

The British Parliament is going to be weakened. Already European institutions are infringing on English sovereignty concerning a whole range of subjects from spank-ing children to women's retirement age. British law is in retreat. Pending Parliament legislation will in-tensify and enhance this process.

tensify and enhance this process.

The House of Commons labeled the legislation "The European Communities (Amendment) Bill." Mr. Johnson would have quite a different title — "The European Political Union Treaty." He asked why the proposed legislation was not presented to Parliament as "an act to create a European superstate." The answer he proffers devas-

"The essential point of the new treaty is to abolish the national veto over the whole range of social policy. Within the area, Britain will no longer be able to impede further re-ductions of its sovereignty, however fundamental."

Parents: do you listen?

Have any of you ever watched the Bill Cosby television show? I watch it when my schedule permits, be-cause its theme deals with the family and family problems.

From what I've read, Mr. Cosby's TV family parallels some-what his real family, and I'm sure some of the situations portrayed so humorously are inspired by his own family circumstances.

For those of you who have not seen it, in the show Mr. Cosby is an obstetrician and his wife is a lawyer (a very modern family). They have a son and four daughters. The son and three of the daughters are teenagers or close to it; the youngest in the family is a cute little girl, about 6.

Of course, I don't always agree with how the problems are eventu-ally worked out, but at least they address their problems and work them out together. If you watch it with your family, it's a good way to get a discussion going on the right way to solve a family problem.

For example, on a show a few months ago, one of their teenage daughters asked her father if one of her friends could come to him for an examination. She explained that her friend felt she may have a health

When her father asked if the friend's parents knew of their daughter's problem, his daughter said no, her friend did not want them to know.

Well, of course, Bill Cosby, or Dr. Huxtable on the show, thought at first it was his own daughter that needed help. She assured him, how-ever, that it was a friend at school. Dr. Huxtable examined the girl and told her she had an infection of the bladder and asked how long had she been experiencing pain. She said about a month. He asked her if

Some of our young people go to their parents I'm sure. But there are many others who do not. We receive hundreds of letters to Youth 86 from young people who have prob-lems they are not going to their parents with. When we answer these letters we when we answer these letters we encourage the teens to go to their parents when they are in trouble. We tell them that their parents care about what happens to them more than anyone else on this earth. Un-happily, sometimes parents don't come through for us.

Fathers — and mothers — let's test ourselves on how we are doing in this area.

• Around your house, is praise of each other's accomplishments heard more than criticism?

• Like the television ad, when someone in your family talks, do people listen?

 In your family, do you look for the good instead of the bad and express appreciation to each other for that good each day?

 Along that same line, when family members accomplish something, are recognized for some success at school or on their job, are they complimented or is what they have done played down or ridiculed?

• Is each family member treated with the respect you would treat a friend outside your family? Some of you wonder how you can have a more direct part in fulfilling God's commission to His Church, well, here's how. Communicate with your children.

Build a long-lasting relationship with them that will continue throughout eternity. This is an integral part of that commission that you can, that you must, fulfill in your own household. You are the only one who can do it.

Teens submit 325 photographs for YOUNational Photo Contest

PASADENA — Church youths submitted 325 photographs for the 1986 Youth Opportunities United (YOU) National Photo Contest.

In the senior division Betty Dolph, 18, of Walkerton, Ind., took the best overall black and white photograph, and Kevin Tessier, 16, of Exeter, R.I., and Brian Campau, 18, of Zeeland, Mich., tied for the best overall color photograph.

Tim Bennett, 14, of Fort Collins,

Colo., took the best overall black and white photograph, and Debbie Dunlap, 16, of Pasadena took the best overall color photograph in the iunior division.

The YOU office in Church Administration asked Editorial Services to judge the annual contest.
"We were happy to see many more entries sent in this year than last. The quality of many of the pho-tographs was better as well," said Dexter Faulkner, editor of the Church's publications.

Sheila Graham, Worldwide News senior editor and one of judges, said, "Although most entrants were careful to follow the rules, some were disqualified because they did not place their photographs in any particular category.

Mrs. Graham said photos should be at least 5 by 7 inches, and ages of entrants should be listed. "So many of the photos were smaller than the required size that we were afraid some of the young people were not aware of the size rule, so after checking with the YOU office, no one was disqualified for size this year," she said.

