¹ May have helped to propel them into power or sustained their power.

² Of interest is that Napoleon, Wilhelm II, Mussolini and Hitler made positive comments of Islam and had allies among them (as well as King Friedrich der Grosse of Prussia in the late 18th century). Expect the future Beast leader to be initially friendly toward them before a falling out with some of them who will form a King of the South.

Even Charlemagne "Even though Holy Roman Emperor Charlemagne, also known as Charles the Great or Karl der Grosse (c. 747-814), and Abbasid Caliph Harun al-Rashid (c. 763-809) were officially enemies in a cosmic conflict between good and evil, believers and infidels, they acted like long-distance lovers with bottomless pockets, lavishing on each other luxurious and beguiling gifts. These two monarchs may not have shared a common religion, but they shared the kind of geopolitical and economic interests that stretch across the porous and elastic civilizational lines, magically transforming the infidel into the very embodiment of fidelity. Through the exchange of several envoys, the Frankish king and the Abbasid caliph sought to deepen the alliance first forged by Charlemagne's father, Pepin the Short (c. 714-768), and al-Rashid's grandfather, Abu Jaafar al-Mansur (c. 714-775)." 					<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Wanted absolute power.
Mussolini (1922-43)	1920-21. 1928/29-34.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Initially very socialist. Eventually stuck a deal with Big Business. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Initially anti-clerical. Even crosses were banned from schools. Concordant with RCC in 1929. Increasingly showed his anti-RCC feelings. Athiest. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Initially positive. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Leftwing but adopted more and more nationalist ideas. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Extreme rightwing. But continued socialist rhetoric. Upset small business. Social conservative. Imperialist. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Roman Emperor.
Hitler (1933-45)	1928/29-34.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Capitalism and a little socialism. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Concordant with RCC in 1933. In 1930s many clerics were persecuted. Increasingly showed his anti-RCC feelings. Wanted 'positive' Christianity. Deist. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Initially positive and had strong allies among them in Middle East. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Rightwing. Held to some socialist ideas. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Extreme rightwing. Imperialist. Lebensraum. Social conservative. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Initially proclaimed the HRE. By 1938 he dropped the HRE title and called it simply the Reich.
Final Beast³	2xxx	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Like Napoleon, Bismark, Wilhelm II, Mussolini and Hitler, the Beast will likely be a social and economic reformer to some degree and not for the wealthy alone – this will prove popular among the people. All of these endeavoured in some way to 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Concordant with RCC. NB: Napoleon and Mussolini started on the Left and 'migrated' to the Right. Hitler's early economic and financial theories contained some socialist aspects and Mussolini even more so. Napoleon, Mussolini and Hitler grew antagonistic with the Roman Catholic Church	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Initially positive with some in the Middle East. But will fall out with those in North Africa. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Possibly some liberal leanings Economic reformer. Improve living standards with a new and vibrant economic model. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Extreme rightwing. Social conservative. Because a beast is a wild, predatory animal that kills, maims, scattered and devours other creatures. It is a warlike Gentile power eager to destroy 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Will morph from a HRE into something even worse: a Roman Empire with the will and desire to go forth and conquer.

Those that hold to other views of prophecy may be deceived, viewing this system as the saviour of Western Civilisation and the world as a whole.