Other judges were Greg S. Smith, manager of Photo Services; Monte Wolverton, Editorial Services art director; Michael Hale, Youth 86 graphics editor; Ronald tor; Micheal Bennett, Youth 86 managing editor; and Randall Cole, Plain Truth graphics editor.

Winners will receive notification from Church Administration.

Onstage at Ambassador

'America's best' returns to Southern California

By Michael A. Snyder

and Michael Hale
PASADENA — Concert patrons were ushered to their seats in the Ambassador Auditorium June 1 to 3 for a much-anticipated musical event. Riccardo Muti and the Philadelphia Orchestra - termed "the country's premier orchestra' by one critic — had returned!

Just one year ago the ensemble thrilled sellout crowds in the Auditorium while being videotaped for a public television performance. This year's three-concert appearance was part of a monthlong tour of 16 cities in the United States and Canada that marked the 50th anniversary of the orchestra's first transcontinental tour. Their return to the Auditorium capped the Am-bassador Foundation's 1985-86 concert season.

The impact of bringing what is considered America's finest orchestra was not lost on the community. While walking toward the Auditorium, both authors of this article overheard enthusiastic concertgoers explaining to friends that the late Herbert W. Armstrong founded an organization that somehow always brings world-class orchestras and soloists to perform in Pasadena.

With conductor Muti and the Philadelphians, the audience enjoyed a double treat. Besides the pleasure of listening to the orches-tra's famed shimmering strings, there was the added thrill of watching one of the world's most animated conductors. The 45-year-old conductor was described by one music critic as conducting with "blazing intensity." Another added, "The orchestra crackled under Muti's athletic conducting.

Under conductor Muti, the Philadelphia Orchestra spans the length of the orchestral acoustic spectrum.

When Ludwig van Beethoven when Ludwig van Beetnoven finished his Symphony No. 5 in C Minor in 1807, he penned the words allegro con brio ("lively and quick with force") under the four introductory chords as a comment on how they ought to be performed.

Today, conductors commanding large orchestras with 100-plus mu sicians tend to soften Beethoven's original notation, perhaps wary of sonically overpowering their audi-

But Riccardo Muti and the Philadelphia Orchestra displayed no such timidity.
Pleasantly startling some Auditorium patrons by choosing the thun-derous opening, Mr. Muti energetically propelled the Philadelphia ensemble through the ponderous bombast of the first movement. Repeatedly stabbing the air with his baton, conductor Muti vigorously and relentlessly kept up the pace until the final C chord reverberated throughout the Auditorium's intimate main hall.

The Philadelphia Orchestra displayed its virtuosity at the other end of the sonorous spectrum in Joseph Haydn's Symphony No. 48 in C Major, "Maria Theresia." The pizzicato section in the minuet could prove troublesome for a lesser orchestra given the Auditorium's sensitive acoustics, but here the Philadelphian strings unified into a single light, delicate instrument.

The concert series also included a majestic rendering of the 1919 Firebird Suite from Igor Stravinsky's ballet L'Oiseau de feu (The Firebird).

RICCARDO MUTI

The Philadelphia Orchestra is renowned for its lush, rich sound developed during 44 years under the late Eugene Ormandy. This sound was evident in this dramatic tonal visualization. (Mr. Muti first led the orchestra in 1972 and be-came its music director in 1980.)

Interviewed at the Expo 86 world's fair in Vancouver, B.C., before coming to Pasadena, conductor Muti praised the acoustics of the Ambassador Auditorium.

"We are very critical about con-cert halls," the conductor ex-plained. "So when they [the orchestra] feel that the hall gives off the richness that our instruments have when a Stradivari [violin] sounds

when a Stradivari Violini Sounds like a Stradivari . . . naturally they want to play better."

Pastor General Joseph W. Tkach, who attended some of the performances and met the music director, said he was impressed with the dedication and commitment to quality of conductor Muti. Noting that he appreciated the conductor's intensity while performing, Mr. Tkach said that Mr. Muti's passion for excellence exemplified the goals of the Ambassador Foundation.

Though the orchestra has recorded critically acclaimed al-bums under conductor Muti, he still loves taking the music directly to the people. "Even the most beautiful records, sonically speaking, cannot reproduce the real sound of an orchestra in a concert hall," Mr.

"Maestro Muti's commitment to quality and excellence is something we can all emulate," Mr. Tkach

He re-minded the campers of the tragic drug-related death of Len Bias. Mr. Bias, 22, had signed a multimillion dollar contract to play basketball for the Boston (Mass.) Celtics when he died from an overdose of cocaine.

Encouraging the campers to be strong, Mr. Tkach said, "You might be the one that is instrumental in helping to turn some young person's life around." After his address the pastor gen-patient and diligent effort re-quired to teach right habits and traits of good character.

The message of Ephesians 6:4 is one of balance — a message that reflects God's love and patience. "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath; but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.'

Here, God tells parents (not just fathers) both what not to do. and what should be done. Par-ents should strive not to be harsh, stubborn or unreasonable. They should work on not losing their temper, or blowing up for selfish, childish or thoughtless reasons. They should not emo-tionally browbeat, crush, put down, ridicule or discourage their children.

On the other hand, parents are instructed here to use godly discipline of two kinds. Nurture, referring to discipline that re-quires action, and admonition, referring to correction through words (which includes encouragement and praise as well as

And both these kinds of discipline are to be done in a manner that God would approve. That is, in love, mercy and patience, with consistency, for the purpose of teaching the positive benefits of God's way of life.

Take the challenge! You will need God's help. Ask Him for it.

Brethren, our children are a wonderful heritage we must not neglect. Take advantage of the principles from God's Word taught through His Church. Don't allow the deceptions of this world to get a toehold in your family!

Thank you for your prayers and the many letters and cards of encouragement and support. I pray for you daily.

Weekly Sabbath: how to use it to revitalize, refresh, plan ahead

By Neville Fraser

How can we be happy and enjoy God's Sabbath when we have had an exhausting week and it looks like an equally exhausting week lies ahead?

There are many ways to look at the subject of keeping the Sabbath and making it a happier time. Not only is the Sabbath a chance to rest from the week just past, but an opportunity to prepare for the week

Neville Fraser will serve as the associate pastor of the Suva, Fiji, church.

A concept that may help us make it through each week and enjoy the Sabbath just a little better was reinforced by a news event. This con-cept should help every one of us have happier Sabbaths and realize we cannot do without this valuable

On top of the world

The news item concerned the death of Tenzing Norgay, the Nepalese Sherpa who accompanied New Zealander Edmund Hillary on the first ascent of Mt. Everest, May

It was a time of great excitement and happiness. World attention focused on the two men for some time. After a great effort and overcoming many obstacles; they succeeded in standing where no man had stood before. Encouraged by this first success, more than 200 climbers, men and women, have since reached the summit of Everest.

The two men did not rest on their laurels. Edmund Hillary, knighted by Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, and Tenzing developed schools and hospitals in the region, helping to raise the living standards of the p ple. By organizing the support that came from their success, Sir Ed-mund and Tenzing gave the people some of the things they needed.

When asked how happy he was at reaching the top of Everest, Tenzing is reported to have said, "The happiness came after." Success on the mountain, overcoming all obstacles, made him happy, but using that success to serve his people and see the benefits gave him even greater happiness.

Our mountain

Each of us is climbing a mountain. It's much higher than Everest, and it takes longer to climb. The summit is the Kingdom of God.

We are climbing, just like Hillary and Tenzing, our eyes fixed on the goal.

When we are called out of this leave civilization and head for the mountains. Leaving the world and its problems, we head for the fresh-ness of a different way of life and the challenge of the climb.

At baptism, the base camp is established from which we begin the climb, after first checking that all details are in order and that we understand what the objective is.

Just as Edmund Hillary was assisted in that climb by his Sherpa guide, Tenzing, who gave him wise counsel, so we are assisted by our guide. Psalm 146:5 tells us that if God is our guide, then we can be happy. God is always there at our side to encourage us, or going ahead to cut the steps in the ice as we climb. As we struggle to overcome this world and the downward pull of human nature, we can look to God as our great help and trusted guide

Proverbs 3:13 shows us that we can be happy: Contact with God, the source of all wisdom, assures us of success. Just as a climber learns the rules and techniques of climbing, so are we learning God's spiri-tual rules for success and applying the principles given us by our guide

Like any mountaineer, we are not wrapped up in the world. We have left it behind. It is of no real inter est. We are concentrating on the job at hand, getting rid of worldly atti-tudes because we know that our life depends on concentrating on the task at hand. We must abide by the rules of our climb, just as the mountaineer must.

Artwork by Monte Wolverton

Being locked into this way of life is like being roped together on a mountain. We are free to move, sometimes laterally so as to get a better hold, but always with an upward intention. If we slip, the line is there to save us, provided we are still attached.

A base camp

Every major mountain takes time to ascend. So, too, does our climb through this life. Mountaineers don't go straight up any mountain. They establish base camps along the way, to rest, gather strength and re-think the next stage of the climb.

We are no different. The weekly Sabbath is our base camp where we can rest and be refreshed, where we can look back on the past week's climb but look ahead, too.

God, like a top-rate guide, knows our limit (Psalm 103:14). He has given us regular rest camps to gather strength. He knows that the higher we climb, the tougher it gets.

Each Sabbath we can review the climb so far. Maybe we slipped a little during the week, lost our hold for a moment, and down we went. Our safety rope pulled us up, though, and we climbed back up to where were. Realizing our mistake, we de termined not to err again as we listened to our guide instructing us.

Deuteronomy 33:27 shows God as our guide, our refuge: "The eter-nal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." God is the one we should never turn away from. We should never think we can try it on our own, because when we slip there will be no one there to stop us falling to our death. Just as the mountaineer concentrates on what he is doing every step of the way, so do we need to medi tate on God's law and think about it daily, studying the path to take so we don't go wrong. God is looking out for us all the time. He will help us overcome all difficulties. He points us to the summit, our goal, the Kingdom of God. We are special people chosen to climb that mountain now, paving the way for others to follow

Being lights

Just as Hillary and Tenzing went on to help others, so, too, can we. There's a time coming when we will be on top of the world, literally. God has promised us that. We will rule over this earth, teaching God's perfect way to all humanity.

But for now, we can serve others by our example. So the Sabbath is a special time to pause and reflect on the trials and triumphs of the week. It is a time to discuss everything with our guide, especially the week ahead. It is a time to plan our next moves in this climb by talking to God and asking Him for assistance and help in where we should go and what we should do.

Always keeping the goal in sight, we can look forward to the Sabbath. It is not just a time to collapse in ex-haustion but a time to be refreshed and strengthened for the week ahead. This approach will make our Sabbaths much happier.

You can reignite your first love

A surprising key stops burnout

By David F. Maas

When you strike a match, it burns brightly, furiously, hungrily - almost zealo

Then, gradually, as it loses its tiny tip of phosphorus, the match's flame dies down and begins to flicker, finally burning itself out when the match stick is consumed

David F. Maas is an assistant professor at Pasadena Ambas-sador College.

Unfortunately, many Christians who formerly had a seemingly boundless supply of zest and zeal for God's truth have begun to flicker. They lack the zeal and the love they once had.

Christians are called "the light of the world" (Matthew 5:14). But some of God's people, like the fool-ish virgins in Matthew 25, have allowed their spiritual lights to die down and burn out.

If our lamps are in danger of go ing out — if they are only smolder-ing and not blazing — where do we get a relight? Shockingly, many Christians are dangerously close to spiritual burnout. Weary of well-doing, many no longer even smile, looking as though they were forced to eat sauerkraut on their oatmeal. They appear tired, faded and without joy. Revelation describes a historical church era in which this characteristic predominated:

"Unto the angel of the church of Ephesus write . . . I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and re pent, and do the first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent" (Revelation 2:1, 4-5).

God thunders this same warning to those of us today who are ap-proaching spiritual burnout — who are letting our zeal for God's work

Fleeting first love?

But how can a member who has been in God's Church 10, 20 or 30 years recapture his or her first flush of love for the truth? That's like asking an old married couple to recapture their early romance special time when sunsets, milk shakes with two straws, porch swings and moonlit nights all took on special significance. Some jaded couples say this time or feeling can never be brought back.

One couple I know have savored their honeymoon for several years. Once, as they were strolling down the sidewalk hand in hand, I asked them jokingly, "All right, you two when is the honeymoon over?

"Never!" came the quick, firm response. To this couple, romance, like teeth, was meant to last a life-

First love, the kind the Ephesians lost, does not have to die. Even if it somehow begins to be quenched, it can be revived!

Toward a solution

The key to renewing zeal is fellowship with God's people, particu-larly meeting new people rather than sticking with the same old cronies and cliques week after week. How wonderful it is to share the precious knowledge of God's truth with people who feel the same way you do — the members of God's Church!

Some people, of course, don't want to associate with anybody. The independent Bible scholar, armed with his concordance and Greek lexicon, feels quite self-sufficient. But God wants His people to fellowship with each other as well as with Him. Fellowshipping with God's people is equivalent to fellowshipping with God (I John 4:21).

One who loves God the Father is obligated to love those begotten of Him, including the firstborn, Jesus Christ, and the brethren (I John

Artwork by

The way to stay close to God is to stay close to God's people. It's like the main current of a stream water stays fresh because it is continually circulating or mingling When the stream is low, isolated pools form. Since the water in these pools is no longer circulating, algae, scum and debris collect in them.

Likewise, God's people will stag-nate without the continuous circulation of fellowship.

People who are mature in God's truth can become rejuvenated and filled with new zeal and youth by in-volving themselves with people who have recently discovered God's truth. Newly converted people can learn balance, wisdom and spiritual maturity by associating with people mature in the faith. Old and young people (both physically and spiritually) are good for each other.

God's people need each other. Though modern Western society is largely destroying the family, God intended that we grow up in an ex-tended family within His Church, having frequent contact with spiritual grandparents, parents, uncles, aunts, cousins, brothers and sisters.

Fellowshipping is the key to reigniting our flush of first love. God's people should actually be closer to each other than to their professional associates or even their own blood relatives. The more we associate with people of like minds, the more we learn how God is working in people's lives. It is inspiring and it also builds zeal.

True fellowship

Fellowship is showing empathy for other people's problems. Christians have the same kinds of prob lems that befall the rest of mankind (I Corinthians 10:13). A widower has a tremendous opportunity to serve when he can help console a man who has just lost his wife. Par-allel experiences can help bond people closer together.

A number of years ago, following an automobile accident, I spent nearly a year in a cast, using crutches and a cane. Now, more than a decade later, I still respond spontaneously to someone in a cast or on crutches. Likewise, people who have gone through illness, deaths of family members, divorce or financial reverses can share grief and comfort, bearing one another's burdens (Galatians 6:2).

Christians have similar tempta tions, doubts and fears. But all Christians have also had some cess overcoming certain kinds of temptations and fears. People find it beneficial to share successes as well as sorrows.

We are admonished to share our shortcomings so we may pray for and encourage each other (James 5:16). Individuals who have been tempted in a certain area may be better equipped to understand what another person is going through, and can be instrumental in turning someone back from a wrong and dangerous course (James 5:20).

The Laodicean church (Revela-tion 3:14-17) lost its zeal in part be-cause of its independent, "I have need of nothing" attitude.

A prominent educator once said,

"No man is big enough to be inde-pendent." God's people need each

We all need to do ourselves a favor by reigniting our first love through fellowship — with familiar friends, with strangers, with older people, with younger people and, es-pecially, through daily fellowship with the patriarch of our Family -God the Father.

Our thanks to all of you for making this Refresher IV a memorable experi-ence. The overall theme seemed to be that of loving authority — how to have it and use it for the benefit of God's people in the service of God.

The fellowship was great — dinners were delectable.

You made us feel "special" and gave us the desire to give more to God's Work and His people.

On our departure back to South Africa, it is appropriate to reflect on MRP IV which we've been privileged to be a part of.

We thank God for His calling, that we've not only been selected to be a part of His Church, but also to the ministry of His Word.

We've been reminded of our Godgiven responsibilities in training our children, to preach the gospel and feed the flock.

How the ill serve God

I just had to take a moment to say thank you to all the people who work so hard to contribute the articles in this paper. The article in the May 5 issue "How the Ill, Infirm Serve God" by K.

Neil Earle was really very special. We have probably in every congregation those who suffer illness, disabilgation those who suffer illness, disabilities and pain. Whether-young or old they are an inspiration to all of us as they patiently await. God's will. We have time every Sabbath and during the week to visit and talk with them ... We can rejoice at seeing their faces light up so bright at the mention of God's Kingdom.

They help us to get a better insight.

They do want it more than anything and being with them helps us all to feel that way too.

G. Kisilewich Kingston, Ont.

Your articles on illness by Mr. Earle. and faith by Mr. [Frederick] Kellers in the May 5 Worldwide News were so inspiring that I had to write to you... I've had a painful chronic . . . disease for 11 years. Thankfully I can go to services st of the time. When I can't, it sure makes me appreciate it when I can.

It would be easy to just give up and cop out, using my infirmity as an excuse.
Instead, I fight against tiredness every day (pain and sleep don't mix — pain wins out) and when the going gets tough, I get going ...

Yes it does take faith to take "no" for an answer. In other areas of my life the answer is "yes," and sometimes instantly ...

Since my disease can't be seen and I can still function, people don't know it until I tell them. I am extremely careful who I tell and what I say as I don't want to take advantage of people Those that I do tell are very caring and make my way much easier. These arti-cles should help those who aren't sick in any way to better relate to those who

The Kremlin appears ready finally to normalize relations with the 12member European Community, the world's largest trading bloc, comprising 320 million people. Until now, Moscow has refused to deal with the EC as a unit, only its individual member states. But the EC. which expanded in January to include Spain and Portugal, is simply too formidable a power for the Kremlin to ignore any longer.

In turn, the European Commis-sion, heading the EC, has expressed interest in closer bilateral relations between it, the Soviet Union and the individual members of Comecon, the Eastern European equiva-lent of the EC. In fact, the commission has hammered out a trade proposal between the EC and Ro-

Certain observers in Britain are alarmed at what is happening (see "European Diary," page 2). They see Britain's sovereignty eroding, compromised to such a degree that other nations could impose their wills upon the British people.

as a comparatively weak and declin-ing force in world affairs are justified by neither the indices of pro-ductive power nor those of potential military strength. The military ca-pacity of Western Europe, collec-tively, is equivalent to that of either of the superpowers — should the Europeans wish to make use of it".

Europeans wish to make use of it.

Mr. Pfaff's insight is almost biblical. He recognizes the Continent's continuing instability. It is still divided by the proverbial Iron Curtain. Berlin is rent in two. The two Germanys remain riven. This is not Europe's natural state. Present conditions are inherently problem producing.

He concluded: "What happens in Europe decides the global balance of power. Europe is the pawn capable of becoming a queen.

What God sees

God sees everything human beings do and much more. His political vision is unfailingly accurate. He understands and sees Europe as no man or nation does. He knows the awn will become a queen. It is His vision that counts.

Indeed the biblical prophet
Daniel foretold future happenings in Europe more than two and a half millennia ago. There were to be seven resurrections of the original Holy Roman Empire. A final 10-nation superpower will constitute the seventh and last resurrection. That time is just ahead of us.

At that time all nations will finally realize that God is the ultimate ruler among the kingdoms of men. He can make and unmake na tions. He has done so in the past. Finally He will set up His ruling family on this earth.

NEWS OF 1 PEOPLE, PLACES & EVENTS IN THE WORLDWIDE CHURCH OF GOD

PASADENA - The Church received its one millionth telephone call for 1986 in the Mail Processing Center (MPC) July 2, according to evangelist Richard Rice, MPC director.

"The WATS [Wide Area Telephone Service] lines are continuing to prove to be one of our most productive tools in the work," the evangelist said.
"Last year was the first time that more than one million calls were re-ceived," he said. "If this rate of growth continues, we will receive more than two million calls in

Of the first one million calls, about 800,000 were generated by the World Tomorrow telecast "The others were Church-related calls such as requests for a minis-ter's address, location of local Church services and other miscella-neous requests," Mr. Rice said.

PASADENA — Pastor General Joseph W. Tkach named evangelist Leslie McCullough, deputy chan-cellor of Big Sandy Ambassador College, to be regional director for southern Africa July 5.

Evangelist Roderick C. Meredith, a professor of theology at Pasadena Ambassador College, was named to replace Mr. McCullough as deputy chancellor of the Big Sandy campus.

"To my knowledge, Dr. Meredith is the only man in the Church who will have served as deputy chancellor on all three cam-puses of Ambassador College when he begins serving at Big Sandy," said Larry Salyer, director of Church Administration.

Dr. Meredith served as deputy chancellor of the former Ambassador campus in Bricket Wood, England, from April, 1973, to June, 1974, when the campus closed. He served as deputy chancellor of the Pasadena campus from June, 1972, to March, 1973.

Transfer plans for Roy Mc-Carthy, South African regional director, have not been finalized.

PASADENA — The Church-owned Feast of Tabernacles site at Lake of the Ozarks, Mo., was sold to a Tennessee development company June 20, according to evangelist Ellis La Ravia, director of Facilities

Administration. Built by the Church in 1969, the site served as many as 14,000 brethren during the Feast of Taber-

PASADENA - Despite a record number of preemptions, the World Tomorrow program Where Are We Now in Bible Prophecy? drew 25,756 calls July 5 and 6.

"This was a very good response, in light of the Fourth of July [Independence Day for the United States] and a record number of preemptions on 52 stations," said evangelist Richard Rice, director of the Mail Processing Center (MPC).

"Had we not been preempted by the Wimbledon tennis tournament and the Goodwill Games [broadcast from the Soviet Union], another 4,400 calls would have been received," he continued

Presented by David Hulme, di-rector of Media Purchasing and Public Relations, the program was the first rerun of the summer. When it first aired in February, the program drew 44,207 calls. The new season of World Tomo row programs is set to begin Sept. 6 and 7.

PASADENA — An earthquake measuring 5.9 on the Richter scale shook Southern California July 8. but caused no damage to Church buildings or injury to brethren, ac-cording to Church officials.

The quake's epicenter was about 12 miles (19.2 kilometers) northwest of Palm Springs, Calif. It hit at 2:21 a.m., Pacific Daylight Time (PDT). Lasting 30 seconds, the quake ruptured an underground section of the California aqueduct, cracked walls and windows, weak-ened bridges, spilled merchandise and caused a power outage that af-fected about 100,000 people, according to Associated Press reports Damage costs were estimated to be $5 million. Fourteen lesser temblors shook the area in the six hours following the quake.

Seismologists at the California

Institute of Technology (Caltech) said the earthquake could have caused severe damage had it been centered in a city.

James Peoples, pastor of the Ban-ning and San Bernardino, Calif., churches, said brethren living near the epicenter were jolted, but suffered little damage.

Evangelist Ellis La Ravia, director of Facilities Administration. said no Church buildings were dam-aged. A disk drive for the Church's phototypesetting system in Publish-ing Services was damaged by the quake, but has since been repaired, according to Donald Patrick of Publishing Services.

PASADENA - Carn Catherwood, regional director for Italian-speaking areas, and his wife, Joyce, returned here June 30 after a 29day trip to England, northern Italy and Switzerland.

"I was able to be in Milan [Italy] on Pentecost and conducted some administrative business for the work," the regional director said in a July 3 interview with The Worldwide News.

"David Stirk of the British Re-gional Office and I visited the Feast site in Lugano, Switzerland, to complete final preparations for the 1986 Festival," he continued.

"I can see why Mr. [Herbert] Armstrong nearly picked Lugano as the site for the European campus of Ambassador College instead of Bricket Wood [England] - it's beautiful."

(Mr. Armstrong and his wife, Loma, traveled to Lugano in March, 1947, to inspect a stately building called Heleneum as a potential site for a European branch of Ambassador College.)

The site still has openings for about 30 brethren to transfer, Mr. Catherwood said.

The regional director said that more than 125 requests for a ministerial visit had been received since January and that La Pura Verita [Italian Plain Truth] has a high profile in Italy.

"We're definitely in a strong growth phase," he said.

"French-speaking Canada is receiving a strong witness," he said in a Worldwide News interview. "We have about 100,000 copies of La Pure Verite [French Plain Truth] circulating there, and we are now on both radio and television."

After conducting combined ser-vices for the Montreal North and South (French), Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City, Que., churches June 21, Mr. Apartian conducted a public Bible lecture.

"We had 265 new people attend, which is tremendous when you consider that we did no outside advertising," the evangelist said. "About 70 to 80 people stayed behind to ask questions

Mr. Apartian said that 40 individuals requested ministerial visits, "so we didn't schedule any follow-up Bible studies so the ministers could have more time to visit these

PASADENA - Abby Docken, a Pasadena Ambassador College graduate who worked at the Al Hussein Center for the Physically Handicapped in Amman, Jordan, was featured on the cover of the February issue of Al Majaal

The Arabic-language magazine printed an article about the Ambassador Foundation's projects in Jor-dan: the Bunyat Center for Special Education in Al Bunyat and the Al Hussein center

The article included comments from Richard Weber, director of the Jordan project, and Church and Ambassador College participants Florence Lane, Sherri Means, Ar-mando Olvera, Cliff Parks, Debo-rah Wright and Edith Weaner (now Edith Rice).

Al Majaal, published in Tunis, Tunisia, is under the auspices of the United States Information Agency (USIA), "an organization responsi-ble for U.S. government information, educational exchange and cul-tural programs,'' William Reinckens, a spokesman for USIA's Public Liaison Office, told The Worldwide News July 3.

The article also appeared in En-glish in the Jerusalem Star, which is printed weekly in Amman, according to Joseph Locke, a personal assistant to Pastor General Joseph W. Tkach.

BOREHAMWOOD, England Choir members are needed at all British Feast sites, particularly so-pranos and basses in Guernsey, England, and sopranos, contraltos and basses in Dunoon, Scotland.

If you plan to attend the Feast in Britain or Ireland and have not yet applied to join the choir, but would like to do so, please contact the Fes-tival Office, Box 111, Boreham-wood, Herts., WD6 1LU, England, as soon as possible.

A WORLD VIEW FROM CHURCH ADMINISTRATION

PASADENA - The state of emergency imposed in South Africa June 12 "has led to a general quieting of the situation, although inci-dents of terrorism and intimida-tion still occur," said Roy Mc-Carthy, regional director for southern Africa.

'As time goes by, more members of the Church are being exposed to dangerous situations," Dr. Mc-Carthy said.

Petros Manzingana, pastor of the Soweto, South Africa, church, re-ported that one of the black mem-bers who works in the eastern Transvaal had his car commandeered by four armed men and was ordered to drive to a town about 60 kilometers (36 miles) away. The member knew that when this occurs the driver is normally killed occurs the driver is normally killed and his body dumped out of the car at the end of the journey. He knew his only hope was God's interven-tion. So he prayed. On reaching their destination, he was astounded when the men thanked him for his help and gave him some money to pay for gasoline. As they disappeared into the bush, he could only give God thanks that his life had been spared

Lectures in Italy, Peru

May 4 Michael Caputo, pastor of the Milan, Rome and Catania, Italy, churches, conducted the first public Bible lecture in Italy, according to Carn Catherwood, regional director for Italian-speaking areas.

The lecture, titled "What biblical prophecy reveals about the future of Italy," was conducted in Rome. About 250 Pura Verita (Italian Plain Truth) subscribers attended representing a 5 percent response

"Response was enthusiastic," said Mr. Catherwood. "One hundred literature request cards were turned in, and 11 people requested

"Among the colorful members of the audience were a Jehovah's Witness pastor, a Catholic monk, a Salvation Army missionary and a Sev-enth-day Adventist elder."

Five hundred twenty new people attended Pura Verdad (Spanish Plain Truth) lectures conducted June 27, 28 and 29 in Lima, Peru, by Mario Seiglie, pastor of the San-by Mario Segilet, pastor of the Santiago, Chile, church.

"Such a big response [11.7 percent] was unexpected," Mr. Seiglie told The Worldwide News July 8.
"The minister there [Wilfredo Saenz] asked me to stay over until the following weekend. So I stayed for two more lectures. The people were very thirsty for the truth — very receptive and respectful."

"As conditions worsen in these countries, more and more people are waking up to the problems in the world and are seeking spiritual solu-tions," Mr. Seiglie added.

The lectures took place in Lima's Crillon Convention Center, scene of an attempted bombing the week be-

Mr. Seiglie said: "A woman tried to blast the convention center, but she was killed in the event. That's the same building that brethren meet in and where the follow-up studies are taking place.

"We ask for prayers because there are bombs going off daily. I was one block away taking a shower, when a bomb went off and knocked me to the shower floor."

Mr. Saenz conducted follow-up Bible studies in Lima, beginning

YES lessons requested

'A Church member's daughter had an interesting experience at school, where religion is taught," school, where religion is daught, said Paul Kieffer, pastor of the Han-nover, Hamburg and West Berlin, West Germany, churches. "The girl took her YES [Youth Educational Services] lesson to school, where she was to work on the lesson during the hourlong reli-gious class," Mr. Kieffer continued.

"The lesson caught the attention of the teacher, who was so im-pressed by the biblical content that she asked for 25 lessons for the entire class to use in discussing Noah and the ark.
